Building for the Future

Construction Zone — Do NOT Enter!! Welcome to Bloomsburg University. What a year! Everywhere we looked there was some sort of construction going on. The year started with a face-lift for Carver, pipe laying on College Hill and Second Street, and the groundbreaking for the new recreation center. Construction will continue on the upper part of campus as the rec. center works toward completion for January of 1995 and the new Library construction gets underway.

With all of the dumptrucks, jackhammers, cement pipes, backhoes, and roadblocks it was almost impossible for students and faculty to find parking on campus. But this is just one of the sacrifices we have to make to build for the future. One quote said it the best, "The road to success is always under construction."

Faces at B.U.

Smile and the world smiles with you! The Bloomsburg University campus is filled with hundreds of smiling faces. Look around- hear the laughter. These four (maybe more) years at Bloomsburg are the best times of our lives. Friends, memories, good times, and even the bad times are all part of college life. But hey, relax, enjoy yourself, and most of all- don't forget to SMILE!

TOGETHERNESS

Death is nothing at all —
I have only slipped away into the next room.
Whatever we were to each other, that we are still.
Call me by my old familiar name, speak to me in the easy way which we always used.
Laugh as we always laughed at the little jokes we enjoyed together.
Play, smile, think of me, pray for me.
Let my name be the household word it always was.
Let it be spoken without effort.
Life means all that it ever meant.
It is the same as it ever was:
There is absolutely unbroken continuity.
Why should I be out of your mind because I am out of your sight?
I am but waiting for you, for an interval, somewhere very near,
just around the corner.
All is well, nothing is passed, nothing is lost.
One brief moment, and all will be as it was before
Only better, infinitely happier, and forever —
we will be one together with Christ.

Dedicated to Robert E. Snell from Amy Franklin

Nightlife

Everyone knows that the best times are had in the evenings. It is at night, when we all let our hair down and let loose for a few hours. As college students, we like to think of this as "relieving stress". Some of us take a more active approach and start dancing on the table, others find themselves in the games room trying to break the high score on the pinball machine. And some of us just seem to find that a few extra Z's are all that we need. Many students head out for a night of dancing and partying with friends. But somehow, morning always seems to creep in.

Money, MAC, and Wash

What's made out of paper, green with pictures of former presidents on the front, and always in demand? MONEY! How many times have you had to take a last minute stop at the MAC machine before that night out on the town? Too many, right? And how many times have you had to go through all of your pockets scrounging for quarters for the washer to do that dreaded chore-laundry? Well, just think, before we know it we'll be out in the real world, earning some real money (hopefully)! But until then we'll have to scrounge just like every other college student, hoping each time we slide our MAC card into the slot it's not the last time we see it.

Studying

At Bloomsburg the students are really interested in studying . . . NOT! Actually, if you want to see someone that you haven't seen in a while, just go to the library. Most students end up at the library at one time or another. Usually you can tell the people who have a paper due the next day or a big test coming up by the look on their faces. It's that look a person has when all they want to do is tear out their hair and bring in an uzi.

So if you want to see the students of Bloomsburg studying, you can either wait 'til finals week, or until really late at night, or (for that overly stressed out friend with 18 credits) look in a very remote spot that nobody would ever think of, and you will see those B.U. students studying (er, cramming) their hearts out. 'Cause we all know, "when the going gets tough, the tough get cramming!"

Around Town

Bloomsburg, the only town in Pennsylvania, is small enough to feel like home, but big enough to have a variety of stores, boutiques, and eateries for the many college students. As they walk down the tree lined streets, students come across a wide range of shops including the Que Pasa Boutique, which has all the latest fashions; the Costume Shop, and the Husky Corner Mall which is complete with a tanning spa, fitness center, and the Good Lookin' Salon. Of course, after their shopping sprees students replenish their funds at the MAC machine and then it's off to CVS for those personal needs. At the end of the day everyone stops for a quick treat at the Candy Barrel or Lickety Split. For a night out on the town, students can go to the Alvina Krause Theater and then it's off to Hess's Tavern for those who are lucky enough to be legal; and for those who aren't — Sal's and Berrigan's are the place to be.

Our Campus

Bloomsburg University is often referred to as, "the friendly college on the hill." Located on College Hill above the "only town in Pennsylvania", B.U. covers 173-acres of the Appalachian foothills of north-central Pennsylvania. The atmosphere of the campus is created by the unique blend of historic and modern buildings.

Currently our campus is also going through a growth spurt. With the addition of a new recreation center and a new library soon to come, we can only imagine the change that has overcome Bloomsburg University from its original start in 1839 as a Commonwealth of Pennsylvania normal school for the education of teachers.

Winter Wonderland

No one will forget the winter of 1993-94.

Mother Nature pelted us with a great amount of snow. Waking up every morning and checking the local delayed openings and school closings almost became a ritual. Many faculty, staff, commuters and off-campus students had to start out their days by shoveling and preparing for a long trip to campus. For those students already on campus, extra time had to be made for the journey out into the cold to get to classes.

This year, Bloomsburg started the first condensed schedule to try to help alleviate some of the stress and strain of continually missing the same classes over and over. This schedule reorganized the daily calendar to start 2 hours later and fit all classes in into a shorter time period.

The Town of Bloomsburg covered in a fresh coat of snow is definitely a beautiful sight, but now that we've made it through the winter of 80 plus inches let's keep our fingers crossed for a calm winter next year.

The Bloomsburg Fair

The Bloomsburg Fair is looked upon as a high point of every fall semester. The smell of funnel cakes, sausage, and cotton candy causes people of every age to crave a night at the fair. This year Kenny Rogers, Billy Ray Cyrus, and Survivor with special guest Starship performed. A good time was had by all. Just like the years before, there was something for everyone. There were rides, crafts, and many livestock and agricultural exhibits. The Bloomsburg Fair is an event that should not be missed.

Homecoming

"The World of Animation" was the theme of this year's homecoming. Students across campus decorated their residence hall windows to show support of homecoming, and to compete for prizes. The celebrations started on Thursday, October 21, with the Bloomsburg Theater Ensemble's production of the comedy 'The Foreigner' at the Alvina Krause Theater in town.

Kenneth Gross was the marshal for the homecoming parade, which began at 10 a.m. on Saturday, October 23. The Bloomsburg Huskies football team played the West Chester Rams at 1:30 p.m. at Redman Stadium. The homecoming king, queen and freshman sweetheart were announced at halftime; along with winning floats, banners, and residence halls.

To end the festivities the music department presented the Homecoming Pops Concert, on Sunday, October 24, at 2:30 p.m. in Mitrani Hall.

Parent's Weekend

It's 1 a.m., and you've just stumbled in from that party. You look at the calendar, tomorrow is November 6. Oh no! It's Parents' Weekend. Your room can not look like this with Mom coming up for a visit. It's time to borrow someone's Windex and Pledge, to pick up the dirty clothes off the floor, and to change the sheets that have been on your bed since you arrived at school. Do not forget to get up early tomorrow, so you can go down to the lobby of your hall to borrow the vacuum.

Finally, they arrive. Your Mom asks who you paid to clean your room. Next stop is the football game. Bloomsburg is playing Cheyney. It's pretty cold, but you don't mind, because you know that as soon as the game is over you will be warming up at a "real" restaurant. The game is finally over, and Bloomsburg is victorious.

You are on your way to the restaurant when your parents' tell you that they have a surprise, they got tickets to the Kingston Trio. You say "neato" and grin and bear it. At least they haven't asked you about your grades, yet. After the concert your parents give you that loving smile and you can see that you made their day. Dad leans over and hands you some cash. Maybe today wasn't a total waste. Deep down you are really glad they came, because you had the opportunity to spend some quality time with your parents before you have to go out into the real world.

Siblings' and Children's Weekend

The weekend of April 30th brought both the Renaissance Jamboree and Siblings' Weekend together at Bloomsburg University. The Jamboree brings the community and campus together for a fun-filled day including events such as an arts and crafts show, square dancing, baton twirling, and plenty of food. This weekend also allows the students of BU to invite brothers, sisters, nieces, nephews and other children to share a special weekend at the University. Aside from the Renaissance Jamboree, the Program Board made Siblings' Weekend fun for all with games, sand art, Snow White, and a trip to Knoebel's. Whatever the event, participants enjoyed themselves on this festive occasion.

His experience includes teaching and research; planning; fiscal, human resource and facilities management; admissions; development; public and community relations; alumni and legislative affairs; safety and security.

Dr. English has had a great impact on all of the students, faculty and staff of Bloomsburg University. Dr. English could often be found around campus talking and meeting with people. On several occasions he even opened up his home for student and faculty receptions. He has made his one year here a great one. Dr. Curtis English will be greatly missed. Thank You, Dr. English, for all that you have done!

Celebrating Ten Years

This year, Pennsylvania's State System of Higher Education celebrated its tenth anniversary. Throughout the last decade, the State System universities have vigorously maintained the primary mission of providing a quality education for Pennsylvania's citizens. The System also has seen dramatic changes in its first ten years, becoming an important force helping Pennsylvania remain strong.

▶ One of every 34 Pennsylvanians is attending or is a graduate of a System university.

▶ The State System universities enroll over 95,900 students, 89 percent of whom are Pennsylvania residents.

▶ With some 11,000 employees, the System is the Commonwealth's 17th largest employer.

▶ More than 290,000 System alumni live and work in Pennsylvania.

▶ System-wide enrollment increased 21 percent since 1983.

▶ The System has a national role in education reform, sponsoring the Pennsylvania Academy for the Profession of Teaching and leading the national Teach America Conference.

▶ The universities have awarded 140,500 degrees since the System's inception.

▶ The System's achievements have received national recognition. A Study conducted by the American Association of State Colleges and Universities cites Pennsylvania's State System as a model of an effective public university system.

The four Vice-Presidents of our University exemplify the diversity that is felt on campus. Their education and work experience is as varied as their responsibilities to the University. As Vice-President for University Advancement, Tony Ianiero deals with the external relationships of the University. Carol Matteson is the Provost and Vice-President for Academic Affairs. She oversees the academic activities of the University. As Vice-President of Student Life, Jennie Carpenter is responsible for the non-academic life of the students. And finally, Robert Parrish is the Vice-President for Administration. He oversees the University's investments and budget.

Department of Music

"Our students have the advantage of being in a program that is small enough to ensure they receive personal attention from the faculty to grow musically to their full potential. I enjoy helping students learn the intricate detail of music." -Stephen Wallace, D. Ed., Chairperson

Music requires self discipline. Musicians have a responsibility to prepare properly. They must love what they're doing and be willing to devote countless hours perfecting their skills.

The Department of Music offers opportunity for creative activity and self-expression as well as the cultivation of student's talents. Students receive an education that prepares them for varied professional opportunities.

The bachelor of arts degree in music allows the music major to select one of two specializations, music history-literature or applied music-voice, piano, organ, strings, woodwinds or brass. Both areas offer strong preparation in harmony-theory, music history, ensemble participation and repertoire.

Bachelor of Arts graduates have a variety of vocational opportunities: private teaching, church music, performing groups, composing and arranging, music libraries, and facets of the music industry such as retail, printing and recording.

Department of Anthropology

"Anthropology majors learn about the diversity and breadth of the human experience. They are exposed to unique opportunities and to a caring and committed faculty. Students learn about the diversity underlying all culture and come to appreciate people for who they are and what they do. Anthropology is the most liberating of all sciences. Students have the opportunity for a career where they are constantly involved in new discoveries and increased cultural understanding." — Robert Reeder, M.S., M.A., Chairperson

Anthropology promotes global cultural awareness through classroom studies of cultures everywhere. Anthropology, the study of humankind, attempts to establish useful information and generalizations about people, their behavior and their cultural and biological origins, in order to arrive at the fullest possible understanding of human diversity.

At Bloomsburg, anthropology is divided into three areas: cultural anthropology which studies ways of life in societies across the world; physical anthropology which traces human origins and biological variability; and archaeology which seeks to explain human behavior by studying material remains from past cultures.

Study in these three disciplines is interwoven so students come to see the whole picture of humankind: how humans have evolved, what problems they face, what solutions are possible, and what the future might hold.

Department of Art

"The most common motivation for students who study art is the desire for self-expression. Our art faculty recognizes this and we structure our program to that end." — Kenneth Wilson, chairperson

"With courses in ceramics, crafts, design, drawing, photography, graphics, painting, and sculpture, art students with diverse professional aims may pursue creative interests and skills that will be a source of deep personal satisfaction throughout their lifetime." Complimenting the will to create is the desire to understand the history and principles of art, to gain an appreciation of great works of art from the past and present, to appreciate the aesthetic and stylistic innovations of any given age, thus gaining an increased awareness of one's artistic and cultural heritage. Within the major there also is a strong undercurrent to perceive art as an academic discipline. Studio courses reflect and support this liberal arts purpose as well as building competence in selected media. Art history courses provide a structure for an understanding of the arts while developing the ability to research and write.

The art program is consistent with the university's aim to be a center of learning in the arts and sciences. Through a finely tailored course of study, art students enjoy opportunities for advanced study and pursue specific career goals, preparing for careers as artists, art historians, museum curators, design and advertising consultants, urban planners, and educators. Students choose between two basic areas of study: art studio and art history.

College of Business

Department of Accounting

"We need to learn new information management skills and constantly evaluate our methods if we are to remain competitive. The intent of the program here at Bloomsburg is to prepare our students not just to enter but to contribute to a professional area of accounting." — Burel Gum, chairperson

"Accounting is the language of business." Approximately 550 undergraduates are currently majoring in accounting, making it one of the most popular programs of study at the university. Housed in the College of Business, the degree program requires a total of 63 semester hours — 27 semester hours devoted to accounting courses- and culminates in a bachelor of science in Business Administration.

The program's curriculum is tailored to address the demands confronted by today's professional accountant. Students learn how to accumulate and summarize information, to analyze and interpret results, and to present information which often becomes an important element in the decision-making process.

The program also emphasizes the importance of communication skills, both written and oral. The successful accountant spends more time working with people than with numbers, and more time helping others to reach decisions than tabulating figures. Accounting is an information system, not a mathematical system.

Department of Economics

"The wisdom of how we use these scarce resources will ultimately shape the quality of life for the ourselves and for future generations." — W.B. Lee, Ph.D., chairperson

The Department of Economics at Bloomsburg University offers a systematic study of the economic activities of government, business, and consumers. The core of the curriculum enables you to master basic principles of economics, develop analytical skills, and interpret economic phenomenon. To accommodate the diversity of interests on the undergraduate level, the department has three tracks open to economics majors- two culminate in a bachelor of arts and one in a bachelor of science.

Department of Marketing

"The marketing faculty seek to facilitate the student's learning process through distinct and challenging courses. Courses focus on major knowledge segments within the marketing discipline. Faculty encourage and stimulate students to research, understand, and apply marketing knowledge. Students and faculty are partners in the learning process through their active efforts in and outside the classroom." — Stephen S. Batory, DBA., chairperson

Students majoring in marketing study the free enterprise system and the process by which products are produced, distributed and sold in the market place. All aspects of the distribution of goods, ideas and services, from advertising and market research to sales promotion and consumer behavior studies, come under review in contemporary marketing analysis.

One of the strongest assets of the Department of Marketing is the faculty. Experienced in the field and active in professional marketing organizations, they frequently give presentations and publish articles on marketing to remain on the "cutting edge" of the field. They take pride in their ability to offer students one-to-one attention with a nurturing environment.

College of Professional Studies

Department of Curriculum and Foundations

“Teachers specializing in elementary education find satisfaction and a measure of pride in guiding young children as they experience their initial excitement and fulfillment in learning. Teachers focusing on secondary education have opportunities to guide youth as they shape their first adult thinking.” — William O’Bruba, Ph.D., chairperson

Working with young children and feeling the excitement of watching human learning at its earliest stages are at the heart of early childhood education. By the year 2000, the United States is expected to experience a severe shortage of teachers. The Department of Curriculum and Foundations includes teacher education programs in elementary, early childhood, and secondary education; educational foundations; and the Reading Clinic. All departments are accredited.

Facilities are modern and up-to-date technologies are available including a course in educational computing. A state-of-the-art computer laboratory enables students to learn current advances in computer-assisted instruction. Students are required to spend time observing and assisting in actual classroom settings through two field studies courses offered in the sophomore and junior years. These courses prepare students for the actual student teaching experience.

Elwell Hall

What is 9-stories high, is about the length of a football field, and houses over 600 females? Why it's Elwell Hall, of course.

Elwell Hall was completed in 1968 and was named in honor of Judge William Elwell, a former trustee; his son George E. Elwell, a graduate and a former trustee; and his grandson G. Edward Elwell, a graduate and a French instructor at the university. It is the only hall on campus that is not named after a neighboring county. In addition to over 300 rooms, Elwell has recreation rooms and lounges, a guest suite, study rooms, computer lab, and apartments for staff. The Campus Child Center, the Residence Life Office, and the AFSCME office are all located on the ground floor.

Rumor has it, "Hotel Elwell" is the largest women's residence hall of all the Pennsylvania State System of Higher Education residence halls.

Montour Hall

Montour Hall is a four-story male residence hall. It houses 250 students and is divided into 2 wings complete with recreation and lounge facilities, study rooms, guest suites, and apartments for resident staff members. It's original construction was completed in 1964; the same year as Schuylkill Hall.

Columbia Hall

The newest residence hall on campus, completed in 1970, is nestled in a corner of the campus allowing for a little bit of privacy. It is 9-stories high and houses 400 students and a special apartment for the Residence Director. Every odd floor is equipped with kitchenettes, microwaves, and a television lounge. The even floors are used as study lounges.

The huge hall lounge, on the first floor, has a sound proof piano room, a sewing machine, an exercise bike, a pool table, and vending machines. Columbia is an active hall and hosts movies, aerobics, and parties in its lounge.

To the women that live in Columbia Hall, it's their, "home away from home."

Luzerne Hall

This men's hall that houses approximately 300 students is located right in the heart of the Bloomsburg University Campus.

Luzerne was completed in 1967 and houses a recreation and t.v. room, and an apartment for the Residence Director on the first floor. There are also t.v. lounges and quiet study rooms on the other 3 floors.

The friendships and memories made in Luzerne last a lifetime.

Lycoming Hall

Lycoming Hall is the smallest women's residence on campus. It was opened in the fall of 1976. It houses 250 students on 5 floors; the ground floor is reserved for upperclassmen.

The women in Lycoming enjoy the flexibility found within their rooms. Because the furniture is not fixed, as in the other 6 halls, the residents find it very easy and fun to play the role of interior designers by moving the furniture around.

The women of Lycoming feel very comfortable in their "home away from home."

Northumberland Hall

"North" is one of the 3 male residence halls. It is situated in the heart of the university campus opposite Luzerne Hall. It houses about 200 students on 3 floors. The first floor consists of a large game room, equipped with a ping pong table and vending machines. Northumberland's original construction was completed in 1960.

Schuykill Hall

Schuykill Hall is a four story facility completed in 1964. It houses 250 women and is divided into 2 wings complete with recreation and lounge facilities, study rooms, guest suites, and apartments for the residence staff members. Schuykill is located at the lower end of campus between Carver and Old Science Halls.

Montgomery Place Apartments

There comes a time when most students feel a need to move on, er, move up actually. No matter how much you cherish "quiet hours", or those golden moments waiting for a shower, or the tempting food at the Scranton Commons; you make the decision to sacrifice all that in favor of FREEDOM. Now you have to deal with waking up early to catch the bus, learning how to cook with more than a hotpot, and living with three roommates instead of one. Make no mistakes, the majority love living on upper campus and would rather camp out than move back into the halls.

Montgomery Apartments provide students with a taste of off campus living and is a dress rehearsal for life after graduation.

Off Campus

One of the most exciting, yet overwhelming decisions a Bloomsburg student will have to make is that to move off campus, and with whom and where. Off campus life provides an alternative way of living — one with many responsibilities, excitement, and independence. Most students tend to move off after their first or second years here at Bloomsburg.

Moving off campus is a project in itself. First, a student must decipher amongst his or her peers which one(s) will make suitable roommates. The search for the apartment or house is next. The lease obligates the tenants to pay the rent and all the "fun" bills, such as phone, gas, water, electric, and cable. It is quite frustrating going from on campus where you pay a flat rate for everything — food, room, and water — to jumping from payment to payment off campus.

Not only are the bills a shock, but having to make your own food is scary too. This gives students a taste of the real world if they give up the meal plan and/or FLEX.

Along with Bloomsburg's diversified academics and enriching community activities and sports, off campus life adds to one's understanding of the real world. Leaving Bloomsburg's safe hall life is just one way students learn about real responsibilities and gain their independence.

COMMUTER

Commuter

Any student who lives at least one mile from the Bloomsburg University campus is a commuter student. Whether you live down Main Street or as far away as Williamsport, Hazelton, Berwick, or Danville the daily commute becomes a vital part of your college career. Of course, getting to campus is only a small part of the battle. Once you have gotten here parking becomes the main problem. This year, with all of the construction on campus commuting students have been very cooperative by parking on upper campus and taking the shuttle bus down to classes.

On December 23, 1992, Danny Hale was hired to turn around the Bloomsburg University football program that saw only 10 wins in the past three seasons. Nearly a year later, the Huskies finished the 1993 campaign with a positive 5-6 mark, 4-2 in the PSAC Eastern Division.

The season was graced with top performances by many players. Freshman quarterback Glen McNamee completed 67 of 130 attempts for 929 yards and seven touchdowns on the season. He also rushed for two scores. Sophomore tailback Mike Johnson gained 796 yards on 199 carries and six touchdowns. Sophomore fullback Syheed Brooks rushed for 476 yards on 114 carries and three touchdowns. Junior wide receiver Buck Eardley caught 49 passes for 911 yards and a team-leading nine touchdowns. Junior defensive back Chet Henicle finished with a conference-leading eight interceptions. Freshman linebacker Frank Babula led the squad with 84 tackles.

Bloomsburg graduates five seniors from this year's squad: Dom DiPiano, Ralph Bricker and Brian Kelley, Jeff King and Chris Esser.

It was another successful season for coach Jan Hutchinson and her squad as Bloomsburg's Field Hockey Team became the 1993 NCAA DIVISION II Field Hockey Champions.

The team was led by junior All-American Shelley Miller. She scored 19 goals and added 14 assists this season. Junior Chris Fink has contributed 16 goals and 6 assists, while sophomore Kim Mack has added 11 goals and 2 assists. Other offensive leaders are sophomore Chris Basalyga and junior Michelle McFalls. Junior Lori Hippensteel has allowed only 6 goals in over 12 complete games. Junior Rachel Trinidad has allowed only one goal in over 8 complete games. Trinidad registered a complete game shutout in the PSAC title game. Defensively, the Huskies have recorded shutouts on 15 occasions and have allowed only 112 shots on goal. Seniors Gretchen Adams and Nicole Shiavello and sophomores Shirley Powell and Jen Hitzler provided much of the defensive experience.

The 1993 Huskies' program took on a new direction. Coming off of a 5-11-1 1992 season, the men looked to rebound behind strong defense and under the direction of a new coach. John O'Leary, the Huskies' women's soccer assistant coach for the past 2 seasons, took over the men's program this season.

Inside the lines, defense was the squad's strong suit headed by senior Tom Simonet. In front of the veteran back, senior Frank Klein and junior Mike Elliot give the Huskies a pair of experienced performers on the midline.

The roster had been trimmed to 16 field players and 3 goalkeepers which lead to plenty of playing time for almost the entire squad. Only 6 freshmen were listed among the team members, so some limited experience existed on the roster; however, playing time for several players was vital to the Huskies' development.

Scoring and goalkeeping were 2 of O'Leary's concerns. Sophomore Glenn Haug was left as the lone performer with experience in the net after the 1992 season.

Over all the Huskies have played well as a team receiving contributions from many players. Seniors Bobby Dilliaine, Tom Simonet, Tom Clayton, and Frank Klein, juniors Mike Elliot, sophomore Gus Gorman, and freshmen Brian Stevens, and Dave Kuster have all contributed to the success in scoring.

The diversity on offense this season had been complimented by strength on defense. While many have contributed to this success also, much of the credit must be awarded to sophomore goalie Glenn Haug, who was outstanding. Early in the season Haug was recognized for his stellar play as the conference player of the week.

With all of the past and present success Coach Chuck Laudermilch and his team have had, he keeps the game itself in perspective and puts emphasis on all aspects of the game with his players.

"I want us to be a competitive program," he said. "But I also want to be careful to preserve it. I define a successful college experience as including academic success, social success, as well as athletic success. I don't want athletics to be the motor that drives the car. I just want it to be a part of it. I want the women to enjoy the experience. I try to make it enjoyable and make our program one they can feel good about."

The team had only one senior, sweeper back Kim McColligan. She was complimented by a talented cast of juniors, who have made significant contributions to the club during the last 3 seasons also. One of those juniors is top scorer Denise Pecoraro, who once again posed problems for opposing goal keepers. Additional scoring came from 2 more juniors, Holly Panichelli and Tracee Kustka.

The defense also appeared strong this season. Contributing greatly to this was sophomore goalie, Amy Linn. Additionally, the midfield of Jennifer Kitz, Alisa Healy, Leighann Graham, and Lesley Beam helped round out the squad.

The Huskies are in the top 20 NCAA Division II Rankings.

First-year head coach Marion Reese was optimistic about the young team that had little match experience.

The top 2 singles positions this season were led by 2 sophomores. Trish Sweeney returned in the top singles position. Whitney Ammerman is another top player. Tracey Seaman, a transfer from Geneva College, is listed behind Sweeney and Ammerman in the lineup.

The bottom of the lineup proved to be an interesting group providing positive competition to the team. Freshman Ashley Goetz, a lefthander who uses an attacking style, entered the rotation with juniors Heather Wilhelm and Samantha Viard. Another player, Sandra Romich, is a graduate student and played around her busy academic schedule.

Doubles play matches up Sweeney and Ammerman at #1, Goetz and Wilhelm at #2 and Viard and Seaman at #3. Romich and junior Cherilyn Devol also played in the doubles rotation.

Competition in the PSAC Eastern Division was "wide open" according to Huskies' Head Coach Charlie Chronister. Millersville, the PSAC champion last season, lost two of its top players that made the division extremely competitive. Senior guard Shawn Godown was the team's high scorer in three of the final four games last year and helped propel Bloomsburg into the playoffs. Godown amassed 583 points in his first three seasons. He was also the top returning player in four categories: assists (80), steals (42), free throw shooting (76.8) and three-point shooting (40.3). He was the captain of this year's squad.

Sophomore Lee Gump was the other returning starter for Bloomsburg. His freshman stats were impressive - scoring 10.6 points and pulling down 6.3 rebounds per contest. Others who contributed to the successful season were: juniors Jerry Jones, Raul Martinez, Chris Jemo, Jared Lacina, and Brian Lacey, sophomores Tony Modrovsky, Kevin Sullivan, and Mike Day, and freshman Aaron Norakus, Jason Zarilla, and Mike Ellzy.

The 1993-94 season returned four starters from last year. Bloomsburg's goal was to win 20 games this year, which was sternly treated as the Huskies were slated to play three of the pre-season top 20 teams in the nation (Div. II) in Philadelphia Textile, Norfolk State, and Pitt-Johnstown.

Senior guards careen Bulka and Brenda Ryan, respective first and second team all-conference selections last year, returned to lead the backcourt for Bloomsburg. Before the 1993-94 season, Bulka (766 points) and Ryan (540 points) were sixth and 18th, respectively, on the school's all-time scoring list.

Sophomore guard Paige Hargrove, the 1992-93 "Rookie of the Year" in the PSAC East, returned having averaged 10.5 points per game in her first season of eligibility. Other contributing players were: juniors Missy Butterworth, Casey Melvin, Lori Thebes, and Marilee Spear; sophomores Kim Stamm, Liz Hand, Jill Syzmanski, and Colleen Riffert; and freshmen Jennifer German, Gayle Blez, Gina Donlevie, Mardel Kreider, and Megan McLeod.

This was only the second season for Coach Roch King as the Bloomsburg University Men's Head Swimming Coach. The team is young, made up of mostly underclassmen. The men made great strides this year, making many personal bests and shooting for new team records. Next year hopes to be an even stronger year for this growing program.

With three returning national qualifiers, including two All-Americans, head coach Dave Rider was confident that this year's squad would be among the top teams in the PSAC once again. Juniors Stephanie Humphries and Patty Kirn and sophomore Heather Towne returned to bolster the team this season following last year's Huskies third-place showing at the PSAC Championships and 10th-place finish at the national championships. Humphries was an All-American earning second place in the 200-yard butterfly and third in the 100-yard butterfly. She also set a school record in the 100 fly with a time of 57.24. Others who helped round out the lineup included: senior Laurel Highlands, juniors Jen Fenton and Stacy Steacher, sophomores Ellen Pirnat, Dawn Faubel, and Justine Boettger, and freshmen Sue Donovan, Jessica Kirst, and Stephanie Lowe.

For the first time since the start of the swimming program at Bloomsburg, diving was not part of the dual meet events for the Huskies. New regulations required a minimum pool depth, which the Bloomsburg facilities does not meet.

Long-time assistant Tom Martucci took over the head coaching position for the Huskies in the 1993-94 season. Seven national qualifiers, including two EWL champions returned to begin the Martucci era. Those seven were: seniors Steve Lilley, Andy Fitzpatrick, William George, and Tyrone Howard; junior Brad Rozanski and Pete Rinella; and sophomore Chad Bailey.

The Huskies have been among the top-three teams at the PSAC championships in 16 of the last 17 years, including seven first-place finishes. Bloomsburg has never placed lower than sixth in a tournament. Individually, the Huskies have earned over 85 individual championships.

The 1994 Huskies looked to exhibit a season of its traditional brand of sound, fundamental baseball. The pitching staff is young, but has experience. Senior Dave Yost, sophomores Ben Witmer and Robert Harter, and juniors, Chad Arnold and Brent Beiler provided the depth to the rotation. The bullpen relied on Jed Custer, Tom Fiorelli, Joe Olivacz, Jon Fritz. Offensively, the Huskies had Chet Henicle leading the team in virtually every offensive category. The infield duties were held by Matt Croyle at third, Eric Harris at first, and Jed Custer, Russ Canevari and Matt Rosenow at second. The outfielders were: Joe DeLucca, Jason Vavra, and Tim Transue.

Sophomore Rob Harter pitched what could be the first ever no-hitter by a Huskies' baseball player. Harter shut down Longwood on April 12 striking out six. He walked a batter with one out in the seventh inning, narrowly missing a perfect game.

The softball team advanced to the national championships for the 15th straight year capturing second in the NCAA Mid-Atlantic Regional Tournament. The Huskies finished with a 42-9 record. The squad was led by All-American senior pitcher Kim Maguire's 22-7 record and 0.75 ERA. She also struck out 219 batters in 178 and two-thirds innings and batted .361 in 42 games. Sophomore shortstop Jen Lefever topped the team in several offensive categories including hits (77), home runs (9), RBI's (45), and average (.443).

Something old, something new. The Bloomsburg University tennis team once again looked to capture its eighth-consecutive Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference title and 10th in the past 13 seasons. What was new about this year's squad was Marty Coyne. Once a standout performer for the Huskies, Coyne took over a program that experienced 25 successful seasons under Burt Reese.

Leading the team this year, was senior captain Jeremy Eby. Eby was the lone Husky qualifier for the NCAA championships last season. Following a solid fall season, freshman Evan Rosen emerged as the 13th-ranked player in the East. Sophomore Adam Rosow, conference champion at #2 singles last season, was ranked 17th in the East.

The Coaches

Marty Coyne began his first season in charge of the Huskies' tennis program following the tenure of Burt Reese. As a former player for BU, Coyne was a 12-time conference champion and one of the Huskies' first All-American performers. As a player, Coyne was ranked #1 in the Middle States Tennis Association 35-over singles and has been ranked #1 in MSTTA doubles four times.

Simon Peppiatt was in his first season as assistant coach after serving as assistant for the Huskies' women's team in the fall. A native of Kent, England, Peppiatt has taught tennis in both the US and in England.

Gold, white and royal blue are the colors of Pi Kappa Phi. Their motto is "Nothing shall ever tear us asunder" and their flower is the red rose. Pi Kappa Phi National Fraternity was founded in South Carolina at the College of Charleston on December 10, 1904. Three men drawn together from a true feeling of brotherhood began what today is the strongest fraternity in the United States. These three men, Simon Fogerty, Harry Mixon, and Andrew Kroeg, never knew that their feeling of brotherhood would flourish into over 170 chapters reaching the far corners of the nation.

Pi Kappa Phi has the privilege of being the only national fraternity to have a national service project among all its chapters-P.U.S.H -People Understanding the Severely Handicapped.

Some eighty years later here at Bloomsburg University the feeling spread. On April 28, 1990, forty-four men were given the privilege to bear letters and be presented as Charter members of Pi Kappa Phi. Pi Kap's founding here at Bloomsburg was much the same as its founders in 1904. John J. Pek Jr., the Founding Archon, upheld the ideals that the forefathers instilled in its members. What he instilled to the members at Bloomsburg was the undescrivable feeling of BROTHERHOOD. Pi Kappa Phi is still growing with more chapters being added in the U.S. and brothers at the Zeta Upsilon Chapter. While other fraternities speak of brotherhood, PI KAPPA PHI is Brotherhood!

Sigma Iota Omega

ΣΙΩ

Burgundy and white are the colors of Sigma Iota Omega and their motto is "A single soul in friends."

In 1964, several men met in what was the North Hall for the purpose of establishing a social fraternity at Bloomsburg State College. Strenuous efforts, however, led first to the creation of a club as there would "never be social fraternities at Bloomsburg." The men selected the name "Social Improvement Organization" (SIO) and continued to press for recognition as a fraternity. Two years of hard work led finally to the recognition of SIO-Sigma Iota Omega by the Board of Trustees as Bloomsburg's first social fraternity. From this early beginning there has evolved the "Greek System" on campus as it is known today. Dr. Robert D. Warren has been the only advisor of SIO and was, early on, dubbed The Father of the Greek System at Bloomsburg.

Tau Kappa Epsilon

TKE

The red carnation and the colors cherry and grey represent TKE Fraternity. Tau Kappa Epsilon International Social Fraternity was founded on January 10, 1899 at Illinois Wesleyan University in Bloomington, Illinois. Since that cold night in January, TKE has grown to over 320 active chapters and 181,000 initiates. TKE is the fastest-growing fraternity on the continent and has pioneered more new fraternity systems than any other fraternity.

Pennsylvania has more TKE fraternity chapters than any other state. Included in this is the Pi Beta chapter of TKE at Bloomsburg University. The Pi Beta chapter was founded on April 1, 1978. TKE sponsors a full range of social, service, and philanthropic endeavors. Most recently, TKE has helped usher the Celebrity Artist Series, worked with the group S.H.A.R.E., and with their international philanthropy, Special Olympics.

Theta Chi

Theta Chi's colors are military red and white. Their motto is "Alma Mater first, Theta Chi for the Alma Mater." Brotherhood at OX is a lifelong bond. It was founded in 1856, and is one of the oldest fraternities in the nation. The essence of Theta Chi at Bloomsburg is leadership, scholarship, and service along with a full social calendar. Their well rounded social calendar includes various theme mixers, date parties and hay rides. They also volunteer in service projects such as Adopt-a-Highway and the Camp Victory Dance Marathon.

Commencement Address by

What's Right With You?

What's Right With America?

Today--- is the culmination of many years of hard work, intense study, strict self-discipline, and total dedication to the attainment of a very major goal. Today we gather here to celebrate your achievements.

In that spirit, let's celebrate you, your accomplishments, and this wonderful country --- America.

To the questions --- what's right with you and what's right with America? --- I answer a resounding PLENTY!

I recognize that there are members of the graduating class here today who are from other countries. To the international students, I extend our best wishes and I hope that your experience at Bloomsburg --- in America --- has been excellent.

The vast majority of you receiving degrees today will take employment positions in this great country of ours and, if you are typical of previous graduates of the fourteen universities in the State System of Higher Education, about 72% of you who are Pennsylvanians will remain in the Keystone State.

I hope you feel good about yourselves for you have an abundance to feel good about --- your accomplishments and the fact that you live in the country with the greatest opportunities, with the greatest respect for and protection of individual rights and freedoms on earth. We are a nation of people who --- individually and collectively --- have done more for ourselves and more for others around the world than any other nation. You and your families are very representative of the good people that make up the United States of America.

To the question --- what's right with you? --- I answer a resounding PLENTY!

There is an abundance of evidence that proves you have excelled in every phase of university life.

For example, at the Awards Luncheon conducted two weeks ago, today, 49 of you received magna cum laude recognition for having attained at least a 3.75 cumulative average on a 4.0 rating scale and 7 of you were recognized as summa cum laude for having attained at least a 3.95 cumulative average. WOW! Fifteen of you received service key awards --- the most prestigious award given to graduating seniors for involvement and leadership in extra-curricular activities --- and 51 individuals received Who's Who Certificates. This award is given to seniors demonstrating outstanding ability in academic achievement, personal traits, leadership, potential usefulness in society and professional promise. A total of 195 awards were presented to students and many of the recipients are here today.

It is exciting for me to see our students excel.

Earlier today Roy A. Bunger, Michelle R. Getzy, and Kirsi F. Turbedsky were honored as the highest ranking candidates in the College of Arts and Sciences, as was Chad E. Gibble from the College of Business and Suzanne M. Urick in the College of Professional Studies.

Each of us assembled here has been abundantly blessed. I encourage you to be thankful for not only those blessings that you cherish, but also for those that you may tend to take for granted.

I trust that as you pursue your own successes you will think of others --- that you will never miss an opportunity to help people who have not been as fortunate as you. I know you will in the future because you have in the past.

You and hundreds of other Bloomsburg University students have actively participated in community service. Among your good deeds are:

- The first annual Good Neighbor Day for University and Town citizens;
- Participation in the Commonwealth's Adopt-A-Highway Program;
- Mentorship and tutoring for area school students.

- A University student organization, START --- Students Together Alleviating Racial Tension --- conducted this year's "If you can't wear it, share it" campaign, a clothing drive to benefit children in the Harrisburg schools.

- The Intrafraternity and Panhellenic Council sponsored the annual Camp Victory Dance Marathon, a fund-raiser to support a local camp designed for handicapped children.

- As a part of the Local Enterprise Assistance Project senior and graduate business students provided assistance to existing and newly formed small businesses.

- Many of you have participated in the annual "Into the Streets" volunteer work sessions. This past Fall Semester, 631 students logged more than 7,000 hours with our SOLVE office (Students Organized to Learn through Volunteerism and Employment).

Your good actions have touched the lives of many people in the community in very positive ways. In addition, your initiatives have included the University. This past fall the Community Government Association donated $75,000 to the Library Construction Campaign as a challenge to the faculty and staff. I thank you and all the students of Bloomsburg University for this gift. Your generosity is sincerely appreciated and means a great deal to me.

These are just a few examples of your many good efforts.

To the question --- What's right with America? --- I answer a resounding PLENTY!

Especially, when you compare the United States with the rest of the world. What's right with America includes attributes such as, our constitution, the role we have performed in world leadership, the diversity in our society, and the great American dream.

The list of what's right with America goes on and on; however, in the interest of time I will briefly cite just a few examples.

In 1949, Senator Arthur Vandenburg said, "We cannot turn back the clock --- we cannot sail by old and easier charts. That has been determined for us by the march of events. We have no choice as to whether we shall play a great part in the world --- we have to play that part. We have to play it in sheer self-defense of our own interest. All that we can decide is whether we shall play it well or ill."

Forty-five years after Senator Vandenburg made that statement, the record shows that America superbly played its role.

As stated in the publication, The Vision Shared, "The half-century crusade of free nations to champion freedom and civilization against the scourge of totalitarianism was victorious because of the leadership and relentless dedication of America. The fall of the Berlin wall symbolized an epochal change in the way millions of people live and in the way those people think. A democratically elected Russian president sits in the Kremlin. Ukraine, Armenia, and the Baltic states take their rightful place among the family of nations. Israel and all of its Arab neighbors talk face to face for the first time. Nicaragua and Panama celebrate democracy. America led the free world to this great triumph."

"With this victory for freedom we have begun a new and promising chapter in the epic of America and our role in the new world order."

Austin Kiplinger, the publisher of the Kiplinger Washington Newsletter, recently said, "With regard to higher education, America is leading the way in developing new educational models that will meet the needs of new populations and new times. Forty percent of the world's basic research is done in American laboratories, principally at universities. United States' colleges and universities grant one million baccalaureate degrees and 1.5 million associate degrees every year, more than are granted in any other nation in the world."

In agriculture, with three-tenths of one percent of the world's farm labor force, the United States' farmers produce the major portion of the world's food and fiber. That translates into your home budget in that the percentage of income spent by families on food in the United States is much less than other countries.

Data recently reported by the press and available from the United States Bureau of Census --- the Federal government's gatherer of statistics --- shows that Americans have plenty to cheer about. Very quickly I'll share with you five brief examples:

- "We are healthier. The death rates from causes such as heart disease, automobile and on-the-job accidents have dropped significantly over the past 20 years. At the same time life expectancy for the average American has increased from 71 to 76 years."

- "Our environment is cleaner."

- "Talk of the disintegrating American family is just that. A surprising 73% of all children under the age of 18 still live with both parents."

- "Americans dominate the world in science. Between 1976 and 1991, U.S. scientists won 63 out of a possible 102 Nobel Prizes in Chemistry, Physics, and Medicine. The closest runners-up, Germany and Britain, garnered nine each."

- "Americans are generous with their time and money. In 1989, 38 million people --- 20% of the population --- pitched in to do volunteer work."

The total money donated to charitable causes came to a staggering $125 BILLION. And most of it --- $103 billion --- came from individuals, not foundations or corporations."

The good news continues regarding the future.

Forecaster Marvin Cetron, author of numerous books about the future, recently prepared a new report listing 74 trends and forecasts affecting the United States. Based on these trends, he anticipates a "renaissance" for America in the years ahead. Though he views himself as a realist, Cetron says that his findings make him very optimistic about the future.

America has been and still is the land of opportunity. From the early times of our nation to the present day, millions of Americans have attained success by working hard, working smart, and exercising self-discipline. In an article, published in the April 8th issue of USA Today, Senator George Mitchell, majority leader of the U.S. Senate, was described as follows: "One of George Mitchell's greatest pleasures --- beyond the Senate, beyond politics, even beyond sports --- was to preside over citizenship ceremonies as a federal judge. At one of these ceremonies --- Senator Mitchell recalls --- a young man explained he had immigrated because 'here in America, everyone has a chance. 'I know that's true,' says Senator Mitchell, the son of immigrants. 'I know that in America, you can go as high and as far as your talent and willingness to work will take you.'

"As the apex of the United States Senate --- as majority leader --- Senator Mitchell's talent and willingness to work have taken him just about as high and as far as one can go in the world of law and politics.

"Senator Mitchell was born to an Irish father who worked as a janitor and a Lebanese mother who worked the night shift at a textile mill.

"'He is a guy from very humble origins who obviously, by dint of extraordinary intelligence and hard work, has risen to the very top,' says former senator Warren Rudman. 'It's the great American dream story.'"

Several years ago I had the privilege of hearing Alex Haley present the keynote address at a national meeting.

Mr. Haley, who touched the heart of a nation with his book Roots said, "It took twelve years to write Roots... to understand what those stories meant that I had heard as a boy on my grandma's front porch. I dug and dug and kept trying to find a way to use all of the research. I was broke, down to 18 cents and 2 cans of sardines." Dr. Lamar Alexander, former President of the University of Tennessee, former Governor of Tennessee and former U.S. Secretary of Education said, "As Secretary of Education, I found opportunities almost every day to pass along Alex's lessons. Sometimes I would produce for students a typed page of Alex's Roots manuscript, almost obscured by green ink corrections, and tell them what he told me: 'Some of those chapters I rewrote 15 times, 20 times, 25 times. I wanted it to be right.'" Lamar Alexander continued, my friend Alex Haley used to say, 'Find good and praise it.' He especially liked to say that to people who were busy finding everything wrong with America. It was a powerful message coming from the grandson of slaves, from the man who wrote Roots and The Biography of Malcom X."

Dr Alexander said, "I used to think about it every time Alex told the story about John Newton, the slave trader, and how he saw the light and wrote one of the world's greatest hymns, 'Amazing Grace.'

"I thought about it at the time an African flute played the melody of that great hymn and we buried Alex Haley next to the front porch where his grandma and great aunts first told him the stories that became Roots.

"Then, on the piano," Dr. Alexander said, "I played 'Amazing Grace'."

I am proud of you and I am proud of America.

I wish you, the Class of 1994, the very best in all that you do. I am confident that, if you apply determination and perseverance to what you know and what you do, you will find the success and happiness you seek. You will find the great American dream.

In closing --- I want to share with you one of my favorite stories. It is about a person by the name of Jeremiah O'Brien. Jeremiah --- would be my kind of person. He lived in Maine, and in 1775, rallied the people of his town to deny the British the lumber they needed for their troops in Boston. He led a group of townspeople in the fortification of a sloop which he then used to pursue the British Man of War, The Margaretta. Meeting her broadsides with musket fire, he lashed his sloop to The Margaretta. He led his men aboard armed with pitch forks and axes. He and his crew of 35 farmers had battled for an hour and, when it was over, he had won.

I can't help myself but marvel at the courage of that kind of a person --- but what makes it even more impressive --- and important to me is the fact that Jeremiah wasn't a regular member of any armed force. He was a citizen --- who saw something that had to be done --- and he did it!

That trait is one that has always marked America. The citizen, seeing a job to be done and doing it. I don't minimize the problems that face us as a nation, --- but --- I am confident in the future of America because I believe the spirit of Jeremiah O'Brien still walks our land, AND THAT YOU REPRESENT THAT SPIRIT.

God Bless each and everyone of you, and God Bless America!

Thank You!
