A L M A M A T E R

Far above the river winding,
 'Midst the mountains grand
Stands our College, dear to students,
 Far throughout the land.

Far and wide though we may wander,
 Still our hearts are true
To our hilltop Alma Mater,
 We our pledge renew.

Ever seaward Susquehanna,
 Never resting flows,
Ever upward, striving, climbing,
 Onward Bloomsburg goes.

Chorus

Bloomsburg, Bloomsburg, Bloomsburg College,
 Up on College Hill
Years to come shall find us ever,
 True to Bloomsburg still.

Prologue

Prologue

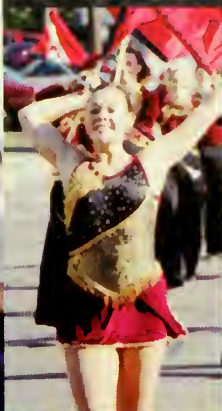

What comes to mind when we think of the significance of a yearbook? Undoubtedly, we picture the remembrance of clusters of friends, doting faculty, and the student activities in which we participated that in essence comprised the years of our college careers. A yearbook, when opened, reveals who we are, what we stand for, and what we wish to accomplish as members of a university, speaking as "one verse" to the world which awaits us.

Bloomsburg University's Obiter encapsulates the meaning of the Latin phrase "Carpe Diem" by seizing every day and every moment that we have spent striding the hilly campus and compiling them into a yearly book of remembrances for students to appreciate. A promising future awaits all of us, but the past which yields the fruits of tomorrow will never be forgotten.

REFLECTION

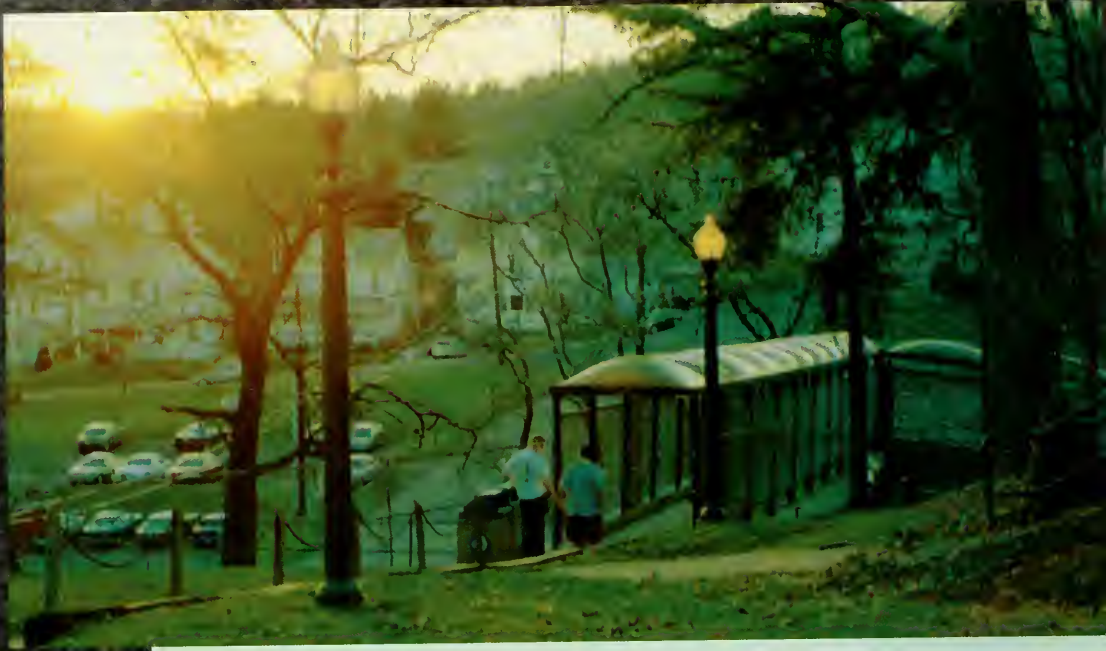

Academy, Literary Institute, State Normal School, State Teachers College, State College, University. For the past 163 years, Bloomsburg University has undergone an extensive metamorphosis. It all began in 1839 when a small private academy opened in the town of Bloomsburg. It was successfully conducted for two years by C.P. Waller, a graduate of Williams College. Later, public school teachers taught at the academy during their summer vacations...

In 1856, D. J. Waller, drew up a charter providing that this school be known as the Bloomsburg Literary Institute for the promotion of education ordinary and the higher branches of English Literature, ancient and modern languages, and the sciences. This charter was subscribed to by citizens of Bloomsburg.

In 1866, the school was taught by Henry Carver, of Binghamton, New York. Carver had an unusual influence and personality, and he successfully modified many of the school's early policies. He saw the need for a new building, and insisted that it was essential to the future development of the Institution. Mr. Carver assured the trustees that $15,000 would build a suitable building.

That building, the present Carver Hall, was dedicated on April 4, 1867, with a gala observance by the townspeople. A parade, headed by the town band highlighted the event. A bell for the tower was purchased with $1,200 secured through popular subscription raised by three members of the first class at the new school; D.J. Waller, Jr, George E. Elwell, and Charles Unangst.

In the autumn of 1867, James P. Wickersham, then State Superintendent of Public Instruction was travelling through Bloomsburg. He saw the school on the hill “ablaze with lights,” and thought the location of the literary institute would be ideal for a State Normal School. Negotiations began, and in 1868 at a meeting in which Mr. Wickersham addressed the citizens of Bloomsburg, it was decided that under the act of 1857 a normal school could be established. Consequently a dormitory was built at a cost of $36,000. On February 19, 1869, the school recognized as a State Normal School, combined with the Literary Institute. In September of that year, there were 150 students enrolled in the Normal Department and 80 in the Model School...

Carver Hall then, and as it appears now.

Several views of Old Waller Hall.

Principal Carver left in 1871. Charles G. Barkley, Esq., a former county superintendent of schools, acted as principal from December, 1871, to March, 1872. His successor was the Reverend Hewitt, rector of the Bloomsburg Episcopal Church. He served as principal until June, 1873. Dr. T.L. Griswold was then principal until 1877. Those early years were trying ones, full of disappointment and hardships. Subscriptions were hard to collect, and often the trustees met obligations on their personal responsibility. Another blow came in 1875, when the original Waller Hall was completely destroyed by fire. However, the trustees and people who had faith and confidence in the school again furnished money, and in 1876 built a larger and more handsome building, Waller Hall.

In the fall of 1877, Dr. D.J. Waller, Jr. became principal. For thirteen years the school grew under his guidance. The Model School (Noetling Hall) and the east wing of the dormitory were constructed during his tenure. When Dr. Waller resigned in 1890 to become State Superintendent of Public Instruction, the school was in prosperous condition. Dr. Judson P. Welsh served as principal of the Bloomsburg Literary Institute and State Normal School from 1890 to 1906. During his administration the gymnasium and an addition to the four-story dormitory were built. Science Hall, built from plans made by Dr. D.S. Hartline, was completed in 1906, just after Dr. Welsh's resignation.

Waller Hall and Noetling Hall, now the site of Lycoming Hall and the Commons.

Old North Hall, was originally a men's dormitory. The building was razed in 1965 to make way for a newer structure, Luzerne Hall.

Dr. D. J. Waller, Jr., responded a second time to the summons of the trustees, and returned as principal until 1920, when he retired from active duty. He was succeeded by Dr. Charles H. Fisher, who came to the school from the State Department of Public Instruction. His principalship extended from 1920 to 1923. It was in 1920 that the State purchased the school and changed the name to Bloomsburg State Normal School, dropping the "Bloomsburg Literary Institute." During Dr. Fisher's administration extension courses were instituted and the Bloomsburg public schools were opened to the teacher training service of the Normal School. Dr. G.C.L. Reimer, also from the State Department of Public Instruction, succeeded Dr. Fisher as principal and served until his retirement in 1927.

The State Council of Education on June 4, 1926 authorized the State Normal School to confer the degree B.S. in Education to graduates of four-year courses in Elementary Education and in Junior High School Education. May 13, 1927, the Council changed the name to State Teachers College at Bloomsburg. Dr. Francis B. Haas, also a former superintendent of Public Instruction, succeeded Dr. Reimer in July, 1927. During the administration of Dr. Francis B. Haas the curricula offered by the college were enriched by the establishment of a Commerical Department under the direction of Professor H. A. Andruss.

The grove was located north of Montour Hall.

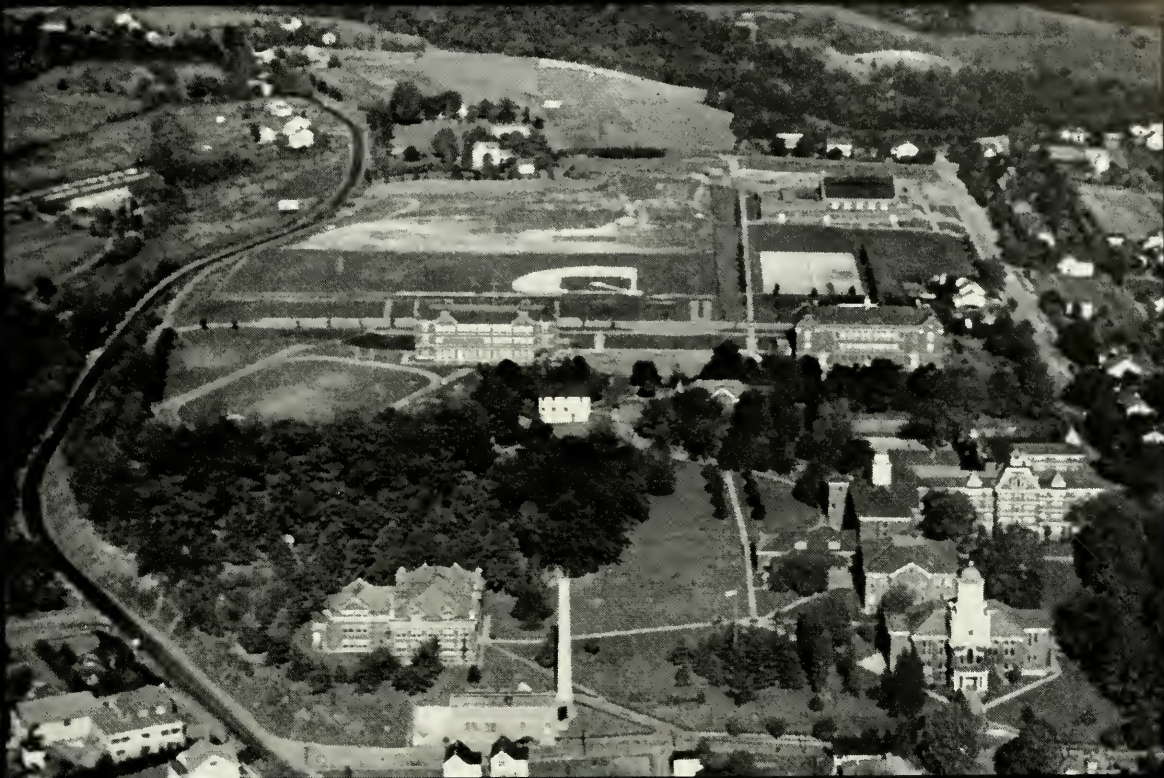

Under the administration of President Francis B. Haas (1927-1939) great progress was made in the teacher education program, and a new degree program in business education was initiated.

Upon the appointment of Dr. Haas as State Superintendent of Public Instruction in 1939, Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, then Dean of Instruction and a former Director of the Business Education Department, was appointed president, a position he held until his retirement in 1969. During World War II, the U.S. Navy V-12 Office Training Program was conducted on the Bloomsburg campus. As a result, a campus building was renamed Navy Hall. In 1959, a division of special education was instituted, and today Navy Hall still houses the program.

In 1960, the school's name was changed to Bloomsburg State College. Authorization was received shortly thereafter to grant the Bachelor of Arts degree for liberal arts programs in humanities, social sciences, and natural sciences/mathematics. Graduate study, leading to the Master of Education, also was inaugurated in 1968, approval was received for the Master of Arts degree, in 1976 for the Master of Business Administration, and in 1982 for the Master of Science in Nursing. A cooperative doctoral program in elementary education began in 1982.

In 1975 Old Waller Hall was demolished to make way for Lycoming Hall

Aerial view of the campus from the 1950s.

On July 1, 1983, Commonwealth legislation created the State System of Higher Education, and the institution became Bloomsburg University. Bloomsburg's then president, Dr. James H. McCormick, became the system's interim chancellor and later the first permanent chancellor. Today, after 163 years of existence Bloomsburg University is still as strong as ever.

Ahh, freshmen move-in day. Many of us may not care to remember it, for the mere mention of the words sends an anxious chill down our spines. Back then, we may not have thought we were ready to handle the many responsibilities associated with entering college, but four years later we marvel at how far we've come in a relatively brief period of time, advancing from high-school states of naivety and immaturity to a college campus teeming with countless opportunities to grow in many ways. Here, we offer endless chances to bond with new sets of people - at the Bloomsburg Homecoming Weekend, three days' worth of fall festivities every student is guaranteed to remember, kegs and eggs aside, of course...

We work, we play, we throw snowballs and slide slick garbage bags across Lycoming's lawn. But we know when to stop, for mid-December promises us finals for which we need to cram, voraciously devouring dormitory goodies and nonstop cups of coffee to make it through the week before embracing the splendor of the holidays with family.

Spring semester sends feelings of rejuvenation, when the anticipation of Siblings' Weekend and the Renaissance Jamboree fills our minds and we are united once again with loved ones and friends, bonding over candy apples, funnel cake, and cotton candy. Graduation is near, and this time we are ready - though perhaps reluctantly - to leave a college that has given us so much. Though we may not be able to relive our days at Bloomsburg University, we know the memories we've created will forever be etched in our minds.

Graduation

For many individuals, the most rewarding, exciting, invigorating years occur while they are in college. With so many different organizations to join and endless ways to express themselves, college is the time when people explore themselves and truly find out who they are and what it is that they desire from life. Upon graduation, we step out of the university setting and bring our new selves and what we've learned into the company of society. We face new challenges, obstacles, and endeavors as we gradually become older and wiser due to the many experiences we've undergone. Life is just beginning for us - we've come along way before stepping onto the graduation platform, and we are now ready to endure what lies ahead of us.

“The roots of education are bitter, but the fruit is sweet.” Aristotle

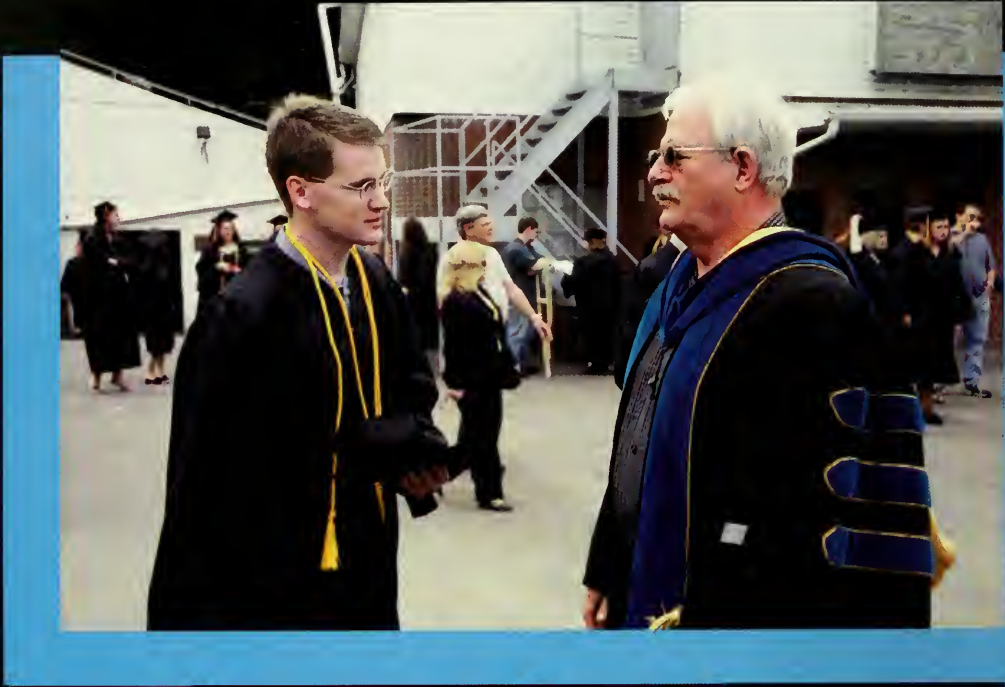

Graduation

collegu
Epitogue

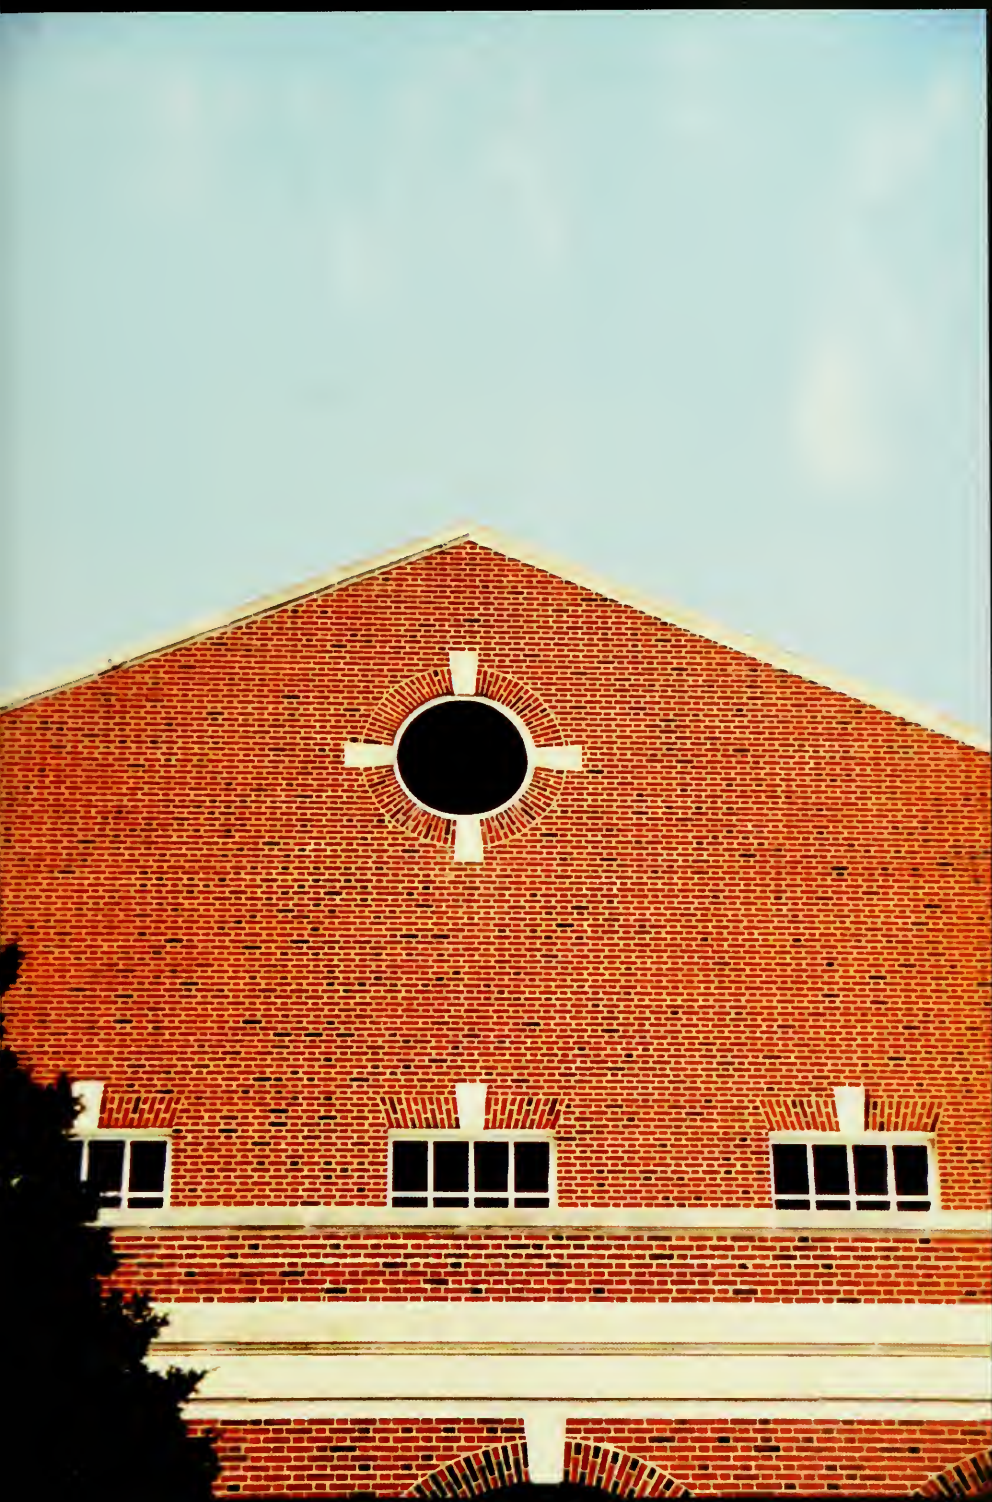

As the poet, Lewis once wrote, "One must make the most of his earthly existence, for time waits for no one, and slips away in the silence of the night." As Bloomsburg University graduates, we donned the caps and gowns which denoted the termination of our college careers. We have successfully completed and closed a chapter of our lives only to begin another in a world we are now prepared to embrace. As students we spent our time at Bloomsburg well surrounded by hundreds of caring, knowledgeable faculty; supportive, loving families, and endearing, jovial friends who have served as beacons of wisdom and guidance to walk with us every step of the way to achieve success. The culmination of four years' worth of our collective faith, perseverance, energy and dedication to the pursuit of knowledge took place on May 10, 2003, when an eager senior class was rewarded for an academic trial they ultimately won. Graduation day commenced a new beginning—a rich experience for each and every one of us. As C.S. Lewis suggested, our time is limited; we must seize every day, every moment, and every opportunity we can to demonstrate all we've learned from our time at B.U. Although these may be our last moments on a campus we've come to know and love, there remains much to be done. What we accomplish is up to each of us, and although we will each choose a different path to follow in life, we remain the same in that we stand together in representing the one university that has brought us together as a proud, united student body. Good Luck to the class of 2003! May the passage of time be forever in your favor.

"The human being that can learn no more has parted with the only priceless possession in human inheritance. The men, women, or nations that harden in their mould, get set in their ways, crystallize their opinions and beliefs, and swear by and live according to their routine habits - such men, women, or nations are old; senile decay is at hand. And they, in their vain yearnings for immortality, forget how they learn to behave like human beings and how little itself in human beings renews its youth and speeds up the race for freedom: AS A LITTLE CHILD, WITH AN OPEN MIND."

George A. Dorsey (1937)

Brian,
Congratulations!

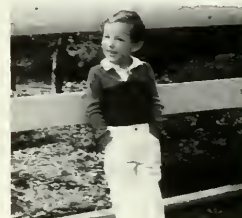

Always be proud, just as we will always be proud of your collegiate career and your numerous accomplishments. Your yesterdays are, and will always be, the cornerstone of your tomorrow. The time to start planning for those tomorrows is today.

Love, Dad & Mom

Brett R. Mazzerle

You have grown from an infant with an infectious laugh to the boy in white pants, from Turkey Feather to Guido, caring for Clyde, Spanky, Sunny and Mitch. You have always been your own man, whether it be driving the Gray Ghost with windows down in winter, or making mature decisions in the face of peer pressure. We have been proud to watch you lead in academic, athletic and social arenas. You have touched many lives, and you have chosen a profession where you can continue to touch young lives and make a difference. You so richly deserve the best of everything and that is what we wish for you.

Congratulations.
We love you,

Angela – The college adventure for your Bachelor’s Degree is over. There was uncertainty of direction, but you still hit a milestone. Whatever you do after this, remember that you were a teacher once... whether I liked it or not! You taught me so much when we were little, and gave me so many advantages. Whether or not you realize it, I think on some level, you’ve always known what you’ve been doing. Get out there and do whatever you want and best of luck as you do so.

Love you, sis! Now, go kick ass! Joe (Schmo)

Angela, congratulations on your graduation! We’re with you every step you take in your life, and we’re so proud and happy for you as you reach your goals and overcome any obstacles in your path. Enjoy this accomplishment and look forward to your next challenge.

We love you, ‘Puddin’ – Pops and Mom

Krystle L. Minner

Krystle,

Congratulations! It seems like only yesterday that we packed your things and took that long, scary ride to Elwell Hall. In the last four years, you have grown from an anxious nervous freshman, to a now, beautiful, confident college graduate. Realize, that this success you have achieved is a result of your own hard work, devotion, and real determination. We can't begin to express how very proud of you we are and always will be.

Keep smiling that beautiful smile and all that know and love you are confident that you will have a wonderful future.

Love Ya!

Mom, Doug and Julie

Krys,

You have always committed yourself to doing your best in all that you do. The past four years at Bloomsburg reflect this commitment. I am so very happy for you and equally proud! Congrats!

Love,

Dad

Yesterday is but a dream,
And tomorrow is only a vision.
But today, well lived,
Makes every yesterday a dream of happiness,
And every tomorrow, a vision of hope.
Look well, therefore, to this day

Zach,
You did it! Through the ups and downs, just like working on that tree stump, you persevered! Thank you for all the wonderful memories of Bloomsburg University and Husky football. We wish you all the best as you begin your teaching and coaching career. You have so much to offer. We are all so proud of you. May happiness, health, success, and love be with you always.

Love,
Mom, Dad, Brianne, Me-ma, Pappy and the rest of your family
