Six Students Are Received Into Gamma Theta Upsilon; Contribute Toward Program at Initiation Meeting

GEOG. MAGAZINES REVIEWED

Friday evening, January 20, 1933, six new members were initiated into Delta Chapter of Gamma Theta Upsilon. This group included one senior, three juniors, one sophomore, and one Saturday student. They were: Miss Lucille C. Miller, Miss Olwyn K. Laird, Miss Blanche M. Garrison, Ronald F. Keeler, Miss Vida H. Hartman, and John M. Reese.

As a part of the program prior to the initiation service, each initiate presented a topic as his contribution to the program.

Miss Lucille C. Miller spoke on the National Geographic Magazine. This magazine is published by the National Geographic Society in Washington, D. C. The editor is Gilbert Grosvenor and the associate editor is John Oliver LaGorce. It was organized for the increase and diffusion of geographic knowledge. All receipts are expended directly to promote geographic knowledge. For example—immediately following the terrific eruption of the world's largest crater, Mt. Katmac, in Alaska, a National Geographic Society expedition was sent to make observation. Four expeditions followed and very valuable scientific data has been given to the world. Many other worthwhile expeditions have been conducted to promote the knowledge of geography. This magazine serves very well as a source for the latest facts in the geographic world.

NATIONAL LECTURER SPEAKS IN CHAPEL

Miss Makin Gives Fine Address in Interests of W. C. T. U. Movement; Discusses Evils of Over-Indulgence

IS WIDELY KNOWN LECTURER

Miss Mae B. Makin, a representative of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, addressed the students at chapel on January 25. Miss Makin is a widely known state and national lecturer whose talk was especially interesting to prospective teachers. The talk was a plea to the youth of America to abstain from the use of intoxicating liquor. The to Miss Makin, is a protective amendment as well as prohibiting. There may be much difference in opinion concerning the value of the amendment, but there is no difference in opinion as to the effects of alcohol. Alcohol has been found by scientists to be a narcotic drug.

The idea of temperance has come down to us through the centuries. Xenophon preached temperance in eating and drinking 2500 years ago.

Mr. Gladstone once said that alcohol has cursed the human race more than wars since civilization. It has killed more men than all wars and killed them dishonorably.

From 1629-1851 liquor had its day. Since 1851 a winning fight has been waged against it by many organizations. It remains for us to perpetuate the work that has progressed so well in such a short time.

STUDENT ORGANIZATIONS PREPARE FOR THE ANNUAL ROTARY-KIWANIS BANQUET

The Annual Rotary-Kiwanis Banquet, which is one of the events of the social calendar, has been definitely postponed until March 2.

The postponement was caused by the fact that so many activities of the clubs and of the student body had been staged during January and February.

The student organizations will present again this year a cross-section of our college life. The college chorus under the direction of Miss Moore, is already rehearsing several numbers to be presented. The glee clubs, orchestra, band, and dramatic club are preparing to contribute to the success of the event.

FOR MOTORISTS

Teach us to drive through life without skidding into other people's business. Preserve our brake linings that we stop before we go too far. Help us to hear the knocks in our own motors and close our ears to the clashing of other people's gears. Keep alcohol in our radiators only. Absolve us from the mania of trying to pass the other auto on a narrow road. Open our eyes to the traffic signs and keep our feet on the brakes.

BLOOMSBURG PLAYERS TO PRESENT SECOND PLAY OF THE YEAR

"White Headed Boy," by Lennox Robinson, to be Given February 10, in Auditorium; Was Broadway Success.

PLAY IS AN AMUSING COMEDY

The Bloomsburg Players will, on February 10, at 8:15, present "The Whiteheaded Boy" by Lennox Robinson. This is one of the plays which the Abbey Players of Dublin, Ireland, have offered to Broadway this winter during their engagement in New York. The theatre audiences of that city have been most enthusiastic about it. The play itself is an amusing comedy, bright and lively, filled with clever dialogue, while the author, Lennox Robinson, is an outstanding modern playwright. The cast:

KAPPA DELTA PI HELD MEETING LAST FRIDAY

Members of Kappa Delta Pi held their regular monthly meeting in the social rooms of Noetling Hall, Friday, January 28. The meeting was in charge of the president, Miss Laura Kelly. The second topic of the yearly program, "Painting and Sculpture" was discussed.

Miss Murphy, of the Art Department, gave an interesting illustrated talk on Modern Painting. Plans are being made for the annual Founders Day Banquet to be held sometime in March. The nominating committee made its report and election of new officers will take place at the next meeting.

MR. WILLIAM C. FORNEY JOINS FACULTY OF COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT

Mr. William C. Forney has joined the faculty of this college as a teacher in the Commercial Department. He is a former resident of Danville, Pa. For the last nine years he has been director of Commercial Education in the public schools of Easton, Pa.

Mr. Forney is a graduate of Temple University, B. S. 1924. He received his M. A. from New York University in 1932.

AT UNIVERSITY OF FLORIDA

Miss Marie Nelson, for the past semester a special student here, and a member of the Maroon and Gold staff, has enrolled in the University of Florida for continuance of her graduate work in English.

Miss Nelson's many friends wish her success in her work.

Bloomsburg Overwhelms Mansfield Cage Team

WORK ON OBITER IS PROGRESSING

Most of Work Finished; Dummy Ready For Inspection of Students; Special Price For the Underclassmen

TO BE DISTRIBUTED IN MAY

As the year rolls on work on every department of the 1933 Obiter progresses steadily. The pictures are all taken, the cuts practically all made, and their proofs are pasted in the dummy, which you are invited to look over in the Obiter office at any time. However, there is yet room for some good snapshots.

Staff members are busy on their write up assignments, some on the first draft, others polishing up the finished product. These will soon be out of the way, typed, and sent to the Grit Publishing Co., who are doing the engraving and printing. They assure the staff that the yearbook will be ready for distribution in the early part of May.

The cover design submitted by the Kingscraft Press has been selected, and they are now making the die. The covers will be done in harmony with the color scheme of the book, green and silver.

The business manager wishes to announce that under classmen, members of the faculty, and alumni may secure copies of the 1933 Obiter at the unusual price of Four Dollars. This is made possible not only because of the present economic conditions, but also because, once the cuts are made, the presses set up, it costs very little extra for the paper, covers, printing and binding necessary to run through additional copies. In other words the biggest cost is that of getting ready to print. Order your copy today at the Obiter office.

BOSTON COLONIAL SEXTETTE DELIGHTS LARGE AUDIENCE

On Friday evening, January 27, The Boston Colonial Sextette made its second appearance in B. S. T. C. The program was divided into two parts. The first half included English folk songs and a group of piano selections for which the artists were costumed in the authentic attire of the colonial period. A thoroughly delightful skit was presented by Miss Res Rosieves and Mr. Dundon. They sang as an encore "I Will Give You The Keys to Heaven."

The second half of the program concerned itself with miscellaneous folk songs of France, England, Hungary, Russia, Czecho-Slavokia and Mexico, concluding with the duet, solo, and finale from "Martha." The student body displayed its appreciation of the Sextette's fine work by demanding many encores.

ERROR IN LAST ISSUE

Frank Zadra and not Marvin Wojcik gave the illustrated talk on the United Kingdom at the meeting of the Geography Club. We are sorry for the mistake which occurred in the last issue of this paper.

Accurate Passing and Shooting Displayed; Team Powerful on the Offense; Final Score Was 56 to 24

EVERY PLAYER SAW ACTION

Inspired by their victory over Lock Haven, the Maroon and Gold five went to Mansfield and presented an offensive attack that could neither be matched nor stopped. The result was a 56-24 triumph.

At no time during the contest was the home team in danger. The Bloomsburg squad took the lead early in the first quarter and held it until the final whistle was blown.

Every man on the team saw action and each combination that was formed through substituting was far superior to that of their opponents. The deciding factors in this victory was the exceptionally fine passing of the Bloomsburg Five, and their ability to break down the defense of the Mansfield clan.

Holds Interesting Meeting January 26

Mr. Harold Smith, representative of the Gregg Publishing Company, was the guest speaker for the regular weekly meeting of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, held January 26. The topic of his talk was: "New Trends in Teaching Typewriting." Along with his address, he demonstrated some good techniques of stenographers and secretaries.

Mr. Smith expressed the idea that a typing teacher should know how to apply techniques in teaching and in practice. Along with his talk, he gave a demonstration in shorthand and transcription. He took dictation at the rate of two hundred words a minute. He transcribed it at the rate of one hundred words a minute.

In concluding, Mr. Smith gave a novelty number, imitating on the typewriter the sound of marching cadets. This was unique and interested typing students, particularly in rhythm. After the address he conducted a forum during which he answered all questions and inquiries of students regarding the demonstrations.

Y. M. C. A. INVITES STUDENTS TO JOIN THE ORGANIZATION

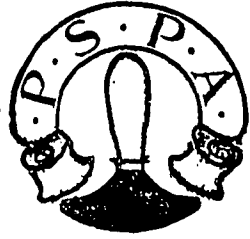

The Y. M. C. A. has been having some interesting meetings during the past two weeks. On Wednesday evening, January 25, Professor Reams gave an interesting address on the topic: The Correlation Between Political and Ecclesiastical History. After the address, Mr. Reams led in group discussion.

Last Wednesday Emanuel Thomas led the meeting and gave a talk on the Sermon on the Mount.

The Y. M. C. A. cordially invites all students interested in becoming members during this semester to attend the next meeting. The Y. M. will cooperate with the Y. W. in sponsoring a Valentine Party.

Guests who are not members of the student body must have guest cards for the dance this evening.

YOUR COOPERATION NEEDED

THE TIME IS RIPE TO SPEAK of a matter which demands attention once or twice every college year. Not so long ago the student body was assured by a visitor that this thing which we designate as atmosphere exists in B. S. T. C.; that this atmosphere may be negative as well as positive was also pointed out indirectly by that same visitor. The men of the college feel that while other institutions may rejoice in front approaches lined with fitting scenery, B. S. T. C. must be content with a pathway strewn with cigarette butts, yellow, pink, and white match ends. The road to College Hill is a beautiful one from a distance, but any person's eye-brow has the right to lift when that person actually walks up the front entrance. We realize that the men must smoke, but we advocate a men's smoking room on the campus. We do not know how possible the attainment of that room may be, but in face of the present economic conditions it is hardly probable that it could be had immediately. However, it seems reasonable to us that the gentlemen of the college could be more careful about their smoking habits without undue hardship on their part. All we ask is a sincere bit of help in maintaining the external beauty in keeping with professional atmosphere of our plant.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

STUDENT GOVERNMENT HAS BECOME a highly developed organization at B. S. T. C. Each year those who have the greatest executive ability and leadership are selected to head organizations, committees, etc. They do the work splendidly, and develop their leadership to the fullest extent.

But what about the other 95 per cent of the students, who likewise wish to be teachers—leaders of the children? They have less to start with, and consequently are given less opportunity to develop themselves.

Some, when given a chance, show hidden powers. Others simply have to learn to organize and lead—the chances are, they never will, until they get into an actual teaching situation. Why not give them the training they need, while they are still in college?

It would mean more work on the part of the teachers—work which one with better natural equipment could handle; but under guiding and direction, the backward would be brought forward, would acquire facility in organizing—a great amount of which is nothing but technique. If lessons in technique and urging do not help, the student has chosen the wrong profession. Teachers must be leaders.

OUR BASKETBALL TEAM

WHY HASN'T OUR BASKETBALL TEAM been given the support that they deserve from the student body? Of course, they haven't won every game, but the games they did lose were by close scores. The Bloomsburg cagers started the season with high hopes—every team does—only to be handed several heart-breaking reverses. Did they stop fighting? Not that you can notice it.

The team has been practicing hard every night under the direction of Coach Buchheit, continually striving to improve the team play. The team is beginning to show the results of these sessions of hard work.

On their last road trip they flashed an offensive that was unbeatable. The defensive built around our two veteran guards, Ellis and Shepella, has tightened up. More team work and less individual play is evidenced. The team has developed into a smooth functioning machine with no individual stars and a wealth of reserve strength.

Why isn't the student body enthusiastic? How can they be when they have seen the team play but once and that game near the beginning of the season. Probably every student who can possibly attend will turn out to see the Buchheit clan perform on the home floor. Then the real season for basketball at Bloomsburg will have begun.

To read about the games away from home is one thing, but to see the boys in action is what is needed to bring out the pep and enthusiasm that the students have held in reserve so far.

We still remember the Shippensburg thriller, but we can't be expected to remain enthusiastic all this time on the strength of this one game.

O. K. team, we are with you, but why can't the schedule makers give us a break once in awhile? You need our support and we want to see you in action. We hope next year's schedule can be arranged to a better advantage for both the team and the student body.

A SYSTEM NEEDED

MANY PROBLEMS ARISE with each new semester. This year we heard a suggestion which seemed worthy of consideration. It was made in regard to the purchase and sale of used texts. More students have found it necessary this semester than ever before to buy second-hand texts and to sell used books. We have in view systematizing of class work with the least amount of time to be wasted. We realize that the power to detect and follow up that detection is an admirable one in a teacher, but we think other ways should be found to develop it than playing Sherlock Holmes for old books. Why not set up long tables in the hall on the first few days of each semester which students may use as an exchange for used texts? Anyone who wanted to sell his books could bring them there, anyone who wanted to buy could come there. Within a short time, the whole business would be settled and classes could function properly.

CONCERNING STUDENT PARTICIPATION

IT IS REQUIRED THAT A STUDENT participate in at least one extra-curricular activity for a semester of each year. Most students easily find some activity in which they are interested and immediately join the group participating in it. However, we have a perennial group of students with no particular interest who usually are looking for some club to join where they can receive extra-curricular credit with little or no work required on their part.

Members of the student body who join this group, which by the way, is increasing in size each year, are extra-curricular leeches. Why work when you can get credit by listening and watching some other student work? It is easy for these individuals to gain their ends because some of our activities are so extensive, and the groups so large, that they can be included and yet never be called upon to contribute toward the activity.

Now you ask the question: What has this to do with college spirit, if there is such a thing? The answer is obvious; take away the group activity on this campus and what have you left? Our college life depends upon the smooth functioning of our organizations. When a student joins a club with the intention of working just enough to receive credit, neither the club nor the student body is likely to benefit by his presence.

Our clubs, fraternities and teams all strive to foster better cooperation, more interest and good-will among the students and with other schools. To accomplish this, every student should share the obligation.

Too many students are content to sit placidly allowing others to do the work. At the present time there are a few students who are officers of several organizations and assuming the leadership. Should several students participate in many activities and many students participate in only one?

Perhaps there is too high a scholastic requirement before a student is permitted to hold office. Too often the best students scholastically do not make the best leaders or club workers. Many students who are very capable are not considered for an office because they lack probably a fraction of a point of being eligible.

Students who have talent should cultivate and further it. Do something that will contribute toward a better cultural attitude for this student body! Student credit should not depend upon regular attendance to some organization, but upon a real sincere interest for that type of activity and earnest participation in it.

If our organizations establish more rigid requirements for the extra-curricular credit that is so much sought after it is probable that more interest will be shown and more students will come to the fore as real professional workers.

MEMBER OF COLLEGE GLEE CLUB WILL BROADCAST

Mr. Stephen Petrilla, member of the Men's Glee Club, will broadcast every Saturday from station WAZL, Hazleton. He has been assigned fifteen minutes from 11:00 to 11:15. Mr. Petrilla began his weekly broadcasts last week and will continue his all-request program of songs each week. He was accompanied by Miss Kaler, studio pianist. Station WAZL is operated over 1420 kilocycles.

Mr. Petrilla opened last week's broadcast with his theme song, "When the Organ Played at Twilight." He sang: "Mother Machree," "After I Call You Sweetheart, How Can I Call You Friend," "Little Irish Rose," "Please." He closed with his theme song.

Tomorrow he will sing "Juanita," "Sunshine of Your Smile," "Neapolitan Nights," "My Mother's Eyes," and "The World is Waiting for the Sunrise." Steve's many friends here wish him continued success.

Literally inclined students at the University of Washington have a particular appreciation of the lighter type of literature. As shown by a recent survey, the Saturday Evening Post was the most popular but "Ballyhoo" and "Hoocy" held second place.

At Buffalo State Teachers College dishonesty in examinations has stern punishment. A student found guilty of cheating in an exam, after appearing before the Student Government, is allowed no credit in any subject for that semester. A second offense means dismissal.

ACTIVE ORGANIZATION

The Geographic Society, under the sponsorship of Dr. H. H. Russell, was quite an active organization during the first semester. Two field trips were taken; one to the old ore mines, and the other to the flower show at Dillon's green houses. Several motion pictures were shown, while some interesting illustrated talks were given including a first hand information talk concerning the Porto Rico hurricane by Walter Bond.

The spring months offer a better opportunity for outdoor trips and as current topics of interest unfold, the coming semester affords every opportunity to apply one's geographic knowledge with that group. It is suggested that those majoring in geography become members of the organization at least two semesters in order to get a background for high school extra curricular activities in that field.

Marriage courses are becoming popular. This month at Butler University, Indianapolis, there is being launched a marriage course which promises to become extraordinarily popular. Though its sponsors hardly hope to control Cupid's aim, they propose to provide what might be called first aid to the moonstruck, and to help the victim of Cupid's dart to live happily ever afterward.

A thirty-minute class in sleeping has been started at the University of Texas. The classroom is supplied with cots where complete relaxation can be had by those not able to take strenuous exercises.

It has been the policy of B. S. T. C., for a number of years, to publish, at the end of the first semester, a list of Freshmen who have achieved a two point or B average. This honor roll acts as an incentive for the students, at the same time honoring, to some degree, the high school from which the Freshmen graduated. In the true "ever onward spirit" of our college, we congratulate the following:

Gladys Bakey, Mt. Carmel; Felicia Czarnecki, Newport Twp.; Margaret Hawk, Shenandoah; Alice Hornung, Ashland; Pauline Houser, Catawissa; Kathryn John, Bloomsburg; Daniel Jones, Nescopeck; Marjorie McAlla, Montrose; Erdean MacAllister, Bloomsburg; Gladys Rinard, Catawissa; Richard Smith, Berwick; William Turnow, Wyoming Boro.; Howard C. Waite, Hazleton; Kathryn Wortman, Watsonstown; Mae Willis, Bloomsburg; Kathryn Yale, Slatington; Bernard Young, Berwick.

Each of these students graduated in the upper half of his high school class.

DRAGONFLIES

The gilded glistening wings of dragonflies
 Are iridescent all the afternoon.
 Dragonflies are winged flowers by day,
 But now with twilight, silently each one
 Folds his wings all golden in the sun,
 And steals away all night to dream
 In his palace of jewel-weed by a stream.

—Marie Nelson.

A BOY AND A GIRL

A girl came in the library
 But not for any book;
 A boy came in the library
 An atlas huge he took.
 A teacher in the library,
 The two she firmly shook
 They quickly left the library
 With meek and lowly look.

WALLER HALL JOTTINGS

We wish to extend hearty congratulations and best wishes to the graduates. We are sorry to lose them, but we are happy in their successful debut. To the new girls, who are really our old friends, we extend a welcome, and are glad to have them back.

 Mary McCawley is contemplating entering her picture in the beauty contest?
 Dotty Semie has joined the ranks of the "steadies?"
 Mary Langan hates men?
 Gert Strien is the president of the Berwick student teachers?
 Anne Ryan almost had the "mumps?"
 Peg Sandbrook likes to "dunk?"

Statistics at State College for Teachers show that students living at fraternity or sorority houses make the best students. Of the 126 names on the honor list 35 lived in no-sorority group houses, 18 work for their board and 21 are commuters.

The Princeton Alumni Weekly recently stated that an organization has been formed which will raise cribbing to a major industry. Students are supplied with a four-year set of notes for one hundred dollars.

BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT FOR THE GIRLS OF SENIOR CLASS IS NEARLY FINISHED

With the Senior girl's basketball tournament nearly finished, the winners can be predicted with a fair degree of accuracy. Of the ten games originally scheduled, seven have been played, and the result is rather lopsided. Plans are being made for an elimination tournament to begin as soon as this one ends, but the schedule as yet has not been arranged.

The Freshmen teams, which have been under a slight handicap because of the large number of players, and the fact that they have only one day a week in which to play, are nevertheless progressing remarkably well. The experienced players have already been organized into teams and have played part of their games. The inexperienced are still practicing and have shown considerable improvement for the short time in which they have to play. They will soon be organized into regular teams and scheduled to play a full tournament.

The result of the experienced Freshmen teams is as follows:

| Team No. | Won | Lost |
|----------|-----|------|
| B        | 2   | 0    |
| D        | 1   | 1    |
| G        | 1   | 1    |
| A        | 1   | 2    |
| C        | 1   | 0    |

Side Shots!

Have the Maroon and Gold cagers gone on a rampage or on a scoring spree? They have just decided to get down to business and play the brand of ball that they are capable of. Anyway, they started out on last week's trip with grim determination to do their darndest. They did. They arrived home with two wins chalked up for the cause.

—o—

After two years on the Junior Varsity, Ernie Valente has finally received his big chance, to the tune of seventeen points in the Lock Haven game. The team's midget dropped them in from all angles.

—o—

Malone has been doing a real job at center during the absence of Kafchinski. He has been the kingpin on both the offense and defense. He is a smooth player in spite of the indifferent attitude that characterizes his play.

—o—

The veteran guards, Ellis and Shepela, are beginning to show power on the defense. However Reed, and Phillips, a newcomer, are playing their share of the periods at guard position. Next year we will have these two as veterans for the guard positions.

KEEN COMPETITION SHOWN BETWEEN TEAMS IN INTRAMURAL LEAGUE FOR MEN

The intra-mural basketball league for men, under the direction of T. W. Booth, is again under way. The boys have taken a great deal of interest in this sport, and they play their games with a spirit that is common in varsity contests.

At present, each team has played four games, and there are three teams tied for first place. The squads captained by Sacus, Chudzinski, and Stash each having won three and lost one.

| Standing of Teams |     |      |
|-------------------|-----|------|
| Team No.          | Won | Lost |
| Team No. 1        | 3   | 1    |
| Team No. 2        | 3   | 1    |
| Team No. 3        | 3   | 1    |
| Team No. 4        | 2   | 2    |
| Team No. 6        | 1   | 3    |
| Team No. 5        | 0   | 4    |

We make a plea that the popularity and appeal of this sport at our college shall not be sacrificed for the sake of economy.

—o—

Have you noticed that the lineup usually is made up of enough men for two teams so that we really have two starting squads.

Snarks by Snick

With the beginning of the new semester, some of the men about the campus have taken a new lease, not of life, just for future activities. Which brings to mind the thought that there should be a banding together of some of these men into what might be called "A Fraternity for Men with Weak Hearts." Why not? With Valentine Day not so far away, and Spring just around the corner, surely something should be done for the protection of these individuals, who seem unable to make up their minds, and whose fancies turn so often. What! You don't agree with us. Then just make a list of several of the prominent individuals among the student body and you will soon run into the familiar thought: I knew him when he went with—

We usually think when the worry and strain of first semester tests are over, that we can now lean back and rest the oars for a while. Not for long, though, because it takes only a short interval before we begin to drift down stream; then, worry and work will have returned doubled.

During the next two months students are prone to become somewhat despondent. Probably caused by the weather—short days, wet, snowy spells, and a long period of classes without interruption. Maybe we are too willing sometimes to give up and say, "What is the use of working?" Here is a little scrap of poetry we found that seems to give the right slant on the situation:

Don't hunt for trouble, but look for success.
You'll find what you look for; don't look for distress.
If you see but your shadow, remember, I pray,
That the sun is still shining, but you're in the way.

The red headed boy who is so fond of taking a coed to the show is wasting his talents. He should be doing the close-ups for the film since he is interested in that sort of diversion. Of course we do not mean to be so observing, but red is such a conspicuous color. Don't jump to conclusions—just—nuff said!

Hummel and Riggs, what a pair, are in a chaotic state of despair concerning the notice they received recently that they are expected to put on a chapel program. They are not so sure how a violin and baritone horn will sound in duet. Neither are we. If they let us know on time we will gladly pay them now for a concert some other time.

Bureau of Standards at Washington is conducting experiments to find the best ways to remove unwanted noises from theatres, auditoriums, courtrooms, et cetera.

We don't know what the et cetera may be but we suggest—"from the lockers while classes are in session, —from the halls of Waller Hall during quiet hours—from chapel when films are being projected—and loads of others—but we can't be personal, you understand?

Imagine our embarrassment when we noticed some people were more interested in the last issue of the Maroon and Gold than in Dr. Raguels address. Shame! Shame!

:::

We wonder how many coeds would approve of remodeling the auditorium into one of those good old Shakespeare play-houses. You know—where the choice seats were on the stage.

Edwin Markham, author of "The Man With a Hoe" thinks the following are the ten loveliest words in English: reverberating, chryselephantine, imperishable, sea-sands, empyrean, coliseum, nevermore, Plutonian, ideal, Californian.

Snick, author of Snacks, says "My gosh, if any college student didn't know that the ten most beautiful words in the language are: "Inclosed find ten dollars, and another ten and still another."

Correct this statement: Once upon a time in the college of Bloomsburg there was a luxurious room known as the Day Boys Room, which the boys, because of their pride, kept spick and span; and as people walked past they marvelled at it and the boys studiously perusing the contents of text books.

College Quintet Wins Thriller From Lock Haven S. T. C., 39-38

Bloomsburg Passers Lead All the Way; Show Better Team Work; Defense Stiffens in Pinches

A determined, fighting Bloomsburg clan journeyed to Lock Haven, and emerged victorious to the tune of 39-38. After having won seven games in a row, the Red and White basketballers received their first taste of defeat in this game.

The Maroon and Gold cagers were the pace makers all the way, never giving the Lock Haven five a chance to get into the lead.

This victory was the result of the splendid floorwork, passing, and shooting of the team. Although the scoring combinations of the Bloomsburg passers were outstanding, the "boxing up" of the Red and White offense by the guards must not be overlooked.

The Buchheit clan never looked better at any time this season, and there is every possibility that the "home stand" of the team will be a successful one.

Ernie Valente starting his first of the season was high scorer and was closely followed by Captain Yaretski, Washeski, Malone, and Shepela.

Question Box

This column, which will be and is, henceforth, hereafter, and how much, under the direction of Professor Schmaltz of the Virginia Schmaltzes, has been instated as a regular feature of this paper only after many desperate entreaties by several of our school notables. These students (?), among whom are Yozviak, Coursen, and Jones, felt that some sort of a system should be set up whereby the problems met with daily in our institution could be submitted to and solved by some expert, whose decisions in each case, could be accepted without the least fear or hesitation. Accordingly, we have procured, at great expense, that expert of experts, Professor Schmaltz, who will serve us to the best of his ability. If at any time you have some weighty problem which you would like to refer to the professor, please feel free to do so. Address all such letters to the Question Box, Maroon and Gold, and drop them in any of the waste paper receptacles which you find distributed throughout the buildings. We assure you they will receive the promptest of attention. And now for this week's letters:

Dear Professor:

I am the proud owner of a Ford car which I recently named Opportunity. This act amused my friends very much and they are having a lot of fun at my expense. Now I am not Scotch, so I don't mind their having fun at my expense, but I would like to know the reason for their merriment. Could you tell me?

H. P. B.

Dear H. P. B.

In spite of the fact that you are a PROUD owner of a Ford car, I'll tell you the cause of your friend's laughter. You see, my boy, Opportunity knocks but once. Nuff sed.

Dear Prof.

I am a girl nineteen years old and not exactly hard to look at, but I'm having a rather hard time to keep my boy friends. When I go out with a fellow, he seems to like my company very much; that is, he does until I start whispering "sweet nothings" to him. I always thought the boys liked that sort of thing, but every time I get to that point, they leave me flat and never ask me to go out with them again. Could you tell me what's wrong?

S. M. H.

Dear S. M. H.

I doubt very much whether those "sweet nothings" of yours are as sweet as you intend. Try Listerine.

Dear Prof.

While driving to school last Tuesday, I almost hit a man who was crossing the road. Wednesday, the same thing happened, but this time, after jumping out of the way, he stood there shaking his fist and swearing at me. Thursday, he lost his temper completely, ran in a house, and came out with a shot gun. Do you think he intended to shoot me?

L. V. P.

L. V. P.

You bet I did, and the next time I'll get you, too, you blankety blank so and so.

Dear Prof.

I am a very lonely girl. Nobody likes me, and everyone avoids me as much as possible, the boys especially. I know I'm not good looking, that I'm terribly fat, and that I have absolutely no personality; but can't I do something about it?

A friend in need.

Dear friend:

I'm very sorry, but I'm afraid that you've come to the wrong person. What you should do is to consult a good first class magician.

Dear Prof.

I took my girl for a ride in my car Sunday, but she got mad at me and walked home; so this week I'm going to ask her to go horse-back riding. What do you think of the idea?

B. J. Y.

Dear B. J. Y.

By all means, don't go horse-back riding. She'll probably get sore and walk home again.

Dear Prof.

My boy friend and I had a fall-out last week, and he returned all of my presents. What can I do to win him back?

J. L. N.

Dear J. L. N.

Don't return the presents that he gave you; he'll be back.

Old Louie Loggin'

Old Louie, the watchman at the Pine Knob Fire Tower, and I were ambling leisurely about the woods. A few miles from the tower we came upon an old lumber camp, long since deserted. All about us were piles of pungent saw-dust with the roots of scrub pine penetrating to the soil below. Scattered among this were decaying logs covered with fungus growth—spongy fungi, mahogany, yellow, and white.

"A mos' interestin' place, here," commented Old Louie. "Yes, sir, mighty interestin'." Sad-like around here, too. Seems like there is spirits around here. Golly, I kin almos' see Bertha an' Bruce pullin' up that there old road. I guess I'm gettin' sentimental in my old age, but they ain't nothin' much wrong with that, eh?"

"Bertha an' Bruce?" I inquired, ignoring the old man's reference to sentimentalism.

"Wal," started Louie on another of his yarns, "Bertha an' Bruce was two of the best horses for nigh onto fifty miles hereabouts. When I was younger an' hardier than I be now, I drove this here team of horses, an' without braggin' (for my Aunt Henrietta allus said 'twas a sin to be boastful) I kin say I was mighty slick handlin' that team. We usually harnessed our horses with raw-hide, beins' we had lots of it handy an' jes' to show what strange things kin happen, I'll tell you about Bertha an' Bruce.

"One rainy mornin' I hitched up them two horses an' goes out an' gets loaded up with logs. I wasn't no feller afraid to get wet like some of these here tony fellers from the city, an' if it weren't rainin' too hard, Bertha an' Bruce didn't mind it either. I allus sez them horses liked a little rain to cool them off. Wal, enyhow they loaded the log wagon an' I gets onto Bruce an' sez, 'Giddop.' So Bertha an' Bruce pulls that load up to the mill only to find out we didn't. Yes, sir, that there raw-hide bein' so wet had stretched an' the wagon hadn't moved a darn bit. Wal, it was nigh onto dinner time so I jes' tied the horses to a tree an' gave them their nose bags an' went in an' et. All of a sudden-like I hears a lot of noise an' a thump an' we all runs out to see what was raisin' sech a rumpus. Wal, sir, the sun had come out an' dried that there harness an' it shrunk, an' bein's the horses was tied the wagon was pulled up to the mill. An' poor Bertha an' Bruce. That wagon come up so fast that when it hit them it broke their necks—Let's go back to the tower."

DAY ROOM NEWS

What! A new hobby? Yes, it is the truth. The Day Boys have decided leanings toward the manly art of self defense. And it isn't all self defense either. Anyway, a new pair of boxing gloves have appeared in the room. The boys have already started an elimination contest. The leaders of this contest are Krauss and Troy. Kitch and MaCraken have reached the semi-finals. No definite date has been set for the final bout which will probably be staged soon. Anyone desiring a bout with the present leaders can secure it by posting his name on the bulletin board in the Day Boys Room.

Liptzer has made his appearance this week with the contour and coloring of his face somewhat changed. He still sticks to the old gag about running into a chair in the dark or something like that! However, we are entitled to our own opinion, and Maurice has had a tough week answering many inquiries.

We hear that when Alice Shanno was doing her student teaching, one of her pupils thought that her dress was too long, and that she had on her summer slippers. Kids will be kids, you know. So will some of the student teachers.

Dorothy Moss has promised Helen Rishel some of her delicious fudge. We will be there en masse when the time comes, so do your stuff, Dot.

Martha Kressler is learning something since she has returned from student teaching in Berwick. She is learning to lead, thus giving some of the girls a break when dancing. She must have been popular in her young life if she has never learned to lead.

We notice that the bulletin board looks considerably better since every little Freshman girl and boy have purchased their books and the "For Sale" signs have been removed.

NEWLYWED'S CAKE

She measured out the butter with a very solemn air,
The milk and sugar also and she took the greatest care
To count the eggs correctly and to add a little bit—
Of baking powder, which you know beginners oft omit;
Then she stirred it all together, and she baked it for an hour,
But she never quite forgave herself for leaving out the flour.

WHAT KIND OF MUSIC DO STUDENTS LIKE TO SING?

Magazines and popular opinion, picture college students as preferring the hot-cha, blaring jazz. Even sentimental music, tradition has it, is speeded up and syncopated unmercifully.

It is true, students do take delight in jazz—but the wildest, fastest bunch will close their eyes, and sigh in ecstasy over soft, sentimental songs. "Broken Hearted" appeals irresistibly to them. "My Mom" nearly brings them to tears. They like to listen to the clever, facetious type, such as "Two Little, Blue Little Eyes;" but the songs they take to heart and sing, whistle and hum every minute of the living day are on the order of "Smilin' Thru."

To illustrate our point, to show the trend toward plaintive, sentimental songs, and perhaps to awaken some fond memories, we will take you back four years, to the time when the four-year seniors were freshmen at college, singing intensively.

Am I Blue, The Broadway Melody, Sunny Side Up, Here Comes the Sun, Happy Days Are Here Again, I Get the Blues When It Rains, Singing in the Rain, Singing in the Bathtub, Painting the Clouds with Sunshine, Turn on the Heat, 'Taint No Sin, Longin' for My Carolines, St. James Infirmary, Carolina Moon, Should I, When It's Springtime in the Rockies, The Stein Song, Before an Open Fire Place.

The very first day of the year of 1930-31, one was greeted with:

Those Little White Lies.

In rapid succession, came:

I'm Crying Myself to Sleep, When Your Hair Has Turned to Silver, Oh, Give Me Something to Remember You By, You're Driving Me Crazy, Gee, But I'd Like to Make You Happy, My Love for You, You're the One I Care For, Me, Kiss Waltz, Just a Gigolo, Blue Again, The Little Things in Life, I Am Yours, A Little Kiss Each Morning, H'lo Baby, Would You Like to Take a Walk.

And we left for summer vacation to the tune of:

Dream a Little Dream of Me, quite appropriate to the occasion.

The school year, 1931-32 arrived with "Moonlight Saving Time," but as the days grew shorter, the tune changed to "Harvest Moon," followed by:

I Found a Million-Dollar Baby, Of a Faded Summer Love, Home, Lies, Call Me Darling, Just One More Chance, Pardon Me, Pretty Baby, Little Girl, I Can't Write the Words, Star Dust, You May Call It Madness, Concentratin' On You, Moonlight on the River Colorado, All of Me, Just Friends, When the Moon Comes Over the Mountain, You Try Somebody New, Guilty, Take it From Me, Time On My Hands, You're My Everything, Was That the Human Thing to Do? The Blue of the Night, Good-night Sweetheart, Somebody Loves You.

1932-33 was ushered in with "A Shanty in Old Shanty Town." Then followed: Lullaby of the Leaves, Sleepy Time Down South, Smilin' Thru, an old song made new, Please, You've Got Me in the Palm of Your Hand, Contented, Rock-a-Bye Moon, Willow Weep for Me, Just Because You're You, Love Me Tonight, And So To Bed, Ev'ryone Says "I Love You," We Just Couldn't Say Good-Bye, The Night When Love Was Born, It Was So Beautiful, Say It Isn't So, You're Telling Me, Here Lies Love, Play, Fiddle, Play, Fit as a Fiddle, Let's Put Out the Lights, Street of Dreams, Take Me in Your Arms, A Boy and a Girl Were Dancing, Moon Song. E. L.

College does cause improvement in its students. This fact is evidenced by most of the students in Lohigh University showing improvement in the marks of the Carnegie tests taken in 1932 over those taken in 1930.

We ought to get paid for this propaganda against window cases what do you think?

GAMMA THETA UPSILON FRATERNITY INITIATES

Miss Olwyn K. Laird presented a report from the Geographic Review on the Santa Marta Region in Columbia by Griffith Taylor. Santa Marta was founded by De Bastidas in July 1525. It owes its early start to the fact that the town lies where the trade winds would bring the Spanish Navigators most readily from the early settlements of Santo Domingo to the main land. Level land extends east of Santa Marta but hills rise north and south of the town. It is hot and muggy. No roads have been built up the surrounding hill. There are mule trails leading to the coffee plantations. The United Fruit Company became interested in the region and at present it has 27,000 acres of bananas to the south of Santa Marta. This interest brought wealth to the country and has increased the population of Santa Marta from 6,000 in 1901 to a present population of about 30,000. Thus the United Fruit Company has made an otherwise unproductive region one of the wealthiest fruit districts of South America.

Miss Blanche M. Garrison reported on the Pan American Bulletin. It is published monthly by the Pan American Union, an association of the 21 republics of America, so that it may tell of advances in geography. Due to the large library and exact information these articles are very reliable to be used as references both for teachers of geography and students. Miss Garrison spoke particularly on an article about Santiago, the capitol of Chile. It was founded over 400 years ago by an officer of Pizarro's army on an outstanding rock formation called Santa Lucia Hill. In the past Santiago had many reverses but today it stands as the most beautiful city in Chile. It has several outstanding beauty spots and a very delightful climate of about 60 degrees Fahrenheit the year round. It has many modern improvements. One odd thing is that most of its bus conductors are women. It has been called the "White City" because of the many white buildings not yet soiled by smoke.

Mr. Keeler spoke on the Home Geographic Monthly and a special topic called "Holland, a Lovely Lowland." He presented statistics concerning drainage of the Zuider Zee. This project will give many acres of land to the people of Holland for agriculture.

Miss Vida H. Hartman gave a report on the article "Teaching Climate in the Elementary Grades" taken from the Journal of Geography.

Mr. John Reese spoke on "How the Economic Geography Magazine can help teachers in service." His first point stated that the articles may be used as special lessons. Second, it may be used by students in higher grades as a reference book for use in individual and group reports to the class. Third, the magazine may be used as a source of illustrative material. Fourth, it may be used as a supplement to the regular assigned work. Lastly, the magazine may be used to study specific small localities such as the "Wild Plant Industry of the Southern Appalachians." Mr. Reese brought a report on this topic which was very interesting, mainly because of the minute details which one would never learn from the study of a text-book.

No official excuses for cuts are now required at the University of Kansas because the maintenance cost of the absence file in the dean's office is too great.

The Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. are planning to hold a Valentine Party February 15. There will be some special numbers on the program and the remainder of the evening will be spent in playing games and dancing. Refreshments will be served.

WHAT NOT

Have you sent home for more money? If it isn't one thing it's another. Why, we've just finished paying for one semester, when a second one with all its sorrows and joys is staring us in the face. - - - But why worry, it won't be long until we'll all be teaching and making just loads of money. - - - The Seniors must be warned against complaining of teaching when the Juniors are around. They are getting discouraged. - - - But it is hard to get some things across to those high school students. - - - And that reminds us of a story - - - (By the way, this isn't an after-dinner speech - - - and it's original too. We copied it out of the paper) It seems (ahem) - - - that there was a professor (there always is) who was attempting to teach (naturally) a class of little negroes to memorize "Be Not Afraid, It is I." - - - On the following day he asked (a good idea) "Sam, what was the sentence I taught you yesterday?" Sam thought awhile (B. S. T. C. students do) and then replied, "Don't get skeered, 'taint nobody but me." - - - If you don't laugh at that one, we quit. - - - Speaking of teaching, here's a good one. It's about Mary McCawley. When the Latin teacher told her that "nec numquam" were the correct words for a sentence, she asked, "Why nec?" And that is what we'd like to know. - - - Dr. North has given clear instructions that when he tells us to "skim" the remainder, we are not to S-K-I-P it. - - - Our day boy's think that the Ryder Cup is something won by hitchhikers. - - - And to a certain party a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde is a man who sells Grade A. milk to kiddies by day and "hootch" to speakeasies by night. - - - The Glen Lyon Flash certainly lives up to his name on the basketball court. - - - Were we shocked the other day! - - - Jack Lewis came to class without a tie. - - - The light near the post office is quite an improvement. - - - Remember boys, when you hear that we are going back to the Old Roman civilization, fear not, because the Roman's maiden's pater provided her young husband with a substantial dowry. - - - What a break that would be for an unemployed teacher.

Y. W. C. A. NEWS

The Y. W. C. A. started the new semester with an economic discussion about that much talked of phase of the Machine Age, Technocracy. Dr. Nell Maupin was the speaker and directed the discussion of the group. This was further aided by references taken from leading magazines. Later, the talk diverged into the various phases of world politics.

That teamwork that we have been waiting for is beginning to show. We look for still better results throughout the remainder of the season.

Women students, have you joined the "Y" as yet? We cordially invite you to include it with your second semester's extra-curricular activities.

Not a Word Missed

Employer—Have you ever done any public speaking?

Applicant—I once proposed to a girl over the telephone in my home town.

Put St. Peter at the Gate

"We'll have to get the whole force to handle the crowds today."

"Parade? Convention?"

"Neither. The president of the ball club advertised for an office boy."

Someone remarked that what B. S. T. C. needs is more self-starters and fewer cranks.
