June Novak Elected to Office of Vice President

At a recent Business Education Club meeting June Novak was elected the new vice president to fill the vacancy created by the graduation of Enso Frosini in February.

Awards were presented by Mr. Rygiel, club adviser, to the winners of the typing contest. Those who received Certificates of Honor and pins were Isabel Gehman, Rose Marie Kraiser, Eileen Falvey, and Charlotte Reichart. Isabel Gehman was the champion typist of the contest. She typed 81 words a minute for ten minutes.

Mr. Rygiel explained about the Commercial Contest which is to be held here at the college on May 5. He explained the types of tests that will be conducted, when the contest originated, the prizes to be awarded, the number of schools that will participate, and other matters relative to the Contest. Two committees were appointed from the club to help with the contest, they are the Hospitality and the Girls' Accommodations Committees.

Two short skits were presented demonstrating the common faults of an interview and of a secretary taking dictation. Those who participated in the skits were Eileen Falvey, Jeanne Reitz, Isabel Gehman, and Catherine Longo.

An interesting contest on Proper Etiquette was conducted between two teams of club members. The teams were the Experts and the Geniuses. The Experts won by one point.

Education -- a Mighty Force

Another Lost Generation Ahead of Us?

Whatever bitter struggles may be ahead, it is clear that we are approaching the end of the war. We must plan to reconvert education as well as industry to peacetime conditions. Millions of people must readjust their lives.

We are making or proposing to make provision from state and federal funds for unemployment insurance for the war veterans. Congress has already made plans for free education for the returning veterans. These plans are excellent—only part payment of our debt to those who have served their country.

But in all of this planning, what is to be done for the million or more boys and girls who will graduate from our high schools each year? In seeking jobs they will enter into competition with returning veterans from the armed services and from the war industries. How are we to plan for the successful induction of these boys and girls into adult life?

Are we to have another lost generation? Millions of unwanted youth? In wartime, we do everything we possibly can to develop our young people in the armed services. With the best possible facilities and regardless of cost we teach them occupational skills; guard and develop their health; provide the best of diets; clothe and house them. Shall we drop our concern for them and the oncoming generations of youth when the last gun is fired? Do we need youth in war but not in peace.

There are those who suggest a period of compulsory military service. Others propose nonmilitary national service. No one has suggested that either of these types of service last more than a year. Whatever one's opinion of such compulsory service, no one-year program will solve the youth problem. We must plan an extended educational program. It may be very unlike the typical school program. It must employ youth's time profitably. It must give youth a vital role in community and national life. The only real solution to the youth problem is more and better education and plenty of jobs.

Must We Have War To Have Jobs?

When war came, jobs came. Manpower suddenly became terribly scarce. Men, men, more men was the cry of the armed forces and industry. Now we know we can produce beyond anything we had dreamed possible. We are confident of winning the war.

Still, many people are fearful of the future. And this is their fear: will my job end when the war ends? If we can have jobs in war, why not in peace?

A period of prosperity will follow the war in spite of immediate dislocations in employment. National income and purchasing power will be great for a time. People will have many wants. They will have war bonds to cash.

After this period is over, the real test will come. How will we meet it? How will we manage a national debt of 260 billion dollars or perhaps much greater? We can't do it with depression tailspins of men without jobs—hunger—breadlines—fear. The only possible way to avoid economic catastrophe is by maintaining our national income at a high level—well above 100 million dollars a year.

This we can do if we have the intelligence, the vision, the unselfishness, and the will to do it. The achievement of these qualities requires a high-grade educational program for all. A noted industrialist recently stated that education is the main-spring of business. Modern business has no place for ignorance, for persons who cannot read and write, for persons without special skills. It needs effective producers and intelligent consumers.

A prosperous peacetime economy can endure only upon the basis of a universally well-educated people.

What to Read

If you are fishing around having trouble finding something to read, you might try these.

ANNA AND THE KING OF SIAM,
by Margaret Landon. (John Day Company, $3.75)

Fantastic with the cruel beauty of the Orient was the Court of the King of Siam. Primly Victorian, resolutely self-respecting and thoroughly British, was the young and pretty widow who agreed to serve the King as governess to his royal children and his many concubines.

With her own son, Anna Leonawens made her home in this pageant of pagan powers and terror. Her calmly inflexible character prevailed. Even the King—a human thunderbolt of energy and vanity and unbridled actions—had to compromise with her rigid principles.

In Anna and the King of Siam there are scenes of uproarious comedy as well as moments of enhancing beauty, of tenderness, of ferocity, of abasement. Here is a first hand revelation of life behind the brass-studded gates of sumptuous oriental Court of eighty years ago. The scene in the beginning is Bangkok, 1862.

About the author—

Margaret Landon heard of Anna Leonawens while living in Siam and found old records Anna had written, now long out of print. One was called

Short Short Story

She was a lush little thing; soft eyes, honey colored hair, trim figure—dainty beyond description and she was alone.

The day was lonely and cold. She wanted companionship and shelter.

She slipped lithely into the big friendly building behind a group of laughing girls. Surely one of these girls who had so much would share a smile and a place to rest with her.

It didn't take long for the girls to notice her. She wasn't the type you would overlook. They seemed friendly enough, and she was drawn into their gay little group and swept down the long corridor.

A door loomed suddenly before her. Then, as suddenly, she was beyond it alone.

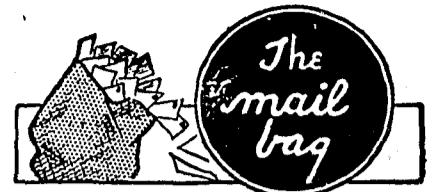

Someone whistled and then she knew that the laughing group behind her on the opposite side of the door had played a cruel trick!

This was no place for a lone female! She was on U. S. Government property. She was in the Navy—and we don't mean the WAVES.

That's why our President sent her from the Assembly Wednesday morning. Nice girls just don't wander around third deck like that, poor little thing! If a man in the K-9's had known of her plight this never would have happened.

And to that admirable young sailor who extended her his strong support and carried her from the laughing eyes of a hostile group, we say "SALUTAMUS VOS!"

MORAL: HEAVEN WILL PROTECT A WORKING GAL! OR THE PROVERBIAL "DOG'S LIFE."

"The Will to Win"

Alice Marble, holder of the women's amateur tennis crowns of the United States and England, recently lectured on "The Will to Win" at Edinboro State Teachers College. In her speech she stated that this will must have four parts, namely: enough sleep, exercise, proper food, and morale.

Low Calory Dinner

Striving to make the campus calory-conscious, a low calory meal will be served in all college dining halls next Thursday. The project is being sponsored by Dr. Gertrude Maulton's health education class, and is designed to make the women on campus aware that by eating all the food served in dormitory meals, they will meet nutrition standards without an excess of calories.

—Oberlin Review

Did You Have a Nice Time?

Girls in the dormitory at Radcliffe College keep their house-mates well informed of how they fare on dates by using different colored inks in registering the time they come in: green—just a nice time; brown—thoroughly routine; yellow—an upper flop; pink—on a high intellectual plane; red—perfectly swell; purple—too, too divine.

Cheyney Quartet Triumphs

Four former members of the Negro Life and History class of Cheyney State Teachers College triumphed over four students of the West Chester State Teachers College in a Negro Life and History contest. Questions in the contest involved the life and accomplishment of nationally and internationally known Negroes from the earliest records to the present.

Mrs. Valentine, the organizer of the program, gave prizes—a large orange layer cake to the winner, and five cream puffs to the loser. She explained herself by saying, "When I tried to think of what the young people would most likely appreciate, I remembered that they were students in school. That group of the human body always seem hungry; so I thought they would appreciate something they could eat." (Now that's a really considerate lady for you.)

—The Cheyney Record

Man or Mouse?

That's the question one coed put to her date for the recent Ohio State University Gold Diggers' Prom when she pinned a live white mouse on his lapel for a corsage. This most original of corsages consisted of a cellophane box housing the mouse and a sign reading "Is you is, or is you ain't?" Some of the men even lugged stuffed animals around with them at the prom, and others sported dog collars around their necks.

But the men were rewarded for their good-natured acceptance of all the doodads when the women footed the bills for steaks, cokes, transportation, and dance tickets.

Huskies Win Season's Opener

Have Little Difficulty in Taking Exhibition Tilt from Berwick A.C.F.

Mis-haps by Visitors Help Nelsonmen

The 1945 edition of the Teachers College's Navy-manned baseball team defeated Berwick ACF, 12-1, in a Spring training exhibition contest on the College field yesterday afternoon.

The game was marked by spotty play on the part of the visiting industrial workers who are just starting to get into condition. Almost all of their misplays figured in the Husky scoring.

Fielding conditions were under par as the work on the grass infield has not been completed.

The Huskies won about as they pleased. Down one run as they came to bat in first, they promptly proceeded to take a lead which they never relinquished. Singles by Zagoudis and Pratico, combined with a base on balls and an error, produced two runs.

Three miscues and a well placed bunt which Opalka laid down for a hit were good for three more tallies in the second and this was followed by a five-run outburst in the third.

In the big inning ten of the Huskies went to the plate. Klinefelter and Strong opened with singles and came on home through the medium of a passed ball and wild pitch. Opalka fanned but Zagoudis reached first on a boot by Millington and Saul Mariaschin got three bases when Chappel dropped his lofty fly in deep right. Davis struck out. Terhune laced a liner to center and made the round when the ball skipped through Bankes. A single by Fleming in the first sent Opalka in with a run and a walk and error, woven in with a double steal, produced the final Husky run in the twelfth.

The contest did not throw much light on the Husky nine's potentialities. The infield looked fair but the fly chasers had little opportunity to display their wares.

The practice game, however, served as a tune up for the game with Elizabethtown College here next Tuesday.

B-Club Dines in Real Campfire Style

Hollow Hike Serves as Good Appetizer for Group

Wednesday afternoon, April 11, eleven ambitious members of the B-club hiked through field and forest, over hill and dale, crossing and re-crossing a brook and incidentally getting muddy shoes and scratched legs, to the old spring in Dillon's Hollow. Instead of cooking supper there as previously planned, the hungry gals trudged eagerly back for chow in Miss McCammon's yard.

Miss McCammon, Peggy Beach and Eva Bourgeois were in charge of the outdoor meal that included hot dogs, french fried potatoes, and (last but not least) carrots a la campfire style. The club recommends them as good chefs who need no stoves... just a couple of pioneer daughters.

"The English Governess at the Siamese Court" and the other "The Romance of the Harem." Researches in the Library of Congress and among Consular records in the National Archives supplied additional material from which Anna and the King of Siam was written as a factual story in a semi-fictional form.

HOW DEAR TO MY HEART, by Emily Kimbrough

Muncie, Indiana, and the Kimbrough family were equally agog that day shortly after the turn of the century, when Grandfather drove his new-fangled "machine" down Main Street.

Those were the days when swooshing skyrockets climaxed Fourth of July celebrations, when Mr. Hinkley sold homemade icecream from his wagon and took it back if the children forgot to say "thank you", when the street-lamp man was followed by a parade of young Muncieites as he lowered the swinging arc lamp and changed the carbons. Those are the days Emily Kimbrough re-lives with spontaneous affection in How Dear to My Heart, the story of a little girl in a little city in the heart of America.

There will be many a chuckle and many a sigh for the good, gone days as one reads this bubbling book. It fulfills the poets wish to "make me a child again just for tonight."

About the author—

From her native Muncie, Indiana, Emily Kimbrough set fourth on a career of mild adventure which included Bryn Mawr College, the fashion editor's chair at the Ladies Home Journal, and a trip abroad with her classmate, Cornelia Otis Skinner, which the two made unforgettable in "Our Hearts were Young and Gay." "We Followed our Hearts to Hollywood" is Emily Kimbrough's story of the days spent in filming "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay."

Were You Wondering?

Sometimes the weather plays tricks on you, sometimes it's your eyes, but last issue it was either the printer or Gremlin Gus—no matter—someone "dood it"!!

A picture was printed; as planned, it was somewhat of a "leg" picture. Not the usual pin-up but no one can deny—it was a leg picture.

Surely you've heard of a "miscue," well, that picture turned out the perfect example.

We wanted to show you Jim Trinity's knee, via torn "bell bottoms," via barbed-wire fences. But you can't hit the nail on the head if the picture is cut in half.

In spite of all this, the fact remains, he's still a protegee of Emily Post.

For further information or facts to put 2 plus 2 together, see the picture above and last issue's column "WHAT GOES OVER THE FENCE LAST?"

P.S.—Hope you make the nail your bull's-eye and get your 4!!
