Wesley Fellowship Installs Officers

Rev. Dr. Elvin Clay Myers gave an enlightening explanation of the symbols found in the newly rededicated sanctuary of the Methodist Church at a recent meeting of Wesley Fellowship. New officers of the fellowship were elected and installed.

Relda Rohrbach was chosen to serve as president. Other officers are Pat Edwards, vice-president in charge of worship; Edgar Nunn and Mary Jane Trefsgger, assistants; Janice Bower, vice-president in charge of program; James Luchs and Curtis English, assistants; George Derk, vice-president in charge of recreation; Virginia Horne and Robert Oney, assistants; Nancy Bangs, corresponding secretary; Jeanette Traver, recording secretary; John Cherrington, treasurer; and Sylvia Krapf and Betty Ruth Keller, pianists.

At the last regular meeting of the "Speak No Evil" was shown the organization. The worship service was led by Pat Edwards, Edgar Nunn, and Nancy Gunton. Refreshments were then served by faculty wives and games were played.

Alpha Psi Omega

Alpha Psi Omega's most recent meeting saw the initiation of four new members. The four, Rosella Manillo, Mary Ann Martz, Alexander Lablck, and Bill Ottaviani are now official members of B.S.T.C.'s dramatic fraternity.

A forthcoming collegiate event in the assembly production of "Overtones". Scheduled for April 1, the play is to be a combination of the talent of both Alpha Psi Omega and the Bloomsburg Play-

Science Club Sees Movie on Streams Of Keystone State

Science Club of B.S.T.C. recently held two interesting meetings. The first took place in Science Hall on February 26. President Sam Yeager spoke about advance programs for the club, and encouraged student participation in these programs.

Following the business meeting, program chairman Alfred Chiscon gave introductory remarks concerning the film that was shown entitled "Elementary Electricity." The importance of ohms, amperes and volts in relation to their household usage was one of the main points of the film.

March 12 was the date of the second meeting. Club Program Chairman introduced the speaker, Mr. Maynard Wood who works with the Public Relations of the Sanitary Water Board at Harrisburg. Mr. Wood gave an interesting and entertaining talk on the why and wherefore of sanitation

Colored Slides Are Shown at Meeting Of Canterbury Club

Colored slides of old churches in Pennsylvania and abroad were shown by Richard Caton at the last regular meeting of Canterbury Club, which was held Thursday evening, March 12, in the Parish House of St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

Devotions were led by Mary Ruth Ruddick. Grace Histed, President of the group, presided over the business meeting during which plans were made for the Diocesan Conference of Colleges which is to be held in Bloomsburg April 11 and 12. A program was also planned for the mid-week Lenten service in Carver Auditorium on March 25, at which time Canterbury Club will be in charge.

Following the meeting refreshments were served. Hostesses were Mrs. E. C. Stiteler, Mrs. Roy D. Snyder, and Mrs. Ernest H. Englehardt.

Newman Club Elects Officers for Year

The Newman Club recently elected officers for the coming year. The newly elected officers are: president, Albert McManus; vice president, Ronald Krafjack; secretary, Louise La Sorsa; treasurer, William Ottaviani; publicity chairman, Joseph Froncek.

Last Monday night the Newman Club held a St. Patrick's Day party which was well attended. Favorite Irish melodies were sung, refreshments were served, and dancing was enjoyed by all members.

Delegates Attend S.C.A. Convention At State College

The final mid-week Lenten service, sponsored by Student Christian Association, will be held Wednesday noon, March 25, from 12:25 to 12:45 in Carver Auditorium. The Canterbury Club of the Episcopal Church will be in charge.

Wesley Fellowship conducted the meeting on March 18, and the Newman Club, Knox Fellowship, and the Student Christian Association planned the programs for the preceding weeks.

"B" Club to Spend Week-end at Eagles Mere This Spring

The members of the Women's "B" Club were entertained at dinner Wednesday evening, March 11, 1953, at the home of their faculty advisor, Miss Lucy MacCammon. All those attending were served a delicious dinner, prepared by Miss MacCammon and Mrs. Moffert. Attractive tables for four were set up and the meal was served buffet style.

After dinner, the monthly business meeting was held with the Vice-President, Nancy Tovey, presiding. Plans for the forthcoming Eagles Mere weekend, May 15-17, were discussed. At this time, all new members taken in since last spring will receive their informal initiation. Alumni members and friends will spend the weekend with the club at the Allegheny Hotel in Eagles Mere, Pennsylvania.

New members, who recently earned the required 1000 points, attended their first meeting. There were Pat Edwards, Nancy Gunton, Janet Hughes, and Mary Ledyard. Nominations for officers for 1953-54 will be held at the next meeting of the club, April 8, 1953.

BSTC Players Hold Business Meeting

The weekly meeting of the B.S.T.C. Players was called to order Tuesday evening, March 10, by President Bob Von Drach. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved, followed by the treasurer's report. The Committee heads of the public play gave their reports. After the business meeting, a play, directed by James Luchs, was put on. All the members were newcomers to the Bloomsburg Players. The cast members were: Bob Westover, James Coleman, Joyce Lundy, Mary Ruth Ruddick, Virginia Dunn, Al Davis, Joanne Hester, and Pat Bevin. Dave Hines had charge of lighting, and Toni Czerwinski acted as prompter.

Nominees Named for Five C.G.A. Offices in Assembly

"The Kind Lady"

Ethel Barrymore portrayed her on the Hollywood screen—Connie Bauer will impersonate her on the B.S.T.C. stage! Who is this SHE?—The Kind Lady—one of Hugh Walpole's most interesting characters and Edward Chodorov's most famous plays. After a highly successful United States motion picture tour, "The Kind Lady" will appear at Bloomsburg on the eve of March 30. Only the actors have changed—the setting, costumes, and stage effects are identical to those which movie-goers loved and applauded.

This three act modern melodrama stars Connie Bauer and features Bob Von Drach, Joan Curilla, Wylla Mae Bowman, Jim Luchs, Sherrill Hiller, George Herre, Joanne Cuff, Doyle Lynn, Jim Ferdinand, Joan Scott, Judy Bolling, and John Kennedy.

Committee chairmen are as follows: costumes, Gloria Benner; publicity, Jan Ference; scenery, Paul Shoop; lighting, Eiderson Dean; properties, Gerald Houseknecht; tickets, Mary Ruth Ruddick; usherettes, Jean O'Donnell.

Pi Omega Pi Votes On New Memberships

The regular monthly meeting of Pi Omega Pi was held on Thursday evening, March 12, in the Social Rooms of Science Hall. President William Jacobs presided. A nominating committee consisting of Edmund Longo, Anthony Hantjls, Wilma Jones and Mae Neugard was appointed to select candidates for 1953-54 offices. The organization members voted upon acceptance of new members, who will be pledged in Mr. Gehrigs' room on March 23 at 4:00 p.m. The pledge committee includes Clare Davis, Kenneth Kirk, and Erma Bean.

Outstanding Speech And Hearing Films Shown at College

Two outstanding films in the field of Speech and Hearing were shown at B.S.T.C. last week and will be shown this week. On March 13 and 14 a 20 minute film on stuttering was shown, and on March 20, and 21 a film will be shown entitled Speech Training for the Handicapped Child. After the showings here, the films will be mailed to NBC TV where they will be shown on their program Mr. U.S.A.

1953-54 Officers To Be Student-Elected In Coming Election

Nominations for C.G.A. officers for next year were held during assembly on March 12.

The Bible was read by C.G.A. President Edwin Cunfer, and the whole issue concerning the recent petition problem was presented to the student body by Henry Marini, Senior Class President.

First to be nominated for the all-important position of C.G.A. President was David Skammer. He was nominated in a brief address by Oren Baker. The second nominee was Michael Crisci, who was nominated by Edmund Longo. The final nominee was Albert McManus, nominated by Ray Wayne. Keith McKay moved nominations be closed.

Donald McNelis was the first nominated for the office of vice-president, Malcolm Smith making the speech on his behalf. The second nominee was George Derk, nominated by Edgar Berry. Malcolm Smith's motion that nominations be closed was seconded, and passed unanimously.

Doris Sadowski and Mary Ellen Henning were nominated in that order for the office of secretary by Jean Shamro and Judy Fry. Harriet Williams moved that nominations be closed.

Ed Longo was the first nominee for the position of treasurer. Dick Hurtt was the second nominee. They were nominated by Francis Gavio and Harley Stewart.

Nominees for the office of Assistant Treasurer included Harrison Morson, nominated by Mary Kallenback, and Thomas Higgins, nominated by Edward Siscoe.

Program Presented By Athenaeum Club

On Thursday, March 12, the Athenaeum Club met in Science Hall. A short business meeting was held followed by a program presented by members of the club. Entertainment consisted of a vocal solo, "The Lord Has Given Me a Song" (Weiss and Livingston), by Grace Histed; an explanation of the marimba by Eleanor Nichols who played "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers" and "Dancing Tambourines"; and a vocal selection, "Hedge Rose" (Schubert), by Joyce Lundy. Accompanists were Myra Albertson and Elizabeth Adams. Mr. Ralph F. Smith is adviser.

A motion picture has been scheduled to be shown at the next meeting to be held on March 26. Members are urged to attend.

campus hemlines

Back again with more hemline news and talk about what our co-eds are wearing. New on my list is Jan Johnston; wearing a beautiful, soft lavender jersey dress to dinner. Blonde Jan really wears this "fussy" shade well. The bodice has a double Peter-Pan collar and tiny pearl buttons dancing down to say hello to a matching belt. Only thing though—the buttons have a twinkling rhinestone center. The gathered skirt hangs in soft full folds. Three-quarter sleeves finish off what I call a new and different trend—jersey in pastels.

Another Jan caught my eye. None other than Jan Bower. Looking neat as a pin in a check suit. The two-tone brown check looked like a Shepherd's plaid from afar. Right Jan??? A white tailored blouse peeked out from the lay-flat lapels. Three buttons give the jacket beautifully tailored lines. Dark brown shoes made Jan's outfit complete!

Another pastel dress eased into the dining room. Peggy Haupt looking wonderful in a dusty blue. One of the outstanding things about this dress is its cute boat neckline. Folding back over the edge of her neckline was a sweater ribbing of white angora wool. The unusual three-quarter length sleeves are gathered over each elbow to add a little fullness and prettiness. A narrow belt topped the gored skirt. Peggy decided in black shoes and a pearl choker. Small drop earrings gave Peggy that finished look. Sophistication plus!

The last one to go on the list is Lillian Tomasko. Lillian had an entirely different costume from any of the above. 'Twas a navy-blue coat dress with a full, full skirt. Six courageous white buttons, in perfect contrast with the navy, lined up in two straight rows on the bodice. Twelve matching buttons, six on each sleeve, added more of that NEW look. A red scarf tucked in at the throat gave Lillian a rich wear-it-all-time outfit.

Till next time then . . . Bye.

G. I. MAIL

. . . Just a few lines to let you people know how much I appreciate receiving the school paper. I've been down Quantico way since September and constantly look forward to receiving news about the old Alma Mater. The Maroon and Gold certainly does a thorough job. Many thanks.

Bloomsburg was very well represented here at Marine Corps Schools with Steve Kriss heading the list as one of its faculty members. Dale Bennet and I have had the good fortune of being together since September. John Dietz and George Blyler both left for their first duty stations, while Bob Burns is in the class ahead of me and will be leaving the latter part of March.

Many thanks again for being so considerate — sincerest regards to all my friends at Bloomsburg and am looking forward to visiting the campus.

—Lt. Don Cesare

. . . How is my Alma Mater doing? I guess they're just about getting along without me, being that I was such a big wheel up there (yeah). I'm sorry I didn't

Planning a Successful Tourney

Annual Invitational Basketball Tournament

The annual Bloomsburg State Teachers College High School Invitational Basketball Tournament under the leadership of Tourney Director John Hoch is enjoying another successful run. This year's class is the Twenty-sixth of its kind, lists 32 teams competing in Class A, Class B, and Class C competition with trophies and individual awards in line for the winners and runner-ups in each class. There will also be picked an All-Tourney team and an outstanding player of the Tournament and they will also receive handsome trophies. To keep the interest up on the feminine side, there will be awards for the best cheerleading squad in each class.

Student Director of this year's tourney is Ed Cunfer, and he is assisted by Harley Stewart. The work involved in a venture such as this is immeasurable, and these boys must be given a lot of credit for their accomplishments. Also aiding with a helping hand is Gene Morrison, Student Coordinator, who is in charge of all the host management. He is assisted by Glenn Wiik, and these two don't find much time to sit down and enjoy the games either. The Tournament would be a flop however if it wasn't for remaining members of the committee composed of ushers, student managers, program issuers, and those in charge of towels, oranges, and gum. They all go together to make another tourney, this one about the best to be staged in the history of the game.

Hershey Bound for the Ice-Capades

Presenting the "B" Club

"B" Club, the only girls athletic club on campus, is organized for fun, pleasure, and physical play. They are one of the smallest but one of the most active clubs on campus.

They're like other clubs with a constitution and by-laws, etc. But they believe in healthy wholesome fun and activity. Regular meetings are usually supper meetings at Miss MacCammon's home—fried chicken spaghetti and meat balls, or light refreshments. "Doggie" roasts, and 6:00 a.m. breakfast cook-outs are all part of the fun.

They have several big week-end excursions. Eagles Mere, the playground lake, welcomes the "B" Clubbers each year. The girls sponsor a glorious week-end at this beautiful resort, and everyone is welcomed—the entire college community. Fishing, boating, swimming, hiking, and camping in the "Alps" of America is the early spring agenda. During winter, skating and tobogganing parties are arranged. New members are initiated at Eagles Mere.

On Homecoming Day the girls operate the concession stands on Mount Olympus, and supply giant chrysanthemums. It's a hectic job of fun. This year "B" Club sponsored a trip to Hershey to see the Ice Capades of 1953.

The girls render a great instructional service to all active-minded girls—beginners and recruits included. They keep their Tuesday nights free and come up to Centennial Gymnasium where the girls learn to play Volley Ball, Basketball, Cage Ball, Swimming, Badminton, and Shuffleboard. In the spring Baseball and Bowling leagues are organized. The girls join in the holiday festivities with Christmas caroling, Halloween parades, and scavenger hunts. Prizes and refreshments always follow these gay affairs.

Membership is open to all campus co-eds, who have earned 1000 points. These points are awarded on the basis of sports activities—those already mentioned plus dancing, skating, hockey, skiing, hiking, camping, tumbling, horseback riding, and archery. For each hour of sports activity a certain number of points are earned—individual points for individual sports, team points for team sports, and official points for instruction work or referee work. After earning 500 points, they receive numerals; 1000 points makes the girl eligible for "B" Club plus receipt of a letter "B"; a chevron for each additional 500 points, and a pin when she hits the 2000 mark.

It's simple to join this fun-loving group of athletes. Besides enjoying college years, the girls receive beautiful souvenirs to cherish forever. Alumni members always attend the "B" Club weekend at Eagles Mere. Once a "B" Clubber, always a "B" Clubber.

Life with Dickens, et al.

There are people who think library work is uninteresting. Libraries consist of a little white-haired old lady sitting behind a desk pointing toward a sign stating in big bold letters, "Silence," and rows and rows of dusty books. But I disagree; I work in a library.

A library is an ideal place to get to know people. There is the person who walks in past the sign stating that the library will be closed for the evening, asking what time it will open, and the one who rushes in just as you are ready to lock up for the night to browse through the stacks. Then there is the lady who does not know the title, author, or any other pertinent information about the book she wants, but it is about animals; and the college graduate who has never yet come in contact with an encyclopedia. Most librarians are understanding souls, or they are not librarians.

A casual observer may never realize that there is more to a librarian's day than checking books in and out. There is the constant selecting and ordering of new books. And in order to select them she must read books, reviews, library publications, and publishing lists. Processing of new books after they arrive comes next—ordering catalogue cards, accessioning, cataloguing, classifying, stamping, embossing, pasting, filing shelf list cards, and lettering. New books light up a librarian's face like a new toy does a child's. They are sometimes fascinating in just their title or the author's name. Isn't it logical that Dull & Dull should write a mathematics text, and that Wing should expound on wildlife conservation? Is it always coincidence, or does the author have a sense of humor? In working with books, the librarian is sure to find many a chuckle.

Even the best librarian, and I am far from that category, makes a few classic mistakes. For instance the time I searched frantically and finally located four or five books on "Youth in Asia", only to discover that the girl wanted material on euthanasia, or mercy killing. And the time I looked in vain for Let's Look At The sky when the name of the book was Let's Look at the Sky.

Annual inventory in a library is similar to spring housecleaning. Books are taken out of hiding, checked with the shelf list, and dusted. Old ones are discarded, or stored away like worn-out furniture. It is surprising how many books are in a library which do little but collect dust, books which were presented in 1898 as a gift by a temperance society or in 1900 by a local manufacturer.

A librarian's day is interspersed with innumerable little jobs—reading shelves, slipping and reshelving books, arranging displays, sending out notices and writing letters, adding to the picture and pamphlet file, sorting mail, keeping magazines and newspapers in order, typing book pockets and cards, mending books, keeping the room in order, etc. A good librarian must be very careful not to let the little tasks crowd her real job, that of aiding and encouraging people in the use of the library.

Books are a stronger influence on the lives and aspirations of most people than we realize — more than the radio, television, or the movies. Hollywood cannot quite reproduce the heart-moving power of a well-written book, because a book can tell so much and yet leave so much to the individual's imagination. That is why library work is so important. In choosing the right book for someone, the librarian does a great service. And if she absorbs just a little from the books she works with, she is well paid.

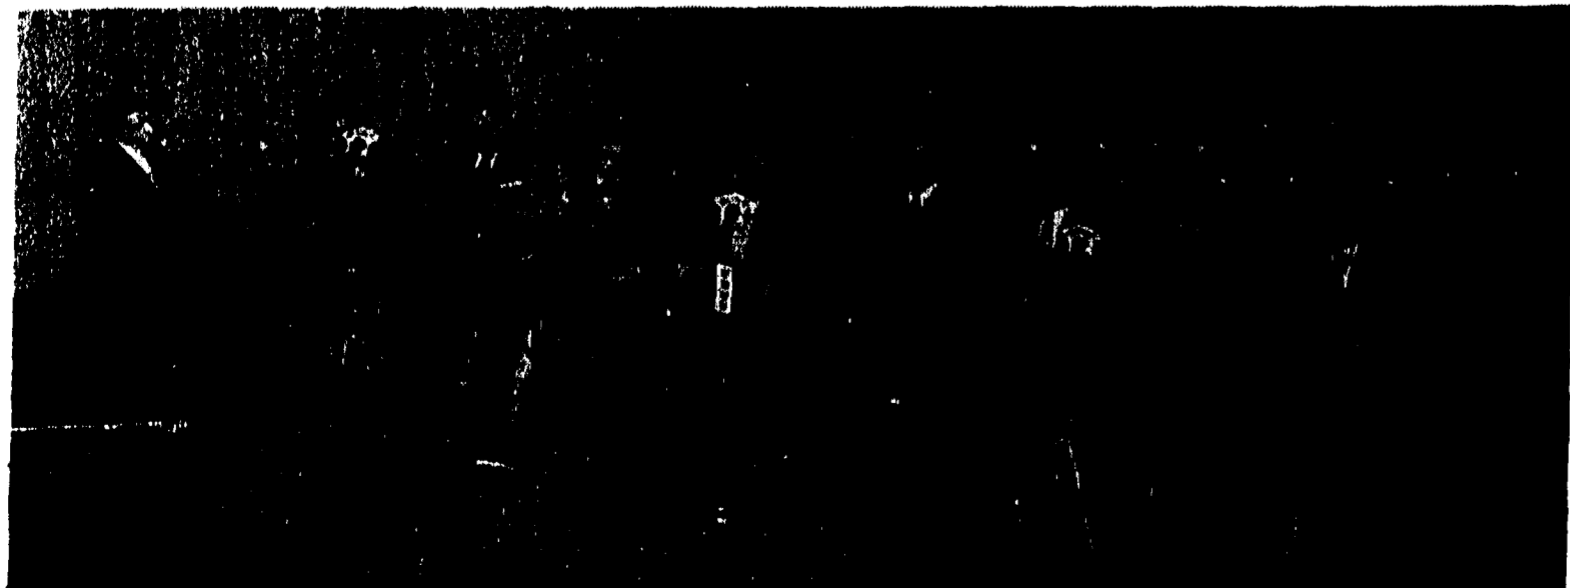

—Betty Hoover

Team Takes STC Championship Five Points

Bloomsburg is the official winner of the Pennsylvania State Teachers College Basketball Conference championship. Not until the final conference game was held last Saturday at Edinboro did the Slippery Rock team, 71-67, win the championship decided in Bloomsburg's favor over California by five conference points—same number of points separating the Edinboro losers and Slippery Rock winners in the conference finale. Had Edinboro won Saturday's game, Bloomsburg and California would have been deadlocked for first place with 280 points.

Coach Howard Shelly's Huskies made Lock Haven as the conference floor titlists in the two-year-old circuit.

LOCKER - LINGO

by Harry Brooks

The final standings of the State Teachers College Basketball Conference have been computed and were released last week, with the Huskies of Harold Shelly nosing out the California Vulcans for first place. The margin was by five points. B.S.T.C. compiled a ten-and-two league record and raked up two hundred and eighty points while the Cal. tutors copped six of eight decisions for a total of two hundred and seventy-five points. The remainder of the standings were as follows: Slippery Rock, West Chester, Clarion, Millersville, East Stroudsburg, Shippensburg, Lock Haven, Edinboro, Kutztown, Indiana, Cheyney, and Mansfield. The final Husky record was an eleven won and seven lost chart.

From here and there . . . Jumpin' Joe Ondrula copped a second team berth on the All State Teachers team, and Bob Gerhard and Al Williams were recognized in the honorable mention department. Millersville's Marauders grabbed off two slots on the first five . . . student support of the basketball team at home and away this past season was the best for many a year. Large crowds of Husky rooters journeyed especially to Lycoming and the final battle at Millersville . . . Russ Verhousky, star Maroon and Gold grid end for the past few seasons, signed a professional football contract with the Philadelphia Eagles last week. Verb will report to Hershey come next August. Best wishes, room mate . . . the "now playing" High School Invitational Basketball Tourney is experiencing some thrilling moments. At this writing, the teams to watch are Rock Glen in Class C, and Shamokin in Class A competition . . . Crowds at the tournament have been gratifying at times and everyone who attends these nightly fests can thank Dean John Hoch, Ed Cunfer, student coordinator, and their host of able-bodied staff members who have presented a fine picture of B.S.T.C. to the many visitors on this campus . . . Coach Jack Yohe's baseballers are prepping for the coming campaign, not so far off now. For several weeks, the large turnout of diamond hopefuls have been working off the winter weight and grinding out the stiffness of their muscles to get into shape for the mid-April opener . . . and another sign of the times is cheerleader Mary Lou Kubik's sojourn to various fields everyday—five iron and driver over her shoulder, practicing her strokes for the coming golf season . . . And now in a serious vein — I hope the day comes when a certain newspaper's sports staff wakes up and realizes that there is a college high on the hill. When church leagues consistently outrate a top collegiate team such as we had here during the past season at B.S.T.C., in publicity or in newspaper placement, one begins to wonder if some people know the real value of journalism. If not, there is a good Journalism course offered here at the "Friendly College."

Intramurals . . .

With the intramural basketball season coming to a close, three teams are deadlocked for first place with identical four and one records. The Misogamists, Barts Frat House, and The Flashy Five have survived the cage wars and will tangle in the play offs for the intramural crown. Here are the official box scores and standings to date:

Husky Cagers Win Second Place Berth On All-League Team

Though they walked off with the championship of the Pennsylvania State Teachers Colleges Basketball Conference, Bloomsburg's Huskies failed to place a single man on the first unit of the All-League team.

Jumping Joe Ondrula received a second team berth, while Bob Gerhard and Al Williams were given honorable mention.

Two Kenneths—teammates Ken Kline and Ken Stoner—of Millersville dominate the second annual all-star selections made by the coaches in the 14-team league.

Kline of Allentown received the highest number of votes in the balloting, while Stoner of Wrightsville was tied with two others in rating the second highest number of votes. Stoner shared this honor with James Kennedy of California and Don Stemmerich of Clarion.

Stemmerich of Wilkensburg, Kline and Frank (Tom) McClelland of Shippensburg are repeat performers on the all-star team, having shared this honor in the first year of official STC conference play. McClelland hails from Weirton, W. Va.

First team:

- F. Jim Kennedy, California.
- F. Frank (Tom) McClelland, Shippensburg.
- C. Don Stemmerich, Clarion.
- G. Ken Kline, Millersville.
- G. Ken Stoner, Millersville.

Second team: Norm Sundstrom, Lock Haven; Joe Ondrula, Bloomsburg; Roger Cocivera, Kutztown; Bill Munch, West Chester, and Charles Neuchwander, Slippery Rock.

Honorable mention: Bob Gerhard, Bloomsburg; Pikunas, Slippery Rock; Al Williams, Bloomsburg; Parks, Edinboro; Nusser, Indiana; T. Beck, West Chester; Mundrinich, Clarion, and Merritt, Mansfield.

A Final Word

The last word in basketball for '53 is that the Huskies are Champs, State Teachers College that is, and for the first time in who knows how long. We are all mighty proud, and C.C. personally feels that every last basketballer on the team deserves a hero jacket of some sort. What's good enough for footballers is good enough for the other kinds of ballers too. A big C.C. Hardwood Medal goes to the 1953 Shellymen!

On Student Teaching

Like I said before this student teaching is one thing that condenses all three and a half year's of education into a nice, sharp, crystal clear drop of understanding. Jimmie Johnson, who is in the happy situation of teaching ninth grade general science, has learned that the three states of matter are not, as he thought, liquids, solids, and gases; but Pennsylvania, New York, and Ohio. A student teacher can start by telling about capillaries and wind up trying to explain why deep wells require force pumps. Between a yo-yo craze that has recently struck the school and the normal high school exuberance, anyone who finds student teaching boring has not caught that love of combat which makes teachers enjoy their task.

Shades of A. T. & T.

Those wires you see strung around the halls are not a branch line of American Telephone and Telegraph; they're actually a test layout for an alarm system. They seem to work pretty well, too, because you can hear bells ringing almost anytime and place. The wires really don't constitute a fire hazard either, because they're right out in the open where you could see the flames if they started to burn. I guess it's just another alarming situation on American College campuses.

Check Your Appendix

College students have been advised often and oftener to check their appendix when plodding through a thick tome (book, to us) in the quest of a terribly important piece of inconsequential information. Now, C.C. is saying this, check your other appendix too. Did you know that eight (count 'em) eight people have been out with appendicitis this year already? This has really been a year for stitches in time to save nine (or should we say eight). At least it's what I call earning a vacation.

T. V. Is Here

O, goody, T. V. is here (and so is Bob Steele) at last. Sometimes the reception is good, other times I feel sorry for that poor guy sitting there reading the news in a driving blizzard. The program starts at 6:00 o'clock from the W-BAR-E Ranch with the introduction of cute little kiddies with cap pistols as long as their arms. The guy doing the introductions sits on a log and in a kind of stupefied monotone gives you the name, address, and birthday of 37,000 kids in the Wilkes-Barre area. After this comes the big feature with lots of horses and Bob Steele, then there is the rancher's daughter and Bob Steele, then there are more horses and Bob Steele, then there are the outlaws and But sometimes it's really good and it does keep the children off the street.

Why the Shortness

If anyone wonders why the Currents were so brief this week, it's because there's so much we all know about without my having to write about so that my editor could have something to censor about so that you could have something to not read about anyway?

Nominees Named

Nominations were closed after the motion was offered by Mike Moran.

Speeches by the candidates for President and Vice-president will be given in the assembly period today.

This year the Maroon and Gold will again cover the C.G.A. elections by being issued to the student body at the earliest possible moment following the final election.

Delegates Attend

Edgar Nunn and Gerald Houseknecht represented the Bloomsburg Student Christian Association at the Northeastern Region of the Student Volunteer Movement, which was held at Pennsylvania State College on March 7 and 8. Dr. John Bennett of Union Theological Seminary was the leader. "Christian Students and the World Struggle" was the theme of the convention. Delegates were from Juniata, Albright, Bucknell, Penn State, Lock Haven, and Bloomsburg.

S.C.A. held a dinner meeting on March 11 in the Social Rooms of Science Hall. During the brief business meeting which followed, reports were given on the Penn State conference. The members also voted to attend as a group the Lenten services at the Methodist Church on Wednesday evening, March 18, and the Reformed Church on March 25.

write sooner, but I didn't have a return address.

I guess when I get home, the college will be closed and I won't see anyone. I'll probably get up around the beginning of next semester.

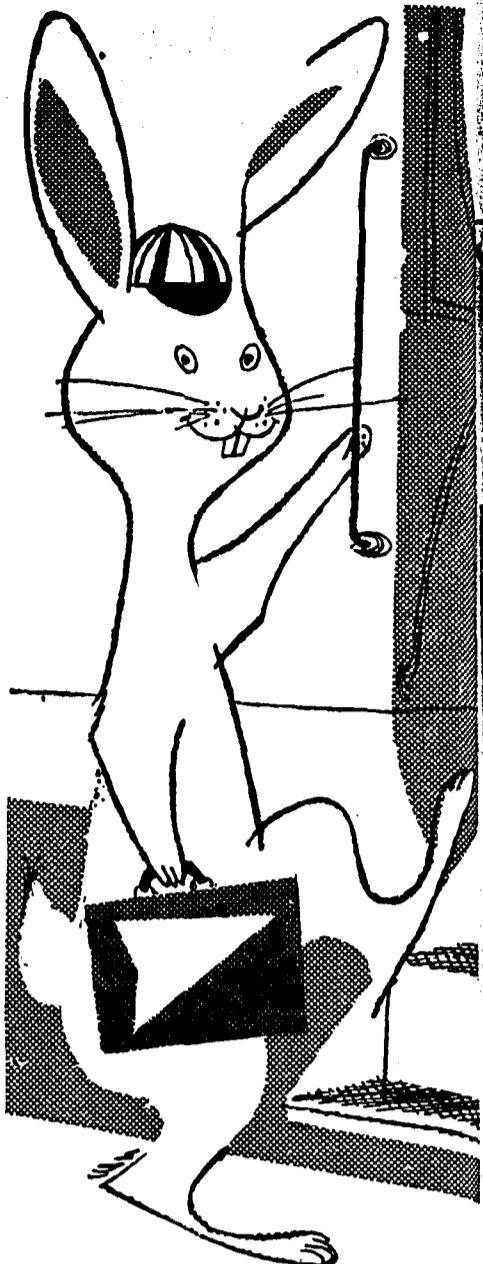

When I left home for the service, I went to Fort Meade, Maryland, and left there on Saturday and arrived at Camp Rucker, Alabama, on Sunday afternoon. We came by troop train . . . it took us thirty hours. We had breakfast in Maryland, lunch in Virginia, and dinner in North Carolina . . . The next day we had breakfast and lunch in Georgia. We're pretty lucky. What civilian could do that?

Well, there isn't much to write about except the weather and the menu, and they're both fairly good . . .

—Jack Murray

. . . I have been kept pretty well up to date on campus news with intermittent issues of the M & G. A bag of rubies to the person who is responsible for sending them. They surely are a remedy for longing memories. Next to my mail they are tops.

—Walter Troutman

of public streams. He stressed the importance of clean streams for our many sportsmen, and the same for the beauty of the water bodies viewed by many tourists.

A film, "Waters of the Commonwealth" was then presented by Mr. Wood. The movie had been made in Pennsylvania, and it showed the ugliness as well as the beauty of our streams. Today this film is being viewed in all parts of New Zealand. Mr. Wood said this proved that Pennsylvania not only leads our country, but also the world in water sanitation.
