Dr. North Serves On Evaluation Team At State College

Dr. Thomas P. North, dean of instruction, recently returned to the campus following a three-day visitation to the Pennsylvania State College. Dean North, who is chairman of the Pennsylvania Commission on Teacher Education and Professional Standards, was a member of an intervisitation team of the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education, which evaluated the School of Education at Penn State.

The intervisitation program of the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education is designed to aid in the improvement of programs for the education of teachers for American schools largely by means of an exchange of ideas about successful practices.

News Analyst Warns Of Soviet Threat In Assembly Address

Louis J. Alber, author and foreign correspondent, analyzed recent developments in Soviet Russia in an address at the Bloomsburg State Teachers College Tuesday morning, April 21. Internationally known as a foreign correspondent, Mr. Alber visited Europe and talked with most of the figures and personalities who are making today's headlines.

An avid student of Russia and the Soviet system for the past twenty-five years, Mr. Alber had a rare insight into the techniques and methods by which the Communists have seized control in Poland, Hungary, Roumania, Bulgaria, Albania, and Czechoslovakia. More than 100,000 miles of travel in Europe, the Middle East, and Asia gave him a personal contact with the twin enemies of the democracies—Communism and Fascism.

Music Week To Be Observed on Campus In Choral Program

National Music Week will be observed by a music program to be presented in Carver Hall Auditorium on May 5 at 10:00 a.m.

President Harvey A. Andrus will lead the devotions. The program will include numerous selections by the newly formed College Choir which consists of approximately fifty members. The ninety voices of the women's chorus will also sing several numbers.

There will be a trio consisting of Jeanne Miller, Joan Curilla and Mary Lewis, Erla Myers will sing a solo, and Mr. Fenstemaker will play an organ selection.

Science Club Has B.S.T.C. Graduate As Guest Speaker

Science Club members were thoroughly entertained at their recent meeting held April 23 in Science Hall when Mr. Lewis Creveling, science teacher at Hughesville High School was guest speaker. An alumnus of B.S.T.C. who still maintains an interest in college people, Mr. Creveling travels extensively through the United States in educational interests. On these trips he takes slide pictures for later projection in the classroom. Students in the club viewed slides on nature, geography, and scenic beauty. Mr. Creveling gave an interesting talk as he presented the slides.

President of the club, Sam Yeager opened the business meeting, and a report from the treasurer was heard. Oren Baker, in charge of the field trip gave reports on his committees' work. A special meeting was held April 28 after assembly for final voting on this trip.

In Case You Want a Job . . .

It has become a spring custom for us to advise the seniors of the job opportunities which await them upon completion of their collegiate work.

Some of you will go on to do graduate work in your chosen field. For most of you, however, your bachelor's degree will mark the completion of your formal education. Many of you will face a period of military service. Whatever you do now, it would be profitable to develop a vocational plan for your future, if you have not already done so. Such a plan should be based upon the relationships between your own interests, abilities and training, and long-range economic opportunities. Your first postcollege job, your graduate work, or your military service, as the case may be, should fit into that plan and advance you along your chosen path.

The economy of the United States is now operating at record-breaking levels. The job outlook this year is excellent. You will, however, be faced with the problem of getting started in the field of your choice. Common sense dictates that you learn as much as you can about where the immediate and the long-range opportunities lie—in what industries, in what occupations, and in what sections of the country.

TEACHING

The demand for elementary school teachers is greater for 1953-54 than for 1952-53. Over a million additional children will enter the elementary schools and add to the already swollen enrollment. The supply of new teachers to meet this great demand is slightly lower than it was in 1952-53. Around 35,000 college students will meet the requirements for grade-school teaching in June, and many times that number are needed for new positions and the replacement of experienced teachers leaving the profession.

At the high school level the supply of newly trained teachers has dropped significantly each year since 1950. This year many vacancies exist in such subject fields as: home economics, girl's health and physical education, agriculture, industrial arts, and certain physical sciences. The demand for high school teachers is expected to rise slowly over the next several years and will reach extremely high levels near the end of the decade.

Salaries for teachers continue to increase. Average salaries for all classroom teachers for 1952-53 were about $3,400 with 13 per cent averaging $4,500 or more. Average salaries of more than $4,000 were received by teachers in New York, California and Delaware; lowest average salaries were in some Southern States and States with a high percentage of rural schools.

BUSINESS

Industry is actively recruiting college graduates trained in business administration. Those specialized in management and in such business techniques as accounting, advertising copywriting, market research, sales, statistics, insurance underwriting, and personnel management are particularly sought. Those who combine leadership qualities with technical skill will have best opportunity for selection by large firms recruiting for potential executives. The demand for lawyers is greatest for those who have specialized, for example, in tax, patent, administrative, admiralty, or international law. Opportunities for women in this field have improved in recent years.

Accountants—The demand for accountants is expected to remain high during the defense mobilization period and for at least a year or two thereafter. College graduates with courses in business administration as well as in accounting are preferred to those trained only in accounting. Opportunities for beginning jobs in private business establishments are more numerous than in public accounting firms. The demand for certified public accountants is strong at present and continued gains in employment are expected over the long run.

Public accounting firms pay lower beginning salaries than do private business establishments, but afford experience which is often a prerequisite for the CPA license and for advanced positions in other accounting fields.

NATURAL SCIENCES

Demand for personnel in most of the natural sciences has increased sharply during the past two years, especially in activities related to defense production and research and development. However, personnel are also needed in other kinds of scientific work such as administration and technical sales. The demand for personnel in the natural sciences as a whole is expected to exceed the supply for several years as the defense program continues; the need will be most intense for workers with graduate training or considerable experience. However, opportunities for persons with only a bachelor's degree will continue to remain good, particularly in view of the declining numbers of graduates with bachelor's degrees.

Chemists—Employment opportunities for chemists are greatest in such manufacturing industries as chemicals, petroleum, rubber, food, and paper. Educational institutions and government also employ substantial number of chemists. They are also in demand in consulting laboratories, nonprofit research institutes, hospitals, and mining companies. Though the need for persons with graduate training is greatest, those with only a bachelor's degree will find numerous opportunities.

G.I. Mail

Dear Mr. Hoch,

I finally have been inducted into the army. I decided to drop you a few lines. I miss your good humor. I have completed my basic training in engineering here at Fort Belvoir, Va.

A college education comes in handy. I have gotten a break—I am working in a branch finance office. It is the computing payroll section. At least I am not an ammunition carrier, ha, ha.

How is the old gang?—Ed. Cuffer, Charles Pease, Warren Raker, Ed. Rompola and my old roommate, George Reinsmith. Does he still beat you at tennis? I guess they're student teaching by now. Tell them when you see them that I was asking about them and that I want to wish them the best of luck in their teaching.

Do you still walk the halls looking for noisemakers? I was one of your choice dorm men.

Well, will be closing for now. So long.

Your assistant dean,
George Rachko

New Kadelpians To Be Initiated Soon

Fifteen pledges of Kappa Delta Pi were announced at a meeting on Monday evening, April 20. These students will be initiated in May. In order to become a member of this fraternity, one must be a junior or senior in the upper quartile of his class.

The pledges include Eleanor Balent, Michael Crisci, Fred Del Monte, Sharon Dotter, Faith Eunsun, Betty Hoover, James Kessler, Joseph Kissinger, Edmund Longo, James Luchs, Reed Miller, Russell Rhodes, Charlotte Stoehr, Stephen Wolfe, and Barbara Zimmerman.

At the beginning of the meeting several members briefly reported on their recent trip to New York City. Led by Clyde Bell, six students from Bloomsburg High School then conducted an informative discussion on what they like and dislike about student teachers. The panel consisted of Gary Fisher, Bob Hartman, Mary Moser, Ann Kessler, Mac Whitenight, and Patricia Dorsey.

The Best Things in Life Are Free

The Best Things in Life Are Free

Every Tuesday and Thursday morning, the general question is "what's for assembly?" and the answer is always the same. "I don't know but it better be short." Well, they aren't all short and everyone doesn't like all of them, but when the words "talent show" sweep through the audience and the lights go dim, you don't see the side doors opening and people rushing out because they don't like what's coming. It seems the students would rather see the people they know perform than paid performers. Now, perhaps some people think that on a designated day, those in the talent show just go up there and sing and dance on the spur of the moment. Well, just drop this idea because there is a lot of hard work put into those shows, and the people that do this work should get all the praise that's due them. Most of the credit goes to Myra Albertson and Thomas (the smiling Irishman) Rowley. They write the scripts (which are never followed), arrange the rehearsals (when and if they occur), and take all the blame for all the things (so many of them), that don't go according to plan.

You see, about three times a year, the college calendar states there will be a talent show. That's it; there will be a talent show. An assembly period has been reserved for one, and there better be one. So, about two weeks or so before this date, Tom and Myra start thinking about things in general and decide now would be a nice time to begin the work on the show since it's to be in a few days or so. They contact the people they would like in the show, and about 13 have sore throats, 11 instruments are broken, and Marini needs about four players to make a 14 combo. After three days, enough talent is dug up to start practice. Of course on the night rehearsals start, just about everyone has a test and can't make it, but what the heck, the show is three days away yet. Loads of time. Then one morning about 7:30 (two days before the show) while I'm cleaning my tooth, Rowley says in his loveliest voice, "Arnie, get some material. You're going to be master of ceremonies on Thursday!" I've swallowed three toothbrushes that way in two years.

On Tuesday night I decide I better go and see how the show is shaping up and everything is going fine. Janowyc doesn't like "Tenderly" and he doesn't have any other music, so he guesses he just won't sing at all. Myra takes this very calmly as Rowley and I try to drag her out from under the seat where she fainted. Bottorf comes in with a tin can because he can't find any drums. I ask to see the script and get four pieces of paper with "nice try" written on each one. By now it's nine p.m., and everyone leaves except Tom and Myra who stare into space with the saddest eyes anyone ever saw.

"Of Mice and Men?"

Jim Mahoney and Dutch Meyer

Suddenly it's Wed. night and time for dress rehearsal. Everyone is there on time and all are practicing at once. By now Rowley is carrying a bottle (spirits of ammonia) with him to deaden the pain. After rehearsal Tom and Myra are again left alone, this time on their knees in front of the stage praying for Carver Hall to burn during the night.

On Thursday morning everyone comes at nine a.m. to console everyone else before the show begins. As I walk out on the stage to start the show I keep asking myself, "Why didn't I join the army?" Then I tell a joke that Ferrill told years ago and two people laugh. They must have just passed a test. As each one performs, the audience seems to like it more and more, and when it's over everyone says it was terrific. We all make like we knew it would be.

Yohemen Beat MSTC By Lopsided Score

The Huskies were really hitting the ball last Wednesday up on Mt. Olympus and rolled over an out-lashed but hard playing Mountaineer team from Mansfield.

The final score was 19-1 as the Huskies found the Mountaineer pitching much to their liking, combing out of their hurlers for twelve base knocks including home runs by Halcovich, Cumens and Kinder.

Two of these circuit blasts came in the seventh inning as the Huskies iced the contest with five insurance markers. Previous to that the Maroon and Gold had gained a 14-1 lead mainly by virtue of good hitting in the early rounds.

Dave Linkhorst, Husky of-corner tender, coaxed the visiting pitchers for four walks and allied every time he was on base.

Al Bolinsky went all the way on the mound for the home team and did a very creditable job, allowing only five hits, striking out eight and not allowing a base on balls. It was the latter department that was a major in the downfall of the visitors as their hurlers allowed a total of fifteen walks. Mincemoyer, Stroup, Kinder and Cumens led the Husky assault with two hits apiece.

LOCKER - LINGO

by Harry Brooks

Last week, the National League standings were selected on the basis of a brief look into a hazy and unpredictable crystal ball. That same crystal agate has given us these facts on which to base the past week's choices for the league. 1. Brooklyn . . . and who's to beat them out this year? The improved Phillies may scare them until the stretch drive, but the Dodgers are just about as far ahead psychologically of every team in the National League as the Yankees are in the junior circuit. Besides the psychology angle, they have the best team in the league. Perhaps the only weak link in their formidable chain of strength is their pitching. This department was a bit sporadic last season, and could well be this campaign, but in the end the power boys like Hodges, Campanella, Furrillo, and how many dozen others are capable of swatting the apple around hard enough and often enough to make pitching an easier job with the Flatbush nine. It could be close, but the Dodgers aren't a folding type of team.

2. Philadelphia . . . if Roberts and Simmons do their bit, the Phils are sure to be a contender all the way, but they didn't get a bargain when they sold Meyer to the Dodgers. He could well have been the player who meant the difference between the first place spot and a first division slot. For if Roberts and Simmons don't perform up to par (an unlikely possibility) it could mean disaster for the Philadelphia team, which is hardly the greatest hitting club in the league.

3. Chicago . . . no particular reason for selecting the Cubs for the third place spot, but some of their rookies look promising, as do some of their sophomores. Again, should their pitching fail, it could mean the depths of the second division.

4. New York . . . the Giants don't even look like a real threat this year, despite the fact they have three of the best pitchers in the league in Sal Maglie, Jim Hearn, and Larry Jansen. None of these boys will be able to hurl every three or four days come the hot July and August months, when the number of rained out games and already scheduled doubleheaders pile up and give any manager a double dose of insomnia. They have power, yes, but the difference between their swatting and the Dodgers is the thing. The Giants just don't have it when the chips are down.

5. St. Louis . . . this club could surprise everyone, including the St. Louis fans, but it doesn't figure to do so in the light of a weak pitching corps. Too many rookies with too many tricks of the trade to learn comprise their mound staff, and for that reason — and the crafty veterans in the world — they will not be able to keep the Busch Stadium fans from singing the "St. Louis Blues" come next October. The Cards could sneak into the first division should the Cubs fail to live up to their crystal ball rating.

6. Cincinnati . . . except for a few good looking rookies like Greengrass, etc., the Rhinelanders have little hope for anything better than sixth place. Frank Smith is the only genuinely good pitcher on the staff who can perform yeoman chores when needed. Raffensberger and some of the elderly gentlemen may toss them in every week or ten days. Milwaukee might nose the Cinsquad out for the sixth place birth, but their situation isn't much brighter.

7. Milwaukee . . . the Braves have a new city, a new stadium, a new group of fans, new uniforms, and just about everything else in the way of material things, but that isn't going to help a mediocre team from rising beyond their actual ability. Their old guard players are another year old and just that much more handicapped, and the few rookies that they do have of note are not ready for the major leagues just yet. Could finish in the cellar.

8. Pittsburgh . . . again the Steel City can't look forward to much else than the slugging of Ralph Kiner, the pitching efforts of Murry Dickson, and the new 37 year old 'rookie,' converted-outfielder-to-pitcher, Johnny Lindell, former Yankee star. All three of these players mentioned above have shown little thus far, but surprisingly enough the rookies look great. A presumably weak infield has yet to make an error after six games, and the batting power was greater than expectations. May be a surprise, but then, probably won't.

Next week the American League Picture.

Huskies Drop First Home Game of Season to Lock Haven Bald Eagles

Huskies Edge Out Scranton Royals With 5-4 Victory

The Huskies notched their second victory of the young season with a close 5-4 decision over the Scranton University Royals on Mt. Olympus in weather that was more fit for football than baseball. The game was a nip and tuck affair all the way, and it wasn't until the last of the sixth that the home team was able to score the winning run. It was in the sixth that the weather became almost unbearable, and the umpire was forced to stop the contest following the tie breaking tally.

Bob Stroup drove home the winning run in the bottom of the sixth with a sharp single with two away that sent Joe Kinder scampering home from second base. The Huskies were outbitted by the Scranton boys, but better control by Kwaiwitowski, who hurled all the way for the Huskies, was the turning point in the contest. The cold weather had a very noticeable effect on the brand of ball as errors galore were committed by both teams. This victory gave the Huskies some solace for their losses to Scranton on the football field and on the basketball court.

The Huskies found the game Bald Eagles from Lock Haven too hot to handle last Saturday afternoon as they dropped their first home game of the season by a 10-8 count on Mt. Olympus. It was the second time within the week that the Huskies went down to defeat and it was the same Lock Haven team that turned the trick earlier in the week.

The Huskies got off to a running start with four big runs in the opening frame and held the upper hand until the fateful fourth inning uprising by the determined visitors which netted them five big runs and a one run lead. The visitors added two more runs in the sixth, but the Huskies fought back into the game to add three more to their total and tie the game at seven apiece.

Neither team was able to score in the seventh but Lock Haven put on their hitting shoes in the eighth and added three more runs to take a commanding 10-7 lead. Joe Glosek kept the hopes of the Huskies alive by hammering a long drive over the right fielders head for a home run but this was all the offense that the home team was able to muster and they were blanked the remainder of the distance.

Belinsky started on the mound for the Huskies and had fairly good control of the game until midway in the fourth inning when he ran into a wild streak with Lock Haven taking advantage to take the lead. Hons and Kwiatowski came in on relief and both were hit hard as the visitors made themselves at home behind the plate. Fuhrer went all the way for the winners.

Halcovich, Mincemoyer, Bartleson, Steinbach and Glosek each collected two hits to the Husky cause but loose play afield was the turning point in the ball game. Fuehrer aided his own cause with three solid singles.

I'd sacrifice anything . . .

Johnny Johnson and Floyd (next year's May Queen) Williams have definitely gone for ping-pong in a big way. Seems things are a bit crowded in the lounge these days. How did I guess? My first hint was the fact that John and Floyd no longer eat dessert at dinner—they leave early to grab a ping-pong table! That's real love, I'd say.

Kalling all Klds . . .

At 5 a.m. on Wednesday, April 15, trout fishing season opened. At 4 a.m. that same morning, Jack McCarthy and companions left the friendly hill to begin an hour's journey which would take them to their "happy fishing grounds." At 7 a.m. they returned to the friendly hill—minus the trout. (Ah, sweet misery of life).

The gist of the story is that Jack has now enlisted some female help for his next trouting trip. He has purchased a fishing rod ($1.69) and reel ($.30) for Judy, and is now in need of some string. KALLING ALL KIDS—if you have any miscellaneous strips of string, please drop them in box 288. Jack and Judy thank you, one and all.

The Corrells thank you . . .

The recent clothing drive conducted here at B.S.T.C. proved to be a huge success. In just four days, students donated enough clothing to fill three large boxes for a family who lost everything in a fire. May I convey the sincere thanks of these people to you who helped in a most worthy cause. You know, most people today think that this is a world of individualists. I still maintain that, they are wrong, and just as long as there are people in the world who can find time to help all of the Corrells in America, there will be little danger of this becoming a world of individualists.

Robins' Real-estate . . .

The theme of the Junior Prom might well have been "April in Showers," rather than "April in Paris." I'm referring, of course, to the large amount of rain we've had this month. The elementary students, however, have come up with what they term a legitimate reason for this excess moisture. They say that the robins need the mud to build their nests.

So—the next time you garb yourself in your Sunday best and head for church, only to be drenched in a downpour, don't be thwarted; that shower may mean a home for a homeless robin. (The worms, by the way, are praying for a dry season next year).

Old faithful . . .

"Burley is back." That is a sentence which is familiar to almost all of us here at school. It may have little meaning, though, for those of you who are not acquainted with "Burley" Grimes.

Way back in 1947, before most of us had even graduated from high school, (not you, Rowley) there graduated from B.S.T.C. a young hopeful by the name of Richard Grimes, of Harrisburg. The fact that he graduated does not make his case unusual. (As it does with some people, Rowley). The thing which makes "Eurley" so different from other graduates is that every year since his graduation he has returned to our campus at least 10 (I said ten—more often when special events take place) times. Loyalty to an alma mater? If you ever hope to find it in anyone, you'll find it in "Burley" Grimes, and believe me, if you haven't as yet had the honor, be patient; I guarantee you that you will!

To quote TIME . . .

This week's TIME magazine featured a small bit of news which will be of interest to all of you on campus who sport those popular "white bucks." They are now on the market in a new, revolutionized style. Their name: "Dusty Bucks." Their purpose: fashioned to look ever so slightly worn and ever so slightly dirty. Away with the polish, folks; your polishing days are over! TIME takes care of everything!

Median income of chemists in 1951 was $5,800 in private industry, $5,000 in government, and $4,900 in educational institutions. Chemists with a Ph.D. earned $6,900; those with a master's degree, $5,400; and those with a bachelor's degree, $4,900.

Physicists—The defense program has greatly increased the need for physicists, particularly for those with advanced training. The demand for persons with only a bachelor's degree also exceeds the supply. Opportunities are especially good for young physicists in nuclear physics, electronics, quantum theory, atomic and molecular physics.

Private industry, government, and educational institutions each employ roughly similar number of physicists. Median income in 1951 for physicists were $7,000 in private industry, $6,300 in government, and $5,600 in colleges and universities.

We have good talent, but a good audience is half the show and the students here are a terrific audience. I know I've told some joke that weren't even worth listening to and I've never been hit with tomato yet. (I can duck fast). Seriously now, a talent show does take a lot of hard work and we would like you to know how much we appreciate the way you respond to them. And just because Myra is losing 8 pounds a show and Tom now has many gray hairs doesn't mean that they won't be there to put on lots more good shows next year.
