BSTC Seeks $45,000 In Federal Funds Under NDEA

Village Bohemians Visit Bloomsburg

"Vive le Boheme!" This will be the cry tonight when Bloomsburg's Maxwell Bodenheims and Francoise Sagans invade Husky Lounge for the second annual Bohemian Ball.

What is a Bohemian? You name it. This is the one time in the year when you can act and dress as you so desire. Freedom is the key word, so your outfits should express that hidden desire to dress as you please. Black sweaters, leotards, berets and cigarette holders should be at a maximum, along with lovely ladies laden with eyeshadow and mysterious men with goatees and beards.

Husky Lounge will take on the atmosphere of Greenwich Village, as the Social Recreation Committee has a bag full of surprises for those Bohemians who dare attend.

Remember—a costume is required if you want to join in the fun and frolic. Music will be provided by a unique combo with dancing from 8 to 11. Refreshments will be served. The success of last year's ball has encouraged the dance committee to provide an even more Bohemian atmosphere; so come one, come all to the most risqué event of the year.

Dr. Andruss Invited To Attend Conclave

Dr. Harvey A. Andruss has been invited, for the second time in less than a year, to be a member of the party of the Pennsylvania State Superintendent of Public Instruction to attend the World Congress of Flight and Aerospace Education at Las Vegas, Nevada, from April 14 to April 19, 1959.

In September, 1958, four Pennsylvanians — the State Superintendent, the President of a State Teachers College, a district Superintendent of Schools, and a retired General, representing the Aviation Committee of the Harrisburg Chamber of Commerce—attended a similar meeting sponsored by the United States Air Force Association at Dallas, Texas. During the session, the educators witnessed the unveiling of the Atlas missile, and received a briefing on the X-15 plane before experimental aircraft was tested. A carefully planned program included presentations and discussions of "The Oklahoma Experiment in Space Education," "Careers in Aerospace Science," and "Technology: Today's Challenge."

Transportation, for delegates attending the Las Vegas meeting, will be furnished by the United States Air Force. Educators from all states are invited, through State Offices of Education, to learn of new developments in space travel, weightlessness (anti-gravitational pull), medical problems resulting from the rapid acceleration and speed of human beings in flight, and the development of new metals to withstand the tremendous stress and temperatures of aircraft used for space flights.

Forward-looking educators are faced with the problem and the opportunity of developing, for public schools, new areas of instruction involving earth science, space science, and astronomical physics, along with the social consequences of each. Historians and educators, among others, are aware of the fact that material and scientific changes create problems in human conduct and ethics—problems that are especially critical in this age of potential mass destruction.

The early interest of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College, in the area of aviation education, is being recognized in collegiate circles. The current curriculum revisions at Bloomsburg will reflect the most recent developments in space travel, astronomy, and missiles.

Bloomsburg was one of a small group of colleges and universities in the nation who pioneered in civilian and military pilot training in cooperation with the United States government prior to, and during World War II. The program started with a small group of trainees under the Civilian Pilot Training project, and continued with a training program for Army and Navy flight instructors and V-5 cadets.

During the closing days of World War II, a curriculum for the training of teachers was devised. It was accredited by the Civil Aeronautics Administration and was the first of its kind in the country. To test out the new curriculum, opportunities were made available in the summers of 1944 and 1945 for high school students, above the age of fourteen, and high school teachers to take aviation courses together, including flight instruction. This, again, was the first opportunity of its kind available in the United States, and the program received national recognition in the metropolitan newspapers and national publications.

Seniors Announce Class Plans for '59

A meeting of the Senior Class was held January 20, following graduation exercises. The meeting was called to order by Ken Swatt, General Committee Chairman.

Francis Buck gave the treasurer's report and announced that class dues may be paid to him.

The various committee heads gave reports on the Senior Ball. It was decided that the ball will be held May 21, at the Manfield Ball Room in Wilkes-Barre. Music will be provided by Lee Vincent and his orchestra.

John Longo headed a discussion on the class memorial. The possible alternatives for the choice of a memorial included the Scholarship Fund; the Art Loan Fund whereby the class would buy various pieces of sculpture, paintings, etc., and lend them to students for one semester at a time; the Book Fund whereby the class would purchase books that are not now available to the student body; and the Endowed Lecture Fund, set up by preceding classes, which enables the college to bring in guest speakers. After the topics were discussed, a vote was taken and the resulting decision was that the class donate nine hundred dollars to the Endowed Lecture Fund.

An election was also held for an Ivy Day speaker. John Longo was selected over the other nominees who were Joanne Bechtel, Irwin Parry, and Beth Sprout. Nominations were accepted from the floor for a May Day Queen. The class will vote on this matter at a later date.

Speech Fraternity To Be Honored By National Council

Iota Chapter of Sigma Alpha Eta was honored recently with the announcement that it would be one of two local chapters in the United States from which appointive Members-at-Large will be selected for seats on the 1959-1960 National Executive Council. Dr. Donald F. Maietta received news of the selection in a recent letter from Dr. C. Cordelia Brong, executive secretary of Sigma Alpha Eta, national honorary Speech and Hearing fraternity. The invitation, for a Bloomsburg student to serve on the National Council, has been approved by the President of the College, Dr. Harvey A. Andruss and by Dr. Maietta, faculty advisor.

The student, who is chosen from Iota Chapter, will serve as a member of the National Executive Council for a full two-year term, and will attend the Sigma Alpha Eta national convention held in conjunction with the American Speech and Hearing Association in Cleveland in 1960, which may be held in Los Angeles.

Iota Chapter is the largest and one of the most active fraternities on the campus of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College. In recent years, the fraternity has provided an annual scholarship for a worthy student enrolled in the Special Education curriculum. By means of several projects the group has raised funds for the purpose of: sending members to national and state conventions; defraying expenses of field trips to outstanding national and state programs concerned with Special Education; inviting experts, in the field, to the campus to discuss various aspects dealing with the education of the exceptional child.

This year's edition of The Obliter, the college yearbook, has met all its deadlines, and will be issued to BSTC students near the termination of the semester. The deadlines for The Obliter set by the Taylor Publishing Company were September 1, December 1, January 20, and February 5.

The layout of The Obliter will not be revealed to the students before they receive the yearbook reported Joanne Bechtel, editor. Dr. Edward DeVoe is the advisor of the 1959 Obliter.

John A. Hoch, Dean of Instruction, in an interview with a Maroon and Gold reporter this week, stated that Bloomsburg State Teachers College has, to date, received no information regarding the Federal government's decision on Bloomsburg's request for funds to be made available for loans under the new National Defense Education Act. Bloomsburg State Teachers College has requested $45,000 in Federal funds.

Council Reviews Past Semester

Upon entering college, all students and faculty members automatically become members of the Community Government Association. The C.G.A. co-operates in promoting personal and group responsibility, in regulating the affairs of all students. Following is a summary of activities of the past semester.

A square dance was held on September 9, 1958, in Centennial Gymnasium, at which many of the students became acquainted.

Freshman Customs began on September 15, and the Customs Committee directed the activities of the preceding week.

October 31 was the date of the Masquerade Dance. The Esquires provided the music, and four prizes were given for the best costumes.

The appointment of nine new members to the Assembly Committee, one new member to the Athletic Committee (Al Francis), and one new member to the Library Committee (Richard Rapson) was made at the first C.G.A. meeting.

On November 7, the Pep Committee sponsored a bus trip to the West Chester game. The arrangements included the Pep Parade, the Pep Rally, telegrams to be sent to the team, and program skits.

College Council, after a visit from Mr. Warren Johnson, during the December 8 meeting suggested that the Pep Committee revise their constitution regarding the requirements for cheerleaders.

The Furniture and Fixtures Committee has been investigating the purchase of false ceiling for Centennial Gymnasium, but at present they have only received a bid from one company.

The first open C.G.A. meeting was held on November 6, 1958 in Centennial Gymnasium. The purposes of the meeting, stated by President Romig, were: to inform the student body of the work executed in Council, to allow greater student participation in Community Government, and to allow students to express their views regarding the school. At this meeting the students advocated the addition of male cheerleaders to the squad. They were informed that a referendum regarding the reduction of faculty members to Council would be held the following week. This reduction would have limited the number of faculty members from the present number of ten to that of three; the Dean of Instruction, the Dean of Men, and the Dean of Women. The reason given for this reduction was the increased enrollment. Several faculty members had become considerably overburdened with extra work. Other topics discussed at the open meeting were: wasted parking spaces at Navy Hall, progress of the line at the bookstore, the changing of dress for Saturday dinner, and the posting of Council's business.

College Council voted to increase the amount of money available for students scholarships by $1,000. This brought the fund total to $4,000.

At the present time, College Council is planning the presentation of a referendum regarding the reduction of faculty members on College Council. The referendum will suggest only the membership of "Dean of Instruction, Dean of Men and Assistant Dean of Men, Dean of Women and Assistant Deans of Women".

Dr. Sober Joins BSTC Faculty

Dr. Anabel Sober, whose teaching career includes experience from kindergarten through graduate school, has joined the faculty as a part time instructor in social studies.

Dr. Sober, a native of Danville, was graduated from Bloomsburg High School and did undergraduate (Continued on page 3)

Complying with the original deadline set up by the government, BSTC made its request prior to December 15, 1958. There was, however, a subsequent extension of the final date for application to December 31, 1958; the final date for Federal decisions on requests was also extended to January 31, 1959.

Under conditions of the National Defense Education Act, Bloomsburg State Teachers College amassed a local fund of $5,000, the money coming from Alumni sources, as well as from the profits of the College Book Store. This $5,000 entitled Bloomsburg to request an additional sum of nine times the amount from the Federal government; thus, it is hoped that a total of $50,000 will be available for student loans at BSTC.

In addition to the $50,000 loan fund already mentioned, it is hoped that $10,000 will be available for BSTC's summer program. Bloomsburg's one-ninth share in this additional fund also came from Alumni sources and from profits of the Book Store.

Dean Hoch stressed that these figures are merely the projected totals, and until a decision is reached by the government, cannot be considered final. He also stressed that it is highly improbable that Bloomsburg State Teachers College will receive the full amounts requested. The sum of money allocated by the Federal government, for distribution under the National Defense Education Act, will not permit total compliance with the requests of all participating institutions.

It is believed that a statement from the government is forthcoming, as this issue of the Maroon and Gold goes to press. The student body will be informed of the decision of the Federal government as soon as the decision is received by the College administration. Details concerning eligibility and the submitting of applications will be announced at the earliest possible date.

Publication of TV Classroom Guide Nears Completion

ATOMIC AGE PHYSICS, an easy guide to atomics and nuclear physics, is being rushed for publication February 6th to coincide with the start of the second term of the celebrated educational television series, "Continental Classroom." Recently the recipient of the Thomas Alva Edison and Sylvania Awards for distinction in the field of public service in television, "Continental Classroom" has 265 colleges affiliated with it. Bloomsburg State Teachers College is one of the 265.

ATOMIC AGE PHYSICS is written by Professor Henry Semat of City College, New York and Professor Harvey E. White of the University of California, who conducts "Continental Classroom" over the NBC network every Monday through Friday morning. This handbook contains over 125 diagrammatic illustrations and calls upon only minimal mathematics background from the reader. Designed for the layman who is following the course, ATOMIC AGE PHYSICS will enable him to make a more intelligent approach to the lectures and to make up for those telecasts he may miss from time to time. The book parallels the progress of the program, covering all the aspects of atomic and nuclear theories that Professor White and his guest lecturers, among them seven Nobel Prize Winners, will discuss.

Who had a party?

It was late Monday night when I finished planning this issue of the Maroon and Gold. As I turned off the office light and locked the door, I noticed that there was a party going on in the Husky Lounge. I pushed open the door just in time to hear a lion say, "Welcome, fellow creatures. I'm glad to see all of you here tonight. Since Husky Lounge is a poor place to hold a business meeting, on with the party! Eat, drink and be merry."

If Noah had suddenly appeared in the midst of this crowd and started to play "The Merry-Go-Round Song", I wouldn't have been at all surprised. As it was, Husky Lounge looked like Noah's Ark must have looked (after the flood). Every animal imaginable was there. After the lion roared, "Eat, drink and be merry!", they charged to the snack bar. The swift-footed antelope and the greyhound were the first in line, but they were in such a hurry to get back to their friends that they spilled coke and dropped chips all over the floor. The elephant sent the mouse to get him some popsicles. He was smart. While everyone else pushed and shoved and dropped things, he just sat back, put his feet on the cushions of the booth, and smoked cigarettes. As soon as he finished one and crushed it on the floor with his big, heavy foot, he lit another and threw the match on the floor with the butts.

Monday night's entertainment was fabulous! It was really "fried shoes," as the Beatniks would say. Sammy the Seal bounced potato chip bags and candy wrappers and dixie cups on his nose to the tune, "My Girl's a Hullabaloo". He aimed them at the trash cans sometimes, but, oh well, Sammy didn't look too strong. After Sammy's number, Anteater Al taught "How to Draw in One Easy Lesson." He emphasized practice, so all the party-boys and all the party-girls got out their ball-point pens and their mechanical pencils and made designs on the table tops. Some of them were out of this world. They blended so well with the modernistic designs already imprinted in the formica by the experts.

The party was still going strong when my tired eyes started to close and I began to climb three flights to the fourth floor of Waller Hall. All the way up, I thought how nice it would be if we could have a bang-up party like that.

Tuesday afternoon I walked into the Husky Lounge and, sure enough, it certainly looked as if someone had had a party.

What's that you say, Mr. Williams? You mean I had a fantastic dream and Husky Lounge is always in this condition?

You don't mean it!

Language at Bloomsburg

Most of us, as students at Bloomsburg, feel a certain pride concerning our school. We feel that it is a good one and that it is doing right by us. However, despite a general attitude of contentment, we find that we are apt to complain, often unfairly, but sometimes, quite justly.

One of those complaints which, to us, deserves some consideration is that of modern languages. In a school that boasts nearly 1400 students there is a one-man language department and an offering of only French and Spanish. This state of affairs developed, no doubt, through the slow deterioration of interest in foreign languages. However, this trend is over and interest in language study, particularly modern language study, is strong once again. Here at Bloomsburg, there is evidence of a resurgence of interest in language. One finds students teaching other students what they know about French or German. If there is this much interest manifested, is there probably not much more that is submerged for lack of any language instructional matter to buoy it up? In securing a broader language selection and better qualified teachers for the secondary school, there is bound to be a lag as teachers are trained, but must we spread that lag out over fruitless years while little is done in the area of language teacher training?

Moreover, the importance of French, German, Russian, Spanish, and even Latin, is not likely to decrease, but will probably increase greatly with expanded relations with the peoples of the world. Why then, are these languages not offered in teacher training institutions, and why is interest in them not systematically promoted?

Aid Offered Future College Professors

Nearly 1000 graduate students at U.S. and Canadian universities will soon emerge on college faculties as the result of the new program instituted by the Woodrow Wilson Fellowship Foundation.

Covering a period of five years, the program of financing graduate studies for future teachers is made possible by a $25 million Ford Foundation grant.

Prospective awardees are nominated by faculty members. Most nominees are outstanding seniors, although graduates are eligible if they are free to re-enter school. Final recommendations are made by regional committees for the 1000 fellowships awarded each year.

President of the Foundation is Sir Hugh Taylor, dean-emeritus, Graduate School, Princeton University. Hans Rosenhaupt is the national director. Further information about the program may be obtained from the Wilson Foundation at 32 Nassau Street, Princeton, N.J.

Two Decades of Service

An Active Career

Every college has an Inner Sanctum. Bloomsburg's Inner Sanctum has been presided over by the same man since 1939. This year, Doctor Harvey A. Andruss is celebrating his 20th year as president of Bloomsburg State Teachers College.

Doctor Andruss' appointment to the presidency did not begin his activities here at Bloomsburg. In 1930, at the age of twenty-eight, he organized and became head of the commercial education department. Six years later, he became Dean of Instruction, a position he held until 1941. During the years 1939-41, he was also acting president, due to the appointment of former President Francis B. Haas to the post of Superintendent of Public Instruction in the state of Pennsylvania.

Doctor Andruss began his career in education at the age of nineteen when he was appointed principal of an Indian reservation high school at Gotebo, California. In 1921, this Cayawa school required physical examinations for all faculty members, a program recently instituted here at the college. President Andruss reports that the students of this decade were better than those of today, probably due to the fact that education was not compulsory, and only those really interested attended.

At the age of twenty, Doctor Andruss was on the faculty of the Ponca City High School, located in an Oklahoma oil city. This city collected no taxes from its residents. Instead, it secured revenue from the operation of a public utility. The schedule used for paying the teachers is one gaining wide use today—the twelve month system. When Doctor Andruss was twenty-three, he was an instructor on the faculty of Northwestern University. Since leaving there, he has been at Bloomsburg.

Doctor Andruss and his wife live on Light Street Road, in the same general area as Centennial Gymnasium. The flowers around their house are evidence of the president's interest in gardening. The stock originates in the campus greenhouse, and it is then transplanted in the Andruss' garden. When the flowers bloom, they are cut, and often make their appearance on the tables of the College Commons. Another favorite pastime of our president is traveling. He has been to England and Scotland, enjoys trips to Florida and the West Indies, and frequently goes to Minneapolis to visit his son's family.

Bloomsburg is fortunate to have at its head a man who is progressive-minded. His new ideas are constantly changing the face of our campus and the minds of its inhabitants. It is our hope that the past twenty years have been as rewarding to President Andruss as they have been beneficial to Bloomsburg State Teachers College.

The Commuters

— Nikki and Robin

Since the Old Philosopher closed with Shulman last issue, we think it's only fair that we open with Stapleton.

"Knick-knack paddy-wack
Give your cow a cud
You can't get to Navy Hall
Because of all the mud."

We quote from an exclusive interview with a member of the construction crew. "You want to know why there's so much mud? I'll tell ya. The messier the place is the more it looks like we're accomplishing. Why right now we have three men making mud for every one man mixing cement." That's fine boys, but in the mean time we feel like Anna Magnani playing the lead in Bitter Rice.

If you see groups of students in suspicious looking huddles, don't worry. They're not shooting craps; they're sharing music books. Whoever was responsible for ordering 29 books for 200 students in the seven sections of Music Appreciation, we ask that you please note the first issue of this year's Maroon & Gold for our fool-proof book ordering formula. In case even the Maroon & Gold is on reserve we repeat the formula:

Number of students enrolled in course 200

Number of books available 0

Number of books needed 200

Speaking of problems, we have finally solved the parking situation.

Administrative Growth

"Improvement in the educational qualifications and experience of faculty members, and the admittance of higher academic quality students are probably the two most important developments of the past twenty years," said President Harvey A. Andruss last week. This year Dr. Andruss is celebrating his twentieth year as president of the college.

Since 1939 many changes have taken place here. Dr. Andruss thinks the most unusual was the transition period from 1940 to 1945. At this time, BSTC was an education center for many branches of the Armed Forces. Foreign language instructors were found teaching mathematics, the baseball coach had classes in calisthenics and flying was a regular part of the curriculum. Following this period, on July 4, 1945, President Andruss took a short leave of absence. He went overseas to Shrivvenham, in the Berkshire section of England, and helped set up the curriculum for an Army university for 4,000 students. He also headed the accounting department of the university.

In 1945 Bloomsburg only had an enrollment of 175, seven and a half times smaller than our present enrollment of 1350, and the ratio of men to women was 2:1. One half of these 175 were enrolled in the business education field. During this period, from 1945-1950, Bloomsburg also taught liberal arts courses to freshmen who went to Penn State.

At the present time, President Andruss and the faculty are planning for the scholastic future of our college. There are four important projects now underway:

1. Re-evaluation for continued membership in Middle States Association (an accrediting association for New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Maryland colleges) in February, 1960.
2. Review and revisions of curriculums to include at least 60 semester hours in General Education.
3. Planning for approval to offer Master's degree in some fields.
4. Reorganization of administrative plan to provide for at least six academic subject matter departments.

The years 1950-55 were an era of comprehensive campus planning. The results of this era began to materialize in 1955 when construction was begun on the College Commons. Further steps were taken in the construction plans when the William Boyd Sutliff Hall and New North Hall were begun this past summer.

"Buildings are a means to an end," says President Andruss. Right now, through his efforts of the past twenty years, we have at our disposal the means to lead us towards our end—Better Education.

The OLD PHILOSOPHERS

— Marilyn and Don

There is no need to welcome you back, because we know you're not glad to be back. There is no need to ask you if you enjoyed your vacation, because we know you did. There is no need to ask you how you like Saturday classes, because we know you don't. So let's just welcome the January freshmen and wish them luck, and get on with our version of doings on the campusphere.

The subject of conversation in almost any group is Saturday classes. This innovation will, we are sure, change many things for BSTC students. The weekenders claim it will ruin their home town romances. Commuters worry over the added gas expenses and the probability of more car trouble. Workers at College Commons dislike the idea of more people staying for a longer period of time. There is sure to be some effect on the food situation in the dining hall. With many of the students, who usually go home on Friday, having to stay for their next day's classes, the number of people eating three additional meals will add to the food costs of Slater Caterers. More headaches for Big Daddy. One thing can be said in favor of Saturday classes, Husky Lounge no longer looks like a ghost town from a "Cheyenne" show on Friday and Saturday.

Now if the library hours were extended, BSTC would really be taking steps toward a better education. Students who spent most of their Saturday mornings in the library doing their assignments now find themselves in classes being given additional assignments, for which they have no time to get to the library to do. After they finish their classes, they rush to the dining hall and wait in line from 12:00 to 12:15; they rush through lunch; at 12:45 they find themselves waiting ten more minutes to get through the scrape table; now for a fast cigarette, and finally arriving in the library at 1:05. That leaves less than an hour to get your three library assignments done for Monday. At 1:45 the "hints" to get ready to leave begin by the librarians closing windows, turning off lights in some sections, and the noisy pushing of unused chairs into place. Need we say more for the need for more library hours?

The week was not without its amusing statements: Dr. Andruss' about the "A" student that looked like one was the source of a few chuckles, but Jerry Natition's definition of a schedule card to the Philosophy class, "a little yellow card that tells you where to go" was probably the week's best. An incident this week which wasn't so funny to one of the profs might give you a laugh. It seems an instructor wished to curtail one of his student's expenses and loaned him a textbook. Well, the student didn't remember where he got the book and sold it this semester so he could afford to buy his current textbooks — cost of living at Bloomsburg is increasing!

With the Frosh and the new faculty, the Red Cross should get some new blood. However, this cause still needs the support of the old-timers, so climb aboard the table and get your blood a label.

"The Inn of the Sixth Happiness" reminded us of a Chinese "Bridge on the River Kwai." And then there is our friend who became sea-sick watching "The Old Man and the Sea."

College Commons' unique system of odds and evens resembles the betting windows at Saratoga or the casinos of Las Vegas.

Too bad more emphasis on charm, figure and looks aren't the criteria for picking the models for the Fashion Show — "Beware of the green-eyed monster called jealousy girls."

Bob's By-Lines

The fact that the Huskies had toppled Mighty Millersville to win their fourth straight wrestling match of the season drove the crowd into frantic excitement.

Maynard Aungst put on a brilliant showing in the 123 division, as he decisioned Millersville's Fred Foller, 7 to 4. Jimmy Garman, the "Old Master" and defending state champ, wrapped up his man, Wade Heath, with a shut out 6 to 0 decision. After almost pinning John Kopak in the second period, Dick Rimple settled for a 6-0 decision also in the 127-pound tussle.

Millersville's Steve Micio lived up to his newspaper clippings by taking a 5-2 win over strong Dale Sullivan. However, Bobby Rohm, 157 pounder, brought the Bloomsburg fans back to the edge of their seats again by taking an exciting 2-0 match from Matt Farley. Bobby's two points came on a reversal in the second period.

Walt Kottmeyer pinned Bob Asby in the tri-period for a Millersville five-pointer, and Stan Elinski was decisioned by Walter Price 9 to 5. Stan put on one of the finest exhibitions we have seen him display this season. Even though he was defeated he still looked mighty sharp.

Now with one more match remaining on the evening's card, the Huskies were leading by a slim 12 to 11 score. The final contest would be the determiner.

Coach Houk's entry in the unlimited division was "Bruisin" Gary Allen. Pitted against him from Millersville was Paul Baker.

We've tried to think just what might have been going through Baker's mind when he saw Gary bounce on to the mat and come toward him. He probably was wondering if Coach Houk hadn't fed the "little bruin" raw steak all week and then just unloosed the chains in time for him to come out for the match. However, such couldn't have been the case. Gary doesn't even like raw steak, and besides that, no chains could have held him that long. He would have broken out of them long before eight o'clock on Saturday night.

At any rate, the bull-like freshman from Muncy came through with a sparkling victory over his much heavier opponent. He finished the first period with a 2-1 lead. Baker scored on an escape in the opening seconds of the second stanza to knot the count, but Gary halted back out in front, 5-2, with an escape and a reversal in the final half minute of the period.

The final three minutes got underway, with Coach Houk shouting for Gary to keep pressing the towering Maurader. This he did, holding fast to his 5 to 2 lead. Then, with about forty seconds remaining in the match, Allen took Baker down and held him flat on the mat with a pinning combination.

The crowd rose to its feet in wild encouragement for the Husky grappler. We've yet to find out just how Dean Hoch got down to the main floor from four rows up in the bleachers without stepping on any of the spectators. Of course, Doc Wagner and the others in the front row were calm, cool and collected as usual.

Gary failed to score the pin, but he still had Baker on his back when the buzzer sounded, and he racked up a margin of 11 to 2. His teammates rushed out on the mat, hoisted their tired winner to their shoulders and carried him to the locker room amidst a fury of cheers and excitement.

The final score was 15 to 11.

This is the exciting story of the fourth straight victory of the '59 edition of Houk's Huskies.

Intra-Murals

The intra-mural program got off to a good start about a month ago with Coach Heilman in charge and Bobby Warren working as student coordinator. Then suddenly, due either to lack of interest or else to some unknown reason, the program hit rock bottom. Game after game had to be forfeited because not enough players showed up to make two complete teams.

We're not going to say too much, although Bobby would agree to our printing some strong words directed toward a few of the team captains. The last time intra-murals were staged, everyone for both squads were on hand. Instead we'll just ask all of the fellows who signed up to take part in the program to stick with it to the end.

Campus Clips

Our campus ten-pinner, Bud Weber, is still burning up the alleys in the bowling league. He's blazing the hardwood for a 174 tally to date.

The wrestling match with Lock Haven brought one of the biggest crowds into Centennial Gym that we have seen for some time. It was a tough match and the Huskies certainly did a commendable job.

The Falcons, of the BSTC Intra-murals, are currently undefeated and making a strong bid for the league honors. The key to their winning streak seems to be in a packaged bombshell named Bob Stish, the Hazleton bearcat. Provided the "Nariz" can keep himself in the line-up, the birds should be tough to knock-out of first place. Viva Stish!

Millersville Wins Nip and Tuck Battle; Husky Grapplers Bow to Lock Haven

Lock Haven's unlimited weight attempts to release Gary Allen's hold during contest Thursday night. The match was witnessed by a reported 2,500 fans.

Millersville Downs Huskies

The BSTC courtmen of Coach Shelley went down to defeat at the hands of Millersville's State Teachers College Champs 73-65 in a close tussle at Centennial Gym. A late spurt by the visiting cagers put the game on ice in the closing minutes.

The Marauders were paced by a package of scoring dynamite in the person of Jim Balden who had 26 points. Bill "Red" Swisher and Norm Shutovich led the Huskies with 21 and 19 points respectively. Ray Burger played a sparkling game under the boards as did John Laszek of the Marauders. The action in the hard fought contest was so tense that the score was dead-locked eight times. The Marauders, a smooth-moving outfit, worked the weave to perfection against a tight BSTC defense. It wasn't until the last moments when the Millersville club broke through with 8 straight points to keep a safe advantage and pull through with a hard-earned victory. Dick Lloyd, sensational freshman, again played a terrific game under the boards while rimming 12 points. Jack Mascioli, speedy guard, and Al Francis, sparkplug playmaker, had 8 and 4 points to dent the scoring column.

The Huskies are idle until February 5, when they travel to Kingstons to play Kings College for what should be a red-hot contest. Bloom has taken the Monarchs in a home affair 93-85.

Pool Attendance Increased in 1958

BSTC's swimming pool in Centennial Gymnasium is in heavier use than ever before. More and more college students are receiving the benefits of out-of-season swimming through co-ed splash parties, lifesaving instruction, and organized phys. ed. swim periods. Following regular classes, a closely planned schedule specifies use of the pool by special groups. Throughout the week, the pool is alive with activity as shown by the schedule.
 Monday—Special Education Dep't.
 Tuesday—Coed swim
 Wednesday—B-Club
 Thursday—Ben Franklin Elementary

The pool is also open on nights of intramural basketball games, usually Tuesday and Thursday nights. Splash parties, announced in assembly, are frequently held Saturday afternoons from two till four.

Mexican Senioritas at Millersville

Ten lovely Mexican senioritas spent two weeks on the campus of Millersville STC as a part of the Experiment in International Living program. Comparing Mexico and the United States, the girls found that a more formal society exists in Mexico. For example, in Mexico, children have their place, and they stay in it. They do not interrupt their parents or teachers whenever they wish to speak. What's more, girls do not spend an evening alone with a young man, but must be chaperoned.

Several girls who are teachers told of the educational differences which exist. In Mexican elementary schools an average of nine to 12 subjects a year are studied by students. These do not include such "extras" as music, art, or sports. Moreover, elementary students begin studies subject such as geometry which are normally considered advanced in our own country.

Frankly Speaking

From the Indiana Penn, Indiana STC — Last week saw the campus discussing the public display of affection. Everyone, it seems, was up to his neck in necking.

One student was particularly irritated at the uproar, "How can they be against it when they even teach a course called the Romantic Movement?" she asked.

Another naive observer who suggested that ping-pong tables replace sofas was asked if he knew how difficult it was to kiss on a ping-pong table.

Cinemascope or Vista-Vision?

The Gettysburgian informs us that a movie has been taken on the campus featuring the organization of the college, its academic program and extra-curricular activities. The film will last 28 minutes so that it may be used as a half-hour television program.

Sorority Formed at California STC

Zeta Epsilon, Delta Zeta's 125th chapter, made its debut on the campus of California STC when it was installed in November. This is the first social sorority in the history of the college.

MSTC Offers Radio-TV Course

"Radio and Television in Education," Millersville's first course of this type will be offered as an elective next semester. With the installation of a college closed-circuit television system, interested students will have an opportunity to get first hand experience with television equipment and the latest broadcasting methods. This course is designed to guide prospective teachers in using radio and television effectively in education.

Sound Familiar?

"Your deal, Joe."
 "Another big Friday night at G-Burg."
 "Yeah, an' here we sit."
 "Gimme another card, Joe."
 "Here . . . gotta date tonight, Ed?"
 "Naw . . . no money."
 "You lead, Ben."
 "I oughta go study."
 "Me too . . . after this hand."
 "Anybody goin' to the pep rally?"
 "Ah . . . I dunno; they're a drag."
 "Yeah, rah, rah for what?"
 "Nobody goes anyway."
 "Hey, what's trump?"

Another aspect of our college community could be improved by a Robert Peel — The Revisions of the College Penal Code. We may someday arrive at the point when the penalty will be commensurate with the crime. We hope!

American Government students, we're sure, would like us to mention that Centennial Gym could be more aptly called Independence Hall. Some of these reluctant scholars fear their constitutions might be altered more than the state's before their special assignment is completed. That word "special" should be redefined for the benefit of students who seem to think the faculty has a misconception of the term.

If you happen to have a few spare minutes (and who does), and you want something amusing to read (and who doesn't), try Please Don't Eat the Daisies (too bad we can't—to supplement our diet).

How did you enjoy your vacation? Rebel—a real "Almond"—joy from Virginia found himself on the Pennsylvania Turnpike, in the middle of nowhere, frantically praying to be rescued by some Northern gentleman before a Dogberry came along and arrested him as an escaped convict from a chain gang. He finally realized that his beard-growing might have further unpleasant complications with his elementary courses—and besides, who ever heard of a Gabby Hayes teaching the little kiddies.

Rumor hath it that come April the Little Red School House will have a new Brewmaster. Don't get excited, Blue Laws will still be observed and to minors and BSTC students it will still be taboo.

No sense in trying to get anymore news through to you, because someone might catch us spending too much time socializing and we'd be before governing board.

Good luck, smile, smile, smile — (Let's face it. What else can we do?) — M & D

Artists Invited to Enter Competition

Lutheran art students at BSTC have been invited to submit work in the first annual Lutheran Brotherhood Fine Arts Festival competition to be sponsored by the Fine Arts Committee of the Fraternal Life Insurance Society's National Branch.

Ernest J. Holman, Fine Arts Committee chairman, said the best work submitted will be exhibited during April in the Lutheran Center of the Lutheran Brotherhood home office building in Minneapolis.

Eligible to compete are Lutheran student artists attending Lutheran colleges and seminaries or other educational institutions in the United States and Canada. Entries will be accepted in all media, with each artist limited to two selections. There will be no entry fee.

In connection with the exhibition, Lutheran Brotherhood is offering a number of purchase awards to individual artists, ranging from $100 to $250 each.

If an artist so honored is attending a Lutheran college, an amount equivalent to the purchase award will be turned over to the art department of the school represented, Mr. Holman said.

Entry cards and information concerning the exhibition are available from the art departments of the various educational institutions. Regional collection points have been designated throughout the United States, to which the entry cards must be returned by March 2, and the entries shipped by March 9.

The collection point for schools in Pennsylvania will be Gettysburg College, Gettysburg, Pennsylvania. Preliminary judging at the regional points has been scheduled for March 16. Winning entries will be sent to Minneapolis for final judging on March 30.

The competition was established, Mr. Holman said, "for the purpose of encouraging and stimulating young Lutheran artists to attain high standards of achievement and originality through the various media."

In connection with the exhibition, a fine arts festival has been arranged for April 10 through 20. This will consist of seminars, institutes, lectures, panel discussions and musical and dramatic events.

If any BSTC students are interested in entering the competition, they should contact Mr. Clayton Hinkel, at the college; or Rev. James Singer, at the Lutheran Church in Bloomsburg.

Social Season: Shifting Scenes

The "Roaring 20's" reappeared at Bloomsburg on January 16, 1959. A lounge dance from 8 to 11 p.m. was attended by the gayest of crowds clad in pleated skirts with long sweaters and sailor blouses; chemise dresses with those short, short hemlines; knickers, riding caps, and all the other flashy fashions which marked the matchless flapper era. The "Esquires," a familiar dance combo to BSTC students, provided the music.

January 30 found the Husky Lounge once more crowded with BSTC students. A hat dance from 8 to 11 p.m. was on the program for the evening. Paper hats, sailor hats, scarves, and the familiar freshman dink were among the creations displayed by those attending.

On Friday, February 8, a Bohemian Ball is scheduled. A costume is required for admittance. Now that many more students will be staying on campus on Friday nights, it is hoped by the Social and Recreation Committee that the lounge dances will have a good attendance.

Summer Jobs

More than 300 male college students are now employed on a part-time basis by Supermarket Service, Inc. of Plainville, Connecticut, according to Raymond C. Galvin, President.

Supermarket Service offers a complete, fast, accurate inventory service to supermarkets, department, drug, variety stores, discount houses and service stations along the East Coast from Maine to Florida.

The firm provides a fleet of cars and buses for transporting the inventory crews. The inventory service is especially active during the night and all weekends, while the stores are closed. This does not interfere with college attendance.

Pay ranges from $1.50 to $2.50 per hour plus a traveling allowance. Students available for part-time work are requested to write for full details concerning job opportunities in their immediate vicinity.

Soon we may be saying that what America needs is a good five-cent cigarette.

Since they are still in construction, why wouldn't it be possible to have parking on the roofs of the two new buildings. After all, it work for the Boston Store.

Since Calvin Ryan is back on campus after a highly successful student teaching engagement, we feel it is our duty to report that Calvin Ryan is back on campus after completing a highly successful student teaching engagement.

Wanted: One male rider. Any man who can change a flat tire qualifies. This action has become necessary since Dave Hetler refused to renew his contract for this semester.

Of course it is superfluous to mention the Duncan is back in school.

Orchids-of-the-week to our friend Henry who again earned straight A's in Lounge Maintenance I and II. We won't mention Shifflet's grade.

Why worry excessively about Nikita Khrushchev when BSTC has Mrs. Beeman. She has developed a plan for Civil Defense which is guaranteed to be more effective than Conelrad. Of course it is limited to students taking Basic Phys. Sci or Science of Modern Civ. This is how the plan works. Each day her students bring an extra brown bag, this continues until there is a sizeable food reserve. Then, if necessary, students and brown bags dash to the bomb shelter—which is actually the maze of underground pipelines. We're not going; they say the TV reception is lousy down there.

Just a reminder that if your social security number is WBRX-1280-2PM you're entitled to know that your BSTC Show will now be heard on Tuesdays, same time, same station.

Stay tuned,

Nikki and Robin

Intercollegiate Press

Bridgeport, Conn. (I.P.) — Action is being taken by the Student Disciplinary Committee at the University of Bridgeport on a survey of disciplinary procedures recently polled by Dr. Alfred Wolff, director of Student Personnel. The first change being recommended is the substitution of other disciplinary measures for three day suspensions.

The substitutions include restriction to the University campus for two weeks for the first offense, four weeks for the second offense and suspension for the remainder of the semester for the third offense. The committee is also recommending to the Office of Student Personnel that the three day suspension be revoked for smoking in the classrooms.

The committee believes that this whole problem could be practically eliminated if all faculty members would show interest in telling students not to smoke in unauthorized places and giving the students a good example in regard to their own adherence to these rules.

According to Dr. Wolff, it is just as important for the students to shoulder equal responsibility in seeing that the existing smoking regulations are obeyed.

The committee is also studying the initiation of alternate penalties for students who do not pay their fines on time and receive automatically a three day suspension from the University.

What some speakers lack in depth they make up in length.
