

Pennsylvania may lower drinking age to 19

by JIMPEFFLEY

A Bill which has passed in the Senate and is waiting in the House of Representatives has stirred up some commotion on BSC campus, as well as throughout the state. CAS is backing the Bill and many students are anxiously awaiting its approval. Just what Bill would interest students this greatly? None else but the lowering of the drinking age requirements.

A Bill was passed last April by the Senate, which began the interest. Senate Bill No. 252 approved the lowering of the drinking age from twenty-one years of age to nineteen years of age.

In essence, the Bill only changes the age requirements. A fine of $300 and 60 days imprisonment is still the accepted punishment for 1) any misrepresentation or misuse of the liquor control board card, such as aiding a minor in obtaining liquor or using someone else's card, and 2) any minor for using a card. It should be noted that this shows both parties as being guilty—the giver of the card and the taker.

The Bill has been sent to the House for approval at the present time. However, it has been set aside, due to more pertinent Bills, such as the budget and tax Bills. Hearings on the Bill were scheduled for last Thursday, but as of yet, no results were posted.

With the House already filled with Bills to be handled by the close of the year, the Bill is presently out of the picture. However, it is hoped that the Bill will be voted on in January.

Another Bill passing time in the House at the present moment has added a new process for identification of a legal aged drinker. Instead of requiring an LCB (Liquor Control Board) card, a person may use his-her driving license. However, a color photograph is needed for the license. This will be issued by the Department of Transportation. This Bill is also pending approval.

Of course, these Bills are of particular interest to students, since almost all students entering college would be of age, or would soon be of age.

If the Bill does pass in January, questions arise by the dozens. How would it change rules on campus, would we be allowed to drink in the dorm, or will the Snack Bar, of Kehr Union serve beer? These and other questions will be answered next semester when the Campus Voice resumes operation after the Christmas break.

Student dies from fall

BSC student Charles Joseph Callahan, age 21, fell to his death Wednesday evening from the roof of Old Science.

Callahan was pronounced dead on arrival at Bloomsburg Hospital about 6:30 p.m. He resided at 533 East 4th St.

A junior majoring in Art, Callahan fell attempting to reach a locked framing room window, according to authorities. He is believed to have slipped on some ice.

The room could have been unlocked by calling the Security Office, a BSC spokesman said.

According to Dave Kirwin a sophomore at BSC also majoring in Art, Callahan called him at 5:30 p.m. and asked him to join him at the studio. Kirwin proceeded to Old Science where Callahan's body was found by some passers-by about 6:15 p.m.

Kirwin recalled that Callahan had crawled across the roof at least once in the past.

Callahan, recently married is survived by his wife Sylvia. He is originally from Orland, Pennsylvania.

Sexual charges - topic of hearing

A preliminary hearing was held recently concerning the alleged sexual relations of Patrolman William Terry Carl, 34, of the Bloomsburg town police force with a BSC female coed on the evening of October 30, 1977. The only witness called in to the hearing was the coed girl involved.

Carl, arrested November 15 by Trooper Terry Seiple, special criminal investigator for the State Police at Bloomsburg, is charged with indecent assault and voluntary deviate sexual intercourse.

According to a news story appearing in The Morning Press, the students testimony is as follows:

Carl came upon her and her boyfriend, a Maryland resident, while they were parked in a van at the bus turnaround of Nelson Fieldhouse. The policeman shone a light into the van and, after finding the couple unclothed, ordered them out of the van. She stated that he threatened to charge her with trespassing and charge her boyfriend with violation of the Mann Act and seduction of a minor.

She noted that Carl refused to allow them to get dressed until he had finished questioning them.

After returning to the cruiser car (dressed), Carl asked the girl for a good reason not to arrest her and her boyfriend. He stated that

Grievance Committee still in formation

by NANCY ROWLANDS

The Student-Faculty Grievance Committee is not in operation at the present time because the committee has not yet been formed. Two faculty members and one student are still needed to complete the committee so a chairman may be elected and presently filed grievances can be reviewed.

The Grievance Committee is comprised of four faculty members: two selected by the Coordinating Committee on Academic Affairs, two selected by the Coordinating Committee on College Life, and four students: two selected by CGA and two selected by the Coor-inating Committee on College Life. Seven members constitute a quorum and four faculty and four student alternates will also be selected. The committee will elect a chair who will vote only in the case of a tie. The Dean of Student Life and the appropriate Academic Dean will be non-voting, ex-officio members.

In order for the grievance to be acted upon by the committee, it must proceed through the proper channels. Academic grievances must be taken to the faculty member, the Department Chair, the Dean of the School, the Academic Vice President and finally to the Grievance Committee if the problem is not resolved in the early stages. For administrative and organizational grievances, the person must first go to the advisor, the appropriate administrator, the appropriate Vice President and finally the Grievance Committee as with the academic grievance procedure.

If, after going through the proper channels, the grievance is not resolved, a formal complaint shall be written in- (continued on page five)

Zoning ordinance

Housing problems

by NANCY FAUSNAUGHT

"It is an overstatement to say many students will be left homeless if the 1975 zoning ordinance is enforced."

This statement was made by Gerald Depo, zoning officer, concerning an article printed in the campus voice earlier this semester.

The article, concerning the local ordinance which states; four or more unrelated people living in one structure constitutes a private dormitory, said that many students will be left homeless if the ordinance were enforced.

Depo explained that this is somewhat inaccurate. The ordinance was originally passed in 1973 stating that three or more unrelated persons living in a structure constituted a dormitory. In 1975 it was changed to four or more persons.

However, this ordinance does not pertain to private dormitories that existed prior to the time when the ordinance was passed, Depo explained.

More students would be homeless if the housing codes were strictly enforced, Depo stated. Problems such as trash collection and other housing laws are not strictly enforced, and if they were, many students would be forced out of their homes.

Depo feels many students are afraid to report housing violations because they fear they will be left homeless, as in Where's the committee?

The Student Faculty Grievance Committee is supposedly designed to supply students with a place to go when they are dissatisfied with a grade received or with some other academic problem. According to a story appearing in this issue of the Voice, the committee does not yet exist.

Perhaps some of you say, there are no grievances; but that is not the case.

As of September 27, Ed Hauck a BSC student, filed a grievance against a professor in the English Department. Hauck missed taking his final exam due to his participation in the State Track meet. He had gone to the instructor more than a week in advance and asked permission to take his final either earlier or later, but his request was denied. Ironically the instructor had earlier expressed a desire to change the final exam date.

Prior to the final Hauck had done "C" work but upon receipt of his transcript he had failed the course.

Hauck followed all procedures as outlined in the grievance policy (see related story) and to this date his grievance is still sitting on the desk of the Dean for Student Life, Robert G. Norton.

According to the detailed grievance procedure, Hauck's grievance should have been acted upon within 10 days of the filing date. It is now December 9 and that grievance has been untouched due to the absence of the committee.

Since faculty can make mistakes in grading, the grievance procedure is vital to students who question a grade. Why then has the forming of this committee been neglected?

There is no excuse for such a lack of concern on the part of the administration. Perhaps the old trick of passing the buck will occur and eventually someone will be blamed. But the issue still at hand is that for this entire semester the grievance committee has not been formed.

What is the point of creating such a procedure if it is going to be disregarded? The lack of a committee to act upon these grievances is an unfair treatment of students. Specifically the committee or unformed committee has violated its own rules on procedure.

This is a complete injustice to students who wish to facilitate the Student-Faculty Grievance Committee. To all those responsible its time to wake up and do your job!!!

Today's eyes Down to the wire

As we approach the final days of the semester, we find that there are many inflictions that students seem to come down (or up) with to procrastinate in their work to finish the semester or to get out of studying for finals.

First is the freshman. Ah, those lucky little lads and lasses that have never been exposed to a REAL COLLEGE final exam. Many of the little people either a.) study in their closets until late at night, usually about 2 a.m. (b.) study from 7:30 to about 11:00 and take approximately a break every five minutes and thus accomplishing nothing, (c.) stack up their books on the desk and take a full-fledged lottery on them and consequently have them all lose, or (d.) blow the whole damn thing off and start off your first semester with a 1.6 cum. Believe me it's not unusual for the last one to occur. It happened to the best of us. Heh-heh.

The sophomores are a little more used to the exams and therefore they take the classes where they know they can get the test at a minimum of four weeks ahead of time. Now, most of you know that this usually occurs in a few business courses a select Econ. course or two. But don't let that fool you. There are, of course, many classes where a code system is worked out between the class members and the studying is divided up into chapters and every two students study one chapter and then play like they're in the Peace Corps or the Salvation Army and help the needy with the answers that are not available to the common student.

Juniors usually take exams in stride and are in a more laid back state of mind. Yes, in fact some are so laid back that they seem to drool through the exam week. They pick up a book the night before the exam breeze through the notes in the miniscule notebook and then sleep. There is one advantage that the juniors have, no, I take that back they have two advantages over most other students that they run through their minds. The first one is that during the semester they keep up on their readings (like good little boys and girls). Secondly, and by God most importantly, they usually think 'What the hell, There's always next year' But that makes them sound like the N. Y. Giants.

Now the biggies. The people who are leaving, or sometimes think that they will be leaving. The seniors, most of them, are so edgy that they get so flustered and are constantly thinking of how to get a job than of how to graduate or pass the exams. On the other hand if the seniors are or have been smart in setting up their schedule, usually without the help of their advisors, they are usually taking one or possibly two classes in their major which leaves room for electives and then they can breeze out of this higher education institution. But, and that's a big but, if you are unlucky as to just get into your major at the end of your junior year then all classes are usually a must for attendance and absolutely no rest and the person, in business, gets a heart attack. A fore-warning of what's to come.

Now that many syndromes of exams have been drug over, don't be upset if you bomb one or two, there's always tomorrow. So, take a deep breath, sharpen your pencils and don't give up.

Can justice be bought?

by MARY WELLS

Should one waste time and effort protesting minor injustices?

This question came sharply into focus for me recently when I fell into the clutches of the local law for committing what, after all, was a trivial infraction: overparking by three minutes.

It might never have happened, but it had been one of those disappointing and distressing days. (I was trying to help a high school lass select a dress for her upcoming graduation. She did not like two-piece dresses, long sleeves, half sleeves, collars, prints, sheers or dark colors. Coupled with the scarcity of garments available in her petite size range, the possibility of making a selection was greatly diminished.) We had been making the rounds of local and regional dress shops in seven towns and were heading for the 27th store.

By then we were both tired and discouraged, (neither of us capable of thinking straight, nor caring much.) I don't recall being aware of the parking meter. We were not in the store very long, as it turned out there was nothing to try on, and came out almost immediately.

At that point we ran out of stores, as well as time and enthusiasm, so we were headed for home. I had already driven a short distance before spotting the parking ticket on the windshield. The matter could have been settled on the spot by returning and paying the quarter-or-so fine, but in my exhausted state it was much easier to say "to hell with it" and keep on going.

he could not tell her what to say, and that he wanted nothing from her boyfriend, whom he had follow them in his van.

She stated that she finally asked him if he wanted to have sex with her, but again he stated that it had to be her idea.

Carl threatened to arrest the two unless she wrote in writing her "idea." She stated that while Carl dictated, she wrote and signed the following note: "I am offering to have sex with you. It is my idea. I am doing it of my own free will."

Carl then drove towards a corn field and parked. Her boyfriend returned to her dorm and asked her roommate and a friend to look for her.

She stated that Carl entered the back seat of his cruiser with her, but after two or three minutes stopped, saying, "Oh my God what am I doing?"

Carl proceeded to return her to her dorm. He gave her the note to do with as she wished. She tore it up. Later, the pieces were taped together by Trooper Seiple.

She claimed that she hadn't notified the authorities for fear of further trouble, but did talk to them the next day.

She did testify that she had not been threatened with physical harm, and that he had removed his gun and holster. However, she said she was scared throughout the occurrence.

Carl has been suspended from duty since the alleged occurrence, and is free on $1,000 bail in his own recognition to await trial. As of this date, the trial has not been set.

Letter to the editor

Verbal abuse

Dear Editor:

"Most men aren't rapists and killers, and most violence against women isn't especially dramatic. A far more common way of attacking women is for a man to stick his head out of a car window and shout remarks about breast and vaginas to women walking by, or hiss suggestions about sex and fellatio. Verbal rape doesn't leave any cuts or bruises; however, it's a marveously effective way of humiliating women, and the rapists who fall into this category are assured that their actions are not only unpunishable but officially encouraged!"

That is a quote from the magazine Mother Jones (Dec. 1977), and it hits upon a very sore spot about this campus. The verbal abuse of girls around here is appalling.

Some of the remarks are down-right sickening, both to the female and male ear. Maybe it has to do with their upbringing or family life. Hopefully they respect their mothers (although I doubt that in some cases). Certainly drunkenness is no excuse for this degrading action either.

I've heard some guys say girls love abuse! I, for one, seriously doubt that. Girls may like attention, but not the kind that makes her feel like an ordinary piece of meat.

I don't know, maybe some of these degenerates (who call themselves men) feel more masculine when they abuse women, if they do, they have a serious problem. Maybe it makes them feel like a stud in front of their on-looking friends, gives 'em a real he-man type image.

These remarks are immature indeed, but maybe, just maybe these guys are actually afraid to go up and talk to a girl. So verbal abuse is the only way they know of asserting their need of superiority over women, and that is sad indeed!

Kansas emerges as first rate

by JEFF HUNSICKER

Point of Know Return fully demonstrates the musical capabilities of Kansas. As a group they have successfully merged a diversity of musical influences. Kansas has fused elements of classical music, art rock, and plain old rock and roll to produce a totally unique sound. Their previous album Leftoverture became a top seller and Point of Know Return could very easily do the same.

Kansas has moved to the use of shorter more concise songs. The long instrumental passages of past albums have been cut in length and made more tightly structured.

The album opens with the title cut Point of Know Return which could possibly follow "Carry on my Wayward Son" as a hit single. The song captures your attention immediately and maintains it throughout. The next song "Paradox" is a disappointment. The song is a tired rendition of ideas that the band has already done.

The instrumental cut "The Spider", bounces back with excellent drum work by Phil Ehart. He seems to propel the band through various changes in tempo and mood. Likewise the remaining two cuts "Portrait" and "Closet Chronicles" are first rate.

Side Two is a pleasant mixture of styles. "Lightnings Hand" is a first rate rocker while the next cut "Dust In The Wind" is soft and remorseful. Both of these songs rank among my favorites. The next two "Sparks In The Tempest" and "Nobodys Home" are good, but they lack the impact of the opening cuts. The albums finale "helpless Human" runs through a series of rapid changes that captures each facet of the groups style.

Kansas has compiled an diversity of their talent. Robbie album which shows the Steinhardt has produced some of his best vocals ever, while the keyboard playing of Steve Walsh has become more forceful. In fact, each of the musicians play some of the best music ever. And as usual Kerry Lingren has lived up to his expectations with more first rate lyrics.

Kansas appears to have emerged as a first rate rock band. Point Of Know Return is a culmination of four previous albums and countless tours. If you like good music, this album is for you.

Funds allocated

Several motions were passed by CGA during the meeting Monday night in Kehr Union.

$1500 was allocated to the Family Planning Center in Bloomsburg to supplement their program to absorb the numbers of college students participating. The money will come from the Reserve for Refunds and New Projects.

College Council supports the creation of an off-campus housing director. The council feels since more than 1700 students live off-campus, greater emphasis should be placed on their housing.

Also supported by the College Council is the right of students to see all errors on all tests administered.

Funds of $10,121.48 were allocated to buy two new CGA station wagons. The money is from the Husky Vehicle Escrow Account.

MacDonald's will conduct a promotional activity at home basketball games. They will distribute coupons for french fries.

CGA also established an emergency loan program with $2500 from Reserve for Refunds and New Projects where loans of up to $100 would be made for those students who are on at least 75 percent financial aid. This program will be run through the Kehr Ward Loan Fund.

All motions at the meeting were passed unanimously.

Several days later I received an impressive packet of papers informing me that, because I dared to ignore the parking ticket, I was now subject to a five-dollar fine. MICHAEL COONEY AND BANJO...will perform live at a KUB coffeeshouse performance Monday, December 12 at 9 p.m.

Traditional music to be presented by LANCE McCARTY

Folksinger Michael Cooney will appear for a coffeeshouse at the President's Lounge in the Kehr Union on Monday, December 12 at 9 p.m.

Michael Cooney sings traditional American and British Folksongs, ballads, blues, seasons, rags, and topical songs. He plays the banjo, 6 and 12-string guitar, and an accordion type instrument called a concertina. He also plays numerous small instruments such as the harmonica, kazoo, penny-whistle, and jaw-harp.

"Michael is one of the most unique musicians one is likely to find," says Bill Provick of Buttercup Co., Cooney's agency.

Besides being a folksinger, Cooney is also a folklorist. He can weave engrossing tales about how, why, and when the songs came about.

According to Provick honesty and quality are the traits of Michael Cooney's show. He is known to treat every song with respect and as a result earns respect for himself.

Provick continues, "He's not trying to make it anywhere, but succeeds in being so unpretentious as to actually have the audience laughing with delight at the enjoyment he receives from his own music."

Cooney has made various appearances in the U.S., Canada, Mexico, and parts of Europe. These include television appearances on N.B.C.'s "Today Show" and "First Tuesday". He has also appeared professionally hundreds of times in the last 10 years in concerts, clubs, and folk festivals.

addition to whatever fine was decided upon at that time. Furthermore, the fine print warned me that if I chose to ignore this notice, I would be subject to a fifty-dollar fine and a possible jail sentence.

A fifty-dollar fine and a possible jail sentence for overparking by three minutes? This was bizarre. What ever happened to the "punishment to fit the crime" philosophy?

While I could not dispute my guilt, I was incensed at the way this was being handled. My usually-dormant fighting spirit was aroused by this travesty of justice. Did these authorities have nothing better to do than to hassle a law-abiding and usually-careful driver in this fashion? Was this the way to encourage out-of-towners to shop in their community? And how could a three-minute overparking charge so quickly mushroom into criminal proportions? None of this made sense to me, and I decided to fight the matter, on principle.

Accordingly, I wrote those strange people a crisp letter, in which I poured out my feelings about the whole silly incident and its ridiculous aftermath, telling them that I did indeed want a hearing, but was not about to pay three times as much for claiming innocence as it would cost me to plead guilty. Therefore, no money was enclosed.

A few days later I received another communication, telling me that a hearing date had been set, with no mention of the fifteen dollars I mailed to send in originally. Neither was any reference made to my heartfelt letter.

Came the day of the hearing, but it was impossible for me to be there. I telephoned ahead to apologize. There was no probing. In fact, I thought I

Christmas seals promote health

by DEBBIE HEIM

As traditional to Christmas as the colors red and green, the stockings hung on the fireplace, and all those presents are Christmas Seals.

Christmas Seals are making their way to Bloomsburg State College. In fact, over 500 packets containing a letter and the seals, have been placed throughout the campus.

For the last three or four years packets have been sent to the college. Last year 500 packets were sent out and only 17 college donations were given. That's pretty bad!

Christmas Seals are the means of funds for the Susquehanna Valley Division of the Central Pennsylvania Lung and Health Association. What does this organization do for us? A spokeswoman said, "We give out free TB tests to all interested students, usually twice a year... the next one should be mid-December.

But this isn't all they do. Informational brochures are mailed to inquiring students in health and medical fields. Films and filmstrips are loaned out to interested organizations. And workers from the Lung and Health Service Association attend any conference on health related fields that they are invited to.

Although students don't have a lot of money to hand out with tuition increases, they don't have to have a lot of money. Unlike other organizations Christmas Seals does not quote a specific amount for donations. "You don't have to feel terrible about giving a small amount," according to the spokeswoman, "anything you can give is appreciated."

The money that you give is distributed in this way; 10 percent goes to the national organization for research, 6 percent goes to the PA organization for research and literature, and the remainder stays in our area for brochures, films, and salaries.

"There is one inaccuracy I would like to clear up," said the spokeswoman, "just because emphysema, chronic bronchitis, asthma and tuberculosis are pointed out, our organization covers a lot more. We don't limit our research but instead we broaden our realm to all lung diseases."

Last year's total campaign grossed $53,000. "Naturally we would like to increase this year's amount but we are already running behind last year's figure for this time by $1,000", she said.

But where did the whole idea of Christmas Seals come from? The history of Christmas Seals originated in the U.S. in 1907 by Emily Bissell. Bissell borrowed the idea from a postal worker in Denmark. She used seals to raise money for a financially distressed TB hospital on the banks of the Brandywine River in Delaware. The first seal was a drawing of a holly wreath with "Merry Christmas" inscribed on the bottom.

This year's seals were drawn by children from each of the 50 states and the District of Columbia, Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico and Samoa-Guam. Each seal denotes that child's impression of Christmas time in his own state or country.

So when you see those packets of Christmas Seals, pick one up, enjoy using the seals and send in a contribution. Let's give Bloomsburg College a better name with such a worthy organization. After all, "it's a matter of life and breath."

Policies reveal change

by GENE WALTERS

Paging through time-worn catalogues of the past century, provide many insights into the early leadership and administration of the former Bloomsburg State Normal School.

Compared to 1977 tuition rates, the situation of slightly over a century ago is bound to cause many a heart to flutter. Tuition rates of 1867-68 ranged from $5 to $10 per term, depending on the student's circumstances. Piano music cost $12 per term, while learning "use of the instrument" only ran a mere $3.

Early policy dictated that, "The institution would embrace in its course of study all that is required to prepare young ladies and gentlemen for social life—for the Counting Room, or for the Learned Professions."

Special attention was given to students who desired "to fit themselves for teaching." The endeavors of the more practical-minded students, were encouraged for positions of "all who are to be well qualified for the business." Latin, classics, math and languages were the usual curriculum.

Some of the more unusual rules extracted from the Bloomsburg Normal catalog for 1896-70 were also revealing, as to the Victorian spirit of the times.

"No student should be absent from his room at night, after the hour indicated by the ringing of the study bell; and in the twenty minutes after the ringing of the retiring bell, all lights must be extinguished."

— "The use of tobacco in any form, in or about the building, or on the way to or from school is prohibited."

— Students are required to attend "Public Worship (sic) on the Sabbath," at a place designated by their parents, and "the Normal Bible Class in the afternoon.

— "Young ladies should provide themselves with umbrellas and over-shoes."

In those post Civil War years, most students attending BSC, hailed from the surrounding counties, especially Schuylkill, Luzerne and Montour. As the years wore on to the Reconstruction Era, the demographic distribution widened to include more diversity like Lackawanna and Montgomery Counties.

The educational objective of the college, as stated in the catalogues, was "to train teachers... in theory, practice and theoretical application." Supplementary to this end, "elements basic and rudimentary to equipping teachers" were begun—more commonly known as "the A-B-C's."

detected a note of relief that the awkward hearing would not take place that morning. The man I talked with was effusive in his assurance that this was "perfectly all right" and would a postponement of a month be agreeable with me? I did not know what to make of this sudden change of tone.

The very next day I received in the mail a letter telling me that, because the officer who wrote the ticket was not available, it was decided to drop the charges and I could forget about the whole thing.

I'll never know exactly what transpired between commission of my "crime" and its dismissal. I suspect that protesting played a part. The spotlight had shifted away from my guilt or innocence and was now fixed on the pompous regulations of that police department, which they may have decided were indefensible.

Phi Sigma Xi Fraternity is sponsoring a canned food drive to help needy families enjoy a warmer holiday season. It would be very much appreciated if students both on and off-campus would make a small contribution to this worth while cause. Members of Phi Sigma Xi will be asking for donations from off-campus residents Sunday night and Monday. Boxes will be set up in each dorm. All of these canned goods will be given to a local church who will handle the distribution.

Housing problems, again

(continued from page one) the house Dr. Beck was renting, in which 10-12 students had to find another place to live. When asked if the ordinance is being enforced, Depo stated that for the most part people follow it, however, some do not. The ordinance is difficult to enforce because landlords can convert private homes into dorms and rent them to unsuspecting persons, generally college students who aren't aware of the ordinance, and can get away with it, Depo said.

"If the ordinance were strictly enforced, confusion would result in requiring people to come in for approval," he stated.

John Abell, director of housing and a member of the Town Planning Commission, stated that the ordinance is not being enforced and towns people have complained that the town government never follows up on its laws.

When asked to comment on this, Depo stated that "Many people in town feel we are not adequately enforcing housing."

However, Abell stressed that this doesn't mean the towns people are against private dormitories, they just want to control the growth of them for the citizens sake. Abell feels their intentions are honorable.

Both men agreed that since the college is growing the impact of private dormitories is very great.

"The college is growing faster than the community can handle it. It is creating economic and social problems," Depo stated.

"One problem now is sororities and fraternities that are converting private houses into private dormitories." Depo said. He said he now has the names of two fraternities and one sorority that may be in violation of zoning rules because they have failed to obtain permission to become a private dorm.

When asked who is responsible for this, the landlord or the tenants, Depo said both are.

Sometimes the landlords are unaware of the ordinance, he said, but he doubted if this were the case here.

He is now seeking legal advice on this. He then stated that it "appears they are in violation, but they haven't been notified yet."

Depo said that he feels the pressure to restrict private dorms will increase with the increase of students at the college.

What do you think of the Commons offering a Continental breakfast in addition to the regular breakfast?

Jim French - senior — It would add an international touch which can only do the campus good. Great idea!

Greg Malloch - freshman — I think it would add another dimension to the dining hall which is good because it's good to have changes now and then.

Beth Pottier - freshman — I like the idea of the continental breakfast because the hot breakfasts aren't very good and just a light breakfast would be good.

Lori Nishnic - freshman — I think it would be a good idea because when I do eat breakfast, which isn't very often, I like a light breakfast.

Bruce Sauler - freshman — The idea of a continental breakfast sounds pretty good. It will be better I hope than what they have now.

Sue Bebenek - freshman — I think the idea of a continental breakfast is a good one. It would give the students a chance to try something new.

Jackie Caggiano - sophomore — I think it's a good idea. Many of the students would really enjoy it.

Marc Edelstein - senior — I feel it's a good idea, because the students who don't really like to eat 'breakfast' can have something different.

Go ahead—
laugh!

Housing survey released

by ALSUKOWASKI

Since last year there has been a significant increase in enrollment at Bloomsburg State College. This increase has caused numerous difficulties in housing arrangements for many students. The largest increase since last year has been in the area of off-campus housing. Last year there were 1641 students living off campus compared to 1754 this year. Students living on campus this year rose to 2528 from the previous year's total of 2493. This increase has also caused an increase in the amount of triples. Last year triples only totaled 170, as opposed to this year's 224. A slight increase of commuters was also noticed.

Students looking for off-campus residences are advised to check the Housing Office's Fall Directory. A supplement to this directory is now being prepared and should be available within the next week. Students should also check with other students who have lived in off-campus residences, housing notices and also with seniors who will be graduating in December. Before a student signs a lease he should read the document thoroughly and ask questions on any item which he does not understand. The lease should be in writing and an exact copy should be retained for future reference. Students may obtain literature on these matters at the Housing Office located on the second floor of Ben Franklin.

Officials from the Housing Office have been making visits to various off-campus residence areas. The officials having been meeting with townspeople who live in the area, landlords and students. Some of the basic problems found have been parking, excessive noise and littering.

The basic goal of these visits is to let the townspeople know that the college cares about the students who live in the community and they also care about how the lives of the townspeople are changed because of them. The Housing Office is willing to try and help correct any problem that might occur. If a problem should arise, people should feel free to contact the Housing Office.

"The One With The Clock In Front"

THE DEAN OF BEER'S FINAL EXAM.

(Or, was yeast really responsible for the fall of the Roman Empire?)

As your Dean of Beer, it is my scholarly opinion that just knowing the one word for beer is not enough. You must also know the reasons why. Because, only then will I, Siglinda Steinfüller, be satisfied that you have graduated from Remedial Beer Drinking.

QUESTIONS:

Q: 1. The best water for beer comes from:

- a) Big Duck Mountain.
- b) Underground from Tijuana.
- c) A small store in Macon, Ga.
- d) None of the above

A: (d) No matter what you hear about "naturally pure" waters, virtually all brewers filter and further purify their water. But Schlitz doesn't stop there. They filter their water and then filter it again. So when they're through, it's purer than the purest springwater.

Q: 2. Klages and Firlbeck III are:

- a) Composers of famous beer drinking songs like "I Left My Shoes in Heidelberg."
- b) Owners of the world's largest unknown brewery.
- c) Serving time in Sonoma, Calif., for impersonating Arnold the Wonder Seal.
- d) More expensive barley.

A: (d) Schlitz blends Klages and Firlbeck III barley with the standard variety most brewers use because they believe it gives their beer superior flavor.

Q: 3. Hops are notorious for:

- a) Their lack of intelligence.
- b) Always getting to work late.
- c) Losing their keys.
- d) Being difficult to keep fresh.

A: (d) The freshest hops make the best beer. That's why Schlitz vacuum-packs and refrigerates their hops. So they're as fresh at brewing time as they are at harvest time.

Q: 4. The best adjunct to beer is:

- a) Rice.
- b) Corn.
- c) Either rice or corn.
- d) What's an adjunct?

A: (c) Every American brewer uses rice or corn to lighten the flavor of their beer. This is called an adjunct. But Schlitz knows how to use either grain interchangeably. So they're never at the mercy of an unfavorable crop. And neither is the taste of their beer.

Q: 5. The biggest misconception about yeast is:

- a) Carrying some in your pocket is good luck.
- b) It is good for hernias.
- c) It was responsible for the fall of the Roman Empire.
- d) To ferment beer, all you have to do is drop it in the vat.

A: (d) To make beer taste right consistently, Schlitz believes the yeast has to be evenly distributed during fermentation. That's why Schlitz gently stirs in their yeast. It's part of their Balanced Fermentation process. And they're the only American brewer who does it.

Q: 6. Chill-Lagering is:

- a) A popular German country and western singer.
- b) A Scandinavian winter sport played without clothes.
- c) A new ethnic TV comedy about the owner of an ice cube factory.
- d) The right way to age beer.

A: (d) When Schlitz ages beer, they age it cold—very cold—down to 29.5 degrees. It's called Chill-Lagering. And it's what makes Schlitz crisp, clean and bright.

Q: 7. A mini-brewery is:

- a) Hidden in a basement somewhere in Greektown.
- b) The result of trying to make Broken Toe, Idaho, the beer capital of the world.
- c) The right way to pretest beer ingredients.
- d) Both (a) and (c)

A: (c) Schlitz has a mini-brewery where they test-brew the quality of the ingredients that go into Schlitz—before they go into Schlitz.

SPECIAL BONUS QUESTION:

Q: True or false, the one word for beer is Duffelbrau.

A: False. There is no beer called Duffelbrau. Just as there is no beer like Schlitz. If you answered this question true, perhaps you should look into turkey ranching.

Cagers face Cheyney in key PC east contest

by AL SCHOCH

The Bloomsburg State basketball team has an early test in their quest for the PC east division championship when they play perennial powerhouse Cheyney tomorrow night in Nelson Fieldhouse.

Last season Cheyney won the division championship, finishing just ahead of Mansfield and Bloomsburg. This year they are just as good, for out of their starting five of last season, four have returned.

The outstanding backcourt of Gil Saunders and Milt Colston will be controlling the Wolves' offense. BSC coach Charles Chronister calls Colston another "all-world" player. "He plays any place he wants," commented coach Chronister, "and he can really shoot from the outside." Cheyney also has pretty good size in the front court. Andy Fields (6'8") and Roger Leyseth (6'7") will be around the boards at both ends of the court to snatch any loose ball that happens to fall their way.

The Wolves will be coming at the Huskies with a zone defense. But their offense is the key to the team's success. The only way Chronister could explain the Cheyney offense is "jack the ball up. They have a shooting offense, and they don't miss much." So expect a high scoring game and lots of shooting.

As for the Huskies, the strength of their offense will be carried by the shooting of Al Williams, the muscle game of Steve Bright, the rebounding of Bill Tillman, and the ball handling of John Bucher. As far as injuries go, Tillman, who sprained an ankle last week against Bucknell, is hoped to be in good shape tomorrow night.

The biggest and most serious injury is still not ready to be tested, as Harry Warren, out since pre-season, is still sidelined with an ankle injury. However, Warren is off his crutches and will resume practicing shortly. Coach Chronister stated that Warren will probably see his first action, though limited, in the Baltimore City Tournament December 28-29.

Hitchcock joins US touring team

by CINDY PECK

Floyd "Shorty" Hitchcock, a former BSC student wrestler, will represent the U. S. Freestyle Wrestling Team on a tour of Russia and Poland in January and February of 1978.

Hitchcock earned the position in the 190 lb. weight class when he represented the New York Athletic Club at the Tblisi Qualifier. The trial was held in Lincoln, Nebraska on Nov. 12 and 13.

Eighteen wrestlers were in contention for the 190 lb. spot; Hitchcock conquered six of them to triumph.

Hitchcock, an assistant wrestling coach for the Huskies, is currently a graduate student working on his master's degree.

During his years as an undergraduate student at BSC, Hitchcock was a four-year letterman in wrestling. He won a silver medal at the World Games in Russia in 1973, was named outstanding wrestler in the nation, and was a national champion in 1974.

Pitt and Cal Poly are next for wrestlers finish in the ESSC Open Tournament and proceeded to place first in the first annual Bloomsburg Invitational Tournament. Tomorrow and Monday, the Huskies will host the two highly rated teams of Pittsburgh and Cal Poly. I spoke with Head Coach Roger Sanders about the team's preparation and the importance of these upcoming matches. When asked if his team is prepared for these matches Coach Sanders replied, "We're hurting physically right now. Carl Poff, Mike Nock, Tony Caravella, and Stan Elinsky have sustained injuries. Hopefully they'll be healthy for the Pitt match."

Even though Pitt is not ranked in the top 20 as is Bloomsburg, they will nevertheless present a challenge for Huskies. "Pitt is a highly respected school in all sports and wrestling is no exception," commented Coach Sanders. "Pitt, of course, has a strong team again this year and we have never beaten Pitt. They have some exceptional wrestlers like Randy Stotlemeyer who is a 3-time NCAA place winner, and a few other wrestlers who have qualified for the NCAA's."

Cal Poly match

Two days after the Pitt match the Huskies will host Cal Poly. Coach Sanders commented, "We are anxiously looking forward to meeting Cal Poly - a team that is traditionally good. The Cal Poly match will be a good indicator as to how far our team has come."

Cal Poly is supposedly the best team in the West and they are the first team ranked in the top 20 the Huskies will face this season. This match will be a good chance for the student body to see some top ranked competition. Coach Sanders, however, strongly feels that our student body has been "apathetic" towards wrestling this season.
