Elwell's change: major operation

by DEBBIE TOMCAVAGE
Elwell Hall, built in 1968, is the largest residence on campus. Since its opening it has housed only males. Now, after 10 years, it has been converted to a women's dormitory. Changing Elwell was a major operation.

According to Jennie Carpenter, Dean of Students at Elwell, "It is structurally a good building but it lacks the coziness that other women's dorms have. We refer to it as the "pits with potential," in other words, it will take awhile before Elwell means home."

Over $67,000 has been spent so far, in the renovation and conversion of Elwell Hall from a male to female dormitory. The figure of $67,000 is a general one. The breakdown of this figure is as follows: general contracting - $22,600; plumbing - $19,009; electrical - $2,630; and painting (outside bid) - $22,940.

Frank Davis, assistant vice president for Administration, specified that this money did not come out of the general budget, which is suffering under severe cut-backs. Rather, he explained, the money comes from a special fund consisting of a portion of each student's housing fee which is set aside in Harrisburg for the preservation of dorm buildings.

Some changes have been made to make Elwell somewhat more "cozy." Among these are: freshly painted halls, TV lounges, and study lounges, women's bathroom facilities, including deep hair sinks, kitchen units, and more secure exterior doors. Lighting for the back portion of Elwell is now in the planning.

None of the student rooms have been painted, but Carpenter feels that definitely some of these rooms will have to be done eventually.

In refurbishing, Elwell's lobby has all new furniture and approximately 250 mattresses have been ordered for beds. Shower curtains, mirrors, bulletin boards, and hall runners have been installed.

State creates budget crisis

by BARB HAGAN

BSC for the first time in recent years has a budget created by the state, according to Special Assistant for College Relations Kenneth C. Hoffman.

Budget crisis has once again hit BSC as more than half million dollars was cut last month from the original state funding leaving the college with less than its fair share of state money.

For nearly one month during the summer college officials thought that college funding inequities of previous years were being reduced. A re-allocation of appropriations took $526,000 away from BSC's budget because at least two state colleges ran over their allotted budgets for last year. This reduced the allocation figure for BSC from $13,069,155 to $12,542,864.

In addition to reducing state funding, the Pennsylvania Department of Education (PDE) instructed the college to pay $380,000 in salary increases which had not been included in the original budget. College officials were unable to submit a revised budget including the cut and to date have not.

PDE has directed the college to operate during the fiscal year on a budget which includes the following: $17,524,545 for personnel, $4,373,705 for operating expenses, and $100,000 for fixed assets. The money allocation for operating expenses is approximately $140,000 less than was spent in this area last year. The difficulty of staying within this budget as appropriated is that many of the 36 line items in operating expenses category are fixed expenses over which the college has no control. Under the fixed assets portion of the budget the $100,000 provided is approximately $412,000 less than was spent last year.

Bloomsburg has not received appropriations comparative with the enrollment increase. At the beginning of the 70's BSC was ninth in enrollment and the college's share of the state appropriation was in line with its position in the state college system. Today Bloomsburg is third in enrollment but eighth in its share of the appropriation.

Of the $181.3 million to be distributed among the state-owned colleges and Indiana University, BSC received only 6.92 percent of the total appropriation but has 8.24 percent of the students in the system.

According to Hoffman, "For five years Bloomsburg has been under funded because of a distribution formula that failed to provide any adjustment for the enrollment changes of the 1970's. The inequity is obvious."

In further comment Hoffman noted, "The original allocation made in July did not overcome this inequity entirely. Bloom-burg would have been seventh in its share of the appropriation with 7.21 per cent of the total and the appropriation per FTE student would have been $293 below the median for the system. In spite of this we were pleased and encouraged because it appeared to be a positive step toward giving Bloomsburg the kind of funding it really deserves. August's re-allocation was a step backwards."

The FTE student is a term used to provide a uniform basis of measuring productivity in terms of the number of credit hours taught. The total credit hours during the fiscal year are divided by 30 for undergraduate students and 24 for graduate students.

President of BSC, Dr. James McCormick has appealed the re-allocation decision and met in Harrisburg with the Governor, Milton Shapp; Secretary of the Budget, Charles McIntosh; and Secretary of Education, Caryl Kline to discuss the problem of inequity in the distribution of state appropriations.

CAS increases staff, new offices

by JULIE STAMETS

With an increased staff of six persons, the Commonwealth Association of Students (CAS) has resumed full operation while occupying new offices in Harrisburg. Plans for the increased staff and new offices were aided by the passage of an automatic - refundable membership fee last spring. Of the 14 state colleges, 13 had approved the fee with Clarion State College being the sole opposition.

The mandatory fee was approved last May by a 2-1 voting referendum, although at the statewide convention held at Lock Haven this past July, the CAS legislative body voted in favor of making the fee refundable. This action was taken in order to provide a fair option for any students who are opposed to the activities of CAS.

The establishment of the mandatory fee made CAS the wealthiest student lobby in the country with a projected income of $130,000.00.

According to Kathleen Downey, CAS Executive Director, the fee was first proposed because CAS was in danger of folding due to financial trouble.

Downey felt that it was difficult to predict a working budget because the organization never knew how many students would take the option of paying dues. Now that the fee has been made - refundable, Downey feels that it is only fair to return the money to any student who is opposed to CAS.

"The mandatory refundable fee is more philosophically in tune with the beliefs of CAS," Downey said. "If someone is opposed to CAS views, the organization feels it is only fair to give a student a chance for a return."

Still, for CAS, financial aid in the form of mandatory fees is coming in from only nine campuses. Problems have developed in the fee collections at Indiana, Kutztown, East Stroudsburg, and here at BSC. The trouble exists because of questions that have been raised by college administrators

EDITORIAL

During the first week of classes we have been working on this first issue of the Campus Voice. It is work; but it is an extra curricular activity for us. We aren't professional journalists, but we are working towards making the CV a more professional paper.

The editors and reporters spend many hours in and out of the office to bring you news of the BSC community.

We are planning on making a few changes in the CV. However, changes take time. We want to use the best of past years with the best that we have to offer.

By installing a beat system, we will be able to cover the campus in a more complete way. We will begin a syndicated cartoon - bring in a little of the rest of the world. Each editor is working closely with the staff to improve the quality of writing that appears here. Our photography department has been reorganized, resulting in better quality prints.

These are just some of the things that have been changed and will be changed. It will take time. The CV staff is a representative of this school, just like any sports team or club. We are working for the entire student body.

If you don't see something you think you should see, give us a call. We want to continue growing in the tradition of the Campus Voice - improving with each issue.

Enjoy the year, and good luck with your studies.

Forsyth seeks a "better way"

by LENORE FIRSCHING
Dr. G. Alfred Forsyth, a former professor of psychology, has taken the position of Dean of the School of Arts and Sciences. Forsyth has set certain objectives for himself and for BSC that he hopes and expects to accomplish.

Forsyth's outlook is summed up by a sign which he has hung on his office wall: "There's always a better way." He feels that as dean, his role is to facilitate the faculty's abilities to carry out new programs in searching for that "better way."

One goal Forsyth has set is to examine a number of objectives that he feels we should have for all students; for example, a student should know after four years how to assess the validity of ideas, to develop an appreciation for aesthetics, and to accomplish many other goals. Forsyth hopes to examine the goals of faculty members and of the institution to see "if we're doing everything we ought to be doing to insure quality education." The things he would like to insure for students include employability, skill training and aesthetic appreciation in addition to enabling them to communicate effectively.

Forsyth hopes to encourage faculty who like to be innovative to develop interdisciplinary programs to better meet those objectives. By doing this he hopes to give students experience in integrating knowledge from different areas to be put to use in solving societal problems.

He suggested that faculty from different disciplines get

WHO MADE THE SALAD?...If you have noticed a change in the food service this year it is because of the differences in the staff involved. Joseph P. Winters (left), new Director of Saga Food Service; and Mark Gleason (right), Manager, are two new faces here at BSC. Winters will be in charge of board operations, the faculty/staff dining room, as well as special meals on campus. Gleason's responsibilities will be assisting in production and staff scheduling.

Daryl didn't quite know what to expect when Ursula asked him over. Her tone was anxious, pleading, almost desperate. Naturally it was a great relief to see her looking well as she waited by the desk in Elwell's lobby, in an obvious hurry to get him signed-in.

"We'd better get moving, Mary Ellen will be out of class in fifteen minutes," Ursula said as they entered the elevator.

"What's going on? You made it sound like an emergency or something."

"Sally and I need your help. We want you to fix Mary Ellen up with a date for Asbury Jukes."

"What? You've got to be kidding. I wouldn't wish that bibliophilic ninny on my worst enemy. I swear that girl must have ink for blood."

"But dammit," Ursula swore as the "vator" opened on the sixth floor, "that's why we need your help. She can't go on with her nose in a book for the rest of her life. Sally and I've been her roommates for three semesters, now. For Christ's sake, she hasn't had a date since we've known her. Hell, I don't think she's been out a night in her life."

"So you want me to play John Alden," Daryl Lewis said disgustedly.

"That's right. Here's a copy of her schedule. I'm sure you'll have no trouble finding some handsome, romantic type from one of her English classes. We'd do it ourselves, but if she catches us we're sunk."

"I see. After I've found my - um - "candidate", I presume you'll want to talk to him before he starts putting on the moves, right?"

They stopped in their walk, while Ursula opened the door to her room.

"Exactly. Come on in and think it over, but don't take too long, you've only got ten minutes."

"Hi, Sally," Daryl said, sitting down on the single bed, which he knew was Mary Ellen's.

"Lo, Daryl," she answered above the soft drone of her hair dryer.

"Well? Are you gonna help us?" Ursula pressed.

"Oh, what the hell. But you owe me one from now on."

"Yeah, sure. Anything you say," she acknowledged.

"My God, Ursula, it's almost a quarter of!"

"Shit. C'mon, Daryl, you'll have to leave now. You'd better take the back way out, she'll be coming down from Bakeless any minute."

I don't know why, but I have a sneaking suspicion that I'm going to regret this, he thought as Ursula hustled him out the door.

Mary Ellen Schaeffer averted her gaze as she saw a group of young men look after her, undressing her, she knew, with their wandering stare.

-Animals. Why you'd think they had nothing better to do all day, the sex fiends! Ugh, the thought of letting one of those slobs put his hands on-

"Oh, hello Professor Tyler. How are you this morning?" she said greeting her history instructor.

"Fine, thank you. And you, Miss Schaeffer?"

"Oh I'm fine too. I just finished reading chapter three of our text last night. Burke is an excellent author. His description of the Council of Nicaea is one of the most lucid accounts I've ever read."

"You've read about the Nicaean Creed before?"

"Oh yes. William Blake mentions Origen in his diaries. He was a Gnostic."

BSCC prepares for first concert

by JEAN KRAUS

Music, the artistic and diversified expression of harmonious tones, serves many important functions in our lives. Music today not only entertains and relaxes, but also speaks to people of various tongues, enlightening minds to the problems, truths and morals of modern society. Music, in essence, is the universal language.

The Bloomsburg State Concert Committee (BSCC) realizes the importance of music in our lives and hence is striving to improve the quality of music to be performed on campus. The concert committee (for 1978-79), a small but effective group organized last May by Lance McCarty, plans to improve musical quality by presenting groups that will satisfy the student body. Since the student body only listens to the best, the BSCC will only present the best!

With the guidance of Marianne Montague, program director, the BSCC has already scheduled two concerts for the near future; Southside Johnny and the Asbury Jukes, and Harry Chapin.

Southside Johnny and the Asbury Jukes is a ten-man band whose name was derived from the location of the club (Stone Pony) where they initially performed, in Asbury Park, New Jersey. The group's two albums, "This Time It's for Real" and "I Don't Want to Go Home" project sounds and lyrics similar to those of Bruce Springsteen. This group will perform in Haas Auditorium on September 17 at 8 p.m.

Tickets for Southside Johnny and the Asbury Jukes will be on sale at the Information Desk and are priced at $4.00 with I.D. ($4.50 without I.D.).

Harry Chapin, a lyricist-guitarist, will perform the BSC Homecoming concert on October 18 in Haas Auditorium. Ticket sales will be announced.

Future concerts will be planned in accordance with student body preference.

An open meeting concerning future concerts will be held in the coffeehouse on September 7 at 8 p.m. All students are invited to attend and voice their opinions and ideas concerning concerts. BSCC will explain why certain groups can and should be scheduled, and the good and bad points of location, cost and sound. Concluding the discussion, the audience will be asked to select a favorite group from a list of potential performers.

If you would like to see one of your favorite groups perform at BSC, come to the meeting! If you can't make the meeting and would like to make suggestions, contact one of the members of the concert committee — Lance McCarty, Ruth Rappaport, Megen Williams, Jean Kraus, Jeff Hunsinger, Toby Lloyd.

Don't miss your chance to tell BSCC what you want to hear; attend the open concert meeting on September 7!

Record Review

Summer Retrospective

by TOBY LOYD

So here we are again at BSC, back for another dip in the Pool of Knowledge, hoping to cleanse ourselves of the summer's nonproductive sins and get ourselves prepared to survive anything that Lady Academia can hurl at us, as she rears her professional head, determined to educate our young and slightly fried brains.

Wouldn't it be much nicer to somehow ease your way back into the routine, instead of making so abrupt a change? Of course it would, and there's nothing better than good music to help you do it. That is why, at this point, I would like to let you know about some of the great music that's been made since we departed these semi-hallowed halls last May. I've included what I feel to be the best of the summer releases.

1. "But Seriously Folks" by Joe Walsh — In his typically nonchalant manner, Eagle guitarist Joe Walsh outdoes himself again. His singing and songwriting has never been better, and his guitar work is stunning throughout. Also, there's some great work by keyboard player, Jay Ferguson and drummer, Joe Vitale. If you've only heard "Life's Been Good," you've got to hear the rest.

2. "Some Girls" by The Rolling Stones — Most everyone is aware of this album, but if you think the Stones have gone disco because of "Miss You" you're mistaken. They haven't rocked this hard since "Exile on Main St." "Imagination," "Some Girls," and "Beast of Burden" are destined to become classics.

3. "Darkness on the Edge of Town" by Bruce Springsteen — I don't know about anyone else, but I've never been more excited by an album of music than I was and still am about this one. It's the best record I've heard since "Born to Run," and it's better than that. A reviewer from Rolling Stone summed up the success of this album perfectly; "Springsteen aims for the moon and stars, and hits the moon and stars." Believe me, in the world of rock and roll, nobody does it better!

Good luck this year, and don't forget to listen to the music. It makes life a lot easier.

Rally to protest

A rally in protest of the appearance of Anita Bryant at the Bloomsburg Fair on Monday September 25, will take place in Bloomsburg on Sunday September 24 at 2 p.m. in the Town Park. The rally sponsored by the Pennsylvania Gay Support Network and the Northeastern Pennsylvania Coalition for Human Rights is drawing Gay Groups from as far away as Pittsburgh.

Several brief speeches and a religious service will take place followed by a peaceful walk about 12 blocks to the Fair Grounds.

The protestors hope to have enough volunteers to maintain an all day picket at the main gate on Monday the day of Bryant's performance. Pickets will probably enter the grounds and walk toward the Grandstand at the time of Bryant's performance.

Mellow weekend planned for all

by ROBERT STILES

Thinking of going home this weekend? Don't — not if music and crafts are your bag. Get on down to the green between Montour and Schuylkill and tune in with the mellow sounds of the fall Jamboree.

The Jamboree promises everything from pop music and square dancing, to intricate hand made craft displays.

Stephen Baird, a Boston streetsinger, is this year's host. His performance at noon, Sept. 8, will announce the beginning of a lay back and listen good time. He appeared at last year's Jamboree to a welcome crowd.

Artie Traum, an experienced trouper across the U.S. and European scene, will follow Baird at 1:00 p.m. His middle of the road sound can be heard on Philo Records.

The Medicine Band, no doctor's show, — will get going at 2:00 p.m. and plays until the five hour break. Like Traum, their music winds down the middle road.

At 8:00 p.m., the scene will move indoors to the President's Lounge, where John Crum and Company pick up the pace. Crum, a versatile musician who hosts the extraordinary abilities of playing the: dulcimer guitar, banjo, and fiddle, and simultaneously clog dance, sets the indoor mood on fire.

Traum returns at 9:00 p.m. to end the day's happenings.

Starting Saturday morning: the arts and crafts showing once more will provide a great day.

Spiritwood, a group specializing in children songs and parades, will also be here at 11:30 a.m.

At noon, host Baird will get in gear with his now medley of children's songs. Following a break, Spiritwood returns at 1:00 a.m.

Jonathan Ashe, no stranger to BSC, boogies in at 2:00 p.m. Last year, when Ashe performed before a large, captivated audience; students expressed a liking for his renditions of such songs by artists like, Seals and Crofts, and Van Morrison.

The Henries, a family of high-energy bluegrass will trot in at 4:00.

Square dancing by the Henries at 8:30 is featured in the Multipurpose room.

Forsyth seeks a "way"

together and build a block of courses that the student could take, perhaps to fill general education courses.

Forsyth would also like to work for closer student - faculty relations. He suggested the idea of a freshman camp, to be held several days before registration, where the students could "rough it" and get to know several upperclassmen who would volunteer to go. This would hopefully familiarize freshmen with other students and enable them to learn about BSC from other students. Faculty members would also come to the camp, perhaps for a day, and talk or play volleyball with the students in addition to answering questions about their departments.

Forsyth feels that students can have a much bigger role than any dean in encouraging the faculty to meet student needs. Student feedback is important.

Forsyth hopes that students will have the attitude that 'I have a rare opportunity to become something because I am at BSC,' and that they should expect a lot from faculty and administrators to whom they are paying a large amount of money.

After teaching psychology at the University of New Hampshire for ten years, Forsyth began looking for a position where he would be able to make an impact on the educational institution from a perspective other than that of faculty member or department chairperson. After deciding to apply for either a deanship or a position in a research foundation, Forsyth decided that the deanship would best enable him to have this impact.

When asked why he chose BSC, Forsyth cited a number of reasons.

"I believe BSC has a uniquely bright future in the next ten years, which are generally going to be dismal in higher education," he said, "I think there are going to be real chances to develop."

Forsyth also stated that the first obligation of many institutions is just to exist, which has led to a decline in quality of education in these institutions.

"I don't see that happening here," he said.

He pointed out that at BSC, the faculty is "wed to quality education," and that even in a time of bad financial support there is little internal strife; there is cooperation between the students and faculty toward a common goal.

"This is unique in a place that is unionized," he stated.

Forsyth expects that the inequity in support for Pennsylvania's 14 state colleges and universities will be corrected; and feels that President McCormick has been doing a good job in bringing this inequity to light.

Forsyth expects to visit classrooms and eventually hopes to teach psychology in the classroom.

Forsyth replaces Dr. Edson Drake, who will return to full-time teaching in the history department following a year's leave of absence.

The leadership training available in Army ROTC is second to none. The adventurous, challenging activities you'll experience make for one of the most exciting courses on campus.

And there's no obligation your first two years. If you decide to drop Army ROTC as a freshman or sophomore, you can. With no military obligation. That's how sure we are you'll want to stay in:

Student lines long

Despite enormous late registration lines, 4885 undergraduate degree students managed to enroll at BSC for the 1978-79 fall semester.

According to Tom L. Cooper, Dean of Admissions and Records, of the 4510 full-time and the 375 part-time students, 2841 are women and 2044 are men. That's a ratio of approximately 1.4 girls to each guy. New freshmen numbered 1068; transfers, 177; and readmits, 25.

Over 400 graduate students registered by mail. In the continuing education program, 525 people, including senior citizens, enrolled for classes. However, all these figures will change due to late and off-campus registration.

More than half the undergraduate students will be housed on campus and eat in the Scranton Commons. About 1750 will be living in the Bloomsburg area and almost 650 will be commuting.

Administration, faculty, and non-instructional personnel number approximately 660.

Qualifying for who's who

Students planning to graduate during the 1978-1979 calendar year who think they are qualified for recommendation to Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities should contact their department chairpersons for a form. Upon filling out the form it should be forwarded to the department chairman by September 29.

The Who's Who program benefits students by giving them lifetime use of the Reference-Placement Service which can be used when a student is seeking employment, a personalized certificate attesting that the student is officially honored by the Who's Who program, local and national publicity regarding the student's selection to Who's Who, and an invitation to participate in national student polls.

The form that is to be used by the student's Department Chairperson, Dean of School, or Advisor of an organization includes the following information: Academic achievement-the past cum cutoff was 2.5 but it is subject to change with the number of applicants; Extra-curricular activities; ability to lead others-leadership role in some organization or holding an office or title; personality; professional promise-how well prepared candidates think they are; and other observations and contributions to BSC and the community.

The final decision rests with Robert G. Norton, Dean of Student Life and of the committee. Committee members include the Director of Student Activities, the Deans of the respective Schools, Presidents of the sophomore, junior and senior class and the CGA president.

Any student who submits a form and feels that they were omitted from the list should contact their department chairperson.

Parking areas reassigned

by ANDREA HOHOLICK

The new Motor Vehicle Regulations for Bloomsburg State College became effective as of August 28, 1978. Previous rules concerning assigned parking areas were revised in efforts to accommodate more people.

Commuters who reside more than one mile from campus are assigned a "C" decal, campus parking, and those living within one mile received an "H" decal, hospital parking, regardless of class standing.

Another change to note is that all parking tickets not paid within five school days after notification, will be forwarded to the district magistrate for settlement. Tickets will be issued starting September 11 to students, staff, and faculty for parking without a decal or in the wrong area.

Changes have also been made concerning additional parking areas such as the Tri-Level Parking Garage. The parking in this area is limited to student decal "C" and faculty and staff on a first come, first serve basis. The Tri-Level is not intended for overnight use, no parking is permitted between 2:00 a.m. and 6:00 a.m.

Restrictions have been placed on the overnight parking of cars on campus. Students will only be allowed to park overnight on Friday and Saturday nights in the "C" area. Also, no parking is allowed on Second Street from Penn Street to the May Building, at any time.

According to Director of Safety and Security, Richard Neuffer, the new rules and regulations are proving to be effective, and are accommodating more students.

Rules found unconstitutional

The rules outlining membership requirements in the Community Government Association (CGA) were found to be both unauthorized and unconstitutional according to a CGA Elections Committee spokesman.

The petitions that were made available last week outlined two new rules concerning eligibility. First, CGA Representatives could not be December graduates or student teachers; second, if you gain a seat on CGA you automatically gain a seat on Representative Assembly.

According to Joe Surdoval, CGA President, these new rules are for the good of the student body. Surdoval explained that these new rules guaranteed representation of Representative Assembly. "If attendance can be guaranteed, representation will also be guaranteed."

Attendance at Representative Assembly has been a problem in the past. However, at a special election committee meeting concerning the rules, members discovered that the petitions were inadvertently sent out without their consultation or authorization.

After meeting with Surdoval, the committee decided to print new petitions.

"Students will once again have a choice of organizations to belong to the CGA or Representative Assembly," according to Scott McCabe, committee chairman.

The executive council of Representative Assembly has given the CGA elections Committee the authorization to do this.

concerning the legality of the membership fee.

According to Downey, Pennsylvania Attorney General Patricia Donovan has ruled the collection of the fee as legal because it is keeping with the 1974 State College and University Directors (SCUD) Board ruling that stated the fee was voluntary due to the voluntary student vote of approval.

Downey is currently working with Jack Solomon, Regional Attorney for the Department of Education, concerning a contract agreement for the mandatory fee refund.

"I hope the students will be patient about this matter," Downey stated. "We are trying to settle the best possible agreement on the matter in the best interests of the students."

"While we want to provide the students with an option, we hope that they will make the investment to further CAS efforts to keep their tuition down and improve the quality of their college educations in both the immediate and far future," Downey concluded.

Faculty welcomed

President of Bloomsburg State College Dr. James H. McCormick addressed the college faculty during the first faculty meeting of the semester.

Dr. McCormick emphasized the success and improvement he has seen in his 5 years of presidency at BSC.

He feels the major challenge facing BSC is controlled growth and internal change in response to needs of society in a declining educational environment while improving institutional excellence.

In conclusion, Dr. McCormick is looking forward to the next few years to be as challenging and successful as the last five.

Housing improves

by MICHELLE A. SARGENT

The housing situation for both on and off campus appears to be improving. According to Mr. John Abell, Housing Director, "There is an unprecedented amount of vacancies in town and the surrounding area."

Whether looking for an apartment or a room, the Housing Office reports that there are quite a number of vacancies. Approximately 50 vacancies are still available.

As a service to the students there is a glass-encased bulletin board outside the Housing Office containing details on such vacancies. More information can be found inside the office.

Columbia, Elwell and Lycoming are now the women's dormitories, while Luzerne, Montour and Northumberland house men. Schuylkill Hall is the only co-ed dorm this year. The number of triples on campus this semester is considerably less than last year.

According to Abell, last year approximately 224 people were tripled. This semester there are only about 160 triples. There are a number of empty spaces so far, and Abell feels the detripling process will be quicker than in past semesters.

Students with housing problems both on and off campus should contact Abell in the Ben Franklin Building.

Voters netted

Voter registration netted more students than were registered during the entire Fall 1976 semester registration for the presidential election. A total of 53% students registered at class registration held on August 28.

According to Dr. David Greenwald, "The coming election of a governor will have a much greater impact than the election of a president on your education at BSC and this will be your only chance for four years to have any say in the matter."

The unofficial breakdown by party is as follows: On-campus, 179 Democrat; 199 Republican; and 83 no party. Off-campus: 31 Democrats; 34 Republicans; and 13 no party. Totals for the various parties are as follows: Democrat 210; Republicans 233; and 96 registered no party.

Greenwald attributes the success of the drive to the Young Democrats, Young Republicans, CAS, and CGA. He also wishes to express appreciation to Deans James Mitchell and Tom Cooper and to Ken Schnure for providing us with an improved location.

Trackmen end in style

by MIKE INCITTI

The Bloomsburg State College trackmen completed their season record-setting style last spring. Finishing third in the Pennsylvania State College Conference with a new BSC high of 109 points, the Huskies trailed only champion Slippery Rock and runner-up East Stroudsburg, who totaled 136 and 116 respectively.

Individual honors went to Steve Eachus and Jeff Carruthers. Eachus won the state title in the 10,000 and 5,000 meter runs, grinding out times of 30:29.3 and 14:34 respectively. For these feats, he was named the most outstanding runner in the meet.

Carruthers received state champion recognition in his specialty, the high jump. His leap of 6'10½" floated him to a first place finish and a conference record.

Other finishers in the state championship included Barry Staton who claimed 2nd place in the long jump with a distance of 22'10".

Staton also earned a third in the 100 meter run with a time of 11.3 and a 23 flat 200 meter run, which was good enough for sixth place.

Ed Hauck tallied a third for BSC in the 400 meter hurdles clocked at 54.6. A third place in the high jump was secured by Chuck Stathopolous who soared 6'8". Rich Drzewieski crossed the tape in 15.2 for a second place in the 110 meters.

Jerry Workheiser added a second in the triple jump with a 46'2" bound. Two second places were blazed by Robert McIntosh in the 100 and 200 meter dashes with times of 11.0 and 22.7 respectively. In the field, Dan McCallum put the shot 50'10" for a third. Stan Kita brought home a fourth in the javelin with a heave of 198'9". The 440 relay team comprised of Staton, McIntosh, Jakie Williams, and Louis Giles clicked for a time of 42.6, a third place finish.

Due to their fine performances in the state championship held at Slippery Rock, Eachus and Carruthers advanced to the Division II Nationals at Western Illinois University in McComb Illinois.

Eachus set a torrid pace in the 5000 meter run but was unexpectedly edged in the final few hundred yards and had to settle for second place with a record-breaking time of 14:15.09. He continued on to the NCAA Internationals held in Mexico City, finishing in third place.

Carruthers leap of 7'1¼" was tops in the National meet. However, a few missed jumps brought him down to fourth place as three others equalled that height but in less tries.

The BSC trackmen concluded the season with a 18-6 indoor record and a 10-5 outdoor record. The season was marred by only one dual meet loss. The Huskies tied for seventeenth place in Division II Nationals.

Head coach Carl Hinkle was very pleased with the teams' total performance. "Through our excellent competition we brought great recognition to BSC track and field." Coach Hinkle is looking forward to a bright season this year and feels that the team should duplicate or even surpass last seasons' efforts.

by ALSCHOCH, JR.

The 1978 Bloomsburg State football season began on a sour note when some of last year's players decided against playing and failed to show up for summer practice. But according to head coach Ron Puhl, all the disappointments and bad feelings are behind the team now, as the Huskies are looking for their first winning season since 1970.

"We were disappointed in the players not coming out this year," stated Puhl, "but with the players we have, everyone is happy, and I believe we are tough enough to win."

"Our lines, both offensive and defensive, are very capable. We have a lot of faith in them, they are tough and strong, and we have good expectations. Our offensive and defensive backs are players that have made names for themselves on campus as well as in the community. Some of them, such as Mike Morucci and Kurt Pettis, are on pro lists."

As for the football program in itself, Puhl feels he is in a teaching race against time. The program is without a spring practice session, and a one and a half week summer practice schedule before the first scrimmage is not enough time to achieve perfection. The big plus in the Husky's favor is the coaching staff. With Joe DeMelfi, Frank Williams, Bill Wolff, Irv Wright, Carl Hinkle, and Eric Megargel working with Puhl, the Huskies have one of the top staffs in the conference. "This staff," commented Puhl, "is highly professional, with a dedication toward the pursuit of excellence."

The captains for this year's team will be Morucci and Chris Betterly. Both are PSCAC all-stars, are well respected by the team, and are considered good spokesmen.

Looking at the Huskies' lineup, the big change will be at the quarterback position. Sophomore Rick Kneisley will be the number one man, with freshmen Gene Capinagro, Matt Figard, and Kurt Werkheiser doing the backup work. Puhl feels that these four players will hold their own for the Huskies this year. One bad break occurred last week when another quarterback candidate, Dale Crooks, dislocated his shoulder and probably will be out for the season.

As for the ground game, the Huskies can say it all in one player: Mike Morucci. Last year Morucci averaged over 100 yards per game on the ground, and will be looking for more of the same in 1978. Joining him in the backfield are full backs Danny McCallum and Frank Yanik.

Defensively, the Huskies have virtually the same crew back from last year's. Along with Betterly, Howie Gulick, Kurt Pettis, Doug Pfautz, Dave Reidenour, and Rob Keyser (along with others) will anchor the defense that was second in the conference in 1977.

Tomorrow afternoon, the Huskies kick off their season at home against Ithica College. Ithica (1-0 in 1978), has made the national playoffs in Division III the past three years, and are contenders for the Lambert Bowl trophy. Leading the way for Ithica is running back Matt Mees, a man the Huskies must contain.

When asked why such schools as Ithica, Shippensburg, and West Chester are on BSC's schedule, Puhl went right to the point. "I feel that if we want to play with men, we should schedule men. Looking at our schedule, there are good, solid football teams, no rinky-dinks. The power part of our schedule comes in the first few weeks."

So tomorrow afternoon, still another football season here at "State" gets underway. And with tomorrow's game, along with the rest of the season, we will all see whether the Huskies are the kind of team that coach Puhl believes they can be.

Netters prepare for season

by CINDY PECK

For all students, the beginning of the fall semester means reading, writing, arithmetic, but for some students, it also means game, set, match.

The men's and women's tennis teams at BSC have been preparing for the fall season since the commencement of school at the end of August.

The women's netters, under coach Michael Herbert, had quite an impressive season last year. After compiling a record of 9-4, the team went on to become the state champion. The last time BSC won a state championship as a team was in 1965, when the wrestlers won.

Returning from last year's top five are Lorie Keating, who will again play in the top position, and captain Sue Purnell, who was last year's state champion at the number 3 spot; and who may be playing at the second position. Other returnees are Tracey Cooke, Lori Malinsky, Mary McHugh, Linda Pinchot, and Donna Royer.

Two promising freshmen on the team are Mary Hnatin and Jo Ann Ragusa.

The first match for the women will be at Mansfield on September 23.

The men's team returns from a 19-7 season with four of its top six players gone. Last year's top man, Jim Hollister, has graduated, Paulo de Campos, a transfer from Brazil, has returned to his home country, and two others have transferred.

Moving up from last year's second spot into the top position will be junior Rob Vance, "one of the finest players in the history of BSC," according to the team's coach Burt Reese.

Junior Rick Willders will play in the number two position.

"Rick had a dismal year as a sophomore, but he is now playing up to his freshman form," commented Reese.

Last year's Pennsylvania Conference champion at the number six spot, sophomore Ken Grove, will be starting at the third position.

The season opener for the men's team will be the Bloomsburg Invitational Tournament on September 15 and 16.
