

The CAMPUS VOICE

Bloomsburg State College, Friday, November 3, 1978

Voting procedures outlined

by SUE POTTER

Do you know who determines what kind of education you get? Do you care? This second question is directed at each of you — students within the state college system. As a student at BSC and a resident of Bloomsburg, it is your responsibility to vote on Nov. 7, 1978 for the candidates who will best support your college.

David Greenwald, Professor of Sociology, remarks "by not voting you are casting a vote to show that you don't care. They can walk all over you." The candidate you vote for has an important effect on your education since the governor appoints the people who run the state college system: secretary of education, commissioner of higher education, president of the college, and, he proposes the budget which determines the tuition that you pay.

The state representative is also of major importance to state college students since he fights for money and improvements (smaller classes; larger faculty) while he is also in a position to work against you if he feels that you don't care.

To those of you with PHEAA grants, voting is of grave importance. The state funds your grant and if your representative does not fight for these grants, you may not get them!

While you are a college student, the results of state and local elections have more effect on your life than does a presidential election, simply because the state representatives deal directly with state colleges and the president is quite removed from the situations here on campus.

The voting procedure will be similar to last year's sporting a less complex ballot. Directions for voting, as presented by the election board, follow:

After you have stated your name, you will be given an IBM card to sign. The election officer will compare the signature on the card with your signature in the register. If they are the same, he/she will make an entry on your registration card, and you will be allowed to vote. You will receive a folded paper ballot.

When you go into the voting booth, be careful to mark it exactly according to instructions — If you make a mistake, do not erase. Instead, give the spoiled ballot back in return for another one. After you vote, refold the ballot, and BE SURE TO TEAR THE NUMBERED STUB OFF. This

Colleges to obtain legislative support

Bloomsburg State College is participating in the effort of the Pennsylvania State Colleges and University to obtain legislative support for a deficit appropriation bill and for a Capital Budget bill.

Ms. Marian Schalm Furman, of Harrisburg, the Pennsylvania Association of State Colleges and University Faculty legislative coordinator; Dr. Robert Gates, of Edinboro State College; and Michael Sommers, also of APSCUF, visited Bloomsburg Tuesday for a conference with college administrators and union representatives to discuss the college's financial problems that have resulted from underfunding.

BSC President James McCormick is chairman of the Coalition Committee organized by the Commission for Pennsylvania State Colleges and University to plan the legislative appeal.

Information concerning the needs of the 14 state-owned colleges and universities will be presented to the legislators November 14. The goal is to obtain passage of House Bill 2834 which would provide a deficit appropriation of $16 million for the State Colleges and University, and of the Capital Budget Bill. The Capital Budget Bill would provide funding for a new Human Services building as well as for other badly needed projects.

Students and parents are being asked to join the effort by writing to their legislators or by contacting them to urge support for these bills.

National sorority formed

Tau Sigma Pi sorority has begun steps toward being a national sorority, Alpha Sigma Tau.

Since Oct. 3, Alpha Sigma Tau has been national as far as the campus goes, but it's still a colony as far as the rest of the country, said Alpha Sigma Tau president Tricia Grosse.

We feel that the move would benefit the sorority, spread it throughout the country with alumni groups so that sorority life wouldn't end at graduation, said Grosse.

The sorority will be a colony for six months and then will go through initiation to become a national chapter, Grosse said, and the sisters will become the founding sisters. This semester's pledge class will be the first for the new sorority.

An alumni advisor from Shippensburg State College will be their colony advisor along with their present advisor.

Parties involve liabilities

by MIKE MIXELL

Off-campus parties have been the subject of much interest recently. Students who have parties must keep one very important point in the back of their minds: If you serve a drink to a person who is visibly intoxicated, you can be held liable for damages caused to third persons by the intoxicated person.

In Pennsylvania the law used to state that only bartenders or people selling liquor were liable for damages caused by a person served intoxicants while that person was visibly drunk. The responsibility has now been extended to any person who serves a visibly intoxicated person. The effect of this law places a tremendous burden on anyone giving anybody a drink.

The case that extended this responsibility to private persons was Gardina V. Soloman. It is worth mentioning because a social fraternity which allegedly served liquor to an intoxicated minor was held civilly liable for injuries to a third person allegedly caused by the intoxicated minor. It was not important that the intoxicated person was a minor, the point is that he was served while being visibly intoxicated.

The college community must be aware of this liability for self-protection. If you do have a party, keep an eye on the people present. You will benefit in the long run by sending someone home early; as opposed to being sued when the drunk person damages someone or something.

First clean-up day at BSC

by BARB HAGAN

Be ready to grab rakes, shovels and trash bags as Bloomsburg State College students, faculty, administration and staff are ready for a day's work during BSC's first clean-up day! On Sunday, November 12 beginning at 1 p.m., BSC members will take equipment in hand and help clean-up debris left by the fall season.

The project, organized by a group of interested students and staff, will involve all BSC members in a voluntary clean-up of campus grounds. Some of the tasks to be done by those participating include: removing stones from team practice fields, raking and bagging leaves, removing debris from drainage grates and the Redman Stadium football stands, and the cleaning-up of the Tri-Level Parking Lot area.

Supervision for the project is being provided by the maintenance staff of BSC who will distribute equipment to those participating in the clean-up activities.

The idea for the clean-up is modeled after the Bloomsburg Town Park clean-up which is held each year in town. BSC administrative representatives believe that the clean-up will be a way to get all college members participating together to make the campus a cleaner place.

The organizing group (Clean-up Committee) hopes that students will leave their studies for a few hours to participate in this worthwhile outdoor activity.

All those interested in participating in the clean-up are urged to meet in the Waller Administration Building Parking lot at 1 p.m. on Sunday November 12. The various tasks will be assigned and equipment distributed at this time. All BSC members are asked to contribute whatever time they can to this all out clean-up effort.

The length of the clean-up day depends on the number of participants.

Rain date is Sunday Nov. 10 at 1 p.m.

Voting — a flip of a coin

Flip a coin.

Heads, vote Democrat.

Tails, vote Republican.

Well, that's one way to exercise your power to vote for the gubernatorial candidate. If you like games of chance, that's the best way to make your decision when you step into the ballot booth.

Wait, there's another way — you can read up on the candidates and the issues. Around Election day every candidate sounds good — but there is a difference.

If you read up on the candidates platforms, supporters, backers and post — you take the choice for the next governor of Pennsylvania out of the hands of chance.

Taxes, tuition, corruption...they all effect life in Pennsylvania. Neither candidate is going to work miracles, but one of them will be governor for the next four years.

The few minutes it will take you to read may make all the difference.

Voting is your right, exercise it if you want to.

to anyone showing proof of ownership of property improved for residential use. Stickers will be issued two per unit - units as defined by Town Secretary, Gerald Depo, are any house or apartment with a kitchen facility.

If residents own more than two cars and live in the designated area it will cost $60 per year for each additional sticker. Also, the areas mentioned will be strictly parking areas for the residents of that area who have stickers, no guests may park in these areas or they will be subject to stiff fines. ($10-$24).

This may sound like a fair idea until you realize that many of the residents of Third Street and the vicinity are college students who own far more than two cars. For example, at 501 East Third St., there are 14 residents living in what is defined as one unit. Two parking stickers will be issued to the landowner who must decide which two of the seven car-owning residents will receive stickers.

All residents above that golden number two will have to pay $60 a park. It should be noted here that just because you have a parking sticker (free or paid for) you will not be guaranteed a parking space. Stickers will be issued to any residents of that area with more than two cars who pay $60. It sounds crazy to me because there will still be more cars than parking spaces - it's just that now people will be paying not to have a parking space.

Student residents in the area were not the only people opposed to the passage of the new laws. Many Fourth Street residents expressed their discontent with the regulations but the Council passed them into law anyway by a 5-2 vote.

At Monday night's CGA meeting Gerald Depo (Town Secretary and Council member) answered questions concerning the new parking laws. He said that the new laws were the only "fair and consistent" way to help solve the parking problem in that area. He also said that Council was aware that the laws may not eliminate the problem.

In response to questioning from students Depo said there was no chance Town Council would reconsider the ordinance, that they may consider a reasonable amendment to the ordinance. CGA president Joe Durdoval suggested that students attend the next Council meeting prepared to present an amendment to the ordinance. Depo said that he was aware the laws affected students more because there are larger numbers living per unit.

If Council knows that more students will be affected because of so many living per unit then how can they call this ordinance "fair and consistent."

Perhaps if BSC officials and college officials would really try to sit down and listen to each other, college - town parking problems as well as many others could be solved.

It's too late now to stop the passage of these parking regulations into law but students and residents in that area can attend the Monday November 6 Council meeting and present an amendment to the laws.

There is no way that any Bloomsburg resident, student or permanent, should believe that he - she has a God given right to a parking space in front of their house. Streets are public property and cannot be considered the private property of residents.

Finding a parking place in either the town of Bloomsburg or BSC is not an easy job. It seems there are far too many cars for the parking spaces available. Regulations passed into law on October 23, 1978 by the Bloomsburg Town Council are not going to make finding a parking space any easier!

Since BSC's proposed party policy was "unleashed" during that same week, many students are unaware of the newly adopted parking laws.

The new laws will severely cost the residents of East Third and Fourth Streets, including surrounding areas. Two parking stickers will be issued with these choices.

Student Development will sponsor a workshop involving Career Planning Strategies on Monday, Nov. 6 in Kehr Union, Multipurpose Room A from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Interest-inventory tests will be made available for those who want to determine how their likes and dislikes are related to similar job areas. According to JoAnne Day, Assistant Director of the Career Development and Placement Center, the complementary theory states that people with the same likes and dislikes enjoy working with others with similar interests.

Interested students can also start a file compiling their background for future reference, have experienced individuals critique their cover letters and resumes, and can obtain information dealing with state and federal jobs. Tables will be set up providing audio-visual aids, handouts, and other information on placement services.

Interviewing tips and techniques will also be provided. At this time, students can sign up for "Mock Interviews" which is another Student Development Program planned for Wednesday, Nov. 15.

Exploring career options

Drawn into action

A new Mark IV picture, Blood on the Mountain, will be shown at 8:30 p.m. Monday Nov. 6 in the coffeehouse of Kehr Union.

Blood on the Mountain is a film that demonstrates the strength of God's love and forgiveness.

The release of Bob Jamison from Colorado State Penitentiary triggers an escape by his former accomplice, Jim Hawker. "Hawk", as he is known, forces another inmate, Billy Hartman, to accompany him on a quest for revenge that leads to the kidnapping of Bob Jamison and his wife.

A chase by the police climaxes at the Royal George where the hostages are forced into the cable car in a desperation move. The conflicts of human emotions and the interruption of human plans are woven into a tapestry of man's rebellion and God's forgiveness against the backdrop of the Sangre De Christo (Blood of Christ) mountains of Colorado.

The patient attitude of Karen Jamison toward her confused husband, and the sacrificial action of Billy Hartman toward "Hawk" bring spiritual principles to bear on everyday living and in times of major crises.

As the viewer is drawn into the action and suspense of the film, he will find himself faced with some searching questions and agonizing decisions.

Produced and released by Mark IV Pictures, Incorporated, Des Moines, Iowa, producers of A Thief in the Night.

Yippie movement discussed

by JULIE STAMETS

"Political Activism of the 60's" will be the topic of an upcoming discussion to be presented by Jerry Rubin at a Student Convention on Nov. 7 at 8:00 p.m. in Kehr Union.

Rubin, an ex-yippie anti-war leader and author, will convey his thoughts on many areas of activism in the 60's decade. His speech will ask questions such as "How did the American campuses become so politically turbulent? What did it feel like to be inside a political movement that changed the world? What turned activism of the 60's into apathy of the 70's?" Rubin will present these issues as well as speak on students' reactions against the war in Vietnam during the last decade up to the political responsibilities of students today. Rubin will focus attention on the role of marijuana, the sexual liberation movement, and the trend of rock music - how each figured prominently during the yippie movement. He will also place emphasis on the relationship between the womens' movement and the self-awareness decade of the 70's.

TO THE EDITOR:

Within a recent span of ten days, BSC students have had the opportunity to listen to the words of two profound thinkers in Haas Auditorium. On Wednesday, October 18, Harry Chapin, though he came to sing, caught his audience by surprise with a speech about world hunger. Then, on Friday, October 27, Dick Gregory took his audience somewhat by surprise (not so much because of what he said, but because of the force behind his words).

I wonder how much the respective audiences gained from the thoughts of these two men? In my opinion there certainly was much to be gained. Both men are devoting much or all of their lives to a cause which seems to deserve more attention: Human Development. Though the two men differ in their conviction (Chapin's cause is focused on hunger, and Gregory's is based upon the broad aspects of freedom and democracy), they have made a similar decision to remove themselves from the status - quo and analyze our present lifestyle. They have made a decision to promote changes in our life - style, one which has bread (and often perpetuated) racial and ethnic prejudice, widespread urban and rural poverty, material gain as a vehicle to "success", a disregard for our physical environment, and most importantly, a large segment of our population which is apathetic towards the consequences of all the above.

I am not saying that these two men hold the answers to the above issues; that would be foolish. The point I would like to make, however, is that Harry Chapin and Dick Gregory have come, spoken their minds (about some pretty important topics) and left to do the same elsewhere. How have their audiences reacted?

I have assumed that many people felt their altruistic "juices" aroused during Chapin's encore (otherwise they would not have applauded). Probably the same group was enlightened during Mr. Gregory's comments towards human relations. But have these words made a lasting impression? Or have we returned to our daily routines, the pursuit of the "Me" generation, as Chapin called it? If this is the case, then these two men may have wasted their time by coming to Bloomsburg ... I hope not.

Student ventilation

TO THE EDITOR:

I am writing with regard to some of the pledging practices of the campus fraternities and sororities that have come to my attention.

To date I have watched fully grown women dressed-up as young children pushing a baby carriage about in front of the Andruss Library; there too, I have witnessed young men pulling a small duck-like toy on wheels. As an off-campus student I am sure these events constitute but a meager sample of the types of things that "go-on" as some students pledge themselves to fraternities and sororities.

I feel that these sorts of activities are nonsensical, and in the long run, counterproductive to the organizations themselves. They turn off many students of potential value who cannot see themselves acting in these manners, and somewhat publicly deface those who do decide to join.

If and when an organization values its members, it treats them in a manner reflective of that value. As students we are all aware of the social forces which influence our interactive group behavior and compel us to join varying organizations. We all feel the need for friendship, a sense of belonging, and an awareness of self. To see students coerced into performing dehumanizing activities in the hope that these needs may be met in personally disturbing.

Gubernatorial race

A look at the candidates

Dick Thornburgh the Republican candidate for governor is 46 years old and a native of Pittsburgh.

He was the U. S. Attorney for Western Pennsylvania from 1969 to 1975. In July 1975 President Ford named him Assistant U. S. Attorney General.

According to a recent AP report, the former federal prosecutor needs a strong cross-over vote to win because the democrats outnumber his party by a 824,000 registration margin.

His campaign theme is "The only way to clean up Harrisburg is to clean it out. And you can't trust any Democrat to do it."

Thornburgh's running mate is Bill Scranton, 30.

The Republican candidate's stand on some of the issues of the election are as follows:

Thornburgh says the state should "help employers meet environmental standards in addition to enforcing those standards."

As far as the issue of marijuana goes, Thornburgh says he would not support such a change, but he would not make possession of marijuana a top law enforcement priority.

Thornburgh wants to lower the drinking age, but the change must be coupled with stricter enforcement of drunken-driving laws and he is against the sale of beer in grocery stores.

Dick Thornburgh

We urge you to VOTE

Peter Flaherty

Pete Flaherty the Democratic candidate for governor is 53 years old.

He was mayor of Pittsburgh for seven years from 1969 to 1976. In 1977 he was appointed Deputy U. S. Attorney General by President Carter.

According to a recent AP report, Flaherty has scorned his own party because outgoing Governor Milton Shapp has seen scores of underlings in his democratic administration found guilty of wrongdoing in office.

The former Pittsburgh mayor said his first priority is "to fire Shapp's pals and cronies."

He feels his biggest asset is his administrative experience as chief executive of the state's second largest city.

Flaherty's running mate is Robert P. Casey.

The Democrat candidate's stand on some of the issues of the election are as follows:

Flaherty has called for more realistic environmental programs recognizing the need to preserve jobs as well as the need to preserve the environment."

Legislative making possession of small amounts of marijuana a civil offense punishable by a small fine would be supported and signed by Flaherty.

Flaherty favors retaining the current legal drinking age of 21, and he is undecided about the sale of beer in grocery stores.

With the upcoming elections, how do you feel about corruption in the government?

Mr. William C. Zehringer, part-time English instructor — I think the most important issue is the restoration of public confidence in elected officials. The real cost of corruption is a loss of faith in representative government.

Peter Prinz, freshman — The problem is that there is too much corruption going on without too many people knowing about it. The thing is that it affects all on us, and it will take all of us to do something about it.

George Callisto, senior — Corruption does not solely exist within the government. It also finds itself within the apathetic and sometimes squalid minds of the general public. Debauchery plagues contemporary society in all respects.

Megan L. Williams, junior — Everyone in politics today has gotten somewhere by doing something for someone, so corruption is natural — to a degree. Pennsylvania needs to clean house and a man like Thornburgh has a better reputation than others.

State representatives

Integrity a major issue

Ted Stuban, Democrat candidate for re-election to the congressional seat of the 109th District, is 50 years old. He went to Berwick High School and Wyoming Seminary.

In an interview with a panel of Press-Enterprise reporters, the freshman legislator said the interest in restoring integrity is reflected in the number of reform-type bills brought before the house. These reform bills stemmed from the widespread corruption present within the Shapp administration.

Stuban sees a need for Bloomsburg and Berwick to join forces in an effort to draw industry into the area.

During the last budget crisis, Stuban voted for passage of the final budget, although he had previously voted against tax increases. Stuban said he voted for the financial plan because it had been proposed as a no-tax budget and it contained items beneficial to the district.

He said some of the beneficial items were redevelopment money, school supplies, court costs, and Bloomsburg State College appropriations. "It was a good budget as far as I'm concerned."

Ted Stuban

David Millard

Republican David Millard was born in 1953 in Columbia County. He was educated in the Bloomsburg Area Schools and attended BSC until 1974 when he accepted a position at the nuclear power plant.

The flood of 1972 and subsequent dealings with governmental red tape are two major reasons Millard is seeking this position.

The 25 year old Republican told a panel of Press - Enterprise reporters that the key issues facing the district are flood control and attracting industry which he believes are related.

Integrity is also a major issue with the voters, Millard said.

"I'm just a common person. I'm interested in government. I believe in honest government and I am honest."

The former BSC student said a fairer system of determining college appropriations is needed. Using BSC as an example, he said that while BSC has more students than many other colleges, they do not receive proportionate funds from the state. Millard said state funding should be allocated on a per-student basis.

John Trathen, Assistant Director of Student Activities — It is unfortunate that we have corruption in our government system. However, I'm glad to see that steps are being taken through our legal system to reduce the problem. Perhaps if we all express our concern via the voting booth, we will only have honest politicians in the future.

Tim Hough, senior — To rid our state government of corruption would mean a reevaluation of almost every elected official and appointee now in office, then start over from scratch.

"Mac" Robert MacIntosh, sophomore — I'm not going to vote, because I feel it not worth it. One vote won't really matter. With the few officials you have to vote for, since all you corrupted, you can't but help electing a corrupted one (official).

4. BSC Investment Portfolio
5. Husky Contingency Fund

Husky Aids Everyone

College Union buildings were new capital projects back in the 1930's. The students at B.S.C. were no different from other college students when they asked the college administration to build a Union in 1939. The solution as proposed by Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, past President of B.S.C., was to invest excess student funds and save for the future construction of a student union.

The decision to help with the financing of a student union was approved by the College Council of the Community Government Association. This set the stage for setting funds aside for the future. Funding of this major undertaking came from the profits of the College Store and one-half of the present day Community Activities Reserve for Refunds and New Projects account.

After accumulating approximately $600,000 in 1969, a request was submitted to the Pennsylvania state legislature in Harrisburg for a student union building capital appropriation. The Commonwealth provided $650,000 toward the construction of the Union. However, because the time factor in requesting the funds and approval was longer than anticipated, the original allocation had already "shrunk" through inflation. After Mr. Boyd Buckingham and Mr. Elton Hunsinger made

Self-Supporting Union Offers Variety

The Kehr Union is a self-supporting organization with the Governing Board providing for the Union's administration. The associated pie charts on this page show the relative income and expense percentages. The total operating budget for 1978-1979 is $150,722.

Under expenses, the Program Board is provided funds to sponsor activities such as dances, movies, tournaments, and special events — Annual Dance Marathon, Night at the Races, Casino Night, Arts and Crafts Shows, etc. Most events held in the KUB are presented by the Program Board.

Income is from various sources; most notably the College Store. In order to provide activities, the profits from the College Store are transferred to the Kehr Union. Profits are made on non-essential items such as t-shirts, mugs, and greeting cards. Most educational items are offered at a discount of between 5 and 20 per cent from the recommended retail price. The Bowling Alley, Games Room and Snack Bar also generate income for use by the Governing Board. The budgets are presented in detail on the bottom portion of this page for the Kehr Union and the College Store.

Store Continues to Expand

The College Store (not Bookstore) is a multi-product, retail business located on Second Street across from the May Building. The B.S.C. Board of Trustees approved the establishment of a store on June 27, 1933, along with the Community Activities program.

Projected sales for this year will exceed $900,000. Approximately 60 per cent of sales will be through textbooks and remaining 40 per cent through supplies and non-essential items, such as t-shirts, mugs, and gifts. In comparison,

CGA Provides Governance for Student Groups

The college Council of the Community Government Association, the college governing body of all student organizations, has prepared this fiscal report as an information tool for understanding the relationships and financial status of the major student-controlled budgets. The following reports will focus on the 1978-79 academic calendar year. As members of the C.G.A., you should be aware of the importance of these budgets and the impact they have on Bloomsburg State College.

In comparison to the college's state appropriation and local augmentation of about $23 million, these student-controlled budgets total over $2 million dollars. Services, of a vastly varying nature are provided by the Community Government Association, Kehr Union and College Store to the students, faculty, and staff of the College. In addition, many of these programs are available to the general public and B.S.C. is often referred to as a major educational and cultural center of central Pennsylvania. You and the organizations working for you are a vital and integral part of the college community.

This fiscal report will outline the budgets of the aforementioned services and, also, provide information regarding the Husky Contingency Fund and the B.S.C. Investment Portfolio. More detailed information, if needed, is available from the Community Activities Office, second floor, Kehr Union. Although these reports and budgets are prepared by various student committees and interns, annual audits are completed by the private auditing firm of Gehrig & Halterman of Bloomsburg and also by the Commonwealth's Auditor General's Office.

COMMUNITY ACTIVITIES IS GROWING!

With the $10 increase in the Community Activities Fee this year, the annual operating budget for 1978-79 is $449,340. In addition, the Reserve for Refunds and New Projects account has over $58,000 from which College Council may sponsor special events or projects.

As can be seen in the illustration on page 6, most of the funds available are generated from activities fees. Other income producing areas are admissions to athletic events, concerts, the Bloomsburg Players productions, vending machine commissions, interest from investments, charges for using C.G.A. vehicles, and miscellaneous items. The vending machine income includes machines throughout the campus except for the Kehr Union Building.

C.G.A. funds are used to sponsor all athletic events, recreational facilities, the Arts Council programs, the college student newspaper, the college yearbook, Homecoming Weekend, Parents' Weekend, the All College Calendar, Big Name Concerts, the Bloomsburg Players productions, all student musical organizations, dormitory activities, commuter events, and funding of many other student organizations. A detailed breakdown of the organizations funded by C.G.A. and a three-year comparison of budget allocations is listed in this report.

This Fiscal Report — 1978-1979 was prepared by the Community Activities Office in cooperation with the Community Government Association. Hopefully, this report will be the first of a series of articles and annual reports which will aid you to better understand the workings of the student-controlled organizations at BSC. If you have any questions or would like more information regarding any item published in this report, please contact Frank Lorah, Community Activities Office, Kehr Union Building.

Portfolio yields maximum interest

Using excess funds which are not currently needed for operations, all student funds are invested in the B.S.C. Investment Portfolio. By combining excess funds, larger amounts may be used to purchase commercial certificates of deposit, which must be in excess of $100,000 to be eligible for higher interest rates.

The funds are divided into approximately equal amounts and one of the C.D.'s matures each month to ensure funds are available for the following month's operating expenses.

The same day a C.D. matures, another one is purchased in order not to lose any available interest. If $300,000 is being invested at the current rate of 8.2 per cent, $68 would be lost if there was a one day delay between maturity and purchase date.

The highest possible interest rates are almost guaranteed by allowing ten local banks to "bid" on the C.D. Whichever bank is willing to give the highest interest rate, that bank is awarded the certificate. If two or more banks indicate the same interest rate, the C.D. is divided equally provided each bank receives at least $100,000. If this is not possible, a rotation process begins with the bank not receiving a certificate recently, being awarded the C.D.

Husky aids

(continued from page five) several more trips to Harrisburg, an additional $650,000 was provided through another capital appropriations bill and B.S.C. was on its way to getting their Union. The funds generated by the students were then used to purchase furniture, carpeting, the bowling lanes and other items not available through college funds. Also, a major redecoration of the College Store used part of the $250,000 which was spent.

When the Kehr Union finally opened in August, 1973, approximately $350,000 remained. These funds were then designated as the Husky Contingency Fund and could be used for capital equipment, such as, vehicles, television sets for the dorms, the Nelson Field House indoor tartan track, and the Redman Stadium portable bleachers. In addition, the WBSC Radio Station and various Campus Beautification projects have been financed through the Husky Contingency Fund.

While all the funds are not designated for special projects, $150,000 of the funds are reserved for the financing of C.G.A. vehicles. The interest earned on this amount will be used for the replacement of the vehicles. Since the building of the Union, there has been no major decisions as to the destination of the fund. The only stipulation that has been placed on the fund is that it be used for something that will benefit the entire college community and the alumni. The Husky Contingency Fund consists of funds accumulated over many years. A conference-recreation center is one suggested possibility should a suitable location be found.

College store expands

(continued from page five) these same items were 70 per cent and 30 per cent, respectively, in 1968. The College Store is attempting to provide the campus community with items you have asked to see in the store.

Profits from the store are generated primarily through luxury or non-essential items. Because of the College Store Philosophy (see box page 8) of providing discounts on educational items, less than one per cent profit will be made on books. Conversely, profits will be greatest on non-required gift items. Most of these profits are then transferred to the Kehr Union for programming activities. The remaining profits will be used to increase available merchandise inventory and some capital expansion projects.

COMPUTER AIDS STUDENTS

Providing funds to the Kehr Union is important, however, service is still the keyword in the College Store operation. Many new services are added each year and this year is no different. The most noteworthy, yet least known service, is the use of the B.S.C. computer to aid the textbook buyer in analyzing the textbook requirements for each semester. By using the computer as a storage and clearing facility for the huge amounts of information needed to order the right number of books, the process has become more efficient thereby causing fewer last minute orders, "out-of-print" books, and "out-of-stock" books. As this system is developed, the hope is to use the computer for all phases of the College Store management.

Another service instituted this year is mini-charge accounts for incoming Freshmen. By making advance deposits in an account, students were able to "charge" for purchases of all merchandise. Expansion of this program is already being considered to include upperclassmen and eventually to where B.S.C. College Store charge cards are issued as in the case of VISA or Master Charge.

If you would like to see a product sold in the College Store or if you need help in finding merchandise, talk to the College Store Manager, Mr. William Bailey. He'll be glad to serve you.

College Store philosophy

The philosophy of the college Store is to charge as little as possible for educational items and to make a profit on non-required items. The profits made are utilized to increase the inventory and to provide funds for the Kehr College Union Program Board in sponsoring movies, dances, coffeehouses, special events and other activities.

Vote for support

(continued from page one) is very important; any ballot with the stub left on is no good. Then drop the ballot in the box. That's all there is to it.

In 1973, the college campus was designated a voting district all by itself, and ever since that time, the election board has consisted entirely of students.

The present members are: judge of elections: Jim Menapace; majority inspector: Pam Shay; majority inspector's clerk: Maura Evans; minority inspector: Connie Shop; minority inspector's clerk: Michael Goc.

The following districts are to be used for voting: the district listed on your voter registration card determines where you will vote.

- Bloomsburg 1—Court House, Main Street, opposite Sears.
- Bloomsburg 2—Winona Fire Hall, 3rd and Center Streets.
- Bloomsburg 3-1—Housenick Ford, Main and East Streets.
- Bloomsburg 3-2—Kehr Union, Multipurpose Rooms.
- Bloomsburg 4—Rescue Hose Co., next to the Good Old Days on 5th Street near East.
- Bloomsburg 5—Town Shed, 8th and Catherine Streets.
- Bloomsburg 6—Ambulance

Building, next to Town Hall, Main and East Streets (across the street from Housenick Ford).

Bloomsburg 7—Liberty Hose Company, Main and Leonard Streets.

Bloomsburg 8—Friendship Fire Company, 7th and Center Streets.

Main Township—Mainville Fire Hall. Follow the road to Mainville.

Scott East 1—Espy Fire Hall, in Espy on Old Berwick Road.

Scott East 2—Social Hall of United Methodist Church, 2361 Old Berwick Road.

Scott West—Lightstreet Fire Hall. Follow Pa. 487 north until you have crossed I-80. Then turn left and follow the road into Lightstreet.

The Morning Press publishes a complete list of all polling places in Columbia County. If you have any questions as to where you should vote, call the Court House 784-1991 and ask for Voter Registration.

Now lets show these candidates that BSC is willing to take a little time on November 7 between 7 a.m. and 8 p.m. to elect candidates who will work for you. Show them that YOU care, then they will see the purpose of working for you.

Student teachers meeting

There will be a meeting for all student teachers enrolling in their professional semester, Spring 1979, November 7 at 3 p.m. in Room 205 of Sutliff Hall.

Rubin was also associated with the October 1967 march on the Pentagon in Washington, and the Democratic National Convention demonstrations in Chicago in 1968. He is known as a participant in the five and a half month trial, the Chicago Conspiracy Trial, which resulted in riots on over 100 campuses throughout the nation.

Meeting scheduled

Attention Olympian staff members or those interested. There will be a meeting of the Olympian staff on Monday Nov. 6 at 6:30 p.m. in the Coffeehouse located on the top floor of the Kehr Union. We will be editing some copy and preparing for the composition of the December edition of the 78 Olympian. All BSC members are invited to attend and offer their suggestions for the college magazine! This is a mandatory staff meeting!

Letters

(continued from page three) Perhaps student energies expended in dreaming up and implementing various fraternity and sorority pledges might be more productively utilized in facilitating community or campus service projects. In so doing, these organizations would be productive, (in contrast with destructive) and might redeem some of the student and faculty respect they have lost by continuing to carry on a "tradition" that has absolutely no meaning.

WITH A DIXIE MELODY...New Orleans jazz comes to BSC next Wed. as the Preservation Hall Jazz Band makes its arrival in Haas. (Non-Staff Photo)

New Orleans jazz played with spirit

Preservation Hall Jazz Band, a group of New Orleans musicians who have traveled the world playing the famous music they created decades ago, will hold a concert on Wednesday, Nov. 8 in Haas Auditorium.

Now in their 60's, 70s and 80s, the band members still play with the spirit and joy that is symbolic of New Orleans jazz.

"Jazz" — as it was originally called — is a creative amalgam of marches, quadrilles, blues, spirituals and ragtime. It's music these very men drew from the saloons, streets and river boats when this century was still young.

Young and old audiences alike are excited by the universal appeal of this irresistible music.

Cheech and Chong

From hit record to hot movie

The Cheech and Chong story began one rainy night in Vancouver, British Columbia, sometime in September of 1969 when a mutual friend brought Cheech, who had migrated to Canada during the Vietnam War, to the Shanghai Junk, a topless night club which was owned and operated by Tommy Chong.

Chong had just arrived from Los Angeles, where he had been playing guitar in a Motown R & B band. The group, Bobby Taylor and the Vancouvers, had a hit written by Chong, "Does Your Mama Know About Me."

He had quit the band and was in the process of turning the family-owned night club into a hip topless improvisation company, which he named the City Works.

The group included three former topless dancers, a mime artist, a classical guitarist and a weird assortment of long-haired hippy freaks, and was kept busy working four hours a night entertaining audiences which consisted mainly of dirty old men, loggers, sailors and a variety of other perverts who come to see naked girls.

The revue prospered, and the word spread around Vancouver that something was happening at the Shanghai Junk. Soon they were playing to packed houses nightly. It was around this time that Cheech, or Richard Marin as he was known then, appeared on the scene looking for a job as an actor.

Tommy Chong and Richard Marin met for the first time in a farmhouse outside of Vancouver. Richard thought Tommy looked like a Hell's Angel and Tommy thought Richard looked like an East Indian. It was weird at first sight.

The troupe lasted until Dec. 26, 1969, leaving Tommy Chong and Richard Marin to form their own band. They worked on tunes and landed a gig at a battle of the bands in Vancouver. When it came their turn to play, they went into their City Works routine and had the audience rolling and screaming in laughter, something no one had done before. They kept it up for 45 minutes and left the stage to a standing ovation. It was incredible.

CHEECH AND CHONG WAS BORN

Tommy and Richard realized they had something special and discussed their future, and started to throw out names. Tommy and Richard? No, too straight! Chong and Marin? Naw. Tommy asked Richard, "Do you have a nickname?" Richard said, "All Mexicans have nicknames." His was "Cheech", named by his uncle after Cheecharones, a Mexican hors d'oeuvre. And so Cheech & Chong was born.

They headed back to Los Angeles where after playing and working in various local night clubs, they established a following and were soon seen by record mogul Lou Adler who signed them to a record deal.

Their five albums to date — "Cheech & Chong," "Big Bambu," "Los Cochinos," "Cheech & Chong's Wedding Album" and "Sleeping Beauty" — have sold over ten million copies. Their first four became platinum discs, the fifth earned a gold record. Their first three were multiple Grammy Award nominees.

They made record history revitalizing an industry that hadn't had comedy top-seller in ten years. Even in the peak of the era they satirize (the early- to mid-Sixties) comedy albums had never known such popularity. They reopened the comedy market to the likes of George Carlin, Richard Pryor and Steve Martin.

Cheech & Chong singles — "Earache My Eye," "Sister Mary Elephant" and "Basketball Jones" — quickly skyrocketed to Top Ten chart positions. "Earache My Eye" is featured in "Up in Smoke."

BSC hockey season ends; tournament next

by FRAN BOLGER

The Bloomsburg Huskies battled to a 1-1 tie on Monday with visiting Lehigh University. This game has traditionally been very physical. The trend continued in this year's contest. Numerous stick obstructions, undercutting and blockouts took place, although few were called.

In the first half, both teams played slow and ultra-conservative hockey. Bloomsburg managed to break through for its lone score with only a few minutes left in the half. After a seemingly broken play, the Huskies demonstrated the scoring rush that has made them successful this season. Senior wing Robin Mauer assisted Freshman Joni Mahoney in the scoring effort.

Lehigh controlled the first part of the second half, managing to score on the strong shot of Kim Lelinski four minutes into the half. The Huskies regained control for the remainder of the half, but were unable to put it together for the tie breaking goal.

Coach Hutchinson noted that Lehigh was more physical and that Bloomsburg seemed to back away. She didn't feel that Lehigh was the better team, but rather it was her teams' reluctance to be more aggressive that accounted for the tie.

The same theme ran true on the junior varsity level. The J. V. team experienced frustration also, as their game produced a 0-0 tie.

The Lehigh game marked the last appearance of Seniors Robin Mauer, Robin Miller, Donna Santa Maria, Terry McHale and Cheryl Krause on their home field. All five women have been with the team for four seasons.

The Huskies take a 9-3-1 record into post-season play, a record their coach feels is good, but should be better. They'll be aiming to better it at a tournament at Bucknell this weekend.

BSC wins 7-0

Wolves lose cool

by LAURA KROSCHESKY

The Bloomsburg soccer team shut out their guests, Cheyney State College, by a score of 7-0, in a very physical and tense game Tuesday afternoon at Redman Stadium.

A total of 31 fouls were committed during the game of which 15 were made by Bloomsburg players. Three of Cheyney's players were ejected from the game because of personal fouls, and the team had to finish the last two minutes of play with only eight men on the field.

BSC SCORED

...A LOT

Steve Buch, assisted by Jim Moyer, started the scoring for the Huskies at 8:26 in the first half with an eight yard shot.

Right wing George Steele then converted a pass from Jim Mailey for the second goal at 24:00.

Twelve minutes later, Tim Delp sent a ball to Mailey, who made a successful six yard shot.

Mailey scored again with an unassisted play, 15 minutes into the second half.

Sophomore Brian Tarlecki took advantage of a pass from Buch and scored the fifth goals of the game.

Fifteen minutes later the ball deflected off of Cheyney's defense into the net, and Tarlecki was credited with the goal.

With three minutes left to play, halfback John Millhouse moved into the front line and scored his first goal of the season. He ended the scoring for the Huskies with the seventh goal.

Cheyney is a first year varsity team with fast moves and decent ball control, but obviously had trouble Tuesday maintaining their composure with the referees.

Bloomsburg, with a 10-1 record, will play its only remaining game of the regular season when they host East Stroudsburg State College on Nov. 4 at 10:00 a.m.

Sunday will be the last day to order fruit from the baseball team. If you are interested contact a member of the team or call head coach Clark Boler.

SO WHERE ARE THEY?...The soccer team seems to be wondering as they wait in eager anticipation for their clash with Cheyney.
