Graduation to be at fairgrounds

CAS to host lobby conference

The newly released governors budget and the upcoming CAS Lobby Conference to be held this weekend in Harrisburg will be featured at the Commonwealth Association of Students open meeting at 6:30 p.m. tonight in the Coffeehouse.

The governors budget provides for a 7 percent increase in appropriations for the PA State College and University System. The Department of Education had originally requested a budget increase of nearly 13 percent.

The effect of 7 percent upon the PSCU system and its students cannot be determined according to two BSC administrative spokesmen.

Some cuts in student services or an increase in tuition might be necessary to make up the difference, according to CAS officials.

The effects of the budget will serve as the focal point for the upcoming CAS Lobby Conference. During the conference workshops will be conducted to inform participants of the budget process, and of the process. This will culminate on Monday when the conference participants will meet with Attention Seniors! It has been decided that graduation will be held at the fairgrounds on May 20.

Corey Waters, senior class president, said he received over 300 responses to the last article in the Campus Voice regarding the proposal to have three separate ceremonies in Haas Auditorium.

Of the 300 responses, all but one senior wanted to stick with the traditional practice of having graduation at the fairgrounds.

There are some changes, however, Waters said. Because some seniors expressed a desire to be recognized individually, the names of each graduate will be read and he or she will stand up for recognition.

In the past graduates were recognized only according to school. The person with the highest cumulative average from each school will still go forward to receive a diploma. If it rains, individual names will not be read.

Dr. Sylvia Heart, professor and dean at the college of Nursing of the University of Tennessee, will be the speaker.

Heart was chosen because the first nursing class will be graduating. When a new department is established, it has been a tradition to choose a speaker from that field.

A baccalaureate service will be held Sunday morning in Haas Auditorium.

A reception will be held after graduation on campus. There graduates will hand in their caps and gowns and receive their diplomas.

A special ceremony will be held for those graduating with highest honors, where they will receive their diplomas.

HEAVY RAIN and the spring melting process caused the Susquehanna River in Bloomsburg to leave its boundaries and seep into the streets of the town. Here, water has covered sections of Ferry Road by the East Bloom Bridge.

Planning Commission looks ahead

At a recent meeting of the Planning Commission retention, admissions and the 1980's at BSC were discussed.

Retention denotes a fundamental and close scrutiny of programs at BSC. A special emphasis will be addressed to students individualizations at some point in his-her stay here.

Supportive services, developmental studies and the building of basic skills should be the main focus of the institution in admitting future students.

BSC will have to find new students in the future and develop programs to meet their individual needs.

According to the Planning Commission statistics there is 33 percent of the population not attending college who could benefit from higher education in the 1980's. BSC has to develop and institute ways of addressing individual needs to best benefit these and all students to reach their highest potential.

Campus bank institutes changes

by MIKE MIXELL

The campus branch of the Bloomsburg Bank-Columbia Trust Co. has instituted new policies which will effect the students.

Effective Feb. 1, 1979, a service charge of $2.00 a month is assessed to checking accounts with a balance of less than $100. A charge of $1.00 a month is assessed to checking accounts with a balance between $100 and $200.

Because of these increased changes, some students have been looking for alternatives to doing business at the campus bank. One alternative is choosing a bank downtown. At First Eastern Bank, located at Main and Market Sts. and on Rt. 11, there is only a $1.00 a month charge on checking accounts with a minimum balance less than $100. Free checking is provided at this bank if a $100 balance is maintained.

At United Penn Bank, 37 W. Main St., the service charge is $1.00 monthly for a balance of less than $100 and free checking with an average balance of $100 or more. At United Penn, the balance can go below $100 during the month without getting the service charge.

The campus branch of Bloomsburg Bank Columbia Trust Co. also charges 50 cents to withdraw money from a savings account. At both First Eastern and United Penn, there is no charge for withdrawing money from a regular passbook savings account.

Another alternative that is available to the students is to deal with the bank in their home towns. Using this alternative, the student has the advantage of dealing with a bank that they are more familiar with. One place to start with in finding a bank at home is where your parents do their business, because your parents have probably been doing business with that bank for years.

Swimmers 4th in PSAC

by CINDY PECK

The BSC men's swimming and diving team placed fourth in the Pennsylvania State Championships hosted by the Huskies on March 1-3.

Five Bloomsburg swimmers will compete in the Division II Nationals at Northern Michigan University in Marquette, Michigan on March 15-18.

At the end of the competition, BSC coach Eli McLaughlin was voted "Coach of the Year". Steve Price, Wayne Richards, Pete Dardaris, John Krick and Randy Spence fared well in the field of 130 swimmers and will be competing in the nationals.

In Thursday's events, freshman Bill Wolfe chopped eight seconds off his best time in the 500 yd. freestyle, but failed to qualify for nationals. In the 200 yd. individual medley, John Conte cut four seconds off his best time, while Reik Foust cut five from his; however, neither swimmer qualified for nationals as the competition was stiff.

Upward Bound

HS students taste BSC life

by JULIE STAMETS

The purpose of helping high school students generate the skills and motivation necessary for success in post secondary education is the concern of a new program in its initial year at Bloomsburg State College.

Upward Bound, formed out of the Department of Educational Studies and Services, is the new program funded by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare that is designed to help students who have academic potential but lack adequate preparation in the basic academic areas due to financial, home or personal problems.

'The Upward Bound participants are receiving opportunities and experiences they would not normally witness.'

The program accepts up to 50 high school students from eight area school districts: Bloomsburg, Berwick, Danville, Shikellamy, Shamokin, Mt. Carmel, Pottsville and Tamaqua.

Upward Bound is divided into two phases, the academic year program and the six-week summer residency program at BSC.

During the school year the students attend two-hour sessions at their own schools and are offered help in such areas as counseling and school work.

The summer months bring the students to the college to reside in the dormitories for six weeks. Morning sessions are held and give aid to the students in writing, reading and math. The afternoon is spent with recreation time available.

Tutors who act as counselors also live in the dorms with the Upward Bound students. There are also older supervisors involved in the program.

Numerous trips may be offered to the students including possible trips to New York City and Hershey Park.

The Upward Bound participants are receiving opportunities and experiences they would not normally witness. While many of the students are from low-income homes they are offered the chance to receive more education and see what it is like.

Upward Bound at BSC relies on high school and community agency referrals. Since guidance counselors, high school principals, teachers and caseworkers are constantly working with students, they are ideal in identifying and recommending students who would benefit from the program. The students, in turn, discover what their potential is with Upward Bound.

BSC 'fasts' for hungry

By SUE POTTER

Have you been hungry lately or seen a starving child? Can you imagine a life with too little food in the world where gluttony exists?

We are the gluttons and each of us daily eats more food than some people see in months. The world hunger problem seems distant to us and on such a grand scale that we, here in a small american college, think there is nothing we can do to help these starving people.

The Bloomsburg Christian Fellowship and SAGA Food Service invite you to help them feed hungry people.

Tuesday, March 20, 1979 is Fast Day. Students, faculty and staff are urged to live just one day without food, as many people live every day.

Joe Winters, SAGA Food Service director at BSC offered to donate the money saved from meal ticket holders not eating on Fast Day to world hunger organization, Food for the Hungry.

Tables will be named in both lobbies of the Commons Monday, March 12 through Thursday, March 15 to sign up to fast. Your meal ticket will be punched at that time to verify your commitment to fast.

So you do not dwell on your empty bellies; Movies will be shown at lunchtime (10:30-1) in multipurpose room A and a coffeehouse Presented at dinnertime (4-6) in the President's Lounge.

If you cannot fast for medical reasons, and want to help feed the hungry, money donations may be sent to Lycoming Hall Box No. 5233.

Faculty, students, staff and administrators are encouraged to feel, for one day, how many people feel every day - hungry.

Madwoman needs a boost

BY JIM PEFFLEY

Can an insane countess exterminate the evil in society and get away with it? This was the question raised with the curtain at last weekend's production of "The Madwoman of Chaillot" by the Bloomsburg Players.

The satirical comedy of Jean Giraudoux involved the plottings of the Countess Aurelia, the Madwoman of Chaillot, and her 'lowly' friends in ridding the world of the bankers, prospectors and press agents who wished to demolish Paris in order to drill for oil. By attacking their greed, she lures them to their doom in her cellar.

A burst of talent exploded on the stage with an unusually large cast. Most crowd scenes were ably handled, and surrealistic images added to the hilarity. How the three ladies in black could sit perfectly still, as if drawn by Dali, was beyond me.

In the lead role of Aurelia, Becky Ermisch captured the soft regality and inner strength of the madwoman. Her idiosyncrasies were deliciously served, but for one fault. At times, her reveries reduced her lines to a soft mumble.

Others to be noted include Carlton Whittington, as a delightfully wicked Brechtian president and Joe Maltivi as an oil-drunk prospector. Their squeals and exclamations were perfect. However, at times they were spoken too fast for the audience to hear.

Randall Lutz, as the deaf mute, added an extra spark of slapstick humor, as did Karla Blankenhorn, stage manager, in an amusing cameo as an investment-minded kook.

Of course, most of the comedy was struck by the insane. A particularly hilarious scene involving Ermisch, Cathy Sneiderman as Mme. Constance and Sue Moshinsky as Mlle. Gabrielle. During their plottings, Constance frets about her imaginary dog Dickie while Gabrielle talks to imaginary people. The lunatic antics of the actresses made the people and dog seem most real.

Satire reached its peak in Daniel Boone's portrayal of the ragpicker. Designated to represent the wealthy at a mock trial, Boone's gestures and speech were biting caustic and sarcastic.

Perhaps one of the most excruciating scenes was the appearance of the press agents. They wiggled and jiggled in an uncalled-for imitation. Steve Martin does not belong in a Giraudoux play.

As I said previously, a lot of talent presented itself on stage, but sadly, I felt the director, Michael J. McHale, didn't really know what to do with them. True, the play moralizes, but why have the actors deliver their lines directly to the audience? The lines can speak for themselves, and in order to make the 'insane' actions real, the dialogue should be realistic. Instead, at times, it appeared to be a sermon.

Also, the opening set detracted slightly from the realism. The backdrop appeared to have been made in a hurry, without much emphasis on detail. However, Joanne Millard's design for act two was

Loyd sings at Coffeehouse

Toby Loyd, a unique singer, songwriter and left-handed guitarist, is appearing today, March 14 at 12 noon in a coffeehouse in the Presidents Lounge of the Union.

Loyd, a special education major, was born and raised in Florham Park, N.J., where he began his musical career. By the time he graduated from high school, he had cut his first solo album, which was marketed regionally.

Recently he was the M.C. for the Dating Game. Last semester, he was the opening act for Harry Chapin at a soldout concert in Haas Auditorium. Loyd has performed in 15 states.

Loyd says he writes songs all the time - some funny, some happy and some sad. His repertoire includes his own arrangements of current popular songs.

Admission is free, so for an entertaining break from classes, stop down and see Toby Loyd.

Special People... People Who Care

Honoring a theater 'guru'

BY JIM PEFFLEY

A resource that should not go to waste. That is how Tony Roberts, star of stage, film and television described the Bloomsburg Theater Ensemble (BTE) at a recent fund raiser for BTE.

Roberts, a former student of Alvina Krause, artistic director of BTE, met with the media recently prior to a film festival featuring Krause and BTE at the Bloomsburg High School.

Roberts, most noted for his stage and film performances of "Play It Again, Sam," "Serpico" and "Annie Hall," studied under Krause while she taught speech at Northwestern University. His esteem for her, his love of the theater and optimism for BTE prompted his appearance.

The "grass roots" beginnings of BTE and its success have been due to, according to Roberts, an increasing audience appeal towards theater and away from the "electronic box" of television.

Krause said, everyone has a yearning to find oneself, which is accomplished by the actor on stage. His individual reactions are transferred to the audience and become universal. This duality adds to its appeal.

VIEWS ON THE MEDIA

On a more personal level, Roberts expressed his views about the differences between the various theatrical outlets.

Television, to Roberts, seemed the best money-wise but was the least creatively rewarding. "It is usually bad material fast."

Control is in the director's hands, in films but "is a short ride for actors." The constant filming and stops between takes gives the actor little sense of participation.

Having performed in over 100 CBS Radio Mystery Theater productions, Roberts enjoys the resurgence of radio drama since the audience is allowed to use their imaginations more fully than video productions.

In theater, something new is always discovered, said Roberts. Theater involves "instant problems" and poses as the most challenging and enjoyable of the outlets.

Naturally, Roberts was asked what Woody Allen was like. Roberts said, he is "complex, enigmatic, gentle, generous and very disciplined."

FUTURE NOTICES

Presently, Roberts is preparing for a new Broadway show, "Murder at the Howard Johnson's," and will be seen shortly, with Ali McGraw in the film "Just Tell Me What You Want."

The film festival included: "Any Empty Space," which portrayed a mime company's growth; a public service announcement of Krause and one of the classes she conducts at her home in Bloomsburg; and "Alvina Krause-Class Notes 1976-77," a documentary on Krause, to be aired in part on WVIA-TV Channel 44 in April.

BTE, composed of students of Krause, will perform Chekhov's "The Seagull" at Bucknell University on Friday, April 20 at 8:30 p.m. and on Saturday, April 21 at 1:30 p.m. Ticket information can be obtained by calling 717-524-3261.

Cheryl Walker

Student enters beauty pageant

BY ROBERT McMULLIN

Spring break offers the opportunity to participate in many activities. One Bloomsburg student, Cheryl Walker, had the unique experience of taking part in the Miss Pennsylvania Pageant outside of Pittsburgh.

Walker, sophomore, from Dresher, PA, represented her area in the pageant. The winner would go to the Mississippi Gulf Coast for Miss U.S.A. Pageant as Miss Pennsylvania.

Last January, 93 applicants ranging from ages 18-25, were accepted from various parts of PA, Walker applied in response to a local newspaper ad. Each applicant submitted an autobiography, picture and application. Walker was notified of her acceptance in late February, which created a hectic two-week period for her.

First of all, her mother needed to make a costume depicting her hometown area. Meanwhile, Walker obtained $400 in sponsorship money from hometown merchants.

The contest included such activities as personality, poise, evening gown and bathing suit. All contestants were judged for originality and beauty. They also had escorts. "All of us had one to protect us from possible dangers," she commented.

The pageant took place March 2-5, and consisted of 15 semifinalists of which 5 were chosen for the final decision on Miss Pennsylvania. The winner received $500, a scholarship to the Wheeler School of Modeling, and a $1200 wardrobe. Runners up received $70 of makeup, and a gold pin for their efforts.

Unfortunately, Walker did not place in the semi-finals. However, she was glad of the experience. "I was glad of the opportunity to participate, although I'm not sure if I would do it again." Her major is mass

by NANCY FAUSNAUGHT

Do students have pride in BSC? Do they go home and show pride to prospective students? These questions were asked by Dr. R. W. Thomas, guest speaker at the last Representative Assembly meeting.

Thomas, a former BSC graduate is now director of Resident Life at Indiana University of PA. He came to BSC to speak on "Marketing in Higher Education."

Thomas emphasized the importance of career orientation in education today.

"We must be offering something in return to show the state we are worth giving money to," he said.

If state colleges close, it is a reflection on the system. Therefore we must adjust our curriculums to meet the needs of students, or perish, Thomas said.

The committee on Rules and Procedures brought before the Assembly a statement concerning policy in regard to minority groups. The statement reads: "All committees and subcommittees of the Representative Assembly should be formed with sensitivity to minority group membership."

Some assembly members felt the statement was not strong enough and did not actively solicit membership by minorities. However, the statement was approved.

Beverly Howard was chosen to replace Duane Long to serve on the Rules Committee.

A question arose as to how faculty are selected as advisors to fraternities and sororities, and if they are responsible under the law. Dr. Griffis, vice-president of Student Life, explained that some are appointed by Student Life, while others choose to advise.

Griffis is currently investigating total liability of professors on campus. A report on this will be given at the next meeting if possible.

The Planning Commission's next meeting is today at 3:00 p.m. in the coffeehouse. On March 22 their plans will be brought before the assembly for comment.

Master plan approved

The Master Plan for Higher Education of 1978 was approved by the state board of education last November.

The plan deals with higher education and the issues of access, choice, excellence, organization, governance and finance.

Collectively, task force recommendations proved a base for four major concepts: academic excellence in higher education, structure of higher education, need for program changes and realignment and strengthening of support of higher education.

Three major issues that confront us for the 1980's are: decline in traditional student pool (18-22 age group) of 24 percent by 1990; Pennsylvania low level of financial support for higher education and the misconception that an oversupply of college graduates exist in some fields and that college education may be worthless.

New post secondary programs approved by the Department of Education for BSC are: MA degree in Art, BA in American Studies and a BS in Geology.

Minorities represented

The Coalition Against Discrimination of the Commonwealth Association of Students, now five months old, is growing stronger on both local and state-wide levels. The coalition is composed of four task forces: Third World (black and hispanic students), the Gay Information and Concerns Team (GIACT), and Disabled Students and the Women's Task Force working toward having all four of these active on all 14 campuses.

The Womens Task Force is researching a uniform security policy for all the campuses and planning two regional Women's Festivals. The Third World Task Force is making plans to go into High Schools and informally discuss what these students, especially as minorities, can expect to meet at college.

The Gay Information and Concerns Team is working on the inclusion of the phrase "sexual and affectional preference" in college Affirmative Action policies where such factors as race, sex, national origin, etc. already appear. The Disabled Students Task Force is checking on the implementation of Section 504 for safety and accessibility, and the feasibility of a course for Elementary and Secondary Education majors in dealing with disabled students in their classrooms.

The primary goal of the coalition is the indication of discrimination. Kathi Shaw, co-chair of the coalition, stresses that participation in the coalition is based solely on interest. "A student certainly doesn't have to be disabled to be involved with the Task Force, nor gay to be active in the GIACT, and so on", Shaw asserted. "We want students who are interested in working toward equal human and civil rights for all people."

Anyone desiring further information is encouraged to contact CAS people on campus.

London theatre trip offered

Plans have been completed for a spring theatre study trip to London from May 18 to 28, 1979. Included in the trip package are the round trip flight by Overseas Charter (the Laker group), nine nights at the Hyde Park Tower Hotel (with continental breakfast), round trip bus transportation between Bloomsburg and Kennedy Airport, at least five theatre tickets, a half-day of London sight-seeing and a four-day go-as-you-please underground and bus pass in London.

Theatre selections with focus on the offerings at the new National Theatre complex on the South Bank of the Thames, with plays running the gamut from Shakespeare to Pinter. A backstage tour and informal discussions with various members of the London theatrical profession (including writers) are being planned.

The trip is open to students and non-students and affords the opportunity to earn three undergraduate credits as English 400, Literary Study Abroad. Interested persons should see Dr. Susan Rusinko, English Department, Bakeless 117, BSC or call 389-2415 for further information. The deadline for trip registration is March 18.

Stealing a phone call isn't a game.

Most students play by the rules when placing a long distance call. They take advantage of bargain rates and make their calls during the discount periods. If you're not sure when you can call at discount rates, check your phone book.

A few students think it's O.K. to break the rules by stealing their telephone calls. They're not beating the system, they're taking advantage of all of us, because it drives up the cost of providing telephone service.

Students who break the rules also run the risk of paying a large fine. Spending time in jail. And getting themselves a permanent police record.

It's just not worth it!

Dr. White chairs chemical society

Dr. Norman E. White, professor of chemistry at Bloomsburg State College, is currently chairing the Susquehanna Valley Section of the American Chemical Society which will hold its Student Awards Banquet at BSC on May 9. He has previously served as chairman-elect, program chairman and was a member of various committees both in this section and the Philadelphia Section, in which he was active before coming to BSC in 1965.

Dr. White presides over the 170 members of the SVS, one of 175 sections in the United States. The ACS has approximately 110,000 chemists or chemical engineers as members, and is the largest and most influential chemical society in the world. It publishes 23 chemical journals.

The Susquehanna Valley Section holds monthly business meetings during the academic year, at which invited speakers lecture on different aspects of chemistry. Following the Student Awards Banquet, a lecture on "Science vs. Humanities; No Contest," will be given by Dr. Leon Mandell of Emory University. Interested members of the public are invited to this speech.

Other members of the BSC chemistry department active in leadership roles in the section include Dr. Lawrence Mack, chairman of the Nominations and Awards Committee, and Dr. Daniel Pantaleo, chairman of the Education Committee. Also, Dr. Barrett Benson recently retired from a three-year stint as secretary, and Dr. Roy Pointer from the Chairmanship of the Educational Resources Committee. The College is recognized by the American Chemical Society for excellence in its Chemistry department.

Press Caravan "Phanatical"

by ELLIE HATCH

Return address: Philadelphia Phillies. For once, something other than a press release from East Gibip University in the Campus Voice sports department mailbox.

The invitation inside was impressive, printed on white paper with red pinstripes. PHILLIES PRESS CARAVAN 1979 headed the page. Son of a gun. A pass to a dinner and press conference with a touring party including "...Pete Rose, Garry Maddox, Mike Schmidt, along with members of the organization's management, and the Phillie Phanatic" for a reporter from the Campus Voice.

Well, I didn't know what the heck a Phillie Phanatic was, but the prospect of dinner with the other guys listed was enough to make me RSVP immediately.

The Phillies do this every year, touring parts of the states meeting the press and promoting ticket sales. They stop at two towns each day, staying long enough for a one hour press conference, and a two hour luncheon or dinner attended by approximately 500 ticket holding residents of that area who were willing to pay $7.00 to get in.

Trying to imagine what a big-time press conference would be like, I envisioned a huge table headed by the Phillies, surrounded by an orderly group of reporters and cameras.

It didn't take long to realize that my vision was out in left field. When I arrived at the Motor Inn in Scranton, the place was a mob scene. Women with cameras, holding on to young children dressed in Phillies uniforms, young teens waving autograph books and businessmen in three piece suits were all pushed together in the lobby and on the stairs leading to the conference and banquet rooms.

I squeezed through the crowd and presented my press pass to the guard at the conference room door. It wasn't quite what I expected. The large room was an electronic jungle. Cameras and microphones cluttered the place. It was furnished by two tables - one at which the Phillies sat, the other in the back of the room serving as an open bar.

With one quick glance around the room, I realized that there were two people in the room who stood out as not quite fitting in with the group of 40. One standout was myself, being the only female in the room; the other was a huge creature that reminded me of Big Bird from Sesame Street. It was green, fuzzy, 7' tall, with large plastic eyes, a large belly and a 5' snout. I found it friendly looking but somewhat grotesque. "It" was the Phillie Phanatic.

The session was hardly the calm orderly one I anticipated. Chaotic describes it better. Scurrying reporters and harried technicians jockeyed hard for position in front of the table where Rose, Maddox, Schmidt and the others sat. I tried to blend in, getting close enough to take pictures and notes; this was my big shot at a professional affair and I wanted to look like I knew what I was doing.

It was fairly easy to do as the whole scene became rather wild.

All at once bright television lights went on, and reporters screamed questions to the superstars at the table who looked more bored by the minute, having been through the same scene in other towns several times before. The reporters who couldn't tear themselves from the open bar in the back of the room began to get loud.

Some semblance of order was restored long enough for Rose to assure the reporters that he is undoubtedly worth every penny he's getting.

"I've already paid for my salary, and I haven't even swung a bat for the Phillies yet. Baseball's more than hitting and catching. You have to get people into the park. Hell yes, I am worth it."

Another reporter mercilessly asked Maddox about the fly ball he missed during the play - off. "Darn," he said, "every time I hear something drop on the floor I see that ball coming at me. I replay it so often in my mind that one of these times I'm going to catch it."

As the "formal" question and answer period ended, the press was permitted to interview the players one on one-if they could get close enough. Reporters were pushing and shoving, attempting to get close enough to fire a question or take a good shot.

I was beginning to feel comfortable among the professionals. And then it happened.

I was attacked by the Phillie Phanatic. The only female, I must have been an easy target. Noticing that I was being followed, I did my best to stay clear of him. The little chasing game was beginning to attract attention and a few laughs. I was horrified. It was tough to act dignified with a seven-foot

THING following you. Control left completely when "it" put its snout in my face and held my hand. Heck, even Rose thought it was funny. So, I gave the Phanatic an icy cold shoulder

I found out later that by that move, I struck out in the true sense of the word. For, inside that Phanatic uniform was not an ugly face comparable to the outside mask; rather, it was a beautiful blond guy with a face that would bat .1000 in any handsomeness contest.

Ah, the thrill of victory ... and the agony ...

BSC hurler signs with Brewers

by JIM QUINN

Bob "Hoot" Gibson, assistant baseball coach and student at Bloomsburg State College, signed a professional contract with the Milwaukee Brewers baseball club. The contract was signed last Wednesday, March 7, at Gibson's home in Springfield, Delaware county. He will report to spring training in Phoenix, Arizona on March 18.

Brewer scout Joe McIlvaine spotted the 6'1, 195 pound righthander during the Huskies Florida trip during spring break. Gibson struck out sixteen men during an exhibition game. Following the game, scouts from the Baltimore Orioles, as well as from Milwaukee, spoke to Gibson. He rejected a Baltimore contract to make the deal with Milwaukee. During his playing career at Bloomsburg, Gibson was a varsity starter all four years. In addition, he was named co-captain by his teammates for his last two years. In 1976, "Hoot" was ranked eighth in the NCAA in strikeouts. Last year, he was rated seventh. His best performance as a Husky came last year against Millersville when he hurled a twelve-strikeout, one-hitter, in BSC's win 1-0. He also pitched a two-hitter last year against Mansfield to help the Huskies win the ECAC crown. His excellent performance throughout last season earned him first team, All-Conference honors.

Gibson becomes the second Bloomsburg pitching coach to sign a major league contract. Paul Hartzell, who helped coach the Huskies in 1976, is now a pitcher with the Minnesota Twins.

Grapplers do well

by FRAN BOLGER

The Huskies sent a record five wrestlers to the NCAA Division I Championships as a result of their performance in the Eastern Wrestling League Tournament at the University of Pittsburgh.

Don Reese, 126 lbs., and Dom DiGiacchino, 167 lbs., captured individual titles to help Bloomsburg to a second place finish in the qualifying contest for nationals.

DiGiacchino is a repeat performer having won the 177 lb. title last year. He is the first wrestler to win in two different weight classes in the history of the four year EWL. The BSC junior scored an 8-3 decision over Skip Bolin of Pittsburgh in his final bout. Bolin won the tournament in 1976, but sat out the 1977-78 season due to a serious auto accident.

Freshman Reese used riding time points to defeat Pitt's Jose Martinez when their bout ended with a 4-4 draw. Reese came back after being down 2-0 in the first period to score a 5-4 final decision.

Two more Huskies making their trip to Ames, Iowa are Tony Caravella and Andy Cappelli.

Caravella lost this final bout 6-5 on riding time point to Craig Derenik of Cleveland State. Derenik led 5-1 midway through the second period, but Caravella came back with a rally of four straight points.

Senior Cappelli also fell to a Cleveland grappler. Penalty points were his demise as his final bout ended in an 11-9 decision for Joe Palivoda. Cappelli also demonstrated an impressive rally as he trailed 9-3 with about two minutes left in the bout.

Two third place finishes were awarded to senior Carl Poff, 134, and freshman Joe Wade, 190.

An 11-5 decision over Penn State's Jim Earl gave Poff his victory in the consolation finals. Poff will also travel to the midwest as a result of his wild card pick.

Wade beat Pitt's Pat Connor 7-3 in his consolation bout. A four point rally in the third period set up his decision.

Fourth place winners Gibbes Johnson and Mel Sharp lost in their consolation bouts. Johnson lost to West Virginia's Rod Johnson and Sharp to Steve Socharski of Pitt. In preliminary action Sharp managed to set an EWL record with an 18 second pin over West Virginia's Steve Swansowski.

Bucky McCollum wrestled with a serious knee injury and lost 13-5 to Toby Matey of Cleveland State in overtime.

Cleveland State won the tournament with 78 1/4 points. BSC took second with 63 1/2 points, Clarion third with 61 1/4, Pitt 52 1/2, West Va. 30 1/2, Penn State, 24 and Lock Haven 21 1/4.

The outcome of the action at Ames, Iowa was not known at press time, but will be covered in Friday's edition.

Swimmers 4th in PSAC

Krick, Dardaris, and Spence also competed in the same event.

In the 50 yd. freestyle, Steve Price qualified for the finals with a 21.86, which was his best time this season. He lowered his time to 21.84 seconds in the finals, where he was touched out by a mere two inches to be denied a championship bid.

Eric Slingerland and Tom Cole failed to get by the preliminaries in one meter diving, but Scott Wiegand advanced to the semi-finals and finals to place 10th with 281.10 points.

The 400 yd. medley relay team of Dardaris, Krick, Price, and Richards placed second in the event with an impressive time of 3:38.20, which qualified them for nationals.

At the end of Friday's events, BSC had moved into fourth place. In Friday's competition Wolfe improved his time in the 200 yd. freestyle to 1:52.32, but failed to advance.

In the 100 yd. backstroke, Dardaris qualified for nationals with a time of 55.43 and advanced to the finals. He then finished fourth with an improved time of 55.35. Price also qualified for nationals in the same event with his fifth place time of 55.47.

perfect. With the regal, elevated bed and the ingenious trap door used for the extermination (which, by the way, led to the most enjoyable eerie lighting effects), the inadequacies of set one disappeared.

Despite several flaws, the production was rather entertaining and Giraudoux's satire shown through the lack of direction.

Krick won the consolation finals in the 100 yd. breaststroke with a new best time of 1:02.12, while Conte placed ninth with a 1:02.92, also his best time.

Richards, Wolfe, Dardaris, and Moore teamed in the 800 yd. free relay to place fifth with a new time of 7:24.49.

Cole, Wiegand, and Slingerland all advanced to the finals in three meter diving.

"To me, this was just overwhelming to be in fourth," stated coach McLaughlin.

Saturday's events started out right for BSC as Wolfe set a new team record in the 100 yd. freestyle during the 1650 yd. freestyle. Wolfe's time of 10:32 erased a long-standing record set by former All-American Rich Koziki in 1974. Wolfe finished with a total time of 17:32.84 to place fifth in his heat and 11th in the event. He set a new BSC record for the event as well.

Price advanced to the consolation finals in the 100 yd. freestyle, where he finished eighth. Dardaris and Foust placed sixth and tenth respectively in the 200 yd. backstroke.

Krick placed fifth in the 200 yd. breaststroke with his best time ever, 2:15.68, while Conte placed 12th in the consolation finals with a much improved time of 2:19.5

Richards' impressive time of 1:57.87 in the 200 yd. butterfly qualified him for nationals. Spence placed 12th in consolation finals with a 2:06.36, which is identical to his time in the preliminaries.

Cole and Wiegand placed 11th and 12th in three meter diving. The 400 yd. free relay team of Price, Moore, Dardaris, and Richards placed eighth in the 400 yd. free relay with a new best time of 3:18.2

The team's efforts in the last day were strong enough for BSC to hang on to its fourth place, earning 179 points. Defending champion Clarion again took first place, while Shippensburg and East Stroudsburg followed.

"Considering our team's depth and strength at the beginning of the season, it is just overwhelming that we finished fourth," said a proud McLaughlin.

SOME OF THE SMARTEST YOUNG EXECUTIVES DON'T WORK FOR BUSINESS.

They get responsibility faster in the Navy. An ensign less than a year out of college may run a division of thirty men, a lieutenant a department of fifty or more. By the time he/she is age 24-25, an officer can have more managerial experience than most civilians do at 30.

The Navy has officer programs in Aviation and Nuclear Propulsion, Supply, Law, Medicine and many others. If you'd like to know more about them, the Officer Information Team will be on campus March 22nd. Sign up at the Placement Office for an interview or call Lt. Bob Koenen at 717-826-6292 for more information. It's your future, take time to find out about the opportunities available to you.
