

Boler replaces Puhl

Rodrick "Clark" Boler, a member of the Bloomsburg health, physical education and athletic department, has been named to succeed Ron Puhl as head football coach.

Boler joined the BSC staff as a teacher and a coach in 1968 and has served as head baseball coach for the past 11 years. He will remain in that position for the 1980 spring season.

The native of Alabama has served as head cross country coach for four years and was an assistant football coach from 1968-76.

The new football mentor received his bachelor of science and master of science degrees from the University of Alabama. A letter of recommendation for Boler was received from Paul "Bear" Bryant, football coach and athletic director at Alabama.

The announcement of Boler's appointment was made Friday by Cecil R. Tuberville, athletic director of BSC. It was noted that the decision was supported by all involved.

Students hassle with landlord

An on-going dispute between student tenants and their landlord, approval of the sexual harassment policy and ROTC spending more time on campus were a few of the areas covered at Monday night's meeting of College Council (CGA).

An announcement of upcoming Executive Council elections was also noted.

Lisa LaCreta explained some of the difficulties she has encountered in a dispute with her landlord, Arcus Brothers. According to LaCreta, the dispute entails cases of Arcus Brothers allegedly not honoring their lease. Problems with plumbing, furnishing and repairs, according to LaCreta were to have been taken care of, but still haven't been touched. Council agreed to aid the dispute with an allocation of up to $250 to cover lawyer fees.

The sexual harassment policy was delivered in final form Monday night. Council approved the policy, as explained in Wednesday's Voice, with no changes made.

ROTC has requested an extension of the time the group is permitted to visit campus. Council approved extending ROTC's residency from two to five times a week.

Elections for council executives will be held next Tuesday and Wednesday. According to Scott McCabe, vice-president, the turn-out of candidates has been rather meager. Any student is eligible to run for an office, and interested students are urged to contact the CGA office prior to the close of this week.

Keith Gogol and Carol Lewis were voted to fill two off-campus positions on Council. A commuter representative is still needed.

The next meeting of College Council will be held Feb. 18. Prior to then, all students are asked to take time next week and vote for next year's officers.

"WARNING: VIOLATORS WILL BE PROSECUTED" may be the sign you will be reading the next time you visit the Buckhorn Plaza and Restaurant.

Recently Roy Evarts, manager of the Buckhorn Restaurant, noticed an increase in the number of people attempting to walk out of the restaurant without paying their bill. Sixty to seventy percent of these people, he estimates are BSC students, both male and female.

Call it a prank or possibly a challenge, but either way you look at it, it's a crime and punishable by a $300 fine.

Three to four people are caught weekly at the restaurant and, according to Evarts, "If the numbers persist we will be forced to publish names and fines in the local newspaper and contact the offenders' guardians.

CGA Elections are Feb. 13 & 14

By PENNY PFLEEGOR

CGA elections are coming up on Feb. 13 and 14. At the present time only five people have picked up petitions from the information desk.

According to Willard Bradley, CGA president, this election is one of the most important activities on campus because the students will be electing people to monitor the $453,980 budget for student assets.

No special skills are required to be a CGA officer. People are elected into the positions early so they may have the opportunity to work in the office and see what to expect next year. Bradley said, "We have reorganized CGA this year so that a person can very easily come in and have no problems at all wheeling and dealing in the position."

This is the only year that there may not be a competitive election. Bradley has sent a notice to most student organizations telling them that someone from CGA would be willing to talk to them about what it means to a CGA officer, but so far none of the organizations has responded to their offer.

According to Catherine Richey, receptionist at the information desk, the five people who have petitions to run for CGA offices are Jeffrey Wasilewski, Sheri Lippowitsch, Jeff Ringhoffer, Douglas Taylor, and Chris McPhillips.

Bradley believes that being involved in CGA can be one of the highlighted activities of the year. "It is a lot of fun," said Bradley, "and it gives the student practical experience in campaigning, developing interpersonal skills and it's a unique opportunity to get to know other students."

CGA desperately needs people to run for office. Bradley said he would be glad to talk to anyone who has questions concerning the responsibilities of CGA officers.

The team responsibility of the CGA officers is to respond to the total needs of the BSC students and should be willing to aggressively advocate reforms of the existing college policy and to maintain academic freedom, academic responsibility and student rights. They must be willing to stimulate and improve the academic process and get as many students involved as they can.

Furthermore, they must be willing to work at improving the quality of the student life. And they must be goal-oriented and responsible students.

The football dilemma

Clark Boler has recently been appointed head football coach for the Bloomsburg State Huskies. The Campus Voice would like to extend our congratulations and well-wishes to Boler.

However, a dark spot lurks over the decision. The football team was hoping assistant coach Joe DeMelfi would be considered for the position. Since he is not in the athletic department, he was not considered.

What followed were several cries of outrage, particularly from the football players. Why couldn't DeMelfi be considered just because he is not on the athletic faculty list? After all, isn't Penn State Coach Joe Paterno on the English department at Penn State?

The Voice learned earlier this week that if DeMelfi had been selected, the college might have been liable for a lawsuit, since DeMelfi is not listed with any department. (In fact, he is employed with the Student Life department.)

As stated previously, the Voice wishes Boler good luck in upcoming competitions. However, the fact that the football team itself was granted no input to the decision is illogical. After all, they are the ones who will be working the closest with the coach.

In the future, it is our hope that the athletic department will give players ample time to voice their side of the debate and give them the full explanation behind the department's reasoning.

Football coach

To the Editor:

I am sure by now most of you have been informed of Ron Puhl's resignation as head football coach at BSC. As one of his former players, I would like to share some of my experiences with him.

Puhl brought to BSC football a respectability that hasn't been evident during previous terms of former coaches. He had us believe in ourselves. We worked harder to win, and were a highly motivated group. No, we never had a winning season; we fell short of our goals we set for ourselves. Puhl will shoulder some of the blame; he didn't have any misconceptions about himself. He knew he could motivate us, but, a five year layoff from organized football would have to show in the team's performance. The administration begged him to save the program, and Puhl gave it his best shot. The question is this - Why would a college hire a coach with little coaching experience to run an NCAA program?

Who makes these decisions? The administration decided to take a poll of the athletic department: "Should our next coach come from your department," it read. Of course they responded in a positive manner. Now, your money is spent to support this program. Check the qualifications of the staff in that particular department. Most have had their shot on the football staff and they either jumped ship or were run off the staff.

There is more petty jealousy, more inflated egos, than any other department I can compare it with. Now, on campus, in classrooms and in administrative positions, there are many qualified and capable men waiting for a shot to bring BSC football back to respectability.

I have been away from Bloomsburg for two years now but I can't stand by and see your money go down the drain again. This is a program that hundreds of guys gave many years of hard work to build a respectable program. It's tough to watch it sink to lower depths because administrators can't allocate YOUR money properly. CHECK INTO IT!

Respectfully, Mark Collins BSC '78

Big Business Day is April 17

Students across the nation are organizing for events this spring in the nature of Earth Day, Sun Day, and Food Day. It is Big Business Day, April 17, 1980, a day for education and action focused on the abuses of corporate power and alternatives to continuing "Crime in the Suites".

Campus groups, in coalition with environmental, consumer, labor, church, women's, minority and elderly organizations, are sponsoring teach-ins, debates, film festivals, street theater, and anything else that comes to mind to bring home the message that Americans are mad. Love Canal toxic chemical dump cover-ups, exploding gas tanks in Pintos, and routine corporate lawlessness are the source of this anger. The "business as usual" attitude of some of the giant conglomerates leads them to pay the fines or fight them in court for years rather than comply with the air pollution and other rules.

One special activity campus organizers may take on is investigating the corporate ties of the university's board of regents. Do these interlocks affect the quality of education that is available, perhaps responsible for fewer solar energy courses?

Big Business Day's headquarters at 1346 Connecticut Ave., NW, Room 411, Washington, D.C. 20036, (202) 861-0456, can help interested people get started on this project to "bite the hand that robs us."

A cultural view of minorities featured in program

The Human Relations Planning Committee is organizing Minorities Awareness Week: A Cultural View, which will be held March 17-21. The Committee, under the direction of Chairperson Ted Shanoski, is cooperating with CGA and several academic departments to prepare the multi-cultural program.

The week's activities will be multi cultural, with a focus on minorities and ethnic groups. A special panel will examine the world of working women.

Programs have been developed in these areas:

- Art ... Mr. Cook & Mr. Nagel
- History ... Mr. Turner & Mr. Sylvester
- Sociology ... Dr. Huber & Mrs. Muldoon
- Psychology ... Dean Forsyth & Ms. Eato
- Multi-Cultural Education ... Dr. Washburn
- Early Childhood Education ... Dr. O'Bruba
- Theatre ... Mr. McHale & Mr. Richie
- Music ... Dr. Stainislaw
- Political Science ... Mr. Percey

Special themes will exist for each day of this activity. These themes will include: Monday, March 17, The Arts-Theatre and Art, featuring a special program by William Windom; Tuesday, March 18, Working Women, this includes a special program by Cicely Tyson; Wednesday, March 19, Ethnic Groups, this day has an ethnic food festival; Tuesday, March 20, Politics: Understanding the System, a special program by Julian Bond and the art workshop; Friday March 21, The Arts-Music, a presentation by Madrigal Singers and a dance by the group "Bliss"; and Sunday, March 23, The Arts-Dance, a presentation by the Kujawiaki Polish dancers.

For additional information, call the Office of Cultural Affairs at 2909. All the programs, except the Windom presentation, will be free and open to the public.

History courses clarified

Students who have taken or are taking History of Christianity I (42-275) can still take History of Christianity II (42-276) John Dietrick, Professor of history, reports.

According to Dietrick, 276 is not a prerequisite for History of Christianity II. These courses do not have to be taken in order.

History of Christianity I starts with the beginnings of Judaism to 1500. History of Christianity II picks up at 1500 and goes to the present. One-third of history 276 will be spent on 19th and 20th centuries.

You've changed a lot of opinions since you entered college. You know a degree may be the door-opener for a future career. But, you know a degree is no guarantee.

"Save money all winter by making every heating oil dollar count," advises Joseph W. Bloom, chairman, Susquehanna Valley Division, Central Pennsylvania Lung and Health Service Association. In a popular brochure, "Get the Most From Your Heating Oil Dollar", the Environmental Protection Agency outlines ways in which homeowners can save fuel oil through proper adjustment and maintenance of their furnaces.

The brochure emphasizes that the amount of money a homeowner could save will vary depending on the geographical location, present condition of the heating equipment, the price of fuel, and other factors.

How to write letters...effectively?

When was the last time you took time out from term papers and book reports to write a letter?

The U.S. Postal Service is hoping to revive that art, particularly among college students. Hence, its sponsorship of National Letter Writing Week, Feb. 24 to March 1.

They've offered the following advice on how to write more effective letters to parents, girl friends, boy friends, and prospective employers.

FIRST LETTER HOME

It's extremely important to reassure parents about how you have adjusted to college life. It's particularly helpful for parents to know that you are being intellectually stimulated in your new environment. The following letter is guaranteed to enlighten any parent:

Dear Mom and Dad: You were right about college broadening my mind. After only one week, I've acquired a taste for grain alcohol and Hi-C, changed my major from premed to Far Eastern Cultism with a minor in Astrology, participated in a demonstration to demand that all exam questions be first submitted to a student review board for approval, and moved out of the dorm into a small apartment with, uh, another friend. Next week I hope to attend some classes.

LETTERS ABOUT GRADES
Use the indirect approach. Never come right out and say, for example:

Dear Mom: I hate to tell you this, but I flunked that course in zoology.

You have to soften the blow somewhat. Try something like:

Dear Mom: Remember how you and Dad always wanted me to become a veterinarian? Well, I've got some great news for you. I've decided to major in business administration after all.

LETTERS ASKING FOR MONEY

Here again, some subtlety is in order. And a good sense of timing, too. Never write for more money just after quarterly tuition bills have been sent home. And when you do write, be sure to dramatize your need a little. For instance:

Dear Dad: I know how concerned you and Mom are about the cost of tuition these days, and I just wanted to let you both know I'm doing my best to hold expenses down. I've hit on a new way to save on meals. I just take the crackers they set out for soup-buyers, (they're free, you know); then wash them down with all the lemonade I want just by taking a glass of water, adding one of the FREE lemon slices reserved for tea drinkers, stir in some FREE sugar and I've got a nutritious, but totally FREE meal. So far, I figure I've saved about $25 this week alone which is what it would cost me to have a regular meal every night — like everyone else. Love, Your Son.

LETTERS TO HOMETOWN SWEETHEARTS

Statistics show there are more of these letters sent by freshman than from any other class. For some reason, they tend to decline in volume generally by the end of the first semester in college. Here are two rather erudite samples one may find occasion to use.

Dear June: My first semester in college has really been enlightening. I've made lots of new freinds, one of whom has helped me a great deal to overcome some of my earlier apprehensions about college life. She is an English major, (continued on page five)

BEER TALK

Although quaffing beer long has been associated with good times and good company, Andy Steinhubl doesn't view it that way.

It's not that Steinhubl doesn't enjoy a frosty mug or two. But as professional brewmaster and beer taster, Steinhubl must be quite serious about the beer he drinks.

Steinhubl regularly raises his beer glass to quality. He also bends his seasoned elbow to continuity, smoothness and purity. Steinhubl does his drinking in an environment that is hardly conducive to merriment: an antiseptically off-white climate-controlled room, where talking is discouraged and sometimes the silence is so pervasive one can hear the proverbial pin drop.

"The very idea of being a professional beer taster no doubt conjures some vivid images in people's minds," says Steinhubl, a graduate of the University of British Columbia and the Siebel Institute of Technology in Chicago. "Yet we limit our tasting to about three glasses per session; and our gatherings are hardly occasions for conviviality.

Before Steinhubl can address factors of aroma, taste, smoothness and continuity, he must attend to things within his control. "For instance," says Steinhubl, "beer must be kept cool, served at the correct temperature (40-42 degrees), with the proper collar (foamy head), and in a CLEAN glass. A beer-clean glass must be cleaner than clean, with no lint or sizing starch from a laundered towel."

The best test of a beer-clean glass (BCG) — rinsed with clear water, power-brushed with an odor-free, non-sudsing cleaning compound, rinsed again in warm then cold water and stored bottom-up on a corrugated shelf and allowed to air dry — is to pour a glass of beer.

With a beer-clean glass, the head will be composed of tiny bubbles and will remain compact and firm. As the beer is consumed, rings of foam will adhere to the sides of the glass. With a non-clean glass, the collar consists of large bubbles which dissipate rapidly; foam adherence to the glass will be spotty or nonexistent.

Beer poured correctly into a beer-clean glass brings a smile to Steinhubl's jovial countenance. "No matter what you may have heard, beer should not be poured down the side of a glass." Steinhubl explains beer poured down the center of an upright glass lets the beer "Breathe," allowing some of the carbonation to escape.

Steinhubl proceeds with his play-by-play account of beer tasting. "The first thing we do is look at the beer," he says. "Hence the off-white walls in the room permeated with natural light. This assures that there is no distortion of color in the samples."

Steinhubl then checks the aroma of the brew, swirls the beer in the glass and sniffs again.

"If the beer smells skunky, you'll know immediately," says Steinhubl. "Direct exposure to sunlight or fluorescent light can produce a skunky odor in beers; we call it lightstruck." That's why Anheuser-Busch beer bottles have traditionally been brown, to protect beer from light.

Steinhubl explains the only way to protect beer from light, other than opaque packaging, is by using a chemically modified hop extract. "Since Anheuser-Busch products are brewed with natural hops, opaque bottles are essential. Very rarely do we find any of our products that have been overexposed to light, but when we do, well, that's what we're here for."

County artists on exhibit

A two-woman painting exhibition consisting of work from the Columbia County area will be on display in the President's Lounge through Feb. 22. The Columbia County artists are Mrs. Arlene Varner, a resident of Berwick RD 3, and Karen Nicholls, a resident of Bloomsburg RD 3.

Both Varner and Nicholls have exhibited their work in the area prior to the show.

Last year Varner had an art display featured at the Berwick Hospital. Her show consisted of things from the past including old crocks, covered bridges, old barns, and stone work.

Nicholls has exhibited work in the Bald Eagle Regional Art Show 1976, 1977, 1979; Harrisburg Arts Festival 1978; Ocean City, N.J. Boardwalk Show 1978; Harrisburg Art Association Open 1979; Catherine Lorrillard Wolfe Art Club Show, N.Y., 1979; and one woman show at B & S Gallery in Williamsport 1978 and much more.

Unlike Varner, Nicholls prefers painting a variety of subject matter. She says music and nature are her main sources of inspiration.

A reception for these artists will take place on Friday in the President's Lounge. All are invited to attend.

Be sure to stress all your relevant experience and coursework. And don't hesitate to list any references that might vouch for your potential. The following letter will illustrate:

Dear Mr. Caruthers: I am writing to apply for the position of executive vice-president of your firm. As my attached resume will illustrate, I have had considerable managerial experience while attending college. This past year, for example, I was chairman of my fraternity social committee, a post that required me to exercise my skills in planning and executing approximately 200 "social gatherings."

In addition, I am sure you will agree that my major in cultural anthropology has provided me with a thorough grounding in virtually all facets of business management.

Thank you for considering my application. Please tell Dad I said hello. He's always spoken highly of you since he's been chairman of the board.

majority of incidents has occurred. Evarts is convinced that some of the violators have been under the influence of alcohol at the time of the crime.

Evarts noted that any of the students already convicted said they had more than enough money to cover the bill in their wallet, but they were testing the system and got caught in the act.

Robert Norton, Dean of Student Life, was surprised when he was confronted with the issue. He knew nothing of the crimes committed and stated "We would like to see this problem remedied as soon as possible."

Norton is concerned about the current problem at the restaurant because he is interested in the well being of our students. "Many of the students don't understand the consequences that could arise from such an act."

Evarts isn't out to get the student but he is serious about catching anyone trying to leave the restaurant without paying the bill. So violators beware.

With a thrilling 60-53 last event victory over Edinboro State College on Feb. 4, the mens' swimming and diving team brought its record to 5-3.

The score switched hands throughout the whole meet, after Edinboro opened with a win in the 400 yd. medley relay. A first and second place in the 100 yd. freestyle by Huskies Bill Wolfe and Glenn Miller tied the score at 8-8.

Jeff Baskin chalked up a first in the 200 yd. freestyle for BSC, while Wolfe, swimming back-to-back events, finished third. Tim Briddes took third in the 50 yd. freestyle to put the score at 19-15 Edinboro.

Pete Dardaris finished a close second in the 200 yd. individual medley with a new BSC record time of 2:03.5.

"Pete did an outstanding job going against an outstanding competitor," commented Coach McLaughlin.

The score stood at 25-18 in Edinboro's favor, but the Huskies started to make their comeback. Tom Cole and Scott Weigand took a second and third in one meter diving. In the 200 yd. butterfly, Randy Spence, who is back in action after an illness, and Phil Spampinato, took first and second, respectively, to close the gap significantly.

Baskin and Briddes took first and third in the 100 yd. freestyle to put the Huskies in front 36-34. Dardaris remained undefeated in the 200 yd. backstroke as he took first; he missed qualifying for nationals by .75.

Edinboro's first place finish put them in the lead at 49-48. John Conte placed first in the 200 yd. breaststroke to tie the score at 53-53 going into the final event.

The team of Baskin, Spence, Briddes, and Dardaris was Tracksters mature quickly

by KEVIN KODISH

Carl Hinkle, BSC head track coach, was overjoyed after last Friday's meet at Lafayette. He had a right to be. Hinkle had just witnessed his young Huskies come within a point and a half of winning a quadrangular meet.

"I'm really happy. The progress is very positive. Now we know we can compete against good competition," beamed Hinkle when asked about the outing.

Lafayette accumulated 57.5 points for the top spot, while BSC registered 56 points. Rider College took third place with 48.5, and Philadelphia Textile ended the contest with 23 points.

McINTOSH PICKS

UP TWO FIRSTS

Robert McIntosh led the Husky contingent with two first place finishes. McIntosh qualified for the IC4A Indoor Championships in March with his 6.3 clocking in the 60-yard dash. The junior sprinter also captured top laurels in the long jump. His effort of 6.96 meters (m.) easily defeated Mike Place of Philadelphia Textile.

Senior weightman Dan McCallum led the BSC shot putters to a one-two-three finish. McCallum led the BSC shot putters to a one-two-three finish. McCallum's throw was measured at 15.55 m. Ray Distasio followed right behind his teammate with a throw of 14.75 m. Chris Haser finished off the BSC domination with a third place heave of 14.12 m.

McCallum also garnered a second place effort in the 35 pound weight throw. His toss of 11.79 m. out-distanced everyone except Paul Burke of Rider, who won the event with a throw of 12.98 m.

John Hinks picked up second place for BSC in the high jump. The freshman bouncer continues to improve. His best jump was 6'4".

Coach Hinkle was happy with the triple jump. Joe Miller placed second in the competition that also saw two other Huskies placing. Following Miller in the third and fourth place positions, respectively, were Jim Nash and Dexter Hughes.

The BSC two-mile relay team of Sam Rubbico, Chris Grega, Bob Feeley and Ken Latch captured the second position behind Lafayette with their mark of 8:21.5. Latch also ran the 1,000-yard race. His time of 2:20.5 gave him another second place honor.

The Husky indoor record is now 2-3, but two of the losses are to Division I schools (Lehigh and Lafayette).

The indoor program has provided the athletes an opportunity to compete against good NCAA competition. Coach Hinkle noted that Lafayette has been working with their indoor participants since November. Bloomsburg just started practicing this semester.

The locals will now compete in the Bucknell Invitational tomorrow.
