State Hikes Tuition

Students Slapped With Last-Minute Increase to Pay State's Debts

By BRENDA D. MARTIN

Students at Pennsylvania's 14 state colleges and university were faced with a $75 tuition ($130 out-of-state tuition) increase when they returned to their campuses for the spring semester, the increase prompted to generate approximately $6.3 million awarded to APSCUF, Association of Pennsylvania State College and University Faculties, in a Pennsylvania Supreme Court decision. But, according to Pennsylvania Representative Ted Stuban of District 108 (Columbia and Montour counties), there is no doubt that the state could have raised the money elsewhere.

"They (the state) didn't really need that extra $75 for a blunder that they committed years ago," commented Stuban in a recent interview. "I can't believe they have to penalize students for the mistake."

The mistake which Stuban refers to was the failure of the Commonwealth to pay PSCU (Pennsylvania State Colleges and University) faculty members a 4.5 percent increase which they were awarded in 1977 by a state arbitration panel. In that year, PSCU faculty members were the only state employees not to receive a salary increase, but the arbitration panel later awarded them with the increase of 4.5

percent. However, the state refused to pay them as stated in the General Assembly's Appropriations Act which said, "that no funds appropriated herein shall be used for negotiated compensation increases" at the state colleges and university.

Since that time, bills introduced in the General Assembly to pay for the increase have failed to pass and the matter has been before the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, Commonwealth Court and the Pennsylvania Supreme Court. The recent Pennsylvania Supreme Court decision orders the Commonwealth to pay the increase retroactive to 1977 at the estimated cost of $6.3 million.

According to Dr. J. Kroschewsky, president of BSCFA (Bloomsburg State College Faculty Association) APSCUF, if the Commonwealth had honored the arbitrators' award when it was issued, they would not be facing a $5 million debt plus approximately $1 million in interest today. The state owes approximately $1 million in interest. Faculty members have commented that they have received letters stating that their back salaries are forthcoming, but that they will receive no interest.

According to State Education Secretary Scanlon, the only alternative to increasing tuition, which he seriously considered was to drastically curtail all spending at the 14 schools for the rest of the fiscal year in an attempt to save the $6.3 million required. This was an option that the presidents said would be devastating to the quality of the education on their campuses and which they unanimously opposed.

BSC president, Dr. James McCormick, commented that he believes there would have been serious repercussions if the state had ordered a freeze on expenditures, and stated that "a freeze would have had devastating effects on the quality of education at BSC, and I think all of us know that it's important that everyone be an advocate of quality public higher education."

Scanlon only considered two alternatives to generate the $6.3 million, but according to Representatives Stuban, there is no doubt that the money could have come from the general fund or an emergency fund. However, the quickest way to obtain the money was to raise tuition.

Scanlon recognized the problems that the increase will provide for parents and students, and stated that, "I recognize that this increase, on such short notice, will create problems for students as they return to campus over the next several weeks. I have personally met with the presidents of all 14 institutions and we are going to do everything we can, administratively, to make payment of this increase less burdensome for our students. We are looking at ways to stagger payments of the additional tuition and extend deadlines."

Students also recognize the problems that the tuition increase pose, and the Commonwealth Association of Students (CAS) is planning measures to fight the increase (see accompanying article). According to Michele Kessler, BSC coordinator for CAS, students should hold out payment of the $75 until March 1. Kessler commented, "Students and faculty members are on the same side in opposition of the increase. Students should not feel that they can't do anything about the increase. We are not powerless."

Student reactions strongly disfavor the increase, and many students must now find $75 extra to pay for their education. Many BSC students commented that they will have to get jobs or else ask their parents for the money. Kessler noted that, students should not give up hope and that "hopefully CAS will get the increase rescinded. That's our goal."

CAS Fights Increase

Students Urged to Withhold $75 Increase

Joyce Cheepudom, CAS Executive Director, announced on behalf of the Commonwealth - Association of Students that CAS calls for students attending the 14 state-owned colleges and university to withhold payment of the $75 tuition increase for the spring '82 semester until March 1st. (March 1st is the payment due date for the $75 as established by the Pennsylvania Department of Education.) Additionally, Cheepudom announced CAS would be sponsoring and coordinating a state-wide STUDENT SOLIDARITY DAY, on Thursday, February 11th.

Cheepudom commented, "Through CAS's efforts we believe there is still a very good chance that students will not be forced to pay the tuition increase. CAS has only begun to fight the tuition increase. We are exploring legislative and legal actions to stop the increase, and we are asking students not to pay the $75 to give us additional time to implement these actions and to hopefully save them $75."

The actions which CAS is coordinating include: (1) building a bi-partisan coalition of state legislators who oppose the tuition increase, (2) drafting and lobbying for legislation which would provide for a $4.5 million emergency appropriations bill to cover the money owed the faculty at the state-owned colleges and university. (Secretary of Education Scanlon has stated the reason the tuition increase is being imposed is to cover the cost of a Pennsylvania Supreme Court decision which awarded the faculty $4.5 million in back salary negotiations.) (3) requesting an Attorney General's opinion on the legality of the tuition increase. (4) filing a class action suit on behalf of the PSCU students which would seek an injunction against the state in the collection of the fees, and (5) development and coordination of a state-wide STUDENT SOLIDARITY DAY, February 11th.

Cheepudom added, "Students should understand the Department of Education has given them up until March 1st to pay the additional $75. We are asking them to withhold payment until that time."

CAS will be sponsoring a state-wide STUDENT SOLIDARITY DAY, on Thursday, February 11th, to generate grassroots support against the tuition increase and to further inform the public about the increase. They intend to plan actions involving all member campuses. Actions will include: rallies, letterwriting campaigns, lobbying in Harrisburg, teach-ins, tabling, etc. Plans for STUDENT SOLIDARITY DAY have already begun at Indiana University, West

Editorial

It's all right, my parents are paying my way" or "I can't do anything about it anyway" these seem to be the student responses concerning the current tuition increase. ($75.00 for PA residents and $130.00 for out-of-state residents.)

We, the staff, feel that these attitudes are apathetic and would like to encourage students to protest the increase. Many students may not know the background or underlying reasons for the hike in tuition. The less than half a sheet of paper included in this semester's billing came as a complete surprise and caught students as well as parents unawares.

First of all, the tuition increase was placed upon current BSC students to pay members of the Association of Pennsylvania State College and University Faculties (APSCUF) the money owed to them by the state itself. In 1977, every other state employee group received an increase in salary's except APSCUF, according to J.R. Kroschewsky, president of the BSC APSCUF. They asked for a 4.5 percent salary increase, which was the lowest request. When the state refused, APSCUF sued. In six different court cases, tried first by the PA Labor Relations Board and finishing with the PA Supreme Court, APSCUF was handed down the favorable decision. The state claimed that there wasn't enough money in the General Fund to pay the awarded amount, approximately $6.3 million. This was refuted by PA Representative, Ted Stuban of district 108 (Columbia and Montour Counties). "There's no doubt that the money could have come from the General Fund," said Stuban in a recent interview.

At this point, students should be asking themselves why they are helping to repay professor's salaries from seven years ago when they weren't even in college at the time. They should ask themselves why they became, in reality, scapegoats for the state.

Two years ago (Oct. 24, 1979) colleges around the state boycotted classes and prevented a $50.00 tuition increase. This occurred because students got together and protested. This time it's not that easy because the increase has already been initiated. But, students have to remember that the final increase payments aren't due until March 1, 1982. Now is the time to write letters to our congressmen and governor. It is also a time for BSC to join together and do something to combat this issue—parents can also do their part. There are things that can be done. On Wednesday, Jan. 27 at 7 p.m. in the coffeehouse, the Commonwealth Association of Students (CAS) will hold a meeting, "Fight the Hike", to discuss possible solutions. Also, Feb. 11 will be Solidarity Day statewide. This will be a day of rallies, phone-ins and letter writing.

Tuition has risen 32 percent in the last two years and with the $75.00 increase, it will be 43 percent. Even if students aren't paying their own tuition, they must realize the injustice of the situation. As the current CAS statewide slogan proclaims, "We can't afford to lose!"

A "Dear Chris" column will be featured in future issues. Any student who seriously has a problem and would like the advice of a fellow student may write to "Chris", c-o. Campus Voice, Box 97 KUB. A qualified counselor will help "Chris".

Letters to the Editor

Plus Minus Grading

Dear Editor,

Have you ever been a borderline case? You know, when you thought you might have earned the B but ended up with a C, while another classmate was between a C and D and received the C. You both wound up with the same grade, even though the professor and you both realize that you were the one who put much more effort into the class. Or are you a faculty member who feels that the average grade point average is too high or that the students are too leniently graded?

If so, read on.

A representative member of the faculty committee has proposed plus-minus grading as a solution to these problems. Dr. Lawrence Mack, a committee member, feels this grading system would curb the "inflated" grades. Some professors feel that grade inflation has run rampant on this campus. In fact, several departments have higher than a 3.0 average. According to Dr. Mack the average should be approximately a 2.0. Dr. Mack also feels that inflated grades are dangerous because it could destroy the credibility of the school's curriculums.

The plus-minus grading system would entail adding a plus or minus to the letter grade of B, C, or D. A failure cannot be further subdivided, so an E grade will not have a plus or minus attached. This committee also feels that adding an A+ to the grading system would constitute earning over 4 points for an A grade. Since a 4.0 is usually recognized as the standard highest point, an A+ is not compatible with a standard grading system.

Using this system, grades will be deflated because the professors will have the option of assigning a B- or C+ instead of a B. On the other hand, students who exert that extra effort, and are on the borderline between a B and C can receive a C+ or B- instead of the C.

This writer feels that the change should be made. The student will then be recognized for their extra work. While, in the meantime, the grade "inflation" and lenient grading problems will be solved for the faculty.

In adopting this plus-minus grading system, Bloomsburg State College is taking another step in the right direction.

Gym Requirements

Dear Editor:

Did you ever hear of a senior having enough credits to graduate but couldn't because she lacked gym credits? Whose fault is it, the student's or the college administration's? In some cases, the student is at fault. Most of the time, however, the problem arises through scheduling difficulties. Since gym courses are part of the General Educational requirements, why should a problem like this arise?

There is a huge back log of students who tried to schedule physical education courses their freshman and sophomore years but were unsuccessful. These students have to take them now, or else they won't graduate. So seniors always have priority over underclassmen. The circle is never ending and will continue to be so unless something is done.

A solution to this problem is to acquire additional physical education staff members; however, three complications arise. First, approval from Harrisburg for the additional positions is needed, but hard to get. Second, the budget would probably never allow for additional physical education staff. Third, the fact remains that the physical education staff is responsible for coaching interscholastic sports. With the increased participation of female students in extracurricular sports coaching has cut into the staff's workload.

Since 1970, nine new gym courses have been offered, and this doesn't include interscholastic sports and coaching courses. With the increase in variety, the staff has diversified themselves.

However, the present freshman students have an advantage over upperclassmen in a different way. Instead of being required to take three gym course credits and one aquatic course credit, freshmen only need to take three gym credits. From the four categories of physical education courses freshmen may choose from three: interscholastic, aquatics, and activity courses. This may improve conditions but only over a progressive period of time.

I am a junior with no gym credits, but the next time I open my mouth and bitch, I'll think twice. Now I realize the problem and the possible solutions. There are none.

A Staff Thank You

For the past year and a half, Roberta Clemens has been the Executive Editor of the Campus Voice. This semester she has stepped down but she will remain on the staff as Associate Editor.

Roberta first joined the staff in 1978 and became News Editor the same year. She held this position for three semesters. In this time she was responsible for such stories as the series on the disaster at Three Mile Island and the boycott of classes in 1979. She also emphasized the importance of campus news coverage and helped in recruiting reporters.

As Executive Editor, Roberta covered such events as the press conference with Governor Thornburgh. She developed a good working relationship with the staff by supporting and encouraging them. This year Roberta initiated the idea of publishing three times a week. Her ideas have been passed on, and hopefully this year her plans for publication will be recognized.

We the staff, would like to thank Roberta for the great beginning she's given us. We would also like to thank her for all her guidance, concern and friendship.

CAS Fights $75 Increase

Chester State College, Shippensburg State College, and Cheyney State College.

Concerning STUDENT SOLIDARITY DAY, CAS Vice President Craig Livingstone commented, "We will be attempting to build broad based coalitions on each campus consisting of students, parents, faculty, etc., to oppose the increase. We will be calling our coalitions Higher Education Advocacy Teams (HEAT). We hope to bring 'heat' on those officials responsible for the increase."

Brenda Burd, CAS Legislative Director added, "This is a blatant example of mismanagement and lack of student input into the educational decision making process in Pennsylvania. The need for better management and student input has become obvious by these actions."

Faculty Opposed to Increase

To Whom It May Concern:

On January 13, 1982, the Pennsylvania Department of Education announced a $75 tuition increase at the state-owned colleges and universities. The Association of State College and University Faculties, APSCUF, view this increase, which is expected to generate $5.5 million, to be unwarranted.

The Department of Education is claiming the increase was necessitated by a recent court ruling requiring the Department to pay faculty a 4.5 percent salary increase ordered by an arbitrator for the 1977 academic year, but held up by the Department since 1978. Including interest, the total cost to the Department would be about six million dollars.

The Department of Education has lost every legal round for almost four years. It is unbelievable that no one in the Department ever thought about how the money was going to be paid. There has been more than adequate notice for the Department to obtain the monies without last-minute tuition raises. Many students received the notice of the increased tuition after they had already paid their bill.

APSCUF views the timing of the tuition increase as a "colossal example of mismanagement that does little justice to the educational system or the people who run it." Because the Pennsylvania Department of Education has refused to honor its commitments, almost one million dollars is now due in interest.

Certain facts should be brought forth to clarify the APSCUF position:

1. PSCU faculty were the only state employees not to get a salary increase in the 1977-78 fiscal year.
2. If the Commonwealth had honored the arbitrators' award when it was issued, they would not be facing a five million dollar payment (of an overdue debt) today.
3. If they had paid the arbitrators' award in a timely fashion, they would not have almost one million dollars in interest charges to pay today.
4. APSCUF does not want to see the PSCU programs or students suffer in any way because of the 4.5 percent award. APSCUF has been willing to talk about the timing of the payment. Commonwealth officials, on the other hand, have been reluctant to engage in any meaningful dialogue.
5. APSCUF does not favor the tuition increase.
6. Although APSCUF intends to collect on what is due to the faculty, the union has expressed a willingness to be flexible to keep any potential negative effects to a minimum.

Sincerely,
J.R. Kroschewsky
President, BSCFA-APSCUF

Number of BSC Applicants Increase

Enrollment declines may have hit some colleges throughout the country, but BSC hasn't been one of them, according to Tom L. Cooper, Dean of Admissions and Records.

The class of 1985, which entered Bloomsburg this fall, includes 1,079 students comprised of 374 men and 705 women. "These students were selected from an application pool of 4,520 candidates," Cooper states. "This represents a 6.8 percent increase in the number of applications received above last year."

The typical student in the current freshman class attended a public high school in eastern Pennsylvania, ranked at the 72nd percentile of his or her graduating class with an overall high school academic average of 86.4 percent. The student has completed 19.1 academic units in high school grades 9 through 1 and achieved a score of 460 in verbal and 504 in math of the Scholastic Aptitude Test.

"The largest percentage, 34.9, of these first year students enrolled in the School of Arts and Sciences," Cooper said. "Some decided on a major area of study upon entering while many wait for a year or more to make the decision."

Another 31.8 percent have enrolled in business administration, 7.8 percent in nursing, 6.9 percent in elementary education, 5.4 percent in special education, 4.2 percent in business education, 3.9 percent in communications disorders, 3.8 percent in medical technology, 1.0 percent in allied health services, and .8 percent in secondary education.

"Ten years ago a larger percentage of incoming students enrolled in teaching curricula in elementary and secondary education, but with a smaller demand for teachers, the students have looked to other vocational areas," Cooper commented. "The college's diversification over recent years has been beneficial as Bloomsburg places approximately 85 percent of its graduates in employment or graduate school."

A total of 56.7 percent of the freshman reside in Montgomery, Bucks, Luzerne, Lehigh, Delaware, Lycoming, Schuylkill, Chester, and Lackawanna counties. "These counties are listed in order of highest number of students which is also a shift from a few years ago when counties closer to Bloomsburg supplied a larger percentage of the student body," Cooper continued.

New students are enrolled from 44 of Pennsylvania's 67 counties with out-of-state students comprising 10.0 percent of the class.

Although Bloomsburg's overall enrollment has increased over 4 1/2 percent since 1976, the college has been successful in achieving its goal of no growth over the past three years. The current full-time undergraduate enrollment is 4,942. Part-time undergraduate, along with full and part-time graduate students brings the total college enrollment to 6,339.

Lack of Space a Problem at Andruss

By ANNETTE HAYES

Built in 1966, the Andruss Library was designed to hold 200,000 volumes. Today it holds over 300,000 volumes, 100,000 above its normal capacity, in addition to over 1,000,000 units of microfilm. These figures increase every year, and this tremendous lack of space has created a major problem. Things are constantly being juggled and rearranged in hopes of finding an answer.

Up until recently, students could use the index tables to sit down and do their work. But now the table space has been removed and the indexes have been placed in double tiers, eliminating seating space.

Scott E. Miller of the Reader's Services Division says, "There has just been a trade-off, the chairs have been removed so more people could work with the index space. Hopefully this will encourage people to use the index tables for indexing and not just for sitting."

This is only one solution to a major problem which could have several answers. A proposal to build an addition to the library, has been tied up in Harrisburg for about eight years now and appears to be going nowhere.

Another option is a mechanized shelving system. By using motorized controls, shelves can be placed together and separated by the controls for easy access. This system has been adapted by the University of Scranton and is working out well.

The initial groundwork for this system has been done, but it is still in the planning stages. This system could save both space and money, costing an estimated $500,000 as opposed to $6,000,000 for a new addition.

Positively Speaking

By
DR. ADRIENNE LEINWAND
The title of today's column might seem a bit unusual since, as a student publication, everything in the Campus Voice should be of special interest to students. However, now that the winter break is over, 1982 is here, and we all have the opportunity to make fresh starts and new beginnings, I thought I would use this first column of the new year to speak directly to students.

Very often, when we consider affirmative action regulations, we think of them in terms of employee hiring. And, indeed, facilitating search and screen activities for the hiring of new faculty, administrators, and managers, does take up a great deal of my time. We must recognize, however, that affirmative action applies to those people who already work at BSC, in any capacity, and to students as well. I think it is important for all students to understand the ways in which affirmative action applies to them and the actions they may, and should, take if they believe the regulations have been violated.

I am currently in the process of updating the college's Affirmative Action Plan. In it, the reader will find a section dealing with policies that affect students. All of our policies affecting students indicate that no student shall be denied admission to the college, financial aid, access to courses and academic majors, the use of support services (whether they be academic, social, personal or vocational), housing, or employment on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex, age, physical handicap, or status as a veteran. When selection criteria are to be used, they will be appropriate to the particular area employing such criteria so that the Admissions Office, for example, will base its decision on academic requirements, while college employment might be based on a student's ability to type.

The Affirmative Action Officer encourages the early resolution of all grievances. If a student feels he or she was unlawfully discriminated against, and has not been able to solve the problem through informal channels (such as speaking to the person involved, or seeking advice or assistance from other faculty or administrators), the student should come to the Affirmative Action Officer who will aid the student in formally resolving the grievance. There is no reason for a student to feel he/she must suffer the consequences of unlawful discrimination. Bringing the incident to light, and having it resolved not only helps the individual involved but may prevent others from having to experience similar discrimination in the future.

I must emphasize, at this point, that while the college recognizes its responsibility to provide equal educational, social, and employment opportunities to all students, I also believe that students share the responsibility of supporting the college's affirmative action program. Towards this end, there are several things students can and should do. These include: 1) treating all students, faculty, staff, and visitors to the campus with respect, 2) not subjecting other students, faculty, staff, and visitors to jokes or opinions of a derogatory nature; 3) evaluating faculty on the basis of performance related criteria only, and without regard to race, color, religion, national origin, sex, age, political persuasion, marital status, handicap, or status as a veteran; and 4) making a determined effort to understand and appreciate the differences that exist among people including those differences that arise out of racial, ethnic, religious, or cultural affiliations, sexual differences, or handicapping conditions.

Affirmative Action would not be necessary if we would treat all people with the respect and thoughtful consideration that we would like and expect to receive ourselves. And who knows, if we all make special efforts along these lines, my position as Affirmative Action Officer may eventually become obsolete. I hope it will happen . . . soon.

Outdoorsmen exhibit wildlife art

By PATRICK J. MURPHY
The Presidents' Lounge located on the bottom floor of the Union is currently decorated with paintings and carvings depicting various American wildlife. The paintings are the work of Ray Weaver, a Millville resident, and the carvings are the work of Ron Puhl, a professor in the Physical Education department.

Ray Weaver is an avid hunter and a true lover of the great outdoors. He commented "many Americans do not realize how accessible nature's beauty is to each of us." He also feels that if people were to make an effort to take advantage of the outdoors they would have a greater respect for nature. "Many hunting and backpacking trips to Montana, South Carolina, Canada, and Pennsylvania serve as the basis from which Weaver creates the animals he portrays with his paint and brush.

Like Weaver, Ron Puhl is a great outdoorsman - nature lover. Puhl's carvings represent American fowl. Puhl began carving as a child with a helpful start from his grandfather. Puhl feels that the mini-courses in carving sponsored by the Extended Programs Department of B.S.C. help him perfect his hobby. "I really enjoy working with other people in the carving courses. It is a good experience for those who participate."

Ghost Story A Review

By RICK DILIBERTO

Ghost Story, a film in which the average age of the four main characters is over 70, is currently downtown at the Capital Twin Theatre.

Fred Astaire, Melvyn Douglas, Douglas Fairbanks Jr., and John Houseman (The Paper Chase), four members of the "Chauter Society," delight in gathering monthly to share some brandy and tell a horrible, bone-chilling ghost story. Being that they comprise the entire club's enrollment, and have for the past 50 years, one can understand their vows of secrecy and devotion to one another.

In 50 years, as one can expect, a multitude of stories are told, each masterfully described and unveiled in the darkness of Houseman's study, with the Society arranged in a circle.

Each of the men, however, after all those years of scaring each other out of their proverbial "skins," are sharing a common discomfort. They are having terrible nightmares and are unable to sleep well. They dismiss the problems as a mixture of their advanced age and a possible break in their immunity to the monthly yarns.

Unfortunately, they each discover that they also share another common problem later in the film, but a much more serious one. One by one, the members of the Chauter Society and their families are being killed!

What is the connection between the deaths and the stories? What is the terrible secret that they have never spoken of for 50 years that haunts them now? Levitate downtown to the Twin and find out!

BSC's "Mr. Fix-it" to retire

Mr. Hatold Spotts, the ever-friendly "Mr. Fix-it" of the Bloomsburg State College Learning Resources Center has announced his retirement at the age of 60 as of January 27, 1982.

Mr. Spotts started originally as a radio operator and mechanic during World War II in such places as Hudson Bay, Canada; Labrador, and Long Island, N.Y. After being discharged from the Service in 1945, he landed a job at the Pennsylvania State University in State College. After two years in Penn State's electrical engineering department, he left for positions with the Electrolux Company and the Albertson and Levoe Company. Mr. Spotts joined the BSC staff as a media-technician in 1966.

Commenting that "I've been looking forward to it for 40 years" the fit-looking Spotts, said that he will continue to stay busy after retirement by playing golf, traveling abroad, and tinkering with machines in a small private repair shop at his house here in Bloomsburg. "I've enjoyed my experience here at the College" remarked Spotts. "I've enjoyed working with the people, especially the

A replacement for Mr. Spotts has yet to be announced by the college. As one Learning Resources employee aptly quoted, "There is no replacement for Mr. Spotts. He's one of a kind." Another employee remarked dejectedly, "I'm going to miss him."

BSC Board of Trustees Searches for New Student Representative

By LINDA R. FEGLEY

The Board of Trustees at BSC is looking for a new student trustee to act as a voting member on the Board. The student is selected through the college and state legislature and is a part of the decision-making process which influences the direction of the college.

According to the Trustee Handbook of the Pennsylvania State Colleges and Universities, "as a member of the board of your educational institution, you will be called upon by the administration, faculty, students, parents, and other taxpayers to account for the policies, educational direction, and relationships of the college or university with its various publics. Your first duty ... is to review all matters pertaining to the welfare and well-being of the college and its students and to make recommendations to the president with

Century-Old Tower Cracks

It's only a crack in a single beam, but the price tag on repairs to the tower of Bloomsburg State College's 114-year-old Carver Hall will be more than double what it cost to build the landmark in 1867.

Repairs now underway by G&W Inc. of Hummelstown will cost $39,800. College records list the 1867 construction price for Carver at a modest $15,000.

But the crack is at a critical point where the main support meets a crossbeam at the base of the tower.

The repairs include the use of a four-story-long steel beam to shore up the tower while work is being done. That beam will cut through Carver's four floors from its foundation to the balcony roof. The 12-inch "I" beam was brought into the building in pieces and then bolted together. It is the shoring up operation that is so costly, college officials said.

Kenneth Hoffman, special assistant for BSC public relations, said the crack was caused by pressure exerted on the beam when two feet of it were cut off during construction of a fire tower at Carver several years ago. The pressure centered around a knot in a defective tree that was used in the original construction.

"There was a problem with the rings in the tree," Hoffman said. "One never developed properly and at the pressure point, the tree fibers are not as strong as other areas."

"A comparable new building would cost a lot more than has been spent on Carver during the past 114 years," Donald McCullough, BSC's director of physical plant, said.

"The repair work is expensive, but we can't afford the deterioration that would result without it."

The crack was discovered on a routine inspection by a maintenance crew checking campus roofs to try to prevent possible water damage.

Hoffman said the back of the structure previously received water damage, but because of the inaccessibility of the defective beam, the problem was not noticed earlier.

Carver Hall, initially known as Institute Hall, has administrative offices on the first floor and a 500-seat auditorium on the second floor. During the

Six BSC Employees to Retire

The retirements of two faculty members and four non-instructional personnel of Bloomsburg State College were approved at Wednesday's Board of Trustees meeting.

Included are the coming retirements of professors Rex E. Selk and C. Whitney Carpenter II and this year's retirements of staff members George W. Fedder, James K. Fox, Clarence Hampton, and Darvin R. Michael.

Selk came to Bloomsburg as an Assistant Professor of Chemistry in September 1959 from the faculty of Waynesburg College and was promoted to Associate Professor in 1964. He had been at Waynesburg two years and previously spent five years with Shell Oil Company as a resident chemist and four years of active duty in the Korean War. He will retire at the end of the current academic year in May, completing 25 years in education.

Professor Selk received his Bachelor of Arts degree from Knox College, Illinois in 1940 and his Master of Science degree from the State University of Iowa in 1948. He is a doctorate candidate in science education at Penn State.

Selk is a member of a number of professionals organizations pertaining to his field and has served on several college-wide committees. He and his wife, Kathryn, reside at 155 Friar Road in Sherwood Village.

Dr. Carpenter, who will retire in January 1983 with 27½ years in the field of education, was appointed Associate Professor of German at Bloomsburg in June 1966 and in May 1969 was granted full professorship. He attended Culver Military Academy and then received a Bachelor of Arts degree from Cornell University (1943) and his Master of Arts degree from the University of Southern California (1952). After receiving his Doctor of Philosophy degree from New York University (1961), he further expanded his education by earning a Master of Science degree in Educational Administration from Bucknell University (1973). He is currently a candidate for his second doctorate at Columbia University.

Prior to coming to Bloomsburg, Carpenter served on the faculties of Buena Vista College in Iowa, University of Hawaii, University of Vermont, Bronx Community College, and New York University. In recent years he has been the recipient of the Golden and Silver order of Merit Awards from the Japanese Red Cross Society in Tokyo.

Dr. Carpenter is the founder and faculty advisor of the BSC Zeta Nu Chapter of Delta Phi Alpha, the national German College Academic Honor Society. He holds membership in a long list of local, state, and national professional organizations. The Carpenters reside at 144 Fourth Street, Bloomsburg.

The positions of the non-instructional retirees, their years of service, and dates of retirement are: Fedder, equipment operator II, 26 years, one month, November 4; Fox, stock clerk II, 13 years, September 18; Hampton, groundskeeper, 9 years and 11 months, December 25; and Michael, 11 years, November 27.

respect thereto."

Less formally, the Board represents the college to the community and state and vice versa. It oversees such subjects as budget making, personnel hiring and planning for population changes.

There are nine members on the BSC Board of Trustees who represent various interests in the college and community. The Board of Trustees meets four times each year on campus, and with the help of its five advisors which represent the students, alumni, and labor, among others, the vital issues of running a college are discussed at workshops and then voted on. For example, it is the duty of the Board of Trustees to assess the need for additional buildings on campus and work with the community or regulations affecting off-campus housing. The President of the College, Dr. McCormick, is not part of the Board, but he works with this group in determining the needs of the college.

One special member of the Board of Trustees is the student trustee, BSC senior Thomas Gordon. Although all members are appointed by the governor through the state Senate and work without pay, the student trustee must first go through a search and screening process at the campus. As a sophomore, Gordon had no previous experience working with a governing board but his interest in law school and the field of education as a career, plus his desire to influence the educational direction of the college, prompted him to apply for the job. Gordon has been a student trustee for two years and will graduate in May.

When asked whether he believed it was his duty as student trustee to battle continuously in favor of the student view on certain issues, Gordon replied that his "first obligation is as a trustee" working with the eight other members of the board for the whole college community. He did say, however, that since he is a student and is more familiar with student opinions, the other members of the board look to him as a resource for these opinions and are responsive to them. Gordon says he has enjoyed working on the board and has learned much about the workings of a governing body.

Since Gordon is graduating in May, the administration is seeking a new student trustee. If you may be interested in this job, watch for an announcement later this semester in the Campus Voice stating the qualifications for student trustee and where to apply for this job.

Interim Assistant Named

Bernard J. Vinovrski, Associate Director of Admissions at BSC will serve as interim Assistant to the President of the college, until July 1, 1982 while a search is being conducted and a new person selected. Vinovrski came to Bloomsburg in July, 1978 as Assistant Director of Admissions and was promoted to Associate Director in the Fall of 1980. He earned three degrees at Wilkes College - B.S. in business administration in 1969, M.S. in education in 1976, and a Master of Business Administration in 1978. As an under-graduate at Wilkes, he was a member of

Record Reviews

THE KINKS - Misfits (Arista-Mobile Fidelity) - This is one of a series of classic LPs being distributed by Mobile Fidelity from the original master recording. The pressing is made on high quality vinyl which is said to last four to five times longer than a conventional LP - and the sound is far superior.

BOB JAMES - Sign Of The Times (Columbia-Tappan-Zee) - James is many things: producer, arranger, composer, conductor, keyboardist. And he puts all of his skills to work on this LP containing three jazzy compositions by James and three by his new collaborator, Rod Temperton. It's good, solid 1980s music by a man who's paid his dues and then some.

RONNIE MILSAP - There's No Gettin' Over Me (RCA) - The "Pure Love" man is getting better each and every year. He has a voice that can do it all - from rock to country. But his finest work has been done in a country style that merges with pop - which is what he does on this one.

DAN FOGELBERG - The Innocent Age (Epic) - Now that the youthful years are over, Dan wonders, like many others, what happened to them. In this two-record LP he takes a long look back with haunting songs like "Lost in the Sun" and "Only the Heart May Know" (joined on the latter by Emmylou Harris). His folk song style is ideally suited to the subject.

More Colleges Each Year

Campus Digest News Service

Students have a tougher choice each year when considering which college to go to. According to the National Center for Education Statistics, the past year continued the trend of the number of colleges growing considerably. The number of colleges has grown steadily throughout the 1970s, and the past year shows that trend may overlap into the 80s. The total number of public and private institutions, including branch campuses, has grown to 3,270, up 2.5

percent over the previous year. Private institutions experienced a better growth rate than public ones, growing from 1,702 in 1979-80 to 1,760 in 1980-81. This is an increase of 3.4 percent. Public institutions grew from 1,488 to 1,510, an increase of 1.5 percent. The increase in colleges focused mainly on more two-year institutions, and in that category, there were many more new private colleges than public colleges. There are 340 private two-year institutions, an increase of 19.3 percent, and 949 public two-year institutions, an increase of 2 percent.

In the past year, private four-year colleges increased by .2 percent and public four-year colleges increased by .5 percent.

Over the last 10 years, the number of institutions increased by 12.7 percent and in that same period, the number of private two-year institutions increased by 35.5 percent. This indicates a noticeable shift to the two-year college program across the nation.

Basketball News

Over break the Huskies had a home game that promised to be a good one. The opponent was Mt. St. Mary's from Maryland.

MSM was ranked eighth in the nation on the CBS Coaches Poll, a half-time feature on that network's telecast of college basketball.

Bloomsburg was ranked ninth at the time in the NCAA Div. II poll, the one that counts. At the same time Clarion was number two and Cheyney was number 17. Maryland-Baltimore was number 18 and Monmouth St., New Jersey, was 20th.

Well, quite a few students came back to BSC to cheer on the Huskies. I was one of them, and to be quite frank, it wasn't worth the trip.

Despite having a 10-point lead at one point in the first half, the Huskies lead by only two and ended up losing the game 81-65. And it was a game they could have won easily.

The fans were not the only ones displeased. It was reported that all but three of the players boycotted the next practice.

The Huskies went on to lose another game, a game in which they lead by almost 20 points at one time, this one to the University of Scranton, the number two team Div. III.

But don't give up on this team because they don't give up on themselves.

They beat Philadelphia Textile on the road with only seven players. Jon Bardsley took control of the team to lead them through what could have been a rough night.

You see, Mike Wenrich, Brad Weber, and Ken Casey were not allowed to play because they had been seen drinking in public.

The three players were suspended for the Textile game.

Now some people think the suspension silly and perhaps so. But Chronister was looked upon as a saint for possibly sacrificing a game for the sake of the program in the local media. The only question here is would he have done it if it were the Cheyney game or one of equal importance.

Of course he could have concluded that maybe the drinking by his players was the cause of so many leads being blown in the second half, where the Huskies seem to run out of gas in many games.

Whatever the reason for his actions, Chronister's move worked because in their next game, his team, ranked 18th at the time, beat Cheyney at Cheyney, who was ranked ninth at the time.

He may not have the best of bedside manners with his players but Chronister's teams win. And it's probably a good thing for him.

Of course the players deserve the credit for the Cheyney win. Look for the Huskies to get their heads on and really play well down the stretch.

Wrestling News

Congratulations to Don Reese who is now ranked third in the nation. Don was 34-2-2 last year and is presently 15-1-2 with his only loss coming to Bob Porter "...and the guy with the stripes," says Coach Roger Sanders. Sanders rarely blames officials for losses. Porter beat Reese 7-5 in the Lehigh tourney. Porter is from Missouri. And congratulations to the whole team, who is now ranked 18th by Amateur Wrestling News.

Football News

The new football coaches were introduced at a press conference on the first day of classes. Names like Villanova, Cornell, Dartmouth, Penn State, Joe Paterno, Florida, Dave Schula, Don Schula, Ivy League, etc., were being dropped everywhere.

I wondered if I was at the right place. But it turned out I was, and believe it or not, these guys have some outstanding credentials. And, get this, they expect to win.

Huskies Ride Rollercoaster

By DAN LOUGHLIN

For those of you Husky fans who haven't heard, BSC has had its recent share of ups and downs. As of this writing Bloomsburg has nine wins and three losses.

Bloomsburg started the Christmas break by winning their fifth and sixth straight ballgames, enroute to capturing the Indiana University of PA Christmas Tree Tournament.

Led by Mike Wenrich, Jon Bardsley, and Barry Francisco, the Huskies rolled past University of Maryland Baltimore Co. and host IUP. Wenrich was chosen MVP while Bardsley and Francisco were selected to the all-tournament team.

However, all good things must come to an end, as Bloom began its roller coaster ride. The Huskies fell flat on their faces and were totally embarrassed at the hands of visiting Mount St. Mary's.

BSC actually came out storming at the start of the game and held a solid lead throughout much of the first half only to watch it dissolve before their very eyes. The final score was 81-65. Now you don't have to have a degree in math to figure out that that's a 22-point turnaround.

The blowout by the Mount seemed to instill some fire in the Huskies as they traveled to UMBC for a return match and came away with a convincing victory.

But once again the roller coaster went downhill, as the Huskies blew a 19 point first-half lead to Division III powerhouse Scranton, losing 72-70.

BSC was led in the Scranton game by Wenrich with 23 and Bardsley with 22 points.

Bloom then hit the road again, traveling to Philadelphia Textile. Textile is always tough at home, but things were even tougher this time for BSC, as three top players were suspended for training violations.

Grapplers Survive Midwest Tour

By DAN CAMPBELL

Busy. Like all of the other teams at BSC, the wrestling team was busy over the mid-semester break. And that's an understatement.

On December 29, some of the Huskies participated in the Wilkes Open, where Woody Fry and Joe Wade won championships.

On January 4, the Huskies were at Iowa State University. The next day they were at Drake University, and the next day they went to the University of Minnesota. As if that wasn't enough, the next day they took on Mankato State and two days later, the team went to Delaware for a tournament.

Less than a week later, they were back home for matches against Indiana (Pa.) and Slippery Rock on consecutive evenings and then West Chester four nights later.

If this isn't enough to convince you that they were busy consider the fact that: Iowa St. was ranked third in the nation Division I; Minnesota was ranked 11th; Mankato is a Div. II powerhouse; and Drake is no slouch either.

Now if all this wasn't bad enough, the Huskies ran into one of the worst storms to hit the midwest and the United States in years. Two nights before the Iowa St. match, the team was snowed in in Iowa City.

Then came the Cyclones. One of the premier teams in the nation, Iowa St. is virtually a wrestling factory. They handed the Huskies their first dual meet loss of the season, 47-2.

Todd Cummings, Tom Fiorvanti, Tom Gibble, and Joe Wade survived, losing decisions. The Cyclones scored five pins.

Don Reese scored the only points for the Huskies when he drew with the Cyclones' Jim Gibbons. Gibbons was the 134 NCAA champ last year. Reese has now tied Gibbons three times in three meetings in two years.

Before the match, Reese, a senior at BSC, was ranked as the eighth best 134 pounder in the nation. Reese is now the third ranked 134 pounder in NCAA Div. I.

BSC coach Roger Sanders was disappointed with the outcome and the teams competitive drive.

But his disappointment didn't last long.

The Huskies came out much more aggressive the next night against Drake, at Des Moines, Iowa. Todd Cummings won his 118 pound match by the score of 16-0. Troy Dagle then pinned his 126 pound opponent to give the Huskies an 11-0 lead. And they never looked back, winning by a final score of 29-11.

Injuries to Jack Wilson and Gibbes Johnson threw the Husky lineup into disarray. Woody Fry, a 126 pound junior had to wrestle at 142 and Joe Wade was forced to wrestle at heavyweight.

The Huskies suffered their only other dual loss in Lakeland, Minnesota, against that state's university. The BSC grapplers lost 32-8, wrestling the Big Ten powerhouse with five freshman.

However, the Huskies got fine performances from Don Reese and Butch Snyder. Reese beat last year's Big Ten champ and this year's second ranked 134 pounder when he decided Gary Lefebvre, 5-1.

Butch Snyder edged Evan Bernstein 17-13 in a real tough match. Tom Gibble lost at 177, 13-11. Todd Cummings drew 8-8.

The Huskies ended their midwest trip with a 36-15 win at Mankato State.

Back in the friendly confines of Nelson Fieldhouse, the Huskies had little trouble in dealing with Pennsylvania Conference foes Indiana, Slippery Rock, and West Chester.

In fact, Coach Sanders got to rest some men that had had physical problems after the midwest tour. Freshmen Jeff Gray and Greg Sullivan both saw action against Indiana and both scored superior decisions helping the Huskies to a 36-10 win. Also helping the cause was freshman John McFadden who pinned his 190 pound opponent.

Another freshman, Tom Gibble seems to have found a home at the 167 pound slot. He won an exciting match against Slippery Rock, 7-5, and destroyed his Indiana opponent 13-6. He also beat the West Chester opponent, 17-4.

George Landis Named New Grid Boss

George J. Landis, an assistant coach at Dartmouth College for the past four years and former defensive back at Penn State University, has been named head football coach at Bloomsburg State College.

Landis, 32, a native of Linwood, NJ, helped guide Dartmouth to an Ivy League co-championship with Yale this season and worked with the Big Green defense that led the entire ECAC in team defense allowing just 13.7 points per game.

Dartmouth veteran head coach Joe Yukica commented, "Among the young coaches that I have come across in my experience, I regard him as one with very high potential to be a head football coach at the college level. I'll go one step further and say that a better head coach prospect will be difficult to find."

The new coach lettered for three years at Penn State and played in the 1969 and 1970 Orange Bowls in the Nittany Lions' defensive backfield. In 1970 he was named to the All-East defensive team and was also honored as South Jersey's "College Athlete of the Year."

His coaching experience started at Penn State where he assisted on the Nittany Lions' staff while earning his graduate degree in education. He was defensive backfield coach at Villanova and Cornell Universities before taking a head coaching position at Mainland Regional High School, where he served for two years. In 1978 he joined the Dartmouth coaching staff as defensive backfield coach.

Robert W. Buehner, Jr., chairman of the college Board of Trustees, said the appointment of Landis as head football coach has the strong support of the trustees, and added, "it was an outstanding selection from a group of (96) strong candidates."

The newly hired coach wasted no time getting started with his duties. Within a week of his appointment, Landis named Louis Maranzana as defensive coordinator for the Huskies.

Maranzana, 34, a native of Hollywood, Florida, was an assistant coach in charge of linebackers at Dartmouth for the past two years. Prior to his stint at Dartmouth, he was head coach at Chaminade High School in Hollywood, Florida.

Landis commented, "Lou's experience as a head coach at the high school level, in addition to his two years at Dartmouth, could very well make him the top assistant in the Pennsylvania Conference. He is an excellent teacher and his great rapport with people will be a big help in recruiting."

"I'm looking forward to working with George and meeting the challenge of turning this program into a winner," stated Maranzana.

Landis set no timetable for turning BSC's program around. "It's optimistic to think we can be competitive next year. I have no timetable. We'll take it one day at a time."

At a team meeting with returning players, Landis shed some light on his philosophies. "We have to establish a passing game if we want to win right away, but with a good defense and a very good kicking game, we'll be in every game."

"Winning is the result of hard work. That's going to be our trademark. We're going to out-hit, out-condition, and out-hustle our opponents. That's how we're going to win."

Landis' next priorities will be getting his coaching staff organized and beginning a winter conditioning program. Spring practice will begin shortly after Easter break.

FCA Tops Standings Intramurals Logjammed

By DAN CAMPBELL

Despite failing to win a single competition, the Fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA) found themselves on top of the standings after one semester of activity in the men's campus Intramural Athletic competition.

However, the Scorpions, defending champions, are not far behind. FCA ended up with 736 points while the Scorp ended up with 733.

Softball runnerup, the Marauders, are still in the fight for the overall title with 718 points while softball champs Bung's Bar and Grill have 710 points.

Volleyball champions, the Misfits, have 623 points.

FCA did finish in a tie for first in a weather shortened tennis doubles tournament. The Gooneybirds were the co-champions. FCA was a runnerup in volleyball, ping pong, and golf. They also took a third in archery.

The Scorpions won horseshoes, golf, racquetball, and archery. They finished in a tie for second with the Marauders in tennis doubles.

The Marauders won badminton doubles, took second in tennis and softball, and captured a third in golf.

The all-important basketball competition, as well as the wrestling tourney, is scheduled to start early next week. Captains are asked to watch their mailboxes and the Intramural board in the Union for game dates.

B-Ball

Ken Casey sat the entire game out. But thanks to super performances by the remaining starters and the subs who saw considerable time, BSC pulled out of Philly with a very tough win. Bardsley led the Huskies with 25, followed by Barry Francisco with 16, and Terry Conrad with 13.

Then came a showdown between two top PA Conference teams — Bloom and Cheyney State. The Wolves entered the contest with a 3-0 conference record, while BSC was 4-0.

A Bardsley jumper with 10 seconds remaining gave Bloomsburg only their second win at Cheyney in Coach Charlie Chronister's 11-year career.

Grapplers Survive ...

Huskies were down 12-5 after four weight classes but rebounded to win 23-12.

This match had quite a few close calls, including a one point win by Joe Wade who won by riding time, as did Jack Wilson. Gibbes Johnson won with an escape and a takedown in the last period. Jeff Gray won with two back points (and two more points when his opponent was called for stalling twice) in the last period.

West Chester was next but they were even less bothersome than Indiana. The Huskies lost only in two weight classes on their way to a 35-7 win.

Now, all this was to get the Huskies ready for the big match with Pa. Conf., Eastern Wrestling League, and NCAA Div. I foe Clarion State. Clarion would come into the match ranked 19th and BSC ranked 18th.

But the weather had other ideas and the ice storm that hit the state this past weekend postponed everything. The postponement will help the Huskies as much as it hurts them. They were mentally ready for the match but physically they could use some time to heal. Clarion lost to Penn State earlier in the week so now they have some time to regroup also.

Library Lacks Space

This semester will also see some major changes in the periodical section. Because of the increase of theft and vandalism to the periodicals, they will be moved into a closed stack area, located where they are shelved now.

"You're talking big money when you're dealing with periodicals," says Miller. "Certain subscriptions can run up to $800 a year or more," he added.

The library spends over $100,000 a year in periodicals alone, and the excessive loss of periodicals has created the need for a new system. The closed periodical section will be handled in much the same way that the reserve desk operates. Students will have to fill out a slip for each periodical that they wish to use. No more than five may be removed by any one person at a time, but they may remain out for any length of time.

In order to make room for this new system, four of the cubicles were removed, adding to the shortage of seating space. When asked what will be done with the cubicles, Miller stated, "We will try to find another place for them, but there just isn't enough floor space. We'll put them anywhere we can."

Hopefully, the near future will see solutions to this problem so that the library can accommodate all who wish to use it.
