

Federal Aid Cut to Students

By BETSY WOLLAM

"Solidarity Day is chicken-feed compared to what is to come for financial aid," said Thomas Lyons, director of Financial Aid, concerning a recent report he gave to the Coordinating Committee on Campus Life.

According to Lyons, 95 percent of BSC's students receive some sort of financial aid in the form of loans, grants, or campus work-study employment.

The federal budget has from Student Aid programs for fiscal year 1982. Work-study funds are expected to be cut by 30 to 40 percent, and student loans may be scarce.

Ordinarily, the amount of federal funds BSC receives for its following school year is known well in advance - no later than January or February of that year. This leaves the Financial Aid office ample time to determine how it will allocate its funds to students.

This year, since President Reagan's budget cuts are still being negotiated in Congress, Federal appropriations are not expected to be announced before June. BSC students may not know how much aid, if any, they will receive until August.

Joseph DeMelfi, Assistant Dean of Student Life, sees the problem. "Financial Aid has to take a wait-and-see attitude," he said, "If Reagan's cuts take place, they are going to have far-reaching effects."

Many students, if faced with an aid cut, may not be able to continue their educations. The greater problem lies with students already in college, rather than those who intend to enter in the fall.

DeMelfi explained that incoming freshmen have the advantage of choosing a school based on what they can and cannot afford. Students already enrolled may only be able to decide whether or not they can afford to stay in school.

"We will do everything in our power to see that all students are able to come back," DeMelfi added.

Plagiarism and false sources suspected

Nursing Grades Probed

By SHERI FOREMAN

The sophomore nursing students at BSC were recently investigated because of an assignment they were given as part of their fall semester pharmacology class. According to Sandra Richardson, the professor teaching pharmacology, some students used fictitious and incomplete references to support papers that were assigned to them and others committed plagiarism.

"Our department and staff try to maintain high standards and I believe that this is a perfect example of it," said Lucille Gambardella, chairperson of the nursing department.

The nursing department set up a committee to look into the alleged plagiarism. The committee, made up of Richardson, Jean Berry and Robert Campbell, all nursing professors, reviewed all of the papers and made recommendations as to what should be done.

Howard Macaulay, dean of professional studies, received the committee's recommendations and conferred with Vice President for Academic Affairs, Larry Jones as to their fairness. The grades are now complete and available to students.

The controversial assignment was a research paper concerning a list of drugs compiled by Richardson. Students were instructed to use five sources; four standard, but one of which was an individually chosen magazine article.

Problems developed when several students were unable to locate articles on a drug. Instead of conferring with Richardson, they falsified their sources.

Another problem was the similarity in the wording of many of the papers. This, it was discovered, came as a result of the students' concentration of research on the most easily understood of the four required sources.

Students alleged a lack of clarity in the directions given to them. "Mrs. Richardson never told us not to use one source more than another one, so we all used the Govoni and Hayes drug reference because it was easier to understand than any of the other sources," said one nursing student.

Another said, "I didn't do anything wrong, but I am still afraid that this will be held against the entire sophomore nursing class. This entire incident was blown way out of proportion."

The students who could not show sufficient proof of their sources failed the assignment. This affected the Nursing Science 201 final grade. Not all of the papers contained these problems, and as a result, not every student's grade was affected.

Finance Committee Passes Requests

By DOTILTIS

The CGA finance committee unanimously passed a request from the Campus Voice for $600 to keep it operating until the end of the semester.

"We, the Campus Voice, request $600 for the purpose of continued printing for the rest of the semester" was the wording used in their written request before the committee.

The Campus Voice previously came before CGA with a request for $2000 to continue printing until the end of the school year. This request was budgeted with the editorial salaries included.

The Campus Voice returned to CGA with a new proposal for $600. This new figure was without the editorial fees. Mr. Richard Savage, advisor to the paper, said, "It is a pretty minimum thing to ask." He hoped the committee would "give full consideration."

After the motion was passed, Paul Stockler, treasurer of CGA, said, "The Campus Voice ought to be commended." He also added that loss of the funds was out of the control of the Campus Voice.

Other motions considered at the meeting were Mass Communication Club and Kappa Delta Pi.

Lori Danner, President of the Mass Communication Club, requested $22 for transportation to take a tour of WVIA - TV Channel 44 Station in Pittston, Pa. on March 16.

Bill Kelly, assistant general manager of the station and a professor at BSC, invited the Mass Communication Club, as well as any other interested students, to come and take the tour of the television station.

This motion was also unanimously passed by the committee.

A request was also made by Kappa Delta Pi, a national honor society for education majors, to send a representative to the national conference in San Antonio, Texas.

The request was passed by the finance committee.

Letters to the Editor

Praise for rally

Dear Editor:

I just wanted to write and say how surprised I was that so many people showed up at the tuition rally. I know a lot of people just came for something different to do or to skip a class or two. Some people probably even showed up just to get on TV. Regardless, I think the number of students and the enthusiasm shown demonstrated BSC's student protest of the tuition increase.

For once I think the students here showed some support for something. They have been called apathetic, but I think it took something as important as a raise in the price of education to get them into action.

Bloomsburg's rally was on two TV channels, and that proves something. It may have started those people in Harrisburg talking, and maybe they will come up with other alternatives other than putting the financial burden on students.

I think that if students showed this much support for things, BSC would be a more active state college. Lets just hope that the rally does some good and somebody listens.

Final note on laundry situation

Dear Editor:

I hope this will be a final comment on the laundry situation. I think there are two sides to this issue and neither side is the right one. Maybe I am just wishy-washy, but BSC students should be able to use campus facilities freely (off campus as well as on campus).

On the other hand students living in dormitories should not be forced to do their laundry at 2:00 in the morning to beat the mad rush for washers.

I suggest that these two sides cooperate. There has to be a compromise somewhere. We are always going to have to share things, why not start with a trivial matter like laundry rooms.

Response to bomb threat

Dear Editor:

This is written in response to the bomb threat that occurred the day the rally on campus for the $75 tuition increase. I think it was a totally stupid thing for someone to do. First of all, it upset the daily routine of classes. Granted, it got students out of some classes for a few hours, but the students will just have to make up the missed work eventually. So, the caller claiming that there was a bomb hidden somewhere only made a nuisance of himself or herself. If this person wanted to miss classes, that was his/her prerogative, but other students need not have been the subject of this unlaughable situation.

Another point to be made is that this false alarm may hurt students in the future. What if someday someone isn't fooling around and decides to really plant a bomb somewhere on campus? Students and professors may take it as a joke and people's lives may be put in jeopardy. I, for one, would not like to be the victim of this kind of incident.

While the prank caller is mainly to blame for the inconvenience, other people have some responsibilities in this. I'm not blaming CAS for this, I think that is a bit too obvious, but maybe the rally wasn't put across beforehand in a serious matter.

Also, professors should have taken the threat more seriously. Some professors kept classes in session even after the warning bells went off. What if the threat had been legitimate, what then?

The sound made by the warning systems in the buildings involved was not very loud, and students and professors didn't even know what the sound was at first. This should be checked into.

I think the security department did a good job in evacuating the buildings, and following through to check out the threat. At least they took it seriously.

I hope incidents like this do not affect the effectiveness of student protection from bombs and the likes. I would like to be around for the rest of my education process.

"Absence of Malice" Appeals to Journalists

By RICK DILIBERTO

Paul Newman and Sally Field, who complement each others performance as well as any recent film team, are the stars of Absence of Malice, at the Twin Capitol Theatre.

In a drama which no journalism major should miss, Field plays an intense newspaper reporter for a Miami publication, hot on the trail of Michael Gallagher (Newman), a liquor distributor, who has been identified as a "key suspect" in the disappearance of a mob chief.

The film exhibits some of the ramifications which a newspaper and its power can have on the lives of those involved with it, be it writing the stories or being written about.

Director Sidney Pollock is sincere in his quest to describe some of the sometimes impersonal and unthinking tactics used by journalists to "get the story," while not considering the effects of its publication on the subjects.

The film is interesting, and also fairly realistic. There is not only the threat of Newman losing his business because of the story, but also a love affair involving Newman and Field, which causes a conflict between her role as a journalist and woman.

Absence of Malice is one of the better releases thus far in 1982.

The Party Scene — Good and Bad

Campus Digest News Service

What's in a party? Why do people go? For the women, for the men, for the drinks or smoke, to forget about the exam, past or coming up, to meet someone with whom they can form a lasting relationship.

With so many different reasons to go to a party, it is no wonder there is no shortage of patrons on Friday and Saturday nights.

There is also a host of different types of parties depending on the type of people hosting the party. For one thing, a certain type of people tend to invite the same type of people to their parties.

So there is the loud party, the quiet party, the drug party, the redneck party, the wild women and crazy guys party and, of course, there is the totally boring party and the out-of-control party that always winds up getting a visit from the police.

You can always tell a boring party when you step in the door and five to seven people are sitting around watching a "Little House on the Prairie" rerun because the host happened to miss it the first time around.

But the number of parties on campuses around the country has surely grown through the 70s (the 60s students had better things to do).

But there are still those who say they would rather not fool with going to a party. They've been once they say. Too much smoke. Rooms are too crowded. Too many drunk people.

And they are entitled to their opinion. But then again, party means different things to different people. Some might call three or four people eating pizza at the union a party.

Basically there is a party for everyone. And those who say they don't like parties have usually wandered into a kind they didn't like and assumed they were all like that. The best thing to do in this situation is spread your partying around. Go to parties at different places and with different people. Or, throw one of your own. The world can always use another good party.

Legislation to Increase Loan Availability

Concerned by the increasing difficulty of financing a college education, Sen. James J. Rhoades, R-29, has announced plans to sponsor legislation that will increase the availability of loans for Pennsylvania students.

His bill authorizes the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency (PHEAA) to sell tax-exempt bonds and use the proceeds to set up an array of student loan programs.

The lawmaker estimates the shortfall in student loan funds for the coming year at about $100 million. "To meet this need," he added, "PHEAA's initial bond issue might be in that area. Re-issues could be scheduled as needed."

PHEAA would then design a variety of programs to make the money available for educational purposes. In some cases, loans would be made directly to graduate and undergraduate students or their parents. In other cases, they would be channeled through colleges or commercial lenders.

"By using the Commonwealth's good name and its tax-exempt status, we would be able to obtain the money we need at an attractive interest rate," Rhoades commented. "We could then make it available to college students at rates well below current market levels.

"Another advantage of this type of financing is that there would be no cost to taxpayers. The program would be self-supporting.

"At least 24 other states have gone into the bond market to raise money for college loan funds," the GOP senator said. "This approach has been quite successful, and it's time for us to try it."

Rhoades said he has attached an "urgent" tag to his legislation because, he added, "we want to be able to take care of students who are in danger of being squeezed out of other programs."

"We're working on a very tight schedule. If the bill is moved along, however, we could have the loan programs in place by this fall," Rhoades said.

"We would then have Pennsylvania in a position to offer a full range of student loan programs and to handle any changes in federal aid to college students."

RA Selection Nearly Completed

MARGIE LESSIE

The selection of Resident Advisors (RA's) for the 1982-83 academic year has almost been completed. The 126 applicants, the highest number in recent years, are in their last phase of the process, an interview with a Resident Dean and a Senior RA.

During the week of March 1, the decisions will be made and the applicants will be informed of the selections. "The reason for the early notification," Nardi said, "is so that people can make housing arrangements."

The first part of the RA selection process required the students to hand in applications by January 29. On February 7, during an all-day workshop was held to observe the applicants during their interactions with each other.

Brenda Russell, presently an RA in Montour Hall, said she can relate to the applicant's feelings. "They ask all of the same questions that I asked," said Russell. She added that most of the students just want to know if they are answering the questions "the right way."

An important fact for all of the applicants to know is that there is no "pre-cutting," said Nardi, Resident Dean of Montour Hall, "We look for kids who have a good head on their shoulders and who are able to relate with a lot of different people. We also look for students who can offer something to our program."

Diane Drake, Senior RA in Montour Hall, stated recently that an RA job is very time-consuming and an RA may suffer from a lack of privacy. The advantages however, Drake said, outweigh the disadvantages.

Some of the advantages, according to Drake, are a chance to learn about and help others, and most importantly, a chance to learn about oneself.

"I learned so much about myself when I became an RA," Russell said. She added that it was almost impossible not to learn about yourself when you have over an hour in an interview to explain your feelings.

PSU Has S.O.U.L.

By LISA SWARTZBAUGH

Penn State University was the site of the 1982 Pennsylvania Pro-Life Inter-Collegiate Conference this past weekend. Members of Students Organized to Uphold Life, (S. O. U. L.), attended the conference representing the Bloomsburg chapter.

Brian McCafferty, Michele Kelly, Brenda Lyter and Lois Faller, the attending members, joined 46 other students representing 14 colleges and universities across the state.

The major outcome of the conference was the selection of a committee responsible for forming a state-wide inter-collegiate pro-life organization. The organization's goal includes the plans for an annual convention which will draw all the state-wide organizations together for the first time.

McCafferty, President of Bloomsburg's pro-life organization, S. O. U. L., was elected chairman of this committee. The first convention will be held next spring.

Speakers representing various organizations lectured on different pro-life issues during the Saturday session of the conference. Rev. Olga Fairfax, Pres. of Methodists for Life; Garnet Biviano, Pres. of PA's Pro-Life Federation and Rep. Gregg Cunningham of the 77th District and co-sponsor of PA's Abortion Control Act were the three main speakers at the conference.

Films relating to rape, abortion, suicide, senior citizens and the handicapped were also viewed and discussed by those in attendance at the conference.

"I feel this weekend was extremely interesting and worthwhile," exclaimed McCafferty.

Video Craze Overruns Bloomsburg

By LAURIE STAUFFER
 Anyone from teenagers in faded Levis and T-shirts to businessmen dressed in ties and three-piece suits congregate in arcades to feed the machines with quarters.
 These quarters are running video games, the largest and most expanding new fad to hit the country in years.
 Regardless of age, all of the players have one thing in common—a desire for the excitement these games can provide.

 This excitement brought in 20 to 30 billion quarters last year from teenagers alone. Arcades on college and university campuses across the country are main contributors to this astounding figure.
 The games room on the first floor of the Kehr Union building is a prime example. During lunch hours and between classes you can be assured to find many players anticipating the strategy they will use on their favorite game when their turn finally arrives.

 Figures from the month of October, 1981, show the most popular games in the arcade to be Centipede with 4588 plays, followed by Pac Man with 3900 plays, Defender with 3684, and Asteroid Deluxe, with 3038.
 Some of the more recent arrivals are also proving to be very profitable. Last week Donkey Kong had 1384 plays on one machine and 1256 on the

Renovations Cause Activity Conflicts

By TONY PASTORE
 Carver Hall hosts many campus activities and is one of the few facilities large enough to hold several classes, but when students returned for classes in January, Carver Hall's auditorium was unusable because of the threat of the dome caving in. Consequently, while one of the oldest buildings on campus is undergoing repairs, Haas auditorium will be working overtime.
 Moving the many classes scheduled for Carver to Haas appeared to be no problem. Moving the Bloomsburg Players from Carver to Haas appeared to be no problem. However, the combination of Carver's classes, the Bloomsburg Player's production preparation, plus the music department's activities did present a problem.

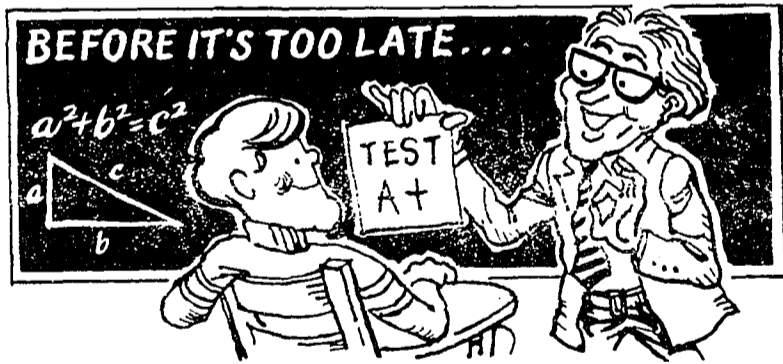

Production dates were Acierno's immediate concern. According to already printed literature, the show was scheduled for Feb. 18, 19 and 20. Now the show will be pushed back and presented in a broken run. The production of "The Male Animal" will now open on Wednesday, Feb. 24, skip the 25th due to the pre-arranged Livingston Taylor concert, and then continue on the 26th and 27th.
 Another problem facing the production is that it has a larger stage area. This creates a large gap between actors and audience, making it difficult for the actors to establish the desired intimacy with the audience. An advantage, however, of the larger stage is more freedom for the actors.
 Mr. Hitoshi Sato, technical director of the Bloomsburg

Players, also had scheduling problems, but of a different nature than Acierno. Construction of the play set can only be done when the students involved have free time. However, because of the noisy nature of construction it can not be done if a class is in the auditorium. Also, deliveries from buildings and grounds have to use the shop's entrance for anything brought into Haas. Another problem, from the design standpoint, is the necessity of making all stage scenery 12 feet high for Haas instead of the 8 feet required at Carver.
 From the design standpoint, Mr. Sato prefers Carver over Haas because the shape of the stage opening in Haas makes the design look squatted down and makes it difficult to create

Male Animal Prowls BSC Stage

"The Male Animal", the Broadway comedy hit that kids college life and college minds, is the next attraction of the Bloomsburg Players under the direction of William Acierno, and will open a three performance run on Wednesday, February 24 in Haas Center on the BSC campus. It will play again on Friday, February 26 and Saturday, February 27 (No Thursday). From the impish pens of James Thurber and Elliott Nugent, "The Male Animal" is a good natured lampoon of college football heroes, radical students, stuffed shirt officialdom, and campus "Red" scares.
 Even more timely now than when first produced in 1940, "The Male Animal" concerns the harassment of a young professor who has casually announced that he will read Vanzetti's letter to his class as an example of the powerful writing of the untutored man. When some trustees get wind of the professor's innocent proposal, the reading of the letter snowballs into an issue of academic freedom.

 Along with the main theme is the story of the professor's wife who toys with the idea of running away with a brawny football coach, and a parallel triangle between a sweet young co-ed, a radical student and a football star.
 Because of the repairs to Carver Hall, this show had been moved to Haas Center. Box office Haas Center open 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. Reservations, 389-2802.

Rushing Procedure Explained

By Stephanie Richardson

"I had a great time rushing. I met so many people!" "I ate so much!" "It's so exciting-it's great!"

The mysterious thing called "rushing" has returned to Bloomsburg State College. Why all the mystery? It seems that only those who rush really know what is going on. Actually, it is a bit confusing at first, but it's not too terribly mind-boggling.

This semester, the Inter-Sorority Council gave BSC girls the chance to sign up for the 1982 rush program on February 1 and 2. Signing up is a process which requires each prospective rushee to give her name, address, phone number, and cumulative average. Also at this time, the girls are given a pamphlet telling them a little bit about rushing.

A prospective pledge must meet certain requirements before she can rush. The first is that the girl must have completed at least 12 credit hours. The second is that if the student is an upperclass woman, she must have a 2.0 overall cum. If she is a second semester freshman, a 2.2 overall average must be met. Third, the student cannot be on disciplinary probation. Finally, transfer students must meet all these requirements, while also being able to pledge their first semester at BSC.

On Thursday Feb. 4, at 9:30, ISC held their mandatory Presidents Talk in Kuster Auditorium. This is where the presidents of the various sororities give a speech telling the rushees how glad they are to have them, and they also speak a bit about their own sorority. After the speeches are completed, all the sisters leave and the ISC chairman hands out rush pins and rush manuals. The pins must be worn at all times during rush week so the rushee can be recognized. The manual contains a message from Joy Troxell, (ISC Vice-President and Rush Chairman), a definition of sisterhood and rush terms, info, rules, schedules, and requirements. It also gives the girl her group number. The individuals in these groups then go through "Open House" together.

Open house is held on Friday and Saturday. Sororities set up at various places on campus, and the rushees come to visit and talk with the sisters. They can be held any where from the multi-purpose rooms in the Kehr Union Building, to the basements of various dormitories. There are eight open houses and each rushee must attend all eight. If they do not, it is known as "breaking rush" and the rushee cannot proceed and must wait one year before rushing again.

The open house sessions are one-half hour long. Each rushee talks with all the sisters and enjoys snacks which are provided by the sisters. The sisters may also show the girls trinkets which hold a significant meaning for their sorority, and they usually perform a skit for the rushees.

When open house visits are completed, the next step is "informals." This is where the rushee picks five sororities that she wants to visit again. Informals are held at the sorority houses this time and last for an hour. They are held Saturday and Sunday and are basically the same as open house. The sisters put on more skits and again they usually have refreshments. This is the first time during rushing that the sisters must decide who to invite back.

On Monday, the rushee can go to the KUB and pick up her invitations. She chooses the three sororities which she prefers and signs up to visit them. These visits are known as "formals."

For formals, the rushee dresses a bit more formally and as one rushee says, "the refreshments get better! "At informals we had things like cookies, celery and carrots, and small sundaes in a cup. At formals we had blueberry cheesecake, sundaes, and all kinds of good stuff. I feel like I spent the whole week eating!"

Immediately following the third formal, the rushee goes to the President's Lounge in the KUB and fills out a preference sheet. She can choose three in the order she prefers. Also, some girls decide to "go suicide." "It's kind of an all or nothing," says Beth Renninger, a rushee. This means they only make one choice and if the sorority does not bid on the girl, then she cannot pledge. If the rushee chooses two sororities, it is possible for her to not get her first choice but she could get her second. However, if she decides that she really does not want to pledge her second choice, she is turning down a bid. Because of this, the girl cannot rush again for one year.

After the preference sheet is in, the rushee must wait until Thursday night to find out if she will be pledging, and where she will be pledging. "The worst part of this whole week is waiting for Thursday to come," says Sheila Rumsey, a rushee.

If the rushee does not get a bid, which does happen, ISC calls her personally. "I felt so bad when one of my friends didn't get a bid," says another rushee. "It's one of those situations where you just don't know what to say."

"When the bids finally come in, there are tears of joy and there are tears of sadness. It's all a part of the mystery."

Video Games

other, while Frogger had 880.

According to John Trathen, head of student activity, one controversial issue regarding the campus arcade is that most video games are geared towards the male population. A few examples of these are missile and war games, car racing and a variety of males sports such as football and baseball. Since the Bloomsburg student body consists of a 60 to 40 ratio of females to males, more games are needed to attract female players.

A recent development along these lines and the newest addition to the games room is Ms. Pac Man. This game is the same as the original Pac Man but adds female features such as dainty colors and pigtails.

Another female attraction is the weekly competition. Every week or two a new game is featured and the highest male and female score wins a Pac Man T-shirt.

The Automatic Company owns all the machines and is in charge of installment and repairs. Half of the profits from the machines goes to Automatic and the other half goes to the Kehr Union budget and Program Board.

In October, $12,825.40 was collected from the machines with $6,412.70 going to Kehr Union. November was even higher with $13,520 collected and the Kehr Union share $6,760.00. September, October, November, and January are the most profitable months because of poor weather and students having extra spending money after break. Profits will drop with warmer weather as outside activities take over.

The Kehr Union and Program Board use the money for programs such as movies, dance marathons, special events, arts and crafts festival, dances in the Union, coffee houses, dating games, and wide-screen TV movies.

The Union Arcade is opened Monday thru Thursday from 9 a.m. until 11 p.m., Friday from 9 a.m. until 12 p.m., Saturday from 12 a.m. until 12 p.m. and Sunday from 12 a.m. until 11 p.m.

Women's Swimming...

Huskies End 9-1

By TINA KLAMUT

The BSC Women's Swim Team completed their dual meet season Saturday with a 82-57 win over Indiana State. The Huskies defeated Bucknell and Indiana last week to give them an impressive 9-1 record overall.

Several records fell again as the Huskies swamped Bucknell last Tuesday 76-55. The 400 yd. medley relay team of Gwen Cressman, Sue Boyer, Colleen Grimm and Kelly Reimert set a new pool and school mark of 4:11.83. Also new pool and school records were set by Cressman in the 100 yd. breast-yd. backstrokes, Boyer in the 100 yd. and 200 yd. breast-strokes, Sue Snedden in the one meter diving and Tina Klamut in the 400 yd. individual medley. Cathy Sheridan also set a new pool record in the 200 yd. freestyle.

Outstanding performances by Angie Kramer in the 100 yd. individual medley, Sue Young in the 50 yd. freestyle and Tina Klamut in the 50 yd. breast-stroke, highlighted Saturday's meet against Indiana. All three qualified for Nationals in their respective events.

"This has been one of our most successful dual meet seasons," said Coach Gardner. "The girls have accomplished a lot of personal best times and showed growth for the program as a whole with all the new records being set."

The Huskies are now looking forward to their biggest competitions of the season with the Pennsylvania State Conference Championships and the Division II National Championships.

"We have 95 entries for the Conference meet this year which is our largest entry ever," Gardner said.

All 18 swimmers and divers are well under the qualifying standards for the Conference Championships to be held this Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Indiana University of Pennsylvania. Up to date there are 11 Huskies that have already qualified for the AIAW National Championships to be held in March.

Wenrich

With at least five games remaining, Wenrich is again on track for another outstanding season. And thanks to his team leadership and competitiveness, Bloomsburg is again enjoying an impressive winning season.

PSAC Tourney

of their remaining two games on the road (at Mansfield last night and at Millersville on Saturday) to clinch the home birth in Tuesday's playoff game at Shippensburg.

The other Tuesday game will put number one Cheyney up against either Kutztown or Mansfield, depending on the outcome of last night's game.

In the Western Division of the PSAC, Edinboro, Clarion, Slippery Rock and Indiana will be involved in Tuesday night action.

Then comes the PSAC Tournament, only the second year that the PSAC title will be decided in this format. And, for the second year, the tourney will be at Bloomsburg's Nelson Fieldhouse.

The reason for this is that BSC offers the past package to the PSAC. BSC obtained a sponsor who really gets involved, sponsoring clinics, banquets, etc. The sponsor, for the second year also, will be Ludens.

The Tourney starts Friday, Feb. 26 at 6:30 P.M.

The tournament starts on Friday night, Feb. 26, at 6:30, with the winner of the Tuesday game between the East's second and third place team going against the winner of the West's one and four game.

The 8:30 game will be West's two or three against East's one or four.

Saturday's championship game between the winner's from Friday night will start at 7:15 and will be televised live by WNEP Channel 16. There will be no consolation game.

The winner of the tournament will get an automatic bid to the NCAA Div. II tourney. If the winner is not Cheyney, the Wolves will get invited anyway because of their number one status. If the winner is Bloomsburg, or the Huskies get a bid for a second place finish, the Eastern Regionals of the Div. II Tourney could be held at Bloomsburg. The first day of this tournament will be March 5.

Hockey Club Second

By MARC MANFREDI

The Bloomsburg State Ice Hockey Club, defending Northeastern Pennsylvania Amateur Hockey League champions, finished their regular season Monday night with a 5-2 victory over the East Mountain Nordmen at the Wilkes-Barre Ice-a-Rama.

The victory assured Bloomsburg of a second place finish. The team finished with an impressive record of 11-3-4, just one point behind the Nordmen and one point ahead of the Wilkes-Barre Heights Wings.

Jerry Valletta put the Huskies on the board first, just 49 seconds into the game, and that was the only score until 10:05 of the second period when Mike Grady scored from 10 feet out to give BSC a 2-0 lead after two periods.

The Nordmen cut the lead in half with a power-play goal, but Mike Dunn scored less than two minutes later to put Bloomsburg back in front by two.

Midway through the third period, Jerry Valletta was sent in on a breakaway on a perfect feed from Mike Orlando and was hauled down from behind for an apparent penalty shot. The penalty shot, however, was denied, and Valletta was assessed a minor penalty for disorderly conduct.

On the way to the penalty box Valletta bumped referee Bill Katyl and was called for both a gross and game misconduct (which entails a one game suspension). Bedlam then broke out as Balletta grabbed Katyl, striking Katyl in the head. When order was finally restored, Valletta received a suspension for the remainder of the year.

The incident seemed to rattle

BSC, as the Nordmen scored on a shot from center ice that was deflected past goalie Bob Thomas. But Grady scored to put the game out of reach with just 58 seconds to play. Dunn then scored his second goal of the night to complete the scoring.

Because of their first place finish, the Nordmen will draw a bye in the first round of the playoffs. Bloomsburg begins their playoff competition against Kings College on Monday night. The Wings will meet ESSC, and Wilkes will play Scranton University in the other quarter-final series with the winners advancing into the semi-finals.

It will be a difficult task for the Huskies to repeat as champions this year. BSC's manpower has been cut to only

PSAC Champs...

Prep for EWL

By DAN CAMPBELL

Led by two seniors and a freshman, the Husky wrestling team had three number one seeds going into last weekend's Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference tournament at East Stroudsburg.

The team came out with five individual champions and their third PSAC title in four years. The Huskies edged rival Clarion State 138-128.

But this won't be the last time the Huskies and the Golden Eagles will meet. Next weekend (Feb. 26-27) these two teams travel to Penn State to battle the Nittany Lions and the rest of the Eastern Wrestling League for the EWL title.

The host Nittany Lions are the definite favorites going into the tournament - regardless of last night's results of the dual between BSC and PSU.

But it is going to be a three team fight for the top.

Coach Roger Sanders stated that Bloomsburg, Penn State and Clarion are the only three that have a shot at winning the tournament.

The tournament is important because it is the NCAA qualifier. Last year the Huskies won, ending up with five qualifiers. Todd Cummings, Ed Fiorvanti, Don Reese, and Tom Fiorvanti all won EWL crowns. Al McCollum qualified as a result of his second place finish.

PSAC Roundup

The number one seeds going into the PSAC's were Don Reese (134) Al McCollum (142) and Tom Gibble (167). All won conference titles.

Tom Fiorvanti (150) and Joe Wade (190) also won titles. Both were seeded second.

Todd Cummings (118) was seeded third and ended up taking third place. Todd beat Tim Bresnak of Lock Haven, 6-5, to take third.

Woody Fry (126) was seeded sixth in the tourney and ended up fourth, losing to Terry Lauver of Shippensburg, 8-6. Fry beat Clarion's Kraig Nellis 5-4 in the wrestlebacks.

Sanders thought that this match was the turning point in the tournament.

"Up to that point it was fairly close," Sanders said. "We went into the finals only 13 points ahead."

Gibbes Johnson (158) tore either ligaments or cartilage in his knee and had to default in the semis. Johnson did, however, win two matches to take sixth place.

Butch Snyder (177) pinned Tom Toborowski in 1:27 to finish third.

Huskies Rebound Against Colonels

By DAN LOUGHLIN

Jon Bardsley scored 21 points, while Barry Francisco and Doug Greenholt each had 10 to lead the Bloomsburg State Huskies to a 72-67 non-conference win at Wilkes College Monday night.

BSC, which led by 20 points late in the first half and 45-29 at the half, had to hold off a furious Wilkes rally. The Colonels pulled to within five with 1:07 left on a Pat Romish field goal, but Bardsley sank three free throws in the final 23 seconds to dampen Wilkes' fire.

Wilkes came out hot in the final half, outscoring the Huskies 10-2. However, Bloomsburg pulled the same trick on the Colonels by going on their own 10-2 spurt. Ron Zynel came off the bench and scored four of those 10.

The losers were led in scoring by Romish and Kevin Walker with 17 points each. Scaliti and Hychko were also in doubles with 12 and 11 respectively.

ROUNDBALL REMINDERS ... BSC plays three PC Eastern Division games in next five days - all on the road ... Huskies have to win those games to clinch home court advantage in PC playoffs at Nelson Fieldhouse on Feb. 26-27 ... For second straight game, leading scorer Mike Wenrich was held under double figures.

Mike Wenrich...

A Household Name

By DAN LOUGHLIN

Mike Wenrich. Sound familiar? It does to Bloomsburg State College basketball fans. In fact, the name Wenrich is almost a household word.

Wenrich is BSC's candidate for College Division Academic All-American. The 6-5 junior forward from West Lawn, Pa., stands out both on the court and in the classroom.

A Business Administration major with a curriculum in Marketing, Wenrich carries a Cumulative Grade Point Average of 3.15 on a 4.0 scale.

On the hardwood, Wenrich's statistics and accomplishments speak for themselves. Bloomsburg's most consistent player, Wenrich has led the Huskies in scoring his first two seasons and is doing the same again this year.

Playing in 27 games in 1979-80, Wenrich averaged 16.4 points per game. He connected on 187 out of 392 field goals attempted for 47.7 percent. He also made 69 of 93 free throws for 74.2 percent and collected 197 rebounds for an average of 7.3 per game.

Wenrich's sophomore season was even better. In 30 games he shot 200 out of 371 field goals for 53.9 percent and 456 total points. The forward hit 65.9 percent from the charity stripe and again averaged 7.4 rebounds, pulling in a total of 223.

Wenrich's fantastic sophomore year did not go unnoticed. In leading the Huskies to the Pennsylvania Conference Championship, Wenrich was named second team all-conference for the year. He was also the Most Valuable Player in the Pennsylvania Conference post-season tournament, scoring 45 points on 19-27 from the floor. He also grabbed 14 rebounds in the two games.

The Academic All-American candidate is doing much of the same again this season. After 21 games, he is Bloomsburg's leading scorer, averaging 15.8 points in helping the Huskies to a 17-4 record. He has played in 20 of BSC's 21 games, totalling 315 points and 117 rebounds.

PSAC Tournney Here

FROM THE SPORTS DESK:

The scramble for the homecourt advantage and the remaining playoffs positions was the big story in the Pennsylvania Conference this week.

The other big story is that Cheyney State College has become the number one team in the nation in the latest Div. II poll. Bloomsburg dropped to 12th after their loss to Shipensburg.

The Huskies road trip this week will have a lot to say about the playoff picture. The Huskies started the road trip with wins at Kutztown and Wilkes, where they defeated the Golden Bears and Colonels. This means that the Huskies only have to win one
