HAVE A GREAT BREAK

Fraternity Appeals Probation

By BRENDA D. MARTIN

Social fraternity Lambda Chi Alpha has appealed a decision by Dean Robert Norton to place the fraternity on probation (warning) until the end of this semester. The fraternity was placed on probation last week for serving alcohol to underage individuals at a St. Patrick's Day party held March 17.

The individual in question was a BSC freshman arrested on the way home from the party for criminal mischief. After the student was questioned by Norton, he revealed that he had been to the party.

Norton's decision to place the fraternity on probation came after consultation with Linda Zyla, campus coordinator for Greek affairs, and Dr. Jerrold Griffis, vice president for student life. Norton commented that the penalty was not very severe because the fraternity is one of the few organizations on campus that has shown interest in alcohol awareness.

The fraternity has appealed the decision because they believe that their "rights for Due Process, and Procedures for a hearing were violated." One Lambda Chi Alpha officer said, "We feel that we received unjust treatment and it's about time someone stands up to the student life office."

Fraternity members also question the possibilities of harassment, entrapment, and leading a suspect to conclusions they would normally not make.

Because of the probation, the fraternity cannot sponsor or participate in any event involving alcohol.

Athletic Director Goes Through Wrong Channels

Council Denies Athletic Dept. Request

By DOT ILTIS

A request for funding was denied to Assoc. Prof Cecil Turberville, HPEA, for $697.00 by CGA. Permission had been granted to the Women's Swimming Team to rent a bus for 13 members without going through the proper channels.

Discussion arose concerning the method Turberville used in allowing the 13 swimteam members to go to the AIAW National Swimming and Diving Championship at Allegheny College March 11-13. CGA denied a request for $697.00 because the request never went through finance committee or executive committee.

The original projection for costs was approximately $240.00 with CGA vehicles. Turberville rented a bus which held a capacity of 40 seats, but transported 13 team members. The cost of the bus was $697.00. A request was filed too late to use CGA vehicles for the tournament.

Turberville stated he was ill at the time the request was to go before finance committee. Also, executive council members were in Washington attending a conference on budget cuts.

Karen Chawaga, president, remarked that she was available until the Saturday before break when the request was initiated.

Paul Stockler, treasurer, told Turberville that he had left several messages to him about the request before finance committee.

Dr. John Mulka director of Student Activities, which includes overseeing athletics, could not recollect Turberville coming to him with a request. Turberville stated he did not remember coming to Mulka and assumed responsibility.

Council's major concern was that CGA had not been consulted and now they were expected to pay a bill someone had previously authorized.

"The original projection for costs was approximately $240 with CGA vehicles."

Turberville and Mulka explained that in the past the policy of the college has been that if a team makes it to regional or national competition, then it goes, and the financing is automatic.

Sue Gordon Vice President, said "Maybe we should have been consulted first."

A member addressed Turberville as to what plans he had to make up the money. He repeated, "I have none."

CGA also passed financial requests including $760 to the Husky Singers for Concert attire.

Women's Swimming team was allocated $1977.80 to go to AIAW National Swimming and Diving Championships at Allegheny College. The request covered transportation meals, lodging and entry fees excluding the cost for the bus.

The Council gave $3,011.40 for Men's Basketball Team to the NCAA Division II Regional Tournament at Edinboro State College, which took place March 5-6. NCAA reimburses $1,866 for transportation.

Student Art Association received $100.00 to cover traveling costs and supplies for a bookbinding workshop to be held at BSC.

The Community Activities 1982-83 CGA Budget was passed by College Council Monday night. The total projected income was $541,600. Their request was $612,000.

Highlights included the Campus Voice receiving $18,471.00 to publish three issues a week starting next semester. Mileage allowances were increased $.20-mile for citations and $.25-mile for station wagons and vans. Meal allowances for clubs were excluded from the budget.

Kevin Nesbitt, representing the student teachers asked CGA to consider a reduction or waiver from paying their activities fee if they are far away from campus. The proposal will be considered in a motion at their next meeting.

Letters to the Editor

Appalled Parent

Dear Editor:

I have been a resident of Bloomsburg for the past twenty years. During this time I have seen the changes that the college has undergone, and I must say, they have not been for the best.

In the fall my daughter will hopefully be attending Bloomsburg State College. I can only say that I hope her behavior will not become like that of other students currently on campus.

During this semester alone, three students have been arrested for destroying property in the downtown area. There have also been two students arrested for making bomb threats. This is not to mention the numerous students arrested for underage drinking, disorderly conduct and criminal mischief. I am appalled at this behavior.

We are not talking about young children or harmless pranks. Rather, these are the future leaders of our country and senseless violent acts. I must question the background for these acts. Would the student do the same thing if he or she was at home? I think not.

I must also think about the parents of the arrested students. What kind of child did they raise that would destroy another person's property? I think this "do your own thing" policy of parents has to be stopped, and quick. A little discipline early in life would probably deter a child from becoming a criminal later in life.

I know that only a minority of the students are to blame for the incidents. Nevertheless, these are the students that we townspeople know. I think a little self discipline and a lot of respect for others would solve the problem. The townspeople don't want to be critical of the college, but if this mischief continues you can be sure that we will make sure that all rules are enforced.

Hopefully, if these incidents abate a college-town committee can be setup to help the college students retrieve the reputation they once had as an institution that makes the town proud.

A Concerned Parent

Glad to be Out

Dear Editor:

I am not a member of a fraternity or sorority, and for once I am glad that I have decided not to go Greek.

In last Wednesday's (March 31) Morning Press there was an article about the bomb threats. The article quoted a member of the BSC community as saying that most of the incidents that have been reported have been instituted by pledges on this campus. If this is not a form of hazing, then what is?

Granted, there is probably no way to directly connect the incidents with any fraternity, but it is very odd that the arrested students have all been members of a fraternity.

It is a sad commentary on the Greek system at BSC if pledges are made to commit criminal acts in order to become members. It is also sad that people think that they must go to such lengths to become Greek. I wonder if I would be willing to go to jail just to say that I was in a fraternity or sorority.

I really think that the Greek system should be re-examined very soon. Continued actions as those which have occurred this past semester should not be allowed to reoccur. Such incidents just give Independents more fuel to support their reasons for going Greek.

Maybe being Greek is being "in", but I would rather be "out" and be "out" of jail rather than being "in" prison and being labeled a criminal.

An Independent and proud of it

Waste of Time

Dear Editor:

I am a professor here at Bloomsburg State, and frankly, I am gravely concerned about the future of students who will soon be graduating.

I am not concerned that there won't be enough opportunities or jobs for them; instead, I am concerned about how well prepared, if at all, some of these students will be in when the time comes to set out into the "real world". I don't think the majority will be adequately prepared. I am not questioning the quality of education that these students are receiving, it has always been of the best standards. What concerns me is that students have not taken advantage of their education or extra-curricular activities here on campus. Students in my classes and countless others continually miss classes for unexcused reasons. Despite mandatory policies in effect, they still sleep late, go shopping, watch TV or whatever else they do instead of sitting through classes.

First of all, I would like to point out that professors are here for your benefit; we do not teach solely for the purpose of obtaining a salary. We are concerned with educating students and helping them obtain future goals and aspirations.

Another point to make is that students are occupying seats that other students would have been more than willing to fill. The absent students are in affect wasting their time and the professor's time, not to mention their parent's money.

I suggest that students ask themselves questions like do I want the best from my education, do I want to succeed outside of BSC, and will I be fully prepared for what lies ahead after graduation? These are pertinent questions and perhaps the most important ones that students must answer for themselves.

CGA Funds Paper Expansion

Next semester the Campus Voice will expand publishing to three times a week (MWF). This is the first expansion for the paper in over 12 years. Bloomsburg State College is the first state newspaper to go three times a week.

Recently, the Community Government Association (CGA), approved an expanded budget of $18,471 for the newspaper, this will cover the increased printing and vehicle costs.

We the staff, would like to thank Student Government for their support and encouragement. This will greatly increase the work experience opportunities for journalism and other majors. It also reflects on the expansion and growth of the college.

Applications are now being accepted for positions on the Campus Voice. These positions include Editorial, Business and Advertising personnel. Also needed are circulation persons to pick up and deliver papers. Submit all resumes and letters to Debbie Berkley, Executive Editor, Box 97 KUB by April 28.

Dear Chris

Dear Chris:

I have a real problem! It's driving me crazy. I have a boyfriend who I have been seeing for almost a year. We are very happy with each other.

The problem is my best friend (and roommate I might add). She, in her efforts to make Jim feel comfortable (which is what she says she is trying to do) is really making some heavy moves on him. To me, it's totally obvious, and infuriating. Jim too, is starting to recognize her advances, and is very embarrassed by it all.

What should we do? My boyfriend and I don't want to hurt her feelings, but it is starting to get out of hand! Help!

Signed,
Tired of the Triangle

Dear Tired of the Triangle:

The best resolution to this situation is to let Jim handle this situation. Let him drop a hint that he simply isn't interested in your roommate, in any way, other than as a friend. This approach will help to prevent conflict between you and your roommate. She will realize that Jim, in fact, is not interested. Also, she will not be able to accuse you of jealousy or false accusations.

Dear Chris:

My problem is my one professor. He openly shows his dislike for me. I had him as a prof last semester and was rude to him on one specific occasion. However, I don't feel that he should hold this against me forever. What should I do?

Held In Bad Graces

Dear Held In Bad Graces:

Go to your professor and try to explain that you are sorry about last semester and that you hope you can begin again.

Point out that you realize that your previous behavior was inappropriate and you wish to apologize for it. Also, share that you hope your apology will be accepted and that your relationship can begin again on a new footing.

It takes a mature responsible person to own up to one's inappropriate behavior. Good for you!!!

NEWS FROM ALL OVER

Reagan Improves Image

Reagan's popularity has begun to decline, especially among blue collar workers, with many viewing him as "the rich man's President". Presidential aides have taken steps to improve Reagan's image. Reagan's pre-Easter stay in Barbados will now include a meeting with Jamaica's Prime Minister Edward Seaga. The President will also avoid sunbathing in public, and will tan by the pool of his rented villa.

Army Discourages Marijuana

The Army has released a 16-minute videotape "Keep Off the Grass" designed to discourage marijuana use among soldiers. The film explains how the drug stays in the body of the smoker and slows down reaction time. The film is essentially a straight lecture since the producers could not legally demonstrate marijuana's effect.

HHS Proposes New Rules

A rule proposed by the Health and Human Services (HHS) would require family-planning clinics to notify parents within ten days after girls under 18 receive birth control methods. This rule would affect 5,100 clinics and approximately 675,000 youths. Proponents of the act believe it will protect teenagers from health risks and increase better communication between parents and children. Letters to HHS show a ratio of 8 to 1 against the proposed rule.

Israel Under Attack

The West Bank is once again under siege. Palestine demonstrators pelted Israeli soldiers and villagers with a barrage of rocks. The Israeli soldiers retaliated with bullets and armed patrols. This event marked the bloodiest conflict since the Six Day War in 1967. It once again underscored the problems of the Middle East and the unlikely chance for peace in that area.

Garcia's Government Overthrown

In Guatemala the government of General Fernando Romeo Lucas Garcia was overthrown. The overtakers, members of the Guatemalan Army, were upset about the corruption of the government and claimed the March 7 Presidential election was manipulated to insure the re-election of General Angel Anibal Guevara. One lieutenant said "the corruption of the government is the corruption of the army." The new president is General Jose Efraim Rios Montt. In a speech to the Guatemalans he claimed "God is the one who gives and takes away authority."

New Ambassador Considered

Panamanian officials are upset over the Reagan Administration's choice for ambassador to Panama. Their choice, Arizona State University history professor Lewis A. Tambs, is a strong critic of the Panama Canal Treaties. Tambs attacked these treaties in a paper he edited for Reagan's Foreign Policy Transition Team. The Panamanian government is very upset and is debating whether or not to reject Tambs if Reagan officially nominates him.

$9,250 Lost for Three Bomb Scares

By MIKE ALEXANDER

Bomb scares not only disrupt the teaching and learning of a few professors and students, but also affect all students and taxpayers in PA. Each hour students spend in class costs $6.50 (excluding instructional material), according to Dr. Hugh McFadden, Director of Institutional Research.

According to McFadden's figures, when students miss class because of bomb threats, they each pay $2.60 for every hour missed, and Pennsylvania taxpayers pay $3.90.

This can amount to a great deal of money. For example, on Thursday, March 25, Bakeless was closed from 12 p.m. to 4:30 p.m., and over 1,000 students missed classes. Tuesday-Thursday classes cost students $3.90 and the state $5.35 because the classes last an hour and a quarter. Over $9,250 was lost on that day alone.

As Frank Davis, Vice President for Administration, puts it, "Students pay to be in that class and there is no way to make up for missed class time."

Money is not the only wasted item. The benefits of other services are also being lost. Richard Neuffer, director of Safety and Law Enforcement, stated that "The bomb scares take away from our normal duties like hospital runs and regular patrol of the campus. We also have a backlog of thefts and vandalism reports that should be investigated but can't be because of these bomb scares."

Davis is frustrated because of the time spent investigating the bomb scares interferes with servicing students' needs. He added that the campus phone system has been less efficient for the last two months because of the use of tracers.

Both Davis and Neuffer feel students could take several steps to help combat bomb threats. Neuffer urges students to lock their dorm rooms so that no one can call in a bomb scare by just walking in an unlocked room.

Davis said, "If students are really sick and tired of this, and can give us any leads, their names will remain anonymous and the information confidential."

Keep PA Beautiful on May 1

The Columbia - Montour County Department of Transportation will be sponsoring a Keep Pennsylvania Beautiful day on May 1, 1982. The Department has been involved with this program for several years now, and we feel that the project has been both educational and constructive.

The litter problem in our state is obvious and something that everyone can see.

In the past we have approached this program in two ways:

1. From the public awareness aspect, through the use of local media, well known personalities, political figures, etc.

2. Through the use of volunteers in a statewide litter cleanup day.

The cleanup is usually a three to four hour affair in which state employees provide traffic protection and dispose of roadside litter that is collected by volunteers. About 80 percent of the litter collected is delivered by the Department directly to the Bloomsburg Volunteer Recycling Organization.

In recent years, organizations such as Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, 4-H, Bloomsburg State College, and even a nursing home have participated.

This spring McDonalds in Bloomsburg and Berwick have agreed to support the Department's campaign by offering some free items to all participants. The Bloomsburg Merchants Association is also involved in that they will be offering awards such as T-shirts, caps, etc.

It is sometimes difficult, with an annual campaign, to come up with new and innovative ideas. We are therefore looking to Bloomsburg State College for help. We are particularly interested in ideas and possible volunteers from student organizations that may be interested in a public service project. Although our actual litter cleanup is scheduled for May 1, 1982, we are very flexible as far as dates are concerned. If an organization would be interested in some sort of project, such as a marathon litter collection, a campus cleanup project, or how about a litter sculpture? The Department would like to hear your ideas.

We will try to offer some sort of public recognition for the college and individual organizations for the efforts they put forth. For example, we

New York Choreographer Rehearses with Bloomsburg Players on Samson

By LISA CASTELLI

Imagine choreographing and directing a chorus of 60 college students, 2 professional singers and a number of dancers. Usually working with a chorus of 16, New York choreographer-director, Judith Haskell says, "A chorus of this size is very interesting and exciting." Haskell has been working at Bloomsburg State College with the Department of Music and the Bloomsburg Players on Handel's oratorio, "Samson," which will be performed April 15-17.

The show has excellent music says Haskell, but it is different from previous operas she has worked on. "An oratorio is a concert piece that is staged," says Haskell. "There is more dramatic conflict in most operas. This production revolves around Samson's inner growth which is hard to put on stage," she says. The role of Samson is being played by professional opera singer, Harry Danner of New York who Haskell says "is married to my best friend." Knowing Danner and Haskell's previous opera experience which includes choreographing the Lake George Opera Festival last summer, will help her stage "Samson."

Besides her experience in opera, Haskell has worked on TV specials such as "Miss America" pageants, films, fashion revues, and industrial shows which introduce new product lines. She has membership in a number of unions including the Screen Actors Guild (SAG) and the Society of Stage Directors' and Choreographers (SSD&C).

One of Haskell's greatest achievements was directing Harvard's Hasty Pudding Show. "I was the first woman in 128 years to direct work, Haskell has also performed as a dancer and actress. She has performed as standby to Janice Rule in "Happiest Girl," which played on Broadway, and she has performed in a number of stock theatre shows including the role of the countess in "The Sound of Music." Her last performance was as a dancer in a stock theatre production called "Ballroom."

Mainly, Haskell works as a director-choreographer (her last performance took place two years ago), but her career began as a dancer. She began taking dance lessons at the age of six. "I fell in love with ballet," says Haskell of her first lessons. Her parents did not want her to pursue dance as a career so Haskell continued to dance purely as a hobby. Later, she went to Radcliffe, College, and was graduated with a B.A. in Sociology. For the next four years she taught dance in Boston, her hometown. She decided to give up teaching dance and started to perform herself. "I got up enough courage and went to New York," says Haskell. Since that time, her career has taken many directions, but most of her work remains in regional theatres and stock companies.

She calls theatre an "insecure field." "You have to hustle between jobs to remind people you are around," says Haskell. Many of her jobs are received by writing letters to companies or through recommendations from people she has worked with. As her reputation builds, it has become easier. "I know now that I can make a living every year because of invitations to come back," says Haskell. For those that are just starting and have not built up a reputation, she says they must "persist while also studying very hard." Haskell continues to study ballet and jazz dance when she is in New York. While on the road, she "bars everyday."

Besides interrupting her dance lessons, traveling to productions like "Samson" can be quite hard says Haskell. When she decided to come to Bloomsburg, she was at the Cleveland Playhouse opening "Cole;" the story of Cole Porter. The show continues to run as she prepares "Samson"

MERCER ELLINGTON. Mercer Ellington, son of legendary band leader Duke Ellington, brought his father's music to Carver on Sunday.

Ellington Revives Jazz in Carver

By KATHY McBRIDE

On Sunday, April 4, the sounds of Mercer Ellington and the Duke Ellington Orchestra could be heard across the BSC campus. That famous jazz sound, in the Ellington tradition, thrilled the near-to-capacity audience in Carver Hall.

Mercer Ellington started the concert with some favorite classics like: "Take A Train," "Satin Dolls," and "Solitude"; which were received by an enthusiastic audience. As the show progressed, the band had their chance to show the audience their individual talents with many instrumental solo performances.

An added treat was the appearance of vocalist, Anita Moore, who sang an old favorite, "Misty" and continued on to enchant the audience with more of her beautiful vocals.

After a brief intermission, Mercer Ellington and the Duke Ellington Orchestra returned to the stage to delight the audience for the second half of the show. Mercer Ellington and his orchestra brought the audience to a standing ovation. Mercer and his band gave BSC a night of unforgettable music.

Comedians to Titillate BSC Funnybones

Classes have you down? Could you use a good laugh? If so, the Association of Resident Students has something for you. On Thursday, April 15th, ARS and Scarpati Comedy Productions will present a "Comedy Concert" in the Presidents' Lounge of the Kehr Union. The show will begin at 8 p.m.

The host and producer of the show is comic Andy Scarpati. A native of Langhorne, Andy operates comedy clubs in Wilmington, Delaware and Trenton, New Jersey. His quick wit was recently presented on Public Television.

Also on the bill is comic-madman Bob Nelson, who has been known to bring the house down with his energetic brand of humor. Originally from Long Island, Nelson has appeared on the Merv Griffin Show and the Tomorrow program. He is a trained method actor, who counts among his most popular routines "The Sea Turtle" and "The Dance of the Joyous Moose."

Rounding out the evening will be comic Joe Bolster. The Princeton, New Jersey resident is a regular headliner at the Improvisation and The Comic Strip in New York. He has appeared on the television game show "Make Me Laugh," and is scheduled to tape a special for Home Box Office.

Scarpati Comedy Productions in association with the Kehr Union Program Board, sponsored an evening of fun last semester in the coffeehouse. That show, hosted by former BSC student Paul Lyons, packed the room with students listening from the hallway and the stairwell. So, arrive early to get a good seat. This will be one show you won't want to miss.

Education Majors Study Abroad

By JO ANN BERTOLINO

Have you ever thought about studying abroad for four months? Two elementary education majors learned of a different culture while gaining teaching experience in Ecuador.

Jeff Krill, graduate of BSC, and Rachel Long, preparing to graduate from BSC this spring, lived in Quito, the capital of Ecuador, for four months last spring semester to continue their profession in teaching and gain a unique experience that is totally unforgettable.

Jeff and Rachel became familiar with the program of teaching in a foreign land when they attended a slide presentation sponsored by the Education Department of BSC for "Student Teaching Overseas." Dr. Goram Miller, supervisor of student teachers at BSC explained to Jeff and Rachel all necessary information for student teaching overseas.

When Jeff and Rachel first arrived in Quito, they were a little nervous about speaking with the people of Ecuador. The spoken language of Ecuador is Spanish. "I knew little of their language," Rachel explained, "if I did not know what I had, it would have been much harder to communicate with the Ecuadorians who lived in the town."

Jeff lived in a house which was occupied by a Ecuadorian family. He was the only male in the household. The household consisted of two daughters, their mother, and grandmother. The family was polite and was always concerned about Jeff's well-being. Jeff said, "I would buy my food, and when I would come home after work, I would find it cooked and ready to eat for myself." The Ecuadorian family spoke Spanish and also helped Jeff to improve his own Spanish.

Rachel lived in an apartment which she shared with four other American student teachers. Her apartment was located only about five miles from where Jeff was staying. The landlord of the apartment spoke Spanish and showed incentive for Rachel to improve her own Spanish.

Jeff and Rachel picked up the Spanish language of Ecuador better everyday. They were forced into learning the language so they could communicate with the people of Ecuador.

Jeff and Rachel instructed students at the American International School named Academia Cotopazi, also located in Quito. It was a school that consisted of English speaking students. The students were Tri-lingual ... and the children came from families who were considered to be in the higher income brackets. "Teaching those children was a wonderful experience", Rachel stated, "the children were always cooperative."

Rachel taught kindergarten and first grade students. Jeff instructed first grade and fifth grade students. "The subjects that had to be taught were the elementary basics including math, reading, and spelling," said Jeff. Ester Prexl, the supervisor of all student teachers in Ecuador, assigned Jeff and Rachel their places while in Quito.

The method of teaching in the Ecuadorian schools is much like that of the U.S. schools. The teachers were allowed to work out their own method in getting a certain subject across to the students.

The living standard of Ecuador is much lower than our living standard. Goods and services are less expensive in Ecuador than in the U.S. The Indians of Ecuador, who are considered the poor, operate an open market in the afternoons. Rachel said, "I use to love to stroll through the open market and bargain." Even though everything in Ecuador was less expensive, people still gather around the stands in the open market to persuade Indians to lower the price of a specific product.

Jeff and Rachel also enjoyed learning of this new culture that exist in Ecuador. The culture of the Ecuadorians mainly consist of a mixture of Spanish and Indian culture. Also, with people of Hebrew, Argentine, Swedish, Portuguese, and Chilian decent added to the impact of the Ecuadorian culture, "The Ecuadorians are a people of discipline and respect", stated Jeff. Jeff explained, "in order to take a girl out in Ecuador you must first be formally introduced." The Ecuadorians enjoy music and dancing. Their music consists of Columbian and Salsa tunes. Also an old tradition of the Ecuadorians that brightened up each day is a Ciasa, which is held at each lunch period in the schools.

Jeff and Rachel got involved with extra activities. They were involved with a faculty bible study and also starred in a high school play, "Stardust", which Central High School will present sometime in March. Jeff was a basketball coach for high school students, and Rachel tutored students in math, social studies, and reading for extra money.

Jeff and Rachel also contributed their services to a radio station, HCJB, in Quito. The radio station featured programs in 17 different languages. They taped three christian messages in English that will be aired sometime in March.

Ecuador was a lifetime experience for Jeff and Rachel. They learned and grew as adults from living in a new culture and at the same time gained extra insight on their teaching careers which will follow them throughout life.

RANDY STONEHILL. Randy Stonehill appears at BSC on April 29th.

Stonehill Concert at BSC

When you go to a concert, what do you expect to see? Talent, of course! This is an article about a performer that definitely has talent. His name is Randy Stonehill and he will perform at BSC Thursday, April 29th at 8:00 p.m. in Carver Hall.

Randy Stonehill is a pop-rock artist from Hollywood, California that has performed in England, Australia, and Canada as well as the United States. He is especially popular on college campuses and Universities.

With his acoustic guitar, Randy Stonehill does more than any five-piece, back up band. He comes across as a very funny and likeable guy as well as a talented writer and performer. He entertains between and during his songs with outrageously funny tunes as well as serious love songs. Stonehill doesn't perform at audiences, but establishes a personal relationship with them.

Through his music and comedy, Randy Stonehill brings enforcement in addition to communicating a real truth. His songs are like mirrors reflecting an image of our lives and points to Jesus as an alternative to an otherwise empty life.

You may buy tickets in advance for only $3.00 ($4.00 at the door) at any dorm or by calling 784-2096. Do not miss this opportunity to see some "real" talent!

Alpha Kappa Alpha Makes Debut at BSC

By JUDY DAVIDSON

In 1964, the first social Greek organization, Sigma Iota Omega, fraternity, was formed at BSC. Since that time, eight more fraternities and eight sororities have joined them. A ninth sorority is on its way to becoming a part of the Greek system — Alpha Kappa Alpha (AKA), an international sorority.

"Our goal is to strive to better the woman — to get the girls in our sorority to be some of the finer women in society," said Patricia Williams, coresponding secretary for AKA.

AKS started several years ago as an interest group from that organization, Denise Smith, a nursing student, started AKA. In fall of 1978 the Inter-Sorority Council (ISC) recognized AKA as a starting sorority. Virgie Bryan CAD reading specialist, is advisor for the 14 members of the sorority.

AKA is currently on probationary status, which means they must complete their constitution and by-laws, do two service projects this semester, and pay their $35 dues to ISC, which all sororities pay. "However, before we can bring our constitution before ISC we must have it approved by our nationals," said Gale Hite, ISC representative for AKA.

"After our year on probationary status, we then petition ISC again to gain permanent status, then that goes to the Student Sub-Committee to be approved," said La-Tonya Johnson, vice-president of AKA.

AKA is not the first predominately black Greek organization on campus. Kappa Alpha Psi, a black fraternity, received its charter last semester. Unlike AKA, Kappa Alpha Psi is a full-fledged Greek organization. This means they may now accept pledge classes—AKA won't be able to do so until it receives its charter.

Sigma Tau Delta Sponsors Gathering

Werewolves Discussed

Sigma Tau Delta, national English honorary society, sponsored an informal gathering of students last Wednesday to discuss "vampires, werewolves, and ghosts, as they appear in literature." The discussion, featuring a presentation by Professor Ronald Ferdock, was organized by society member Kevin C. Nesbitt, and was attended by forty-five BSC students. Sigma Tau Delta plans to sponsor another gathering late this month.

Ertel Supports Student Loans

Congressman Allen Ertel sought legislative support on April 2 for bills to create bond issues for the benefit of student loans. Rep. Ertel endorsed S.B. 1330 and H.B. 311 to allow the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency to issue bonds to finance student loans while speaking to the Association of Pennsylvania State College University Faculties.

Ertel sent letters to PHEC to support bills to benefit student loans.

"While federal student aid programs are under the knife, we can provide a way for Pennsylvania students to borrow money to cover school expenses. This state has the best payback record in the country on student loans. There is nothing to lose and a lot for everyone to gain," said

Congressman Ertel.

Congressman Ertel also sent letters to the majority and minority chairmen of the Pennsylvania House Education Committee, encouraging them to seek support for the bills among their fellow representatives.

In Washington, Congressman Ertel co-sponsored a resolution introduced in U.S. Congress this week to maintain current levels of federal funding to student aid programs.

AKA Debuts

According to Kathy Boyle, a member of Sigma Sigma Sigma and President of ISC, "AKA should achieve permanent status within the next year. By next fall they should be a permanent part of ISC."

AKA hopes that with their sorority in ISC, more racial integration will take place within all the sororities. "We wouldn't turn down any girl on racial grounds who would want to be a part of our organization. We are not solely a black sorority," said Williams.

Although AKA's chapter members on this campus are black, on other campuses it is not so. Eleanor Roosevelt was a member of AKA. There are also other chapters throughout this country and in Canada, Germany, and the District of Columbia.

In the future, Haskell may stop traveling to do productions. "I may become an artistic director in a regional theatre someday," says Haskell. She added, "That way, I can settle down and still do my own thing."

For now, Haskell has three criteria for accepting positions like the director of "Samson."

She says, "If it interests me, fits in my schedule, and I learn by doing it, I take it."

Husky Nine Split Two

By ANDREW J. McCARTHY
The BSC baseball team officially opened its 1982 schedule last week with a 3-1 victory over Springfield (Mass.) College and a 5-2 loss to the Penn State Nittany Lions. A twin bill was in the works with Penn State but Mother Nature took charge and rained out the second game.

Ron "Skip" Lockwood was the starting pitcher for BSC in the home opener at Town Park against Springfield. It's no secret that Lockwood is the main man of the pitching staff for this year.

In fact, many people feel that he will have to be in top form every time out in order for the Huskies to keep their ship above water, especially if the Husky bats stay invisible as they have thus far (10 hits in first two games; only two for extra bases.)

Lockwood threw six innings worth of his stuff at Springfield batters and did well. He gave up seven hits and two bases on balls while allowing only one run. Brian "Bunny" Salsman earned a save by pitching shutout ball for the last three innings.

Coach Steve Bresett was pleased with the Lockwood-Salsman duo and his club's defense but he expressed concern at blown scoring opportunities by his squad. (The Huskies were the recipients of eight bases on balls courtesy of Springfield hurlers).

The Huskies traveled to "Happy Valley" last Monday to tread on Nittany Lion turf but came up on the short end of a 5-2 2 score. Bill Bixler started for BSC and did a respectable job (5 hits, 2 earned runs) but the thunder of silence emanating from Husky bats was the difference. Bixler pitched 5 and two thirds innings and Keyin Kubicki mopped up the last out.

The Husky nine were scheduled to meet East Stroudsburg on Saturday but heavy rains once again intervened causing a postponement. Coach Bresett hinted at the idea of changing his lineup for this weeks games. With a few of his regulars in early slumps and conference ballgames on tap, changes are, indeed, a distinct possibility.

Last Word on Clark Boler

And you couldn't start a new policy and program with a coach who had won only one game in two years. I guess the new system includes, as you put "uncaring, if not unethical" manners.

Clark Boler was simply in the wrong place at the wrong time.

You also say "Let's quit bringing up the past and telling things that are not true about Mr. Boler's football program, such as implying that the Nautilus room hasn't been used before — it has, the power I formation is new, it isn't...recruiting is a new thing for football...the kicking game needs great improvement — it doesn't, it may have been the high point of the program."

I am aware of the article you are referring to in which these points were brought out. The only explanation I can offer is that these things were included in Coach Landis' explanation of his coaching system he gave to the reporter who wrote the story.

You also provide in your letter a warning to Coach Landis. I'm not sure that I can go along with "the tide turns swiftly at Bloomsburg State College" and that Landis had "better have another job lined up."

George Landis has a new set of rules to play by—a set of rules that were not afforded Clark Boler.

That is why this column is going to be a "cleaning out of the closet" so to speak. This is the only way to be fair to both Clark Boler and George Landis.

As a result, in future articles about football, the Voice is going to take the advice of a "fan who has seen the game" and will "quit bringing up the past."

Lacrosse

Under the direction of Coach Christopher Armstrong, the team was strongly motivated and is hopeful of having a winning season.

The Club is now sanctioned by the NCAA and will be eligible for varsity status in two years. They have come a long way in the last four years, and are hoping for more support for their remaining games.

Huskies Top Mercyhurst

By WADE DOUGLAS

Coming off Sunday's big upset of sixth-rated Mercyhurst, the ninth-ranked Husky tennis team refused to suffer a letdown by ripping Millersville 7-1. The win allowed the netters to break the .500 barrier for the first time this season. The victory, which put BSC's record at 5-4, was not expected to be as easy as it turned out to be. Millersville came into the match with a 10-1 log and was considered to be one of the top teams in the conference.

The match did not start off well for the Huskies as number one Marty Coyne dropped his second straight match 5-7, 6-4, 6-3.

But while Coyne was struggling, the rest of the netmen were rolling. Senior captain Craig Diehl breezed 6-2, 6-2 over Doug Brethrick at number two. Numbers three and six Dave Superdock and Chris Antipas won by identical 6-1, 6-4 scores. Rob Lario dropped the opening set of his match 6-1 but returned the favor to MSC's Dave Abrams by winning the last two 6-0, 6-2. Brett Briscoe allowed the Marauders Ken Loose only one game in a 6-0, 6-1 romp.

Briscoe then teamed up with Diehl to record a 6-2, 6-1 win a number two doubles. The freshmen duo of Lario-Antipas battled their opponents to a well earned 4-6, 6-3, 6-4 victory to close out the Husky win. The other doubles match between Coyne-Superdock and MSC's Abrams - Miles Gray was called on account of darkness with both teams owning a set.

After returning from a road trip to East Stroudsburg, the netters will take on the Bucknell Bisons at home on April 15th.

Fight Weather and Lions

By PETE DATILLO

The B.S.C. Lacrosse Club had their second game of the season cancelled Saturday due to heavy rain and poor field conditions. The scheduled two p.m. game against Ursinus has been rescheduled for Wednesday, April 28, at 3:30 p.m. and will be played on the Athletic Park field across from the Columbia County Prison. The team lost its opener

March 27, at Penn State 3-2, facing extremely low temperatures and strong winds with gusts of up to 50 miles per hour. The third and fourth quarters were shortened from 15 minutes to eight minutes due to the severe weather conditions.

Brilliant goaltending by Vito Thacter was the strong point of the game, as he turned away 31 of 34 shots, while Bloomsburg could only get a total of 18.

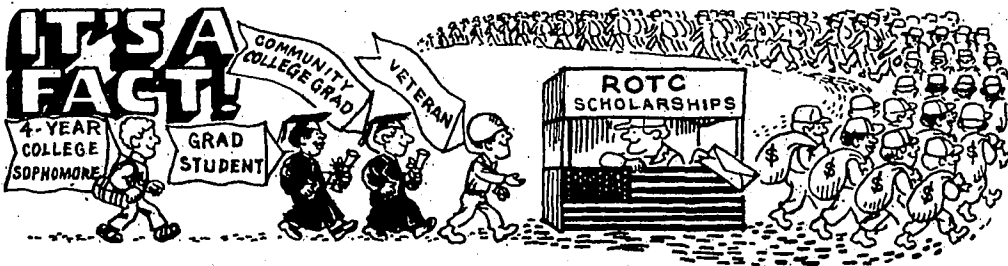

Asked how the weather affected the Penn State game, Vito said, "It was very hard to handle the ball and neither team could establish an offense."

Defenseman Bob Kramer said, "It was frustrating - we're a much better team and I am looking forward to playing them again."

The Last Word On Clark Boler

A column

By DAN CAMPBELL

CV Sports Editor

This column is the last word on Clark Boler. It is also a response to the Letter to the Editor in the Friday, April 2 issue of the Campus Voice signed, "A Fan who has seen the game."

Dear Fan,

Back in December, I researched and wrote an article published in the Voice, headed "Big Time Football for BSC?" The Voice's editorial policies has been not to publish any further stories on Coach Boler's "reassignment" because 1) why rehash the same issue and 2) we did not feel that the Voice's sport's pages should become a forum for debate on the ethics of the changes in BSC athletics.

In researching the above mentioned article, I interviewed people that were in touch with and close to the Boler "reassignment"—including Clark Boler — and came away with many of the same impression you expressed in your letter.

You describe Boler as a "nice guy" who was dedicated, experienced, knowledgeable, pleasant, easy-going and hard-working...who two years ago took over a "faltering" football program "with the intentions of making football a creditable sport at BSC." I agree.

And two years ago this was enough.

You go on to say that "Long hours, hard work, and much heartache were finally rewarded with the firing of Mr. Boler in a rather unearring, if not unethical manner." Again I agree. You didn't explain why you thought this — I will.

Two years ago, all that anyone wanted around here was for football to be a "credible" sport. But this fall somebody decided that 50 or 60 years of losing football at BSC was enough. They decided that BSC football was going to be successful-at any cost.

When researching the "Big time Football..." article I talked to Al Forsyth, Dean of the School of Arts and Sciences. Dean Forsyth was overseer of the athletic department — AD Cecil Turberville's boss. Forsyth was the guy who called Clark Boler and told him he was through.

I asked Forsyth who made the decision. He refused to pass the buck and included himself in his answer — management. But also included in this term were certain administrators and Dr. James McCormick.

But Forsyth was not the bad guy. Forsyth, you see, is an educator. He believes that education should come before athletics. He is even against fund raisers by sports teams.

When Forsyth made management aware that he couldn't support a winning team at any cost — he became expendable.

Forsyth is still Dean of the School of Arts and Sciences, but education is no longer in charge of athletics. Athletics is now in charge of itself under a department called "Student Development." John Mulka is the dean.

Forsyth, not wanting Mulka to start out on the wrong foot in his new job, made the call to Boler. He did not pass the buck to AD Turberville, who had no part in the decision.

You see, someone called management had the money and authority to get major policy changes and to hire full-time, non-teaching coaches. Someone.
