'72 Alumna to Speak at Convocation

Jane M. Elmes, a 1972 graduate of Bloomsburg State College, will return to her alma mater to be the principal speaker at the 13th Annual Awards Convocation to be held in Haas Auditorium, Sunday, April 25 at 2:00 p.m.

Born in Reading, Elmes is a 1968 graduate of Berwick Area High School. Her Bachelor of Arts degree from BSC was in political science and related areas of study, philosophy and speech. She has completed course work towards her Master's and Doctor's degrees at the School of Interpersonal Communication at Ohio University.

Elmes is currently chairperson of the Department of Speech, Communication and Theatre at Clarion State College. She joined the faculty of Clarion in 1974 as an Instructor of Speech, Communication and Theatre and Director of Individual Speaking Events Program. She was named department chairperson in 1979. From 1972-74, she served as a teaching assistant and head individual events coach at the School of Interpersonal Communication.

Clarion has done exceedingly well in forensics tournaments under the direction of Elmes. The school was ranked 1st in 1975 and 1976 for schools with enrollments between 3,000 and 10,000, 12th in 1977, fourth in 1978 and 1979. Clarion is currently ranked second in the nation for schools of all sizes, and won Pennsylvania State College Championships in 1975, 1979, 1980, and 1981. Since 1974, over 800 individual awards have been won by the school in forensic competition, including 20 national finalist awards.

Ms. Elmes is presently serving in the Faculty Senate at Clarion and is on the President's Advisory Board and Senate Policy Committee of that organization. She has been on numerous other committees and councils at Clarion. As an undergraduate at BSC, she was extremely active as a student representative to the Student-Faculty Senate and other committees, along with being president, vice president and treasurer of the Forensics Society during her four years on campus. She won over 20 awards in intercollegiate forensics competition while at BSC.

Elmes is a past president and vice president of the Pennsylvania Forensics Association and has served on three separate executive committees of the National Forensics Association. She holds membership in several other organizations pertaining to her field. Last Fall, she was co-chairperson and presenter at the Pennsylvania State Colleges and University Women's Fall Conference on Communication Skills held at Bloomsburg.

Her numerous honors and awards include: recipient of Distinguished Teaching Fellow and Commonwealth Distinguished Teaching Chair in 1979-80; recipient of the Foley's Sweepstakes Coach's Award (1978) and the Woodrow Wilson Forensics Coach's Award (1975 and 1979). She was also a guest judge for the Pennsylvania Poetry Society Annual, 1979.

A solution to parking problems?

College Gives Shuttlebus A Test Run

by DEBBIE BERKLEY

An experimental shuttle bus system will go into effect on campus from Monday, May 3 to Friday, May 7. This will replace the regular system of buses to Nelson Fieldhouse.

Next Spring when construction begins on the Human Services Center, approximately 150 parking spots will be lost in the area behind Bakeless and the library. (Marked A on sketch) This will result in a permanent loss of parking space. This area will be roped off during the new system testing.

The Parking Beautification Committee wants to find a solution before the construction in this area begins next March. The Parking Committee began working on this problem over a year ago. This committee unofficially recommended the solution of a bus system that would pick parkers up at the various available parking lots; Bloomsburg Hospital, Tri-Level and Nelson Fieldhouse. The shuttle buses would then follow a designated route to drop passengers off on campus.

The trial run of two shuttle buses is an attempt to see if the system will work and will be utilized by the students and townspeople using parking for campus events. Buses will run from 7:30 a.m. to 11:00 p.m. It will take each bus approximately a half hour to make the loop from lower to upper campus. This means that every 15 minutes a bus will go by each point on the route. If a person misses one bus, another one will be by in another 15 minutes.

The stops on the route will be, in order:

- Nelson Fieldhouse
- Lower Nelson parking lot
- Hospital parking lot (side by)
- Tri-Level (top by Elwell)
- Library (front by the stained glass windows)
- Centennial gymnasium (side facing Waller Building)
- Men's baseball field
- Back of football stadium (gravel area)

There will be bus stop signs, and the bus will not stop and wait for riders. The before, this week, students and other bus riders should plan to come early. If this becomes a permanent system, shelters will be built for these stops.

The shuttle system will entail a large cost if initiated in the future, so the trial run will be an important indicator of the success or failure.

The areas on campus that could be converted into parking space is very limited. These areas would be the softball and lacrosse fields. This would not only take away from extra-curricular activities, but it would also take away from the green on the lower campus.

Eventually, when the Human Services building is complete, something will have to be done. Students should be prepared for the trial run starting May 3; the shuttle bus system is a viable alternative that will depend upon student response.

BSC Classes on TV

By SHANE STECK

TV correspondence courses, an innovative alternative to classroom study, has given people the opportunity to continue their education in the convenience of their own home.

Introductory courses in Psychology, Sociology, and American History are aimed at people previously unable to attend college, while a "teaching Children with Learning Disabilities" course is geared more towards graduate students.

These courses, which began last fall, are broadcast over PBS channel WVIA, 44, operating out of Scranton - Wilkes-Barre.

The cost of the course is the standard $52.00 per hour.

Courses, offering full credit and easily transferrable grades, run the full length of the semester. Classes average between 12 and 24 students, depending on the nature of the course.

At the start of the course, students are given a handbook, a schedule for the broadcasts, and the name and office hours of the instructor supervising the class. As only one-third of the instruction evolves from the TV lesson, students are encouraged to call on the instructor when they need assistance. The student is expected to receive the remaining two-thirds of the course through regular homework assignments and handouts given by the instructor.

Viewing the programs, as well as student feedback, is essential to the success of the course. In the event that a student should miss a broadcast, videotapes of the broadcast are available in the Learning Resources Center on campus. Devout viewing is stressed because of the nature of the broadcasts. Each lesson builds on the preceding broadcast. One missed lesson damages the value of the entire series.

Tests are given by the instructor and are set up by appointment. If this is not feasible, examinations may be taken at a reputable location, such as a District Magistrate's office, and mailed to the instructor.

"The programs have proven to be very successful thus far," said Dr. Dan Pantaleo, Dean of Extended Programs, who organized the project. Dr. Pantaleo is very enthused about the program and anticipates a healthy variety of courses in the near future.

Feedback to Dr. Pantaleo concerning the courses, disclosed that both instructors and students found the courses challenging and stimulating.

"These aren't easy courses," said Dr. Pantaleo. "We're interested in a quality education."

Editorial

Student financial aid programs for the 1982-83 academic year are in dire jeopardy of being drastically reduced by the Reagan administration's budget proposals. This probably comes as no real surprise to students who have been reading accounts of this situation in the various mediums. However, other students have not yet realized the full impact of these cuts. Few students realize how soon the reductions will take effect. Only when financial award letters are sent to students less than a month before the beginning of the fall semester will students realize that they might have a very difficult, if not impossible time, returning to college.

Some students may be saying to themselves, "I am just another lone student who can't do anything to prevent this." Cop out statements such as this not only force students to quit school, but it also gives them the false assumption that their needs and opinions don't count in our democratic society.

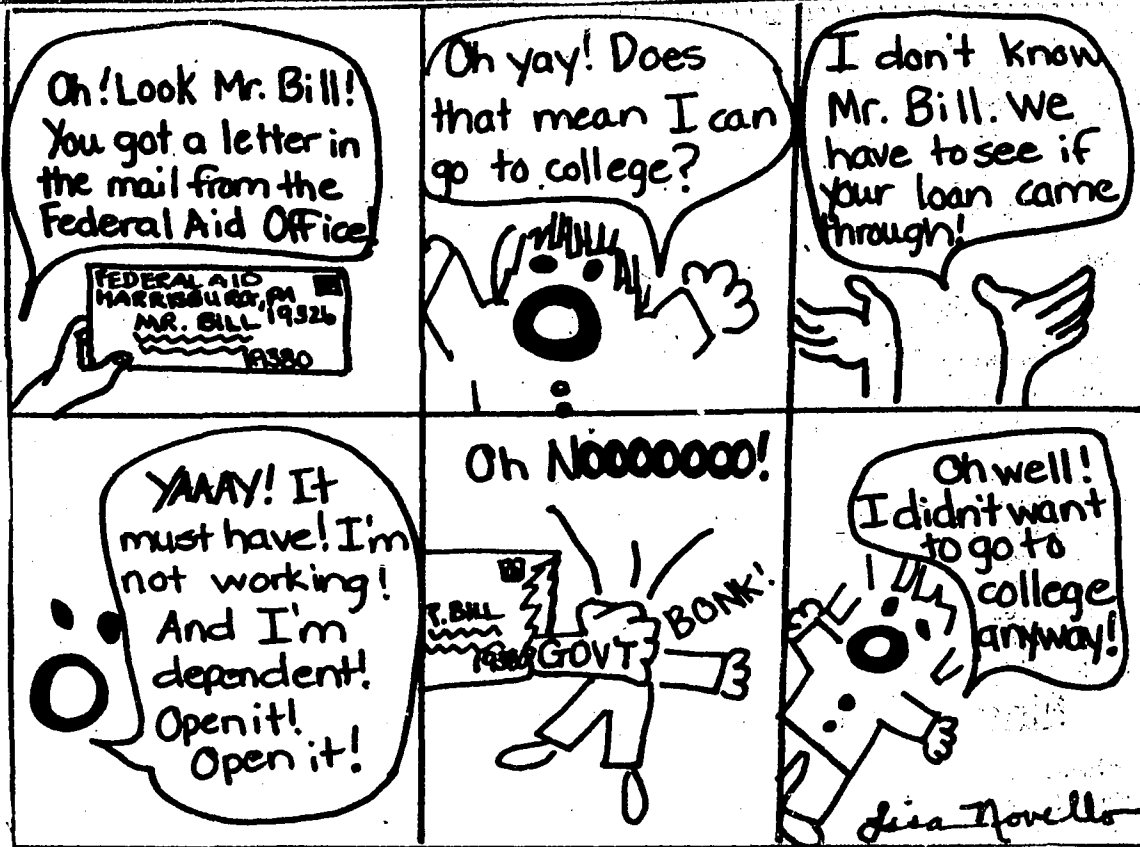

Not everyone, however, has been sitting back ignoring this problem. On March 1, over 6000 students from all over the state invaded Capitol Hill to protest the proposed cuts. These concerned students, representing student government, CAS and administrative representatives, talked extensively to their Congresspersons and Senators. Since student voters often have a great impact on the possible re-election of these people, attention was given to their pleas. Legislators were urged not to support those bills that would reduce the amount of aid available to students in higher education.

In a recent CAS conference in Harrisburg, Ed Hanley, Legislative Director for the United States Student Association (USSA), explained the funding levels that will occur if these cuts are instituted. An update was given. Last year, two different sets of cuts were made. 1) In August, the Budget Reconciliation Act was passed. This made cuts in student aid and set new funding target than what had been previously established. 2) In December, further cuts were made in student financial aid. In effect, there was about a 12 percent cut in aid last year. The resolution expired March 31, and a new one was passed by both the Senate and Congress without making any additional cuts.

Guaranteed Student Loans, Pell Grants and College Work Study Programs are all in jeopardy. The Pell Grants in particular will be cut by more than 50 percent and eventually will be eliminated.

Since between 70-75 percent of students attending college receive some kind of financial aid, steps need to be taken now, by students, parents and others in order to prevent the loss of these programs. Letter writing, no matter how tedious it seems, is very valuable. Phone-ins can also be effective in that they will not only drive legislators crazy, but they will also show them how concerned students are about their education.

Think about it, this will affect you in the next academic year. Don't wait until it's too late to ask questions, or to complain that no one informed you. Get in contact with the CAS office on campus, they can put you in touch with the right people in your districts. Next semester if you are stuck at home trying to find a job, you will have no one to blame but yourself.

This Year's Award Winner

By RICK DILIBERTO

Chariots of Fire, directed by H. Hudson, has been awarded the distinction of being named film of the year by the Academy Awards, and rightfully so.

The true story of the 1924 Olympic Games is presently being shown at the Capital Twin Theatre in downtown Bloomsburg.

In a highly emotional, personalized, and exciting series of events, the viewer follows the rugged training roads of Jewish Harold Abrahams and Scottish Eric Liddel in their pursuit of Olympic Track and Field competition.

Abraham's battle with prejudiced individuals at Cambridge University during his educational career, and Liddel's value clarifications between God and running conditioning are strong foundations for a superb plot.

Both representing Great Britain in the games, Abrahams and Liddel exhibit rather diversified styles of competitiveness in achieving their goals of victory in the Men's Track and Field events.

I feel comfortable in describing the film as "a runner's Rocky," which will appeal to athletes and spectators alike.

The film is exciting and interesting, while being historically accurate, a quality the pragmatic viewer will no doubt appreciate.

A statement from Bill Yodock, president of AFSCME Local 2361 indicates the statement made in the CV Wed., April 7th concerning SB 506 was erroneous in content as AFSCME does not support SB 506 based upon a meeting with AFSCME legislators in Harrisburg as of Friday, April 9, 1982.

Falkland Islands Crises Could Affect the World

By ENRIQUETA VASQUEZ

Editors Note: This story was written by a foreign student from South America doing her last year at BSC.

War in the South Atlantic between Argentina and England may happen with U.S. Secretary of State Alexander Haig in the area of conflict.

Last Thursday President Reagan sent Haig to Argentina in the role of mediator. The Secretary of State is the guest of the Argentine Republic and its president, Leopoldo Galtieri.

The conflict came to a head in March. It followed a 200-year-old dispute over the sovereignty of the Falkland Islands. Last April 5, Argentine Marines took over the islands, after overcoming the small British detachment there. Two days later the British sent two-thirds of their naval force in the Atlantic to the Falklands. Last Monday, this force set a 200-mile naval blockade to prevent Argentine vessels from coming into the Falklands.

The Falklands (in Spanish, islas Malvinas) are located 300 miles east of the Strait of Magellan at the southern end of South America. The Falklands include two hundred islands with a total area of 4,700 miles — mostly hilly moorlands ideal for sheep-gazing. The islands' climate is cool with an annual average temperature of 42 degrees F. There are constant stormy winds that prevent tree growth. There are two main islands: East Falkland and West Falkland. The capital, Stanley, is on East Falkland. Half the islands' population lives in Stanley (in 1977, total population was 2000). Ninety-seven percent of this population is of British origin.

The Falkland Islands were first reported in 1592 by British explorer, John Davis. The French founded the first colony on East Falkland in 1764; two years later it was transferred to Spain. The British took possession of West Falkland in 1765. Both islands were eventually abandoned. In 1820, Argentina colonized East Falkland. British troops occupied both islands in 1833, after they overthrew a small Argentine garrison.

Since 1833, the British have kept control of the islands, which are an important strategic point. In 1914, the British navy destroyed the German Pacific Fleet in nearby waters. The islands are also an essential refueling station enroute to the Antarctic and as whaling and sealing stations. However, of more relevance might be the recent reports of large gas and oil deposits in the area.

Another Arabia in So. America

Many Britains say President Galtieri took the step he did at the beginning of the month trying to distract his countrymen from rising socio-economic problems. Whether or not this is true remains to be seen. At this time, however, nationalistic pride, always strong in both countries, might ignite a larger conflict that could affect the rest of the world.

QUICK FLICKS: A Little Sex, currently at the Columbia Theatre, is barely worthy of the few remarks I will make about it here. The film is entirely built around Tim Matheson (Animal House, 1941) and relies on childish humor and a thickly spread sexual atmosphere which might appeal to those in pre-puberty ... Tom Smink, acting president of the BSC Film Society, has informed this writer that the classic Singing in the Rain will be shown at 8:00, Wed., April 21 in Carver Hall ... Encore Performance Features Lyman

Would you like to spend an evening listening to acoustic music that does not fit with the traditional mold of acoustic music? You can experience this by attending an encore performance to be given by Jim Lyman on Monday, April 26, in the coffeehouse in the Kehr Union.

Lyman, a former BSC student, calls his music, "most definitely rock, ... but played on an acoustic guitar rather than with a band." He says that for as long as he's been performing (seven years), he's been playing rock and roll, and that just because he's no longer part of a band, there was no reason for him to change his style.

Citing his main influences as Pete Townshend, Warren Zevon, Bruce Springsteen and Tom Petty, he says that his original material is drawn from their music.

"It's not copying," he says, "I never consciously try to sound like someone else, and I don't think that I ever do. I just take ideas gathered from listening to other people and put them together in a form which in some way is uniquely "me."

His songs often are about breakups of relationships, coping with these breakups, and also about, or based on personal experiences.

"You've got to be truthful in your music," Lyman says, "or else it seems 'staged' or 'posed' and it's just ineffective."

Some examples of his songs are "Carol Ann", which tells of a lost love which the singer is trying to rekindle once again; "Make a Decision", which takes the "torn between two lovers" who is tired of the arrangement; "The Pulse", which is about someone who is trying to get on with their life after a painful breakup, but is unable to get the lost love off their mind; and "Chest Hair Blues", which pursues a man's dilemma after his girlfriend has asked him to prove his love by "shaving her initials in his chest hair."

Lyman featured some of these numbers when he played with Livingston Taylor in concert this past February in Haas Auditorium, and will also be premiering a number of new songs on Monday in the coffeehouse.

He is a dynamic live performer whose shows usually go for two hours without the usual twenty minute intermission in the middle.

Huskies Rebound Against Wildcats

By WADE DOUGLAS
The Husky tennis team rebounded from a frustrating weekend quad-meet at Penn State to destroy a highly touted Villanova squad Monday 8-1.

Traveling to State College to take on Division I foes West Virginia, Colgate and the host Lions, the BSC netters played some of their finest tennis of the season only to win one of three matches. A 6-2 whipping of Colgate provided the Huskies with their lone victory, while they were downed 7-2 by PSU and 6-3 by WVU. The Huskies Top '3' of Marty Coyne, Craig Diehl and Dale Superdock each returned with two victories.

Returning home after their Monday afternoon match against Villanova, the team was both physically and mentally exhausted. Each Husky had played at least 11 sets, with two playing 15 sets, over the weekend. To compound BSC's problems, Nova was coming into the match with a fine 12-5 record.

Number three Dave Superdock quickly devoured his Wildcat opponent 6-2, 6-1 after dropping the opening game. Superdock, who had an 8 match win streak snapped over the weekend, upped his record to 10-5.

Like his teammate, No. 2 Craig Diehl dropped his first game then proceeded to roll over hard-serving Larry Gallen 6-4, 6-2. Diehl utilized his fine baseline strokes to record his sixth win in the last seven matches.

Brett Briscoe and Chris Antipas helped BSC to a 4-0 lead with straight set victories. Briscoe won 7-5, 6-2, while freshman Antipas recovered from his weekend skid to win 6-0, 7-5.

Number four Rob Lario continued to struggle as he dropped his fifth consecutive match 6-4, 6-0.

With the match at 4-1 and number one Marty Coyne having won the first set 6-3 and up 5-2 in the second, BSC seemed to have things well in hand. However, Nova's Bill Harahan managed to break Coyne's serve twice to set the score at 5-4. Coyne then gave the Wildcat some of his own medicine by breaking his serve. Coyne put the set and match away with two overheads to win 7-5.

The victory, which put Coyne's log at 10-5, allowed Coach Reese's troops to clinch their ninth win against six losses.

The Huskies take on Shipensburg Friday at 6 p.m. under the lights!
