SCUD Board Delays Decision on $230 Increase

By BRENDA D. MARTIN

Students at Pennsylvania's fourteen state-owned colleges and university will have to wait until at least May 20 before they are told if their tuition will be raised $230, the State College and University Director's Board (SCUD Board) decided at a meeting last Thursday.

If the increase is approved, 76,000 students in PA will be paying an annual tuition of $1,480, among the highest in the nation. The increase would take effect during the 1982-83 school year.

According to the PA Department of Education, without the increase there would be a $29 million deficit in the system.

The need for the increase is to generate funds to pay APSCUF (Association of Pennsylvania State College and University Faculties) the approximately $7 million awarded them by the PA Supreme Court in a November decision, and to also cover inflationary costs.

At the meeting, Dr. James H. McCormick, BSC president, said, "I sincerely believe it is in the best interest of students to consider seriously the consequences of inadequate funding and what it means to the quality of their education — an education that represents a substantial investment by both them and the Commonwealth."

McCormick added that based on the information that he has, he can "see no alternative to the proposed increase of $230 for next year."

The president of Edinboro State College agreed with McCormick and commented that, "It would be absolutely devastating and believes that if the increase is passed by the SCUD Board it will be a "credible decision." Gallagher said that "students are not under undue duress ... they are receiving a quality education at a good price."

But Dr. Muriel Berman, a SCUD Board member, disagreed. She became very concerned about the rising costs of tuition in PA when she began receiving letters from PA students telling her they can no longer pay for an education. She said, "the burden always seems to fall on the student. There must be a better way."

Evelyn Crawford, a SCUD Board member and former state senator, agreed with Berman and said that, "the money can be found in the Legislature."

Dr. Tony Ceddia, president of Shippensburg State College, said he was not impressed by the number of form letters that students write because he "has no indication of what their need is."

James P. Gallagher, PA commissioner of higher education supports the increase and believes that if the increase is passed by the SCUD Board it will be a "credible decision." Gallagher said that "students are not under undue duress ... they are receiving a quality education at a good price."

But BSC student Paul Felkner told the board that the quality of his education has suffered. He said, "I, and other students like me, have tried to speed up the process of higher education (to 3 or 3½ years) to cut costs, but that has seriously affected the quality of education I've received."

McCormick commented after the meeting that he is concerned about the SCUD Board's delay to make a decision about the increase. He said, "I was hoping a decision was made so that we could inform our students about next year's costs before they left for the summer."

Few Students Attend Candidate Forum

By CHRISTINA MANNION

Do you know who you are voting for in the May 18 elections? Last Tuesday night, April 20, there was a "Meet the Candidates" forum here at BSC in the library's auditorium.

There were only five BSC students present, but approximately fifty others in attendance consisting of faculty members, townspeople, reporters, and political supporters.

There are five candidates running for the Democratic 11th Congressional District seat. These men are Frank Harrison, Ed Mitchell, Dr. Tom O'Donnell, Francis Bonner, and Tom Makowski.

Whoever wins this election on Tuesday, May 18, is going to run against Republicans James Nelligan in the November election. The outcome of these elections should be of great concern to BSC students, especially with all President Reagan's proposed financial aid cuts for next year, which will undoubtedly affect most of the students here.

Fortunately, all five candidates are against Reagan's financial aid cuts and in favor of higher education. Students should be aware though, that Nelligan, on the other hand, does not share these same feelings.

Harrison said that when Nelligan was asked why he was in favor of cutting student loans, he said, "Well, you have to cut something."

All five candidates criticized Reagan and Nelligan badly. They all agreed that there should be more money spent on social programs, and they were all for nuclear arms control. Also, they all agreed that the money we spend on defense should be cut down.

It is imperative that all students vote at these two upcoming elections. The outcomes will be greatly affect BSC students next year.

Carnival A Success

by NINETTE FRISCIA

Community Government Association made a net profit of $120.01 from the Spring Carnival held last Thursday outside of the KUB.

The carnival featured a variety of game booths with stuffed animals, glasses, and mirrors as prizes.

Musical entertainment was provided by the Last Chance Band, who played selections by artists such as Pure Prairie League and the Marshall Tucker Band.

But, perhaps the highlight of the Spring Carnival was the dunking machine, which gave students a chance to soak their "favorite" professors.

Dean Norton drew the largest crowd when he was the dunking target from three to four o'clock. The majority of students firing the shots were fraternity brothers, who waited with anticipation for their turn at soaking BSC's head disciplinarian.

Next year CGA plans on having more advertising and hopefully a variety of bands. They also want to have a new location for the carnival, other than hidden behind the KUB.

According to Paul Stockler, CGA president, in the future the Spring Carnival may be an annual event.

BSC Students Unable to Cash Checks

Students Bank Problems in Bloom

By MARGIE LESSIE

Where can a Bloomsburg State College student go to cash a check?

According to a Bloomsburg Bank-Columbia Trust (BB-CT) official, any student who has a current community activities sticker can cash a check there.

Other guidelines of the bank state that BB-CT will not cash checks that exceed $100 or checks that are drawn from one student to another. Otherwise all checks will be cashed for a fee of 50 cents.

This fee is not charged to students cashing payroll checks, checks drawn on the BB-CT, or to students who have checking accounts with the bank.

If a student has a savings account, he will not be charged if he deposits the entire amount of the check. Then he may withdraw only the amount that he had present in his account before he made the deposit.

The rules are set in plain black and white, but many students feel that the bank does not operate in this manner.

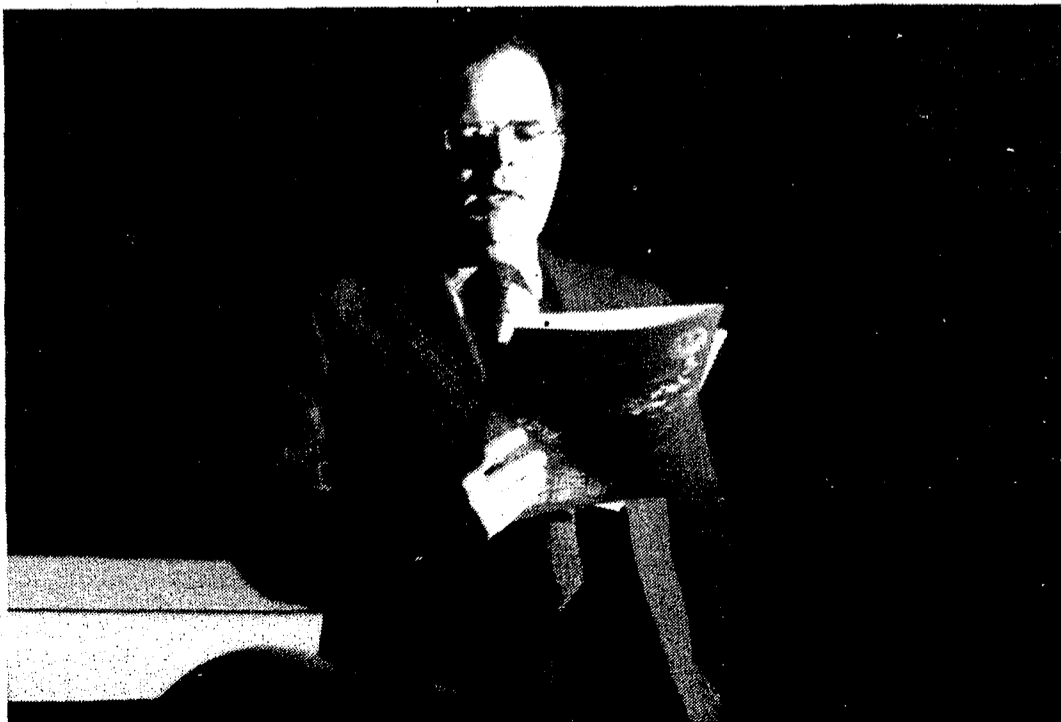

"I feel like a criminal every time I leave the bank, and I even have a savings account there," one BSC student stated.

Another student at BSC recently went to BB-CT to cash a check. The teller refused to cash the check saying that it was not her picture on the photo I.D. After producing her driver's license and signing the check, bank officials compared the signatures and came to the conclusion that they weren't the same signatures.

Another student, Laurie Rhoad, was outraged to have to pay to cash a check. "I'm not about to pay them 50 cents to cash my check," Rhoad said.

John Trathen, Director of Student Activities, explained that the banks are not required to cash checks for students without accounts, and added, "Why should they?"

There does seem to be a way to beat the system however. Steve Peskosky, a sophomore at BSC, opened a BABS savings account. "All I do is deposit my check, and then withdraw the amount it's worth. It works every time."

SCUD Board Defers Decision

By BRENDA D. MARTIN

How convenient. The State College and University Directors Board (SCUD Board) decided last Thursday to defer from making a decision about a $230 tuition increase until May 20. This date is very convenient for them for several reasons.

First, it falls several days after primary elections are finished, and second, it falls several days after most college students have packed their bags and gone home for the summer, thereby limiting the number of students who appear at the meeting.

But even though this date is convenient for the SCUD Board, students may also benefit from their lack of a decision.

Maybe the board members are starting to feel a little bit guilty about the increasing burden they are placing on PA students (remember, they have voted over the past two years to raise tuition $300, or 32 percent). Maybe within the next 23 days they will consider, really seriously consider, the added burden that $230 extra will place on their students.

Also, PA students now have some extra time to tell the board members that they can no longer continue to carry such a financial burden to get a quality education. There are several board members who do seem to be very supportive of student concerns involving tuition.

It seems appropriate at this time not only to mention those individuals (or groups) who seemed to be supportive of low-cost, quality, higher education, but also to mention those who weren't supportive at the recent SCUD Board meeting.

First, those receiving black marks for their continued non-support of public higher education:

—The PA Department of Education, for making distorted tuition comparisons among colleges in the nation. First, they compared the PA system to only five other state systems (the ones that are also among the highest in the nation) in an effort to make PA fees seem reasonable; then, they compared the PA system to private institutions such as Harvard, Dartmouth, Stanford, Yale, USC, University of Pennsylvania, and Drexel. Obviously, when compared to these private institutions, the PA system is by far the least expensive. The Department seems afraid to admit that PA tuition tanks at the top of the list when compared to all other state-owned institutions.

—James P. Gallagher, PA commissioner for higher education, for not caring how high tuition goes and for saying that "students are not under undue duress...they are getting a quality education at a good price." Apparently he has not listened to his constituents who are screaming about the financial burdens they have been forced to bear.

—Mansfield State College president, who insisted that high costs are due to collective bargaining and practically blamed the faculty for high tuition.

—Shippensburg State College president, Tony Ceddia, who said, "I am frankly not impressed when I receive 500 form letters from students...some of the same students may write to me for more parking spaces." It can only be inferred from Ceddia's remarks that if students can afford to own cars, then it doesn't matter how high tuition goes because they should have enough money to pay astronomical tuition bills. Wrong, Dr. Ceddia. Some students need cars for various reasons, such as working to pay college bills.

Now, those receiving gold stars for their continued support of quality, low-cost, public higher education:

—APSCUF (Association of Pennsylvania State College and University Faculties), for being patient in waiting to receive the approximately $7 million that is due them (and would have been paid to them in 1977 had the state not been negligent in meeting its financial obligations) and for not supporting the $230 increase.

—CAS (Commonwealth Association of Students) for their continued efforts in keeping PA tuition affordable and for fighting for student rights.

—BSC president, James McCormick, for caring enough about his constituents to ask them about their concerns. Dr. McCormick, although supportive of the $230 increase, has repeatedly voiced his concern about the rising costs of PA tuition. Additionally, he was the only college president at the SCUD Board meeting who actually spoke to his constituents (there were four BSC students at the meeting) and seemed genuinely proud that his students were concerned enough to send a delegation to the meeting.

—Evelyn H. Crawford and Dr. Muriel Berman, SEUD Board members, who voiced concerns about the rising costs of tuition and believe that the Commonwealth should start carrying more of the burden of costs for higher education, not the students.

As you can see, there are those who support low-cost higher education and those who don't seem to really care how high the cost of tuition goes. We need to channel our energies to both groups to make sure they are aware of the financial burden that the Commonwealth places on its students.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor,

We can stand dirty silverware, repetitive food, and limp lettuce. We will no longer tolerate the foul egg that has been on the wall exiting cafeteria "C" in the Scranton Commons since before spring break.

We realize that we all should be adult enough not to perform such an act. The rest of us should not have to tolerate the immaturity of one person. After all it is the custodians job to keep the Scranton Commons clean.

Our simple plea is that the person being paid to do custodial work take time out of their busy schedule to amend the disgrace.

Sincerely,

Jayce Clemente and

Air Bands Rock Carver

By STEHANIE RICHARDSON

The seats were filled. The lights went down and the music began. Last Tuesday Carver Hall was filled with the sounds of the Second Annual Air Bands competition.

The years show was again hosted by it's originators, Larry Murphy and Mike Pucillo. According to Murphy, the show is "for the students, by the students."

The band Scurvy, last year's winner, started the show with an awesome display of "air talent." The three-member group managed to create an atmosphere of rowdiness and excitement that would last throughout the ten following performances.

Scurvy was followed by acts including Joan Jett and the Blackhearts, the Sugar hill

Gang, Pat Benatar, and Olivia-Newton John, along with quite a few others.

Each group is given a time limit of 15 minutes to "show their stuff." They are then judged on three areas: audience appeal, originality and enthusiasm.

The show ended with three winners: Loaf, Dirty Deeds, and Scurvy. Loaf placed third. Dirty Deeds and Scurvy were tied, and after much debate the judges named Scurvy as second-place winner.

The four-man group, Dirty Deeds, was named first place winner of the competition. They "played" the selections "You Shook me all Night Long," "Highway to Hell," and "Hells Bells," by AC-DC. For their efforts they received a 35 dollar prize.

From the Archives

By R. W. FROMM

There is on campus a certain sense of confidence and excitement about the prospects for BSC football during the coming years. This anticipation has led some to talk as if Bloomsburg has never had a football team or football players to cheer about. That is just not so.

A check of 65 seasons from 1914 through 1981 (no team was fielded in 1918, 1942, and 1943) reveals that there were 24 winning seasons, 9 seasons with an equal won-loss record, and 32 losing seasons. In other words, there were more winning and "equal" seasons than losing.

The glory years were 1948-1951 when the following records were posted:

- 1948 - 9-0
- 1949 - 8-1
- 1950 - 7-1
- 1951 - 8-0

In 1948 a syndicated sports cartoon appeared entitled, "The Unbeaten." It showed five large football player figures representing the University of Michigan, Notre Dame, the University of California, Clemson, and Army with smaller figures below yelling up to them, "Hey Bud - Which way to the Rose Bowl?" Bloomsburg State Teachers is one of those smaller figures along with Florida A&M, Washington University (St. Louis), Bowling Green, Occidental, and others.

Then there were the Bob Tucker, Rich Lichtel, Stan Kucharski years culminating in 1967's 6-3 record. Quoting the 1968 Obiter:

Tucker caught 77 passes for 101 points and 1325 yards, a national record; Lichtel passed for yardage of 2771 yards at 307.76 per game and 26 touchdowns, also a national record; Kucharski caught 28 passes for 10 touchdowns and 64 points (all in 3 games.)

Injuries kept Stan Kucharski out of 6 games. It is interesting to speculate about what the record might have been with Kucharski healthy the entire season. Bob Tucker, of course, went on to become the tight end for many years with the New York Giants and Minnesota Vikings.

Most recently Bloomsburg football fans have followed the exploits of Mike Morucci. Although he played on only one winning team (1978, 6-4) he was on the Eastern Conference first team for 3 years, rushed for over 1000 yards in each of his last 2 seasons, and was named ECAC Player of the Year as a senior in 1979.

There is football tradition at BSC. Perhaps it will be strengthened as we continue on in the 1980's.

Renaissance Jamboree in Bloom This Weekend

By DEBBIE BERKLEY

Once a year the students of BSC and the townspeople of Bloomsgburg join forces to present a festival of events, exhibits, and live entertainment. This year's Renaissance Jamboree in Bloom will be held April 30 and May 1.

Starting outside of the Kehr Union there will be craft demonstrations and shows. The heart of the Jamboree will be along Main Street.

A popular outdoor activity enjoyed by many students is the frisbee toss, and starting Friday afternoon, Dr. John's World Frisbee Champions will perform on-campus demonstrating their professional skills to the people in attendance.

The tradition of folk music will be upheld with the performances of Cranberry Lake, Rod McDonald and Jay Smar.

Cranberry Lake is a four-musician jug band. They have played at colleges and concerts, in fairs, festivals, and square dances. They will perform on the Courthouse stage from 11:30 to 12:15 and again at 4:30.

Friday night, Rod McDonald will perform contemporary folk music at 8:00 in the Kehr Union. He will also perform downtown Saturday at 1:15 to 2:00 and 3:45 to 4:30 on Courthouse stage.

Folk guitarist singer and song writer, Jay Smart, will continue the Jamboree music tradition with a performance at 2:00 at the Iron Street stage.

The Jamboree will also be filled with a number of exhibitions. An appalachian clogging company, the Limberjacks, will present their unique mix of Irish, Scottish and English dancing. They will perform traditional flat footing and circle dances, as well as precision clogging and a capella rhythm-making at 2:15 and again at 4:30 on the Courthouse stage.

Mr. Olexi, a local magician, will amaze audiences with his magical feats on the Iron Street stage at 1:00.

The Berwick Tumble Jets will again entertain the audience with their gymnastic acrobatics. This all female group of varying ages will perform on the parallel bars, balance beam, and they will also present a floor exercise. They will be appearing on the Iron Street stage at 3:00.

One of this year's biggest youth crazes will be recognized as Arista, a group of 29 roller skaters, presents their exhibition of the Wizard of Oz from 12:30 - 1:00 near Courthouse stage.

Children will not be forgotten at the Jamboree, Characters such as Big Bird, the Grimace, and Woodsy the Owl will wander throughout the crowd. There will be sidewalk drawing and face painting during the day.

All ages will enjoy the antics of street clowns, Buggzy and Babe. Audience involvement will be encouraged as the clowns perform juggling, magic, mime, music, fire-eating, and fire-juggling.

Food and craft booths will line the street edges with something for virtually everyone. Jamboree goers may purchase sketch drawings of themselves, buy leather goods or have a hot dog for lunch.

Three More Men's Tennis Wins

By WADE DOUGLAS

With the upcoming State Championships fast approaching, the men's tennis team seems to be rounding into peak form at the perfect time. The Huskies ripped through three more opponents to push their season record to 12-6.

Scranton, which had only lost once in 11 previous matches, could manage to win only one singles match as they were drubbed 8-1.

Dave Superdock and Chris Antipas led off the netters with 6-0, 6-0 and 6-1, 6-1 demolitions of their Royal opponents.

Number four Rob Lario couldn't match his teammates' margins of victory but was just as effective. The freshman's 6-2, 6-1 win also snapped his five match losing streak.

Marty Coyne, playing at number one, continued to use his serve and volley game to chalk up wins. His 6-3, 6-2 victory gave the Huskies a 4-0 lead.

Captain Craig Diehl overcame first set serving difficulties to make it an insurmountable 5-0. Diehl switched from his baseline game to a more aggressive net game in the second set to win going away 6-4, 6-2.

The Huskies lone defeat occurred at number five, as Brett Briscoe was downed in a three set marathon 6-3, 4-6, 6-4. Perhaps his opponents' dexterity left Briscoe baffled. Scranton's Brian Holzman served with his right hand then switched over to his left to play the volleys.

The doubles matches proved to be only slightly tougher, as BSC won all three.

Shippensburg learned one valuable lesson over the weekend: don't get Bloomsburg mad! After having to wait for first their late arriving opponent and then the tortoise-like security guards to turn on the lights, the Huskies destroyed the visiting Raiders 9-0 on Friday night. This was the third straight time a visiting team has been late; maybe word is getting around about how good the Huskies are.

Freshman Antipas again got the netters off quickly with a 6-0, 6-0 shutout. Briscoe, facing a normal opponent this time, utilized a new serve to put the Huskies up 2-0.

Dave Superdock continued to mow down everything in sight as he romped 6-1, 6-4. Lario took advantage of his weak serving player to give BSC their win. Coyne sealed the win with a 6-2, 6-1 victory.

The only thing that number two player Diehl lost was a pre-game juggling competition to Coyne, as he cruised to a 6-1, 6-1. The doubles were again easy pickings for the netters.

Playing in nice weather for the first time this season, BSC responded with a 7-2 trouncing over visiting Temple.

It took number one Coyne less than an hour to dispose of his Owl player 6-0, 7-5. Coyne's first set was nothing short of awesome as he continuously followed his serve to the net for easy putaways. The win, which was his fifth in a row, upped his season log to 13-5.

Temple then took a shortlived 2-1 lead with victories over Briscoe and Lario. However Antipas recorded his 12th win versus 6 losses to even the team score at two.

Diehl put the netters back on top for good with a hard-fought 7-5, 6-2 win over his hot-tempered opponent.

It was his fifth win in a row.

Number three Superdock ran into a fine opponent but managed to struggle to a three set win. Superdock's hard-serving player broke two of his racquets in the match. However after borrowing Coyne's racquet he returned to put away the Temple player with a forehand smash in the final set for a 4-6, 6-0, 6-3 triumph. It was his 13th win in 18 starts and his 12th out of 13.

Superdock then teamed with Coyne for a match winning 6-4, 6-1 victory in doubles. The teams of Briscoe - Diehl and Antipas - Lario were also victorious.

BSC To Host 1982 Track Championships

Bloomsburg (PA) State College's Robert B. Redman Stadium will be the site of the 2nd Annual AIAW Division III Women's Track & Field Championship on May 20-22, 1982. The national event is expected to draw approximately 300 athletes from over 100 institutions throughout the country.

Twenty events will be contested during the three day meet, including 14 running events (100 meter dash, 200 meter dash, 400 meter dash, 800 meter run, 1500 meter run, 3000 meter run, 5000 meter run, 10,000 meter run, 100 meter hurdles, 400 meter hurdles, 4 x 100 meter events (high jump, long jump, shot put, discus, and javelin), as well as the hept-

California State-Hayward captured the team title a year ago over a field which included 294 athletes. However, a new champion will be crowned this season, as the Pioneers have opted not to enter the competition.

Athletic Banquet is Sunday

Bloomsburg State College's athletes and coaches of the past and present will be honored at the 8th Annual Day of Champions Banquet on May 2, 1982 at 7 p.m. in the Scranton Commons.

The event, which has been a huge success in past years, will be highlighted by the induction of six men into the BSC Athletic Hall of Fame and the honoring of current athletes, as well as serving as a kick-off to the school's athletic fundraising efforts this year.

The first six members of the newly created "Hall of Fame" who were chosen by the Bloomsburg town & gown booster organization, include former athletes Danny Litwhiler; Bob Tucker and Floyd "Shorty" Hitchcock, along with former coaches Robert Redman, Russ Houk, and Bill Foster.

Among the many athletes in attendance will be representatives of all 18 varsity athletic teams at BSC. To date, five of the squads have been ranked or placed in the top 15 teams in the nation in their respective divisions (field hockey - 1st; women's swimming - 2nd; men's basketball - 7th; women's cross country - 12th; wrestling - 13th).

Also included in the program will be the announcement of the "BSC Coach of the Year." Past winners were: 77-78, Lou Mingrone - soccer; 78-79, Roger Sanders - wrestling; 79-80, Burt Reese - tennis; 80-81, Charles Chronister - basketball.

To help continue the success of various athletic teams, those people wishing to attend the banquet will be able to purchase tickets for $10 or have the option of donating a minimum of $25, which entitles the person to a ticket to the banquet, a one year membership in the Husky club, and four tickets to the athletic contest of their choice during the 1982 - 1983 season.
