At a special reception in Old Main, Global Online students from across the country gather for a portrait with President Angelo Armenti, Jr. before the University's 173rd Commencement. For the second consecutive year, SR Education Group has ranked Cal U Global Online the No. 1 online degree program in the nation.

Best in the U.S. for Online Education

Cal U once again has been ranked No. 1 in the nation for its online degree and certificate programs.

The Online College Rankings are compiled annually by SR Education Group, an educational resource provider based in Kirkland, Wash. The 2012 Top 30 Online Colleges are listed on its flagship site, Guide to Online Schools (www.guidetoonlineschools.com).

A new portion of the guide also lists Cal U among the nation's top military-friendly schools.

The online guide is intended "to help prospective students make informed decisions about how to invest in their education," the report says. "Our goal is to hold online schools accountable to the same high standards we expect of traditional institutions."

To determine the rankings, SR Education Group examines accreditations, the cost of tuition and books, student-to-faculty ratios, graduation and retention rates, and the rate at which students repay their college loans on time.

Statistics are gathered from the U.S. Department of Education's National Center for Education Statistics, the primary federal entity for collecting and presenting data related to education.

Student feedback also plays a role in the rankings.

"The course requirements were rigorous," one Cal U Global Online student reported. "I was obtaining a degree in a field I had worked in for nearly 20 years and actually learned something new and was challenged by the curriculum.

"The online format, available resources and tools were all exceptional and contributed to enhancing the learning experience."

Cal U's Global Online programs allow students to complete their assignments at any time of the day or night, from anywhere in the world. That makes it especially appealing to working professionals and members of the armed forces.

"I work full time, so this has been a real benefit," another student wrote. "I interacted with students from other areas of the country and learned about their teaching experiences. I would suggest this school to anyone that wants to attend school online for an affordable price."

Following Cal U on the 2012 Top Online Colleges list are Western Governors University, in Utah; Iowa Central College; National University, in California; and Abilene Christian University, in Texas.

Cal U Global Online continues to grow. It now provides more than 1,800 students with affordable, high-quality master's degree, bachelor's degree and certificate programs. Compared to the 2010-2011 academic year, total enrollment increased by 6.1 percent this year.

"Enrollment is especially strong in our online master's degree programs," said Dr. John Cencich, dean of the School of Graduate Studies and Research.

"Building on the strength of our traditional, face-to-face graduate programs, Cal U has developed challenging course content that can be delivered effectively over the Internet by engaged, technology-savvy professors and exceptional support services."

The Office of Web-Based Programs provides support for Global Online students from their initial inquiry through Commencement, when many students come to campus to receive their diploma. The office focuses on customer service, with client service specialists, a financial aid representative and other support personnel on hand to answer questions and address any concerns.

"Our Global Online students receive the same high-quality educational experience offered to everyone who enrolls at Cal U," said University President Angelo Armenti, Jr. "The program's continuing growth speaks to the value of our Internet-based programs."

Guide to Online Schools ranked Cal U second nationally in 2009, the guide's first year. California University moved to the top of the list the following year, and it has held the No. 1 spot ever since.

Navoney Named to VP Role

Sharon Navoney, who joined Cal U's development staff in 2009, has been appointed to serve as interim vice president for University Development and Alumni Relations. See story on page 2.

'Women of the Year' Honored

Members of the Cal U community gathered on Dec. 7 to celebrate the achievements of two women who were honored by the President's Commission for the Status of Women.

The commission presented two Fall 2011 Outstanding Woman of the Year awards — to graduate student Domenica "Dee" Stalvey and to nontraditional undergraduate Tina McLee.

Both women completed their studies in December. Stalvey earned her master's degree in legal studies with a concentration in law and public policy, and McLee graduated with a Bachelor of Social Work degree.

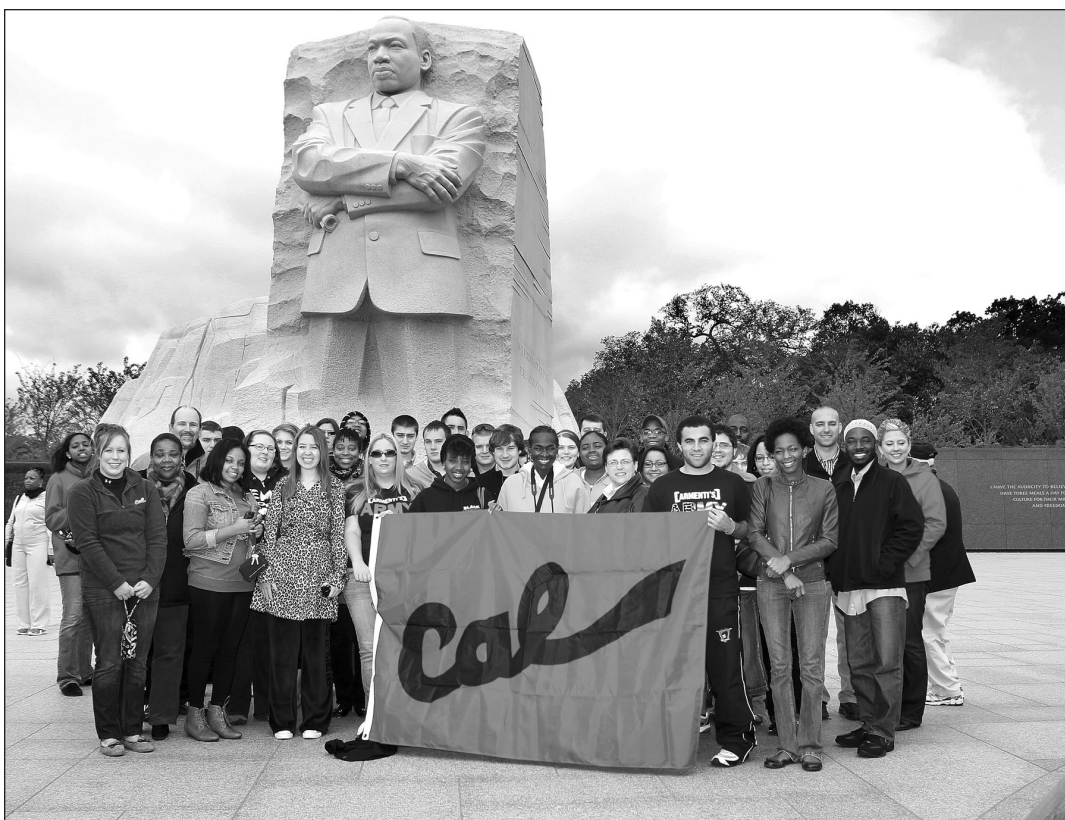

Stalvey, executive associate to President Angelo

Armenti, Jr., was honored for her role as a mentor to many people on campus, and for volunteering at her church and local volunteer fire department. She and her husband, Joe, support an endowed scholarship at Cal U.

"I sincerely thank the President's Commission for the Status of Women for this honor," Stalvey said. "I am very humbled by this recognition, because I know there are many women graduate students here at Cal U who pursue scholarly activities and also give of their time and energy to serve others in many ways."

McLee also was honored for her role as a mentor to fellow students and her community activities,

A group of students from Cal U visited the Martin Luther King Jr. National Memorial, in Washington, D.C., last year. On Tuesday, students will continue to remember King's legacy as they participate in the University's annual Day of Service.

Cal U Set for Annual Day of Service

Cal will honor the memory of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. by putting his message into practice Tuesday during the University's annual Day of Service.

From 11 a.m.-2:30 p.m. tomorrow, members of campus clubs and organizations will meet in the Natali Student Center to perform service-oriented activities coordinated by the Center for Civic Engagement.

Inspiration for the Day of Service was a 2003 visit to Cal U by the late Coretta Scott King, wife of the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. During her campus visit she asked that the day commemorating her late husband be observed as "a day on, rather than a day off."

"Our students take this day and Mrs. King's message very seriously," said Diane Williams, director of Cal U's Center for Civic Engagement. "Even though the spring semester did not start until a week later than the holiday, it is important for the students and other members of the University community to do their part."

Williams also emphasized that the Day of Service ties in with the Cal U for Life initiative, which encourages students to share their time and talent. It also reflects the eighth goal of the University's Strategic Plan by fostering civic engagement.

Last year, more than 150 students, staff and faculty performed volunteer work on the Day of Service.

For more information, e-mail Williams at williams_d@calu.edu.

Navoney to Lead Development and Alumni Relations

University President Angelo Armenti, Jr. has appointed Sharon Navoney to serve as interim vice president for University Development and Alumni Relations, effective Jan. 5.

"I know Sharon will bring consistency and stability to this position, and I look forward to great momentum as a result of her appointment," the President said.

During more than 20 years as a fund development professional, Navoney has actively participated in seven capital campaigns while working in public and private higher education, academic medicine, and a pediatric hospital foundation.

She joined Cal U's development staff in April 2009 as senior director of major gifts and planned giving.

Since January 2010 Navoney has served as associate vice president for development, providing strategic planning and support for Cal U's $35 million capital campaign, as well as oversight for planned and major individual giving, advancement services, prospect research and management, donor relations, and special events.

"I am excited about the opportunities ahead and look forward to building upon the many successes the department has achieved over the past several years," Navoney said.

"We have a renewed excitement and energy focused not only on successfully completing our Campaign To Build Character and Careers, but also on continuing engaging our alumni, friends and University family in Cal U for Life.

"We have made great strides and built momentum in several critical areas of development and alumni initiatives, and I believe we are poised to accomplish even more."

Before coming to Cal U, Navoney was director of major gifts and planned giving at the Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh Foundation, where she managed a portfolio of about 175 prospects and worked closely on the $100 million capital campaign for the new Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh campus.

From 2001-2004 she was employed at Carnegie Mellon University, where she was associate vice president of constituent development and executive director for development for the Graduate School of Industrial Administration.

She also has filled various development roles, including executive director of development for the School of Medicine, at the University of Pittsburgh/University of Pittsburgh Medical Center.

Navoney holds a bachelor's degree from Edinboro University and a master's degree in administrative and policy studies/higher education administration from the University of Pittsburgh. In addition, she earned a certificate in management of nonprofit organizations from Pitt's Graduate School of Public and International Affairs.

Soprano Opens 2012 Recital Series

To open its 2012 season, the Cal U Recital Series welcomes soprano Diba Alvi for a performance at 8 p.m. Thursday in Old Main Chapel.

Alvi is quickly gaining recognition for her beautiful voice and dynamic stage presence. She has received critical acclaim for both her operatic roles and her concert performances.

Winner of the 2006 Pittsburgh Concert Society Competition and a Tuesday Musical Club Individual Artist Award, Alvi recently completed her doctoral studies at the University of Maryland, where she was the recipient of the Robert McCoy Graduate Assistantship Award.

She is currently a faculty member at the University of Maryland and at Montgomery College in Rockville, Md. This summer she will portray the First Lady when the Opera Theater of Pittsburgh presents Mozart's The Magic Flute.

The Recital Series performance is free and open to the public. Donations to support the series are welcome.

For more information, contact Cal U's Department of Music at 724-938-4878.

which include assisting the Junior ROTC and volunteering at her church. She even postponed hip-replacement surgery to fulfill her duties as a student and the mother of two teenagers.

"I am humbled by the whole experience," McLee said. "It is a privilege and an honor to accept this award."

President Armenti has been a staunch supporter of the commission since coming to Cal U in 1992.

"Members of the commission have worked hard to create a positive campus climate for women over the years," he said at the luncheon.

The President also congratulated both women on their achievements — reserving a special comment for Stalvey, with whom he has worked closely for almost 20 years.

"I am very proud of her for earning a master's degree in one of the toughest programs we have with all of her other responsibilities," he said.

Dr. Elizabeth Jones, an original member of the President's Commission, was the guest speaker at the Woman of the Year luncheon. She retired in December as a professor in the Sociology Department after 20 years at Cal U.

Since the luncheon was held on Pearl Harbor Day, Jones discussed the monumental changes in American society that occurred when women entered the workplace during World War II.

"The war began a societal conversation about important issues like pay equity and women as second wage earners. As I conclude my tenure, I'm glad we have a commission at Cal U to address the issues of today," she said.

Former Cal U distance runner Christopher Clark

Alumnus Competes in Marathon Trials

Former Cal U distance runner Christopher Clark, of Hadley, Pa., competed in the U.S. Olympic Marathon Trials on Jan. 14 in Houston, Texas.

Running in his first competitive marathon, Clark finished 82nd among nearly 300 runners, with a time of 2 hours, 30 minutes and 10 seconds.

The top three finishers will represent the United States in the marathon at the 2012 Olympic Games in London. They were Meb Keflezighi, the 2004 Olympic silver medalist; Ryan Hall, the U.S. marathon record holder; and Abdi Abdirahman, a three-time Olympian.

The trials were broadcast on NBC-TV.

Since July 2010 Clark has run professionally for ZAP Fitness Foundation, a non-profit training center for post-collegiate, Olympic hopeful distance runners. Clark qualified for the trials by posting a time of 1 hour, 4 minutes and 38 seconds at the USA Half Marathon Championships, also held in Houston.

"To do as well he did in his first competitive marathon is impressive," said Dan Caulfield, Cal U's veteran men's and women's cross country coach. "However, it's not surprising because of how determined and focused Chris is in anything he does."

During his collegiate career, Clark was a five-time NCAA All-American in cross country and track and field. He was the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference (PSAC) Cross Country and Outdoor Track Athlete of the Year during his 2008-2009 senior season.

Clark also received the conference's inaugural Sportsmanship Award, along with Clarion swimmer Jamie Murphy. This honor is given annually to one male and one female student-athlete who best exemplify the spirit of sportsmanship and who have demonstrated the values of respect and integrity through a specific action ideally directed toward an opponent.

Clark, who earned both his bachelor's and master's degrees from Cal U, was the first Academic All-American in the history of the university's cross country and track and field programs.

Vulcans Lead Dixon Trophy Race

Following arguably the most successful overall fall sports season in school history, Cal U athletics leads the Dixon Trophy standings and ranks third in the national Directors' Cup.

The Dixon Trophy is awarded annually to the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference (PSAC) member institution with the most successful all-around program. The winner is determined by a point system based on the results of conference playoffs and/or regular-season records.

Each institution's point total is calculated by adding its top six women's finishes and top six men's finishes in 22 conference sports.

Cal U compiled 92.5 overall points during the fall season, the highest fall total in school history.

Women's soccer and women's volleyball each earned 16 points after capturing conference titles. Football (13.5), women's golf (13), men's cross country (11) and men's soccer (11) added double-digit points.

Rivals Kutztown and West Chester are second and third in the trophy standings, with 74.5 and 73.5 points, respectively.

Since 2008, Cal U has finished no less than third in the standings each year. The Vulcans won the Dixon Trophy in 2009 and placed second in 2010.

Announced through the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics, the Learfield Sports Directors' Cup annually honors institutions maintaining a broad-based program in both men's and women's sports. The scoring system is based on the national finishes of seven men's and seven women's sports teams.

Cal U's athletics leads the Dixon Trophy standings and ranks third in the national Directors' Cup. The women's soccer team contributed to this success by winning the PSAC title and advancing to the NCAA Division II quarterfinals this past fall.

The Vulcans compiled 243 points through the fall competition. Grand Valley State (Mich.), which has won the Directors' Cup for eight consecutive years, remains atop the standings with 260 points. Chico State (Calif.) is second with 257 points. Cal U places third after NCAA post-season appearances by women's soccer, volleyball, men's soccer and football.

Cal U is one of five PSAC programs to rank in the top 30 in the national standings this fall.

Last year, the Vulcans finished 12th in the final standings — Cal U's fourth straight season to appear in the Directors' Cup top 15 schools.

The Dixon Trophy standings will be updated next after basketball championships are completed in early March.

The first Division II Directors' Cup winter standings will be released on March 15.

Awards Highlight Student Creativity

The creativity of hundreds of secondary school students is on display in Gallagher Hall through Feb. 12 as part of the Scholastic Art and Writing Awards of Southwestern Pennsylvania.

The awards recognize outstanding young artists and writers from schools in Washington, Greene and Fayette counties.

This year's local event drew 376 art submissions and 55 writing entries from 28 schools. This is the third year that Cal U has hosted the event.

"Creativity lights up individual lives, leads to new discoveries and drives progress — in medicine, in physics, in computer science, in space exploration, in nanotechnology, in government — in every human endeavor," said Janice Hatfield, co-director of the Scholastic Art and Writing Awards of Southwestern Pennsylvania.

"That is why the Scholastic Art and Writing Awards and similar programs that recognize and reward creativity are so important."

Five Cal U faculty members, from the departments of English and Art and Design, were among the judges for this year's event. Dr. Scott Lloyd, Gregory Harrison and Richard Miecznikowski evaluated submissions. Dr. Kurt Kearcher and Dr. Krystia Nora judged the written pieces.

Harrison, Nora and Dr. William Hendricks serve on the Scholastic board of directors.

Since the program began in 2002, more than 3,000 students have participated in the Scholastic Art and Writing Awards of Southwestern Pennsylvania, which is an affiliate of the national Alliance for Young Artists and Writers. Locally, almost $20,000 has been awarded for outstanding work.

The awards ceremony at Cal U will be held at 2 p.m. Feb. 12 in Steele Hall Mainstage Theatre.

Students who earn Gold Keys at the regional level are automatically entered in the national awards program later this year.

"Scholastic has been encouraging and rewarding writers for a long, long, time," Nora said. "It's a great organization for anyone who might have quiet dreams of becoming a writer, who thinks it could never happen."

Roh Joins Honor Society's Board

Dr. Joni Cramer Roh has begun her term as second vice chair of the Kappa Omicron Nu Honor Society Board of Directors.

Roh will contribute to national governance of the organization, which represents more than 100 campus chapters throughout the United States and more than 140,000 members worldwide. The national office is located in East Lansing, Mich.

A professor in the Department of Exercise Science and Sport Studies, Roh joined Cal U in 1991 to teach and advise students in the undergraduate and graduate accredited athletic training programs. In 2006, she began teaching graduate courses in the exercise science and health promotions online programs.

Dr. Joni Roh

She has been an adviser to the Nu Omicron Chapter of the Kappa Omicron Nu Honor Society since 2005. The organization is a certified member of the Association of College of Honor Societies.

Roh is a member of the National Athletic Trainers' Association (NATA), the Eastern Athletic Trainers' Association (EATA), the Pennsylvania Athletic Trainers' Society (PATS), the Association for the Advancement of Applied Sport Psychology (AAASP), and the American Psychological Association (APA).

She has presented research relative to sport injury at nationally recognized symposiums and has published articles in national peer-reviewed journals.

XI. ADJOURNMENT

Attention University Community! Call for Nominations for Election to Cal U Forum

In accordance with the constitution and bylaws of the California University Forum, a timetable for faculty and student representatives' elections has been established.

The goal is to have all representatives in place for the first meeting of the Forum on Tuesday, September 4, 2012.

All tenure and tenure-track faculty who were hired to begin work prior to or in Spring 2010 and who have the rank of assistant professor or higher are eligible for nomination. (See the list of eligible faculty on this page.)

Eligible faculty members can self-nominate or offer a colleague's name into nomination. Any member of the University community (staff, students, managers) may nominate a faculty member.

Nominations must be postmarked or received on or before February 10th and forwarded to Dana Turcic, Recording Secretary of the Forum, sent internally to campus box 99, or emailed to her at CalForum@calu.edu.

Four faculty members will be elected to the Forum by secret ballot, following the written nominations. All regular (i.e. tenured and tenure-track) faculty may vote. The voting will take place electronically and will be ready for voting on February 15th and 16th. Further information will be provided to faculty members who are eligible to vote.

According to the constitution and bylaws of the Forum, of the four faculty being elected: two (2) must come from the College of Education and Human Services; and one (1) must come from the College of Liberal Arts and one (1) must be elected at-large (from College of Education and Human Services, College of Liberal Arts, Eberly College of Science and Technology or No College Affiliation.) Faculty members who are currently serving as faculty senators on the Forum are eligible to serve consecutive terms.

The term of these four faculty representatives will be two years.

A plurality of votes cast will be necessary to win election.

Details of the student nomination and election process will be available in future issues of the California Times.
