STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE, California, Pennsylvania

DEDICATION

CALIFORNIA STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE is being honored in this 1952 MONOCAL for its one-hundred years of service to the community, the state, and the nation. But with this honor must also be included a special citation for the faculty members who have served through these decades. It would be next to impossible to honor each and every one of these instructors, so the staff has decided to honor those with the highest number of service years. Although we realize that many have come and gone, and that many are comparative newcomers to our campus, we know that each has left his mark on some student, some group, some custom, some ideal of the institution. We feel, however, that those who have given a quarter of a century or longer to California deserve a dedication in this Centennial edition. So, to these faculty members who have been at California for at least the past twenty-five years, we dedicate this 1952 MONOCAL.

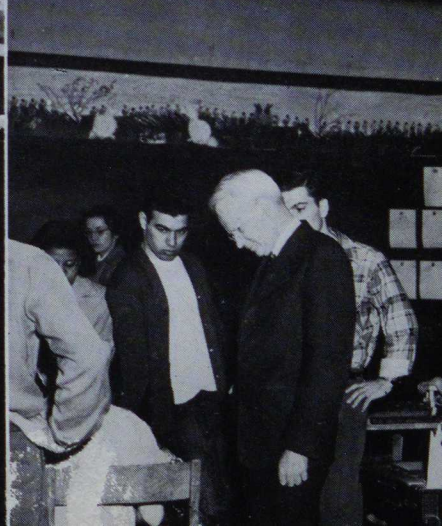

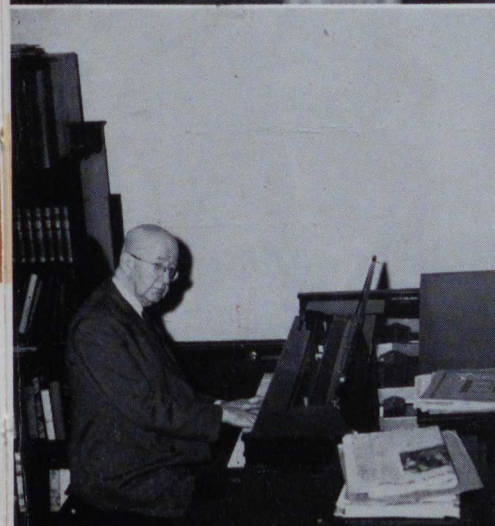

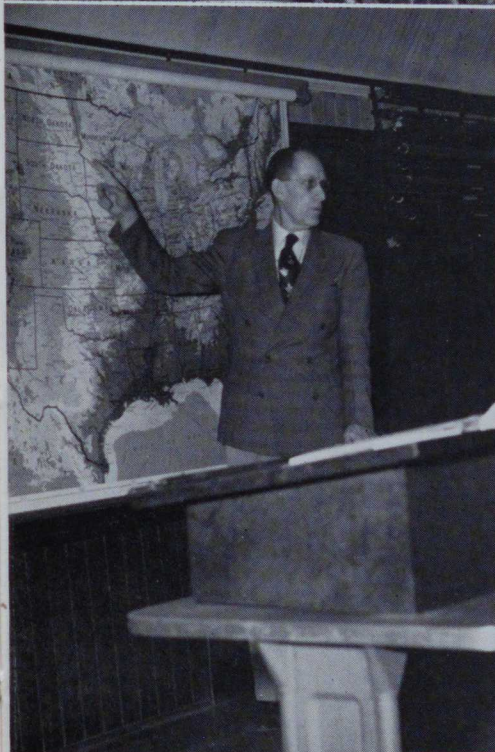

No honor for years of service can be given without including our Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds, who has faithfully served our institution for over half a century. To you, also, Mr. Pollock, we dedicate this book.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS OF TEACHER EDUCATION

Mrs. Nan Hornbake

Main Hall in 1872

CALIFORNIA STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE holds a distinctive place in the historic and modern life of California.

California today is a college town and it has been known as such throughout the Monongahela Valley and western Pennsylvania almost since the incorporation of California itself.

Today the college, excepting the surrounding coal mines, is the community's biggest enterprise and because of its long history has made of California the Monongahela Valley's cultural center.

California is a college town today and it has been such for many years, even the days when California's industrial life was diversified with prosperous brick yards, boat yards, foundries and mills.

First schools came to California shortly after its incorporation as a borough, when a public or common school, which died after a life of only one year, was founded. The Rev. Samuel Rothwell was the school's first and only instructor.

The second phase of school life in California came with the founding of the California Seminary or Academy. It was known by both names but a copy of the first minutes of the institution, uncovered only recently, show it was officially "The Seminary." The seminary remained in California from 1852 until 1865.

The building erected to house this new venture was located at Fifth and Liberty streets on the site now occupied by California high school. It was a substantial hand-pressed brick building of two stories. The ground floor consisted of the center hall with the class rooms opening on the left and right. The second floor consisted of one large room dignified by the name Seminary Hall, accommodating 300 people.

When the Seminary was founded in 1852, no effort was made to obtain a charter for the institution. All money levied for school purposes in the borough was paid to its trustees, and it was not only a Seminary but the public school of the town, an arrangement that was not terminated until 1913.

The first principal of the new school was Prof. Ellis N. Johnson, a nephew of Job Johnson, one of the original incorporators of the town. Prof. Johnson was assisted by Proff. W. D. Fanning and Miss Jane Scott, all three instructors coming to California from Ohio.

Five years after the establishment of the Seminary—1857—an act of the legislature divided the state into twelve normal school districts, and in this division the counties of Washington, Fayette, Greene, and Somerset constituted the Tenth Normal School District.

Millersville, in Lancaster county, had a flourishing school with many students, adequate buildings and equipment. In 1857 the state recognized it as the first Normal School of the Commonwealth, it representing the second district.

California, possessing little or none of the qualifications of Millersville, determined to try to obtain a charter for its Seminary as the state normal school in the tenth district.

About these efforts, Wickersham's "History of Education in Pennsylvania" says: "From the time the success of the experiment at Millersville became known, the undertaking of a similar enterprise at California was freely discussed. Foremost in pushing forward the movement was Job Johnson, a Quaker, in this Scotch-Irish county, and a man of great public spirit."

In 1859 California made its first request for recognition as a state normal school. California was centrally located in the Tenth district and backers of the proposition were ambitious.

As a result, a bill was prepared and finally passed by both houses of the Legislature. It was doomed then by the veto of Governor Packer, who gave the three following reasons for his action:

1. Because the bill proposed to combine the three-fold functions of a common school, of a privately endowed seminary and of a Normal school.

2. Because its provisions were inconsistent with each other and with the common school law, as well as with the general law in regard to normal schools.

3. Because the practical operations of the bill would be subservious to the interest of prosperity of the common schools of the borough, and the rights and interests of the Tenth District.

Governor Packer further said: "There is no apparent reason why the Tenth Normal District should be organized under a special law, nor why California Seminary should be recognized as the Normal School of that District before it has been properly organized and established under the general law."

In 1859 California's population was 476. In 1865 when the community did succeed in getting a charter for the Southwestern Normal college and not for a Normal school, the population was 576, of which 22 were school children. Taxes levied for school purposes amounted to $527. Adding these figures to similar figures from Greenfield borough adjoining, now Coal Center, the total population was 945, with a tax levy for schools of $855.49 and a state appropriation of $140.22.

There was good reason in Governor Packer's veto on the basis of these figures but the refusal was a crushing blow to enthusiastic Californians.

Prof. Johnson resigned as principal of the Seminary in 1859 and was succeeded by Prof. H. C. Gilchrist, another Ohio educated man but a Pennsylvanian by birth. Prof. Gilchrist received his education in Poland Institute, Antioch, Ohio, under the instruction of Horace Mann, still a name to conjure with in education.

The faculty had, in addition to the principal, Prof. N. D. Fanning, a holdover from the administration of Prof. Johnson; Prof. Maynard, Prof. W. N. Hull, a recruit from the Normal school at Millsboro, Pa.; Mrs. H. C. Gilchrist; J. T. Teal and George L. Osborne.

During this time the agitation to obtain a Normal charter for the Seminary from the state was proceeding slowly but steadily. Old records show there are two claimants for the honor of being the driving force behind the movement to obtain the charter. Prof. Gilchrist in a letter dated October 19, 1899, says:

"I wrote the first letter initiating the movement to obtain a charter for the Seminary as a Normal School from Fayette City in 1864 to Job Johnson, and shortly after went up to California and had a conference with him, Mr. Hornbake, Mr. Morgan, and Mrs. Sickman. I prepared its charter and attended to its interests, while it was before the legislature, assisted by others, of course."

In the Normal Review of April, 1892, appears this letter from W. N. Hull:

"I had been teaching in a Normal School at Millsboro, Pa., with Thomas Horner, and upon his death moved to California and was principal of its Seminary and public school for two years. Knowing that Mr. Horner's enterprise at Millsboro could not succeed in securing state recognition, California seemed to me a suitable place for the State Normal School, and I began at once to agitate the question. I wrote Prof. Gilchrist, who was teaching at Fayette City and proposed that he come up in the spring and help start the wheels. He responded in person by the next boat and we talked and planned."

California was still not ready to file properly a request for a State Normal School but she determined to make ready. Early in 1864 subscriptions of stock were sold, the money thus secured to be used for the purchase of grounds and the erection of buildings.

The first recorded meeting of those who purchased this stock was held in Seminary Hall, June 16, 1864. Prof. J. T. Teal, county superintendent of Greene County and also a teacher in the Seminary, was chairman of the meeting. The election of officers by the stockholders resulted in Joseph A. Lambert being named the president. Other officers included: L. W. Morgan, vice-president and Samuel Sickman, secretary.

In the minutes of this meeting, it is recorded that the county superintendents of Washington, Fayette and Greene counties: Buffington, Yeagley and Teal, respectively, were appointed to select a site for the Normal School building.

There is no record that this committee ever acted and three months later Abner Jackson, J. C. Momyer, and Job Johnson were selected to secure a location.

Three locations received serious consideration—the Gregg property on the hill above the public school, the Rothwell plot, now a part of the borough across the street from the Teachers college, and its present location.

The original plot consisted of 10 acres and was purchased from Edward Riggs for $133.44. At the meeting of the trustees in October, G. W. Hornbake, L. W. Morgan and Job Johnson were appointed to close the contract. The deed bears the date of November 14, 1864.

California again went before the state legislature to request a charter of incorporation, which was granted by Governor Andrew G. Curtin, March 16, 1865.

Section I of the Act said: "The corporate name and title of this institution shall be Southwestern Normal College of Pennsylvania, until and before the time it may be recognized as a State Normal School, under the Act of the Legislature passed April 15, 1857, when it can take such name and title as may be consistent with that act."

Great was the rejoicing in California when news of Governor Curtin's action was received. Virtually every citizen who could be jammed into Seminary Hall was on hand for the inauguration meeting.

The stockholders of the newly created college met the first Monday in May, 1865, and elected 20 trustees as provided in the charter. The officers of the first board were: L. W. Morgan, president; Abner Jackson, vice-president, and Samuel Sickman, secretary. Prof. Gilchrist was elected principal and he with five other teachers comprised the faculty, one of whom was Miss Caroline Knox of Brownsville, sister of the late United States Senator Philander C. Knox.

Shares of stock originally sold for $25 in 1864 and in 1865 a more determined effort was made to sell stock. It was a tremendous undertaking to attempt to raise $50,000 with the population of the community less than 1,000 and with the stock bearing no rate of interest. There is no record of the stock ever selling for more than $5 after its original purchase.

The owner of a share of stock could become a trustee and could vote for trustees, but no one could have more than five votes, regardless of the number of shares of stock held. It is a known fact that some time later, when voting at the annual meeting in May was expected to be close, new owners of stock sprang up and that the voting was done in accordance with the wishes of the original owners.

In 1865, at the June meeting of the trustees, the expenditure of $150 was authorized for books and apparatus for a library, consequently the college and its library celebrate their birthdays together.

The first catalogue of the Southwestern Normal college was evidently printed this year, 1865, for Prof. Hertzog in his paper before the "Old Timers" reunion held in 1905 referred to it. But the earliest one now in existence carries the date of 1869.

In 1866, Prof. Gilchrist was elected superintendent of Washington county schools, but in 1867 he was re-elected head of the college, causing him to lose renomination as county superintendent.

The year 1867 is memorable in the history of the institution. The summer term saw a record enrollment of 125 students and the first attempt at practice teaching was made, the experiment being so successful that it was added to the curriculum as a new subject.

In 1867 despite the fact that only $12,000 of the original stock issue of $50,000 had been subscribed up to this time, the trustees went ahead with the Normal school building.

Barr and Moses of Pittsburgh were appointed architects and they drew up plans for the central building and the two dormitories. Nothing was done this year but the burning of two brick kilns on the ground near the river and Prof. Hertzog said sheriff's tab was on them before they were paid for.

At the trustees meeting in April, 1868, it was decided to borrow $15,000. Of this amount $10,000 was obtained, records show. Job Johnson began the work of surveying. The contract for the stone and brick work was let to Meredith Brothers of Monongahela and for the wood work to John R. Powell & Son of California.

The cornerstone was laid August 26, 1868, with General John W. Geary, Governor of Pennsylvania, making the principal address.

The chief promoter of the enterprise, Job Johnson, however, was not present, being too ill to attend. He died a month later.

The next winter found the brick walls up but no money for a roof. At the December meeting, the trustees sent Prof. Gilchrist and L. W. Morgan to Harrisburg to plead with the legislature, then in session, for more favorable financial consideration. The next year a bill was passed appropriating the sum of $15,000 to be paid in three annual installments.

In 1864-65 while Prof. Gilchrist was principal of the Brownsville schools and Prof. Osborne held the same position in the South Brownsville schools, the school in West Brownsville was under the direction of George Gans Hertzog, a teacher in Fayette County for eight years. Prof. Gilchrist and Mr. Osborne persuaded him to come to California and he entered as a student in 1866 and the next year was elected assistant to the principal of the college, Prof. Gilchrist.

In the fall of 1870, although the new building was not nearly completed and but sparsely furnished, the college was moved from the old Seminary building to its new location.

The move was saddened by the resignation of Prof. Gilchrist. He was paid $100 per month and out of this had to meet incidental expenses. Financial necessity caused the resignation. Prof. Gilchrist went to the principalship of the State Normal School at Fairmont, W. Va.

Until the election of Prof. Charles Ehrenfeld in 1871, the post of principal was filled by Prof. G. G. Hertzog.

With the appropriation of $15,000 exhausted, the trustees petitioned the legislature for permission to put a mortgage of $50,000 on the unfinished buildings, it to run for a period of 15 years. This request was granted and although the trustees offered 8 per cent on the mortgage only $16,000 could be raised.

That year looked hopeless. With the $15,000 appropriation gone, $1,000 mortgage on the buildings, a $10,000 floating debt and the buildings not completed, the future looked dark.

But Prof. Ehrenfeld was not daunted and he appeared before the Legislature in 1872 for a further appropriation of $10,000. The bill granting the appropriation was bitterly opposed and had it not been for work of Senator George B. Lawrence and Assemblyman Billingsley the bill would have failed.

With the money granted, the central building was completed and the North dormitory made ready for occupancy. The South dormitory was not completed until four years later.

The school finally graduated its first full class in 1875, several years after it had promised to graduate a class.

May 26, 1874, found state officials inspecting the grounds, buildings and equipment. They found everything satisfactory until they learned the accounts showed indebtedness of $25,000, $5,000 more than the statute limit.

The trustees hurriedly met and authorized the president of the board, John Dixon, to assume the surplus debt on behalf of the members of the board and the community.

With this action Dr. Wickersham, state superintendent of schools on behalf of Pennsylvania, officially recognized the college as the Southwestern State Normal school.

Prof. Ehrenfeld remained principal of the Normal until 1877. During this period his regime went through trying times not because of the difficulty of obtaining finances to function but because of the tie with the public school system in California. The latter arrangement, whereby taxes were paid to the Normal, proved a source of friction until its dissolution in 1913.

The stockholders of the school elected 21 local trustees, the state appointed six state trustees and the borough elected its own school board. The board, thus, was unwieldy and brought much trouble although the real trouble did not occur until after Prof. Ehrenfeld's departure, he being an excellent diplomat.

Prof. Ehrenfeld did much good work for the Normal when appearing before the legislature and his appearances had much to do with the growth of the entire Normal school system in the state.

Much credit for the continued existence of the California school can be attached to the generosity and love for the school held by John N. Dixon, a charter member of the board of trustees. Mr. Dixon lived on a farm just across the river and, at that time, he was considered quite wealthy. Often when the school was in financial straits, it was only the signature of Mr. Dixon and a sister that furnished the security for the board to obtain money upon which to operate. At one time the Dixons found all of their property mortgaged for the benefit of the school.

Mr. Dixon was elected president of the board in 1870 and in 1874, when it became a Normal school he was chosen president, remaining in that capacity until 1910, giving 40 years of unselfish service.

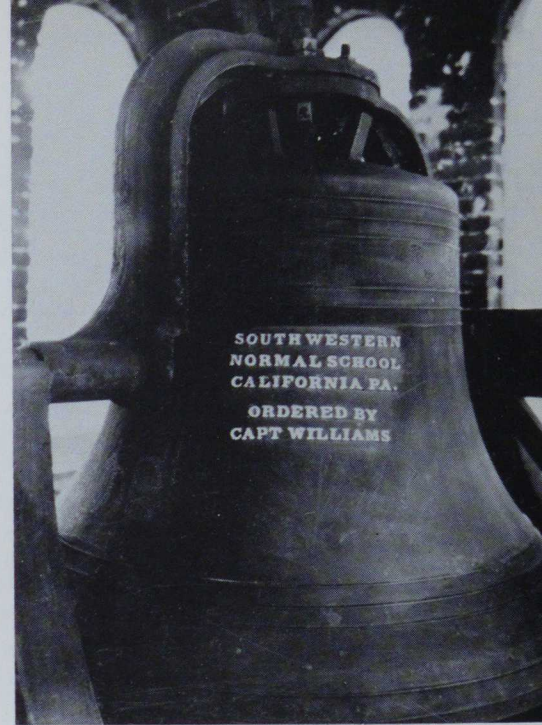

Upon his retirement at an advanced age, he was elected president emeritus and it was in his honor that Dixon Hall was named.

The first faculty of the Normal numbered 12 members and the senior class had two students. There were 36 juniors. The two seniors graduated on schedule but the next senior class dwindled to six from the original 36 juniors. One of the graduates in 1876 was Dr. J. B. Smith, who, the following year, became a member of the faculty and remained with the institution as teacher, vice principal and registrar until his death. The entire enrollment for 1874-75, exclusive of the model school, was 359.

The precarious financial position of the Normal school continued for a number of years. The state legislature appropriated money for the Normals but in several cases the appropriations were vetoed by the governors of the state.

When the California Normal debt had grown to $55,000 in 1877, Prof. Ehrenfeld submitted his resignation, he having been appointed financial secretary of the state department of public education. He later became state librarian.

On February 22, 1877, Prof. G. P. Beard was elected principal. He was to be paid $1,200 for the remainder of the school year and his salary thereafter was to be $1,500 annually. Prof. Beard was born in Vermont and, like Prof. Ehrenfeld, had been educated for the ministry. He had been principal of the Shippensburg Normal and came here from the Normal school at Warrensburg, Mo. In 1878 the enrollment was 502, with a graduating class of 22.

Prof. Beard's salary was increased to $1,680 and again to $1,800, he remaining at the institution until 1883.

It was during his administration that the P. V. and C. R. R. railroad ran its right-of-way through the Normal campus along the edge of the river.

Prof. Beard tendered his resignation in April, 1883, and at the April meeting, the trustees elected Prof. Theodore B. Noss as principal. The election was declared illegal and it was not until the July meeting that Dr. Noss actually became principal.

Dr. Noss was a native Pennsylvanian, born and reared in Juniata county. When he was 18 years of age, his family moved to the Shenandoah Valley and, after teaching a rural school in Maryland he entered Shippensburg Normal. Upon graduation, he was elected principal of the Shippensburg high school. He later taught at Dickinson Seminary and finally entered Syracuse University where he was graduated in 1879.

Prof. Beard had known Mr. Noss at Shippensburg and it was he who invited him to come to California, where he was finally named vice-principal at a salary of $50 a month and board. Dr. Noss, like his predecessors, was a minister, licensed to preach in the M. E. church.

Assuming his new duties, Dr. Noss found his first graduating class numbering 29 members, one of whom was Miss Anna Shutterly. She was a teacher in the model school for 1889-90 and later was elected librarian, a position she filled competently and efficiently for nearly 40 years.

The first summer session at the Normal was inaugurated in 1888.

The forerunner of the present industrial arts department came in 1889 with the election of a young woman from Sweden, Elin Essolius, as a teacher of sloyd. She had so much success with her work that it drew nation-wide attention and caused her to go to Pittsburgh schools, where she had been turned down before coming to California.

Dr. and Mrs. Noss visited Europe in 1889 and during his absence the Normal was conducted by Dr. J. B. Smith. Dr. Noss made another visit to Germany in 1893 and during the time he was away, Dr. Ehrenfeld was persuaded to come here from Wittenburg college, where he was teaching. He remained at the Normal school, after Dr. Noss's return, as vice-principal and teacher of Latin and Greek until the close of the school year in 1913. He died at York, Pa., January 31, 1914, at the age of 82.

The year 1894 was memorable in that the gymnasium was completed at a cost of $15,000. At that time, it was considered modern in every respect with a water system installed and shower baths for the athletes. Electricity was used for lighting.

It was in the same year that the "isthmuses" were constructed joining North and South Hall dormitories with the Main building. The arched entrances to the three main structures also were constructed during this year.

Another addition of interest during the year was the completion of a 10-foot bicycle track around the campus. This track was featured in catalogue advertising until 1903 and remained on the campus until 1930.

Front extensions on the two dormitories were built in 1897. The boiler room and laundry came as improvements in 1899.

The following year the school bought a plot of ground, 500 by 350 feet on the east of the campus and this was converted into an athletic field and surrounded by a high board fence.

The final improvement to be made before the Normal became the property of the state was Dixon Hall, housing the dining room, kitchen, class rooms in the basement and additional dormitory space for girls.

There was opposition to Dixon Hall since the Normal treasury was in the red to the extent of $139,500 in mortgages held by the state, $40,000 in bonds outstanding and unpaid bills of $50,000. Dixon Hall was started in 1906 and completed the next year.

About this time the board of trustees clashed once again over the right of the board to elect teachers for the Model school. With the finances at a low ebb and the school board threatening to withdraw its pupils and financial aid, the Normal trustees gave in and the school board elected teachers, ending a dispute of three decades.

Dr. Noss died in Chicago, February 28, 1909. Public memorial services were held in the Normal chapel March 2 and were said to be the largest and most impressive ever staged there.

William Jennings Bryan, who once lectured at the Normal, was in California at the time on a lecture and took part in the services.

In his eulogy, Bryan said:

"We mortals are prone to measure a man by what he gets out of this world, but God measures a man by what he puts into the world. I would rather leave behind me the memory that Dr. Noss leaves than any monument measured by money. Prof. Noss builded day by day a monument which will outlast any monument of crumbling granite and his influence, like influence of all who develop the welfare of "his" fellowmen, shall be eternal."

On March 2, the trustees appointed John D. Meese, a teacher in the school for 18 years, acting principal until the time of the regular election July 1. On this date Dr. H. B. Davis was elected Dr. Noss' successor. He remained in that capacity until the close of the school year in 1912.

At this election the stockholders elected three state trustees.

The voting showed the following results: L. W. Morgan 67, Joseph A. Herron 67, Capt. J. K. Billingsley 67, C. A. Dorsey 5, James Curren 5, and Charles L. Snowdon 0. But at the next meeting those presenting state credentials were Herron, Billingsley and Snowdon.

At this meeting there was also prepared by Senator W. E. Crow, a member of the board, Hon. Frank Craven, business manager of the school, and Dr. Davis, a bill requesting an appropriation of $130,000 from the state to liquidate debts, to make needed repairs, for the erection of a recitation hall and to buy additional ground for the campus.

The financial report of 1911 shows the state appropriated merely $10,000.

In 1910, the legislature passed the New School Code, one article of which provided for the purchase of the Normal Schools by the state and in July 1911, the board formally decided to make the necessary preparations for this transfer, they being assured, if this were done, California would be the first school to be taken over. The board knew if the state did not buy the school or increase the appropriation that it must cease to function. Liabilities were over a quarter of a million dollars with paper assets of $400,000.

Meanwhile the borough school board was making preparations to build a school on the site of the old Academy and after June, 1913, would no longer pay its tuition into the Normal school. Expenses were reduced by eliminating the departments of physical culture and commercial training.

Dr. Davis submitted his resignation, he having been elected to a similar position with the Pittsburgh Training School for Teachers. On July 17, 1912, Prof. Walter Scott Hertzog, son of Prof. G. G. Hertzog, became principal. His inauguration the following October 12 was one of the high spots in the history of the school. Governor John K. Tener was guest of honor. Prof. Hertzog was an alumnus of the school, having graduated with the class of 1891. After teaching in Washington county for two years he was graduated from Hiram college in 1897. He was a critic teacher at the Normal for a short time, served as principal of the Beaver Falls high school and from 1901-1902 went to Europe where he studied at Leipsic university. He went to Bethany college as an instructor for a year and returned to California, serving as mathematics instructor for five years. From 1907 to 1912 he was high school inspector for the state department of public instruction. He was principal of the Normal until 1919.

The state legislature appropriated $400,000 for the purchase of the Normal in 1913 and in 1914 the Normal school became a state institution, the stockholders getting $2,500 for their interest. Formal transfer was completed May 7, 1914, and on October 20 of the same year the stockholders met for the last time to petition the court of common pleas of Washington county for dissolution.

Prof. Hertzog was succeeded by Dr. John A. Entez, an instructor in mathematics at the Normal. He occupied the post until the election of Dr. Robert M. Steele in 1926, president of the school through its transition from a Normal School to a State Teachers College to the present time.

In 1928 the Normal school formally became California State Teachers College. The change made high school education mandatory for entrance where heretofore entrance could be made from the eighth grade.

As a college, instruction was given for two years for those working for a state standard limited teaching certificate. Four year courses are available for those desiring degrees in education.

Since Dr. Steele's administration began, the campus has been enlarged; Noss Demonstration school and Herron Hall gymnasium and physical education building, new boiler and laundry buildings, have been erected.

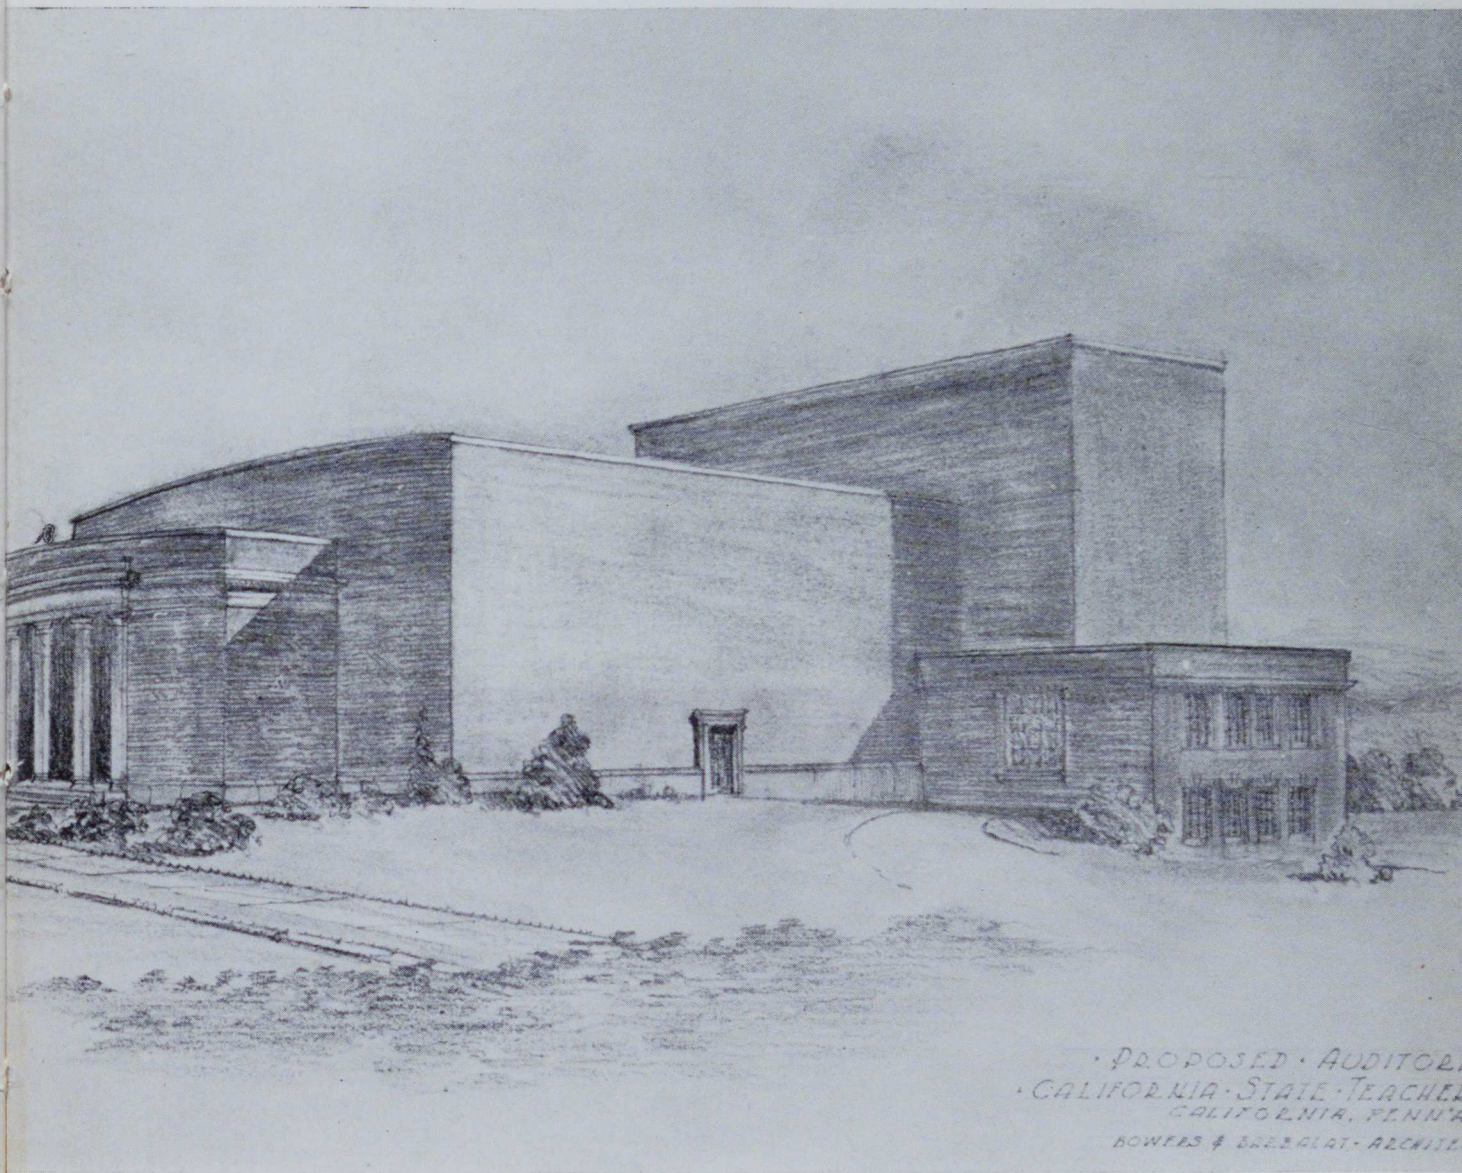

Institution of an industrial arts curriculum added much to the college in recent years, and filled a need that this industrial section of Pennsylvania has felt for years.

An addition to Herron Hall, including a swimming pool, the new Industrial Arts Building and a new heating plant have enlarged the college. Purchase of the Rothwell property added a 7-acre tract for an athletic field. A college-controlled student enterprise, known as the Lilley Recreational Center, was added with the purchase of an 82 acre farm two miles from the college.

EDITOR'S ADDITION

In the years which have passed since this history was written, many additional improvements have graced our campus. In the fall of 1950, a new boys' dormitory was started at the lower end of Hickory Street, adjacent to the athletic field. Now, in the spring of 1952, the dormitory is almost completed. Also, in the fall of 1951, a new auditorium (see sketch opposite) on Third Street, across from the tennis courts, was under construction. When materials become more plentiful, this building will also become a reality. CALIFORNIA, from the past and on through to the present time, is ever growing and becoming a greater source of pride to its students, its graduates, the surrounding community, and the state of Pennsylvania.

This is a sketch of the proposed auditorium of the College, the building of which is now in progress.

FOREWORD

One hundred years have elapsed since the seeds of our institution here at California first took root. You, the students, are a small part of the endless chain of people who have nurtured them and who have stimulated their growth. Let us reflect for a moment upon the California of the past. True, the buildings and the people have changed somewhat, the curriculum has been altered and expanded, but the inherent characteristics and goals of the institution have remained unchanged. The seed of friendliness which is the distinctive trait of our campus has not only survived, but also has bloomed forth with renewed vitality each year. The tree of knowledge which is before you continues to spread new branches of loyalty, devotion, and spiritual and moral growth. You need only to reach forward and pluck their fruits.

For some of you, your years here at the State Teachers College at California are approaching their termination. For others, these years have only begun. In either case, I wish you sincere good luck. The road to success is long and difficult; its path is hewn with briars of disappointment. Yet you, too, as our college has done, can overcome these obstacles to see a brighter tomorrow—a tomorrow better than yesterday or today.

life story of a college cannot be told in a paragraph. It is best told in the lives of the men and women who have made it and whose lives have been influenced by it. One hundred years ago—eight years before the war between the states—California State Teachers College began as a small, insignificant academy. The setting was in a pioneer community. It came to be out of the faith of hardy pioneers whose reliance was placed in the axe, the plow and the rifle, and the spring of whose strength was a faith in God and in the country they set out to build.

It was logical therefore that the school and the church should be their first concerns.

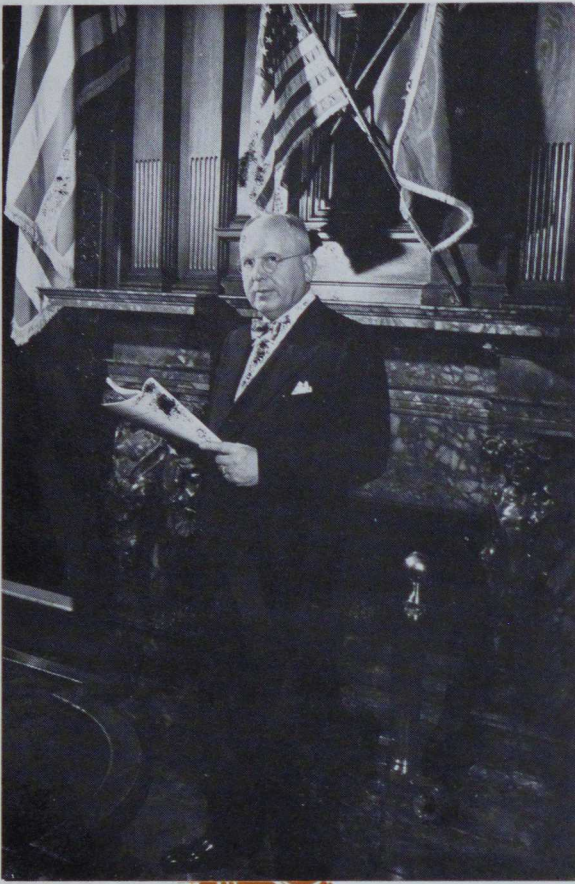

From that obscure and simple beginning in 1852 California has grown slowly and steadily to the California of 1952 with its attractive campus and stately buildings. It has grown from a small playground to a forty acre campus—from a log cabin to twenty-one buildings. Recognition and accreditation of its courses have been attained on a state and national scope.

But these are merely the physical manifestations of its attainment. Nineteen fifty-two marks one hundred years of service—a century of devotion to a fixed purpose—the improvement of instruction in the public schools through improved and increased education and preparation of teachers. To read the entire story of this century of service one would trace the story of hundreds of devoted trustees and faculty members who served with consecration the eight thousand graduates and more than twenty thousand nongraduates who passed through its classrooms and laboratories. Multiply these by the countless thousands of children touched by California whose lives were enriched and inspired through contact with California's students. The sum total—if it could be computed—would give the real picture of California at the end of its century of service.

California's past was glorious. With one hundred years of service as a background, with its modern plant, its adequate physical facilities, a competent devoted faculty and a loyal student body California faces the future with confidence.

"The best is yet to be."

PAUL N. WALKER

Dean of Instruction

Mr. Paul N. Walker, Dean of Instruction, is the head of the Faculty. He received his Bachelor of Science degree at Bucknell University, and his Master of Science degree at the University of Pittsburgh. Student curriculum guidance and preparation of time schedules of classes are two of his many functions.

CYNTHIA E. BENZING

Dean of Women

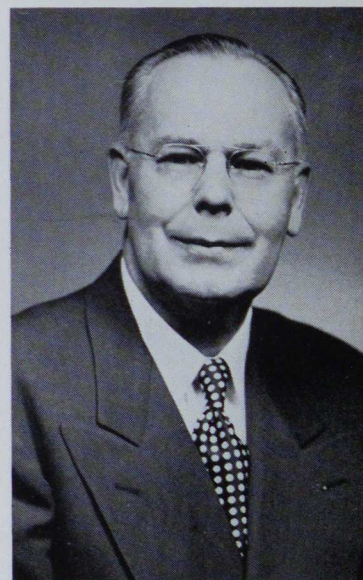

Miss Cynthia E. Benzing was graduated with an A. B. degree from Lebanon Valley College, after which she received her M. A. from Columbia University. She is the sponsor of the Women's Dormitory Council and of the Traveling Women's Council. Together with the Dean of Men, she directs all social functions on campus.

FRANK W. LENOX

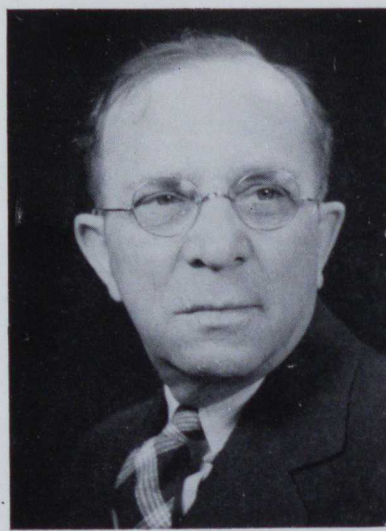

Dean of Men

Mr. Frank W. Lenox, Dean of Men, received his A. B. at Westminster College, and his M. A. at the Pennsylvania State College. One of his functions is that of directing freshman orientation classes. He is the sponsor of the Men's Dormitory Council and of the Traveling Men's Council.

THE SENIOR CLASS

The graduating seniors will look back on the four years spent at California as among the most worthwhile and meaningful years of their lives. In this brief period, they have attained maturity and have prepared for their life work, teaching. This has been a busy, and often hectic period. Extra-curricular activities have added to their all-round experience, and the friendships they have made have enriched their personalities. Among the long remembered events which took place during their college days, they will no doubt recall the concerts, the convention, the Minstrel Shows, the operettas, the banquets, the parties, the plays, the ball games, the pep rallies, the Play Days, the fun in either the dormitory or the traveling room, the pride in the new Vulcan Hall and the activities which took place there, the dances, the bridge games in the Snack Bar, the noon-time dancing in the Provincial Room, and innumerable other events, all of which were culminated with the Senior Ball and the wonderful Commencement activities.

And yet, these seniors have not completed their educations, for, as members of a great profession, they have realized that learning is a continuous growth, a reaching upward toward the best that man can achieve, and above all, that a final education is never completely reached. Perhaps the best knowledge they have is that as teachers, they will have a vital part in directing the continuous growth of learning in boys and girls whom they will teach. This has been their goal; now they have achieved it.

THE JUNIOR CLASS

When, in the fall of 1949, the State Teachers College at California first opened its doors to this Junior Class, its enrollment was over one thousand. Today, that enrollment has decreased to less than five hundred fifty. And yet, although their numbers have diminished, these students continue to strive toward their ultimate various destinations.

This Junior Class sponsored in February, 1950, its first dance, the Baby Bounce. In November of the same year plans were efficiently undertaken and carried out to sponsor the Dragon Dance, their first semi-formal. In December, 1951, the Junior Prom, the feature event of this class for the 1951-52 school term, was held. Its theme was Winter Carnival, and it featured Frankie Barr and his orchestra.

The college events which are yet before them are few, but the challenges of life itself are many. Perhaps even more of their number shall fall along the wayside before Graduation Day, but their experiences on our campus shall live forever.

The members of the class of 1954, which is nearing the completion of its second year at California, are quite confident that they can uphold the precedent set by their predecessors. They realize that they have chosen an honorable profession in teaching and affirm that they will faithfully perform the duties expected of them.

They are well represented in all the areas of the teaching field—secondary, elementary, and Industrial Arts—and have thus far proved themselves to be a worthy group.

Socially, this group of prospective teachers has been quite active. Their main function of the year was their "Touchdown Ball" which was held on November 16, 1951. Music was furnished by Johnny Vass and his orchestra. By their whole-hearted participation in all school functions, this group has proved that a spirit of cooperation prevails within their class. They can look forward to a successful junior year when they can take an even greater part in the educational, social, and governmental functions of the college.

THE FRESHMAN CLASS

When California State Teachers College first opened its doors, a small group of Freshmen anxiously sought the proper procedure to register. They "in their buttons and bows" were just as confused as our vivacious, highly imaginative Freshmen were on their September 1951 registration day. The gentle mannered Freshmen had to adapt themselves to the strange customs and rules of a new school. Traditional customs and rules have grown in number along with the enrollment; so accordingly has the bewilderment of the Freshmen. However, our Freshmen have with high spirited good nature adopted the Alma Mater as their own. Most of the Freshmen are participating in the campus activities, and are putting into use their many and varied talents for the betterment of our school. How soon this class became a part of college life can be seen by the social events occurring during the school year. In a spirit of friendliness the Freshmen brought a note of gaiety to the Vulcan campus when on February 23, 1952, they held a Mardi Gras Dance—the biggest event of their school year. Not only have they shown their social prowess but many of the Freshmen names have graced the scholastic honor roll. They have been an energetic, intelligent group, intensely loyal, and intensely aggressive. Now the 1951 Freshmen look to the laurels of yesterday's Freshmen and are being grateful for the heritage handed down to them since they know that tomorrow they will be the strength of the school. In the spirit of perseverance and accomplishment the Freshmen will face the ever increasing difficulties that are bound to come up. Yet through all the academic and social interests the Freshmen will long remember the associations of the students, the faculty, and our college.

WOMEN'S GLEE CLUB

It has been said that at times when a girl can no longer express herself in words she must sing to show her joy. This must be the case with the members of the Women's Glee Club, who love to sing and have moderate reading ability. This group is responsible for planning and presenting such assembly programs as "Letters to Mary" and the Wind-Up", both original presentations. The girls practice diligently to perfect their chosen language—music.

MEN'S GLEE CLUB

The Men's Glee Club is composed of men who enjoy singing and have the ability to read music of medium difficulty. Two highlights of this year's program of activities were the Alumni Reunion dinner-dance held in March, and the successful presentation of Gilbert and Sullivan's musical comedy, "Trial By Jury." Mrs. Frank Donovan was the pianist for the group this season.

MIXED CHORUS

Any member of either the Men's or the Women's Glee Clubs may become a member of the Mixed Chorus, as well as any student who is accepted for this group by tryout. This ambitious body of men and women practice weekly to achieve the art of effective song interpretation and of effective group singing. Upon invitation this group will present concerts for organizations in surrounding communities. A highly successful Christmas assembly and other programs were presented this year for the student body.

GEOGRAPHY CLUB

The Geography Club was first organized in 1928 by Mr. G. E. Harding, who is still its sponsor. Many different kinds of programs have been given. During the past year the Club has been using colored films of different states, thereby giving the members a more intimate acquaintance with new areas. The number of members in the Club and the regular attendance attest the interest in the meetings. A few of the students have been active members for four years. Each club member has an opportunity to have some part in planning the regular meetings throughout the college year.

CHEMISTRY CLUB

The Chemistry Club has done much to enhance the science department of our campus. Although this club is the youngest of our organizations, it is the largest single group in the science department. It concerns itself with the collection and review of visual aid materials and the extension of the facilities of the chemistry department.

YMCA and YWCA

The "Y" is composed of two groups—one which meets on Wednesday at noon and the other which meets on Wednesday evening. This enables both traveling and dormitory students to enjoy the opportunities which this group offers, such as spiritual, cultural, and intellectual growth. The "Y" is non-sectarian in nature, striving to promote a Christian homelike atmosphere through its program of weekly discussions, service projects, studies, and parties.

SKETCH CLUB

The College Sketch Club was one of the first organizations formed on our campus. It was organized to give students who are interested in art an opportunity to practice with some art medium, such as: pencil, charcoal, pastel, water color, oil paint, or clay. Each year the club exhibits work done by its members under the sponsorship of Miss Betsy M. Hazen.

COLLEGE PLAYERS

"The play is the thing," said Shakespeare, and the members of College Players are true advocates of this philosophy. The group presents one major production each semester, plus many one-act plays and programs of various sorts throughout the year. "Two Blind Mice" and "Juno and the Paycock" were the two large productions, under the excellent direction of Mrs. Virginia W. Crandall. An Open House for local high school students is a feature of the first semester, at which time several one-act plays are presented.

THE DEBATE CLUB

The debate question for the year was:

Resolved: That the Federal Government should establish permanent wage and price controls.

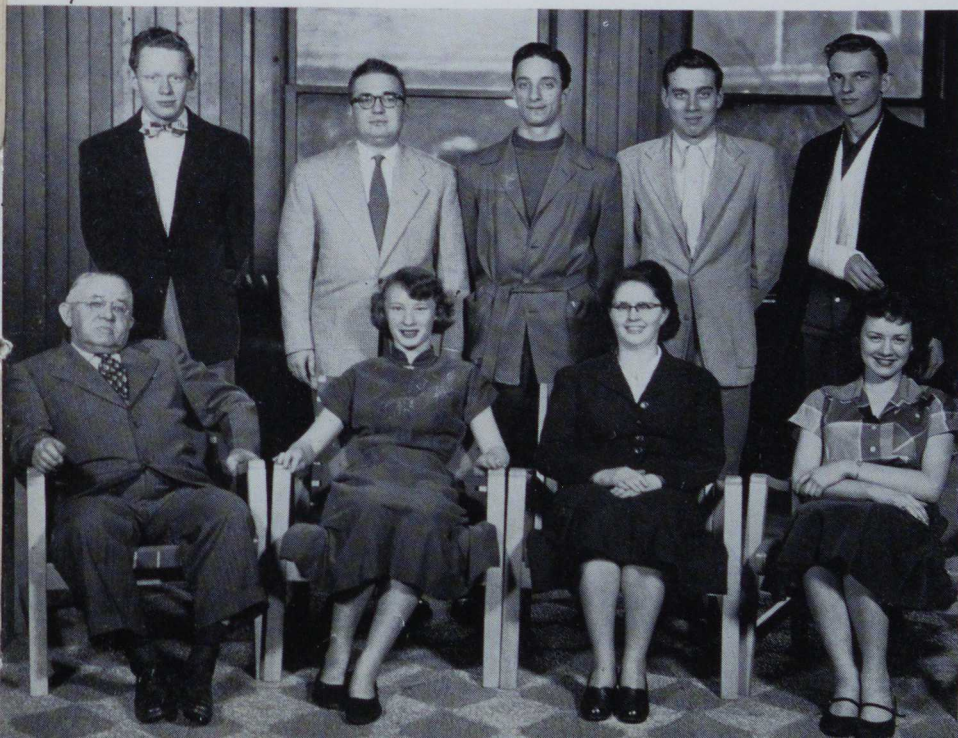

This organization, one of the oldest on campus schedules debates with other college groups on a home and visiting basis. The meetings, which are held weekly, are used primarily to organize material for the debate tournaments.

DISCUSSION CLUB

The members of the Discussion Club meet weekly to discuss current problems which confront the American citizen today. Guest speakers are often invited to give lectures to the group.

The social events of the organization are their annual spring banquet and their dance which is co-sponsored by the Veterans' Club.

The primary purpose of the club is to provide an opportunity for the students to discuss both local and national problems of importance. The delegates to the International Conference on Government are given the necessary background and training which they will need at the regular meetings of the club.

VETERANS' CLUB

The Veterans' Club, an outgrowth of World War II, is one of the younger organizations on campus. Anyone who has been honorably discharged from the Armed Forces on or after September, 1940, is qualified to belong.

This year, in cooperation with the Discussion Club, the Veterans sponsored the Blood Bank Drive conducted among California students. Any problem that may arise concerning veteran laws and benefits are taken to the service officer of the Veterans' Administration who meets periodically with the members of the group.

RIFLE CLUB

The Rifle Club emphasizes competency in small bore target shooting. Members of this group conduct competitive matches with each other and also send organized teams to compete with similar teams from neighboring colleges. These teams consist of eight men who are trained under the direction of a skilled range officer.

Good sportsmanship as well as efficiency in handling a rifle is the goal of all the members of the organization.

STUDENT CONGRESS

Student Congress is the legislative branch of the Student Activities Association. The principal function of Congress is to allocate funds from the Student Activities fund to the various recognized organizations on campus. Each extra-curricular organization whose constitution has been submitted to and approved by Student Congress is entitled to one representative to Congress. In addition, each of the four classes is entitled to representatives to Congress, one additional representative being chosen each year beginning with the freshman year. The president of the Student Activities Association, a faculty member ex-officio, and a member of the administration ex-officio complete the membership roll.

STUDENT CABINET

To Student Cabinet is delegated the task of preparing problems of a detailed nature for consideration in Student Congress. Reports and recommendations on the problems of various organizations and on the allocation of funds are prepared by Student Cabinet and are submitted to Congress for approval. No decision of cabinet is official until it is approved by Congress.

MARRIED COUPLES CLUB

The Married Couples Club was organized on the California campus three years ago. Its purpose is to provide fellowship and social diversion for its members. Any married student and his wife are eligible for membership. Each month the club sponsors one business and one social meeting.

STUDENT ACTIVITIES ASSOCIATION

All regularly enrolled students who carry ten or more credits are members of the Student Activities Association. Its officers are elected by a vote of the entire student body. Its president is a member of Student Congress, and it is his duty to arrange for collection of tickets at all college functions. He may call assemblies at his discretion, should a problem of general concern to the student body arise. The bursar is the treasurer of the organization, and through her all allocated funds are distributed.

WOMEN'S ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

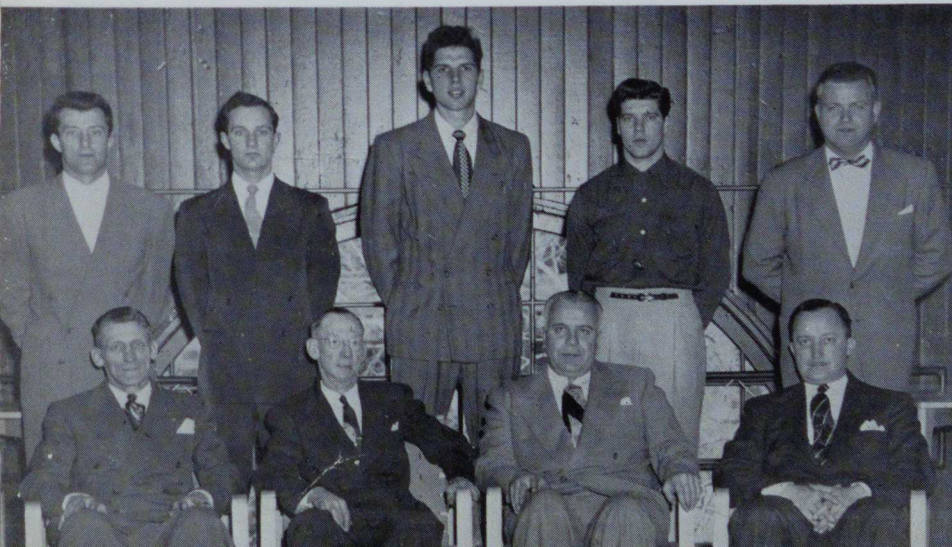

The Women's Athletic Association is the one group on campus which is open to all college women. Regardless of the activity in which a girl is interested, she should be able to find a place in the varied sports which are sponsored by this group, which include bowling, mushball, rifle practice, volley ball, basketball, and tennis.

The two major activities of the group are the two Play Days which are held in the second semester; one for the surrounding high school students and one for the neighboring college women. In these affairs, which are culminated with banquets in the Georgian Dining Room, the group fosters wholesome relationships among the college women of the area, as well as promoting the friendliness of our campus to prospective California students.

ATHLETIC COUNCIL

The athletic council is an advisory board charged with the responsibility of coordinating the athletic activities of the student body. The personnel consists of four faculty representatives, one member from the Board of Trustees of the college, and six student representatives chosen by the Student Congress. Regular meetings of the Council are held each week during the year for the purpose of expediting all matters relating to athletic policy and program referred to it for consideration and action.

WOMEN'S DORMITORY COUNCIL

Under the friendly guidance of Miss Cynthia Benzing, the Women's Dormitory Council is among the most effective organizations of our campus. The officers are elected by the resident women, who in turn are the administrators of dormitory customs, rules and regulations. As for their social life, they have had a party for the Traveling Women, a Christmas Spirit party, and a joint dinner with the Traveling Women.

MEN'S DORMITORY COUNCIL

Under the able guidance of Mr. Frank Lenox, sixteen officers, two from each unit, are elected by resident men for one year. In each unit there is a student counselor in charge of study aids for his group. Along with the social and academic interests of resident men, plans include parties, dances, and picnics.

TRAVELING WOMEN AND MEN'S COUNCILS

These two groups are each composed of a president, a vice president, and a secretary-treasurer, plus a representative from each of the four classes. These organizations form the regulations for both traveling rooms and also plan the activities for our large group of traveling students.

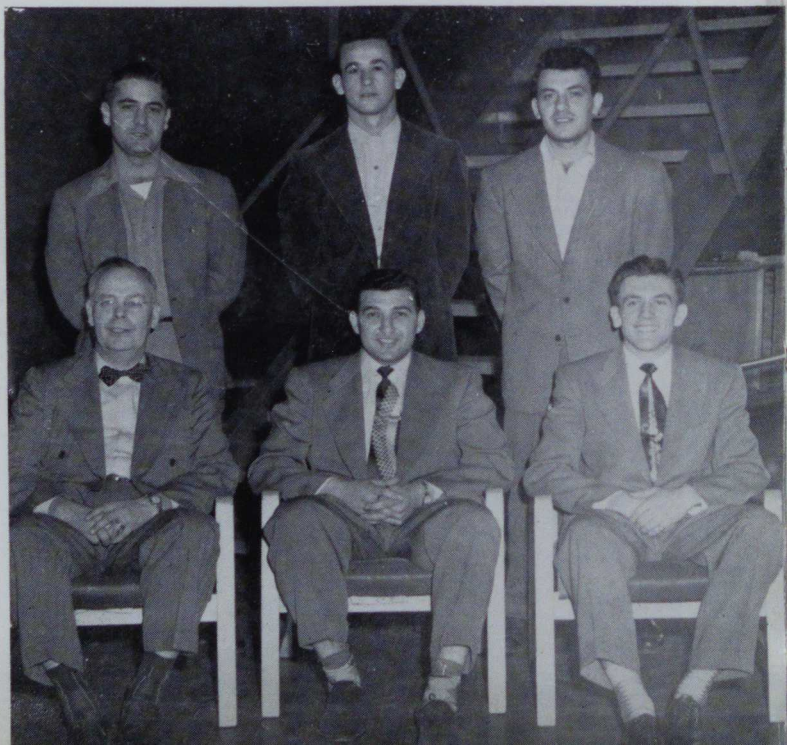

An innovation which occurred this year was the practice of sponsoring activities jointly for both men and women. The first endeavor of this type was in the form of a Traveling Party in Vulcan Hall, which was held through two activity periods and the lunch hour. Other functions were in the process of being organized.

A highlight in the events for the Traveling Women was the Saint Patrick's Day banquet which was held in conjunction with the Dormitory Women.

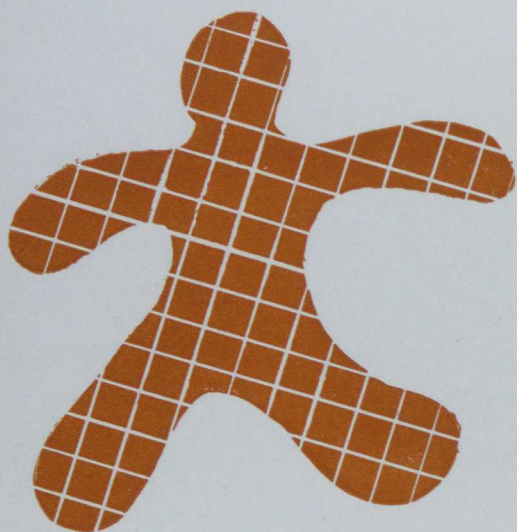

It is the purpose and aim of these groups to provide the best possible conditions in the traveling rooms, a friendly atmosphere among all traveling students, and a good relationship with the fellow dormitory students.

FOOTBALL

In 1951 California students saw head coach Mr. Theodore Nemeth, with the able assistance of Mr. Andrew Sepsi and Mr. Eugene Hester, bring forth one of the best football teams in the history of our school. Inasmuch as we have stressed the historical review of our school, it is most fitting to note that this year our Vulcan team accomplished that which never before had been known to a California squad. On December 8, 1951, the team participated in a post season game in the annual Pythian Bowl competition, and they set a standard of courage and sportsmanship which will remain in the history of our school.

Special honors were attained by several California players this season. Two—Elmo Natali and Mitchell Bailey—were selected to the first team of the State Teachers College squad. Honorable mentions were also given to Fred Fleming, John Polak, Roy Mains, Andy Kuzemka, and Less Nagg. For its superb work this fine team will long remain in the memory of California students.

Dr. Downey,
Team Physician

BASKETBALL

California's basketball team began its 1951-1952 season with a victory over Waynesburg, and concluded it with a victory over Indiana. Its record for the season was nine wins and nine losses. Of special interest was the naming of Don O'Hara, Jim Kennedy, and George Zemo on the honorable mention list of the State Teachers College team. To this team, we say heartily—well done.

TENNIS

Dr. I. C. Keller, able tennis coach of the California team predicted earlier this season that "he who expecteth little is never disappointed." The reason for this pessimism was due to the fact that only one veteran player, Earl Karasak, was returning to the team. He faced the problems of reorganizing a winning team with new material. Since two victories have already been won, it seems evident that he has accomplished his task.

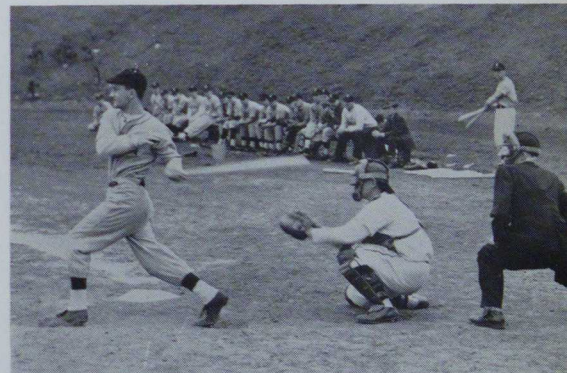

First row: J. Bartosh, J. Askins, J. Kovalchick, M. Bailey, W. Danko, R. Zeleznock, F. King, J. Young
Second row: F. Fleming, F. Herron, A. Cianciotta, W. Davis, M. Margetan, J. Yoder, G. Novak, R. Mains
Third row: R. Sabo, J. Polak, C. Hrabos, D. Smith, B. Quay

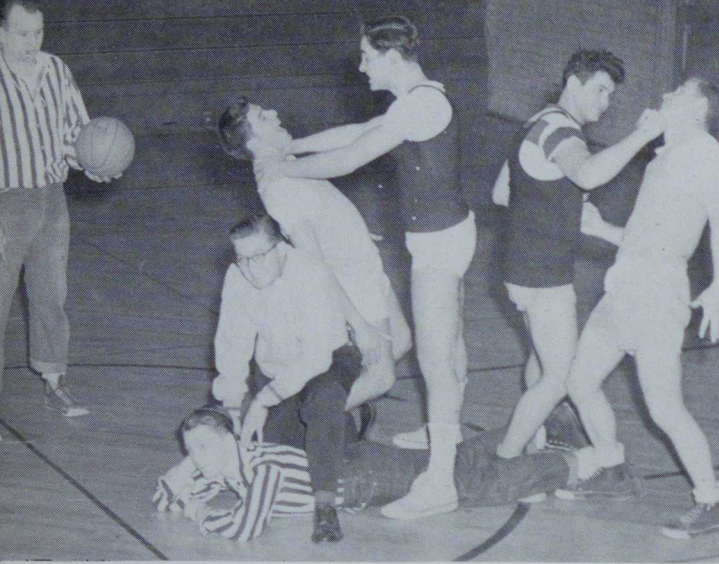

BASEBALL

The Vulcan baseball team began its season with an exciting 13-12 victory over West Liberty. Thus far the team has been somewhat handicapped by its unsteady pitching and fielding, but there is much promise that the team will be victorious in at least the majority of its games.

INTRAMURALS

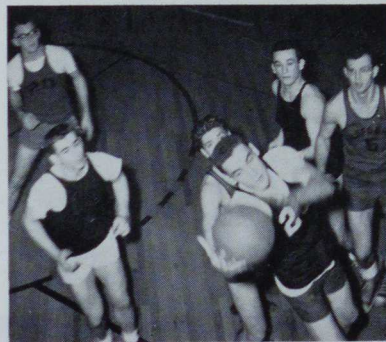

The intramural events at California provide a spirit of friendly competition for its students. The goal of those who vie in the varied array of competitive events—swimming, basketball, volleyball, and so forth—is the coveted intramural "Champ" award. These activities do much to stimulate a healthy athletic recreation for California students.

WOMEN'S ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

The Women's Athletic Association is one of the most active organizations on our campus. On March 15 of this year it sponsored its annual College Playday, the theme of which was the Ides of March. On May 10, it sponsored a high school playday for visiting high schools in the area. The organization also sent delegates to various other college playdays of the district.

SPECIAL MENTION

It is not a customary policy of the MONOCAL staff to confer any special honor upon any particular individual, but in this edition, the staff unanimously agreed that we must give a special mention to our photographer, TOM WRITT. Not only did he take the greater portion of the group organization photos, but he also is wholly responsible for all the college life photos, many of the campus shots, the composite athletic pages, the composite dedication page, and the full page picture of Dr. Steele. Unless a person is very familiar with photography, he cannot begin to realize the time and effort which must be exerted in order to produce desirable results. We realize the time and energy which Mr. Writt has spent for this book, and we most heartily commend the efficiency with which he met all stated deadlines. This to us is vital. Because we feel that this book as it is would have been impossible without the excellent work of Tom Writt, we wish to hereby thank him and commend him for a job more than well done.
