Manderino Library Evacuated When Fire Breaks Out in Electrical Coils in Mechanical Room

Members of the Roscoe Fire Department joined California firemen Monday when melted electrical coils on a boiler in the mechanical room of Manderino Library caused a small fire. Although the fire caused a power loss in the building, no serious damage occurred. Photograph by Mary Hushack.

Fire departments from California and Roscoe responded Monday to a fire in the basement of Manderino Library. The fire was caused by melted electrical coils on a boiler in the mechanical room.

William Beck, Dean of Library Services said there should be no long-term effects for students using the library. "It will be repaired before the cold weather gets here."

Power in the building went out about 4:20 p.m. and many students were caught inside. Marsha Nolf, Bibliography Instructor, helped students evacuate the building.

"I was up on the third floor and the alarm went off," Nolf said. "We were scared someone was on the elevators."

Nolf said there were no problems in getting people out and there were no students trapped in the elevators. "People were pretty calm about the whole thing."

Beck added the library opened one hour later with no difficulty.

Although firetrucks blocked University Avenue, California firefighters said there were no problems with traffic during the inci-

Beck said the boiler will need to be repaired but had no estimate on what the repairs would cost.

APSCUF Takes Strike Vote

by Jim Black

The Association of Pennsylvania State College and University Faculties voted Sept. 18 and 19 to authorize a strike against the State System of Higher Education.

The 5,000 union members, including 272 at California University, authorized the strike by a 91 percent majority.

Negotiations between APSCUF and SSHE resumed Wednesday in Harrisburg. No further information was available at press time.

The authorization does not mean that faculty will be walking off their jobs, but it gives APSCUF's negotiating team the right to call for a strike if it feels it is neces-

APSCUF and SSHE have disagreed on a number of issues including a limitation on the number of teaching associates, lengthening of teacher probation periods, limitations on temporary faculty, implementation of new teaching technology and an increase in salary.

SSHE has maintained that the current salary offer to faculty is equal to or above the national average for similar institutions.

APSCUF president, James Tinsman said negotiations between his union and SSHE have improved. "Our teams have been discussing a number of issues," Tinsman said. There has been progress and it certainly is a positive movement."

Scott Shewell, spokesman for the Office of the Chancellor, said, "The results of the strike were not unexpected. They do not place any additional pressure on negotia-

Shewell said there is no information on possible student tuition refunds in the event of a strike. "It's too early to tell about student refunds but we certainly hope we will reach an agreement."

Shewell restated the objective of SSHE is to offer students quality education at affordable costs. "The Board of Governors still believes in keeping student tuition as low as possible," Shewell said.

Tinsman said APSCUF has argued in favor of continuing education. "Our position is that a full semester should be taught with students getting a full education and teachers getting full pay," he said.

APSCUF held a buffet lunch in Harrisburg on Monday to provide information for representatives of the 14 state-owned schools. Tinsman addressed the group for 45 minutes and answered questions from the audience for two hours.

APSCUF will hold a legislative meeting on Thursday, Oct. 6 to review the proceedings of the negotiations to date.

Tinsman said the fact that both sides have been moving on negotiations, has delayed any mention of a strike date.

Cal U Awarded Consortium Grant

by Cherie Hoinkes California University has been awarded a two-year federal grant of $34,446 from the U.S. Department of Education to develop and establish a Southwestern Pennsylvania Drug/Alcohol Education and Prevention Consortium.

The consortium consists of drug/ alcohol professionals from eight rural institutions of higher education meeting throughout the year to share ideas and information that promotes awareness and prevention of drug and alcohol abuse.

The program consists of seven workshops and two problemsolving sessions to be held each year to meet the needs of the professionals from each of the institu-

It was the success of the CHOIC-ES program that helped California University to emerge as the natural leader for the consortium and its programming.

The eight institutions benefiting from the consortium include California University, Seton Hill College, St. Vincent College, Waynesburg College, Washington and Jefferson College, University of Pittsburgh at Greensburg, Penn State at Fayette, and Westmoreland County Community College.

ROTC Proposal Pending

California University's ROTC is patiently awaiting word on the status of its future from Fort Bragg, N.C.. Approximately a week and a half ago, CU President Dr. John other matters to worry about," he Pierce Watkins sent a proposal to ROTC command to keep the current program at CU.

The proposal would replace the current two or three-year scholarships with four-year scholarships in an attempt to increase recruiting. The CU ROTC contingent is also looking at three other institutions, undisclosed at this time, to serve as host for its program.

We're hoping to hear something within the next couple of weeks from them (command headquarters)," said Captain Stephen Roberts, officer in charge of the ROTC program at CU.

President Watkins is hopeful that the new proposal will be accepted and the program reinstated in Janu- 18th Airborne Corps.

In an effort to cut back on costs and size, the Army decided to close the ROTC program at Washington and Jefferson College, which served as a host school to the CU program. The CU Council of Trustees later voted to disband the program at CU.

However, the CU ROTC will remain active until current juniors have graduated. After this time, officers working for the program will be transferred to another college or other military duties.

Blacks against Blacks in South Africa

Hostilities in South Africa have worsened in the past few months. ugh whites are their traditional enemy, blacks kill more blacks

The reasons for the killing are primarily issues of tribalism and potential for political and economic power. The aggressors have usually been the Zulus, the largest of the ten tribes recognized by the South African government. Numbering nearly seven million, Zulus have attacked communities made up of primarily Xhosas, the second largest tribe of six million people.

The government has used this classification system to keep blacks divided and politically weak, enabling the white minority to rule.

More than 4,000 deaths have occurred in Natal, a province on the eastern seacoast, in the past three years, and the killing has spread to the capital, Johannesburg. More than 500 people died there in a span of less than a week last month. The death toll in Johannesburg now stands at 700. A few weeks ago, two armed gangs of black, Zulu-speaking youths boarded a Johannesburg train and murdered more than 20 passengers and wounded more than 100.

The two groups competing for South African black leadership are the African National Congress, led by Nelson Mandela, and the Zulubased Inkatha, led by Mangosuthu Gatsha Buthelezi. Mandela has ignored the Zulu leader and has refused to meet with him to make an attempt at stopping the violence. The two leaders are blaming each other for the unrest, and both have blamed the government.

South African president Frederik de Klerk and Mandela have held negotiations to end the violence and apartheid and form a new government in which blacks could hold a share of power. President de Klerk recently visited President Bush to discuss sanctions against South Africa. While more than 200 anti-apartheid protesters demonstrated, the White House acknowledged de Klerk's legalization of political parties, his release of political prisoners and his negotiations with Mandela.

The South African government recently issued a curfew in black townships in an attempt to curb the violence that has killed 800 since August. Many, like Mandela, have criticized this idea and some have even chosen to ignore it. A radical group known as the South African Youth Congress has urged blacks to ignore the curfew, which could lead to further violence with police.

After spending 27 years in prison, Mandela embarked on a ten-day tour of the U.S. last summer and received rousing ovations from the American public. But Mandela may not be all he seems. Rumors of Mandela's treatment of black opposition have made skeptics out of many. Mandela reportedly bound opposition members in tires and proceeded to have the tires burned.

Mandela's wife, Winnie was ordered Monday to stand trial along with seven former associates on charges of kidnapping and assaulting four young men in December 1988.

The only way blacks in South Africa will ever meet their goal of equal representation in the white-minority government will be to unite under one leader and end the bloodshed among their ranks. But they will need cooperation from the existing government, not further persecution. If blacks do unite and apartheid is dissolved, blacks will surely achieve a well-deserved equal representation in a new South African government, something that should have occurred a long time ago.

Honor for his actions on December 23 and 24, 1944, near Bennwihr, France, while serving with Company K, 15th Inf, 3rd Infantry Division.

SSG Kefurt's unit was attacking the Germans holding the town of Bennwihr when it ran into very stiff resistance. SSG Kefurt then moved to the front in order to properly lead the assault. He jumped through an opening in a wall and found 15 Germans on the other side. He reacted quickly and opened fire, killing 10 and capturing the rest.

When night fell, he maintained a three-man outpost in the center of town in the middle of the German defensive positions. He spent the entire night there, and fought off numerous German attempts to eliminate the

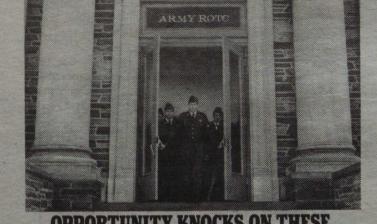

He then assumed command of the platoon the following morning and led it in hand-to-hand fighting through the town. As the platoon pushed forward, its advance was stopped by a German tank. SSG Kefurt again moved forward and knocked out the tank with rifle grenades.

As it resumed the advance, the platoon was cut off by a German counterattack, but the Americans refused to yie'd despite the heavy casualties they suffered. SSG Kefurt went from man to man directing fire and was with physical training to weed out wounded in the leg. Despite the rain, he continued to lead his men and

HOCKEY HOUSE

Hello Cal U. hockey players & hockey fans! In order to curb your insatiable appetite for Cal U. hockey news, we've decided to write our own informative article containing current related events and trivia. READ ON! Street news: How about Zak's new draft system? The wealth of talent has been distributed quite evenly. It should make for a competative and interesting season. Traditional hockey institutions such as Hockey House and Rush will be contending with strong new expansion teams anchored by competent veterans and manned by a promising crop of young rookies. The Lord Cuda Cup is up for grabs! Regular season starts next week, good luck to all! On the ice: After a surprisingly successful inageral season last year, the Cal U. ice hockey team once again takes the ice. In their season opener the Cal U. skaters played to a 3-3 tie versus the always strong "Sammy-O's". Goals were tallied by Steve The Legend" Daniels, Lou Dugas, and Pete Bokalas. Goalie Paul Tencer played steady despite a couple of unfortunate goals. Come out and support the team at Rostraver Gardens (no admission charge!). For more information on game time and schedules call the Hockey House at 938-3296. We had elections! New officers are as follows: President - Keith "Fattidik" Patrick, Vice-President/Commissioner - Scott "Krishna" Ehrgood, Treasurer - "Li'l" John Slagus, and Secretary - Ray "The Hatchet Man" Edelman. Until next week, keep your head up and aim for the corners. TAKEITAZE. Smarslok had served as California University's Director of Finance with the Office of Administration and Finance since 1973.

President Banko commented that each senator should be well aware of what they are voting for, concerning the treasury and allocation requests. The allocation request by the Campus Ministry has been tabled until October 11, when representatives will then speak out on their issue. John Wheatley, Representative of the Student Entertainment Committee proposed to Congress a change in the concert policy. Instead of having one major concert a year on campus, it was suggested that various concerts be available to students at a reduced ticket price and transportation throughout the year. The concert committee will be affiliated with Pittsburgh's DeCeasar Engler in making arrangements. ACACIA

Well it's about time! Hello from the Nasty Boys. So, what's this-clean house, real activities, participation? Am I in the right place? Believe it people, we are here to stay! But where's Zanolla? We've searched the river bed and the woods, but still no signs. Probably hunting Turkey Vult" ures. And then there's Funk "Dice" Sinatra, dirtiest guy you'd ever love "two" meet. GOOD LUCK VULCAN FOOTBALL, especially Pisco. It gets cold out there doesn't it? But the Gatorade is free. Also, GOOD LUCK HOMECOMING CANDIDATES, Paula Mastrean, Tina Piombino, Lori Lininger, and Gidget Steinhoff. VOTE FOR THESE FINE LAIDIES. No, Steve does NOT look like Andre Agassi, Snyder does (honest)!! Dan, thanks for the windows, buddy. Here's Lance at a party-"Haay (stumble) yoooooou (hic) #%!& (passout)." And a toast to the Mop Heads, you know who you are. To all the sweethearts: It'll be soon. Hey John, keep the leash off this semester. Eric F., it's about time. You too, Phlem boy. Eric S. and Earl, how's it feel working for Captain Caucasian? Anthony, what is wrong with those wipers? Nice bike, Duane. Todd, who was that girl Sorry to infrom you that Ichiban had a senous billiards injury. Tim, when does your mother want her car back? Good Luck and the best of times to the Assoc. Members of Theta class. Special thanks to PHI SIGMA SIGMA. Hey ALPHA SIGMA TAU, do we have an idea yet? Get on it Tracey. (Just kidding.) WARNING: ACACIA IS PROTECTED BY CARNIV-OROUS GECKOS-BEWARE! Salutations to all of our sisters!! Remember, our rush is coming up this week, so recruit, recruit, recruit!! We'd like to wish a happy birthday to Sue Jones—she celebrates her 21st on Monday. By the way, MAN, I love you MAN, cause your like my A, little MAN! Oh my, Sue. Bet you had one hell of a you-know-what. (Didn't want to get you in trouble there.) Sheryl, yes I must admit that this one was better than the bubbles. P.K., have a feast with your dill chips!! Who killed that rabbit??? Caty, are we really going to become Destroyer women?? After this week, girls, I really need a mixer. SHelly, are you an a-hole magnet? What kinds company are you keeping down there at the desk? Did anyone hear a certain big mouth stuck on the elevator last week?? Ummhumm, you guessed it. Don't forget, Kim Gasper and Traci Schultz for Homecoming Court! Stac, maybe you and me and Shelly can take on some men in Jello-mania. Yeah, your right. Whadda you mean? Kim, we told you we weren't lying! I think Shery! took it the worst. Hi Tab!! Dawn Whalen, you really didn't see me coming out of the vending area with what I had did, did you? Jackie did you say the name of that show was "Babies"? That's what I hought. Cindy, It's a long bike to Slippery Rock. Gulp, Gulp, it's GONE!

OH, My another week has passed and did you get anything accomplished, I didn't think so!

SIGMA KAPPA

OH, My another week has passed and did you get anything accomplished, I didn't think so! Thaeta Xi thanks for the wet mixer last week. Everything was flying. Donita wants you all to tell her more about those summer nights. Big Daddy and Marla tearing up the floor. We and a blast guys. Phi Kaps thanks for letting us come over, how did some us lose control? Let's see what else-Happy 21st to Steph, make it a gook one. Angi happy 21 to you also, kinda forgot that part last week. Alumni chapter in progress, it's gonna be great. Lady Vulcan Soccer victory way to go!! Who wants to be first? Nice of Kelly to volunteer. Are you having problems standing? Rapper was amazed with the toys. Donna you need a little more practice throwing darts. Teresa you were out 2 nights in a row-WOW!!! Michelle slip, sliding away-floors do get wet too! Lynne you made one big mess and too bad you never make it out later. Tell me more, tell me more—okay. Houy you were jammin'. Help, Help I'm being kidnapped, somebady, please help me . . . but I'm willing to go. Sound familiar to anyone (Loweda). Stop the car, let me out. Clinically proven by Loweda to reduce the big star between the eyes—use toothpaste. But you have to use the same color that matches your clothes to get the real effect. If you didn't hear it or smell it, it must have been Christina. Mickey's man was in. Pam how many t-shirts did you go through? Rain drops keep falling on my head. Kara & Meredith you two are shoeing up everywhere, what's up with that? Judy, i mean Denise or is it Judy, slow down a little it takes a toll on you after awhile. What's up with the teddybear? Moog has her naughty nighties ready. Pull and pray. Kim O. has no lips, but cooks excellent lasagna—thanks oreo! Sing us a song tonight. Did everyone catch the Friday night fight action? Pjat were you a bad little boy, we heard the stonies? Phi Mu the house is looking gook!!! Bom to hand juve baby. Don't forget aerobics of be FAT!!

SPORTS

UPDATE

The women's soccer win streak is alive at five after Lady Cal dumped W & J 9-0 at the University Farm last Wednesday, 9-0. Cal is 5-2 and at Nazi Penn State tomorrow. Our men's soccer team dropped a 3-0 decision at home to Mercyhurst and will go for win number five tomorrow at Frostburg. Last week, our unheralded but virtually unbeatable women's tennis team blanked St. Vincent 9-0 and are 4-1 overall as of this writing. Look for a feature on them soon. Today at 2:00 pm, CU hosts Seton Hill, a team Cal beat 7-2 two weeks ago. The football team is ranked 10th in the ECAC but were not ninth a week ago as reported.
