Faculty Union President Urges Rejection of Recent APSCUF-SSHE Settlement

by Jim Black

California University faculty union president Dr. C.R. Thomas has advised CU faculty to vote against the ratification of a tentative settlement reached between negotiators for the Association of Pennsylvania State College and University Faculties and the State System of Higher Education.

A settlement was reached on October 10, and if ratified by both parties, the new agreement is retroactive from July 1, 1990 and expires June 30, 1993.

Thomas said he is opposed to changes in the status of faculty medical benefits in the new contract, which would set up a special trust fund with limits on the contribution made by the state.

"The faculty members on this campus and others are very upset with the changes in the Major Medical trust," Thomas said. "They're establishing a new trust fund which won't actually begin until February 1991. In the contract, we don't have details. People don't buy wall-to-wall carpeting or a new car without knowing the total cost.

"Faculty members are concerned as to whether the trust can cover future expenses," Thomas said. "If it can't, it will have to be changed to stretch for formula funding."

Thomas does not think the new trust will work since medical costs tend to increase at a rate greater than standard inflation.

He believes a movement toward co-payment may be introduced.

"A move to co-payment would preserve underfunding. The next logical step would be to limit the people insured by the Major Medical trust, namely the future retirees," Thomas said.

The Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board appointed a fact finder to help end the dispute. The fact finder had 40 days to examine the issues preventing both sides from settling.

"The only reason we settled was to avoid the 40-day delay period," Thomas said.

Thomas said the fact finder may be appointed again if the new contract is not ratified.

Thomas said he is also against the new contract because it does not provide a competitive entry level salary to attract new faculty.

Thomas also observed that the salary provisions for more experienced faculty members are much less than normal public education settlements.

Thomas does support one aspect of the tentative agreement which requires full-time professors to advise and observe classes taught by graduate assistants.

The 5,000 members of APSCUF voted last month to authorize the negotiating team to call a strike if they felt it necessary. It was only the second time in the union's history that a strike authorization vote was taken.

Thomas said the APSCUF executive council will hold a special legislative assembly meeting on October 20 to discuss the contract. Thomas also said a ratification vote will probably be held on or before November 1.

Thomas said if the contract is rejected, the next step would be to send both negotiating teams back to the bargaining table.

"I strongly recommend, and have since mid-July, that we reject the contract and peacefully send both sides back to the table," Thomas said.

At the state level, both parties expressed themselves satisfied with the contract as negotiated.

According to state APSCUF president James H. Tinsman, "In the end, both sides had to be reasonable and express a strong commitment to a settlement so that 98,000 students in the state system did not suffer."

SSHE Chancellor James H. McCormick also endorsed the agreement, saying, "This agreement addresses the critical needs of the faculty, universities and the state system overall."

Carothers Elected Queen

Jennifer Carothers, daughter of Michael and Dianna Carothers, Co-raopolis, has been elected the 1990 Homecoming Queen at California University. The 20-year-old junior, a biology major, was selected through a university-wide vote of the student body. She was the candidate of the Lady Vulcan softball team and Vulcan wrestling teams; Delta Zeta Sorority; Theta Xi, Delta Sigma Phi, Delta Chi, Tau Kappa Epsilon and Phi Mu Delta fraternities; Stanley Hall; Panthers Construction and Flowers by Regina.

Carothers is an 1988 graduate of West Allegheny High School, where she was an honor student, a member of the varsity basketball and softball teams and a representative to Student Council. She was a member of the Lady Vulcan softball team for two years and is a member of the Delta Zeta social sorority.

The Homecoming Court includes Christy Ankney, Traci Shultz, Gidget Steinhoff and Stacey Yates.

Ankney, daughter of Linda Ankney, Mather, and the late Paul Ankney, is a graduate of Jefferson-Morgan High School, where she was a varsity cheerleader and Homecoming and May Day attendant, and was listed in Who's Who among American High School Students. At CU, the 21-year old senior psychology major is a cheerleader, member of the Psychology Club and Phi Sigma Pi national honor society and social chairman for Delta Zeta.

Shultz, daughter of Joseph and Karen Shultz of Mt. Washington, is a 19-year old junior majoring in industrial organizational psychology. Shultz was homeroom representative to Canevin Catholic High School's Student Council and a member of its drill team and 1988 graduating class. At CU, she is a member of the Psi Chi national honor society and Psychology Club; captain on the CU dance team; sister of Phi Alpha Psi service society; and a founding scribe and tribune for the university's high school band camps and a volunteer for the Red Door, Pittsburgh.

Steinhoff, 20, daughter of Gilbert and Fonda Angeline of P.D. 5, Uniontown, and the late Edwin Steinhoff, is a sophomore majoring in elementary/early childhood education. She is a 1988 graduate of Tri Valley High School, where she was a cheerleader and member of the Tri Valley's homecoming court and a Coal Queen candidate. ## CU Students Send Message to Troops

by Jim Zeaman

The ROTC cadre and Theta Xi fraternity at California University are co-sponsoring the creation of a banner full of CU student signatures and short messages to send to the troops in Saudi Arabia.

The idea came from Mark Gregris, a Theta Xi brother and ROTC cadet.

Gregris said he was remembering that when he was in basic training, the one thing he looked forward to most was getting mail.

Gregris thought it would be nice to send a giant postcard from home for all the men and women to show them our support.

Gregris also said there are quite a few CU graduates serving in Saudi Arabia.

A booth was set up in front of the ROTC building Monday and Tuesday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. for those wishing to send a message to the troops.

Theta Xi bought the 1000-foot by 18-inch roll of paper, and ROTC is paying the postage to send it to Saudi Arabia.

THE FINE ARTS AT CALIFORNIA

Above is the Cuarteto Latinamericano, which performed in the Reed Arts Center Recital Hall last Wednesday evening. Featured in the quartet's performance were two pieces by modern Mexican composers. Right: This portrait of Picasso done by Salvador Dali is one of the many fine pieces of art donated to California University by Drs. Phillip and Muriel Berman of Allentown, Pa. The work was displayed along with the 13 other prints in a show earlier this year put together by Art department chairman Richard Grinstead. The Berman Collection includes prints by Francoise Gilot, Paul Gaughin, Alexander Calder, Motke Blum, Chaim Gross, Pinchas Litvinovskyy, and Pablo Picasso. In addition to the prints, the Bermans also donated several pieces of sculpture that have been placed in various locations around the campus. Dr. Muriel Berman serves on the State System of Higher Education Board of Governors. Photograph of Cuarteto Latinamericano by Jim Zeaman.

CADET CORNER

PARENTS' DAY

For Parents' Day this year, we at ROTC decided to forego our usual booth at Gallagher Hall and opted for a weapon assembly and disassembly demonstration on the front porch of the ROTC building.

Members of the California University Ranger Challenge Team delighted visitors both young and old with their precision and technical competence in the handling of the M16A1 and M60 machine guns.

Observers received an up-close and personal view of one of the aspects of the "jazz of soldiering."

Our Ranger Challenge Team will be representing CU at the statewide competition in November.

NURSES GETTING FIRST CHOICE OF ASSIGNMENTS

Whether it's Hawaii, San Francisco, Monterey, Heidelberg, Augsburg Brussels or anywhere else, nursing cadets are getting their first choice of assignment.

At last count, more than 90% of nurses are getting their first choice; the rest, one of their top three choices.

This trend is part of a concerted effort by Army ROTC to attract students to the Army Nursing Corps.

The downside to this program is that cadets are forced to decide whether they want to spend their free time snorkeling Hunama Bay, cruising up California's Highway

1, or skiing the Bavarian Alps. Decisions, decisions, decisions....

WHAT'S ON THE ROTC CALENDAR?

October 21 to 27

ROTC Field Training Exercise, October 27. Cadets will get an opportunity to polish their land navigation and orienteering skills at our "Land-Navy" course at Bingo Creek Park.

Anyone enrolled in a military science course is encouraged to attend.

A CU tradition, Staff Sergeant Butterworth will again be preparing his "Appalachia Skunk Hollow Sloppy Joes," not as a paint solvent, but as lunch.

Alka-Seltzer will be on hand and readily available, but students are encouraged to bring along a Hershey bar or two.

CADET PROFILE MARK GREGRIS: HEAVY WORKLOAD...

HIGHLY DEDICATED

Around the Department of Military Science we often sit around and wonder when Mark Gregris finds time to sleep.

His schedule rivals that of any overworked and underpaid graduate assistant.

A business administration major, he is a loyal member of the Theta Xi fraternity and former member of the student government.

Between his academics and fraternity business, Mark is a key member of both the Ranger Challenge Team and the color guard.

One weekend a month he dons the uniform of the Army National Guard with the 876th Engineer Battalion as a combat engineer.

In the last year there hasn't been a major activity in which he hasn't participated—from the paint gun competitions to hoagie sales.

To top it all off, he parks cars at Kennywood during the summer. Next summer though, he will be attending the six-week ROTC Advanced Camp at Fort Bragg, North Carolina.

When I asked Cadet Gregris what he gets from his participation in ROTC he straightforwardly replied, "It gives me a chance to do things I had never done before—like jumping out of airplanes, survival training, and testing my leadership skills. Leadership development is a big plus since most employers are looking for that when filling a job position.

DEPARTMENT OF MILITARY SCIENCE

"There is always a challenge and all you have to do is accept it. Another good reason, shared by all college students, is the money. Let's face facts. We all go out and work over the summer for tuition or spending money. I've found my summer job and it's easy."

"Easy?" I asked, somewhat puzzled.

Mark replied, "Don't get me wrong. I work hard for my money. I have to get up and do Physical Training, participate in color guard ceremonies and work with our hoagie sale.

"I am also involved with the land navigation course and white-water rafting. I guess I'd say it's easy because ROTC is both fun and rewarding."

Mark's attitude and work ethic will undoubtedly carry him through a fine career as a military officer.

SUBMARINE/HERO/GRINDER/BIG SANDWICH/HOAGIE SALE

Time is quickly running out to order your hoagies from ROTC Annual Hoagie Sale.

Orders have to be made by Monday, Oct. 22.

Hoagies will be delivered on October 26. Cost is $2.

Make your order to any ROTC cadet.

PAINT GUN WARS WILL BE CONDUCTED

As you read this, plans are being formulated to conduct the 1990 Paint Gun Wars.

If you were a participant in the past you will remember last year's battles were exciting, vicious, breathtaking, courageous, and absolutely bloodless.

All the CU teams, including the Delts and ROTC, were cruelly and methodically swept aside by a group of upstarts from California High School.

Who would have expected them to use paint grenades?

However, the past is the past, and perhaps this year a new champion will emerge from the dust and stench of battle.

Then again, maybe not. Whatever the outcome, I'm sure everyone will have as good a time as they had in the past.

This year we are planning to add a little more excitement into this exciting war game.

We have added automatic paint guns to our inventory and plan to integrate these deadly and silent instruments of violence into the game.

Stop in the ROTC building for further details.

STAFF SERGEANT BUTTERWORTH PLACES IN PITTSBURGH'S GREAT RACE

SSG Butterworth finished extremely strong in Pittsburgh's Great Race on Sept. 30. After a slow start he went into overdrive and finished 4,677 out of 10,106 participants.

Hats off to SSG Butterworth. (Note: use of the cardiac care unit was not necessary).

MILITARY SCORES HIGH IN RECENT GALLUP POLL

In an August 1990 poll conducted by the Gallup organization 1,241 adults were asked what institutions do you trust.

Results were as follows:

- Military-68%
- Church-56%
- Newspapers-39%
- Banks-36%
- Congress-24%

RAFT TRIP CANCELED

We can do a lot of different things at the Army ROTC but we have yet to figure out how to control the weather.

Due to the heavy rain the last week, the water level was too high at Ohiopyle to conduct white-water rafting.

Our sincerest apologies for Mother Nature.

If you haven't received your refund please see SSG Butterworth at the ROTC building.

PENNSYLVANIA'S BRAVEST MAJOR WILLIAM SHOMO

by Captain George Stelljes

Major William Shomo of Jeannette was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor for his actions on April 7, 1945, over Luzon, Philippine Islands, while serving with the 82nd Tactical Reconnaissance Squadron.

Major Shomo was the lead pilot of a two-plane flight assigned the mission of photographing the Japanese-held airfields of Appari and Laoag. While en route, he observed an enemy bomber escorted by 12 fighters. He immediately moved to attack the enemy planes despite the 13 to 2 odds.

He destroyed the lead fighter on the first pass and then a second one before the surprised Japanese could react. As the two sides jockeyed for positions, Major Shomo shot down another fighter and then attacked the bomber. He put a burst of machine gun fire into its underside, sending it down in flames.

He then faced a Japanese fighter in a head-on engagement. He quickly destroyed it with his deadly accurate fire and returned to the dogfight. He observed two enemy aircraft below him and aimed his aircraft in their direction. His initial burst of fire caused one to explode in flames, and he quickly downed the other fighter.

His wingman was also in an intense struggle and shot down three fighters himself. Between them, they destroyed ten of the Japanese aircraft and sent the three survivors scurrying for safety.

His intense dedication, bravery, and unyielding devotion to duty are a great credit upon himself and are in the highest tradition of U.S. Army.

The California University Military Science department proudly salutes Major William Shomo as a member of Pennsylvania's Bravest for having been awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Tone's TV and Movies
The New Season
Tone Cimaglia

Two weeks ago, I had my first-ever Tone Awards for the summer movies of 1990. Now it's time for the Tone Awards for the 1990 television season. Some shows are wonderful, while some just absolutely stink.

Best Series: In Living Color—Definitely one of the funniest shows on television today (along with The Simpsons). Damon and Keenan Ivory Wayans, along with their great supporting cast, have made this show a hit comedy by poking fun at the racial prejudice.

While Cheers may be funnier, In Living Color sends a message along with being funny. They make prejudice out to be what it really is—a joke.

Worst Series: Uncle Buck/Ferris Bueller—I can't decide which show is worse. These two shows are insults to the movies from which they were copied. Once again, CBS has put out another horrible show, and the network has degraded the credibility of Kevin Meany, who is usually a hilarious comedian, by putting him in a suck-job sitcom. As far as Ferris goes, they should have been satisfied with the movie. NBC definitely screwed up by agreeing to run this show.

Best Talk Show: Late Night with David Letterman—Sorry, Johnny. I have to give the nod to Dave. While he doesn't have the greatest guests sometimes, his wacky and offbeat style and delivery make his show the best that I've seen. And besides, Paul Schaffer is definitely funnier and livelier than Mr. Martini, Ed McMahon.

Too Much Hype for Too Little a Show: Twin Peaks—Oh sure, the cliff hanger between seasons was good, but come on, people, let's get real. The hype that's been

LETTERS...

WHAT'S THE LAW?

As you are aware, Homecoming Week is upon us here at California University. This is probably the busiest and most hectic time of year, with the pumping of floats and the election of the queen and her court, but this is not my complaint.

My concern is with the idea of tailgating and the consumption of alcoholic beverages. It says in the state codes that all state-owned universities will not allow alcoholic beverages on campus grounds, including the football stadium parking lots. As I traveled to different schools to witness their Homecoming festivities, I noticed that certain areas and times were designated for the consumption of alcoholic beverages for those over 21.

I was wondering how this was possible for different schools, but not CU. Also, if one school can do this, why not let the others have the same luxuries? I think that someone should look into this matter and make us more aware that the law really is.

SOME QUESTIONS

This letter is in response to the sermon by S. Myers, "Environmental Conservationist." I found it to be more amusing than most of the cartoons in the Times. It was truly a commentary worthy of Ronald Reagan (and George Bush for that matter). Assuming that S. Myers, "Environmental Conservationist," was actually serious with his commentary, I have some questions for him and the "many others" that share his opinion:

- a) Just what is a radical?
- b) Are you registered to vote?
- c) How often do you write your congressmen concerning Environmental issues?
- d) Have you ever even been to a protest?
- e) How many pounds of animal flesh do you consume a year?
- f) Have you ever been to a SEAL meeting?

All said, if you want to work within the stagnant system of American red tape, go right ahead (I just bet you will). Do not, however, lash out against those who do not have quite so much faith in our government.

I have now expressed my opinion too, and, unlike S. Myers, "Environmental Conservationist," you may get mad at me. If it weren't for the "radicals" in the American Revolution, the good 'U.S.A., wouldn't be here.

Patriotically yours,

J.D. Macgregar

P.S. S. Myers, "Environmental Conservationist," you wouldn't know a radical if he bit you on your conscience.

SO THERE, SO THERE

I'm not very old, but one thing I've learned in my life is that people cause pain. It might be voluntary, accidental, direct or removed, but it is there. I read "So There II" and laughed. Not so much at its content but more at its arrogant ties of the CU vs. Edinboro football game.

Homecoming 1990 is sponsored by the Alumni Association, Student Association, Inc., and the California Area Chamber of Commerce. It includes the parade at 11 a.m. led by Walter Koenig, Star Trek's Mr. Chekhov, the football game at 2 p.m. in Adamson Stadium, and the post-game party featuring free refreshments and live entertainment by Ricochet.

ARE YOU AWARE?

by Jim Panarella
Next week is International Eating Disorders week. Eating Disorders are among the top concerns of college students everywhere, as the most common age of incidence of anorexia and bulimia is between the ages of 13-25.

Anorexia is a self-induced starvation or fasting. Singer Karen Carpenter brought national attention to this eating disorder when her death was attributed to the disease.

Some of the symptoms associated with anorexia include the loss of 15-25% of weight, ritualistic eating behaviors such as cutting up food in small pieces, or extending meals while eating little, and an extreme fear of fatness.

Bulimia involves a cycle of binging and purging (including vomiting, excessive exercising and/or laxative and diuretic abuse). Symptoms of this particular eating disorder include frequent vomiting, swelling of face and salivary glands, secretive behavior, and just as in anorexia, an extreme fear of fatness.

Exactly who is affected by eating disorders? As noted before, young adolescents and college students are at high risk. In addition, the ratio of females to males is 9:1.

Eating disorders are primarily diseases of western cultures and white, middle- to upper-class populations. There are increasing incidents in all socioeconomic classes and other industrialized nations. Also, students who constantly diet are highly susceptible.

Students who feel their preoccupations with food are interfering with their ability to get the most out of life are at high risk for developing an eating disorder. Even if students are uncertain if their eating disorders are a problem, they should see a physician to determine if they are at risk for developing either anorexia or bulimia.

It is also important to remember one thing: If you do have an eating disorder, you should not be ashamed to come forward and ask for help. Just as in alcoholism, the first step in defeating the problem is admitting you have one.

On Wednesday, Oct. 24, an eating disorder seminar will be held at the LRC auditorium. All students are invited to attend the seminar, which will provide information and insights on eating disorders.

The first full day of Homecoming Week 1990 concluded with the presentation of the British Invasion Laser Show, held in Steele Auditorium on Monday evening.

The concert featured multi-colored laser beams and images of all shapes and sizes dancing and projecting through screens of fog, all synchronized to wall-shaking music from the British art-rock movement of the 1970's.

The music featured four of the era's most successful and influential bands: Genesis, Led Zeppelin, Pink Floyd, and Yes.

Highlights of the show included fish swimming among blue circles during the aptly-named Yes song "The Fish" and spinning images of guitars and analog clock faces moving through the air on Pink Floyd's classic, "Time."

The 13-song set was performed in front of a near-capacity crowd. Many found themselves quietly singing the lyrics to themselves, while others simply sat in amazement, trying to take in as much as possible.

During the intermission, the 1990 Homecoming Court was announced. This year's court consists of Queen Jennifer Carothers, Christy Ankney, Traci Schultz, Gidget Steinhoff and Stacey Yates.

The show, sponsored by SAI and California University, was the beginning of an entire week of special events as a part of this year's Homecoming festivities. Homecoming Week concludes tomorrow with the CU-Edinboro game at Adamson Stadium and the dinner-theatre presentation of Charles Busch's farce Psycho Beach Party at the Gold Rush.

Pittsburgh National to Fund Essay Competition

Undergraduate students at the 14 State System of Higher Education universities have the chance to turn their homework into cash in the Pittsburgh National Bank/State System of Higher Education essay competition.

This year's topic is "What are the Investment Opportunities for the Securities Investor in Europe after 1992?"

One student from each of the 14 universities will win the "Best of the University" prize of $500. These winners will be eligible to compete for the "Best of the State System" award with prizes of $2,000 for first place, $1,000 for second place, and $500 for third place.

The three finalists in the "Best of the State System" competition will be given the opportunity to present their papers at the 1991 Spring conference of the Association of Pennsylvania Business and Economics Faculty.

Established in 1988, the competition is designed to recognize research and writing talent across the State System on topics of interest to the financial and business community.

The competition is funded by a $15,000 grant from Pittsburgh National Bank to the Fund for the Advancement of the State System of Higher Education, Inc.

Dr. Joseph Hunt, Jr., dean of the College of Business at Shippensburg University of Pennsylvania, serves as project director for the essay competition.

"This competition offers State System students the opportunity to demonstrate their writing and research ability," Dr. Hunt said. "I am pleased that Pittsburgh National Bank chose to continue its sponsorship."

"Through the continuing partnership between Pittsburgh National Bank and the State System, we are able to recognize outstanding students," State System Chancellor James H. McCormick said. "This year's topic challenges students to look beyond our nation in terms of finances and economics and examine issues globally."

"I am excited about this year's topic," said Bruce Bickel, vice president and manager of the Charitable and Institutional Trust Department. "With the upcoming events in Europe in 1992, this topic will encourage students to better understand the economic changes

Dr. Dawn McDaniel Student Development Hires New Clinical Psychologist

Dr. Dawn McDaniel has been hired by California University's Student Development Office as a clinical psychologist in the infirmary.

McDaniel, a native of the Fairfax County, Virginia, received her undergraduate degree at the University of Virginia in Charlottesville. Upon receiving her graduate degree at Syracuse University, she served a pre-doctoral internship at the Yale Medical School in New Haven, Conn.

"We had been looking for a female clinical psychologist for about two years. We feel that some people may be able to relate to a female in some cases," said Elmo Natali, vice-president for student development.

McDaniel, who has been with CU for about four weeks, will specialize in long-term therapy and outreach programs. She will also visit residence halls and assist in programming health-related events on campus.

Although she has only been here for a short time, McDaniel speaks highly of the people at CU. "I am very happy here. It is a very beautiful place, and the people are just wonderful. In fact, it was the faculty that really helped me to make the choice to come here in the first place."

McDaniel's office is located in the Downey-Garofalo Health Center.

Cellist Dianne Wachsman Performs In Reed

by Phillip Haight
Cellist Dianne Wachsman performed on Tuesday, Oct. 16, at the Reed Arts Center recital gallery. Wachsman, accompanied by pianist Yee-Ha Chiu, played Bach's Sonata #1 in G Major, Beethoven's Sonata #5 in D Major, Halsey Steven's "Three Pieces," Paul Hindemith's "Meditation" from Nobilissima Visione, Bruch's Kol Nidrei, opus 47, and Vivaldi's Sonata #4 in B-flat Major.

A member of the Duquesne University-affiliated Apollo String Quartet, Wachsman has received diplomas from the University of Illinois at Urbana and the Boston University School for the Arts, and is enrolled in the post-graduate Artist Diploma program at Duquesne University.

Wachsman has been playing the cello and violin for the past 18 years. She grew up in a music-oriented family and feels that atmosphere influenced her decision to pursue a career in music. Her future plans consist of playing in a string quartet and composing.

"I really enjoy playing in a string quartet because I like playing music with other people. I can also make decisions on my own," Wachsman said. "If I were in an orchestra I could not think for myself. The only difficult part of my career is accepting the fact that few people enjoy classical music. I wish more people would get involved in the arts."

LETTERS...

ings" because we are alike in that nature. It is unfair to do that and shows how shallow your scope and grasp of the situation is.

You might counter and proclaim that fur is not a necessity, and fur isn't. Some material is needed for clothing and warmth, though. In the process of gaining such material, life is killed and destroyed. This life may be of a so-called lesser form, but it is still life.

The ironic thing is that most of these "poor" animals wouldn't even be alive if not for the demand for their fur. Most fur-bearing animals used in producing coats, stoles, etc., are raised on fur farms.

Which is worse, the animals never living, or living and dying for a purpose? All things die eventually anyway.

The point that needs to be addressed is the humanity of dispatching these animals. Most are electrocuted. They are not beaten with a club, shot, or (one you left out) injected with poison. I believe this to be a humane way to dispose of them. Somebody must think so, because that's how we kill our "bad humans" and since a Constitutional amendment prohibits the use of cruel and unusual punishment, it must not be considered too cruel. If a human can be electrocuted—and by your letter you gave the impression that humans are superior (saviors usually are)—what's wrong with electrocuting lower-class animals?

The punchline is that no matter what we do as humans, we will kill other forms doing it. Just think of all the diverse life we destroy every time a road is built or a shopping center is constructed. This life is crushed beneath the asphalt. If you bleeding hearts can't take it, just slit your wrists now.

This world is screwed up enough by people who act totally on emotion and don't think about what they're saying or doing.

"To kill is to kill." You might not agree with it, but it's there looking at you every day. I will agree with you on some points. I do not condone the trapping of fur-bearers from nature and I believe we should do all we can to preserve wildlife. However, I do not consider cruel and unusual punishment to be in this category.

Don't misinterpret me, I feel they should be respected and be dispatched humanely. I would never buy a fur coat, but forcing your opinions on others is not the way to remedy the situation, especially when your opinions are so emotionally biased.

The next time you make a statement, I think you should examine it a little less emotionally and a little more logically and philosophically.

You could say that I'm insensitive, yet I'm a poet, writer, romantic, and I've cried more times than I care to share. However, I am aware of most of the angles life presents, and I have learned to look into life from varying degrees. Apparently you have not.

INCEST AND RAPE
The family is one of the most sacred and cherished units of them all. Families that are close should be able to read into each others' feelings and be able to understand if something strange is happening within the family unit.

More than eight years ago, Kassie Vance was raped by her older brother. She was raped several times by him and victimized in various places. She is able to talk freely about the incident, and is willing to help anyone who is in that situation to get out.

Kassie's family knows nothing about her ordeal. She feels as if she has held in her secret too long. She feels that she should tell her mother, but then the family would be torn apart.

I'll offer only one opinion on the subject. She should tell her mother, and explain to her mother that she does not want to cause any turbulence between her brother and the family.

Kassie has gotten her life back together, and is a sophomore here at California University.

JUNK ART AGAIN
Like kudos, Amigos, on that mondo enlightening missive about the alleged art work that is sprawled about our fine campus. All this time I was cruising about like major misunderstood, thinking that the stuff was some humungous left-behinds from some construction gigs gone awry.

Think about it for a minute. It's beyond the realm of possibility. We all know how apathetic and negligent those high-priced sub-contractors can get.

So it is art work. Wow. Are you sure. I mean, are you really sure? Perhaps we have to relieve ourselves on it for it to be art.

Yeah, maybe then it would be art. But I'm hardly an expert.

All this time I thought it was some major heavy-metal faux-pas. Peace,

Casey Opens Mon/Fayette Expressway

Governor Robert Casey was in town last Friday to open the new highway near California and pay tribute to the folks of the Mon Valley. Above: Casey has a conversation with California University President Dr. John Pierce Watkins. Below: Sheltered from the inclement weather beneath a pavilion and flanked by state and local notables, Casey addresses his public. Photography by Mary Huschak.

by Doug Drazga
 Calling it "an investment in the future", Governor Robert P. Casey formally opened the 5.5-mile section of the Mon Valley/Fayette Expressway that connects Route 40 with Interstate 70 last Friday. The completed portion of the expressway was finished in two sections at a total cost of $55.3 million. The first phase connected Route 40 with an interchange for the Malden Industrial Park. The second phase includes a partial cloverleaf and a one-mile section from Elco to a junction at I-70, about four miles west of Charleroi. Upon the completion of the entire project, expected within the next ten years, the expressway will stretch for more than 60 miles, from Route 48 in West Virginia to Pittsburgh. In his speech at the opening ceremony, the governor said the opening of the highway marked a "new day, new hope and a new commitment to the people of Southwestern Pennsylvania who raised families, paid their taxes, and fought wars." Casey also said that it is about time that the government started to repay the people of the area by investing in the future of their children. State Senator J. Barry Stout called the expressway the most vital link to the revitalization of the Mon Valley. As the chairman of the Senate Transportation Committee, he has been working on this project since governor Milton Shapp conceived the idea in the mid-1970's. The only disappointment in the day's activities, according to State Representative Peter J. Daley, was the rather low turnout of young people, although classes at several area high schools were canceled for the event. However, he remained optimistic, and he echoed Casey's hopes for a rebirth of the area, starting with the job opportunities that are being created by this project. "We were losing our youth, but now we have an opportunity to bring them back home. Today is the first day of the rest our lives in terms of economic development," Daley said. Students who travel to CU from Washington can now trim about 15 minutes from their travel time each way. For this convenience, however, students operating passenger cars must pay a toll charge of 50 cents each way. The booths are operated by employees of the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission.

German Students to Speak at CU

California University's Foreign Language Club and Foreign Language department will host two German speakers who will address the necessity for Americans to study foreign languages on Wednesday, Oct. 24, in the Gold Rush, California Memorial Union, from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. All students and faculty are invited to attend. Tiemo Kracht was born in Kiel, Germany. He received his master's degree in political science from Christian Albrecht University in Germany and is an instructor of political science at Penn State. Dirk Schulenberg was born in Kiel as well. He too received his master's degree in political science from Christian Albrecht University, and is a teaching assistant of political science at Penn State. This is not the first time that Kracht and Schulenberg have been at CU; they spoke at freshmen orientation on Sept. 25th. The members of the Foreign Language Club and Foreign Language department are very excited to have the speakers return, believing the message to be an important one. Understanding and accommodating foreign ways of doing things will become essential to workers and their companies in the next decade. According to a recent article in the Pittsburgh Press, as the 1990s progress, a growing number of college graduates will find their careers in an arena in which foreign languages, foreign currency, foreign markets and foreign values will be commonplace. According to Elliot S. Schreiber, vice-president of corporate communications at Bayer USA Inc., the Pittsburgh-based subsidiary of West Germany's Bayer AG, "I tell (any professional) who works for me, if you want to go anywhere in the company, you ought to learn the language of the parent company." For Schreiber and thousands of other workers in the Pittsburgh region, the concept of a single worldwide economy is as real as the daily commute to work. Like it or not, the global economy is here. Elsbeth Santee, chairperson of the foreign language and cultures department at CU, points out that in Europe, foreign languages are required at all levels of the educational system. Santee questions the ability of American graduates without foreign language skills to compete in the worldwide job market. For more information about the presentation, call Guy Moore at 938-4843.

CU Student Receives Cash Scholarship

A California University of Pennsylvania student from Uniontown will receive a cash scholarship. Cathleen Augustine, a junior at CU majoring in social work, is a non-traditional student returning to school after 17 years. She maintains a cumulative grade point average of 3.10 and has one child, Richard. The PAEOPP competition, held to recognize student achievements in secondary and post-secondary educational programs, had over 30 institutions of higher learning participate in the student nominations. In order to qualify, students had to demonstrate academic achievement and success in post-secondary education, active involvement in home, school, or community environments, and outstanding personal characteristics. Augustine is the fourth CU student to receive this award since its inception in 1985.

from the Pennsylvania Association of Educational Opportunity Program Personnel (PAEOPP) on Monday, Oct. 24 at State College, Pa.

Campus Ministry Presents : up Words

Time is All You've Got by Rev. Cletus Hull

Classes... Fraternity parties... Friends... Football games... Sleep... How do you do it all? College life seems like one activity after the other. You know that you're running faster than you can run and you're on the verge of a nervous breakdown. Maybe procrastination is the way to go. I mean, no one ever gets everything completed that they started--so why not wait until the last moment--right? Ultimately that doesn't work either. Maybe if I study longer I'll receive better grades. We are told that we should spend three hours outside of class for each hour in class. This means that it should take only 45 hours of study per week for a normal load of 15 credits hours. Usually it seems like 60 though. However, you only have 168 hours in every week. Even if you sleep eight hours each night, that gives you 62 hours for laundry, eating, work, play and other activities. Again, we ask, how do you do it all? Time management experts report that there is only one way to deal with such pressure--and that is to establish some priorities. Otherwise, the important things in life are crowded out by the urgent things. The point is that sometime in life we have to set priorities. We have to decide if doing a certain activity will enhance our career or not. Also, we need time with our family, church, work, recreation--the list goes on and on. But somewhere we have to draw the line. We need to decide what's valuable and what's not. Then work on the essentials and allow the secondary issues to slide. Remember, today is yesterday's tomorrow and by the time you're thinking about tomorrow, it's today. The apostle Paul wrote in Colossians 4:5, "Be wise in the way you act toward everyone; make the most of every opportunity." Today, do not let time take control of you. You take charge of time and watch what all you can accomplish...because time is all you've got.

SEAL to Sponsor Benefit Concert

California University's Student Earth Action League (SEAL) is presenting "A Festival for the Forests," a benefit concert to raise money for the purchase and preservation of the endangered tropical rain forests. The concert is scheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 24, at 7:30 p.m. in Steele Auditorium. The presentation will open with a brief explanation of the situation of the rain forests. The show will feature several local bands, including Sub Rosa, December Campaign, The Need, and SEAL's house band, Lumpy Gravy. To aid in the cause, a two-dollar donation is being asked, and aluminum cans will be collected at a door for a recycling drive. T-shirts bearing a rain forest logo will be sold for five dollars. Part of the proceeds will be donated to the Rainforest Action Network, a non-profit organization aimed at saving the rain forests. In addition to raising money for this cause, SEAL's objective is to stress the seriousness of the damage being done to rain forests and make students aware of the importance in preserving them. "Most people are aware that there is a problem because they see it on MTV, but many don't know why it's so vital that the destruction be stopped. They don't know that every single day whole species of both plants and animals are actually becoming extinct when the forests are wiped out. The situation is devastating and people have got to realize it," said SEAL secretary Elaine Laird. SEAL will hand out leaflets at the show explaining some aspects of the problem and ways people can help. "We take the problems one at a time. There is just so much that needs to be done. It's not easy to take on world hunger, animal suffering, the ozone problem, child abuse, and all the others in one shot. We are an environmental organization--that includes the issues of human and animal rights. We're doing all we can, and that's more than many others can say," said another SEAL member.

SEAL members have been planning the rain forest benefit for some time and hope for a good turnout. The organization decided on a concert in the interest of the students. "Students are willing to pay two dollars to see a band at a bar or to drink beer at a party, so we thought they would be willing to give for a lineup of bands and for a good cause--at least we hope," said SEAL president Jen Marshall. As with all SEAL activities, the rain forest benefit is open to the public. All are urged to donate at least one aluminum can. "One aluminum can being recycled saves enough energy to light a 100-watt bulb for three hours. It's amazing how effortless it is for each individual to do something to change the world in some way," said Laird. If you are looking for more information on ways to help, SEAL meetings, open to all students, faculty, and community members, are held every Thursday at 9:15 p.m. in 113 World Cultures.

Vulcans Hope for a Happy Homecoming

While the defense's statistics are not among the nation's best, the Vulcans did turn in a solid defensive showing at IUP last Saturday. Shown here battling a Rocket is junior defensive end George Webb (25). The defense will face the challenge of Edinboro, which is averaging some 30 points a game, tomorrow. Photograph by Chris Braun.

California University's football team will play the fourth nationally ranked team in seven games this Saturday, but Vulcan veteran head coach Jeff Petrucci remains optimistic even though his team has lost two straight games heading into this weekend's Homecoming game with ninth-ranked Edinboro.

Last Saturday, Cal dropped to 2-3-1 overall and 1-2 in the PSAC-West after losing 42-15 to fifth-ranked IUP.

"We moved the ball real well and I thought our defense played real hard against an excellent offensive football team," said Petrucci. "Our defense went into the IUP game without its middle guard, middle linebacker, free-safety and defensive tackle, and I thought our young kids came in and did a good job. We failed to score on one or two opportunities in the first half and you can not make mistakes against a team like IUP and expect to win. But I'm very pleased with the effort of the players and the fact that we have never quit or let up."

While Cal did lose to IUP for a sixth straight season, the Vulcans did compile 409 offensive yards as senior quarterback Sam Mannery completed 25 of 46 passes for 332 yards and one touchdown. Mannery, who leads the PSAC in career total offense with 7,943 yards, has passed for over 200 yards 19 times in his career and over 300 yards six times. Over the last two games, Mannery has completed 55 of 103 attempts for 745 yards and four touchdowns. Through six games in 1990, Mannery has passed for 1,649 yards and 10 touchdowns.

"Unlike last year, Sam has been a healthy quarterback this season," said Petrucci. "Because of this, he is able to practice every day and is making a lot of correct decisions and reads out there. His numbers tell you that he is playing at a different level."

Mannery's most-used receiver at IUP was senior fullback Don Meier, who caught a career-high 10 passes for 133 yards. Meier also gained 32 net rushing yards with a two-yard touchdown run and a two-point score.

"Don Meier is playing as well as any back we've had in the 10 years that I've been here," Petrucci said. "He's doing an outstanding job at all phases."

Defensively, Cal was led by freshman linebacker John McGowan and senior linebacker Mike Sabol, who made 14 and nine tackles respectively.

Up front, Cal was led by senior tackles Eric Smith and John Wybranowski, who each made eight tackles while defensive backs Vince Devivo and Tim Ammon combined for 16 tackles.

California must continue to receive solid efforts if they are going to defeat an Edinboro squad which routed the Vulcans a year ago at Sox Harrison Stadium, 54-14, which was Cal's worst defeat ever under Petrucci.

The defending PSAC-West champion, Edinboro, is 5-1 overall in 1990 and a perfect 3-0 in the division.

The Fighting Scots opened the season with a 48-6 home win over Shepherd but then lost a close 31-27 away game at undefeated and nationally ranked Youngstown State, an NCAA I-A school. Since then, Edinboro has rolled to four

UPDATE

The drought is over. After absorbing an eight-game losing streak which included a six-game stretch without a goal, the Vulcan men's soccer team came off the ropes with a tense 2-1 overtime win at home last Wednesday against St. Vincent. Junior Jason Miller scored both of Cal's goals, and his first goal was assisted by Steve McGalla. Cal's women's volleyball team lost a close home match to Clarion last Tuesday night and is at the Kutztown tourney this weekend. Three unheralded but hard-working ladies who have made solid contributions to the CU Athletic department this fall are Nadine M., Julie Y., and Nicole B.

VULCANS...

125 attempts for 1,152 yards and nine touchdowns.

A week ago, Cal faced and was burned by IUP wideout Andrew Hill, who caught two touchdown passes. This week, Cal will go against another of the nation's premier receivers in Edinboro's Ernest Priester.

Through six games, Priester has 31 catches for 687 yards and eight touchdowns. Priester did not catch a touchdown pass against Shippensburg last week and that was the first regular season game since the Cal game last fall that Priester did not score.

Well balanced, Edinboro is averaging 221.7 rushing yards a game and features two talented tailbacks named Lester Frye and Derrick Russell.

Frye is a sophomore who has gained 713 yards and scored six touchdowns through six games while Russell, a freshman, has picked up 319 net rushing yards after five games. Russell gained 109 yards on 11 carries in the second half against Shippensburg.

Defensively, Edinboro is allowing just 217.2 total offensive yards per game and only 85.8 rushing yards.

Senior linebacker Anthony Ross leads the team in tackles with 55 and is followed by junior tackle John Messina (54) and sophomore inside linebacker Jason Perkins (53). Messina and senior end Jeff Jacobs lead the Scots in sacks with four each, while senior linebacker Al Donahue has 49 stops and a team-high three interceptions.

Edinboro is also solid on special teams which is led by freshman placekicker John Baumann, who has converted six of seven field goals and 17 of 18 extra-point attempts.

California leads the all-time series between the two schools at 32-22-2 and the Vulcans last victory over the Scots was a 28-17 win at Edinboro in November of 1987.

Though the Vulcans are eliminated from the 1990 PSAC-West hunt, Petrucci is not about to let a two-game losing streak ruin this season.

"Saturday's game certainly will not be easy and we have to get our kids healthy," said Petrucci. "We just have to play well and continue to put forth the outstanding effort and our young men will rise to the occasion. We can still go 6-3-1 which would be a heck of a season. There is no disgrace in playing for second place when that is the best that you can be. If we finish strong and accomplish this goal then it would be like being a champion."

Men's and Women's Basketball Teams Look for Promising Season

The new, brighter bleachers are installed and Hamer Hall should again be hopping this winter as both basketball teams officially opened practice sessions last Monday.

Winning has been the common trait between both teams and this pattern should continue this winter.

The men's team, coached by Jim Boone, will strive for a fifth straight winning season in 1990-91. CU went 18-10 overall last year and competed in the prestigious ECAC Basketball Championships in New York. The ECAC appearance was Cal's third post-season performance in four years.

Two Vulcans, Adrian Townsend and Carlton Wade, were named to the All-PSAC all-star squad last March.

Townsend, who was fifth in the nation in assists with 230 a year ago, has finished his brilliant career but Wade will return next semester as a co-captain along with Tim Brown.

Both Wade and Brown averaged nearly 14 points a game and form one of the PSAC's most experienced and talented backcourts.

Besides Wade and Brown, CU also returns veterans Chris Falls, Brian Fixx, Raymond Gutierrez, Rick Hill, Art Miller, Philip Stewart and Charles Thomas.

Boone, 78-38 overall at Cal, has also brought in a tremendous new recruiting class.

Those playing their first year with the Vulcans this winter are: Ian Folmar, James Kirkland, Chad Scott, Kenney Toomer and Chris Williams.

California opens the 1990 season on November 20 at Pitt-Johnstown with an unordinary 6:30 tipoff time.

The Vulcans were 12-2 at Hamer Hall last year and are 48-9 at home during the Boone era. Cal will open the long home season by hosting the a*nnual CU/Observer-Reporter Invitational on November 30 through December 1. The other teams competing will be Queens, LeMoyné and South Carolina-Spartanburg.

The Lady Vulcans are coming off the two finest seasons in school history and will field a squad with considerable experience and youthful talent in 1990-91.

Last year, Cal reached the PSAC playoffs for a second straight year and compiled a fine 18-9 overall record. CU finished third in the west with a 8-4 divisional record and lost to eventual NCAA-East Region champion Lock Haven in the playoffs. Earlier in the year, Cal whipped LHU at home and was the first PSAC-West team to beat the Haven on their own floor in three years.

Lady Cal features a strong inside game led by seniors Stephanie Meyers and Gretchen Hess.

Meyers, a FASTBREAK All-American, averaged 10.6 points and 9.3 rebounds last winter while Hess, a 1989 all-conference selection, averaged seven points and 8.5 boards last season.

Other returning veterans include: Ellen Shostek, Anne Malkowiac, Tammy Wood, Erika Woods, Cindy Yeager and Marla Yustak.

Flores has again brought in a promising recruiting class led by: Heidi Boyer, Traci Cox, Lori Richelderfer, Lara Thornton, Bobbi Wittgartner and Traci Wittgartner.

CU will open the 1990-91 season by hosting the CU Tipoff Classic on November 16-17. The other teams competing for Tipoff glory are Mercyhurst, Lincoln and Virginia State.

Women's Tennis Team to Compete in State Championship

Having put together a fine regular season which culminated with an 8-4 overall record, California University's women's tennis team will look for state glory today at Erie in the 1990 PSAC Championships.

The Lady Vulcans ended the regular season with a tough-luck 9-0 loss at IUP last Monday.

"They put it on us pretty good but we had some decent efforts," said CU first-year head coach Rich Saccani.

"Kim Pepper and Julie Butterworth had the closest matches."

CU will face a supreme challenge at the state tourney and will go up against schools with numerous scholarship players but Saccani is remaining optimistic as well as realistic.

"Obviously thinking about winning the state title would be a bit foolish," Saccani said.

"But we have tried to stress a hard work ethic with the team and I think that if we can do better than we did last year then it would be a positive sign and something to build on."

Over the past two seasons, CU tennis has compiled a most impressive 18-8 cumulative record.

Wallyball League Standings

This week in League Wallyball, Mickey Mouse Brigade and Our Team are tied for first place. Team Freed is in second, and The Brigade is close behind in third. Net Magec is in fourth place and Cake Eaters-Not is still in last place. Good luck next week.

What you have in this picture is veteran Sam Mannery, the most prolific offensive player in PSAC history, completing one of his many passes to first-year sensation Tim Karpiak, a transfer from WVU via Uniontown High School.
