SINGING FOR SOMEONE ELSE'S SUPPER

These fine gents, CU's own Catch XXII, performed at SEAL's first charity event of the semester. The band played such standards as "Leanne" and "Lust" to a sizable, responsive crowd. Brothers Ehrgood, Scott and Brian (both of whom love to see their names in print) and CU alum Butch Ross went on the next evening to place second at the IUP Unplugged all-acoustic band competition. And simply because they are one of the editor's favorite bands, and the picture is nice, it welcomes you to another issue of this esteemed periodical. For more nifty photos and a short synopsis of the evening, see page 17. Photograph by Mark Schmaling.

Health Center Nurses Hold 24-hour Strike over Contract

by Jim Black and James Panarella

Nurses at California University's Downey-Garofalo Health Center held a 24-hour strike Wednesday and Thursday as part of a statewide effort to reach a settlement between the Pennsylvania Nurses Association and the state.

Virginia May Saunders, president of Local 164 of the PNA, said all 14 universities in the State System of Higher Education and other statewide institutions and hospitals went on strike.

Saunders said the PNA is protesting a contract proposal which would take away benefits that state nurses have had for years.

The PNA's three-year contract with the state expired on June 30.

Saunders said the PNA has been negotiating with the state for about eight months with negotiations ending Tuesday night.

"The Commonwealth has not negotiated in good faith. We believe the present administration does not care about the quality of health care being provided in state hospitals and institutions," she said.

The PNA is divided into seven areas throughout the state. Local 164, representing CU, is a member of the Southwestern Pennsylvania area with Mayview State Hospital, Western Center, Woodville, and Allegheny, Fayette and Greene county prisons.

Local 164 Vice President Mary Ann Keruskin said the nurses would be back to work at 7 a.m. yesterday.

During the strike, the health center remained open Wednesday with Nurse Celeste Roskavitch on duty until 11 p.m.

Bakewell Honored at Vets Day Luncheon

by Dave Antol

Veterans' Affairs Director Colonel Arthur L. Bakewell announced that he was retiring from his position when the California University Veterans Club held its 18th annual Veterans Day Luncheon last Friday.

Effective December 31, Bakewell will be succeeded by his assistant, Charles Williamson.

The official announcement was made by Bakewell himself, who added that he was not retiring from veterans' activities altogether.

Following several remarks on his long tenure at CU, Bakewell received a standing ovation.

He also received a plaque from Colonel Bushy of the Veterans Affairs Office in Pittsburgh in gratitude for the many veterans Bakewell has helped over the years.

CU President Dr. John Pierce Watkins saluted Bakewell by saying that the university recognizes Bakewell's "extraordinary service."

"You are entitled to an accolade from us," Watkins said.

Watkins also reflected on the contributions made by the numerous servicemen who enrolled at CU following the end of World War II to further their education.

This year's luncheon was dedicated to those CU students who were called to active duty as the result of Operation Desert Storm.

Vets Club President Lee Knox officially welcomed the many area veterans and dignitaries who attended.

Guest speaker Joseph R. Clelan, director of the Pennsylvania Department for Veterans' Affairs, said that CU has "the largest, most active veterans organization of any campus we have in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania."

He also said that Governor Caney has announced that a home for older veterans will be built in Allegheny County.

The home will be the latest of such homes already operating and others under construction in other parts of the state.

According to Clelan, the final goal is to have at least one home within 70 miles of all veterans living in Pennsylvania.

He also presented a victory medallion containing Scud and Patriot missile material to the university in honor of those who served in the Gulf War.

Scholarship Awards to two students.

Awarded winners were Therone Wade, a secondary education major, and Llew Williams, a computer science major. Each student received a plaque and $500 in scholarship money.

The American Legion, Post #377 of California received a 500 Club Award from the Vets Club in recognition of its outstanding cooperation with CU's veterans.

Another 500 Club Award went to Commander and Mrs. Michael Sears.

In addition, two appreciation awards were presented to Walter Raddishek and Mary Jane Hollick.

THE AIDS LADY

Not too long ago Liz Jones from Women's Health Services in Pittsburgh came to CU bearing gifts and wisdom. Sponsored by Phi Sigma Pi, the national honor fraternity, Jones discussed matters sexual and that dreaded disease of the 80's and 90's. As was advertised, she gave out many condoms for audience members to protect themselves in this era of unsafe sex. Photograph by Mark Schmaling.

Agency Offers Graduate Internship

Fayette County Community Action Agency (FCCAA), Inc., a private, non-profit corporation headquartered in Uniontown, Pennsylvania, is seeking a graduate intern to assist in its marketing, development and advertising efforts.

The candidate should be enrolled in a graduate program specializing in business, marketing, advertising or a related field.

The intern will be expected to work fifteen (15) hours per week at the agency's main office in Uniontown under the supervision of the executive director of the agency.

This internship offers an exciting opportunity for hands-on work in developing the marketing function, in advertising materials, and in fundraising efforts initiated for this private, non-profit corporation that provides services in the areas of literacy, homelessness and housing assistance, emergency food, transportation, health, nutrition and aging. A stipend of $600 per month will be offered.

NURSES...

The infirmary remained closed from 11 p.m. Wednesday to 7 a.m. Thursday and emergency calls for ambulance service were directed to CU Public Safety.

Keruskina said the selective strikes would begin today and continue until a settlement is reached.

In this case, one institution would strike and members of all locals in that institution's area would travel to that institution's site to picket. However, those traveling would run their respective health facilities during daylight hours and then leave to picket.

"It's a selective strike so no one will be affected all at once," Keruskina said.

Saunders said she did not know when a settlement would be reached or how soon a selective strike at CU could be called.

"We believe the [state] administration is more interested in forcing a strike than in working toward a fair contract."

Saunders said that overall, the university has supported the nurse's decision to support its union.

Elmo Natali, vice president of student development, said the university supports the nurses and must also continue to support CU students.

"Our nurses really don't want to go on strike. But they want to support their union. We don't know where it's going to go from here, but we're very supportive of them. We're going to support our students," he said.

ARTS AND ENTERTAINMENT

'Nutcracker' Comes to Steele in December

The Steele Auditorium stage will be transformed into a holiday wonderland on Friday, Dec. 6 and Sat, Dec. 7, when the Children's Theatre, the University Players, the Entertaining Arts Committee and the Department of Theatre present The Nutcracker.

An adaptation of a story by E.T.A. Hoffman, the ballet in two acts was first presented in December, 1892 at the Mariinsky Theater in St. Petersburg. Although it featured a score composed by Peter Ilich Tchaikovsky and choreographed by Lev Ivanov, reviewers of the time complained about the production's abundance of children and symphonic score. Nonetheless, The Nutcracker became a traditional holiday favorite, entertaining children and adults alike.

Dr. Richard Helldobler of the theatre department will choreograph and direct the CU performance, which includes 40 children from the local area, along with more than 60 CU students, among them Amy Agamedi, Carol Anderson, Aaron Bailey, Ajay Bhandaram, Dianne Dulick, Kim Gasper, Michael Jones, Lorrie Rennie, Tom Swift, Kim Weizen, Kellie Wilson and Rachel Wilson.

Guest artists featured in the ballet will be Soili Arvola as the Sugar Plum Fairy and Leo Ahonen as her prince.

Arvola received her training in ballet at the Ballet Academy of the National Opera House in Helsinki, Finland. After nine years of study, she joined the Finnish National Ballet, touring Scandinavia, Europe, Eastern Europe, and South America.

In 1968, Arvola joined the San Francisco Ballet, where she danced and choreographed several ballets. In 1972, she and Ahonen were featured in a half-hour special on Tokio television's The World of Music.

In 1975, Arvola and Ahonen gave two performances in Chicago's Grant Park which drew a record-breaking audience of 38,000.

Among her honors, Arvola won a bronze medal for artistic achievement at the prestigious International Ballet Competition in Varna, Bulgaria. She was named Outstanding Young Woman of America in 1975 by the Organization of Young Women of America, and thereafter received an invitation to work at the White House under the Ford Administration.

Ahonen began dancing professionally with the National Ballet of Finland at age 14, and later served the company as principal dancer, teacher and ballet master. He served as principal dancer and teacher for Holland's Het Nationale Ballet and for the Royal Winnipeg Ballet. Noteworthy appearances include performing with the Kirov Ballet and Moscow's Bolshoi Ballet.

Ahonen also won a bronze medal in the Senior Men's Competition at Varna's International Ballet Competition in 1965.

Tickets are $5, or free with a CU valid ID.

Reservations are required, and can be made by calling Nancy at the theatre department at 938-4220.

Clarion U Orchestra Performs in Steele

The Clarion University Orchestra will present a concert of symphonic music featuring the works of Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart—the bicentennial of whose death is being observed this year—at California University on Thursday, Nov. 21.

The performance will begin at 7:30 p.m. in Steele.

The program will consist of Mozart's overture to The Magic Flute and Symphony No. 25, the overture to Carl Maria von Weber's Der Freischuetz, and Ralph Vaughan Williams' English Folk Song Suite.

The orchestra, hailing from one of CU's sister universities, carries on extensive tours throughout Pennsylvania, and will be performing The Magic Flute at Clarion on November 13 with a narrator and costumed singers.

Admission to the concert is free, and all are urged to attend.

A CHOICE TO BE MADE
Mrs. Alving (Marianne Macbeth) must choose between the Rev. Manders' (Jack Goodstein) insistence on her duty and her son's (Jason Galayda) insistence on going against her duty to help him. A scene from Ibsen's drama Ghosts, which the BareBones Players, the resident theatre group of the California Public Library, will present there on Friday, Nov. 22, and Saturday, Nov. 23. Curtain time is 8 p.m. Admission is free, but reservations should be made by calling the library at 938-2907.

ROTC GOES HOLLYWOOD

On 10 September '91, the ROTC department, under the guidance of Captain Andrew Kwortek, produced an informational commercial to be aired during the month of November on MTV, ESPN, and Channel 29.

The commercial is playing four times a day and will continue until the end of the month.

The overall quality of the commercial is quite impressive, with both cadets and students making their movie screen debuts during the 30-second clip.

The real star of the show is Cpt. Kwortek, who both produced and played the leading role.

What versatility! I can hear Hollywood calling.

Tune in and catch the big production, which was filmed right here in the valley, and you just might learn something about ROTC.

MS400's EXPERIENCE WINNING

Last Friday, the cadets and cadre participated in their first hockey game of the year which resulted in another cadre victory.

But what's new about this statement? Nothing.

The cadre have been spanking the cadets all year long with no end in sight. Ladies and gentlemen, the real story is not the cadre victory—it's the MS400's victory, the group that had redefined losing over the last two years by turning it into an art form.

The cadets were split into two groups, with the MS400s (seniors) joining ranks with the cadre and the MS100s, 200s and 300s playing the role of adversary.

The game began in familiar fashion, with both sides immediately going for blood, making scoring and gamesmanship a mere afterthought.

Upon completing the traditional bloodletting, the game proceeded in typical fashion, with the seniors immediately falling behind by three points despite the valiant efforts put forth by their new teammates.

As the game progressed and the underclassmen began to smell the thrill of victory, the cadre, with some assistance from their shell-shocked senior teammates, began to methodically chip away at the opponent's demanding four-point lead.

Having lulled the young underclassmen into an unconscious state, the cadre, with some assistance from the seniors, tied the score at 5-5, with only three minutes remaining on the game clock.

As the underclassmen scrambled frantically to regroup in a last ditch effort to salvage the victory that was clearly theirs during the early stages of the game, the cadre, with some assistance from the seniors, calmly put the game away by scoring the final goal in dramatic fashion, with less than 10 seconds remaining on the game clock.

Final score: cadre and seniors 6, underclassmen 5; but, more importantly, the seniors broke their losing streak, after a two-year drought with some assistance from their bigger-than-life mentors. Way to go, guys; we had them all the way.

GAME HIGHLIGHTS

- Cadet Brierton, scored three goals in the final minutes of the game.

- CPT Kwortek's recorded one goal and two assists.

- Cadet Gregris gave a strong performance as goalie by allowing only one goal.

- Cadet Valari scored one goal on offense and stopped four more as goalie.

More photos from this year's Ranger Challenge.

- Cadet Oskey recorded two goals and one assist.
- Cadet "Cherry Picker" Oesterling had one goal and one assist.
- Cadet Fedder scored two points after attempting 35 shots on goal. Not a bad average.

RIFLE TEAM AIMS FOR CAMP DAWSON

The ROTC rifle team will compete this weekend at Camp Dawson in the Special Forces third annual marksmanship competition.

The Vulcans will be represented by two five-man teams which will compete against universities across Pennsylvania, Ohio, and West Virginia. Both teams should be highly competitive based on performances during practice sessions.

The A team will consist of cadets Husk, Morgan, Oesterling, Hilgner and Wills.

The B team will consist of cadets Brown, Deems, Pesi, Tinker and Trees.

Best of luck to the marksmanship team.

Shoot the lights out of the competition or don't come home.

VETERANS DAY PARADE

The California ROTC colorguard put on an outstanding performance for the Donora Veterans Day Parade.

Despite the cold and rain the cadets stood unwavering throughout the ceremony as they paid tribute to past and present veterans who have served their country proudly during peace and times of crisis.

The cadets who participated in the ceremony were truly symbolic of the proud American heritage associated with the Armed Forces.

Congratulations to cadets McCracken, Avolio, Oskey, and O'Hern on a job well done for this momentous occasion.

VETERANS DAY MESSAGE

Captain (CPT) Andrew Kwortek, a cadre member of the Cal U ROTC program was invited to be the guest speaker at the Penn State Fayette campus Veterans Day ceremony.

His message to the crowd that gathered on this day of reflections was one of hope, and strength in the long and proud tradition our Armed Forces have provided over the years.

The speech CPT Kwortek delivered focused on the positive and uplifting aspects of our nations illustrious military history but it also touched on the darker and less glamorous side of the military, the loss of our young men's and women's lives while serving under the American Flag, most recently during Operation Desert Storm.

The ROTC cadets also performed as part of the tribute to America's soldiers.

They provided a firing squad for the wreath laying ceremonies and the colorguard.

Members of the cadet colorguard were Cadets Jason Pesi, John Miller, John Cramer, and Tom Guthrie.

The members of the firing squad that also took part in the ceremonies were Cadets Scott Deems, John Tinker, Curt Brown, Tom McCracken, and Allen Trees.

ROTC OPTION

Worried about the ever rising tuition fees and overall cost of college? Well, maybe ROTC has some of the answers to your problems.

An ROTC scholarship can help cut the expense of college. Four-, three-, and two-year scholarships are available, and they are awarded on a competitive basis.

These scholarships will pay most tuition and on-campus educational expenses, as well as a flat rate for textbooks, classroom supplies and equipment.

In addition, you'll receive an allowance of up to $1,000 each school year the scholarship is in effect.

You will also receive pay for attending the six-week Advance Camp during the summer between your junior and senior years of college.

Add it all up, and it's easy to see how an Army ROTC scholarship can save you thousands of dollars in college costs and even put spending money in your pocket.

Water Problems

Angela Cooper

What has gone wrong, probably, is that we have failed to see ourselves as part of a large and indivisible whole...

Rolf Edberg

I don't know who Rolf Edberg is or was, but I found his words in an introductory ecology text...

strong words they are. I'm sure he doesn't mean to blame all of our environmental problems on the Judeo-Christian philosophy...

Usually, I'm not one for getting up on the soapbox, but I feel that I must address something that is having an impact not only on every one of us, but on our wildlife as well.

As you know, our area is experiencing a drought and has been all year. Rainfall has been below aver-

We have been asked before to be a little more conservative with our use of water, but we have this attitude of dominion—we can do whatever we want with the resource as long as we can pay for it.

All summer long, I saw people watering their lawns, washing their cars, and hosing down their sidewalks. I even saw a local fire company playing "battle of the barrel" on several occasions.

The authority's mandate includes a ban on:

- Watering lawns, gardens, and golf courses
•Non-commercial washing of vehicles
•Washing down streets, sidewalks, and driveways
•Ornamental use as in fountains and waterfalls
•Flushing of sewers and hydrants
•Use of hydrants for purposes other than firefighting
•Use of water to fill swimming pools

You may be thinking now that water is our most abundant natural resource. Yes, it is.

Water covers about 71 percent of the earth's surface and makes up 50 to 97 percent of the weight of all plant and animal life...

About 97 percent of the earth's water supply is found in the oceans and is too salty for most uses. Three quarters of the remaining 3 percent is bound up in glaciers...

Some of this is too expensive to tap and most of it is too polluted to drink, so we are left with .003 percent, or approximately 232,000 gallons, to serve every person on earth.

I can't stress enough how important it is that we become aware of our water use and our attitude toward it. Only you know how much water you use daily. Average daily home use per person is estimated at 1,953 gallons. Keep in mind, bathroom use accounts for 65 percent of residential water use.

Here are some common figures: We use about 2.5 gallons a minute for every shower we take; we use five gallons of water every time we flush a toilet; an average load in a washing machine exhausts 60 gallons of water...

For agricultural use, 40 gallons are required to produce one egg; one pound of flour requires 75 gallons, eight ounces of milk require 100 gallons, and 560 gallons are required to produce one pound of beef.

By now, I hope you're wondering what you can do to help conserve water. Here are some water-saving tips.

Not only will you reduce your water bill by following them, but you'll learn to get by on less water.

- Wash only full loads of clothes, using the short cycle.
•Check for leaks and repair them promptly.
•Don't let the water run while doing the dishes.
•Keep a bottle of cold water in the refrigerator.
•If you have to wait for the hot water to heat up, catch the cold water in a pot and use it to water your plants.

If you can save your gray water, use it to wash the car or water the garden.

Sweep the sidewalk instead of hosing it down.

Try not to use garbage disposals and water-softening systems.

Reduce the amount of water used to flush your toilet by using a plastic container weighted by pebbles to displace some of the water.

Don't use your toilet for a wastebasket or an ashtray.

Flush only when necessary. Take short showers instead of baths or use a small amount of water to bathe in.

Install a water-saving device on your shower.

Don't let the water run while shaving or brushing your teeth.

Hopefully, the drought won't worsen, but if it does, you'll know how to adapt if you follow some of these tips.

Let's hope we don't have to face the problems the people of Van Voorhis are having.

More than a week ago, the borough water company began shutting water off daily from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. because the well that supplied their water went dry and it was too expensive for the company to continue supplying the community with water.

ARE YOU AWARE?

by James Panarella Great American Smokeout

Of the following activities, which would you think would be the hardest to do:

- 1) Trying to find a parking space at California University.
2) Trying to hit one of "Doc" Gooden's fastballs.
3) Trying to quit smoking.

The first one is difficult, but possible. The second, although more difficult, can be done; just ask Tony Gwynn. But the last choice is one of the most difficult activities to accomplish in America.

There are so many smokers out there who want to quit, but just can't. Just ask any one of them. "I plan to quit next week," and "I am quitting. I'm just having one last cigarette," are the two most common responses. The fact is, people just can't give up their favorite vice, even though they constantly hear of the dangers involved, like lung cancer. Even when a smoker does try to give up "cold turkey", the withdrawal symptoms can be more than they can bare.

Out of this seemingly hopeless plight, comes hope. For those who want to quit, those CU students that smoke who have decided it's time to give up, the "Great American Smokeout" will be coming to our campus.

Sponsored by HEART, the event will take place as part of a special "Wellness Wednesday" on the November 20. HEART members will be on hand in the Student Union from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. to hand out brochures on the dangers of smoking to students. They will also hand out special "Adopt-A-Smoker" certificates.

These certificates are made for those students who want to help a friend quit smoking. The signers of the certificate "adopt" a smoker for a day and try to help him overcome his habit.

HEART has twice earned the GASPARD award for its "Great American Smokeout" events. The GASPARD is given to those college peer education groups that display creativity while informing the student body.

If you want to help a friend quit smoking, here are a few suggestions:

- 1) Agree to give up something you love dearly (e.g. candy, alcohol, coffee) in return for the pledge of the smoker's abstinence.
2) Provide your friend with a "survival kit" consisting of carrots, celery sticks, gum or straws to chew on.
3) Remember not to nag or threaten "your" smoker. He will have to do most of the work on his own.
At the end of the day, call him up and say "Congratulations!" and encourage him to make every day a "Great American Smokeout."

Post Doctoral Fellowships Offered by Department of Energy

Applications are now being accepted for Human Genome Distinguished Postdoctoral Fellowships.

These fellowships are sponsored by the United States Department of Energy and are administered by Oak Ridge Associated Universities.

Fellows in this program will conduct research related to DOE's Human Genome Program at participating laboratories around the United States.

This program was started in order to develop the tools, technologies, and resources required to decipher the molecular nature of the human genome.

Spanning the disciplines of biology, chemistry, physics, engineering, mathematics, and information science, the program seeks to improve current methods and to develop new ones for determining DNA sequences and for constructing complete physical maps for each human chromosome.

The program also works to develop effective software and data bases to support large-scale mapping and sequencing projects and to support investigations aimed at understanding the ethical, legal, and social implications of human genome research.

Appointments may be served at a variety of DOE or university laboratories.

Fellowships are awarded based on academic records, recommendations, compatibility of background and scientific interests with the needs of the research center, and the availability of funds, programs, staff, and facilities.

To be eligible, applicants must have received doctoral degrees or equivalents in appropriate disciplines within the three years prior to the beginning of their appointments.

The deadline for applications is Feb. 1, 1992.

Up to five new awards, with a first-year stipend of $35,000, will be announced in May 1992.

The program is open to all qualified U.S. citizens and permanent resident aliens without regard to race, sex, religion, color, age, handicap, national origin, or status as disabled veterans or veterans of the Vietnam War.

Write to Science/Engineering Education Division, Oak Ridge Associated Universities, P.O. Box 117, Oak Ridge, Tennessee 37831-0117, or call (615) 576-4805 to request an application packet.

GREEKS OF THE WEEK

Because we have SO MANY fine young ladies, we couldn't decide on only one Greek of the Week. So, we're hoping to share the title between them. We just want to say to them "Your dedication and loyalty to the sorority is greatly appreciated. We value each and every one of you as both a sister and a friend. Congratulations!"

CU To Hold First Technology Olympiad

California University will hold the third open house and the first Olympiad for its electrical engineering technology program on Friday, Nov. 22, from 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

The activities, held in the electronics laboratory on second floor of Coover Hall, are designed for high school seniors and juniors interested in science, engineering, and technology.

Teachers, guidance counselors, parents, and school administrators are also welcome to attend.

Three prizes will be awarded in each of three areas of Olympiad competition, including digital design, computer programming, and electronic troubleshooting.

A portable personal computer will be awarded as a door prize.

Students who wish to compete in the Olympiad should preregister. Others will be accommodated on a first-come, first-served basis.

High school students not wishing to compete are encouraged to attend to see the facilities, enjoy the day's activities, and register for the door prize.

All of the prizes are being sponsored by Nu-Metrics, Inc. of Vanderbilt, Pa. Dr. Harry Sampey, CEO, has been faithful over the years in his efforts to support the university and offer employment opportunities to its interns and graduates.

Sampey, who will attend the event with his staff, expressed his enthusiasm for the open house: "This event will attract quality students to the university who could become potential qualified employees for Nu-Metrics."

HELP WANTED

The ideal candidates will be graduating from college and need a job.

They will have a strong desire to meet more than 100 of the top regional employer, people who will offer more than 500 career opportunities.

If you fit the bill, gather at least 20 copies of your resume and come to Operation Native Talent (ONT), the region's most successful job fair, on January 2 and 3 at the Adam's Mark Hotel in Philadelphia.

That's where you'll meet with employers looking to hire people in more than 100 fields, including accounting, management, health care, engineering, retail and more. There's no preregistration, and it's free.

Resumes will be accepted and interviews given from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. both days of this event.

If you're interested in this promising career opportunity, call ONT at (215) 972-3980.

HISTORY OF THE STUDENT UNION II PROJECT

During the last five years, we have increasingly felt the space crunch in the California Memorial Union. The lobby is often overcrowded, meeting rooms are difficult to schedule, the multi-purpose room has become too small for most of our events. We have not expanded services because space does not exist for expansion. Storage rooms have been converted to offices. Radio, newspaper and television have been crammed into small areas. Student Government and the Student Association Board share an office. Important student organizations such as the Commuter/Adult Learners Organization, I.F.C., Panhel, Graduate Student Association and others have no office at all. SAI and Student Development personnel have jammed into any available nook. It was obvious that our union was too small.

Most of our sister campuses are in similar situations. Bloomsburg, Clarion, Edinboro, Indiana, Lock Haven, Mansfield, Millersville, Shippensburg and Slippery Rock are all in the process of renovating and adding to their student unions. Thirteen of the fourteen state universities are planning or have completed union projects. This appears to be a timely topic and one which should be seriously addressed.

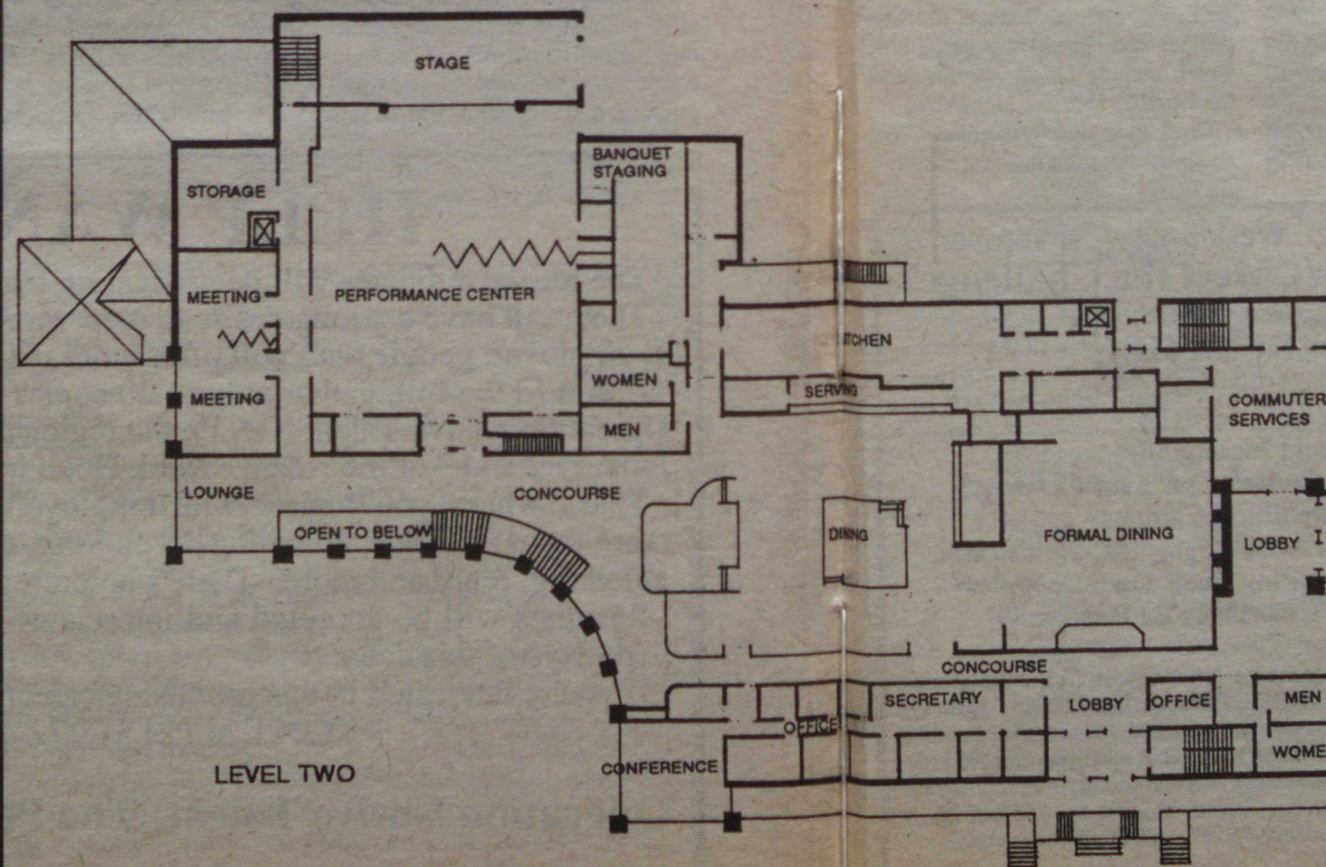

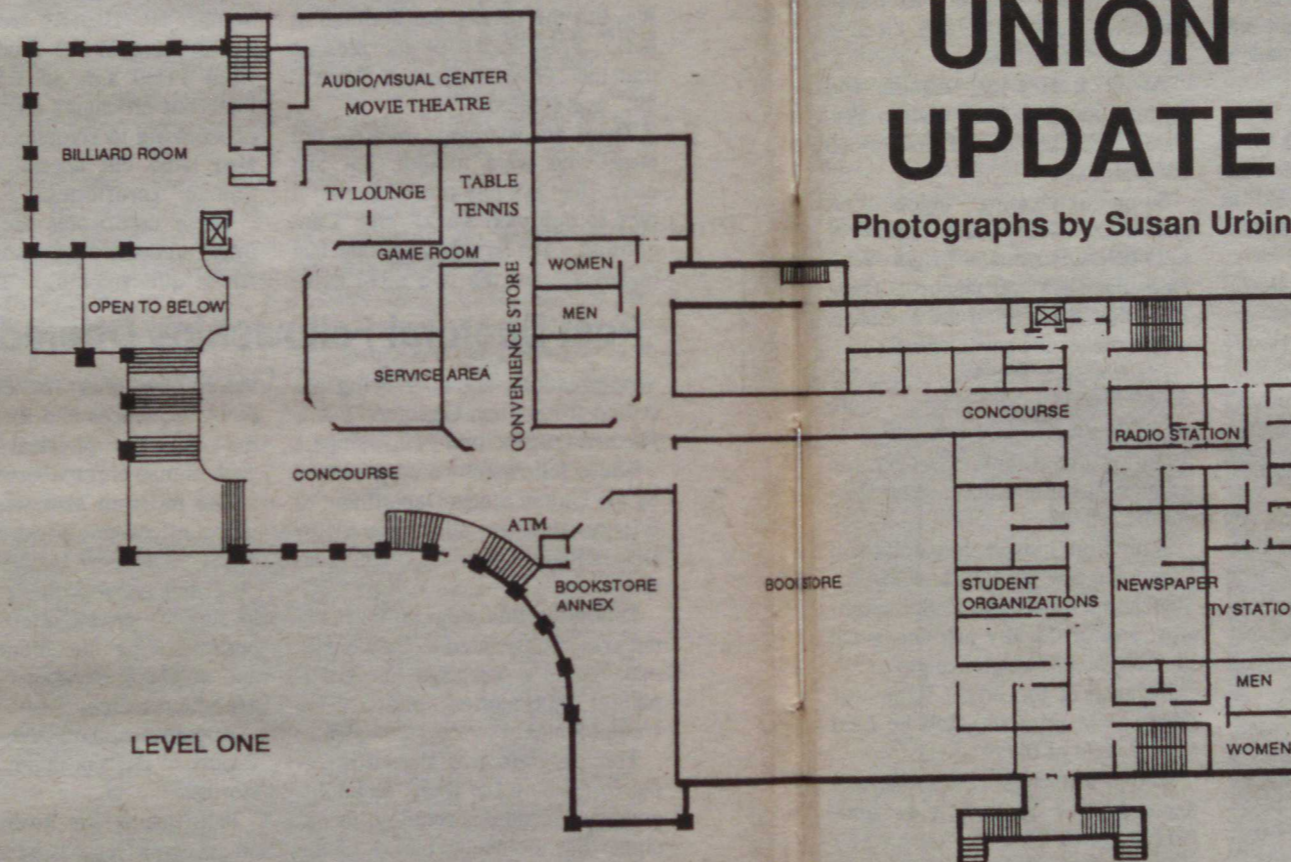

The Student Union Project Committee was appointed by the Vice President for Student Development to study the possibility of a student union renovation/addition project. This committee included faculty/staff representatives, as well as student members from a wide range of campus groups including: Student Government, Commuter Council, I.F.C., Panhel, Black Student Union, WVCS, California Times, Inter-Residence Hall, Council of Trustees and the Student Association.

The architectural firm of Williams, Trebilcock and Whitehead (WTW) was retained as the firm for the project. As well, nearly 500 students were polled to see what services they wanted in a renovated student union. Those results were reviewed by the project committee and given to WTW as guides to incorporate into their design for the union project. The project committee unanimously recommended to the Vice Presidents that we should proceed with the eight million dollar student union renovation/addition project. They also recommended that the union building fee of $10 be increased to $75 beginning with the Fall 1991 semester. However, only freshmen and sophomores would pay the full amount. Juniors would pay $37.50 and seniors would pay $10. This fee structure would remain in place for the Spring 1992 semester. In the Fall 1992 semester, all students would pay the entire fee. An August 1992 completion date was anticipated.

Actual construction began in May of 1991. As you look around and see the steel and brick rise, you should feel pride in the knowledge that this is YOUR student union. The students of California University have helped outline and design the union project from the very beginning. As we head into the 21st century, the students of California have insured a bright future for decades to come.

Baseball's Ugly Side

Matthew Peltz

The baseball season is over. The Minnesota Twins defeated the Atlanta Braves in a storybook series of 1990's last-place losers against 1991's champions.

All would seem well in the baseball world.

The World Series was a beautiful success—in fact it was one of the best World Series ever played. Game seven was a masterpiece of which baseball can surely be proud.

Fifteen days after the final game of the season a new season will begin.

The high-priced salary wars will begin, and the game suddenly looks ugly again.

Who will be the next highest-paid player? Who will knock Rog-Canseco was given a five-year, 23.5 million dollar package, eclipsing Henderson and Puckett.

The real shocker came when Clemens was given a contract worth 5.2 million a year, setting the present limit.

The Japanese leagues are determined to set that price even higher. If they were willing to pay Bob Horner, a disappointing power hitter during his stint in the major leagues, 2.4 million a year, imagine what they would be willing to pay a player like Canseco.

Japanese investors are now interested in purchasing a major league team.

The Cleveland Indians seem the most logical choice to be sold. (Hey, they could even change their er Clemens off his 5.2 million dollar roost?

Possibly Jack Morris, World Series MVP; Bobby Bonilla, MVP candidate; or Danny Tartabull, who is coming off of his best season in the Major Leagues. All have a chance at commanding the biggest bucks.

Who knows?

Mike Lavalliere might become the highest-paid player. With the outrageous salary insanity it's not all together impossible.

Just a year ago three million dollars was the going rate for the highest paid player. Kirby Puckett signed a contract worth nine million dollars for three years.

Just days later Rickey Henderson was given a contract worth 12 million over four years. This seemed to be the limit.

Three million should have been the limit, but that was far from it. Henderson's own teammate Jose logo to appease the Indian activists. How about the Cleveland Nips?)

If this happens, player salaries will most likely go even higher than the already ridiculous standard. There is nothing much commissioner Fay Vincent could do either. You can't block a sale just because the buyer is Japanese.

The baseball owners have to unite to combat this salary insanity. Owners like Gene Autry and the now deposed George Steinbrenner consistently ruin the market by giving big bucks to players who simply aren't worth it.

The last time the owners agreed on something, they got slapped with a multi-million dollar lawsuit by the Players Association.

One thing the owners are starting to agree on is the idea of a profit-sharing network, one that works in much the same way as the NBA's sharing the profits and keeping the league financially even.

Such a step must be taken if baseball is going to remain a competitive sports entertainment.

Who will watch if the same financially gifted teams are in the World Series every year?

It hasn't come to that yet, but one day it might. The day of the six-million dollar player might not be that far in the future.

When that day comes teams like the Mariners, White Sox, Expos, Brewers, Pirates and the Twins, all considered small-market teams, may not be able to compete.

Maybe there really is nothing to worry about.

Both teams in the World Series shelled out low amounts of money in the off-season, and look where they ended up.

The Kansas City Royals and the California Angels have the highest payrolls and they couldn't even put together respectable seasons.

Money can buy great players, but a championship team has to be molded through time and patience. Thank God!

Campus Ministry Presents : up Words
 Magic Has AIDS! Rev. Cletus Hull

Earvin "Magic" Johnson has AIDS! The story struck fear, anger and sadness into the hearts of millions.

How could this be? Why him? The cry was heard from coast to coast.

I have met young people who are disillusioned. Others are just plain shocked.

I have to admit that the news did not hit me that well either. I have enjoyed watching Magic dribble and shoot that orange-colored ball for years. He amazed and dazzled me with his athletic ability.

But the one aspect of his play for which I remember him the most was his smile and happy personality. The guy was always smiling and having a good time.

Even when his team did not get the breaks, Magic seemed to say, "That's the way the ball bounces."

Now, however, the ball has not only bounced out of bounds, but out of his life. His fabulous career is over and he says that he will go on with living.

He says that he will promote AIDS awareness and safe sex, but I wish that he would go a step further.

How about abstinence or a monogamous relationship?

Michael Jordan agrees with this idea. AIDS is a killer disease—it is not exclusive and takes no survivors.

If I were with him today I would say, "Hey Magic, I respect you a lot and believe many people admire your accomplishments. Tell the public that abstinence and marriage to one person would help with controlling this devastating disease. You have a good idea, but one additional step could make all the difference in the world."

I pray that Magic and all persons infected with the HIV virus will be treated with compassion and understanding.

But I also hope that we will finally get the message that safe sex is abstinence or a permanent marital relationship.

Friends from California University Aid Navajos

by Rachel Cimino Steele

The tinsel on the street lights, the holiday dressing in the window and the increasingly crowded shopping malls—these are all familiar signs that Christmas is upon us.

The feeling of anticipation during this holiday is universal. Unfortunately not everyone's expectations are always met.

Somewhere on a Navajo reservation in the West there are more than 1500 children and their families awaiting the Christmas season just as we are. However, theirs may end only in disappointment.

But now they have a friend. Actually several friends.

Friends from California University is a fall service project formed by Kappa Delta Pi to assist the Navajo children and their families. Members of the organization are collecting donations of books, learning materials, toys, clothes, and even linens and household items.

So how did awareness of the Navajos' difficulties become known in California, Pennsylvania?

Dr. JoAnn Nelson, a professor in the Education department, read a letter to her students one day. The author of the letter, Kathy Griffin, is a CU student who is student teaching on a reservation.

"It just fit into my lesson plan," said Nelson. "I was talking about being aware of the mental needs of a child but not aware of the needs of the whole child."

"And then I read the letter to the class," she recalls.

In the letter Griffin told of the lack of teaching supplies and other necessities at the school.

"It was the right moment, the right spot and the right people," Nelson said. The support was immediate and has continued growing.

"We have already received a complete set of 1991 World Book Encyclopedias," she said. The donor was CU graduate Stephanie Kline.

Steve Irvin and Fran Cooke are two other CU students student teaching on the reservations. All three are non-traditional students and maintain above a 3.0 GPA.

Dr. Marilyn Stanard, chairwoman of Educational Studies, has visited the reservations. "It is a fantastic experience," said Standard. "It is very much like a Peace Corps or VISTA experience."

Cooke also wrote a letter to the university. She described the lack of Christmas presents available to distribute to the children. In the letter she says that the prospect of Christmas on the reservation is "pretty dismal."

Other organizations helping with the project are Stanley and Clyde halls, ROTC, the Thrashers, Alpha Phi Omega, Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship, Phi Sigma Pi and the President's Commission for Women.

All contributions must be made by Thanksgiving to allow time for shipping. Donations can be dropped off on the seventh floor of Stanley Hall, in Dr. Nelson's or Mr. Lazor's offices in Keystone, or in the Writing Center. Kappa Delta Pi has voluntarily agreed to pay for the shipping costs.

Everyone loves to play Santa. Join the sharing and become a Friend from California University.

It might turn out to be the Navajos' best Christmas yet. And yours too.

Charity Jam

California University's Student Earth Action League sponsored the first in a string of charity jams on Thursday, Nov. 7. The event, featuring local bands, was held in the Gold Rush from 7 to 11 p.m.

Dr. Phillip Y. Coleman, the faculty advisor of SEAL, opened the show with comments concerning the group's function on campus and the purpose of the jam. Monetary donations would be forwarded to the California Senior Center for its annual Thanksgiving Dinner. Canned goods brought in by students went to the Jubilee Soup Kitchen in Uniontown.

Catch XXII, with an ever-growing CU following, took the stage to wow the crowd. Given the band's limited time, the set contained all original material. In between bands CU student Jami F. Marlowe read poetry and introduced newcomers The Sheppards, who mixed classic rock tunes with originals.

Dr. Coleman also read poetry as Subrosa set up. Although not pictured, the band added a pinch of variety to the night with their hard alternative sound.

The much acclaimed Lumpy Gravy finished the night, playing crowd-pleasing originals like "So Far in the Distance."

Considered a success by President Sonja Jenness, more SEAL charity jams are planned for the future.

by Elizabeth Forward Over the past few years, California University's women's athletic programs have enjoyed remarkable success, and continuing this trend last weekend was the Cal women's volleyball team, which won its first-ever PSAC championship. Coached by Jing Pu, the Lady Vulcans finished their finest season in school history by upsetting Shippensburg and Edinboro last weekend at Shippensburg's Heiges Fieldhouse to win the state title. Cal finished this fall with a 35-8 overall record and 26-7 record in best-of-five competition. "The whole team gave over a one hundred percent effort and scored an A-plus in those two tough volleyball tests," said Pu, Cal's second-year head coach, who led the Lady Vulcans to a 15-20 overall showing in 1990. "We do not have as much height or hitting power as most of the other teams in our conference, but we have a lot of confidence, mental toughness, team cohesion and passing/defensive ball control. "In order to win the PSAC tournament we had to stretch our abilities to the limit and play as well as we can and we did this." Cal began its first-ever PSAC Final Four appearance with a tense 3-2 come-from-behind win over PSAC-East champion Shippensburg, which defeated Cal during the regular season 3-1. The game scores in the semifinal win were 15-12, 6-15, 5-15, 15-9 and 15-5. Sophomore middle hitter Mary Doerzbacher (Baldwin) led Cal in kills (15) and blocks (3), while freshman outside hitter Krista Stoudt (Bethlehem/Liberty HS) recorded 10 kills and 12 digs. Sophomore defensive specialist Heather Lucas (Baldwin) also had 12 digs and junior setter Jackie Wilson (Norwin) produced 38 assists. On Sunday afternoon, Cal won the PSAC championship with a stunning 3-1 win over two-time defending state titlist Edinboro, which defeated the Lady Vulcans three times during the regular season. The game scores in the title game were 15-11, 3-15, 15-13 and 15-13. Freshman middle hitter Gina Pallo (Norwin) led Cal in kills and blocks with 17 and 10 respectively, while Stoudt responded in the clutch match with 22 digs and 13 kills. Wilson accumulated 52 assists and Doerzbacher added 16 kills, 17 digs and five blocks. Lucas had 14 digs. Named to the All-Tournament team from California were Wilson, Stoudt and Doerzbacher. "The individual honors are really for the whole group," Pu said. "We may not have one or two outstanding players, but everyone is real decent. "Our strength is our team balance. I'm very proud of this team and what it has accomplished." Edinboro finished its season with a 29-5 overall record and East Stroudsburg beat host Shipp 3-2 in the consolation match to finish third and 13-8 overall. Shippensburg ended with an 18-9 overall record. The other members of the 1991 PSAC championship California women's volleyball team are senior outside hitter Angie Barron (Greenville), sophomore hitter Ellen Petty (Broad Run, VA), freshman outside hitter Nikki Dibble (Tunkhannock), sophomore outside hitter Sheree Norris (Monongahela/Ringold HS) and sophomore setter Karen Peters (Salisbury, MD). Pu's assistant coach is Mike Feorene, while the student assistant is Mike Rumbaugh. Brian Colangelo was the volleyball student trainer this past season.

NOTES: Cal's PSAC women's volleyball title is the school's third state title in 1991...Earlier this fall, Cal's women's tennis team won the PSAC title at Lancaster and the Lady Vulcan softball team bagged the state title last spring at Williamsport...Cal's women's basketball team has made the PSAC playoffs each of the past three years...Before this stretch of women's athletic excellence, Cal had won only four PSAC team titles since 1979: (baseball-1979; football-1984; men's basketball-1985 and 1988)...Neither the Cal volleyball team nor the tennis team had won even a conference regular season match prior to this fall...Collecting two PSAC individual plaques in 1991 was Heather Lucas, who is also a member of the championship softball team...The Cal women's volleyball team also thanks all the Vulcan Mania fans who made the glorious trip to Shipp. Who rocks the house? State champion Cal U volleyball rocks the house! Indeed.
