Solenberger, AAA Member, Attends Phila. Conference

Mr. Robert Solenberger, a member of the faculty of the Department of Social Studies at Bloomsburg State College, attended the Sixtieth Annual Meeting of the American Anthropological Association held recently at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel, the Commercial Museum, and the University of Pennsylvania Museum in Philadelphia.

Nearly 300 papers, encompassing a variety of scientific subjects, were presented during the three and a half day meeting. The subjects ranged from problems of classification in the study of the primates to entomology and the use of anthropology in overseas programs.

A member of the Anthropological Association since 1940, Mr. Solenberger, on two previous occasions has been at the annual event. This year, in cooperation with six other participants, his presentation encompassed "Multilingualism and Socio-Cultural Organization."

Mr. Solenberger spoke to Dr. Eugene I. Knez, Associate Curator, Division of Ethnology, Smithsonian Institute, and found that he is looking forward to a two-day visit to the Bloomsburg campus sometime in April 1962. Dr. Knez will meet with sociology classes and other campus groups during his visit.

Mr. Solenberger joined the BSC faculty in August of 1960. His study research, teaching and assignments have taken him to 46 of the 50 states, as well as tours of Mexico, Guam, Canada, the Mari-

'62 Publications Re-vamp Styles

"Bigger and better" seems to be the motto of BSC's annual publications' staff as they revamp styles and incorporate new ideas.

The Obiter met its first deadline with the submission of the first sixty-four pages to the publishing company. This year's staff has planned to have the pictures of the seniors larger and it is thought that the lay-out plan in the '62 edition will be different from the plans of any previous issue.

In the field of activities, many action shots of the senior student teachers will be a new addition in this year's publication. It is also planned to have more photos of spring activities rather than the former concentration on those of the fall.

The Olympian editor, Roger Breidinger, has announced that bids from publishers are now being received, and a new cover is being designed by Paul Bingaman, Art Editor.

The deadline for articles will be January 31. Fiction, non-fiction, prose, poetry, photographic essays and one act plays will be accepted.

anas and Palau Islands in the Pacific area. Mr. Solenberger served as the District Anthropologist at Saipan for the U. S. Department of the Interior; he has done field and documentary research on legal and governmental problems of the New York State Iroquois reservations for the Association on American Indian Affairs Inc. and has written a number of papers for publication concerning the Chamorro and Carolinian Islanders of the Mariannas.

Course Schedule Is Announced for Graduate Classes

The following schedule of classes for the three courses to be offered to graduate students the second semester of the 1961-1962 college term was announced by Dr. Thomas B. Martin, Director of Graduate Studies at Bloomsburg: First period, 8:40 a.m.-10:30 a.m., Corporation Finance (for Business Education Students); Second period, 10:40 a.m.-12:30 p.m., Major Philosophies of Education (for both Elementary and Business Education Students). These classes will begin Saturday, January 27, and will end Saturday, May 19. There will be no class meeting on April 21, due to Easter recess.

The graduate program at Bloomsburg is arranged to permit teachers-in-service to secure permanent certification and earn graduate credits without interfering with normal professional duties.

Enrollment is still open for classes during the second semester. Graduate students, or those who wish to begin graduate study, can secure copies of the Graduate Bulletin and the application for admission to graduate studies by writing or calling Dr. Thomas B. Martin, Director of Graduate Studies, Bloomsburg State College, Bloomsburg, Pennsylvania.

Education Abroad Discussed by BSC Professor George

"Education Abroad" was the topic of an informative speech given at the regular December meeting of Phi Sigma Pi by Mr. H. George, BSC faculty member. He discussed American educational institutions established in the Near East in order to "help the areas to help themselves."

These colleges in Istanbul, Cairo, and Beirut train native personnel who then teach their fellow countrymen. This system is helping to improve the economic, political, educational, and social conditions of these relatively under-developed countries.

Mr. George stated "that at present there is very little lip-service being given to these institutions and the monumental work being accomplished by them. A great need exists for recognition and publicity of their work."

DECEMBER

This is the time of the image, new and rising above the snow and cold of a lonely December. We feel the warm realization of actual new things rising out of old space, from the holy center of all that is. Recall the greatest Star preceding tremendous vision for humankind, and born beneath this holy light, Christ. And by the manger Wise men, Shepherds, and cattle paid silent homage while Angels sang the greatest birth.

New Members Are Welcomed in Kappa Delta Pi

Twenty-nine outstanding students became members of the Gamma Beta Chapter of Kappa Delta Pi during a recent formal initiation ceremony. The students accepted by this co-educational honor society in education are: Frances Guro, Marjorie Morgan, Carol Rance, Carol Edwards, Ruth Ann Moyer, Janis Bingaman, Joyce Welker, Jessie Reppy, Maryellen Roberts, Paul Bingaman, James Case, Jacquelyn Wiser, Alice Marcinko, Jane Petusky, Kay Troy, Edna Yurick, Joanne Tenzyk, Laura Mae Brown, William Martin, Jere Hock, Frederick Minnick, Thomas Searer, Ronald Gerhart, Wanda Kline, Virginia Nork, Shirley Brosius, Carol Lee Jones, Harry Cole, and John Vincent.

The previous issue of the Maroon and Gold contained an announcement of a series of films to be presented by the American Association of University Women. Since that article was published there has been a change in the policy of admission to the programs. Instead of a series charge of $2.50, BSC students will be admitted free of charge. There will be a charge of $5.00 for the series and $1.00 for admission to a single film for all non-BSC persons who wish to attend.

Novice Debaters Continue Success

BSC won four and lost four debates in the recent Temple University Novice Tournament. The club sent two teams to the tournament; the members of the affirmative team were Robert Brann and Charles Scarantino, and the negative team members were Lucy Zablocky and John Natras.

The affirmative team debated City College of New York and Howard University, and the negative team took the decision from the City College of New York and St. Elizabeth, New Jersey.

Dr. Melville Hopkins, Director of Debate, said, "I was very happy with the results of the tournament, (Continued on page 3)

Extended Library Hours Approved; Effective Jan. 3

The extension of Library hours proposed by the College Council and recommended by the Library Policy Committee has been approved by Dr. Harvey A. Andruss and will go into effect January 3, 1962.

The changes made are the extension of closing time to 10:00 Sunday through Friday and opening at 3:30 on Sunday. The hours for Saturday have not been changed. It had formerly been suggested that the library should close during the dinner hour. This will not be necessary. However, several new student librarians will be appointed and work schedules will be rearranged.

At the present, the library contains over 45,000 volumes and hopes to increase the amount considerably within the next two or three years. Long-range planning calls for the construction of a new library building, the plans of which are now being studied.

Glamour Contest Nominations Are Received by M&G

Recommendations for "The Best Dressed College Girls in America," the sixth Glamour sponsored contest, are being received by the MAROON AND GOLD for nomination from BSC.

The purpose of the contest is to show college women that careful thought to appearance is an important part of an education; that good looks, good grooming, and a good mind are all a part of the outstanding young woman of today—and that these attributes can be rewarding.

The young women picked for "top ten" honors will be photographed for the August issue of GLAMOUR and will be the guests of GLAMOUR in a trip to New York City. During these two weeks they will take part in a glamorous fashion show at Carnegie Hall, will be "wined, dined, and gifted," and will tour points of interest in the city. The ten winners, and their colleges, will receive national recognition in GLAMOUR and in newspapers across the country.

Joyeux Noel at Ben Franklin

Children at the Benjamin Franklin Laboratory School are learning about Christmas this year with foreign words and phrases in French and Spanish.

In the fifth grade, Miss Carimar Shultz, a senior, is teaching French two periods a week. The children are well-acquainted with Miss Shultz who has worked with them for approximately two years.

As part of the lessons, the children learn simple words and phrases, songs, and games which aid them in the use and appreciation of the second language.

Concert Presentation Enjoyed By All

The Choraleers, Elementary Choir, and Brass Ensemble join forces in performing the beautiful "Gloria in Excelsis" as the final number of their program. The program was under the direction of Miss Mildred Blagrove with the help of Mrs. Dorothy Evans, Dr. Charles Carlson, and Mr. William Cope. Ushers were members of the Hospitality Committee.

FROSH SET THE PACE

If the recent Freshman Class election was any evidence of class spirit those students are to be commended. One can see the enthusiasm and interest of the Frosh in the number that voted in the general election for class officers. The percentage of the freshmen who appeared at the polls for the general election was 72.39. Of the 659 freshmen at BSC, 477 exercised their voting privilege.

Vigorous Campaigning

During the primary election 427 freshmen voted for 23 candidates — 64.33 per cent. In the primaries there were three nominees for president, five for vice president, four for treasurer, three for secretary, four for man representative, two for woman representative and two for advisor. A large number of students showed willingness to serve their fellow classmates. As the time for election came near there was a period of very vigorous campaigning. Posters, cards, and pictures showed that freshman candidates were contributing much time and energy to winning election.

Freshmen Politically Minded

Are the freshmen more politically minded than most students? This was apparent. It also seems to be an indication of their interest in the college community. Such interest is needed on campus where many students tend to lead a passive existence or even "passive resistance" to college activities.

The success of many activities and the general level of school spirit is usually determined by active participation. Thus the class of 1965 shows much promise of success in their future projects. Their activity in this election has shown their interest in the college. However, we offer a challenge to this class—Can you maintain this high level of interest?

Lest We Forget Our Musical Emissaries

Plaudits to our talented musical organizations who presented an outstanding Christmas program in a series of three concerts this past week. The Choraleers have been active on this campus for a number of years, but this semester's achievements are especially noteworthy. Too often this group is taken for granted—just "another extra-curricular activity." Many people do not realize the great amount of work that goes on behind the scenes in this organization. In addition to extra weekly rehearsals, members give freely of their own time to prepare for concerts; and since we have no school of music on the campus, the voices in this group are for the most part untrained. Personal effort and hard work have resulted in a quality of music that approaches the professional level.

Efforts of Three Groups

Students who do a little more than pass the time and occupy space during assembly programs have noticed some exceptional additions to our musical family. The Choraleers, resplendent in new maroon robes and gold mantles, opened the Christmas activities supported by the recently organized Freshman Girls Chorus. In addition, the fifth and sixth grade choir of the Benjamin Franklin School, singing in two-part harmony, showed that age has no bearing upon the amount of talent one has. The brass choir of the Maroon and Gold Band accompanied the combined choruses. Backdrops and special effects were also the work of the Choraleers and members of the Bloomsburg Players under the direction of Mr. Cope.

We also congratulate Miss Bisgrove, directress of the Choraleers and Benjamin Franklin Choir; Mrs. Evans, who directs the Freshman Girls Chorus, and Dr. Carlson, band director. We are all cognizant of the prowess of our athletes; how many realize that our musicians work just as hard, nearly as long, and represent BSC equally as well?

Notes & Quotes

by SUE HALKYARD

Some people can remember the "good old days" when Christmas was a house filled with the pleasant aroma of freshly-baked cookies; the luxuriously scented trees didn't begin to line curbstones until well after the last of the Thanksgiving leftovers had found their way into the hash, and children still believed that Santa Claus came from the North Pole on Christmas eve in a sleigh filled with presents. Today we are in the jet age and Santa's sleigh is as outmoded as a Model-T Ford. The Christmas season begins sometime in October when the store windows are filled with lavish displays and the public is swamped with advertising advising them to "shop early for Christmas." Christmas has become the property of the money-hungry world of the merchants. He, whose parents couldn't even find a bed for his resting place, has a birthday party which is measured by nothing quite so important as the volume of sales.

Morals and Materialism

Many people are resentful of this ever-increasing commercialism of the birthday of Christ; they say this is one good measure of the moral depravity of man in the materialistic world of the present day. "Love thy neighbor" has become virtually an impossible task and "peace on earth" belongs only in the words of a song. It may be that the large majority of us are not at all concerned with this "commercialism." The following are opinions given by your fellow-students on the question, "Is Christmas too commercialized?"

In a sense it's too commercialized because it affects those who cannot afford it; these people will often go into debt to obtain gifts for their families as a result of high-powered advertising. Thus the real meaning of the gift is ignored and the emphasis is on value alone.

Al Geasy (Junior)

We should all remember during this season that very old admonition: "It's not what we give, but what we share—for the gift without the giver is bare."

Sam Keiser (Sophomore)

The business man may be partly to blame for the over-commercialism of Christmas, but the public in general are the real offenders. After all they are the ones who do the buying and all the people are not gullible enough to be influenced by "pressure advertising."

Nick Monatesta (Freshman)

Yes. The idea of Christ has been forgotten by most industries. Santa Claus has replaced Christ in the Christmas spirit.

Peter Fleming (Freshman)

Yes. I do not want to feel obligated to buy presents at Christmas but rather to celebrate the birth of Christ.

Joe Kressler (Sophomore)

The spirit of giving during Yuletide has been degraded to the point where the average person only looks forward to what he will receive for Christmas.

Bill Hoosty (Freshman)

Yes. People are too far away from the religious spirit. Advertising begins before Thanksgiving. We should get back on the religious theme.

Bonnie Gray (Sophomore)

Letters To Santa

The Maroon and Gold wishes to announce the winners of the Letters to Santa Contest. The first prize letters were written by Faye Scheidt, a junior in business education, and Bill Nelson, a freshman in secondary education. A letter by Wanda Kline, a junior in special education, receives honorable mention. Merchandise prizes, valued at $25 each, will be awarded to the winning contestant today in the M & G office. These are the letters submitted by the above contestants:

Dear Santa,

I'm not so good at writing letters, but I would like you to consider my requests. I could think of dozens of articles I would like for Christmas, but I think these are most desired.

I would like a yard stick to measure all the love in the world, and a shovel to bury all the hate.

A hanky to dry the tears of the sad people would do fine, together, with a Donald Duck comic book to make them smile.

And last, I would like a magic carpet to take me to the highest point and then a pall of spring water to rinse the world of all its troubles and make it clean and fresh again.

Santa, these are such little requests that could do so much good. Please see what you can do.

Thank you,
Faye Scheidt

P.S. You don't have to wrap them.

Letter of Honorable Mention

Dear Santa Claus:

Last week I dropped my glasses and the lenses fell out. I went to my eye doctor, and he fixed them up real good. But I think he goofed; you see, everything I do looks backward to other people—my profs tell me I'm backwards anyway. I want to buy Lenny a special present, but I don't know if it costs twenty-nine dollars or ninety-two dollars. Will you please send me a new pair of glasses because I only have thirty dollars in the bank. My roommate checked these figures for me, I live in Waller Hall, room 471.

Wanda Kline

Dear Santa,

I am writing this letter in hopes that I am in high standing on your gift list. Now I'll have to admit I haven't been the best boy in the world for the past 15 or 20 years, but I am one of the top three.

The few minor mischievous acts that I became involved in were merely quirks of fate.

Surely you don't think my friend and I would have pushed my Grandfather's out-house over had we known he was in it! I most certainly wouldn't have led that horse up to the third floor of the air police barracks and shot him if I knew they were going to have to cut him into little pieces to carry him out. Do you think for one minute, that I would have brought a pet alligator home from Florida if I knew he was going to eat my Mother's Toy Terrier? As you can see, sir, fate has been dealing to me from the bottom of the deck.

Knowing that you are a considerate and understanding individual, I have prepared the following list of articles I would like for Christmas:

A book of witty remarks, so I won't be pressed for an answer when someone says hello to me. A Dromedary Camel because only seniors are allowed to have cars. A large economy size bottle of No-Doze Pills so I can increase my pinocle playing time from 10 to 13 hours a day. A quickie-meter so I'll know when to cut classes to keep from slunking those quickies.

A private telephone line in my home to avoid finding out the current condition of Mrs. Smith's varicose veins before being able to get through to my girl's house.

Copies of all next semester's tests so that I can become a sophomore. A sleeping bag and tent, for the weather is beginning to get cold and my mother is still bitter over the loss of her Toy Terrier.

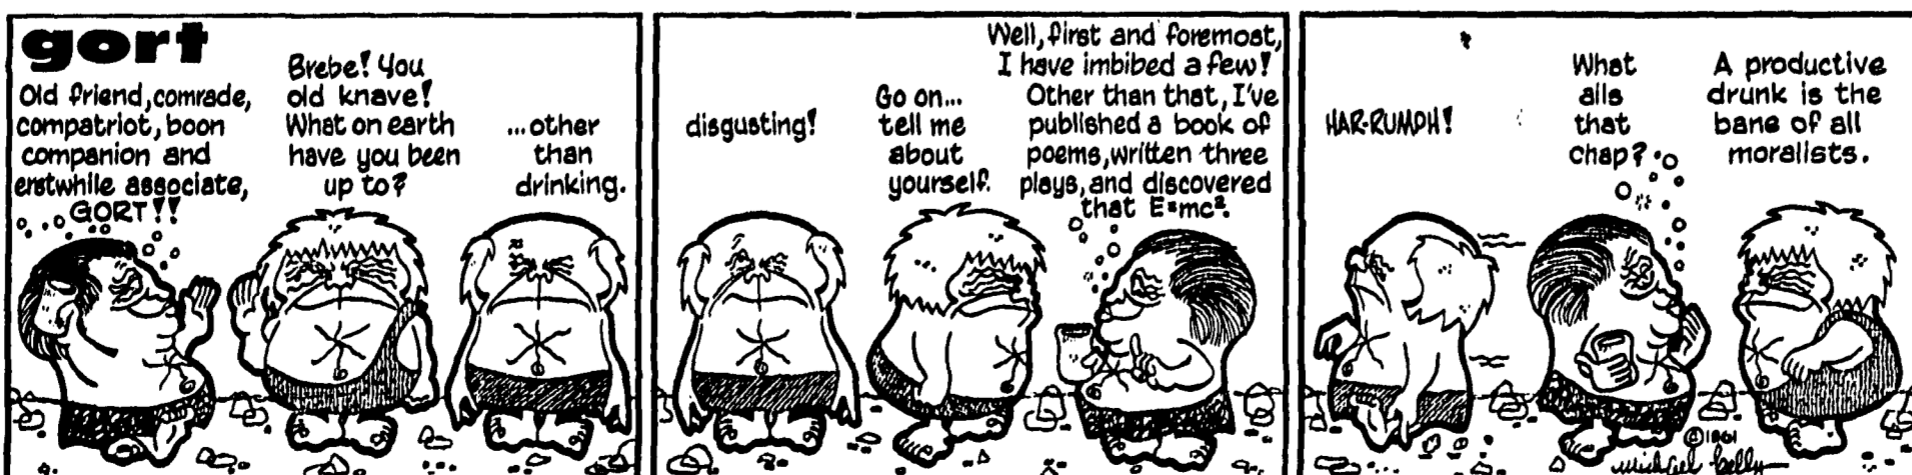

A do-it-yourself bomb scare kit to add variety to this dull life. A pack of Popple Seeds so I can make my fortune selling opium, and

A pair of dark glasses for those Saturday morning classes.

That, Santa, is all that I am requesting. I hope you are successful in being able to acquire all the articles on my list.

Love and lollipops,
Bill Nelson

P.S. Be especially careful when you are going through the Pocos because there is about a whole herd of guys up there who jack-light deer. I'd hate to see you grounded on the only night of the year that your old lady lets you out!

Miss Vanderslice To Visit Panama

by Nan Jo Tarone

Everyone dreams of going on an exciting trip. Well, Miss Priscilla Vanderslice's dream will come true in the near future. Miss Vanderslice, who is secretary to Dr. Johnson, will embark on a trip to Panama. She will leave by air on February 4, 1962 and return three weeks later.

While there, Priscilla will visit with her father's family and live with her aunt. She will tour the interesting sites of Panama, and enjoy a very exciting vacation. The favorable weather conditions there during February should add to the enjoyment of such a trip.

Previous to this, Miss Vanderslice has not traveled any great distance. She is excitedly anticipating her journey.

Le Cercle Francais

Les membres du Cercle Francais se sont amuses pendant une fete de Noel chez Madame Egger le quinze Decembre. (Translation for all "qui ne parlent pas francais": Members of Le Cercle Francais enjoyed a Christmas Party held in Miss Egger's apartment on December 15.)

French carols, games and refreshments highlighted the "fete." All conversation was conducted in French, according to the club rules. Mr. Fenstermaker and Miss Egger are acting as advisors to the club.

Sigma Alpha Eta

A Christmas party was recently given for the special education class of the Benjamin Franklin Elementary School, the Selinsgrove State School and the speech therapy classes from the college Speech and Hearing Clinic by the Speech and Hearing Fraternity, Sigma Alpha Eta. A visit from Santa Claus, games, entertainment, and refreshments highlighted the evening.

"Merry Christmas" Dads

by SUE HALKYARD

"Twas the night before Christmas"— Well, that's the way the old story goes. It's time an inspired lunatic wrote a realistic classic providing his mind is clear enough to remember. If it's dedicated to the impoverished dads, it would go something like this:

"Twas the night after Christmas and all through the rooms not one spot remained . . .

(now what rhymes with rooms?) The stockings once hung by the chimney with care were littered about—the mess everywhere!

The children were watching the late, late show and hoping that tomorrow would bring no more snow

Ma in her face cream and with chagrin

Were viewing the wreckage of toys that "had been."

The rockets and guns 'neath the tree almost bare

Were scattered and tattered Beyond much repair

The children were trading and giving away

The gifts bought with love and most of my pay.

Ma had her mink coat Wrapper round her in bed And I tried to sleep Dread of debt in my head and the Santas had gone where all good Santa's may Back to the ranks of the D. P. A.

The spirit of Christmas Oh long may it live For those rich enough to receive and to give While the rest of us fools Work, slave, and decay So junior can have a "great" Christmas day.

Now I'm not the one to gripe and complain But she's talking of shopping and starting again The wish to the stores, her face white with fear That she won't be done by September this next year.

In The Commons

by JINNY HESEL

Whiz! Want to set any speed records in getting to class on time? I'm speaking of the new breakfast line in the Commons. For those BSC students that are late retirees and unfortunately have an eight o'clock class—the Continental breakfast line is for you! You can have a quick, nourishing breakfast of fruit juice, toast, assorted cereals, coffee, cocoa, tea, and milk—and still make that class.

However, if you are one of those individuals who prefers a big breakfast, are fortunate enough not to have an eight o'clock class, or who just likes to arise with the sun, you may take advantage of the regular breakfast line. Here you will get your ordinary breakfast meal.

This new line is being initiated on a trial basis. If the line is successful, it will be continued permanently. The even line is for those preferring a continental breakfast; the regular line for those preferring the regular breakfast.

This Is Christmas

by Dave Anderson

Snow, smiles, church and songs; this is Christmas. Many people have said that Christmas has become too commercialized. Perhaps it has, yet, Christmas is Christmas as long as the spirit is there. It is this same spirit that gives me the courage to face the world with a feeling of hope which gives me a faith in mankind.

I know for sure that there is a God. There must be! If not, we die without purpose of living.

With the Christmas spirit in us, people are people and not mere "punch clock monsters", Humanity loves humanity, they love life, God, the world. They love Love.

If Christmas were 365 days a year, I would truly hate to die, for Christmas is my idea of heaven. People walk around with a sincere smile on their faces, no matter whether it be friend, foe or stranger.

I know that on Christmas Eve I will go to Church. After praying, I will look around and see the splendor of God personified and I will say, "Hello God. I'm here. Remember me? It's been a long time—too long and for this I'm sorry. Forgive me." I will feel as pure as the snow. As pure as the snow.

contamination will affect you very much. With the loss of most of the bait fish and vegetation, which provide food for the game fish, it will be years before the fishing recovers. The furbearing animals won't stay around bad water so you can expect the furbearing population to show a drastic decrease. The harm done by the mine water will also have its influence upon the duck hunters. With the loss of aquatic life and small fish, geese will probably find new waterways with food to meet their needs. Another interesting consequence of the bad water is it has driven great schools of carp, suckers, and chubs into the streams that feed the river. These rough fish are unwelcome guests in the fine trout and bass streams that flow into the river.

Old Friend

To some sportsmen, the contamination of the river will be felt like the death of an old friend. How long it will be before this old friend can be brought back to life is anyone's guess.

Basketball Team Victorious

The Bloomsburg State College Huskies gained two more wins on the boards, one on Tuesday, December 5, against Kutztown State College and Saturday, December 9, against Kings College. We will again host Kings on January 6, and on January 10, we will play Mansfield State College.

The Kutztown game will no doubt prove to be one of the most thrilling games of the season. We held a lead throughout the game but as the clock stated eight seconds left to play, Kutztown had taken the lead and the score read 62-58. Jim McKinley made two foul shots and Fran Curran added a score tying basket.

Overtime

Both teams scored six points in the first overtime and went into another. Gary Rupert scored the basket that kept us in the running. In the second extra period, Kutztown's team scored twice and McKinley and Curran each scored once for us to keep the score tied 72-72. At this point, Dick Lloyd converted and we took a slight lead. Jeff Garrison made two baskets and Rupert converted for a final score of 79-74.

Ron Lauchnor of Kutztown was high man of the night with 28 counters. Lloyd and Rupert each hit double numbers for Bloomsburg with 27 and 10 points respectively.

Jayvees

The jayvees also won their game with a score of 71-51. James (17) and Kurzinsky (16) were high scorers of the game.

Kings Game

The Kings College game provided us with our third win in a row this season. Kings team brought along a fair sized crowd plus a band, only to see their Monarchs fall to a 84-61 defeat.

We took an early lead and held it throughout the game. The Monarchs began the game using a man-to-man defense, but later turned to a tight press.

Freshmen

Three freshmen were used during the game. Bob Farina, Bob Herzig, and Eddie Beck all represented their classes well. The efforts of sophomore Jim McKinley were lost early in the game due to a fall on the head. Captain Dick Lloyd put on a fine show as usual and lead our team by scoring 21 points. Jeff Garrison and Bob Herzig each had 14 points and Fran Curran, 12. Top honors of the night went to Bob Nugent of Kings with 28 points, 13 of which were foul shots.

The mother of a Southern belle, when asked by her daughter, "What do you give a man who has everything?" replied: "Encouragement dear, encouragement."

Sportsman Diary

by ED BERLIN

Thanks to the efforts of a certain group of gentlemen in charge of a certain mining company, the Susquehanna River is now a vast stretch of dirty water almost void of fish and plant life. A few weeks ago this same river was a beautiful body of water in which many forms of fish and aquatic vegetation thrived. The citizens of this section of the state fought long and hard to get the river cleaned up so that it might be turned into a useful recreational area. The river had changed greatly in the last few years. Its waters lost their sulfur color and swarmed with many forms of fish; its banks were the homes of furbearing animals. The quiet backwaters with their heavy plant life provided a resting and feeding place for thousands of migratory geese and ducks. The river had become a place that an outdoorsman could look upon with pride. Now, in a matter of a few days, all of this is gone.

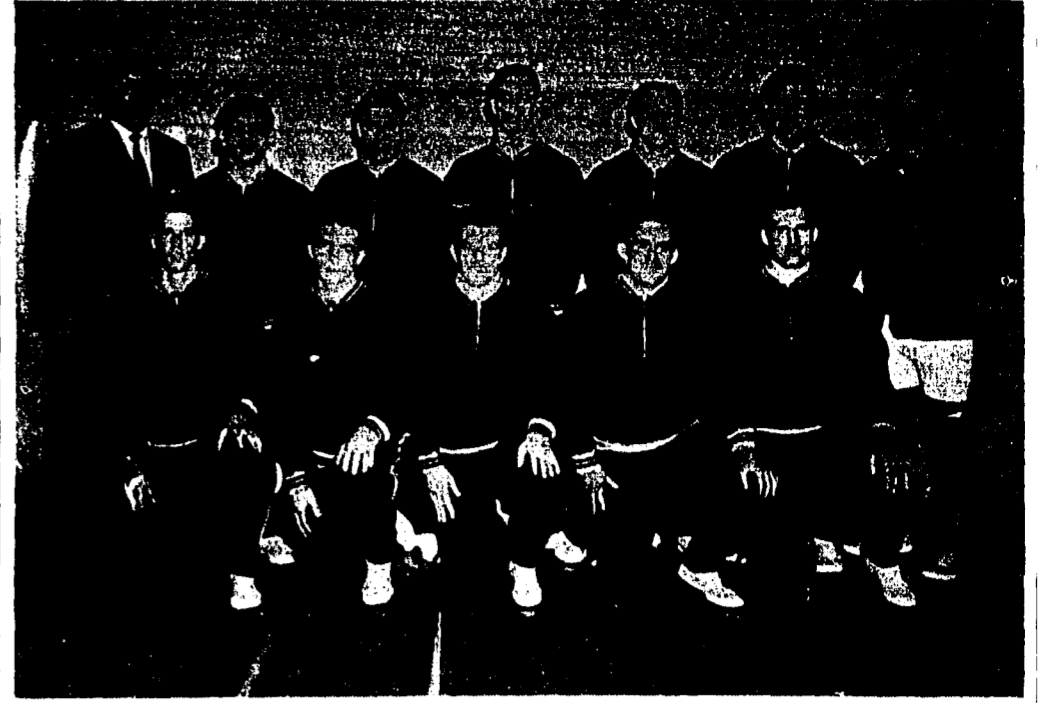

Amount of Destruction

A short walk along the banks of the river will soon show just how much destruction has been caused by the mine water. Hundreds of dead fish line the banks. Most of these fish are about a foot above the present water line showing that they have jumped out on the shore in an effort to escape the foul water. Many local residents have reported actually seeing these fish jump from the water to the bank. A friend of mine found a twenty-eight inch Walleye that weighed over six pounds and that died as a direct result of the mine acid.

Wrestling Team Active

Kneeling: Joel Meitsky, Ed Taylor, Bill Paule, Gene Dixon, and Bill Garson. Standing: Coach Mike Flanagan, Bill Hughes, Dick Scorese, Dave Stumpfle, Don Poust, Howard Hunter, and Coach Russ Houk.

Last Saturday, Coach Russell Hoak took his Husky grapplers to Long Island, New York, for a match with C. W. Post College, one of the small college wrestling powers of the East, and returned home with a 24-0 victory.

The Huskies, led by NAIA champs, Bill Garson and Gene Dixon, whitewashed C. W. Post by scoring eight wins, all by decisions. Freshmen Bill Paule and Ed Taylor, along with sophomores Dick Scorese, Dave Stumpfle, and juniors Bob Hall and Bill Hughes also contributed to the victory.

On Tuesday, the Huskies played host to Winona State College, Winona, Minn., and chalked up their second victory of the season and thirteenth consecutive win over a two year period with a score of 25-10.

Jerry Fortney, a sophomore, looked very impressive in pinning Miller in the second period of the opening match. From then on it was almost all Bloomsburg, as Bill Hughes, Ed Taylor, Dick Scorese, and Bill Paule scored victories over their opponents. In the battle of the 157-pounders, Gridley of Winona pinned Dave Stumpfle. In the 167-pound match, Gridley literally "ran" from Gene Dixon to record a draw.

In the 177 and 191 matches, Bob Hall and Bill Garson were in control all the way as they recorded easy victories. In the final match of the evening, Jerry Wedemeir showed the fans of BSC why he has been NAIA heavyweight champ for two years by defeating Howie Hunter 5-0.
