President Andruss Reviews the First 125 Years of BSC

In speaking at the opening convocation of the 1964-1965 college year, President Andruss took as his subject "The First One Hundred Twenty-five Years."

Early Contributors

Even though Emerson has said that any great institution is the lengthened shadow of one man, Bloomsburg is the lengthened shadow of many men. After listing a lot of important dates in the development of first the Academy, then the Institute, State Normal School, State Teachers College, the attention of the students was called to such outstanding contributors to the growth of the present Bloomsburg State College as the Wallers, father and son, and the uncle C. P. Waller, who taught when the Academy was located downtown sometime between 1839 and 1867. Particular attention was paid to Henry Carver, the founder of the Normal School; Rev. David J. Waller, Jr., one of the first graduates and principal of the Normal School for 27 years, interrupted by a term as State Superintendent and principal of the Indiana Normal School.

Mention was made of Judson Perry Welch, who after sixteen years as principal became Vice-President of the Pennsylvania State College. Also, special mention was made of Dr. Francis B. Haas, who came from the State Superintendency to the Bloomsburg State College, first as State Superintendent under four Governors. These were giants in those days. Those who came after stand on the shoulders of these giants.

Future Problems

Turning from the past, a consideration of the problems of the future years was discussed in terms of trying to answer the question, "Will college and university education for a greater mass of mankind cause more unselfish leaders to emerge?"

Dr. Andruss continued to think of the challenge to the college in terms of human history being a race between education and catastrophe. The power of the common man in a democracy rose to new heights, as in the Battle of Britain in the Second World War, where his sacrifice was noteworthy, tends to contradict one who draws parallels between the Roman and American civilizations. If societies or countries die at the top then it is the challenge for colleges to produce leaders and intelligent and discriminating followers.

Man is the only one of all creatures of the earth that can change your mind to change the world. The hope of higher education is that we can educate an increasing number of students without falling to the level of mediocrity and in the process, focus more attention on the "making of a good life" rather than simply making a living.

Glasgow Addresses Bloomsburg AAUW

Jon A. Glasgow, of the Geography Department of BSC was the featured speaker at a recent meeting of the Bloomsburg branch of the American Association of University Women.

The meeting, conducted by the president, Mrs. Eugene Thoenen, launched a year-long study of Southeast Asia. Professor Glasgow's address was concerned with the influence geography has had on that part of the world.

Campaign Issues Spate BSC Campus

Students For Johnson, a political organization open to any student who is interested in participating in the election campaign this fall has been formed on the BSC campus this year. An organizational meeting will be held today, Friday the 25th, at 4:00 p.m. in Room 11, Noetling Hall. This student group will serve as a campaign unit, and will operate on the county level. At the present time, it is affiliated with the Columbia County Democratic Committee.

Will Fill Gap

The formation of this group will do a great deal to remedy the fact that BSC, unlike many other colleges, has no political organizations. It will give those students who are in any way interested in the outcome of this year's election an opportunity to personally participate in the campaign. Any student who wishes to join may do so by contacting Box 727.

ANYONE wishing to join the MAROON & GOLD Staff may do so by stopping in at the office which is located in Waller Hall near Husky Lounge. Most staff positions are still open.

Orientation Week Ends With Myriad Feelings and Suggestions From Frosh

Freshman Orientation ended with the pep rally Wednesday night. The "frosh" must now begin the transition from high school to college academic life.

The purpose of orientation week is to aid freshmen in making the adjustment to college social life. Jack Mulka, junior, and Donna Schiavo, sophomore, co-chairmen of the orientation committee feel that this goal was realized. Jack stated, "... this year's freshman class seems to be getting well into the swing of things."

Suggestions by FRESHMEN

Freshmen interviewed by the M & G had varied comments. Nelson Ramont and Richard Holley, both of Scranton, expressed a general feeling saying that they enjoyed orientation and felt it was successful. John Murray, Middletown, felt that the testing periods were too long. Robert Boose, Levittown, added that after last Friday's football game, the freshmen seemed to lose interest in further orientation.

The girls also had suggestions to make. Eileen Sarpolis, Glen Lyon, and Linda Thomas, Catasauqua agreed with many of the boys in saying they would prefer badges to name signs. Bonnie Manges, Newark, N.Y., felt activities should end with the start of classes. However, Jerri Johnson, Stroudsburg, felt orientation should be prolonged.

Despite these differences of opinion, a large majority of the freshmen interviewed felt that orientation week would be a memorable highlight of their college career.

Well Known Lecturer Speaks To Assembly

Dr. Carl Winters, who spoke on "What's Right With America" in yesterday's assembly, is known as a lecturer with a rich background. He has been Crime Commissioner of Michigan, Skid Row Chairman in Chicago, and radio minister for twenty-four years. The reception given Dr. Winters by the student body is proof of his popularity as a lecturer.

Welcome Class of '68

Anniversary Highlights New Term; BSC Future Varied And Extensive

We of the Maroon & Gold extend our welcome to all students, faculty and administrators of BSC. We hope that this anniversary year will be the best that the college has yet seen. We of the newspaper staff are going to do our utmost to make it so; we hope you will do your part.

Congratulations

The M & G also would like to take this opportunity to congratulate the college on its 125th anniversary and Dr. Andruss on his 25th Anniversary as President of BSC. Under the leadership of President Andruss, the college has made remarkable progress.

This point in the history of BSC as an educational institution is not the end but the beginning of new and better things. When one stops and examines the present program of physical expansion, one realizes the vast growth taking place at BSC. The first two buildings of this expansion program, East and West Halls, are near their completion; also groundbreaking will take place in the near future for an auditorium, a library, and a field house and athletic field.

Liberal Arts

The addition of the liberal arts program is another part of the new look at BSC and offers an opportunity to enrich the curriculum. The master of education program, recently granted to BSC, is an extension of the educational facilities as is the expansion of the present courses offered. These facilities are being offered to a record enrollment this year — another evidence of our growth.

Thus BSC is progressing yearly to improve its system, educationally and physically, in every way possible. Looking toward the future is important today, especially to a citizen of the United States where progress keeps us on top.

Upperclassmen Orientate Freshmen; They Accept Their Duties Dubiously

Hello, Freshmen! Well, Hello, Freshmen!!! The annual onslaught of BSC Freshmen is once more in the past. Otherwise known as "Frosh" and divers other titles, they have, after the proper period of individual attention by upperclassmen, been absorbed into the evergrowing population of BSC.

The period before this assimilation has been filled by many experiences for these new collegiates. The always present dink and name sign was a necessity as every Frosh can testify. Often they were embellished by such tidbits as "For Rent," "Available," "Look, Don't Touch," and "Fragile, Handle with Care."

Center of Attraction

Of course, whenever one or more Frosh were gathered, there could also be found a member of the Orientation Committee. For some reason, they were always the center of attention for the Frosh. Wonder Why?

These same Frosh were very glad to provide unlimited and varied entertainment for the fortunate upperclassmen. What they lacked in aesthetics was made up by volume or numbers. When else have we had a group of close to 850 people march through the town to a football game?

These pep rallies were certainly not limited to games though. Many upperclassmen recall, some rather ruefully, impromptu cheering and singing on Long Porch and near the new halls. But lack of sleep was made up in their volunteered (?) services in carrying trays and performing other tasks for the upperclassmen such as carrying luggage up the four floors of the new halls. Progressive Education(?)

Freshmen Faux Pas

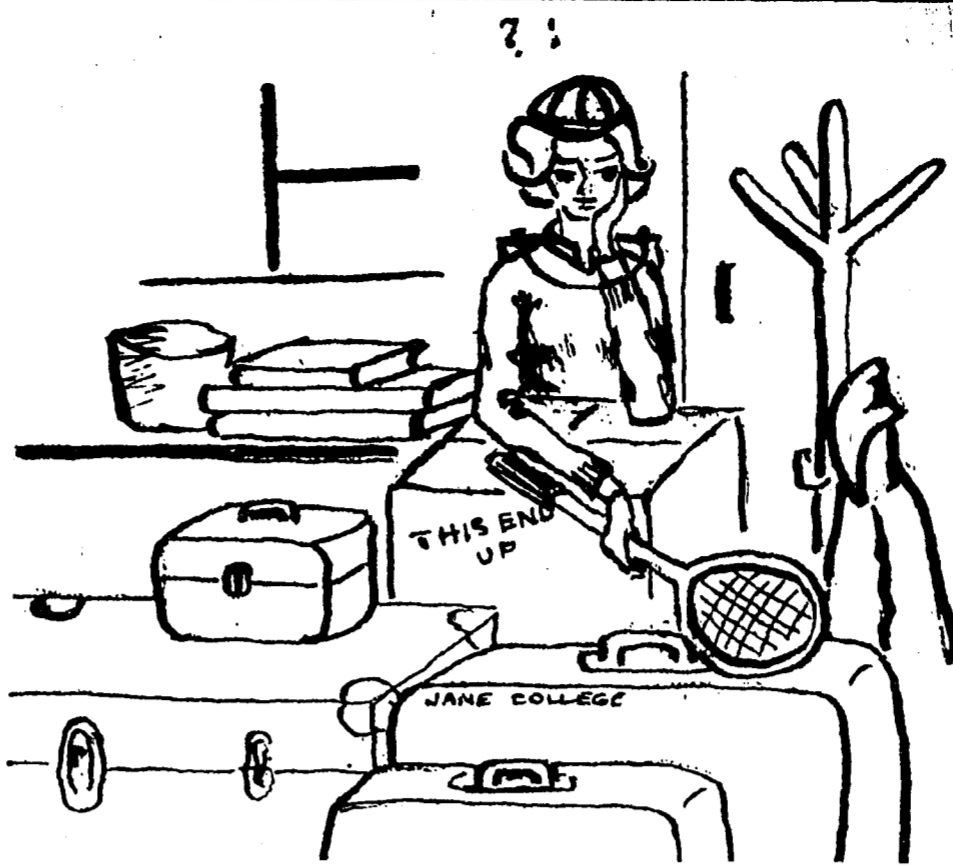

The usual faux pas made by Frosh were accomplished again this year, along with some new ones. Frosh are still taking trays back to the wrong entrance. Some poor unsuspecting one still blunders up Senior Walk into the waiting arms of the Orientation Committee and many always make the mistake of entering the Husky while some of their unfortunate peers are providing entertainment and, of course, they wouldn't want to leave without doing their share. (Hee! Hee!)

One of the most popular new blunders is made in Waller Hall. It seems that on the floor there are certain doors which one never, never, never tries to open. However there is always some Frosh who, either through ignorance or attempt at suicide, blunders through setting into motion a series of events: bells, lights, and harried house mothers. Poor, poor, Frosh.

Confusion Reigns

Then comes that long awaited day—the first day of classes. Once again the Frosh have come out of hiding and make another brave attempt at joining the human race. However, once again they are foiled. This time by a loss of direction. Bravely searching for an English class, they blunder into a first grade session. Those seats are a little small. Science is forever confused with Sutiliff, and a first year biology course might turn out to be advanced Zoology.

However, eventually all this comes to an end and the Frosh actually become part of the human race and of the student body of BSC Welcome!

Limited Space Perplexes the "Frosh" Who Bring Unlimited 'Extras' To BSC

'Tis a puzzlement. The first big problem for the Freshman is luggage. First, what to bring and, second, what to do with it once it gets here.

Everyone loves to shop for new clothes and what better excuse for new attire than one's first year in college. No longer does one wear high school clothes. Horror of horrors. Why the skirts are at least an inch longer than they should be. Besides they are probably four months behind the style. So away to the store(s) and new clothes.

Only a few extras

Next, the luggage problem arises. How does one fit two closets full of clothes plus several bureau drawers into two suitcases not to mention typewriter, extra clothes, radio, surplus clothes, stereo, rainy-day clothes, lamps and wastepaper baskets, plus whatever clothes left over. Of course shaggy dogs and stuffed animals do not count in spite of size.

However, eventually everything, and that means everything, is finally packed in the car and ready to go. And with the trunk just clearing the street, it's off to college.

Somehow, with the help of several willing hands, everything finally arrives, on the fourth floor, if you're unlucky enough to climb and climb and climb. Then, finally alone in your room, with all the luggage in front of you, you have but one choice. Find places for it or starve to death. There is no way out since everything was dumped in front of the door.

The Search

Fortunately, with the help of a roommate, you might get everything tucked away by the end of the first nine weeks. Unfortunately, you never find half the things you brought until it's time to leave. And the things you do find just don't match.

But, although the closets may

Transformed Hall Dismays Women

By Judith Gers

"Oh No!" This retort was heard on Sunday as the Waller Hall residents, former and present, met during open house.

"Oh no!" was an exclamation of dismay from girl visitors upon seeing their former rooms. Last year and for many previous years, the rooms were a beehive of feminine activity. The windows were ablaze with a rainbow of colors. But, upon their return, they found that their former residence had assumed a new face. The masculine element has taken over the domicile. Instead of ruffles and flounces, the plain rules over the old building.

Smokers the Same

"The smokers haven't changed," said a previous inmate. The center of the dorm is still wrapped in a blue haze of smoke. Although the card games may also undergo the masculine treatment, the coeds of the previous years sat in the same chairs, showed the same poker faces and dealt in a similar manner. But, night is the proof of the pudding. Instead of silks and soft fabrics, the chairs now feel the coarser materials. No longer will the tables be sprinkled with hair set, just the heavy thump of cards and the ever-present ashes.

Perfume Replaced

Even the very scent of the building has changed. The former residents' many flowered fragrances have been replaced by the spiced aura of after shave lotion.

No longer, yes, no longer will the name Waller Hall mean girls' dorm. The old and traditional is gone; the new and progressive is here. Waller Hall—male style—is now a reality.

burst and the drawers may overflow, everyone is able to find their pinochle decks and live happily ever after.

Solved: The Case Of The Displaced BSC Day Women

By Donna Bogard

Being the kind of person who hates dogs and therefore refuses to allow sleeping ones to be, I have dug up an old matter for examination. What happened to the Day Women in the year of 1964, five long years ago?

But perhaps modern students no longer remember that there was a group of animals referred to as "day women;" perhaps I should first describe the animal to you.

Typical Day Woman

A day woman was a college student who was reasonably devoted to the cause of obtaining an education. She was interested in anything from dramatics to newspaper to boys to plain hard study. Sometimes she was very intelligent and sometimes she sweated out probation meetings, but always ready to contribute to college life.

Now this description may remind you of our ordinary, standard college student, but I assure you there was a difference. The Day Woman species spent at least eight hours out of every twenty-four at home and they had no dormitory rooms. Although their mothers may have accused them of living at college because of the great amount of time they spent there, the college officials seemed sure that they did not belong on campus in between classes. This is witnessed by the fact that in 1964 their former place of leisure was snatched from them.

The New Lounge

The first warning of rejection occurred on registration day, the 16th of September. After registering, the creatures innocently tramped to the Day Lounge to dispose of their lunches in the refri-erator. They found the Lounge gone, and in its place, a badly needed extension of the book store. A stir of uneasiness and confusion swept some of the group, but most simply shrugged their shoulders and began their search for The New Lounge. No one seriously doubted the existence of The New Lounge; they felt they need only search.

A rumor spread that The New Lounge was in the beautiful newly constructed dorms. After much exploring, several girls discovered The New Lounge in the basement of West Dorm, spotted with comfortable modern furniture. Only several miles of corridor separated this area from another containing lockers for the Day Women animals. The tired beasts felt they had found their haven at last.

Except for the slight inconvenience of not being in the same building as Husky Lounge and the library, the new lounge seemed very nice. Surely more furniture would arrive; perhaps, some tables higher than a shin bone for eating and studying. There was a kitchen furnished with a section containing stove, refrigerator, sink, and cupboards. What a great convenience for students who needed to economize or who needed a better daily diet (than hamburgers! Obviously, the Day Women creatures were very lucky; they even heard that vending machines were to be installed to reduce the trips to Husky. But fate said "no."

Laws Learned

Disillusionment followed disillusionment. First the poor beasts were told that The New Lounge was the place where Dorm Students entertained their boy friends; this meant no naps or uncontrolled relaxation. Then they learned that the kitchen unit had been a mistake and would be removed; this meant no cooking for economy and nutrition. Soon after, they learned of the new rule, No Eating in The New Lounge; of course, this meant no eating. The vending machines were a false hope, and the one thing that all students could do in The Lounge was to smoke. This license was a noble attempt to perpetuate that great American custom smoking, and luckily the walls of the beautiful new lounge would probably be improved rather than disclosed by nicotine clouds.

Death of the Day Women

Not eating seemed to lower the resistance of the Day Woman animal, and unfortunately they died like fleas from such ailments as pneumonia from eating in unheated cars, cancer from smoking, and simple starvation.

The reason I bring the case of the rejected Day Women's disappearance from college life to your attention is because our beautiful college is growing, and Science Hall soon be torn down to make room for our expansion. If we don't act now, the male animal of the same species will clutter up our halls and beautiful green campus just as the female did several years ago. I am an advocate of the philosophy that cruelty to animals demeans the human spirit; for this reason, I urge you to act now and call for the repeal of the law against eating in the beautiful new buildings so that the Day Student can live on and make its poor contribution to college society.

Big weekend on campus coming up?

Long Distance is the quick, sure way to make arrangements with your date.

Huskies Lose To LHSC 13-7; Penalties Cost Husky Victory

The Bald Eagles of Lock Haven scored two quick touchdowns in the second period, and then held on to defeat the BSC Huskies 13-7. The game, a cliff hanger, clouded the debut of Russ Houk, who is an alumnus of Lock Haven.

BSC drew first blood late in the first period on a 77 yard pass play from quarterback Bob Kurzinsky to end Jerry Doto. But then the Bald Eagles roared back to score twice in the second period.

Lock Haven's first score came midway through the quarter when a Kurzinsky pass was deflected and Lock Haven's Bob Horak intercepted on his 41. And it took only nine plays to get to the BSC 16, but it took six more plays before Meade Johnson could score from the one.

Intercepted Pass

Lock Haven kicked off and a few plays later Barry Hedding of LHSC intercepted a pass from sophomore quarterback Bob Opie and LHSC took over the ball on the 34 yard stripe. It took only seven plays for Klinger to score from the two. The point after was blocked by Jerry Robinson of Athens.

Before the first half ended, BSC started moving the ball, spearheaded by Hal Arnott. With the ball on the LHSC 7 yard stripe but time ran out before the Huskies could score.

In the second half, BSC was in control, and LHSC was on the defensive. In the final quarter, the Huskies had two touchdowns called back on penalties. Early in the fourth quarter, Jerry Doto intercepted on his 40. From there, BSC moved to the 15. Two plays later Bob Kurzinsky threw to Hal Arnott who scored, but the play was called back because of holding.

Called Back

With 6:24 remaining, and BSC on their own 27, Kurzinsky mixing up the plays, moved the Huskies to the LHSC 8, Bob Kurzinsky then threw to Jerry Doto for the score, but again the penalty flag was thrown for offensive pushing.

BSC got one more chance to score with only seconds remaining, Kurzinsky threw to Doto but the ball fell off his finger at the 15.

This week the Huskies meet the team from Mansfield State College at Bloomsburg's Athletic Park.

Players Of Week

Clip Martin

With the first issue of the Maroon and Gold, the sports desk is proud to honor the player chosen by the Husky football coaches as "Back of the Week." Receiving this tribute is Clip Martin, offensive fullback in the Huskies' 13 to 7 loss to Lock Haven. Clip was the most consistent ground gainer and was a very effective target on the screen pass. While playing practically the entire offense and a short period on defense, a holding penalty was all that prevented Clip from scoring what would have been the tying touchdown on a screen pass from quarterback Bob Kurzinsky and a 40 yard run.

Clip is 19, weighs 190 pounds and is 6 feet tall. Calling Emporium, Pennsylvania his hometown, Clip is a Junior in the Business Curriculum, majoring in Accounting.

Once again the M&G congratulates Clip Martin, "Back of the Week."

by John Murtin

Last week the Huskies opened up BSC's 1964-65 sports year with a tough-to-take, 13-7 loss to the Bald Eagles of Lock Haven State College. It was a hard and disappointing note upon which to open, but those who were there could see brighter days ahead. A team can't play the type of ball our boys played and keep losing. Because of a few untimely penalties and lack of experience working against us, we lost a cliff-hanger. Next time it may work the opposite. When the potential scoring punch we have shows itself, the victories will have to come.

Let's come back tonight with the same type of spirit we had last week, and we'll watch the boys take care of Mansfield for us.

John Whitelock

With the opening of the regular BSC gridiron season, the Maroon and Gold sports desk is proud to honor the first "Lineman of the Week." The Husky football coaches have selected John Whitelock for

Houk Conducts Summer Wrestling; Visited by Olympic Representatives

Bloomsburg State College, through its outstanding wrestling coach, Russell Houk, continued to receive National recognition in the wrestling field this summer. For the past three years, Mr. Houk has conducted a wrestling camp near Forksville, Pennsylvania, in the Endless Mountains. The big highlight of the summer was when representatives of the US Olympic Wrestling Team attended the camp for a ten-day training program. This program, held for the first time in the history of Olympic Wrestling, was sponsored by Coach Houk and the Olympic Committee and featured Free Style and Greco-Roman Wrestling. So successful was this program that it will probably be an annual affair for future potential Olympic Wrestlers. Incidentally, the Olympic wrestling members pointed out that the Houk Camp was tops in wrestling camps throughout the country.

Attract High School Wrestlers

The main object of the Russ Houk Wrestling Camp is to attract high school wrestlers and a few college wrestlers to one of the six one-week wrestling clinics during the summer. To accomplish this end, National Advertising is placed in the Amateur Wrestling News in addition to mailing thousands of brochures to all high school and junior high schools throughout the Northeastern part of the United States plus many other states. Applications are received from boys all over the country including the far western states. Twenty-six of the fifty states were represented by campers this summer. One participant, John McCormack, whose mother was a former Bloomsburg resident, came from Venezuela, South America.

his excellent play in Friday's losing effort against Lock Haven.

John acted as defensive captain while playing at his linebacker position. He continually led his team in stopping the Lock Haven advances, and at a key moment intercepted a Lock Haven pass to stop their drive. Offensively, John filled at center.

A very talented performer from Melvern, John was an outstanding athlete in his high school days at Great Valley. During his Senior year, he was voted the "Most Valuable Player" in football and also "Outstanding Boy Athlete" at Great Valley. At BSC, Whitelock is a sophomore in Business Education.

The Maroon & Gold congratulates a fine athlete and sportsman.

Cheerleading Clinics

Prior to the opening of the wrestling camp, Mrs. Houk conducts several clinics for cheerleaders and majorettes. Here again, a mailing is made to high school and junior high schools throughout Northeastern United States. This camp was in its second year and showed a definite increase in attendance over the previous year.

Both the Cheerleading and Wrestling Camps are expertly staffed adding to the prestige of the camp. During the Cheerleading camp two instructors were present from the National Cheerleading Association from Oklahoma City along with a five-time National gymnastic champion from Finland who was doing graduate work at Penn State.

Outstanding Wrestlers

When the Olympic team was present, outstanding wrestlers and coaches included such well knowns as Gray Simons from Lock Haven and Robert Burk from Los Angeles, and Bill Douglas from Oklahoma and many others.

All in all, with running his wrestling camp, conducting a five-day clinic at Superior State University, Wisconsin, and helping with the officiating at the Olympic trials at the World's Fair, Coach Houk had a rather busy summer.
