Wilson Nominations Being Accepted

Dr. John Serff is presently coordinating the screening of applicants for Woodrow Wilson National Fellowships. Applications are encouraged from seniors who are academically outstanding (at least a 3.0 cumulative average), who must be nominated and recommended by a member of the faculty. Applications should be completed as soon as possible.

Purpose Explained

Dr. Serff, campus representative of the Fellowship Committee, states that the purpose of the Foundation is to attract men and women to the profession of college teaching. In order to achieve this purpose, the Foundation annually awards fellowships to 1,000 prospective first-year graduate students and honorable mention to some 1,500 others. The winners are chosen from over 11,000 candidates nominated by college faculty members throughout the United States and Canada.

Eligibility

A prospective candidate must be a college senior or graduate not currently registered in a graduate school. Although the Foundation primarily supports students in the Humanities and Social Areas, awards may also be won by students of the Natural Sciences.

Dr. Andruss to address Freshmen, Parents.

Social Society Gets Approval

The beginning of the 1965-1966 school year finds a new organization ready to initiate its activities here at BSC. The Social Improvement Organization, better known as SIO, has received full approval by the Community Government Association.

Improved Social Conditions Sought

SIO seeks as its goal an improved social condition for the campus and for the members of the organization. Students who attended last year's home athletic events may remember some of the projects of this organization. These included the signs around campus urging the student body to "Go to the Games" and the familiar hoops through which our Husky wrestlers and basketball players appeared before each home contest.

Students Support Needed

The idea for such an organization originated with a dozen students in 1963. Sensing the need for an improved social spirit at BSC, this small group began its activities. Officially approved SIO, whose membership has doubled, is planning its program for this year. It is hoped that with the fervor of the whole student body and faculty, social spirit will reach greater Approximately 1,700 parents are expected to attend the Twelfth Annual Freshman Parent's Day at Bloomburg State College to be held Sunday, October 10, 1965. Formal invitations have been sent to parents of all new students by President Harvey A. Andruss and members of the faculty, according to Mrs. W. Horace Williams, chairman for the day's events.

President Will Speak

The day's activities will begin with a convocation in Centennial Gymnasium at 2:00 p.m. when President Andruss will address the students and their parents, with Paul

S. Riegel, Dean of Students, presiding. Following the address by Dr. Andruss, a tea will be held for freshmen, their parents, and faculty members in the College Commons from 3:00 to 5:00 p.m.

Open House

Parents will have an opportunity to meet and talk with members of the faculty, the administrative staff and student officers of the Community Government Association. During the remainder of the afternoon, the parents may inspect the campus facilities.

All supervised residence halls, on and off campus, will have "open house."

Ticket Sale Opens For Sunday Meals

A new Sunday Meal Service Program has been initiated in the College Commons. The program came as a result of the difficulties experienced by students in securing meals downtown on Sundays. The policy has been brought forward by Paul S. Riegel, Dean of Students.

Students who do not have regular dining privileges in the College Commons may purchase tickets for Sunday noon and Sunday evening meals in the Community Activities Office located in Waller Hall across from the Post Office. These tickets will be available during the hours of 10:30 to 12:00 noon and 2:30 p.m. to 5:00 p.m. Monday through Friday. Charges for the noon meal will be $1.25 per person; the evening meal will be 85c per person.

Meal tickets may be purchased upon presentation of a student identification card.

Be your task great or small, heights. With student support, SIO members agree that its activities will serve as a precedent for similar organizations to appear on campus as Bloomburg State continues to expand and progress.

Homecoming Parade Theme Named: "Progress Towards the Future"

One of last year's floats.

"Progress Towards the Future," is the theme of the Homecoming Parade next Saturday as part of the weekend's festivities. Parade preparations are under the direction of Dan Guydish, general chairman, Ginny Bosak, Jim Derr, Ray Buckno.

It is customary for all standing organizations on campus to be represented by a float or some other vehicle in the parade. A brief description of each float should be received by the Pep Committee by 4:00 p.m., today. Entries should be addressed to Jim Derr, Box 439.

The following are the qualifications for floats to be eligible for judgment and prizes: All floats shall be related to the homecoming theme.

The criteria for judging floats will be: Adherence to float theme, use of color, originality, organization, and construction.

Begin At Gym

The parade will start promptly at 1:00 p.m. Everyone will receive a parking spot and a parade order number. All trucks must be at their parking area by 12 noon on parade day.

The parade will begin from Centennial parking lot and proceed down College Hill and down Main Street to the Square, left at the Square and down Market Street to 7th Street, left on 7th Street to the football field.

All floats will be dismantled immediately after the parade at the Bloomburg Builders Supply which is located directly across from the South Exit of the football field.

Scholarship Fund Receives Money In Appreciation

Dr. Ralph Herre has received a check in the amount of $250 from Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Albright, parents of Bruce W. Albright, BSC freshman fatally injured in an automobile accident last spring.

The money is to be placed in the Day Men's Association Scholarship Fund to be used at Dr. Herre's discretion in aiding some worthy student in furthering his or her education at BSC. The recipient is to be selected by the Committee on Scholarships and Grants.

Token Of Appreciation

Mr. and Mrs. Albright gave the check as a token of their appreciation for the kindnesses extended to them by Dean Hunsinger, Dr. Herre, and the Day Men's Association at the time of their bereavement. They said that Bruce had worked and saved this money for the furthering of his education at BSC, and that they felt the money should be used for a purpose similar to that for which it was originally intended.

Heartening Manifestation

In accepting the check, Dr. Herre stated, "This is one of the most heartening manifestations of interest in our student body that I have seen on the part of a parent in my many years of association with the local college. It is an indication not only of the interest which Bruce W. Albright had in securing a college education, but also an indication of the thoughtfulness and generosity of his parents."

Navy Seeks Officers

The Navy officer information team will visit the campus on Tuesday, October 12, from 10:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. They will discuss all Navy officer training programs with interested students.

Officer Training

Through Navy officer training, young men and women with college degrees may obtain commissions after 16 weeks of instruction at one of the Navy's training schools. Applications for selection may be submitted, any time after completion of the junior year.

Any United States citizen aged 19 through 27 who has a college degree and is physically qualified for training and active duty may apply.

Topic: "Cut" Policy

You know, it just doesn't seem fair. It's possible for a student to go through some of the courses here at BSC, get high marks on all tests and quizzes, be tops on all written work, and still get a low grade in the course. Why? Because he or she has committed the one really unpardonable academic sin at this institution — CUT CLASSES.

Cardinal Rule

By cutting classes we mean more than a few cuts. Most faculty members at least allow a student three cuts before dropping him in grades. But then the cardinal rule is enforced: Every cut after three means a drop of one letter in your final grade. Why? Is this rule invoked as a punitive measure to show the student the error of his ways or for some other reason? After all, common sense will tell you that there is something wrong if a student needs to be present in a class only to take tests to get a good grade. The class work or lectures should be valuable enough so that a student needs to be in class in order to pass the course. If the class material is not made worthwhile, why should the student be penalized for not coming, when he can pass the course without class work? Some faculty members are just protecting themselves by lowering a student's grade in cases such as these.

Possibility — The Draft

Another consideration. Held over the head of most male students is the ever-present possibility of being drafted if grades drop to a low level. Since most students are pursuing their courses with more vigor this year in order to avoid this, is it fair to drop grades and increase this possibility just because of missed classes when the student is doing passing work? We hope there are few students in our midst who would take an active part in denouncing US policy in Vietnam, but we can understand the efforts made by students to avoid the draft by keeping their grades up. This is just human endeavor. Therefore, why can't the faculty give the student body a break in liberalizing their policies on cuts?

Sign of Maturity

One final consideration. The fact that we are going to college is supposed to be a sign of maturity. This fact is constantly impressed on the freshmen every year. If this is true, why then do the faculty continue the practice of taking students by the hand and telling them when and when not to attend class? A conservative estimate would be that 90% of BSC students are paying all or part of their way through school. If a person is mature enough to decide to work and use his earnings to pay for his education, he is mature enough to decide how best to go about getting the most benefit out of college. This choice belongs to the student, not to the instructor.

Unlimited Cuts

A system of unlimited cuts would be of benefit to both students and the administration. First it would give students more time to spend working on assignments, preparing for exams, and the like. Second, administration would be able to better evaluate faculty members on the merit of how many students were continually cutting their classes. True, many students would abuse this privilege, but this wouldn't be bad either as it would soon weed out many who do not belong here. The students who would make judicious use of this new freedom would reap the benefits of greater academic independence and growth.

A new liberal cut policy would be a true indication of the strides BSC has made toward greater intellectual and academic growth in 126 years. This would also be a promise of greater improvement in the future.

Topic: Letters

The MAROON AND GOLD invites reader comment and criticism on the contents of this and all issues. We look forward to this correspondence as it is necessary to know student opinion when considering how to stand on topics.

Reader comment is also welcomed on the many different facets of life at BSC. By knowing how the real owners of this paper (the college community) feel about campus conditions, the M&G can meet reader demand by focusing upon these conditions.

Opinions Solicited

Both letters and guest editorials are solicited. All such correspondence must be signed, but in the case of letters to the editor, names will be withheld from print on request of the writer. Correspondence should be placed in the M&G mailbox #58, before 4:00 o'clock on Monday during the week of publication.

You are paying for this newspaper. Almost anything you write (with the exception of libelous or obscene material) will be printed. This is the democratic way; take advantage of it.

Manners, Madness Meals and Mayhem

(As will be the practice of this column for its duration, our format will vary according to the material to be presented, ranging from discussion-type articles as in the first issue, to pro/con or similar-topic articles as in this issue. Ideas for subject matter for this column are readily encouraged from the student body. —R&S)

STEVIE

This week I'm going to devote my half of the column to a subject that is frequently cussed and discussed by nearly everyone at BSC — the lack of manners in our Husky Lounge. True, Husky is the place to unwind and relax, but often students get carried away with its atmosphere.

Courtesy Wanted

Overcrowded conditions bring about unbelievable confusion in the Husky, and poor manners do everything but help. Did you ever go into Husky at noontime and try to find an unoccupied table? If you haven't, try it, and good luck! Tables and chairs are like extinct animals in the Lounge. How can you help? Here are a few don'ts: 1.) Don't sit in Husky for hours at a time, especially around lunchtime. Eat your sandwich, drink your coke, chat a while, check out the kids, and then leave. 2.) Don't occupy a table or booth all by yourself if you can help it — that's selfish. 3.) Don't pile your books on a chair if you're not saving it for someone — put them on the floor so someone can use the chair.

Curb Carelessness

Oh, yes, then there's the Snack Bar . . . Crowded conditions are also responsible for poor manners here. If you can survive the crowd getting to the Bar, manage to get waited on, and return to your table in one piece, you deserve a medal for Bravery and Endurance. Some do's and don'ts to help in your survival: 1.) Do be patient and don't push and shove even if you're half starved. 2.) Don't give your order if you know that the person alongside of you was waiting much longer than you — be considerate. 3.) Do watch where you are going. Many once beautiful outfits now wear battle scars of coke, orange slush, mustard, and catsup. Be careful.

Here's a peeve that the Snack Bar personnel surely must have: butts and ashes in coke glasses. Make use of the ash tray — that's what they're for.

These are only a few improvements on manners that could be made in Husky Lounge. There are many more, but I hope that you get the idea. The Lounge is for the students' pleasure, and it is up to the students to see that Husky remains a place where they want to go.

RICHIE

It might, in some ways, be a waste of time to go into my half of this column, as it has been drummed into peoples' minds for years, and in many instances seems to have been a complete waste. But, bearing in mind the ancient thought that 'repetition is the father of practice' (I just made that up, as I can't think of an ap- (Continued on page 4)

Speaker Shows Patriotism Is Alive; Audience Captivates and Educates

A small but vibrant woman stood up in front of a captive audience during a combined assembly in Centennial Gym last Thursday. Within a short period of time, she had captured her audience with a rarely seen quality which is sometimes called patriotism. But this was more than a display of flag waving. Instead, her use of humor brought to the audience many insights that are rarely seen.

After a short time lapse, many students came to realize that the words spoken by Mrs. Nila Magidoff were more than a mere series of witticisms designed to create laughter. In a sense, the stories she told were a realization of what America represents to its citizens and foreigners alike. She is qualified to illustrate this because she knows, and has lived under, two opposing governmental forms — Communism and Democracy. Mrs. Magidoff was a Russian by birth and is an American by adoption. Her humorous portrayal or experiences with both totalitarianism and democracy makes one realize the "unbelievable freedoms" we, as citizens of the United States, have taken for granted.

Mrs. Magidoff's vibrant and active speaking caught the attention of the students with a message that opened their eyes and will remain etched in their minds. As Nila Magidoff said, "They are not applauding me, but rather they are applauding their own system of government. If one could only see their faces, they would know what I mean."

Letters To the Editor

Sir: I can tolerate a lot from people. Jokes, gags, etc. I can also understand that no two people are alike and each of us has a negative side to our characters and personalities. I am a junior transfer student and also a Veteran. The college from which I transferred was far from the best but we (the student body) did not tolerate stealing. Many times we left a book or several of them in our lounge for a weekend. We never locked our lockers because there was no need to. Our student body, not 70% or 80%, but 100%, had morals, values and a code of ethics becoming a college student. I would like to think the same of BSC. I did feel this way until recently. I put my books down to go to the men's room. When I returned they were gone, I checked around and everyone I talked to said "Don't walk away from anything." I thought maybe someone picked them up by mistake so I inquired at several offices. One member of the administration said, "If you laid them down, they are gone."

I think it may help if an article were printed in the college paper deploring such action and an attempt made to weed out that element of the student body that is committing these crimes. I'd like to be proud of my college, but I find it impossible when conditions such as these are present.

Last Thursday our cross-country team had its first encounter of the season. They went against a strong and well-balanced Susquehanna University team. Susquehanna's balance gave them 2nd, 4th, 5th, 6th, and 7th place finishes and the win.

Even though we lost by a 24-31 score, our thinclads feel they should do much better in future meets. They had several faults they hope to improve upon.

One of the biggest problems was that several runners misjudged the pace and ran too fast in the beginning only to die out later on.

Then there are schedule conflicts which make it practically impossible for everyone to train together, making the race more individual than team effort.

Of course, the main reason for the loss was due to the team's overall insufficient conditioning. This shouldn't be the case much longer. As the season progresses most of the runners should improve very rapidly.

One of the highlights of the race was Gary Horn's strong third place finish. Gary was doubtful of a good day and probably surprised himself by coming in so well.

One can't say too much about a losing team; however, every team needs support. We have lost two games in points scored; but we did have impressive statistics.

Both the Lock Haven and Mansfield games were played well by the Huskies. We were pushing Mansfield all over the field — but they won. Our future games should turn out better.

..Highlights..

by RAY BUCKNO

Well, let's call it zero so far. That is the won-lost record for our fall sports schedule so far. The Cross-Country team dropped one to Susquehanna which is a bit disappointing, but then they were without the services of Jan Prosseda. But to the brighter side, Irv Zablocky went around the course in the sensational time of 25:51 to take first place. This makes it look better if the rest of the team can come along and it is hoped they will.

As for the football team, well, it was plainly a case of fumbleitis. The team proved that it can definitely move the ball against a bigger foe such as Mansfield. But the "fumble-bug" hurt us very badly for every time we fumbled, Mansfield recovered, and that meant six potential points that could have gone on the board.

Well, tonight is the setting for the first home game, and there should be a big turn-out to psyche the HUSKIES up for the Big Win that will open the door to the "victory path" for the remainder of the season.

Now for the answer to the following statement which came out of the undergraduate publication at "Lock Havoc." The statement being: "The Bald Eagles will open with Bloomsburg, which is probably the nastiest word formation in

INTRAMURALS

The first event for Men's Intramurals will be the Archery and Horseshoe Tournaments.

The deadline for entry in these events is Friday, Oct. 8, 1965. The tournaments will commence on Monday, Oct. 11, 1965.

Team captains are requested to place their team entries in the box outside office #5, Centennial Gym.

Mick Gundel is on hand to defend his 1964 Archery Championship. Competition is expected to be keen as the Intramural Campaign gets underway.

For your participation and enjoyment the college offers many extra-curricular activities and clubs which cover a wide range of interests. One of these organizations is B Club, and the purpose of this article is to acquaint the new students, as well as the old, with it.

The Club has a dual purpose: first, to foster a spirit of cooperation and sportsmanship; and second, to create a greater interest in athletics as a means toward physical development. The second aim is accomplished by providing an opportunity to all college women for participation in team and individual activities which should contribute to a better use of leisure time.

How can you join B Club? Simple! Just go out for those sports you enjoy and have fun. In order to become a member, 400 points must be earned. By participating in just one sport, you and your teammates each earn 75 points toward membership.

It doesn't take many sports to total 400 points, but you can, schedule permitting, participate in as many of these activities as you desire. It's not unusual to find some girls out for every sport during the year. And don't forget that tennis, for example, is 150 points if you go out for both singles and doubles since they are considered separately.

We are always looking for timers, scorers, and referees for these activities. Points are given for these services. Interested?

Just check your bulletin boards then, to find out the how, where, when and what of each sport.

New Blue Blazer Line for Young Men

Now available...a special opportunity TO SELL FAMOUS AVON GROOMING PRODUCTS FOR MEN

By special arrangement with the college, there is an opportunity for a resident student to represent Avon, world's largest manufacturer and distributor of grooming products for men and women. The Collegiate Representative will enjoy a unique earning opportunity: an exclusive franchise to offer Avon's famous products to fellow students on campus. Because Avon has an international reputation, the high quality products, not available in stores, are in great demand. Student Representatives in other colleges are pleased with the acceptance of and demand for Avon, and with their substantial earnings.

Husky Harriers Suffer Defeat; Second Defeat In Two Years

The BSC cross-country team suffered its first defeat of the '65 season and its second defeat in two years of competition. The loss came at the hands of Susquehanna, the score 24-31.

Zablocky Takes First

Susquehanna won the meet with a balanced list of finishers. They took 2nd, 4th, 5th, 6th, and 7th to total 24 points and the victory. BSC's Irwin Zablocky took first place for the Huskies with a record time of 25:51.

Others

Other Husky finishers were Gary Horn, who finished third, Joe Fazzari, taking eighth, Dean Hohern and Bill Gering, finishing twelfth and thirteenth places respectively.

Next Meet

The next cross-country meet will take place on October 9, against Lock Haven at Lock Haven.

BSC Loses Heartbreaking Game; Missed PAT Gives MSC 7-6 Win

In its closest game of the season, the Husky football squad was edged 7 to 6 by the Mansfield Mountaineers. The Huskies outplayed their opponents throughout the entire game, but a combination of fumbles and penalties which stopped Husky drives on several occasions was enough to turn victory into defeat.

BSC Scores First

The Huskies scored their only touchdown on a 33-yard drive early in the second quarter. Halfback Joe Gerst got the team started by running back a 27-yard punt return. On six plays Gerst and fullback Clip Martin moved the ball to the 4-yard line, where Martin carried over for the score. The extra point attempt failed with a wide placement.

For the rest of the afternoon the Husky offense continued to move the ball well. Joe Gerst led the attack with 144 yards on 32 carries. The Husky pass defense held the Mounties to a scant 13 yards in the air, and on the ground the defensive line play was superb. Sophomore Dick Krieger, playing his first game, did a good job as defensive end and outside linebacker to strengthen one of the team's weak spots.

Long Run Scores for MSC

The Mounties gained only 10 yards during the first half, and needed a long 82-yard run by fullback Leavens early in the third quarter to give them a touchdown. It was their only successful offensive movement of the game and accounted for over half their yardage on the ground. Yet it was the play that made the difference in the outcome.

Although they outgained their opponents by more than 80 yards and made eight more first downs, the Huskies were plagued by five fumbles, four coming in the second half, and lost 40 yards on four penalties.

Tonight Against Brockport

Tonight against Brockport College the Huskies meet their third opponent and will be looking for their first victory. Brockport, with one win and one loss this season, defeated Bloomsburg 26 to 10 last year on their home field. With a young team then, they should be reasonably strong again this year. But as Coach Houk remarked this week, "It's about time for the pendulum to swing our way."

appropriate line off-hand . . .), it may help someone, in case they haven't read last week's paper and seen the listing of rules for the Commons. But, just so this isn't too repetitious, I'll forego the usual ranting and raving on appropriate dress and line-cutting, and get to something else —

Consider . . .

The Evening Meal. No. I'm not going to discuss ways to do away with it completely, as it does have its unshakable assets, so you may wish to stop reading right now. What I'd like to harp on is summed up in one word: Consideration. To whom? To the waiters and waitresses who wait at table every night. Yes, the people who run around in white uniforms balancing things on their heads like so many African porters.

For someone who is sitting at a table eating, it is easy to complain about slow service, apparent confusion, etc., but for once — just once — put yourself in the place of the person serving your table and the tables immediately around you. Serving four, six, and sometimes eight tables at one time is no picnic. To see what I mean, take some night, instead of sitting around talking about slow service, and watch the waiter or waitresses at your table. Notice what goes into serving one table. Besides setting it, there is actual serving, which entails milk, courses, hot beverages, and dessert, and then a quick clearing of the table once you have left. And how much does the slave at your table earn for it? They earn about as much as it costs you for the meal. Would you like that type of work?

Giving them a hard time is not the way to learn manners in a dining room. Be considerate to the waiters and waitresses, as they are students like you, and don't deserve a rough time at your hands — they get enough of that from the job when it is going smoothly.

No opportunity is ever lost. The other person takes those you miss.

The best way to remember your girl's birthday is to forget it once.
