

ASPCUF to negotiate

Negotiations for higher salaries and more attractive benefits will be the main objective of the Pennsylvania Association for Higher Education (APSCUF - PAHE), the recently elected bargaining agent for state colleges and universities.

With advancements in salaries, benefits, and other areas relating to faculties, APSCUF hopes to raise the quality of educational opportunities in Pennsylvania, both for teachers and students.

APSCUF has dedicated itself to three principles of academic and professional growth: (1) negotiation of a master contract that will enable the Pennsylvania state colleges and university to retain and attract highly qualified personnel and to raise the academic standards of these institutions in a continuing effort to provide scholarly excellence; (2) uniformity of rights and benefits that will enable faculty at all 14 institutions to enjoy greater roles in the life of their institutions; (3) maintenance, within the framework of that contract of a strong element of local autonomy for individual campuses.

Areas falling under the jurisdiction of these three points include academic excellence, salary, fringe benefits, professional provisions, workloads, grievance procedure, and academic freedom and tenure. APSCUF also hopes to improve the human rights of both students and faculty, working for the elimination of race and sex discrimination.

APSCUF hopes that, with the achievement of these goals, Pennsylvania will be able to compete with the top ranking institutions of other states, giving citizens of this state the best possible educational opportunities.

Council accepting board nominees

The Executive Council of CGA has begun setting up procedures for recommending five students to Governor Shapp, one of whom will be nominated to serve on the Board of Trustees. This idea was initiated by Gov. Shapp in his recent visit.

In the Governor's letter to Mike Siptroth, CGA president, Gov. Shapp said "the names submitted should be arrived at only after the widest consultation with various segments of the student body." Also, the person must be concerned with the welfare of the college, and understand that he is a trustee in the fullest sense.

Casey: return money to college

Auditor General Robert P. Casey, in a letter to President Nossen, recommended that approximately $45,000 in cash and investments currently deposited with the Bloomsburg Foundation, Inc., be returned to the control of the College. Casey's letter is a response to Dr. Nossen's reply to the recently completed audit of the Bloomsburg Foundation.

Casey wrote, "We are pleased to know that pursuant to our recommendation No. 1, you will return the balances from the 1970 and 1971 Freshman Orientation Accounts to the Commonwealth, and that you have returned $6.00 to each of 959 students who participated in the 1971 Freshman Program."

As to the Bloomsburg Foundation, Casey stated that his office recognizes the Foundation as a legal entity, and that as such it "is entitled to receive gifts, grants, and other moneys it solicits, applies for or received in its own name as such separate entity."

Casey goes on to state that whereas the Foundation may solicit and hold its own funds, any funds received by the College not specifically designated for use by the Foundation must remain under the control of the college and should not be put under the control of a private foundation.

The funds Casey says should be returned by the Foundation to the College were not reported in the original audit. In his letter, however, he lists investments and cash totalling $45,898.25 as having been transferred to the Foundation by the Endowed Lecture Fund which was set up Oct. 9, 1958.

Casey's letter concludes by asking for a copy of the Attorney General's advice to Dr. Nossen regarding possible conflict of interest. The question of possible conflict of interest had been raised by the audit and Dr. Nossen had replied that prior to accepting affiliation with the local bank he had asked the advice of the Attorney General and that the response had been negative.

In an effort to contact a varied sample of students, the Executive Council has requested that the presidents of the various student organizations submit the name or names of students who they feel are qualified to serve on the Board of Trustees. Application is open to any student who feels he is qualified.

Any student who is nominated by an organization or who wishes to apply on his own must state in writing why he feels he is qualified and capable of serving. The applicant must also submit an autobiography stating what portions of his background would qualify him to serve.

All students, who are not on academic and - or disciplinary probation may apply. The deadline for submitting all information is Monday, October 25. All information is to be placed in Box 302 Waller Hall. Nominees will then be contacted as to when they will be interviewed by the CGA Executive Council.

CGA and faculty voting on change

The College Senate informally debated Wednesday a proposed amendment that would provide for "23 students elected by and from the student body at large". The amendment, to pass, must be voted on by a majority of the membership of College Council and a majority of the total faculty membership.

The ballots which were placed in the mail Wednesday will be accepted until 5:00 p.m. Monday.

Executive Council of CGA in a letter to all faculty, college council members, and student senators endorsed the amendment which they feel would "increase student confidence" in the college senate.

The increase in student membership would allow student members to serve more effectively on senate committees, by reducing the numbers of committees on which a student must serve, Executive Council stated in their letter. Currently faculty members are permitted to serve on only one standing committee while students must serve on more than one because there are 22 permanent student positions on standing committees and only twelve students to fill them.

Other advantages of the amendment cited by Executive Council are that it would provide for a "greater diversity of student opinion" and also increase student membership on certain senate committees.

The Senate Committee on Student Affairs unanimously endorsed the amendment on Sept. 23 stating that "the number of students (12) now serving on the Senate is inadequate."

A letter declaring that the proposed change would give the students "a more significant role in Senate operations" was circulated by the Student Affairs Committee of the Senate to the faculty, college council, and student senators.

Amendment History

The original proposal introduced on the Senate floor by Rich Scott was referred to the Senate Committee on Student Affairs. The Student Affairs Committee, chaired by Mr. John L. Walker, recommended after lengthy discussion that the number of student senators be increased to 23.

In order to bring such an amendment to a vote there are three possible avenues. The one chosen by the committee required that they present a petition with signatures of 15 per cent of the faculty requesting the amendment be brought to a vote. This would then enable College Council and the faculty to vote on the amendment. The Senate constitution can be changed only by such a vote. The amendment vote is subject to final approval by Dr. Nossen and the Board of Trustees.

Group at workshop

Four students from BSC attended the Fall Volunteers Conference for the Experiment in International Living, October 1-3. The students attended workshops and discussed such matters as the problems during hosting foreign students, problems for American students traveling overseas, and the variety of programs sponsored by the Experiment in International Living.

Attending were Jon Decker, a member of the Senate Committee for International Education, Mary Ellen Cavanaugh, co-chairman of the CGA sub-committee for International Education, Maureen Vestal and Roe Bagucki, members of the CGA sub-committee for International Education.

The CGA sub-committee for International Education is one of the newly-formed committees under the heading of Human Relations. As an initial project the members of this sub-committee are setting up an International Information Center, designed to inform students of opportunities for international study and travel and to help those who are interested to prepare for such an experience. The information obtained at the fall conference will be available in the center as soon as it opens.

green banging Zangor thighs. But I'm grateful for the fire because now that I'm awake I don't have to use 5-Finger Mary or...

"Look out for that beam!" Up ahead a beam falls, a volunteer fireman runs out of the way, barely makes it to safety. The beam hits the center of the blaze inside down deep into the pit and there's showers of spark heat and then a black nausea smell pocket from the pit itself. Poor old horny Tyson, even he didn't deserve this.

Me and Blacky are up to the house. See Tyson's neighbors frantically operating the too-olc Company hoses hoping the flame won't reach their homes, too. See the black skeleton that once sheltered Tyson. Me and Blacky stand and stare for a while.

"Grab a goddamned hose, kid!" somebody yells. I jump. If we put it out, if that beam didn't hit somebody in the pit, if they ain't dead from the smoke and smell and fire, then Blacky and his friends can start digging. Small chance, but what the hell...I grab the hose.

For a second I wish I had taken my marijay ration before I came out because boy would this fire look neat but that's an ugly thought, all this destruction being beautiful. But it is kinda.

How long I duck around with that hose I don't know. I lose track of things pretty much. Too much smoke and shit. All the voices that I been ignoring suddenly fade and my ears pick up one voice, one of Tyson's neighbors I forget his name. I look toward the vibes and see him standing there holding the hose he has like he's urinating or something, just standing there gaping at something. I look around.

I don't believe it! I just don't. They've just found one survivor. It isn't human. It's like Blacky. Except for one thing. It's a female, and female Blackys just ain't allowed on this here planet. Unless somebody decides he wants to breed them for himself. And that somebody would be old Tyson...bastard deserves to burn.

But I stand and do no better job than Tyson's urinating neighbor. Fact we all stand here, looking. We've just never seen a Blacky female before, and she's quite a bitch, sleek, streamlined...I can see why the likes of her are kept from Blacky...no work would ever get done in the mines.

And then the shouts. "Stop that damn cur!" "Grab him!" But there's a big black shape leaping over firemen and watered-down beams and ashes darting toward the bitch. And that shape is my pet!

"Blacky!" But he's in there with her as she emerges from the pit. They circle each other as we watch in perverted fascination. And very soon Blacky and the bitch are doing just exactly what you'd expect two such animals to be doing. And we watch.

And then I see the purple light starting again. "It's gonna blow again." "Blacky," I yell, "get out of there."

"Yeah, kid," says the hose-urinator, "as if he understands, ya...."

"My Gramps said..." and I stop.

The purple light gets purpler. It hurts to look. I only think how lonely the mine, my bed, would be without Blacky, and I start to run forward before some idiot pulls me back with a jerk just as the explosion comes forth with all the furies of hell...

I am crying. There is a strong hand on my shoulder. "Go home to your ma, boy. There's more ya can do for her than ya can do here."

I shudder. "Blacky's dead." "He sure is. Blown back to Earth and then some. Right where the likes of him came from."

"But he's dead." "You don't hear well kid. Course he's dead. But you can always get a new one, ya know." I look up at the guy who has a hose for a penis and say, "It won't be the same. It won't."

"Sure it will. I know. Lost me animal just the other week." "Not like this. Blacky died with, with a female of his own."

The man doesn't speak for a long time. Then he says with an ugly smile, "Yeah, he died happier than any of us. Too bad old man Tyson won't be brought to justice for that. But then again, maybe he was. Nobody has a right to buy and hide a bitch like that one..." And he walks away without me hardly knowing.

So I stand here as everyone rushes to meet the second onslaught of flame and gas. I stand here thinking of Blacky and the years together and how lonely I'll sleep and how now I'll have to buy me another Blacky so's I can work safe and keep Ma going...

...and someone, that same guy, walks over to me with something slung over his shoulder...it's charred, it's twisted, it smells, but it's Blacky...and the guy stands there waiting for me to say something appropriate, the right thing, as I look at the corpse.

...I look at the corpse and think of buying a new Blacky and how now all my money, which I've saved for seven long hard lonely times when the Hyperspace House came down and I missed it, how all that money will go toward another Blacky instead of my beautiful green-breasted foliage-haired Zangorian woman, who has ways of loving which tempt all men who even know how dangerous her very body is, that very body attracting them, and me, to her...

...and suddenly the words are easy to say as I look down at Blacky's corpse and spit before I walk back to Ma... "Damn nigger."

Senate endorses amendment

At approximately 6:00 p.m. on the evening of October 20, George Turner rose and proposed the following resolution to the College Senate: "Resolve that it is the sense of the Senate to endorse the proposed amendment to increase student representation in the Senate to 23." A question was called and the unanimous acceptance of the resolution by the Senate provided the endorsement for what would be the most important step ever taken by the BSC community.

Why can this be an important step? The answer lies first in the importance of the Senate itself. There once was a time when universities were self-directed communities of students and faculty. Over the years however, gigantism and administrative bureaucracy set in and governance of the university was taken from the hands of the students and faculty.

We can never return to the old communities, but we now have a new one; a cooperative body of students and faculty that can set goals and programs for the College. That community is the Senate. And if the Senate is to play a truly meaningful part in setting the best possible goals and programs for BSC, students must have a hand in setting them.

The approval of the amendment will be an important step for a number of reasons:

1) Much of the Senate's work is done in committee. The present membership (12 students - 60 faculty) often results in one student serving on several committees, thus reducing the ability of that student to make a meaningful contribution. Increasing the number of student senators would alleviate this.

2) Passage of the amendment will go far toward eliminating the current imbalance (12 for 4000 - 60 for 286) in the Senate. It should increase the student body's faith in the Senate.

Last year a similar amendment died, not because people opposed it, but because not enough students and faculty members voted. We urge first that all faculty members vote on the amendment, and secondly, that they consider its merits, consider the fact that the Senate has endorsed it, and vote "yes"

The Sigma Omega Beta flag, in its weather-beaten green and white glory, still flies from atop Waller Hall where it was heroically placed last year. Although the flag may be weather-beaten, the Sigma Omega Beta spirit isn't, and it takes up residence along with the brotherhood at 223 Center Street, Bloomsburg, across from the Columbia movie house.

Yes, the founding brothers came from Scranton, Wilkes-Barre, and Levittown, and they converged on BSC to find the one and only existing chapter of the Sigma Omega Beta fraternity, better known as SOB, in the second semester, year of our Lord 1970.

Currently there are sixteen brothers, with eleven of them living at 223 Center Street, the SOB House. Last year there were thirty-five, and hopes are high for the upcoming pledge class to bolster SOB membership.

The organization is not recognized by this school; therefore, they have no cum requirement for pledges. According to Fran Massaro, president of the group, SOB obtains pledges from friends of the brothers who are invited down to a party to get to know the brothers and see if they want to pledge. Primarily, pledging SOB is getting to know the brotherhood well. "We're a tight bunch of friends who live together and stick together in intramurals and at parties," added Fran. "For Hell Night we just have the pledges buy us a keg of beer."

The brotherhood is disappointed that they did not get better recognition for their athletic prowess; they won in the intramural playoffs, but no one knew about it. That was last year.

The SOB life is many faceted, and female participation in all SOB activities is encouraged. "Girls are welcome anytime down here - eight to eighty, blind, crippled, or crazy," says Juicy Jordan, Sergeant-at-Arms for the group. The SOB life also involves parties, for which they are noted. So far this year they have consumed fourteen kegs of beer; the fraternity beer is Pabst Blue Ribbon, of course. When they can't get Pabst they get U.C. The group throws at least one humdinger of a party a week. "We're a party organization," relates Rick Twardzik.

SOB also travels; last year the brothers converged on a small church in New Jersey for the wedding of another brother. They do get around.

For the coming year, Sigma Omega Beta has high goals. They would like to have the Moody Blues play at one of their parties.

The officers of SOB for this year are president, Fran Massaro; vice-president, Paul Vanore; secretary, Rick Twardzik; treasurer, Lou Parri; sergeant-at-arms, Phil Jordan. You can see the green and grey of SOB at 223 Center Street, where popular people congregate.

Harriers win

by DAN MARESH & BOB OLIVER

The BSC cross country team is having another successful year under the leadership of Dr. Clyde Noble of the chemistry department. The team soared to their second victory in three days Monday by defeating Susquehanna University at the Husky course.

Last Saturday the Huskies stomped on the Bears of Kutztown State behind the record-breaking clocking of Terry Lee at Kutztown. Lee broke the old standard by a minute and three seconds. Paul Pelletier was in second place 33 seconds later. Rounding out the BSC finishers were No. 4 Larry Horwitz, No. 5 Pete Koury, No. 6 Mike Hipple, No. 7 Bob Quairoli, No. 8 Rod Dewing.

Monday's meet again brought forth Terry Lee in first, with Husky-mate and co-captain Paul Pelletier in second place, finishing the five mile course 58 seconds later. Horwitz finished third with Tim Waechter only a second behind him in fourth.

Incidentally, Waechter holds the BSC record of 27:32, at the home course, which Lee was only 13 seconds behind.

BSC's Pete Koury took sixth and Bob Quairoli took spot number nine. The final two Husky finishers were Rod Dewing in tenth and Don Nauss in twelfth place.

Monday was a special day for BSC's two seniors, Pelletier and Dewing, for it marked their last home cross-country meet.

A team's score is determined by adding together the first five finishing positions of each team. The team with the lowest score wins.

Dr. Barret Benson of the Chemistry department, Dr. James Cole, Biology department and Head Track Coach Ronald Puhl, Physical Education department aid the cross-country team by officiating in the meets.

Tomorrow the Huskies travel south to Millersville in search for victory number seven. Early next month will be a tough meet against Bucknell.

Husky Preview

Last Saturday the Husky gridders were stomped by the Golden Rams of West Chester State. The game stats really don't prove how bad we were, but then, who has done well against the Rams? They were every bit as good as they were touted to be. They surely will be the Eastern division champion barring unforeseen circumstances.

What about our Huskies? The young defense is gaining the experience it takes to be winners, and Coach Sproule is sure that the Huskies will rebound this week against Millersville State gridders.

The Girls' Gym will be reserved every Sunday this semester for faculty recreation from 2:00 p.m. till 5:00 p.m.

A fine ending after a long race

PREVIEW

by AREBEO, PEN, ELOG

This week our experts figured pretty well after a poor start last week. I picked at a 10-3 clip for winning teams, 7-6, for right scores. My female counterpart struck 7-6, and the newest member of the expert team, a faculty member of the science department hit 9-4 on games, 8-5 on scores. Not bad, eh?

The overall percentages for my picks now stand at 73 percent for winners, 50 percent for scores. "Pen's" record is now 46 percent.

My losers last week were the Cowboys, Broncos and New York Jets. The Cowboys played terribly. Craig Morton threw eratically through the first half and surely was not aided by three fumbles and three interceptions. New Orleans, behind Mannings, made this game the upset of the week. Buffalo, with OJ and Dennis Shaw, was supposed to have a big day against the Giants. They didn't, but N.Y.'S No. 3 QB, Davis, and back Emerson Boozer did, resulting in Buffalo's 28-17 victory.

Denver and San Diego, both futile teams, played to a 20-16 SD victory. Denver had a bright spot in running back Anderson, who rushed 25 times for 105 yards, but the Broncos still came out on the bottom end of the score.

For this next week: Oakland by 3 over Cincinnati. Lamonica, back in form, hits Biletzniff again and again...Cincinnati is tough but Raider experience pays off this time.

Los Angeles by 3 over Green Bay. Packers have been playing tough, but the Rams behind Gabriel to Snow combination should click through the Green Bay secondary for long yardage. San Francisco by 7 over St. Louis. Hot and cold Pete Beathard is coming off a good passing day, but he shouldn't get much yardage off the 49'ers.

Brodie is still sharp, and with Willard rushing and Washington receiving, San Francisco will be tough.

Dallas by 10 over New England. If Landry settles on Stauback, once and for all, the Cowboys will be tough. You just can't be consistent with two number one quarterbacks in the NFL. New England's Plunkett gets good testing from Dallas defense.

Detroit by 10 over Chicago.

Landry is playing well at GB, but Chicago is hurting, with NIX and Conconnon out, not to mention Sayers. Detroit's Owens coming into his own.

New Orleans by 3 over Atlanta. Archie Mannings scrambling ways will drive the Saints to victory again this week. Atlanta is tough, despite its record. The Dutchman is a good coach. Look for more Saint rushing (marching).

Pittsburgh by 9 over Houston. Bradshaw, is beginning to lead the Steelers, while Pastorini is still learning.

Miami by 10 over NY Jets. Miami has an offense! Their rushing is superb, their defense tough. The Jets are coming back with Bob Davis, their No. 3 QB.

Eagles by 1 over NY Giants — pride comes out and triumphs somehow. Tarkington stunned. This will be upset of the week.

Buffalo by 3 over San Diego — like the Eagles, Buffalo has to win sometime. I'm sure Shaw and OJ will click this week.

Kansas City by 3 over Washington — Kansas City playing well. Washington has to lose sometime.

Baltimore by 3 over Minnesota. Both teams strong. Morrall triumphs over Cuzzo.

Profile

By MIKE YARMEY

George Ellis
Class: Senior
Height: 5 ft. 9 in.
Weight: 200 pounds
Age: 21
Position: Defensive End
Middle Guard
High School: Hanover Township
George (Mucker) Ellis is considered the toughest utility man on the team. When asked why he played, he said "Because I like to hurt people."

Muck played football in his freshman year but sat out his sophomore and junior years because he didn't like the coach of the football team. He regrets his decision now because, "I shouldn't have let my personal feelings about a coach interfere with my wanting to play football." However, the fact that Mucker didn't play football during those two years had nothing to do with his ability because while in high school, Mucker started for three years playing either offensive guard or linebacker.

Even though he lacks college football experience, his natural talent and desire to play and reputation as a hard hitter on the field have earned him the distinction of being a specialist and being good at it. He is on the kicking team. His toughness at this position allowed him to force a Mansfield runner to fumble the ball on the opening kickoff. In the California game his hard hitting put number 28 out of the game.

"For my first year varsity I think I've played a lot," he said. But he admits that it's not as much as he would like to. Mucker would play every minute of every game if allowed. His idol is Dick Butkus considered by many to be the toughest man in Pro Football. When asked what he thought of his defensive line Coach Bolar, he answered in one word: "Fantastic."

When off the field Mucker is the prince of clowns, easy to laugh at and with, but on the field he is mean. Ask anyone who plays against him.

This semester he's pledging SOB. After graduation in May (maybe) he intends to go out and make a lot of money". His major is Business Administration.

SORORITIES
Theta Tau Omega      Delta Epsilon Beta

It's been "back to school" after a great summer for the sisters of Theta Tau, with a great year ahead of us.
An important time on our list of activities is our fund raiser to be held December 13. Theta Tau will be sponsoring a dance-concert featuring the "Bouys", a popular group and producers of the songs "Timothy" and "Give Up Your Gun." We hope everyone will plan on supporting our fund raiser while enjoying a terrific evening.
The year so far has found Theta Tau busy with rush and meeting with all the rushees. Seven rushees have entered the Greek World by becoming pledges of Theta Tau Omega. They are: Dianne Baker, Carol Drake, Marian Gessic, Mary Ann Kwaitkowski, Kathy Lamm, Annette Slesinski and Vicki Waugh. The sisters and all pledges are looking forward to the many pledging activities and mixers that are planned.
We extend an open invitation to everyone to stop by and visit with us in our new sorority house at 427 E. Third Street, and may we wish everyone at BSC a promising and fun year.

The sisters of Delta Epsilon Beta are proud to announce the ribboning of their pledges. The newly elected members of the 7th pledge class are: Mary Jo Spinoza, pledge class president, Michele Noto, Debbie Columbine, Susie Flame, Jennifer Jones, Denise Mullins, Carol Faustner, Debbie Kern, Kristi Elody, Smoke Small, Janie Ryan, Ruth Ann McClosky, and Claire Schlosser.
We'd like to congratulate them for their success in taking first place in the sorority Homecoming skits. Further congratulations go to the six sisters who were homecoming queen candidates and especially to Lori Johnson, 1971 Homecoming Queen.
The sisters are busy planning their service project for fall semester. A Halloween party will be held for brain damaged children October 29. The sisters also plan a hoagie sale for October 27. Other future plans involve the 2nd annual Black and White Formal which will be held on November 20th at the Holiday Inn in Hazleton.

LETTER
pisses me off when someone blatantly neglects his homework. How someone can leave out entirely a member of a group is ludicrous. And from a four man group!! What the hell was Cliff Nivison doing on stage?
I don't want to go into song titles but the only correct one was "Whiter Shade of Pale." All the others sounded like Mr. Oliver copied a line from a song they did in order to identify it. (Very poor).
Contradictions abound. (i.e., how can a "quiet classical group...play loudly"?). And before some musically unaware students go home asking Daddy to buy them an organ to simulate jungle and mountain sounds, please let it be known it was NOT an organ BUT a synthesizer.
The article ended on a half-hearted attempt at a dope rap. I guess some people haven't heard that concerts can be held without dope being smoked — and if dope is smoked the last place you want it mentioned is in print — unless of course you're LOSING STATUS — but then PLASTIC people smoke STYROFOAM JOINTS.
All in all, the article should never have been printed — a picture is worth a thousand words.
Yours in peace,
L. Russel,
Wilkes-Barre
P.S. Looking forward to SEEING this letter PRINTED.

Council
to meet
On Monday, October 25 at 7:00 p.m., CGA will hold its second meeting in Kuster Auditorium. Prominent on the agenda will be the reports of the standing committees of CGA, including election, finance (BNE), student organizations, and judicial.
Up for consideration is the adoption of Sturgis Standard Code of Parliamentary Procedure in place of Robert's Rules of Order as the rule book regarding parliamentary procedure to be used by College Council.
The definition of off-campus housing and a decision on the validity of the current off-campus representatives will also be on the agenda. A question was raised at the last meeting as to the validity of the current off-campus representatives. This question arose due to the fact that the college recently changed the classifications of off-campus and independent housing. The current representatives all live in independent housing, a classification for which the CGA constitution does not provide representation.
Other topics on the agenda for this meeting include the election of two council members to the Executive Committee of College Council, allocation for a new station wagon for CGA, and an allocation to the Town Park Association.

PLAGUE!
"A Plague on Your Children" is not a pretty film to look at. It is a disturbing, factual investigation into chemical and biological (called CB) warfare. It shows what the chemical and biological weapons are, what they can do, and what kind of scientific work is being done to produce or counteract them. The film will be shown Wednesday, October 27 at 6:30 p.m. in Kuster Auditorium.
It is alarming that there has been little public discussion of these lethal weapons. There are many questions and answers that should be pursued. That they need to be pursued — urgently — is the most important message in the film.
The film is being shown as part of the course on contemporary issues in United States History. Students and faculty are welcome to attend.
Council, allocation for a new station wagon for CGA, and an allocation to the Town Park Association.
