

Women's hours discussed

College Council moved that women's hours be abolished in light of laws against sex discrimination, namely the 14th Amendment and the Civil Rights Act of 1964, at their first meeting of the new year Monday.

The motion by Sheila Walsh came after lengthy discussion concerning CGA's role in campus governance and whether or not College Council has the power to recommend policy since the inception of the College Senate which contains a Student Affairs Committee. The issue of women's hours will be used as a "test case" by College Council.

The Student Life Staff recommended to the Student Affairs Committee of the College Senate on Wednesday that women's hours be removed, according to Dr. Jerrold Griffis, vice president for student life.

The office of the Democratic State Chairman contacted Tom Beverage and suggested that a campus discussion be held concerning student registration and that the Republican State Chairman also be invited. Bob Blair stated that the County Commissioners be contacted to arrange for a registrar to be on campus shortly after the debate.

President Nossen stated in his reply to the College Council minutes that the $9000 normally used for the wrestling squad could not be used by College Council. The Madrigal Singers received $500 to attend a convention in Pittsburgh.

Convention plans gel

Floor delegates to represent different states and candidates are needed for the Simulated Democratic National Convention Committee to reach the number of 1523 people needed to successfully run the convention planned for the spring in Centennial Gymnasium.

Presently there are approximately 100 BSC students registered as floor delegates and the committee would like to have another 1000 by the convention date along with 250 students from other colleges and 250 from local high schools.

Past conventions had a number of sororities and fraternities plan delegations and send representatives to the convention.

Campaign managers, who are now contacting the national campaign headquarters of various candidates, have been chosen for George McGovern, Eugene McCarthy, John Lindsay, Edmund Muskie, Scoop Jackson, Sam Yorty, Hubert Humphrey, Birch Bayh, and Edward Kennedy.

Senator Frank Church will address the convention on April 22 and Senator Harold Hughes, in conjunction with the History Conference and the convention, will speak on campus in March.

Anyone interested in becoming a floor delegate may contact Bill Orcutt, P. O. 688 Waller Hall; Mary Pat Treuthart, 2838; or Bob Blair, P. O. 628 Waller Hall.

Remember the Terraces. Remember the grass and trees that made the Terraces the best spot on campus. Well, there's only a hole left where all that beauty used to be. And now the construction workers are moving North. Administrative assurances that every effort would be made to preserve the trees and grassy area surrounding "the hole" seem to have fallen on the deaf ears of construction workers. The recently felled proof can be seen lying near the fence. (Schofield photo)

Porter and Skehan are charged with 3 criminal offenses

Deake G. Porter and Joseph T. Skehan, two ousted BSC professors have been charged with three criminal offenses as the result of an on-campus incident.

According to the college, charges of burglary, unlawful entry and trespassing on the grounds of a state institution were filed against the two men in the office of R. Donald Holter, Bloomsburg district magistrate.

Porter's Version
Earlier Porter told The Morning Press he and Skehan had been arrested in Bakeless Center for the Humanities where he was using a ditto machine in preparing material for a court case. Porter said he was using his own materials.

Porter said he and Skehan were told by BSC security police that they were under arrest. He said they went to the magistrate to appear. When the latter arrived, Porter said, there was discussion about a trespass charge and Holter called attention to the fact there was a court injunction order involving the men. Porter said Holter commented that the case was under the province of the court.

A check of the injunction however, revealed that the order issued March 12 by visiting Judge G. Thomas Gates, Lebanon County, restricted Porter and Skehan from entering upon the campus for the purpose of teaching classes or inciting students.

College Version
A college news release of the incident follows:

After consultation with the Dept. of Justice at Harrisburg and with local officials, complaints charging Deake G. Porter and Joseph T. Skehan with burglary, unlawful entry and trespassing on the grounds of a state institution were filed in the office of District Magistrate Donald Holter by Dr. Don B. Springman, vice-president for administrative services.

Dr. Springman filed these charges as acting administrative officer of the college in the absence of Dr. Robert Nossen, president.

Porter and Skehan were apprehended in an office of Bakeless Center at the college on December 27, 1971 at approximately 9 p.m. by security police of the college.

The office in which the two were discovered contained some of the files and records of Gerald Strauss, one of the defendants against whom Porter has filed criminal charges so that the case could proceed directly to the Grand Jury.

It is noted that the College offices are closed this week for vacation purposes and that fact was published in the newspaper last week.

Increased security surveillance about the college premises has been in effect since the recent attack on President Nossen's home.

The official report by college security officers indicates that the suspects gained entrance to the building by use of a key which was in their possession. The official security report further states that the two were evasive when questioned concerning their possession of the key. The two were discharged by the College more than a year ago.

David Ruckle, chief of security at the college, has forwarded an official report of the incident to the State Police for their information.

Porter's Comments
In regard to the "burglary" charge, Porter commented he has used his own ditto paper for reproducing records he used in a legal action. He said, "I do admit to using about three ounces of ditto fluid but I'll be glad to pay for that as well as for the use of the machine although — it is a lousy machine."

Porter described the room as "not an office but a reception center". In rebuttal to a claim by the college administration that "files and records of Gerald Strauss" were in the room, Porter said he felt certain there are no records in the reception center. Strauss's office is in a room adjacent to the reception center.

When questioned concerning the date of the hearing for Porter and Skehan, R. Donald Holter said the charges are still under consideration. Dr. Don B. Springman, who brought the charges, and Dr. Robert Nossen both refused comment.

Budget OK'd

The State Budget Office has recently approved the 1971-72 budget for BSC. As a result of this action, new faculty members are now being recruited for the Sociology, Psychology, Business and Education Departments and possibly others. The additional professors are being sought for the Spring, 1972 semester because of increased enrollment figures.

New faculty members are also being sought by the Chemistry Department. The department hopes to be accredited by the American Chemical Society with the addition of the new professors.

A Student Union Director is also being sought for the Fall 1972 semester.

Part 3:

Chicago and the seige of Loyola

Gentlemen:

There is one activity at Bloomsburg which still holds my wife's and my loyalty and through which activity we maintain the only connection with the College. This activity is generally, the athletic program, and more specifically, the wrestling team. We have been traveling from the Philadelphia area to Bloomsburg just for wrestling meets. The wrestling tradition at BSC has indeed been a proud one; a tradition we thought could only be enriched, but instead it has been degraded. More strangers to Bloomsburg are aware of the college because of its wrestling history than for any other reason, which we are sure is a blow to President Nossen's academic and otherwise cultural aspirations for the College. If he insists on confining what the College has to offer to these areas, he will alienate not only past students, but future students as well.

We are most discouraged by the newspapers articles we have read concerning the athletic program. The situation, from our vantage point, is either getting worse or being neglected. I would hate to think that the students and the town would let this happen. There is only one thing we can do to let the College know how strongly we feel and that is to withhold any future donations. If we thought the program was in financial trouble, then of course, we would take a different approach; but my wife and I are both well aware that this is not the case. I know that the College relies greatly on contributions from alumni, but we sincerely hope that this solicitation and future ones will reflect the displeasure which many graduates feel about this situation.

Very truly yours,
Wayne J. John, 1968
Margaret Yatsko John, 1969

Dear Sir:

We would like to respond to a recent letter to the Editor from Carl Hinkle, the interm wrestling coach at BSC. We feel that Mr. Hinkle is still uninformed on a few matters of paramount importance. In the College's official news release, it was brought out that Mr. Hinkle was appointed coach, James McCue as assistant and Floyd Hitchcock and Ron Sheehan as Co-captains. This is in direct conflict with Mr. Hinkle's statement that "From the very start of the program I had no responsibility other than administrative." If the co-captains were to run the team, it is amazing that Mr. Hinkle, on the day before the wrestlers voted, stated — "It's time I stopped taking a back seat." And also that President Nossen had told him he was to run the team. We feel Mr. Hinkle is correct in assuming he is being used as a scapegoat, because neither he nor the members of the wrestling team should have been placed in the precarious situation that they were. The Administration had failed to secure a wrestling coach prior to the beginning of the wrestling season which only compounded the problems in the wrestling program. We feel the administration did not fulfill its promise to the team members in letting us "coach ourselves". Aside from individual personality differences between Mr. Hinkle and the team members, we feel the full weight of the responsibility falls on the shoulders of the administration for what happened to wrestling at BSC.

Mr. Hinkle also mentioned the fact that he was responsible for the wrestling team's equipment management. The fact that Mr. Houk was not there meant it wasn't necessary to follow his procedures. He (Mr. Hinkle) neglected to mention that the team had followed Mr. Houk's policies for the four weeks prior to his arrival. By changing the procedure at this time, he caused confusion and yet another problem for the wrestling team. During the last two years, I (Ron Sheehan) served as manager for the wrestling team and this Whatever happened to the youth movement in America? Whatever became of the spirit of social and political "revolution" that took thousands into the streets during the 60's? Did it die with the rest of the United States at Nixon's inauguration, or did it meet its death with rock music at Altamont? Or maybe it died along with four students at Kent State.

These questions are going through the minds of the 3,000 delegates to the Emergency Conference for New Voters as they watch the scene unfolding before them in the Loyola University gym.

Up on the platform stands Al Lowenstein, bona fide liberal and former Democratic Congressman from New York. At the moment he is engaged in a heated argument with an angry group of Chicanos who have taken over the stage.

"We have not been represented, but we will be heard", the young Mexican-American looks as if he's about to explode.

"Please sit down and let Mr. Lowenstein deliver his speech", the chairman shouts back.

"We will be heard. We of the Chicano caucas..." The crowd is on its feet and shouting. The TV cameras grind away — News at last!

The Conference organizers have found a young Chicano girl who is telling the crowd to discuss their differences peacefully (whatever that means). She can hardly be heard over the "You're selling out!" chant of the other Chicanos.

The chairman tries again, "Please clear the stage and wait..."

That does it. The Chicanos begin chanting as their leader tries to pound the podium into kindling with his fist. The whole gym is in an uproar.

Lowenstein regains the microphone and begins to speak. The Chicanos leave the stage and begin winding their way toward the back of the gym. Upraised fists and shouts of "Mother-fucker" keep the TV cameras grinding. The Black caucas follows the Chicanos out of the gym.

Lowenstein continues to talk, but no one is listening. "We've got to work together to prevent the division we have just seen". His words fall on deaf ears. The delegates don't have to be told that they must do something to save this sick movement from itself.

The rest of the meeting is a depressing anticlimax. Following

The Housing Jungle

by Joseph Miklos

"Where are you living next semester?"

"Not in the dorms."

"But you can't, you only have 40 credits."

"That's OK, I'm going to move into Approved Off-campus Housing. I'm sick and tired of looking at bricks and not being able to have a woman or liquor in once in a while."

So it starts again. The great escape from the Campus. Sophomores are looking for a way out, but it isn't all that simple.

You look over the housing contracts. There's your first roadblock. The Approved facilities have as many rules concerning your personal life as the dorms. And more. There is no visitation whatsoever, no liquor allowed, and a thing called a Roving Resident Adviser to keep tabs on you.

"Oh, I don't mind, those rules can be gotten around..."

There's your next big stumbling block. You grab up a housing list and start visiting landlords.

Your first acquaintance with one of these creatures brings you face to face with a little old lady who seems very nice.

"Hello. I hear you have a room to let."

"Yes, you seem like a nice boy, but first I must tell you some things..."

Hoo boy! Now you get the sob story about the guys who lived there last semester. Why, why, they actually drank BEER, smoked CIGARETTES, and had GIRL FRIENDS! So, this nice little old lady tells you she has to lay down the law about such filthy habits. Besides which, she never leaves home, so you're stuck in your attempts without the law even being laid down.

You have several other encounters in the housing jungle: the working class couple with six screaming brats that has a room for a good boy—they want you to share the family bathroom; that funny looking gent who lives alone with a big German shepherd; the guy who tries to sell you a matchbox complete with a leaky sink, hissing radiators, and a few roaches to keep you company, and finally the fellow with a very good place—three miles from the Campus ("Sorry, no cars, please. Haven't you read the official contracts?"). Somehow these landlords expect students to be above human desires.

"Where are you living next semester?"

"Oh, I decided I'm staying in the dorms."

"Well I just heard of Approved Off-campus Housing for those who have under 60 credits. I'm looking for a room today."

"OH..."

Here we go again.

the speeches of Lowenstein and Daniel Ellsberg, the floor (literally) is thrown open to debate. Disorganization is the only ground rule as 50 or so delegates swarm around the gym's one microphone, pushing and shoving to say their peace. Resolutions and counter-resolutions, amendments and counter-amendments become a maze of parliamentary procedure that traps and stifles the little spirit left in the delegates. By the time the whole mess grinds to a sickening halt, two hours have elapsed and half of the delegates have left in search of bars and a glass of consolation.

Sunday morning, the small number of delegates who have the courage left to show up pass a number of resolutions. They become the official consensus of the Conference; fodder for the media men who are tired of waiting for the ending to their stories.

But although the stories will have endings, they won't tell what really happened (due to the nature of Journalism — make it quick, make it short, and keep your nose and opinions out of it.) Maybe nobody will ever really know what happened to the youth movement at Chicago, but we can speculate.

First of all, Nixon. He wasn't there (his good fortune) but he probably chuckled when he read J. Edgar's report on it.

Nixon may not have supported the 18-year-old vote, but it's almost certain that it will work in his favor. Why? Because it acts like a sponge, sucking the youth movement up into the porous system of voter registration, voting laws, legislative districts, nominating convention et cetera ad infinitum that makes up the United States political system. Compared to what happened in the 60's, the youth influence will be far less dramatic — and no more effective.

The Togetherness Theory — "We must form a coalition of young people, Blacks, Browns, Red people and women." The Liberal Dream — a united force working against the reactionary forces of American political power.

Fact is though, it just ain't gonna work. The white liberals in this country are trapped by the liberal dilemma—they can sympathize, but they can't empathize with the Blacks and other oppressed minorities. What the Blacks consider reasonable demands are met with guilt feelings and comments like, "Yeah, I know how they feel but, isn't that a bit much to ask for?"

Perhaps the whole idea of a united youth caucas was too much to ask or even hope for, but there's a chance that it might work. But certainly not in the form in which it was conceived, and certainly not in the spirit of what happened at Chicago.

What it's going to take is work. So go out and register to vote, or get someone you know to register. Then sit back and hope and maybe, just maybe...

Those interested in the Functional Design Exhibition will find part in the Haas Gallery of Art and the rest in the display cases, first floor, Bakeless Center for the Humanities. The show, arranged by Mr. Ronald Bower and Mr. Alvin Salzman, Department of Art, has stressed the "new" design and "old" design of tools showing good design is not just a matter of style, but appears where there is a fluid movement of function with the purist degree of material.

Husky Hoop Roundup

by bob oliver

The Husky Basketball team (6-3) ended its holiday tournament schedule on a low note as they lost to East Stroudsburg, (7-0) in a close contest, 70-66, in the finals of the Berwick Rotary Tournament. The Huskies beat Wilkes College in the opening round. Earlier last month, the Huskies came in 3rd in the Southampton tourney, winning and losing one game. Art Luptowski was selected to the all-tourney team for his overall performance.

In Berwick against the Strouds, the Huskies played a partial slowdown, mainly to minimize the ESSC height advantage; and were close at the half, behind only 31-28. The game opened up during the second half, with ESSC jumping out in front 61-52 late in the game.

The Huskies cut the Strouds lead to two points several times, but lost momentum when starters Paul Kuhn and John Willis fouled out. Both finished with 12 points.

The game was close till the buzzer, as both teams traded points.

In earlier action the Huskies defeated Wilkes College 89-63 in the opening round behind Paul Kuhn's 20 points. The Huskies, never in trouble, led by 10 points at the half and pulled away during the second half.

Howard Johnson was number two scorer, hitting 14 points, followed by Bob Consorti's 12, Art Luptowski's 11 and Tony Dere's 10.

In regular season action Dec. 16th, the Huskies went over, under, around, and through the Marauders of Millersville, behind Paul Kuhn and John Willis' scoring, in a game played without high scoring forward Howard Johnson. Johnson had been injured in the Cheyney game.

Kuhn tallied 27 and Willis 21 for the game and the Huskies had a slight advantage at the half.

In the second half, behind Kuhn's and Willis' scoring, the Huskies put the game out of reach.

Late in the game, Art Luptowski's ballhandling magic pushed the capacity crowd to their feet, when he stole the ball three times, hitting layups twice and Willis the other time. Luptowski finished with 15 points.

NEWS BRIEFS

The Literary and Film Society will present The Ox-Bow Incident on January 10th at 7:00 p.m. in Kuster Auditorium.

TRUSTEE APPOINTMENTS

Dr. Edwin Weisbond, Mount Carmel optician, William Zurick, Shamokin RD 1, former candidate for Congress against Congressman Herman Schneebeli and proprietor of the Zurick and Zurick Lumber Co., and Joseph M. Nespoli, Berwick businessman, have been appointed to the board of trustees by Gov. Milton Shapp.

Presently there are three board members who are finding terms of office and there are three more openings to be filled one of which will be filled by a student appointed by Gov. Shapp.

ATTENTION: BASKETBALL FANS

The Huskies will be leaping against East Stroudsburg State College in a regular season Pa. Conference game tomorrow night in Centennial Gym.

The Huskies will be trying again to minimize the Warrior height advantage. Again, because the Huskies were defeated by this same Warrior Five in the finals of the Berwick Rotary Tourney over the holidays.

The Huskies will have to contain that games high scorer for Stroudsburg, Morris Griffin, who had 17, and Charles Bowen who had 12.

The Huskies will probably play a deliberate game on offense, looking for the open shot.

If you get a chance, get up to Centennial and see a great game.

WRA News

by Leah Skladany
The Women's Recreation Association met Monday, January 3 to begin making plans for their next semester's activities. Beginning next semester, fencing, riflery, shuffleboard, cage ball, table tennis and volleyball will be offered. Riflery will be opened on a coed basis to both the experienced and inexperienced participant.

A special program is also being initiated in self-defense to go into full swing next semester. This program will be instructed by Mr. Olsen, a fellow student at BSC. He has outlined a plan to instruct women in a combination of basic judo and karate coupled with a common sense awareness. This program will begin with a two week introductory course which will be followed by four or five weekly lessons lasting one to one and a half hours each.

Rosters for all interested in these activities are available from any WRA representative or at registration. Next semester schedules and future information on all of the WRA sponsored programs will be published in coming issues. The Women's Recreation Association is offering these programs in hopes to present a well-rounded program of activities for the women on campus. They are looking for an enthusiastic response from all women.

Fingerprints

The State Police have found fingerprints on an anonymous "hate" letter sent to the home of President Nossen. According to the President, the "hate" letter contained the following message: "Cherrybombs this time, real bombs next time."

The President also informed the M&G that contributions to the reward fund being offered for information leading to the apprehension of the people who threw bricks through the windows of the President's home now total $750.

program of managing the equipment has worked very well. Mr. Hinkle, in my opinion, was concerned not with care of the equipment, but only with the security involved in the handling of the equipment. Therefore, the previous policies were adequate.

Again, we stress that the way it is presented now, Mr. Hinkle is a scapegoat...Mr. Hinkle's position can only be the result of one of two men — Dr. Bressett or DR. NOSSEN. Since Mr. Hinkle was told one thing and the team another, then I would say DR. NOSSEN is the one who is trying to shove the blame down to Dr. Bressett and Mr. Hinkle.
