

Percey's Buttons

James W. Percey, Professor of Government at BSC, has not lost his buttons. They are on display in the show case outside the Alumni Room in Waller Hall.

The display, which includes over a thousand presidential campaign buttons, is only a segment of Mr. Percey's collection. In four or five years he has accumulated an estimated 1500 buttons and many posters and autographs relevant to the U.S. political scene. Every presidential candidate since 1896, and many before that date, are represented.

The display, insured for two thousand dollars by the college, includes many rare and valuable collector's items. The oldest are a ribbon from the 1875 campaign of Ulysses S. Grant and a booklet concerning the Impeachment of Andrew Johnson published in 1868. Percey feels that his Communist Party button is the most valuable. It would sell for forty or fifty dollars on the collector's market.

At last year's Mock Republican Convention the delegates wore buttons sporting the names of their favorite candidates. Percey was the only one there with a button supporting Teddy Roosevelt and the Bull Moose Party. Unfortunately, the Bull Mooses were not nominated.

Mr. Percey is now collecting campaign buttons of Pennsylvania Governors. He gets them through trading, clubs, and gifts. He urges any possible contributors to contact him through his college mailbox.

Help Percey get his buttons!

Blow Your Mind

St. Louis, Mo. (I.P.)—"Go ahead and smoke marijuana," said the dean, "just don't get caught." Probably no college administrator has ever given such advice. But Howard S. Becker, a Northwestern University sociologist, believes that such an attitude on the part of deans is the only way that campus drug incidents can be halted.

Becker writing in TRANS-ACTION, a social science publication of Washington University, does not believe that student drug use can be stopped. "Students want to use drugs and can easily do so; few college administrations will decide to use the totalitarian methods that would be required to stop it."

"One might institute a daily search of all rooms and perhaps, in addition, inaugurate a campus 'stop—and frisk' law. But they are not going to do these things, so student drug use will continue."

Becker believes that the deans are worried about student drug use, but they are more worried about the "great public-relations crisis" of campus narcotics raids and students on trial. Yet, Becker argues, the more administrators worry about student drug use, the more such embarrassing incidents they will have to deal with.

"All increases in surveillance, of course, multiply the number of cases that come to public attention," Becker says.

Becker's arguments are mainly based on marijuana-smoking, which he says is more widely used than LSD. Marijuana, he says, causes student health services much less trouble than alcohol or the amphetamines that many students take to stay awake while studying. "Marijuana," Becker says, "has no demonstrable bad effects."

Becker draws on his sociological studies of drug use to note that drug-taking students of today are quite unlike earlier drug users, who learned to be careful about hiding their habit. Today's students, he says, get caught because they are either ignorant of the precautions they might take to protect themselves from arrest, or are convinced that they have "a constitutional right to get high."

"Administrators," Becker concludes, "must take a calmer view of drug use and students must become more cautious. The main obstacles to such a bargain will be nervous administrators afraid to take such a step and ideological students who wish a confrontation on the issue. But college administrators have learned to live with sex and drink. They may yet be able to learn to live with drugs."

Faculty Addition

Benjamin S. Andrews, Speech and Hearing Therapist of the Berks County Public Schools, Reading, Pa., recently joined the faculty of the Speech Education Department.

Commentary: Pletcher & Griffiths On Slack and Phillips

by Gary Pletcher & J. Griffiths

On November 29 of last year, College Council banned the distribution of the Gadfly on campus and also forbid solicitation of the paper. Following this action, the Gadfly Editor, Lyle Slack, attempted to ameliorate the situation by various and sundry measures which were thought inappropriate by the administration.

Due to these alleged improprieties, the college held a hearing for Slack and charged him with sixteen counts. These counts can be categorized into three general areas:

(1) "Demonstrated a lack of consideration for the rights and sensitivities of others."

(2) "Students should never display themselves in an unfavorable light... by conspicuous behavior."

(3) "...students who expect to be graduated from this institution should reflect character worthy of emulation."

Mr. Slack was partially exonerated but was required to write a series of three articles as a remedial measure (reprimand?). Mr. Slack complied with this request; however, the articles were not accepted by the college. At about the same time another student, Larry Phillips, began a series of acerbic anti-administration articles.

Alas, graduation day came and went, as did the diplomas of all those therein assembled, with the glaring exception of Mr. Phillip's and Mr. Slack's parchments. In reference to this matter, President Andruss stated that he would welcome a court test of the college's actions. In an obvious expression of disapproval of the college's action, Gary Pletcher, a student activist, disseminated four hundred mimeographed handouts detailing the college's punitive measures. Slack and Phillips then obtained legal counsel from the American Civil Liberties Union.

The disposition of the case remained static (at least in an overt sense) until August 3, 1968, when Bloomsburg State College granted Larry Phillips his degree and teaching certificate. This was a result of meetings Mr. Phillips had with the college. These meetings were ostensibly called to ascertain the facts about Phillip's attitude in respect to various incidents allegedly committed. These concerned a statement printed in the M & G which dealt with social change at Cheyney State College, the Slack affair, a personal letter to the then-Governor

Scranton asking why we could not have social frats at BSC, a letter which was sent to various college administrators concerning shortening of the student teaching period, a question which was proposed to an administrator asking as a point of information how someone would go about breaking a teaching contract, and Phillip's refusal to surrender his I.D. card to a faculty member who demanded it due to an act committed by Phillip's in Husky Lounge, namely, putting his feet up on a chair.

Slack's fate paralleled that of Phillip's in that he also received his diploma, but not until September 22. In a correspondence with Gadfly Editor, Gary Pletcher, Mr. Slack stated, "...as a matter of fact, I have received my diploma as of about the 22nd of September, though, Dean Hoch sent me a letter containing a curious statement which will be added to my transcripts and sent to my district superintendent."

Editor's Note: The statement appended to Mr. Slack's transcripts is: "In terms of our catalog requirements for graduates intending to become teachers, transcripts of Mr. Lyle Slack issued to public school districts shall not be construed as an endorsement for the issuance of a teaching certificate."

The announcement in the last issue of the M & G that both of the disputed degrees have been issued encourages hope that in the future free speech and press will prevail at BSC. However, only time will tell if the pen is truly mightier than the sword.

Letters . . .

Dear Editor,

I am at present a full time freshman at Bloomsburg. However, if the weekend social life here doesn't begin to prosper I believe I will be forced to join with some other twenty-five hundred students and become a bagger.

It seems as though a majority of people here are five day students and two day travelers. My question is why?

Is the leadership of this college too uncreative? Are the funds for providing entertainment lacking? Are the students so uncaring and unconcerned to want improvement?

Really, I'm not trying to focus the blame on any particular group or person, but my frustration has reached such a degree, that I thought it time to look for an answer.

Many of my peers and I agree there is nothing to look forward to on weekends at BSC. It seems when the whistle blows to end the Friday night football game, it's also the signal for Bloom to roll in the sidewalks for the weekend.

A Concerned,
Dudley Mann

Straight From Stan In Fond Remembrance

by Stan Rakowsky

Death in most any form is hard to take especially if you have some special connection with the dead person. Well I would say that most all of us who knew Mr. Shaffer (Mr. Shaffer, Dave, or Shafer, depending upon the degree of familiarity with him) had a friend in him and feel grieved at his passing.

But until his recent illness he had a good life. Migrating at an early age to the beautiful mountains of central Pennsylvania from Kingfisher, Okla., he grew to love this area and adapted readily to it. He had friends aplenty and all who knew him had respect and spoke and thought kindly of him.

Seventy-one years is a long time and Mr. Shaffer lived them to the fullest. But it's the period from about 1956 or more specifically since 1964, that we here at B.S.C. have been under his influence. After some 8 years on the custodial staff (first at the laundry and then in the Commons) Mr. Shaffer was appointed as Head Resident of Waller Hall. There wasn't a better man for the job. All of us on campus knew him. Waller Hall was his, and he belonged to it. It seems kind of ironic that the building with which he was so closely associated with should go down with him. It's kind of like the idea of the old building not being able to live without him and he not without it. How many times would a guy studying or just "throwing the bull" in one of the Waller lounges, look up and be greeted by Mr. Shaffer returning from one of his frequent American Legion meetings (with that Legion cap of which he was so proud)? Or last year when the men of North had their Christmas party and just after the conclusion, saw Mr. Shaffer raging because of the mess, but minutes later (shaving cream on his hat and all) pitch in to get it cleaned up before Dean Hunsinger came through for his inspection at 2:00 a.m. For he didn't like to see any of his boys (and included in this are all men of Bloomsburg) be or get into any trouble? And how many guys would you feel free enough to ask for a favor, right after they've just "bawled" you out? We could with Mr. Shaffer. And I could go on, and on, and on. We all knew Mr. Shaffer wasn't formally trained for the administrative post which he held, but what he lacked in formal training, he made up manyfold in other ways. There wasn't anyone more willing to give a guy a hand who needed it than Mr. Shaffer. Nor was there anyone that "his bags" looked up to more than him. And I don't know of any of them who would say anything derogatory against him. He was something like a grandfather to us all. Yes, we'll miss you Mr. Shaffer, only time will show just how much.

Freedom?

by Alchy

Is Bloomsburg State ready for more Academic freedom? The conservative mist which strangles the spark of Academic freedom must be ostracized. The college has a spark, but students, faculty and administration suppress all glimmers of such freedom. If Bloom is to become a part of reality, we must change the basic concepts by which this college is run. Many students maintain an apathetic attitude which is detrimental to the institution and its progress. Most faculty and administration are mired in the depths of social ridicule and are suppressed by nine non-attending conservatives, who maintain the course of action at this so called institution. Alignment of radical, moderate and the right must be established, for our college to attain prominence as free thinkers. A front composed of these people must be formed. This front has to advance, eliminating the fuzzy thinkers and the obstinate members of the college before Bloomsburg State College can be considered a true Institution of higher learning and Free!

"THE WOBBLIES, THE STORY OF SYNDICALISM IN THE UNITED STATES" by Patrick Renshaw. August 9, 1968 — Anchor Books. Price $1.45. Pages: 280.

They were first to burn their draft cards during a major U.S. war. They fought for the poor, the hungry, the downtrodden and the disposed.

They gave America the songs "Casey Jones," "Pie in the Sky," "Dump the Bosses Off Your Back," and "Solidarity Forever."

They set the pattern for demonstrations — including the sit-in — which has been utilized by Civil Rights groups and protestors of the Vietnam War.

Their leaders were intellectuals and Marxists, poets and singers. They included Ma Jones, Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, Big Bill Haywood, Joe Hill, and John Reed.

They were the industrial workers of the world, nick-named the "Wobblies", the first great American working-class protest movement of the twentieth century. In this book, Patrick Renshaw traces the history of the I.W.W., a movement that flourished from 1905 to 1920 in conditions disturbingly analogous to those of our own day.

Although the Wobblies failed in their immediate aims — overthrow of the capitalist system, a world revolution, a worker's commonwealth — their long-range influence is more difficult to measure. Aside from the techniques of protest and a colorful list of leaders, martyrs and songs, they awakened the liberal conscience of America and created a new awareness of the invaluable right to protest. A nation torn by violence, searching to understand the roots of conflict within its own society, may well pay heed to this important case study, so admirably treated in this volume by a British journalist, Patrick Renshaw.

M & G Coed of the Week

No. 652330, a sophomore from Hazleton, Pa., has been selected as M & G Coed of the Week. She is a resident of West Hall and is majoring in English. Her interests are many. Skiing, horse back riding and dancing are among her favorites. When asked what she considered the perfect date she replied: "Some one who I can have a lot of fun with, whose interests are the same as mine. I hate quiet dates."

When asked what her Pet Peeve was she replied: "Classes, they interfere with my sleep."

What does she think of Tiny Tim? "I think he's cool. He's queer but he's cool." Would you go out on a date with him? "I wouldn't want to go out on a date with him, I wouldn't be able to stand looking at him."

What do you think of long hair on boys? "I think it's queer." She said she enjoys watching football games. When asked about curfews she replied "The ones during the week aren't bad, but the ones on the week-ends could be a little longer." No. 652330 will receive a long-stemmed red rose from Ralph Dillon's Flowers as will every weekly winner of the M & G Coed of the Week.

The latest issue of the Gadfly (Vol. 3, #2) shows signs of maturity, and a bit of identity. The first two issues suffered from various ills, poor printing, cramped space, unexciting subject matter, and a serious deficiency of literary quality, among them. Hanzlik's poem was sentimental mush, and not very good mush. Dinger's letter, regarding his frustrated attempt to sleep with the flag, was heart rending, a grammatical masterpiece of indirection, and basically asinine. Plagued by printing craftsmanship of a rather drunken nature (entire paragraphs, sentences, and words were dropped), and lackluster subject matter, the second issue failed to make an impression.

The huge sheets of the current issue hide the mag's sloppiness, and give it some of the feel and identity of a good underground journal. The article on Pornography suffers from extreme generality and does not relate effectively to the current scene. The author neglected a vast reservoir of pertinent material, the Ginzburg-Eros case, the No Exit to Brooklyn controversy in Britain, The Allen Ginzburg-Howl case, or even the Fortas-film controversy. Instead, we got one guy's personal philosophy, and it wasn't exactly erudition, scintillating, or anything redeeming like that.

The redeeming part of the issue was Plotcher's library satire. It was everything good satire should be, biting, clear in its message, and hilarious. If only this level of satire could be maintained . . . Beautiful, Baby, Beautiful.

The maturity of the Gadfly is evidenced by Plotcher's lack of comment, and noticeably objective attitude. His desire to establish a dialog, on anything, to reduce apathy, is commendable and admirable.

Nut - Squad Crushed By Bald Eagles 15 - 45

Last Tuesday, the Husky Harriers took on a powerful Lock Haven cross-country team in a dual meet on the Husky course. The BSC "nut-squad" really took a beating as they lost to the strong Bald Eagle harriers by a score of 15-45. The Lock Haven team swept the first five places and the Huskies took sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth, and tenth positions. The only consolation the Huskies received from their loss was the fact that all of the Husky harriers improved their times as compared to their times from Saturday's meet with Kutztown.

Dennis Axman, a very fine runner from Lock Haven, set a new Husky course record as he covered the 4.7 mile course in 26 minutes, 41.6 seconds. Chuck Bowman, who exhibited a vast improvement since the Kutztown meet, cut three minutes off his own personal course record and finished first for the Huskies while garnishing sixth place overall. His time was 29:42. (Who said marriage slows you down?) Mike Horbal also showed much improvement as he ran two and one-half minutes faster than his previous time to finish second for the Huskies and seventh overall. His time was 30:03. Tom Henry ran another fine race finishing third for his team and eighth overall with a time of 30:05. Team Captain Charlie Moyer finished a disappointing fourth for his team and ninth overall with a time of 30:21. Mike Engle finished fifth for the Huskies and tenth overall with an improved time of 30:34.

The freshmen squads from BSC and Lock Haven also had a dual meet on the Husky course so both races were held at the same time. The freshmen score was identical to the varsity score, 15-45, only this time it was in favor of the Huskies. Paul Pelletier, a very strong freshman runner, finished first for the Husky Pups with an excellent time of 26:56. The Husky Pups, in excellent shape and showing good depth, have a good start in their quest to uphold the freshmen tradition of an undefeated team. To date the freshmen cross-country team has not been defeated for the past two seasons. This marks the beginning of the third season. This is quite a record and the freshmen are very proud of it.

When this issue comes out, the Huskies will have traveled to Susquehanna for a dual meet with the Crusaders. The "nut-squad" will

THE HUSKY SPORTS

Tomorrow at two o'clock our Huskies will be traveling to West Chester for their first game away from their home (?) field. Last year, with the exception of a few dedicated, vocal fans, BSC's support was nil at away games.

This year the team has only three away games as opposed to the six they had last year. It will really help the team's morale if a large delegation of BSC fans can find their way to West Chester's stadium tomorrow. It's only a two hour drive and you'll get lots of fresh air.

The team's overall record is 1-1-1 this year and it has caused a fall, then a rise, and then a levelling off of optimism about the team. After the opening loss to Lock Haven people were going around saying that the team was horrible and it wasn't worth the effort to watch them play. After the win over Mansfield the same people thought we had a team that was going to do as well as last year's team. Then came the tie with Susquehanna and the same people began voicing the opinion that the team had played the finest game they were capable of in the Mansfield game.

The fact is this is a rebuilding year at BSC! We are not going to win very many games this year. The team is going to put out a good effort each week. But you cannot have a team as young as ours with as little depth as it has and have a great win-loss record. The team's effort this year is going to be reflected in the improvement the young players will show game by game.

Anyone who decides not to support this year's team is only going to hurt next year's team. The same men that will win only two or three games this year can easily be conference champs next year or the year after. But loss of support during a losing season can effect the players morale for the rest of their playing days.

The student body here at Bloomsburg is always quick to point out that the topic of apathy is constantly being brought up by the staff of the Maroon and Gold, or by editorials written in the publication. If you were to ask any member of any type of athletic team if he thought that student support was essential in having a good athletic team, he will give you a definite yes! Student support is necessary for it gives the team a boost in their psyche and morale. It is one thing to have ability and another thing to have the ability and a good fired-up attitude which results from having student support backing up team ability.

There will be a bus going to the West Chester game on Saturday sponsored by the Pep Committee. Round trip costs will be $3.40 for bus fare and $1.00 for a ticket to the game. Stop by the Pep Committee office now and make your reservations now. Support your football team. They need your backing!

ART SELL - Back

MIKE BARNHART - Line

Outstanding Players Of The Week

With Saturday night's 13 to 13 tie with Susquehanna, history, Coach Jerry Denstorf selected Art Sell and Mike Barnhart as the outstanding back and lineman of the week. Sell is a senior tailback from Souderton, and Mike Barnhart is a junior linebacker from Sunbury.

M & G: What gives you the biggest thrill in a game?

Barnhart: Being a lineman, I would like to intercept a pass and score a touchdown. But I haven't had a chance as yet. Also knowing you have hurt an opposing player after downing him with a crushing tackle.

Sell: I like to run over somebody to get extra yardage. I like to get a real good hit on somebody when I am running.

M & G: What do you do to prepare yourself for a game?

Sell: I talk to myself a lot and try to get up for the game mentally. I also read over my play book and scouting report many times, so that I'm absolutely sure what I do on every play. This cuts down my mental mistakes.

Barnhart: The night before I go over my scouting report thoroughly, and the day of the game I try to have a serious attitude all day, with a gradual mental buildup which climaxes at the kick-off.

M & G: What did you think of the teams efforts as a whole against Susquehanna?

Barnhart: It wasn't an all out effort as against Mansfield. The team wasn't up for Susquehanna as they were for Mansfield.

Sell: We weren't over confident, but we weren't very high. As a result we had a few mental lapses.

M & G: What do you think of this week's opponent, West Chester?

Sell: They definitely aren't the team they were last year. If we get an all out team effort we can beat them.

Barnhart: West Chester hasn't got a team to compare with some of their teams of past years. If everybody plays and hits like this week in practice, and if we get high for the game, we can beat them.

Mr. David Shaffer, long time employee and member of the Dean of Men's Staff died, Friday, October 4, 1968, 5:05 p.m. in the Creveling Nursing Home, Berwick. "Dr." Dave as he was affectionately called by the men of Waller Hall, succumbed to complication of diseases at the age of seventy-one. Mr. Shaffer, born in Kingfisher, Oklahoma, started his service to BSC in 1956 in the Laundry, serving later in the dining room and on the custodial staff. In 1963 he was elevated to the Dean of Men's Staff where he assumed the position as Resident Advisor to the men of Waller Hall. In totaling thirteen years of service to the college he made many friends of students, faculty and administration.

"Dr." Dave could always be seen at home, athletic events and was considered by many to be one of the most loyal fans of the college teams. Mr. Shaffer is survived by two sons and two daughters. Bloom will surely miss "Dr." Dave, and his absence will leave a chasm in the life at the college. Good-bye Dear Friend.

Why would Bic torment this dazzling beauty?

Why?
To introduce the most elegant pen on campus.

Expensive new Bic Clic® for big spenders 49¢

BIC CLIC

Only Bic would dare to torment a beauty like this. Not the girl... the pen she's holding. It's the new luxury model Bic Clic... designed for scholarship athletes, lucky card players and other rich campus socialites who can afford the expensive 49-cent price.

But don't let those delicate good looks fool you. Despite horrible punishment by mad scientists, the elegant Bic Clic still wrote first time, every time.

Everything you want in a fine pen, you'll find in the new Bic Clic. It's retractable. Refillable. Comes in 8 barrel colors. And like all Bic pens, writes first time, every time...no matter what devilish abuse sadistic students devise for it.
