Speak At History Conference

Two former residents of Biafra, West Africa, Dr. Iheanacho Nwokorie and Jonathan Moonu, served as panelists on the program "The Effect of the Slave Trade on Africa" as part of the Afro-American Studies: History and Perspectives Conference held this past Monday.

Dr. Nwokorie received his Bachelor of Arts degree from Ibadan, Nigeria. He earned his Master of Arts degree from Atlanta University, Atlanta, Georgia and his Doctor of Education degree from the University of California at Los Angeles. In addition to teaching at both the secondary and university levels in Nigeria, he was also a coordinator of Peace Corps In-Country Training Program in Nigeria as well as a Peace Corps language director in Boston. He was a Fulbright Exchange Scholar to the United States in September, 1966 and is at present Professor of Social Sciences at East Stroudsburg State College.

Jonathan Moonu attended institutions of higher education in Pennsylvania and received his bachelor of arts degree from Lincoln University after matriculating at Elizabethtown College. His Master of Arts degree in public administration was awarded from Temple University, Philadelphia.

He taught a variety of subjects at the grammar school, high school, and college levels in Biafra. He also served as a coach of tennis, soccer, and other sports in Biafra high schools from 1957-62. While at Temple University, he served as a member of the Board of Publications and has been an editorial representative of former "Nigerian Students Voice." He is presently an instructor of African Politics, Local Government in Africa, African Culture and History of Africa at Cheyney State College.

Dean Hoch Announces Withdrawal Procedure Charges

Dr. John A. Hoch, Dean of Instruction, recently announced a new procedure for students planning to withdraw from college. The new procedure was approved by the President's Council and is effective as of March 31, 1969.

A student who wishes to withdraw from Bloomsburg State College must secure the Official Withdrawal Form from the Office of the Dean of Instruction and complete the left portion of the form (Student Completes) before obtaining clearance from the following college officials of offices:

Department Chairman — notification of student's advisor of withdrawal;

Dean of Men (Women)—removal of student's name from housing list and clearance of claims for room damage;

Business office—approval of reason for request for repayment of balance of fees, payment of fees due, and separation interview required by NDEA loan policy;

Financial Aids Office—separation interview required by State and Federal agencies involved in grants, scholarships and loans;

Security Office—return of keys for rooms and lockers and clearance for overdue parking fines;

Athletic Director—return of college-owned athletic equipment or uniforms;

Library—return of borrowed books and materials and payment of library fines;

Community Activities Office—closing student accounts, approval of reason for request for repayment of balance of fees and payment of Kehr-Ward Fund loan;

Dean of Students—return of ID card and notation of reason for withdrawal;

Dean of Instruction—final approval for withdrawal and notification of student's faculty.

Unless this procedure is followed and all obligations are cleared, students withdrawing from college will be denied all services, including transcripts and readmission to college at a later date.

Dean Hoch stated that repayments of any remaining balances of fees paid will be made only on the basis of present college policy (stated in the general catalog) and written requests made to the Business Manager and Comptroller and Community Activities.

James Tate - Past, Present and Future

James Tate, the second visiting poet on the "Poets-on-Circuit program" visited the BSC campus this past Wednesday, April 16, for two appearances. He participated in a workshop for the students and the college community during the afternoon and read from his poetry during a program held in Carver Auditorium at 8:30 p.m. that evening.

Mr. Tate, one of the youngest writers to be published in the Yale Younger Poets Series, was born in Kansas City in 1943, only five months before his father, the "Lost Pilot" of the title poem in his book, was reported missing over Germany on what was supposed to be his last mission.

Following his early education, he spent a year at the Iowa City Poetry Workshop at the University of Iowa, where he later taught creative writing. He has since been a member of the English faculty of the University of California at Berkeley, and in the fall of 1969 will join the English Department of Columbia University.

During the workshop session, Mr. Tate considered the work of some student writers and discussed problems of reading and writing poetry as he commented on his own poetry.

Judicial Hearing

Hearings on the judicial section of the Joint Statement on Rights and Freedoms of Students are being held today in room 283, Waller Hall from 10-12 a.m. and 2-4 p.m. Members of the Bloomsburg State College community desiring to make presentations are invited to do so. The Executive Council, Committee of Student Affairs strongly encourages the submission of written statements of the ideas or opinions to be presented, but does not require such statements. Those intending to make presentations are requested to try to make them no longer than five to ten minutes. Executive Council members may wish to ask questions after a presentation in order to more fully understand the point of view being given. The seven members student committee named from College Council to assist the Executive Council in its work on the judicial section has been invited to observe the hearings. Also, the Maroon and Gold staff has been requested to provide newspaper coverage of the hearings. The hearings will be tape recorded.

Critical Light

by Mike Stugrin

A topic of discussion that arouses the interest of even the most apathetic students is the draft. To many students of college age and beyond, the present draft situation poses a genuine threat to ambitions for the pursuit of a graduate degree. To others the increasing rigidity of Selective Service regulations makes it extremely difficult to obtain classification as a conscientious objector. The United States is currently involved in an unpopular war in the Far East. Millions of Americans question the morality and validity of U.S. involvement in Vietnam and thus they cannot accept the hardships of the draft which are among the fruits of that war. In today's "Critical Light" I would like to briefly discuss the first of these aspects of the draft controversy—graduate study deferments, while on Friday we will consider the latter topic. As always, we encourage you to write your comments to this column and concerning anything else that interests you.

A Break With Tradition

Since 1951, Selective Service regulations have provided for the continuation of study for college graduates who were able to maintain steady progress, complete degrees on time, and (during several war-time years) exhibit their ability to score high on a national test or to maintain ranking in the top portion of their class. The beginning of the 1968-69 school year saw for the first time a break with this tradition—many perspective graduate students are unable to obtain deferments and students already in grad school are not allowed to continue. This unfortunate situation is the result of a decision by the National Security Council (Feb. 15, 1968) to limit deferments for graduate students to those in medicine, dentistry, veterinary medicine, optometry, and osteopathy; and to end deferments in all other fields. Additionally, because the order of call for military service remains unchanged, and because the new graduates and graduate students will enter the available draft pool approximately at the same time, the draft calls fall predominately on men with one or more college degrees.

Serious Problem

This, of course, produces a rather serious problem for the drafted college graduate. The military services cannot utilize all of the specialized training of this highly educated group of draftees, and will be forced to remove most of them from their professional areas of competence for a period of two or more years. It appears to this writer that the situation created by these changes in draft deferments are both illogical and extremely unfair to students who want to continue their education. As of May 1, 1968, there were 1,199,988 men classified 1-A and 1-A-O. About 340,000 were under orders at the time for induction or examination; 136,000 were in 1-A pending reclassification; and a total of 91,058 were listed as examined and qualified. The rest of this group, constituting about 833,000 men were not immediately available since some were appealing classifications and some had not yet been examined. From these figures, which were published by the Scientific Manpower Commission, it would appear feasible that the necessary draft quota could be easily filled by utilizing a greater portion of this reservoir plus the yearly turnover to 19 years of those who do not enter college or other training programs. This procedure, however, has not been followed; when the final figures from the current school year are tabulated, it is estimated that some schools with predominantly male populations will lose as high as 75% in the first graduate year. The second year class in graduate school will probably be only 77% of the class that would have been expected if the draft rules had not intervened.

Volunteer Army: Dubious

At present, the plans for implementation of an all volunteer army are sketchy and rather dubious. General Hershey has bluntly stated that this plan can not be used until the war in Vietnam stops taking such a large toll of American manpower, and then he also offers the dismal possibility that another crisis might easily follow the present one. In the meantime, an undue burden is being placed on the shoulders of those people who already face the prospect of many years of difficult study. Something must be done to correct this unfair situation before permanent damage is inflicted on American academia.

Aunt Matilda 'n the President

Since everyone and his Aunt Matilda seems to be offering their illucidating "biographical sketches" of what the new president of the college should resemble, perhaps it won't be too presumptuous of me to list a few personal observations of the traits which should be considered as being essential.

First, he should be reasonably young and alert to the reality of what young people are really like.

He should be unblemished as much as possible from the consequences of straight-jacketed ideologies; he should be patient and scholarly and amenable to change.

A Ph.D.

Second, he should already have earned his doctor's degree—after all, Bloomsburg cannot afford to be governed by a mediocrity, although some doctors can be much more mediocre than even an instructor.

Third, it would probably be best if the candidate possessed some degree of experience in administration. But certainly, however, he must not be a mere paper-signer. He has to be liberal, sharp, and possessed of foresight. Hindsight and mediocre, half-witted shadow-wrestling (as exhibited consistently by S.I. Hayakawa of San Francisco State) is certainly not worthy of BSC.

Fourth, it is preferable for the period into which BSC is headed,

Comments on The Simmie Knox Exhibit

"Too much sex," claimed the elegantly attired, middle aged woman to her companion.

"I don't mind the sex," said her husbandly-looking male escort.

"When did you ever?" she asked.

"Well, I don't think sex is the salient effect he achieves. Violence is more predominant, even in his use of color. If there's 'too much' of anything, there's definitely too much violence."

"Oh?" she said, "since when are you an art critic? You spent more time ogling coeds than observing this exhibit."

From this point on their argument quickly lost relevance to Simmie Knox's Exhibit, but what is reproduced here serves to illustrate that Mr. Knox's work can arouse some potent emotions. When Mr. Wilson (BSC Art Dept.) informed Simmie of similar reactions among several women who had seen his work, Simmie replied, "Wonderful." You can check it out at Haas Auditorium where his paintings are now on exhibit.

"My Sister Eileen"—Promises to be good.

Anyone who knows Amy Raber knows that she is an actress, on stage, or off stage. She's playing her first lead role as Ruth (her sister is Eileen) in Director McHale's Spring Arts offering My Sister Eileen and knowing Amy's ability and Mr. McHale's past achievements, the college is in for a treat. Break a leg cast.

Marcusian Intellectualism

Herbert Marcuse, Prophet of the New Left, and author of One Dimensional Man, has been quoted so frequently in the mass media of late that few politically oriented arguments avoid his name, and few columnists avoid at least a passing mention of his theories. Some use Marcuse to add a touch of sophistication to their arguments, some use him out of conviction, and some use him because they believe anything so difficult to understand must be intelligent (the same phenomenon that affects those who quote Marshall McLuhan vociferously), and a few, mostly those who have read an entire book or two of his, attack him.

These few call him a disgruntled, ivory tower intellectual who has contemplated his navel, found the truth, and is prepared to disseminate it to the masses, the clods, and the slobs, and the peasants. Marcuse decides that only those intellectuals with the truth (his brand of course) should have the right to dissent, to organize, in a sense, to think, he is well on the way to 1984, and I agree with those who are attacking his philosophy, in that I don't want to be there unless I'm in the ivory tower, and the chances for that are pretty slim.

Gym Dandy

by Harry Roberts

If you stood in line here at BSC on the freezing afternoon of the Lock Haven wrestling meet, or found yourself locked out of the Cheyney basketball game, you might have asked yourself, "Will that new gym ever be finished?"

Centennial Outgrown

No one can doubt that BSC has outgrown Centennial Gymnasium. The seating capacity of the gym is no longer adequate for the college population. However, information recently learned by Mr. Buckingham, Director of Development, indicates the new field house may be completed sooner than you think. The building was originally scheduled to be ready for the 1970 fall semester, but the project has encountered several delays.

Mr. Buckingham said, "According to procedure that must be followed, it ordinarily takes approximately fifteen to eighteen months to design such a building."

First Snag

Design work started on June 28, 1966, but here the project ran into its first snag. Since this will be the first building on the upper campus, the former sixty-eight acre Bloomsburg golf course, the project had to be coordinated with the installation of all underground utilities and all above-ground roads and utilities. He said that problems were encountered in the utilities project which delayed the completion of the design by nearly six months. Thus, final plans for the field house were not delivered by the architect until June, 1968.

Mr. Buckingham noted, "Before plans could be put out for bidding, approvals had to be secured from several state agencies—the Department of Public Instruction, the Pennsylvania Art Commission, the Department of Property and Supplies, and the General State Authority."

At this point the project was delayed again. Not until Friday, February 21, did Mr. Buckingham find information about the delay in the project.

Disagreement Among Agencies

According to him, "There has been some disagreement among state agencies regarding the project, and consequently, bids have not yet been opened. At the present time agencies are trying to resolve their differences so bids can be opened in March, 1969." In regard to the reason for this delay, he said, "It is the result of lack of communication and understanding between professionals in the state."

agencies." Mr. Buckingham added that he had to "needle them" during the past six months, and solicited the help of Dr. Andruss to keep the project moving.

Mr. Buckingham said, "If the project is opened for bidding in March, it is possible our new field house could be completed by December, 1970, since a project of this size requires from seventeen to twenty months for construction alone." However, he noted, "It will take probably two to three months to prepare the building for occupancy after its completion. The building must be inspected by all contractors involved in the construction to detect and correct any flaws."

Difficulties of Hartline Avoided

He hopes that with such an inspection the type of difficulties which resulted from the hurried occupancy of Hartline Science Center can be avoided.

Compared to Centennial Gym, the new gym will be mammoth. For wrestling and basketball there will be 2,600 permanent seats which will be supplemented by portable bleachers seating between 1,000 and 2,000. He also said that for an event like Big Name Entertainment or commencement, 5,000 people could be accommodated. In addition, there will be a swimming pool with seating for 300-500 people. Although it will be large, it will not be the largest field house on the campus of a Pennsylvania State College.

Size Limited

"Because we are not a college with a physical education major," explained Mr. Buckingham, "State regulations will not allow us to build a field house which is any larger." The facility should be suited for the health and physical education and athletic programs of BSC, as he pointed out, "During the design period, as many as ten coaches and members of the BSC Department of Health and Physical Education participated in the planning and design."

Soon, Soon!

Although procedures of our state government are sometimes lengthy and complicated, the athletes and fans of BSC should soon have the field house they require.

that the new man be graduated from and have worked in outside schools. Those who say the opposite seem to think that the office of president should be a "reward for faithful service." A graduate of the school and/or a member of the faculty cannot possibly have the same fresh and creative outlook as a new man would have. We have had a stable thirty years of growth under President Andruss, but now isn't it time for some new blood? The people here are merely human and thus they are heirs to the school's good and bad aspects—sometimes, however, it is not easy to distinguish between the two.

A Word of Caution

Finally, to those who might be campaigning on behalf of or working against some particular figure at the college I can only say: "Twice told news is no news at all!"

Husky Nine Ties K-town, 1-1

The pitching arms of Steve Klinger and Dave Mohater held the Kutztown Bears to only one hit but had to settle for a 1-1 tie in a game halted by darkness. This was the opening game of 1969 BSC baseball season and it was held at Kutztown.

Bloom Sets Up Lone Run

The Huskies scored their lone run in the fourth inning when sophomore catcher Gary Bloom smashed a booming triple to left field. The K-town picket, Coon, mishandled the ball, and Bloom made the circuit.

The Golden Bears tied the score when Klinger threw wild on two bunts to put men on second and third. He fanned Mularkey O'Connell. The lead off batter hoisted a sacrifice fly to left to score Garrett.

In a seven inning contest the Husky pups picked up 3 wins early to defeat the Kutztown frosh, 3-2.

Saturday's doubleheader with Shippensburg was rained out and will be played at a later date.

The Husky nine will take to diamond again tomorrow at Millersville.

Go-Go Frosh

The BSC freshmen track team tore up the Husky frosh record book as they broke 9 frosh standards in a triangular meet at Millersville. The Huskies captured 9 firsts in the 17 events winning the meet with 99 points while Franklin and Marshall garnered 47 and Millersville 32.

The 440 sprint relay of Decker, Easterday, Stabley and Hendrickson started the records off with a 44.2 second clocking for the quarter mile. Andy Scott kept up the winning pace with a new record in the mile at 4:38.9. The records kept falling when John Davis captured the 100 yard dash in 10 seconds flat and Mike Silveti won the half mile in 1:58.8. More new records kept spilling out of the spirited Husky frosh when Davis repeated his first record with a 21.8 second timing in the 220 yard dash. Robert Herb kept things rolling along with another broken record (Ho, hum) with a 60.1 second clocking in the 440 intermediate hurdles.

About this time the varsity probably stood up and took notice as Paul Pelletier and Duane Greenly took first and second respectively in the 2 mile. Pelletier covered the 8 laps in 9:45.4. Rounding out the frosh record romp Brett Kiel took the pole vault at 12 feet 6 inches and Bob Lacoock won the high jump with a jump of 6 feet 2 inches.

This year's freshmen team is probably the best in the history of BSC. With freshmen eligible next year and if BSC can muster more freshmen with the quality of this years group the Huskies should be able to look forward to many prosperous days in the track and field events.

Cinderboys Spiked

The BSC varsity track team lost two meets last week to tough opponents. On Thursday the Husky harriers lost to Millersville by a score of 114-31, and on Saturday Lock Haven clubbed BSC, 103-37. Both meets were away.

Millersville Best in State

The odds against a BSC victory over Millersville were tremendous. The Marauders are probably the toughest team in the state this year and are looking for a state championship. Also Millersville is coming off a 7-2 indoor track season record into the outdoor season.

The Huskies captured only 3 first in posting their first loss of the season. Sam Jayne won the shot put with a toss of 45 feet 9 inches; Mark Yanchek took the high jump at 5 feet 10 inches; and Steve Ryznar captured the triple jump when he leaped 40 feet 5 1/2 inches.

Cold Lock Haven

At the North Pole renamed Lock Haven this year, a frozen Husky couldn't weather the cold and meet that was supposed to be close turned into a lop-sided massacre.

Sam Jayne was a repeat winner in this meet when he put the shot 45 feet for his third consecutive shot put first in dual meet competition. Steve Ryznar came through in the triple jump for the second straight time with a jump of 41 feet 10 inches.

The remainder of the Huskies picked up more seconds and thirds in Lock Haven meet to give Coach Puhl and Coach Noble some satisfaction.

The next track meet is today at East Stroudsburg as the Huskies do battle in a crucial triangular meet with Kutztown and East Stroudsburg.

In doubles, with the third match called after the first set, the Huskies had 2 love sets.

They expect a tough challenge here on Thursday afternoon when they meet the Crusaders of Susquehanna in a match that will be held at the Bloomsburg Tennis Club, opening at one o'clock.

M & G Poll

The Maroon and Gold sports staff is starting a poll of the college baseball fans as to their opinions on the teams in the National and American Leagues.

If you are interested get some paper handy and rate the teams on a 6-5-4-3-2-1 point basis by division. List the division team and the points. When you have that complicated mass finished drop it into the mailbox in Waller Hall for box number 301.

Head Start To Operate Thru New Office of Child Development

According to a news release received recently by Mrs. Iva Mae Beckley, Regional Training Officer for Project Head Start at Bloomsburg State College, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has announced that Project Head Start will be operated through a new Office of Child Development which will be located in the immediate office of Robert H. Finch, Secretary of H.E.W. The delegation of Head Start to H.E.W. is expected to take place on or before July 1, 1969.

Secretary Finch said the new office would be designed to carry out President Nixon's expressed commitment to the needs of children from birth to five years of age. He said, "the delegation of Head Start to H.E.W. offers the occasion for a new and overdue national commitment to child and parent development."

"This new Office will have direct access to me," Secretary Finch said, "and will serve as a focal point for new initiatives in child development." In addition to Head Start, the Office will be responsible for the day care program, and over time, other early childhood programs now handled by the Children's Bureau.

Secretary Finch also announced he will form an ongoing Advisory Committee on Child Development which will be made up of experts in the field, parents of children participating in the programs and local program officials.

As soon as it takes shape, an Office of Child Development will take action to strengthen Head Start. In this connection, the Secretary intends to:

—Encourage communities to try out some of the new program models which are being developed through H.E.W.-supported research.

—Encourage replacement of many summer programs with full year programs.

—Double the present number of 36 Parent and Child Centers programs for families with children under three years of age.

—Seek greater use of Title I Elementary and Secondary Education Act funds for the Follow-through program for Head Start graduates.

—Experiment with a scholarship or voucher system to put Head Start purchasing power directly in the hands of parents, and encourage greater private participation by funding joint projects with industry and unions for day care or Head Start associated with places of employment.

The Office of Child Development will coordinate its activities with existing educational, health, and social service programs. Secretary

Finch said he will encourage joint projects whereby school systems using education funds can collaborate with community groups using Head Start funds to provide a more comprehensive child development program.

"I am encouraged by the increasingly greater use of ESEA funds for programs comparable to Head Start. This is only one of the signs of the changes which are taking place in the schools," he said.

Secretary Finch expressed his gratitude to an advisory committee which met at H.E.W. March 7 and 8 to consider the placement of Head Start. The committee was headed by former Director of the Bureau of the Budget, Charles Schultze. In establishing the Office of Child Development, the Secretary said he was following the recommendation of the advisory committee.

Delta Omega Chi will sponsor "The Delphonics" in concert on Thursday, May 8, as a "kickoff" for the festivities for the Spring Weekend. Tickets will be $2.50-reserved and $2.00-general admission and will go on sale at a later date.

At the regular meeting Wednesday, April 16, DOC held their election of officers for the 1969-70 term. Elected to office were: Mike Barnhardt-president, Don Schraedler-vice-president, Craig Shotwell-recording secretary, Mike Macker-corresponding secretary, Chet Snaveley-treasurer, Bob Snyder-historian, Greg Berger-Sgt-at-Arms, Daryl Stuhl-pledgemaster, Ernie Vedral-IFC representative. Official installation of officers will take place at the next meeting, April 30, 1969.

DOC increased their lead in IFC standings at the annual Greek Week Tug-O-War where they made a clean sweep. After establishing a well-balanced combination of muscle, brain, and "beef" the DOC men had little trouble overpowering any opponent. In order to win a tug, a team was required to pull its opponent twenty feet across a given line. Fifteen men were allowed to compete for a team at a time. The "Number One" team consisted of: Mike Barnhart, Greg Berger, John Dargis, Bob Dietrich, Jim Dulaney, Pete Hanzlick, Craig Harding, Mike Macker, Don Schaedler, Craig Shotwell, Daryl Stuhl, Daryl Swan, Tom Weikel, Frank Yartz, Joe Bottiglieri, Chet Snaveley, Tom Little, Ernie Vedral, Jim Platukus, and Ed Beischline. The next IFC event will be bowling.

College and University Teacher - Pupil Relationship

Dr. Margaret Mead charged recently that our conception of the teacher-pupil relationship at the college and university level is "medieval" and recommended "salaries" for students to make them economically independent and give them dignity.

Writing in the current issue of Redbook magazine, just released, the noted anthropologist and educator said, "The rebellion of today's student's [sic] forces us to realize" that they are no longer content to accept the traditional student role of "submissive and dependent members of the academic community."

pendent members of the academic community."

"They (the students) object to the conditions under which they are permitted to become and remain students, to the arbitrary control of their personal lives and the lack of response to their demands for changes in the rules about which they must learn, how and when and from whom."

Predicting that education is certain to become our "greatest social and economic enterprise," Dr. Mead said it will be necessary to "design a wholly new kind of studentship in new kinds of institutional settings. As long as institutions of learning are only partly supported by student's fees and parents must continue to contribute financially to their children's education, students will remain subordinate to the dictates of others."

Dr. Mead said "we must treat everyone at 18 as a young adult who has economic, political and educational control over his—and her—own life. It means the vote for 18-year olds and positive provisions for students to vote wherever they are. It means draft reform that will take into account essential stages of study and work experience."

"Above all it means economic independence, so that each student, equipped with his own funds, will be able to make his personal choice and will be free to decide when and in what setting he will get his training."

Dr. Mead said in Redbook that various methods of underwriting the economic independence of all students have been discussed. "For example, we can provide adequate salaries for students out of public funds, through taxes, exactly as pay for other essential services. I believe, however, that private funds from foundations and individuals still will be needed to underwrite new, experimental educational programs and the salaries of individually innovative students."

"Young men and women who are earning the right to study by making responsible use of opportunities are likely to be serious and hard working. And older men and women will feel justified in returning to school or entering programs of training because of the dignity and security of the student's position."

"We should not ask a man to choose between dependence on his parents, dependency on his wife or the assumption of a heavy burden of debt in order to attend school. Nor should we expect wives to forgo education for financial reasons. Only when education is fully available to all those at any time who are ready to make a choice will we begin to have a free flow of knowledge and a balance between responsible learning and action," Dr. Mead declared.
