Board meets with probe committee

A three man team set up to investigate college controversies met with the Board of Trustees Monday and agreed to carry out hearings this week.

The initial meeting Monday was closed to the press. According to the three investigators the decision to keep the doors closed was not made by them, although William Zurick, Trustee, said of the decision, "It appears to be overwhelming".

Following the Monday meeting, the following report was released:

STATEMENT ISSUED

"Members of the investigating committee selected for the check of the situation at Bloomsburg State College met for a few hours late yesterday afternoon with six members of the Board of Trustees.

"At this session, the format for the probe was laid out. Some of the interviewing will be at the College but most will be at the Hotel Magee."

"Interviewing will begin this morning and continue at least through Wednesday."

"William Heyn, of New Holland, and Duane Wilder, of Warren, met with the six trustees. Jack Worrirow, a former mayor of Lebanon, was delayed because of the sudden illness of his mother, but arrived later in the evening.

WILL BE CALLED

"All who have expressed the wish to be heard will be notified by telephone as to the time and place."

"Two of the trustees, William Booth and Guy Bangs, are in Florida. Another trustee, Judge George Heffner, was also absent.

"William Zurick, chairman of the investigation, presided at the meeting. Other trustees present were Joseph Nespoli, Frank Fay, Dr. Edwin Weisbond, Frank Croop, and Ted Fenstermacher. "Also present at the session was Arthur Sinkler, chairman of the State Board of Colleges and Universities, and secretary of the State and Board of Education.

"Others who might wish to visit the interviewers and who have not made contact as yet may call Stefanon at Room 341, Hotel Magee. It will not be necessary for callers to identify themselves while asking for an appointment."

TRUSTEES ON COMMITTEE

The committee is comprised of all members of the board of trustees and four other prominent state residents.

The four are Arthur B. Sinkler, president of the Board of Directors of State Colleges and Universities; Worrirow, secretary of Lebanon Foundry; Wilder, executive vice president of National Forge, Warren; Heyn, vice president of New Holland Machine Co.

HEARINGS BEGIN

The three man committee began hearing testimony on Tuesday. During the first day of hearings, held in the Magee Hotel, the committee listened to a number of administrators, faculty and students.

Student Withholding

May Be Unnecessary

Working students may be exempt from Federal income tax withholding on their wages this year if they notify their employers, the Internal Revenue Service stated.

Those who did not owe any tax last year and expect to owe none in the current year should so certify to their employer. This would eliminate the need to file a tax return next year unless there has been tax withholding and the student wished to recover it.

Students who qualify for exemption from withholding should fill in and submit a Withholding Exemption Certificate (Form W-4E) to their employer. Those who wish to renew their exemption should file a new form because exemption certificates filed for 1971 expire April 30.

Black Students plan weekend

Continuing in the vein of the Black Colloquium that brought Dr. Lincoln and The Honorable Shirley Chisholm to this campus, the Black Student Society is sponsoring a Black Weekend March 10, 11, and 12. The purpose of this weekend is to bring to BSC aspects of the Black Culture that have never been here before.

The Weekend is open to all students and a completed schedule will be available next week, giving all the events as well as their times and places. So far the weekend includes: the movie, "Memphis to Montgomery," The Street People (a group), the Black Poet, Sonya Sanchez, The Virginia State Jazz Band, and a Soul Dinner in the

CGA Agenda

The Executive Committee of CGA has announced the agenda for the next Council meeting which will be held Monday March 6 in the Student Union at 5:30 p.m. A special meeting of College Council was held Monday Feb. 28 to discuss the $33,000 allocated for the Tartan track.

The Budget Committee will present a report on the Book Store Fund. Reports will be heard from the Student Dining Room Committee, the Committee to investigate reserved seats in the gym and the Committee on increased student membership in the Senate. Michael Siproth will report on the Pennsylvania State Association of Student Governments Convention.

Michael Siproth will announce the appointment of two representatives to fill vacant Council seats. A member of the Student Union Program Board will be present to explain their new policy on Admissions. Hopefully, a reply from the Attorney General concerning the Commons. In addition there are plans for dance troupes and other bands for dances, plus workshops that will take place throughout the weekend.

The Black Student Society is expecting a number of guests from other colleges and needs lodging for these guests. They would appreciate it if anyone who has an available room for that weekend would either contact their RA or a member of the Black Student Society.

Torbert: Student Trustee

Michael J. Torbert, a 25-year-old Naval Reserve veteran, has been named to the BSC Board of Trustees by Governor Shapp. Mr. Torbert is a first semester senior in Business, from Allentown, Pa. He is a transfer to BSC from Lehigh County Community College, where he earned an associate degree in Business.

Being Vet will Help

Mr. Torbert feels that his being a veteran will help him to bridge the gap between the students and the public. He feels that since the idea of a student trustee is a new innovation in Pennsylvania, his age and experience will make him acceptable to both the students and the college community, he is old enough to relate to the administration, and young enough to understand the problems of the average student.

Will Stay On

Although Mr. Torbert will graduate in January, 1973, he will not give up his position as a member of the Board, but will continue to serve and complete his three year term, since he plans to stay in the Bloomsburg area. He doesn't feel that his age will be a liability in his relation to the students.

When asked his opinion of the problem raised by the clash between Robert Nossen and Russ Houk, Mr. Torbert commented that all he knew of the situation was what he had read about it in the M&G, and he wouldn't be able to comment until he knew more of the problem.

Wants to Meet People
Mr. Torbert wishes to get to know as many people on the BSC campus and community as possible in order to get their opinions. He wants to talk to them, and for them to feel free to talk to him at any time. Above all, he needs the support of the students in order to do a good job as a trustee. He feels that his responsibility is to the students; to convey their views to the Board.

Michael Torbert, new student trustee.

editorial

An hour spent talking with "the three machinists" currently investigating the BSC situation has dispelled all doubts I may have had as to the credibility of any report they release. Due to the "closed door meeting" policy recently adopted by the Trustees, I was skeptical at first as to their qualifications and the exact nature of their mission. But when I walked out of the Magee conference room on Tuesday, I at last felt that something positive was being done.

From the minute you walk into that room, you know they are intent on doing a thorough job. After informing you that they don't want any second hand rumors (or first hand lies), and after explaining that you may be called upon in court to back up anything you say, they ask if you've got anything to say. (And judging from the list of "notables" who met with them on Tuesday, I'd venture to say that there was plenty said — much of it consisting of axes which have already been ground too thin.)

Getting an ambiguous statement past the committee is harder than trying to find Elton Hunsinger's office. The three men repeatedly ask for clarifications, background material and the circumstances leading up to a particular event. They ask questions about every topic until they feel they understand it. And, surprisingly enough, they never betray a hint of bias in favor of, or against either side of the conflict.

That last point is important because the three men are performing a function which the Trustees, entangled as they are in their web of political and personal commitments, are incapable of performing — looking, as objectively as possible, at the whole situation.

That's another important point — the WHOLE situation. Wednesday, The Morning Press ran an editorial (front page, no less) complaining about the fact that anyone who wanted to could call the committee and receive an appointment to "grind their axe". But isn't that the point of the whole thing? To hear everything, including the bullshit and the petty gripes, and clear the air of the whole stinking mess? Perhaps if the reporter who made that call for The Morning Press had actually kept the appointment he made instead of bitching about the fact that he got one, he would have seen that the solution to the "Bloomsburg mess" may be close at hand.

Sex Maniac

BY RUSSEL DAVIS

This article is dedicated to all females of BSC and to all males who feel that they've been wronged by one who "attacked" their girls.

Who out there in reader-land, has ever considered the life of a Sex Maniac (or SM for short)? Has anyone ever followed one through his daily life, photographing and cataloguing his movement? Have any of you readers ever considered the frustrations of his life? Here, in part, is the story:

Imagine, if you will, coming to college to escape from your old life. Remember, back in high school, being that short-haired, serious student who read scientific articles for entertainment. Then, suddenly, you graduate, and discover at the same time, that you have a body that enjoys S-E-X. What happens next? You go to an average college with a greater number of girls than guys, hoping to indulge in your new-found recreation.

Here you are in college, when lo and behold, you suddenly realize that most girls up here, whether they realize it or not, are after a husband. That is (before I'm crucified on a women's lib cross), they want the security of knowing that someone will always be there. Being rather dumb and naive, you aren't ready for that type of attachment. So, you do the next best thing (or so you think). You become a SEX MANIAC.

So much for history. Where are we now? Why, sitting in the student union, watching all the beautiful, young females walk past you. You sit there and dream, no — fantasize, about what would happen if Mary, or Karen or perhaps Kathy over there, would suddenly come over to you and say, "Let's.... It's fun to dream — much safer, but much more frustrating.

Anyway, your sitting in the union, and a girl comes over to you, with tears in her eyes, to tell you how her boyfriend suddenly hates her because she gained five pounds from eating cheez waf-fies. So being the lovable SM that you are, you compliment her on the color of her eyes, or the sheen of her hair. Of course, she just eats it right up. Then, you tell how attractive and desirable you think she is. You sit there with your arm around her waist, hoping. But all is for naught. Her boyfriend (some 6'2" weightlifter with big shoulders and a deep voice comes in dramatically, and rescues her, explaining that he had a hangover. He sweeps her from your evil clutches, leaving you to pick your nose.

by Sue Sprague

Mrs. Althea S. Hoke is a warm, vibrant person, and somehow she makes you want to visit your grandmother who you haven't seen for a long time. In case you've never met Mrs. Hoke, she's the House Mother in Montour Hall, and has worked as a House Mother at BSC for fifteen years.

When Mrs. Hoke came to BSC she lived in the only residence hall for women on campus: Waller. As Head Resident (House Mother) under Dean Miller, she advised all committees and the Governing Board in that hall. She counseled, talked to parents, chaperoned the Wednesday night dances, arranged social functions, interviewed prospective students, and even spent a summer as Acting Dean of Women.

But things are different now. Mrs. Hoke will be leaving soon as a result of the college's "phasing out" of House Mothers, and placing the burden of most of the responsibility on the Resident Advisors. "As time has gone on, my job has lessened, indeed," said Mrs. Hoke. And so it has. BSC has changed a great deal since that September in 1957 after Mrs. Hoke had completed her certification as a House Mother at Purdue University, and came to BSC as its first Head Resident.

Mrs. Hoke's most rewarding experience over the past fifteen years, has been, "The fact that so many of the girls who have gone on have come back to see me." Thousands of girls have passed through her life, and she says that she wouldn't trade that for the world. At the surprise dorm party held in her honor last Monday night, she told the several hundred girls in attendance that they had "filled an empty spot" in her life.

Mrs. Althea S. Hoke, Head Resident, Montour Hall.

Mrs. Hoke is the wife of a physician, with a son and a daughter of her own before she came to BSC. Then she was widowed, and she tells her girls that she "loves them like they were her own daughters."

Mrs. Hoke will now go to live in another part of Pennsylvania to act as companion to two of her aunts. Her parting remark to all the girls that she has worked with is: "I hope that the rest of my life could be as happy as my life here in Bloomsburg. I certainly wish joy, success, and happiness to all my friends here on the campus."

Record Review

by Joe Miklos

Sunfighter... SlickKantner "we have the mountains and we have the town now battle cruiser two tone silver loser run with the wolfpack..." Grace Slick Paul Kantner Wolves are almost human, or at least in action. They are carnivores and social animals. They are a deviant in the animal kingdom. They hunt in packs, killing the weak lagards in a herd of caribou. Their renown is great: they are reputed to be fierce and vicious brutes.

Wolves have been crowned with an undeserved crest that leaves fear as a monogram. Yet wolves are family oriented, packs consisting of a related group. Pups grow up under family like conditions. And finally wolves are shy, rarely attacking human beings; the flesh they eat comes from the weakest prey. They are balancers in the food chain.

But why wolves in a record review?

Well, Slick and Kantner are very similar to the aforementioned wolves. Between this album and its sister, Jefferson Starship, Grace Slick and her old man have been nailed with charges like: sloppy music, repetition, and ultimately fantasmagorical revolutionary monomania. All of that is true.

But like the wolves, SlickKantner are wearing an undeserved crown. They hit us several times with the ecology lines. The albums seem to be keeping the Airplane family cogent, Marty Balin notwithstanding. He seemed to be champing the bit when he left anyhow.

"Let's go back, fix up this mess," seems to be the message, but lyrical devices are dropped in that Jefferson Airplane style that keeps you guessing: science fiction or here-and-how reality? There seems to be a true love for the Earth Mother that touches one's desire for purity.

Kantner once more alludes to the stars, heading out to Andromeda. It's a clean blend of a vision of a new earth, technological symbiosis, or death. The only other solution the album offers is for the Good People to clear out on that hijacked starship ready by 1990.

So the album is another monomaniacal concept job.

It's lousy music, it's good production. It's Jefferson Airplane and like Starship, like Bark it grows on the listener. Eventually, like all Airplane records you end up liking it. Despite my urge to handle this thing like a critic would, I'm faced by my self (nasty fella) to say, "It's good."

The fantasy is too much to swallow in one gulp. SlickKantner must be listened to until you can't hear the music, until you start dreaming. If you want a taste of Sunfighter, listen to "War Movie" on Bark. It's the spirit of the thing, not the music, eh?

Cagers drop 6th; playoffs begin Monday

by Bob Oliver

The BSC Cagers ended their 1971-72 regular season schedule Monday nite when they were defeated by King's College of Wilkes-Barre, 76-63, at the King's gym.

The Huskies, playing their fifth game in little over a week, trailed right from the start. Down 36-32 at the half, the Cagers battled back to within 2, 45-47, with a little over 12 minutes remaining.

Then, however, the Monarch's Chuck Balbraith caught fire, mostly because Husky center was again in foul trouble. The Monarch's then ran away with the game, and the Huskies lost their sixth game of the year.

The BSC scoring leaders were Paul Kuhn, Howard Johnson, and Willis with 12 points each.

Monday nite the Huskies return to Centennial Gym to host the first game of the District 19 playoffs, vs St. Mary's College. Tickets are on sale in the Bookstore, and if you have a ticket, you are guaranteed to be admitted.

In the PSC final standings, the Huskies finished tied for second place with an 11-3 record, as did East Stroudsburg, both being one game behind Cheyney, who was 12-2 for the year.

TRACK NEWS

by Paul Hoffman

On February 27, John Ficek, Andy Kusma and Larry Horowitz traveled to Delaware State University for the Delaware Invitational Indoor Track and Field Meet, representing the Husky squad. Each man turned in a fine performance, setting new team records.

In the shot put, John Ficek placed fourth among some of the top collegiate entries in the east. John's toss was marked at 51' 10 3/4", landing one of the new team records. The winning heave in the event was 56' 5" by Hyde from the University of Pittsburg.

In the 60 yd. high hurdles, Andy Kusma finished 5th overall with a second new team record of 7.5 seconds. The winning time was 7.3 set by Tarpey of St. Joseph's. Larry Horowitz finished third in his heat and claimed the Huskies third indoor record that day with a 4.23.7 time in the mile run.

The Huskies have now compiled eight new team records in four meets.

Coverage of the BSC, East Stroudsburg, Ursinus meet to be in next Wednesday's issue.

depressed, so you sit back and frown, and sulk, and indulge yourself in some self-pity. Out of nowhere, another girl appears next to you, and starts fawning over you. It seems, she's really feeling bad and needs complimenting too. Once again, you go through the routine, only to find out that she's in love with your next door neighbor and doesn't know how to meet him. By now, an ant would have to tunnel to reach you, you are feeling so low. You are reaching for the razor blades, when along staggers a girl. She's plastered, and worries about that freckle on her nose. This one, being wiped out, you get to your room, whereupon she tells you about being good friends and trusting you. (Girls — do you want to kill a guys sex drive sometime? Tell him that you trust him.) "Oh, Lord, just let me reach that bottle of pills!"

Back to the union and more frustrations. Nothing Big happens the rest of the night — just more of the same. With your eyes down you head back to your room to contemplate the night's events. A few conclusions are reached. One — this, definitely, is not the way; two — you're stuck with it as long as there are insecure women; three — I think I'll kill myself.

So girls, if ever you feel down and out, or if you feel ugly or insecure about something, don't ever hesitate, just walk right up to the nearest SM and smile. He'll do the rest!
