CGA Votes On Additional Funds

By DOT ILLTIS
CGA overwhelmingly passed the Finance Committee's report to give $31,040 to the Field Hockey Team to attend the National Tournaments. Overall, approximately $39,000 was allocated to campus organizations at their last meeting.

A stipulation is that the bulk of the Athletic Post Season Reserve account must be spent for costs related to the National Tournament. The NCAA will reimburse CGA for transportation costs of the hockey team. The amount of $31,040 will be returned to the Reserve for new Funds and Projects, but 4,420 left over from their reimbursement will be returned to the post season athletic account.

The Campus Child Center received $4641.00 to hire some extra students at the center. Their service provides services for 50 children as well as students from various majors to volunteer and gain experience in child care and other areas.

CGA also gave $1260 to the Field Hockey Team to travel to Lock Haven for the PSAC championships. These funds cover traveling expenses as well as meal allowances. The funds will come from the post season athletic reserve.

The Weather and Information Service received $1,979.77 to purchase an announcing system which will add another line to the system. The present system has only one line, the request covers installation.

Four students received $86.00 to go to the Fifth Annual Allegheny Region Programming Contest at West Chester State on November 13. The funds cover traveling expenses for the students.

Concert Choir received $300.00 to purchase two used tuxedos. They must transfer the $300.00 from the Concert Expense Category within their own budget to obtain the tuxedos.

CAS Wins Awards

The Commonwealth Association of Students won four awards for outstanding contributions made to student advocacy at a conference held in Washington, D.C. recently.

CAS received awards for Outstanding Contribution to National Student Politics, Outstanding Contribution to the Area of Affirmative Action, and two individual awards for Outstanding Contribution to Grassroots Student Advocacy.

The individual awards were won by CAS Board of Coordinators Chair Mary Washington, a student at Indiana University of Pennsylvania, and Mike Burke, a student at Slippery Rock State College.

The awards were presented at the United States Student Association-National Student Education Fund, State Student Association Conference.

Representatives of USSA and NSEF decided who would receive the awards.

Bob Bingham, NSEF State Student Association Field Coordinator, said, "CAS continues to be at the forefront of working on the behalf of students in Pennsylvania and the nation."

CAS Executive Director Joyce Cheepudom said, "We are pleased and honored by the awards and believe that they reflect the commitment of CAS to the students of Pennsylvania State College and University system."

Bloodmobile Sets Goal of 300 Pints for BSC

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be on campus Wednesday, November 10th and Thursday, November 11th, in the Kehr Union. The Bloodmobile will be open from 10:45 to 4:45 p.m.

According to the Red Cross Blood Center, a goal of 300 pints for each day has been set, and judging from past experiences at BSC there should be no problem achieving the goal.

The donation of blood is a simple act, yet one which many people misunderstand and/or even fear. Many times, the reluctance is due to a lack of knowledge.

Is it true, for example, that the average human body contains less than six pints of blood? Is it true that one pint of blood can be used to aid only one other person?

The entire process of donating blood takes less than an hour, and donors may give blood once every eight weeks.

Consider other statements: All blood is of the same type; you can donate blood as often as you wish; blood can be used only in transfusions. And is it true donating blood is a long drawn out, and painful process?

All of these statements are false. According to the American Red Cross, the entire process of donating blood less than an hour. In addition, the average body has 12 pints of blood, and only the reserve pint is taken.

The donor may give blood once every eight weeks, and everyone between the ages of 17 and 66 is eligible to donate, providing they are in good health and weigh more than 110 pounds.

There are four major blood groups: O, A, B, and AB. Each group has a positive and negative category. Some blood types, such as AB positive, AB negative, and B negative are very rare. REMEMBER, ALL BLOOD IS RARE IF IT IS NOT AVAILABLE WHEN YOU NEED IT.

New Phone System Installed on Campus

By RICHARD WEISS
Bloomsburg State is getting a new phone system which is now installed and was finished Saturday. The Dimension phone system, installed by Bell, will replace the now outdated Centrex phone system which is also made by Bell. The switch will cost Bloomsburg $58,000 but this investment should be worth every penny, according to Paul Conrad, Director of Administrative Services. "It will grant the faculty, administrators and their secretaries greater mobility, flexibility, and it will be cheaper to operate," he added.

The decision for this particular system was easy, according to Conrad. "In my opinion it is the best on the market, a lot of key personnel agreed this was the way to go." Bell Telephone has added to the new phone some remarkable and time saving devices. Automatic callback and call forwarding of all calls are just a few of the new features that make this system a time-saving tool for secretaries.

The system will also force off-network use (the dialing of the number eight instead of nine for an outside line). This will save the school approximately 66 percent on all long distance calls.

Conard, when asked why students dorm rooms would not be getting this service, said, "This is the only way we could get Harrisburg to approve the installation of a new phone system." The phone system has been left open for future expansion in the hopes the students will also receive this service.

The new system will require training sessions in which personnel and staff will be briefed on its uses. Sessions will consist of a 25-minute film that will acquaint users with the system. Any and all questions about the system are answered immediately following the film.

Finance Committee Approves Allocations

By MEG RONEY

BSC's expanded squad of cheerleaders petitioned for funds at last Thursday's session of the Finance Committee. Mrs. Nancy Sanders, the group's new advisor, submitted a request for $976.50 in order to allow the squad's twelve female and twelve male members, plus its one mascot, to cheer at three away basketball games and two away wrestling matches.

The $275 left in the cheerleading budget, which was originally calculated and allocated for a ten member squad, is not sufficient enough to cover the mileage and meal expenses which the team needs in order to travel to the away games. Explaining the large growth of the team this year, Mrs. Sanders commented, "we had the interest of men for the first time in a very long time, so when the opportunity for expansion knocked, we took advantage of it." Furthermore,

Information Service Available To Students

By SHELLY RESSLER

A new information service for students who have questions or concerns with sexual health will begin Tuesday, November 9. The service will be in the CGA office, located on the top floor of the Kehr Union Building. All inquires will be held in the strictest confidence, according to Tom Campbell, director of the program.

Campbell, a psychology major, is currently a senior at BSC and will be graduating in December. He is presently interning at the Columbia-Montour Family Planning Agency, where he received training for the services he will be providing.

The service will be an information and referral service, provided free of charge.

The service will not be a counselling service, but rather an information and referral service, provided free of charge to students.

It is being facilitated by CGA, which helps to fund Family Planning. Constance Gaynor, a staff member at the agency, will serve as coordinator. Family Planning Agency is glad to have the support of CGA.

"Student support of Family Planning is valued, Gaynor stated, and the agency appreciates CGA's cooperation in bringing this service to the students, this being the first year that the facility has been provided."

It will also provide information on sexual health-related concerns...

The service will provide information to the students as well as act as a referral for any areas connected with sexual health-related concerns. Pamphlets and handouts will be available. The most up to date information on contraceptives, their use, side effects, cost, and availability will be provided. Another main area of advice will be on sexually transmitted diseases (S.T.D.), their types, symptoms, preventative methods, and cures.

Gaynor revealed, "S.T.D. is on an increase nationwide; however, locally we seem to be not finding the tremendous increase. This is due to awareness and good health care availability." It is important for students to be aware of the facts relating to S.T.D.s so they will not be misled by inaccurate information. The service will be available for such facts.

Also provided will be birth control information, with an emphasis on not only helping

Letters to the Editor

Cold Feet

Dear Editor:
This letter is addressed to the CGA or Finance Committee.

During the winter months it is long and bitterly cold trip up to campus for students living downtown, particularly those beyond the Capitol Theatre. Do you suppose it would be asking too much to devise a schedule for a bus to make a quick run down Main to maybe Lambda Chi, then return up Fourth Street or some other Street? It would not even have to be every hour, but possibly as little as once every two hours. Starting at 8:00, and making the last run at 4:00 would only mean 5 runs, a small price to pay considering the number of fingers that could be saved from frostbite.

It would alleviate some traffic problems (and parking) and save some students money on gas. Instead of buying pet rocks to put near the Commons why not consider my idea, and put the money to good use. You might even notice an increase in attendance in most classes. I know this suggestion has been made before and you will ignore it again, but I want it to be on your conscience if some human popsicle staggers and falls in front of Carver, lifts his head wearily and gasps these words through blue, frosted lips; Uuuugggh.....blah...

Signed,
All Walked Out

All Washed Out

Dear Editor:
I wish to address this letter to anyone concerned with the maintenance of Sesame Street Apartments. Is there any way possible to install a room or separate building to house some washers and dryers? Considering the exorbitant rates we pay to live there, you would think out of the goodness of your hearts you could provide this small service. Warhurst Apartments have this convenience and they are nearly as far from Campus as we are. Please consider my request.

Pot Smoking Laws, Too Tough?

Campus Digest News Service
Questioning the effectiveness of enforcing current marijuana laws, a committee of the National Academy of Sciences recently urged the elimination of criminal penalties for the practice.

The committee said in its report that easing the laws would not increase the use of pot, but it would lessen the amount of money and time spent on an "ineffective" law. Nearly 400,000 persons are involved each year in marijuana-related cases.

Fines would be more cost-effective in curbing blatant use.

Although the committee was not recommending the outright legalization of the weed, they did say civil sanctions (fines) would be a more cost-effective means of curbing blatant use of the drug.

The scientists pointed out in their report that over 55 million Americans have used marijuana even though the government has spent millions of dollars trying to prevent them. They said present laws are not preventing use of marijuana, and therefore they should be modified.

The institute which sponsored the report, the result of a four-year study, has rejected the committee's conclusions. The National Institute on Drug Abuse says it will not consider implementing the recommendations.

The institute's director disagrees with the conclusion that drug use would not increase with the easing of penalties. He says removing punishment for marijuana use would be taken as a signal from the government that pot was harmless.

Another spokesman for the institute says decriminalization now would further deteriorate the wide-spread use of drugs in schools. There is some indication that current efforts have slowed the daily use of marijuana among teenagers.

The president of the science academy also disagrees with the committee's report charging the group with putting their own values into what was supposed to be an objective study.

The group's chairman said the conclusions were not radical...

The chairman of the committee expressed surprise at the report's reception because the group did acknowledge the drug's harmfulness. He also said the conclusions were not radical and were aimed more at the effectiveness of current legislation rather than the pros and cons of drug use.

It was also noted that similar conclusions were reached ten years ago by the National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse.

Grade Change Policy Approved

By BETSY WOLLAM

An amendment to the Change of Grade policy was approved by the Representative Assembly (RA) during its general meeting last week. The change originated in the Coordinating Committee for Academic Affairs, a subcommittee of the RA, and was later amended and approved by the Executive Committee of the RA. The motion passed in the Assembly unanimously.

The Change of Grade policy, as it stands after amendment, allows a student to change a grade already processed by the Registrar's Office only by means of the grievance process. Such grades can be changed only if there is a computational or clerical error made in the grading process.

The Assembly also made appointments to two of its three faculty openings on subcommittees. Dr. Peter Venuto, professor of business administration, was elected to serve on the Coordinating Committee for General Administration, and Stewart Nagel, associate professor of art, was elected to serve on the Coordinating Committee for College Life. One faculty position on this committee remains open.

Alternate To College Educations

Campus Digest News Service

A recent poll shows that Americans no longer regard a college education as the road to riches. Although those people polled feel that qualified students should have the opportunity to attend college, they did not feel that it guaranteed employment after graduation.

The poll was conducted by Group Attitudes Corporation of New York. Nearly 1200 people responded to the 4200 surveys sent out.

Fifty-five percent of the respondents were worried that they would be financially unable to send their own children to college. However, over half agreed with Ronald Reagan's cuts in federal aid.

Minority Scores In SAT's

Campus Digest News Service

Minority students' scores are responsible for the increase in the scores of SAT tests this year, according to the College Board. Black students raised their verbal scores an average of nine points on the verbal section, and four points on the math section.

White students showed an average two point gain on the verbal, and no points on the math section. The SAT test scores rose this year for the first time in 19 years.

Difference in SAT scores has been decreasing

The Scholastic Aptitude Tests are administered to a million high school seniors each year by the College Board. The gap between the scores of white students compared to the scores of black students has been shrinking in the past few years. Black students now trail white students by an average of 103 points on the verbal section and 117 on the math section of the test. Twenty four per cent more blacks are taking the college entrance test now than in 1976.

This marks the first time the College Board has released an ethnic breakdown on the scoring of the SAT tests.

Slide Presentation To Be Held

The Women Employees of BSC invite all those interested to attend Dr. Mary Kenny Badami's second presentation of the slide-tape "A Tale of 'O'". This second presentation will be on Tuesday evening, November 9th from 6:30-8:?? P.M. in Bakeless 304.

Dr. Badami, responsible for bringing the slide presentation to BSC, is skilled in using the presentation as a tool to generate discussion on how people fit into organizations. Participants at her first presentation found it to be an excellent and worthwhile presentation. Don't miss this opportunity!!

GRE Sessions Held

The counseling center is coordinating several sessions on preparing for Graduate Record Examinations (G.R.E.'s). If you are interested in attending any of the sessions, please contact Bonnie Bisset or Bob Davenport at the counseling center. The G.R.E.'s will be administered on December 11, 1982.

Loan defaults

Campus Digest News Service

The default rate on student loans increased slightly last year, says estimates from the Department of Education.

The most recent statistics show the default rate for the National Direct Student Loan at 16.3 percent—less than one percent above the figures for last year.

Finance Committee

Mrs. Sanders stressed the importance of the cheerleaders' presence and cheering support at BSC's nationally-ranked basketball and wrestling team's games.

Although the Committee recognized the importance of the squad's presence at the away games, as well as the squad's admirable work and reputation, it motioned to allocate the cheerleaders a sum of $325.25. This amount will be sufficient to cover the cost of twelve cheerleaders' and one mascot's meals and mileage expenses, using one van as its traveling vehicle.

Mass Comm. Club requested money for a career conference.

The Mass Communication Club, advised by Dr. Mary Kenny Badami and represented at Thursday's meeting by Pat Hagmann, president, also sought funds from the Committee. Requesting $34, the club wishes to use the money so that thirty people may attend a one-day conference, sponsored by the Advertising Women of New York, Inc., at Pace University in New York City on November 13th.

Allocating $213.66 to the Mass Comm. Club, the Committee motioned to assume the expense of one-third of the cost for thirty members to attend the one-day conference.

Lastly, Dr. Peter Bohling, advisor of the Economics Club, submitted a petition for $1495 to the Finance Committee, so that members of the club can travel to Washington, D.C. in order to visit the World Bank and International Monetary Fund on November 18th and 19th. The club, estimating that 35 of its members will make the trip, and also estimating that it will have $500 of its own to contribute to the cost of the trip by the time of its occurrence, needs the funds to cover the remaining traveling and lodging expenses.

While recognizing the worth of the trip, the Committee defeated the motion to allocate funds to the Economics Club. Hoping the club will formulate a new requisition, the Committee desires more accurate figures of the amount in its treasury, as well as the exact number of members planning to attend the field trip.

BSC Bookstore Has Lowest Rates

By DOT ILTIS

Do you ever complain about the price of books, or the note books you have to buy? The College Store has the lowest rate of new textbooks in the state of Pennsylvania.

The Bookstore offers a 7 percent discount under the suggested retail price. Most other schools offer a 5 percent discount at best. According to William Bailey, manager of the College Store, they are able to offer the discount because of increased revenue from items such as clothing and gifts.

Besides the 7 percent discount, they offer a 35 percent discount of used books. Educational supplies are discounted 30 percent at the register. This semester art supplies as well are being discounted like other educational items such as notebooks at 20 percent.

So, the next time you complain about an Econ book costing $20, it is not the College Store's fault!

Karl Beamer Displays Sculpture

By KIM KITCHEN

Haas Gallery is the location of a show done by artist-professor Karl Beamer. The show contains sculptures of human figures and ceramic pottery. It will run through November 30, with an opening reception on Sunday, November 7, from 3 to 5 p.m.

The show is intriguing, with sculptures of human figures done in welded metal. The figures are in various activities, such as sunbathing, a group of men interacting, and a person in the process of forming a lump of clay.

The over-life-sized figures seem to be statements of human characters or activity. The faces, gestures, and stances show the figure trapped in an eternal position. The figure's personal reaction to his position is revealed through his facial expression.

The person ready to form a piece of clay is an excellent depiction of a person caught in the act of creating. His hands are open, with fingers spread, ready to mold a lump of clay. The figure is covered with a design symbolizing the creative process. The person is one with the table, his feet partially protruding from the solid base. The clay is his hope, freedom from being held captive by life. His face looks out blankly, almost pathetically. It is a very moving piece.

Another piece, a man in a raincoat, shows a person swallowed by his costume, his circumstance in life. He is starting out, from under his hood, towards escape. His one hand is free, while the other is trapped inside a mitten. One of his shoes is rounded, while the other is angular. This duality shows that he is neither the costume nor the circumstance, but a trapped individual who wants escape.

Beamer handles the sculptures with skill. He made them expressive by angling some features, leaving some smooth, and the way he placed the figures in space.

It is a show that will make one think more sensitively about various activities in life...

An excellent example of his expression skills is the sculpture of a fat man. His abdomen is smooth and round, protruding from his body. His legs are thick and skillfully sculpted, giving the illusion of carrying heavy weight. His face is only a skinny profile, which contrasts and heightens the weight of the abdominal area.

The sculptures echo reality. One can see himself in the figures. They make a statement regarding society, and a person's psychological response to his world. It is a show that will make one think more sensitively about various activities in life, and how man can lose himself in them.

There is also a display of Beamer's ceramic pottery in the gallery. A nice variety of forms are displayed, from organic to highly sculpted pieces. Patterns are used for decoration in an interesting variety of ways, as are textures.

Beamer's show is not one to be missed. It is very skillfully and thoughtfully done. When seen, it won't easily be forgotten. His figures jar emotions with their statements about life. Standing among them one begins to empathize with them, to relate to them. Each one tells a story. Some are frightening in their reality, some are sad and desperate, some are funny. All the pieces are honest statements on life.

Black vases guard the gallery in Haas until Nov. 30

Waking Up: Not As Hard As It Seems

By MARGIE STINNER

"Beep-beep-beep-beep...." Oh what is that annoying noise? Oh, my alarm! I have to get up already? It feels as though I just got to bed. Well...I will turn it off and lie here for five minutes, just until I wake up. I can't fall back to sleep though because I have to take a test at 8 a.m. this morning. I dread the thought of getting out of my warm bed though....

"Marge, Marge...didn't you have a test at 8?" my roommate asks as she tries to wake me up.

"Oh no!" I answer as I jump out of the top bunk and glance at the clock. It's already 9:30, I've done it again, I've overslept!

If you find yourself oversleeping a lot and, consequently, miss tests, interviews, appointments, and classes, or, worse yet, are late for work - you are not alone! Over sleeping is a common problem many young adults share, and everyone has their own methods of trying to overcome the problem.

Historically, there was no such thing as "sleeping in." everyone woke by the rooster's crow at dawn. If the rooster was not successful, the smell of breakfast cooking surely would get the soundest sleeper out of bed.

Unfortunately today we do not have roosters in everyone's backyard; or someone who will cook us breakfast every morning. Therefore, we have to resort to other methods to get ourselves out of bed. There are an infinite number of techniques people use; some of them may prove effective for you.

A lot of people wake up very easily if another person wakes them up. If you are one of the few people who have a friend or roommate who wakes up easier and earlier than you do and who is willing to wake you up, you are lucky. Tell them to be very imaginative. A few samples of effective strategies are: "I'll make you steak and eggs if you get out of bed by the time I count to three," or the almost 100 percent effective, "Your boyfriend-girlfriend is on the phone; he-she wants to take you to the Hotel Magee for dinner tonight if you will talk to him-her immediately." Another example which is definitely more believable but much less effective is "The Commons is serving a special breakfast this morning, but the food will run out if you don't get there by 8 a.m."

Oversleeping is a common problem many young adults share.

The lying will probably work for awhile, but eventually you may realize what your roommate is up to. Either that or you may want to send them to counseling because of their compulsive lying.

Some other methods your roommate could try are: pouring water on your head, tickling you until you cannot breathe, threatening to wear your favorite piece of clothing, or, threatening to eat all the apple pie your mother sent to you unless you get out of bed immediately. One of these routines may work for you.

If you do not have a roommate who is willing to try the methods mentioned, you will have to try something else to get out of bed.

One of the most common morning routines is to place your alarm clock on the other side of the bedroom, far away from your bed, so that you will have to get out of bed to turn the alarm off. Once you are out of bed, half the battle is won. Although you may have the urge to climb back into the warm bed, do not allow yourself! Just take your shower and dress!

If the alarm will not wake you, you may want to invest in a clock radio. Music may be the answer for you. Be sure to set the dial to a rock station, not a mellow, easy-listening, or a classical music station. They will make it even more difficult to get out of bed. In fact, the mellow music may act as a "sleeping pill;" then you will really be in trouble.

One of the most common morning routines is to place your alarm clock on the other side of the room.

In order to really "blast" yourself out of bed, set the volume of the clock radio very loud. For some individuals, even the popular music station may act as a "sleeping pill." Beware though....if you have a roommate who does not get up as early as you do, this method is not for you, especially if you consider your roommate your friend and plan on keeping it that way.

There are a few quieter methods that may enable you to get out of bed in the morning. When your alarm goes off, throw your covers off so you will be so cold that you will not be able to sleep and you will actually look forward to jumping into a warm shower. This routine seems a bit foolish, especially if you sleep on a top bunk and you have to throw the blankets past your roommate onto the floor. This method has been proven effective, though, especially for the "cold-blooded" person. Needless to say though, it is not very successful in the warmer months.

summer months is to fall asleep with a very heavy, thick, hot blanket at the foot of your bed. When your alarm goes off, simply grab the blanket and cover yourself from head to toe. Believe me, either you will jump out of bed very shortly, or you will die of suffocation.

Any of these routines may easily work for you. However, nothing will work if you are not willing to get out of bed. You need motivation to get up in the morning.

People are definitely more motivated in the morning if they have gone to bed early the night before. If you go to parties or Hess's the night before you have to get up early, expect a hard time. Alcohol and sleep combine very well, but alcohol and early rising tend to clash. If you really want to get up early the next morning refrain from the usual college routine of going out during the week.

Good Luck getting up tomorrow morning!

Minute Managing Proves Successful

Campus Digest News Service

A minute manager is for sale.

It is not what you may think--a managing expert who charges an hourly wage. Instead, it is a book of about 15,000 words of advice for $15.

The title of this book is "The One Minute Manager." Co-authors Dr. Spencer Johnson and Kenneth Blanchard call it "A gem--small, expensive and invaluable."

In the 90 pages of text, they divulge their three management secrets: First establish your management goals. Second, communicate those goals. And third, keep on working towards them by giving one-minute reprimands and one-minute praises to all who are helping you to achieve those goals.

Johnson and Blanchard predict "The One Minute Manager" will be a best seller for many years because the marked for the book includes everyone. Johnson explains that good managing is not just for business. It is a necessary skill for getting along in everything.

Simply a book of common sense.

Some book critics and professional managers think "The One Minute Manager" is just a book of common sense. The authors contend their ideas are revolutionary and that strict adherence to them can bring success. Whether or not prosperity falls to all who read their book, Blanchard and Johnson are sure getting their share. Of course, they have used careful management in the packaging and selling of the management secrets.

In the early stages of the book, Blanchard distributed original manuscripts to executives who were attending one of his seminars. He asked them to make suggestions for improvement. Other businessmen attending his seminars helped to push the book down the road of a best seller by purchasing more than 20,000 copies.

Top executives have added their stamp of approval in the form of endorsements that are printed in the book. And of course, the authors are also promoting the book in the customary manner of touring many cities.

The book even carries its own advertisement by suggesting that the reader should buy a copy for each of his employees. Although, Blanchard and Johnson do not write it quite as bluntly as that, they do say a manager should make sure that his workers know what he is doing.

More than 500,000 hard-back copies of the book were sold in the first calendar year it was printed. The authors think many copies are being written off as a business expense.

Community Colleges Are Tightening Admissions

Campus Digest News Service

In the face of a tough economy, community colleges are getting tough.

For the first time in their history, many two-year educational institutions are setting admission standards and dismissing or suspending students who do not make a minimum grade. Others are requiring a basic skills test and still others are tightening the criteria for associate degrees.

In the past, community colleges have been a refuge for all those who could not make it anywhere else. Officials at the schools which are imposing these new standards say they can no longer spread their arms open for everyone because they no longer can afford to.

Funding cuts effect courses

Cuts in federal funding and other financial support are making it impossible for many community colleges to continue offering remedial courses in basic skills, especially since such programs are expensive. But a lot of the students at community colleges need to take the remedial training.

At Miami-Dade Community College, which was one of the first schools to establish academic standards, two-thirds of all incoming students have been tested deficient in reading, writing or mathematics skills. The admission tests also showed that more than 90 percent of the enrolling blacks lack one of the basic skills and that two-thirds of them are deficient in two or more skills.

The president of Miami-Dade, Robert H. McCabe, feels college is not the place to correct these deficiencies. It is just too late. A student should be progressing in skills, not just learning the basics.

If a student does spend time and money learning the basics of education at the college level, he is making the public pay for his education twice, according to Connie Woodruff, director of community and public relations at Essex Community College, N.J., which also has imposed admission requirements. By setting standards, community colleges can make the public see what is happening or not happening in the public schools, she said.

Funds should be allocated to these who will continue their education.

Rosalie Hojegan, assistant dean of academic affairs at Passaic County Community College, said the diminishing funds of an institution should go to those students who have at least half a chance of making it through the education process. The theory behind the admission standards is to save the money that would normally be wasted on someone who will never be able to graduate. This type of solution to the financial problems of community colleges is dangerous, according to B.A. Barringer, president of Brookdale Community College, N.J. He said that a lot of students with adequate skills never succeed either. The poorly prepared student deserves an equal chance to learn even though he may never attain a degree.

Ugly men fare better

Campus Digest News Service

Ugly men have better jobs and better educated wives than good-looking men, a new survey says.

The survey found that looks have no effect on income, but in other areas, attractiveness in men hinders gains in status.

The survey was done by University of North Carolina researchers.

The least-attractive men have the most education and their occupational status is higher on the job classification scale the researchers found. The survey showed that uglier men performed better at school and had sexual relations at a later age than their better-looking counterparts.

However, the survey said that "outstandingly" good looking men attain jobs of equal prestige as those of the least attractive.

The survey also found that a woman's attractiveness was not related to education, occupation, or personal income. Nevertheless, there was considerable evidence that feminine attractiveness affects the adult status through marriage to a high-income husband.

The survey said that the more attractive the woman, the better educated her husband. The opposite was true for men.

There was no correlation between a woman's looks and her school performance or adolescent sexual activity, according to the survey.

The study used data from a survey in 1970 of 601 men and 745 women. That survey followed up a study of men and women who were first questioned in 1955, during their sophomore year in high school. Research assistants then rated the respondent's looks, using high school pictures. The survey was made public on Sept. 7 at the 77th annual meeting of the American Sociological Association.

females understand their options, but making males aware of responsibilities and options too. Gaynor noted that males come to the agency with concerns about relationships and questions about relationships and responsibilities.

By bringing information to campus, more students, both male and female, can get knowledge for making good decisions for themselves. Campbell stated, "Besides being an intern, my role of being a student provides an awareness of a need for this type of service."

"The purpose of the service, he concluded is to provide a non-judgemental atmosphere for receiving accurate information."

The Assembly also discussed the Campus-Wide Committee for Athletics, Sports, and Recreation (CWCASR), whose formation has stirred considerable debate among the administration and the student government. Dispute also arose concerning the revisions of the rules for organization and operation of the Assembly. Both concerns, the CWCASR and the revisions, were tabled for later discussion.

Husky Booters End Season

The Bloomsburg State College soccer team saw its season come to a close last Monday when they fell 4-2 to East Stroudsburg. The booters finished with a 10-7 record.

The Huskies had an up-and-down year and could not seem to put any major winning streaks together.

Ricardo Lopes, a freshman from State College High School led the Huskies in scoring with ten goals and four assists. Lopes chalked up one hat-trick this year, that coming against King's College early in the year.

Senior Bill Sypawka was second on the team in scoring and assists with seven goals and five assists. He had two two-goal games on the year.

PSAC Standings

The East Stroudsburg State College Warriors will be traveling to Edinboro or Slippery Rock this weekend for the PSAC title game otherwise known as the State Game. The Warriors played BSC Saturday and no matter what the outcome, still won the East Division title because of their earlier season win over West Chester. An Edinboro win yesterday would have clinched it for the Fighting Scotts while Slippery Rocks chances rested with a Lock Haven upset.

The Pennsylvania Athletic Conference Standings, before yesterday's games are as follows

Western Division
Team	Conf.	All
Edinboro	4-1	7-1
Slippery Rock	4-1	6-2
Shippensburg	3-2	6-2
IUP	3-2	4-4
Clarion	3-3	5-3
Lock Haven	1-4	4-4
California	0-5	0-8
Eastern Division
E. Stroudsburg	5-0	7-1
West Chester	3-1	5-3
Millersville	4-2	4-3-1
Mansfield	1-2-1	3-4-1
Bloomsburg	1-3-1	1-6-1
Kutztown	1-4	2-5
Cheyney	1-4	1-7

California's record includes three victories and one tie which have been forfeited.

Saturday's Schedule

- Edinboro at Lock Haven
- IUP at Shippensburg
- Millersville at Slippery Rock
- Clarion at Westminster
