The Art of Nature

Artwork is often created by the hands of man. For this booklet, we decided to feature artwork of the natural kind. Foliage and fauna hold a beauty that humankind cannot replicate.

Art Chapbook
Spring 2020

Shippensburg
University

SpawningPool is a literary arts Chapbook published at Shippensburg University by a small and dedicated team of undergraduate students. It is composed of art pieces submitted by both undergraduate and graduate students of the university.

SpawningPool accepts rolling submissions throughout the year, and we publish our Chapbook every Spring semester. SpawningPool is a publication of The Reflector, which also accepts submissions year-round, and is compiled each Fall semester.

Acknowledgements:

Nicole Santalucia; Advisor of The Reflector and SpawningPool:

Thank you for your guidance and leadership of the Reflector this year. We appreciate everything you do.

Our Executive Board, Anna D'Orazio, Angela Piper, and Luke Hershey:

Thank you for your dedication to everyone involved in the Reflector in this difficult time. You were all put in an immensely stressful situation and handled it with ease.

Committee Members:

Thank you for your participation with ranking our pieces. Ranking 140-some pieces is no easy task. We appreciate your time as well as your artistic expertise.

Kim Hess and Shippensburg University:

Thank you for your patience in helping us put together this Chapbook. All your hard work is very much appreciated.

Those published:

Thank you for taking the time to create artwork for our theme. We couldn't do this without you.
