First Prize Essay.

Their Comrade's Story.

MISS MARION SEABROOK, '09.

It was evening at Eagle Bay, a little inlet near the great city of Barcelona. The sun had just disappeared below the horizon. A calm, hazy light brooded over the earth, foretelling the coming of the twilight. A few white fleecy clouds floated in the azure sky. The wind was but faintly stirring and there was no sound save the soft lapping of the waves as the water rose and fell with that rhythmic motion which lulls the sailor to sleep and fills the tourist with a rapture that is beyond expression.

Several large schooners and smaller fishing smacks were quietly swinging at anchor in the deeper water, and somewhat apart from the rest was an open sailboat. In this were three men, Donald McCune, Don Carlos and Juan Pedro.

These men were fishermen, rough and coarse looking, for their clothes were weather-beaten and their faces tanned by many days of work beneath the blazing sun and by many a passing storm. They had lowered the sails and were resting after the labor of the day, lighting their pipes, they abandoned themselves to quiet reverie.

Finally Carlos said, "Donald, you came to us suddenly and unannounced; you have been with us for many years and now we know no more of your past than we did when you came."

"Yes," said Pedro, "I have always thought that your past would be worth hearing and would make an interesting story."

Donald at first demurred but finally consented to tell the tale of his previous life and experiences. The men listened silently and attentively as he unfolded the story of his life.

"I was born in Melrose, Scotland, nearly sixty years ago. My father was a nobleman of high rank and was very wealthy, but the wealth was of no consequence to me. I did not care for the pleasures it brought and I hated the idea of living the idle, purposeless life that my father, brothers and other relatives were living. I hated to be bound by the bonds of conventionality. I loved the sea and wanted to go as a sailor when I was only fifteen. My father ridiculed the idea and forbade me to go. I rebelled and he told me angrily never to darken his door again.

"My mother and sisters were proud and I knew it would be useless to seek aid from them. So, a penniless boy, I secured a position on a vessel that was just leaving the docks for America. I held that position for nearly fifteen years and during that time my parents neither relented nor made any inquiry for me.

"During my last trip to Scotland, I passed my old home. My little sister, now grown to woman-hood, came down the steps and passed me, drawing her skirts scornfully aside as she did so. She did not dream I was her brother. I saw my mother's face at the window. She did not know me, but the picture of her as she sat there is indelibly impressed upon my memory. From that day to this I have heard or known nothing of my family.

"On that last eventful trip to America my ship collided with another. Some of the passengers were saved, but a greater number found a watery grave. I saved a tiny girl, who had been a great favorite on the deck, but both of her parents were evidently lost for no one ever came to reclaim her. I kept her and she is the young woman whom you know as Marie, my homekeeper.

"Then I came to Eagle Bay and you know the rest of my life story. I am happy here and in the life I am leading. I do not envy my brothers their wealth and would not exchange places with them if I could. I am an old man now. Marie is the joy of my life. It is for her that I labor and have succeeded in saving a snug little sum for her so that she need not know the hardships and rough ways of the world when I am gone.

"Well, boys, the moon has risen; let us pull for home."

The hard faces of the other two men were aglow with tenderness as they spread the sails for the homeward run. The unfolding of that chapter in their comrade's life had awakened new interest in them for him and his fair homekeeper.

Second Prize Essay.A Twilight Reminiscence.

MISS BERTHA OYLER, '09.

The flaming sun was slowly dipping into the western sea. It sent forth its last golden rays across the shimmering water, and its darts pierced the sky. The gray mossy walls of the Citadel of Montjovick, and the stone spires of Santa Maria del Mar rose clear cut against the blue sky. They spoke of ancient power and past grandeur. The three aged fishermen sat in the bow of the boat as it drifted into the crowded harbor. All were silent. As old Mondè gazed on the scene his heart became sober as his eye. He woke from his abstraction with a sigh and began this story:

“Paola and Castimo, this twilight has recalled another of years gone by. In the gay colored woods, bordering Barcelona and the shore, lay a gypsy camp. All was still. Barca, the chief, and his aged counsellors assembled outside the tent to discuss the threatened danger. The old soothsayer within hummed a low tremulous melody. The chief's son ran out the winding path of the jutting cliff. He sat beside a huge boulder, hugging his knees, and rocked back and forth. He loved to watch the setting of the fierce god. It sank lower and lower, and almost simultaneously the moon arose; and the blue Mediterranean waters changed to black with a silver sheen. On the sheet of light across the tranquil sea a shadow fell. Another and another followed. They moved and were hidden in the shade of the precipice. The moonlight flickered on the upraised cliff as the shadows emerged from the dark, and in the ghostly shimmer, the boy was startled by a fleet of boats approaching the shore. There were no sounds save the swish of the sea against the bows and sides of the boats.

“A muffled voice said, ‘Land ho!’ There was a great rush of men for the shore. Their spears and armor glittered in the light of the moon and stars. The boy, in his effort to crouch closer to the rock, dislodged a stone. It rumbled down the cliff and splashed into the sea, but was unheeded by the landing force. They disappeared in the wood and approached the gypsy camp. The terrified boy ran with all speed for camp, but he dared not pass that mysterious band. He sank with fear behind a sheltering rock. He heard the sounds of the camp and the plaintive minor of the old woman's chant. Suddenly all sounds ceased. The weird chanting of the woman died away, and for one brief moment the magic stillness of night reigned. Then screams, shouts and curses, intermingled with the cries of women and children rent the air. The eyes of the trembling boy ached with their endeavor to pierce the darkness. Soon flames leaped skyward. Fifty gypsy tents were now fifty pillars of fire. Ere the flames died away, the whole gypsy band, surrounded by the armed troop, were marched down the path to the sea. At the point of the spear they boarded the boats. The terrified boy cried out, but his cry was unheeded. He ran to his favorite seat on the cliff and saw the moorings loosed. The boats sailed out and out until they became mere spectres on the moonlit sea. The threatened expulsion of the gypsies had occurred. No remnant of the ancient race remained save the boy on the cliff. A Moorish priest found him at daybreak wandering amid the desolate scenes of his home. He took him to the mosque, and taught him the arts and the hatred of the Spirit of Evil, but the boy felt singularly alone in this strange life. His eyes were ever turned toward the sea. After five years he stole forth from the Moorish mosque. On a dark stormy night he hid on a fishing vessel, hoping that he might sail over the sea and find his lost people. That boy is now an aged man in whose face is seared an insatiable longing, but in whose heart the mysteries and traditions of an ancient people have burned for fifty years. Mine has been a hopeless seach. Now you understand why the sea has held me so long beneath its magic spell".

The mellow light of the dying day reflected three thoughtful faces, as they moored the boat in a sandy shoal; and a dying sunbeam bade "good-night" to the fishermen of Barcelona.

Editorials.

It is indeed gratifying to state that the prospect for the spring term this year is remarkably bright. About one hundred and twenty new students have already enrolled. With such a splendid equipment, strong faculty, charming locality, and healthful climate, it is not surprising that thoughtful and ambitious students should select as their school the C. V. S. N. S.

During the past two years there has been throughout the state a great interest in establishing school libraries. This is indeed good. We all know that books and libraries while not an absolute necessity are a necessity to the highest realization of the public school idea. This idea is not simply the training and instructing of individual pupils, but also the pervading of communities with the spirit of intelligence and culture. The students of our schools need to read at home and to spend their leisure hours in converse with the thoughts of great men. In the great majority of the school districts there are no extensive private libraries, and but small resources of books to draw from. Hence it seems absolutely necessary for the highest culture of the pupils in our schools and for the citizens of our communities, that there should be a library more or less extensive connected with every school. This library should contain books of sufficient variety to supplement the studies of the curriculum, especially in history and literature, and to fill the minds of the pupils with noble and graceful images and immortal and inspiring truths.

Faculty Notes.

Prof. J. F. Newman delivered two addresses at the Waynesboro Institute on Jan. 31 and Feb. 1. They were both praised most highly. He also addressed local institutes at Lehmasters and Centreville during February.

Among those who attended the Hoffman Recital, at Carlisle, were Misses Matthews, Gray and Davie.

Miss Huber, of the Art Department, heard Calve in Carmen, at Harrisburg, in her last American concert.

Prof. J. S. Heiges was recently elected Junior Warden of Cumberland Valley Lodge F. and A. M. Prof. Heiges will make a good officer.

Miss Gray directed the Presbyterian choir, augmented by Profs. Adams and Kunkleton and several of the students, at the installation services of Rev. Mr. Bosserman.

Dr. Martin delivered the charge to the people at the installation of Mr. Bosserman. He also attended the dinner at the Philadelphia Branch of the Alumni of Lafayette College, at the Bellevue Stratford, on March 12. He delivered three addresses at Nanticoke, Luzerne county, at a local institute on March 13-14.

Miss Ada Horton, the polite and capable secretary of Dr. Martin and the popular preceptress of the school, has been quite sick during the past month. She has entered the Woman's Hospital at Philadelphia, and we hope to have her again with us, in perfect health, by the opening of the Spring term.

Prof. Stewart delivered his lecture, "Abraham Lincoln," at Oakville and Fairview during February. He also responded to toasts at the 50th Anniversary of Cumberland Valley Lodge F. and A. M., on February 18th, and at the banquet of the Vigilant Hose Company, of Shippensburg, on February 20th.

Change of Teachers.

Prof. W. M. Rife, who for the past eight years has been the head of the English Department of the school, much to the regret of all, resigned his position on February 1st, to accept the principalship of the public schools at Reynoldsville, at a greatly increased salary.

In the removal of Prof. Rife Normal loses one of the strongest teachers that she has ever had. The English Department has always prospered under his careful control. He is a thorough gentleman, a deep scholar, a fine speaker, and an upright Christian man.

He, together with his good wife, will be greatly missed by all. The HERALD, while deeply regretting his departure, extends to him Godspeed in his new field of labor.

Dr. C. H. Gordinier, who for two years was the head of the Latin Department of the school, and who for the past two years has been Dean of Kee Mar College, Hagerstown, Md., has been elected as the successor of Prof. Rife. Dr. Gordinier needs no introduction to the alumni and students of the school. His successful record while here is a sufficient commendation for him. He is thoroughly equipped for his work in English and will maintain the high standard of excellence set by Prof. Rife. The HERALD extends to him a cordial welcome and we feel that we are fortunate in having him again in our midst.

Prof. Dale Krunkleton, a graduate of this institution and also of Ursinus college, was elected a member of the Faculty, and assumed his duties February 1st. Mr. Krunkleton is assisting in the work of the History and English departments and is doing good work. He also is coach of the base-ball team.

The Spring Term Teachers have not yet been selected but it is the purpose of Dr. Martin and the Trustees to select three experienced and successful teachers for next term.

Middle Year Reception.

The reception and dance of the class of nineteen nine was held on Saturday evening, March 7th. The receiving line consisted of Dr. and Mrs. Martin, Miss Grey (the dean of the class), President Markley and Miss Jackson, the Secretary. They formed in the school reception room at seven o'clock and received the students of the school and the guests of the class, who were introduced by Prof. Heiges.

After the reception all repaired to the Chapel, where the following interesting programme was rendered:

MISS BERTHA MAYE OYLER

The address of Dr. Martin was a masterly effort. His subject was "Ninevah, the Lost City," and he traced in a most logical and eloquent manner the history of the once famed city of the East.

The prizes for the best essays were awarded to Miss Seabrook, Miss Oyler and Mr. Cutshall. They were five dollar gold pieces.

After the program in the chapel was completed the dance was held in the gymnasium. This was indeed one of the most elaborate and enjoyable events ever held at Normal. The Chambersburg orchestra of ten pieces played the dance music in brilliant style, and the programme of twenty dances was thoroughly enjoyed.

Misses Gray and Huber, with the various committees, are entitled to great praise for the work which they did in decorating the chapel and gymnasium. The decorations were simply beautiful, and with the various flags and pennants of the colleges and schools, the class emblems, the gay bunting and the fragrant flowers, presented a picture that will long remain in the memories of all who were fortunate enough to be present.

Lemon punch and cake were served during the evening by handsome and graceful young ladies of the class, and at eleven thirty the dancing ceased and the first public event of the class of nineteen nine was ended.

Opening of Infirmary.

On Washington's Birthday afternoon, between the hours of three and five, the infirmary was opened for inspection. This is the gem of our new buildings and all were glad to have an opportunity of examining it. Tea was served by Mrs. Martin and Miss Hartley, assisted by several ladies attired in Martha Washington dress, and a most pleasant social time was enjoyed.

Senior Class Excursion.

The annual excursion of the Senior Class to Washington will be made the 7th, 8th, and 9th of May. This excursion is open to all friends of the school. Any one desiring information please address Prof. J. S. Heiges, who conducts the tour.

Lecture Course.

The last two lectures of the course were delivered during February by Dr. E. D. Warfield, President of Lafayette College, and Dr. Ellis Thompson, Principal of the Boys' High School, Philadelphia.

Dr. Warfield lectured on "The Constitution of the United States." His lecture was much appreciated by the students and was instructing and eloquent.

Dr. Thompson's subject was "Modern European History." He treated it in a most fascinating manner and captivated his hearers by his clearness and simplicity.

We feel that the lecture course this year has been most beneficial and that we have been greatly helped by having such distinguished men as Dr. Warfield, Dr. Thompson and Professor Wilkinson lecture to us.

Recital.

On Saturday evening, February 29th, Misses Matthews and Hartley, assisted by their students, gave a most pleasing recital in the chapel before a large audience. All the participants acquitted themselves well. The programme:

Another term has passed, and God in his wise Providence has spared and blessed us as an association.

The work was much strengthened and new inspirations were received through the visit of our State Secretary, Miss Cora E. Dyer. Miss Dyer through her talks and her personal work among the girls made us feel the responsibility that rested upon us as individuals and as an association.

Miss Miller, the President, and Miss Wolford were sent as delegates to the Philadelphia Convention. They brought back many helpful things and report an excellent session.

The cabinet for the coming year has been elected and is as follows:

President—Hattie Kendall.

Vice President—Marion Charlton.

Corresponding Secretary—Beula Shutt.

Recording Secretary—Mary J. Johnson.

Treasurer—Blanche Benner.

We are looking forward to the work of the Spring term and pray that we may work heartily, honestly and faithfully for the glory of God, the spread of the gospel, the uplifting of humanity, and the salvation of immortal souls—knowing—

“We are living, we are dwelling
In a grand and awful time,
In an age on ages telling,
To be living is sublime.”

MARGARET M. HEDDING, '08, Secretary.

Y. M. C. A.

It is with sincere gratitude to God for His Divine guidance that we are enabled to report a successful year's work in Y. M. C. A.

The following officers have been elected for the coming year:

Mr. O. F. Deardorf, President.

Mr. Ralph Matter, Secretary.

Mr. Mearle W. Asper, Vice President.

Mr. Charles Jobe, Treasurer.

Heaven is not mounted to on wings of dreams,
 Nor doth the unthankful happiness of youth
 Aim thitherward, but floats from bloom to bloom
 With earth's warm patch of sunshine well content.

'Tis sorrow builds the shining ladder up,
 Whose golden rounds are our calamities,
 Whereon our firm feet planting, nearer God
 The spirit climbs, and hath its eyes unsealed.—Lowell.

A. C. PALMER, President.

E. H. SCHAEFFER, Secretary.

Philo Literary Society.

As the winter term draws to a close the Philo Society can not but feel encouraged. The programs this term have been interesting and well rendered, although the attendance has not been up to the regular standard.

We look forward to the Spring term when the doors of Philo's hall will stand wide to welcome new students.

Beneath this starry arch,
 Naught resteth or is still ;
 But all things hold their march
 As if by one great will.
 Move one, move all ;
 Hark to the footfall !
 On, on, forever.

MARY A. BELLOWS, Secretary.

Normal Literary Society.

The close of this term brings the realization that Normal is not merely maintaining her high standard of former years, but is making notable progress in every feature. This progress is evident not only to the active members of the Society, but is a matter of congratulatory comment from all visiting "old" members.

The generosity and animation, with which the demands of the programs are met, is most gratifying. The excellence of the music continues in its high order, and the debates have frequently reached a point, which displays an undoubted oratorical talent among its participants. Hearty co-operation and genial fellowship characterize all the efforts of the Society.

MARY FRAUTZ, '09, Secretary.

Basket Ball.

The basket ball team has just closed a remarkable season, and its record stamps it as not only perhaps the best team that ever represented Normal, but as one of the best Scholastic teams in Pennsylvania.

Prof. Heiges, the coach, is to be congratulated in his successful efforts to turn out a winning team. His ability to develop new material is wonderful and his careful and earnest coaching is greatly appreciated by the school.

The five men who played through the season with such great success were:—Cowan and Morrison, forwards; Schaeffer, center; Craig and Hoffman, guards. Good was the substitute.

Thirteen games were played, and out of that number the Normal won eight.

The first game was with Waynesboro High School, on our own floor, and they were overwhelmingly defeated by a score of 53-10. In this game Morrison and Cowan excelled for our five, the former having 9 goals to his credit and the latter 7.

The second game was played at Waynesboro, again with the High School team. We lost by the close score of 17-20. A room with a very low ceiling and a poor floor interfered much with the playing.

The next game was with the crack Mont Alto School of Forestry. They were not in it with us, however, and we defeated them 23-12. Every man on the team played a great game and completely outclassed the husky Foresters.

Harrisburg High School came next and we simply smothered them to the tune of 53-13. In this game Cowan threw 12 goals and every man got at least one.

Lebanon Valley College next appeared and in a rough game was defeated 10-0.

We journeyed to Steelton for the next encounter and were defeated by Steelton High School 28-20. We should have won this game as we led up to the last few minutes of play. Dailey, for Steelton and Cowan, for us, excelled.

The Dickinson Law School came next. They were an aggressive five, but were outclassed. 30-13 tells the story. In this game Cowan threw 8 goals and Craig 5.

The next game was with Wyoming Seminary and was the best of the season. They beat us 25-19, but only after the fiercest kind of a struggle. Each team was in the lead at various intervals and the excitement was intense.

Steelton High School was played next, on our floor, and this time we badly beat them by a score of 45-22. Cowan threw 12 goals; Craig and Morrison each threw 4. Gaffney excelled for Steelton, securing five.

We next journeyed to Myerstown to play Albright College. Here we met defeat, after a close contest, 24-25. The cause of this defeat is clearly understood when it is known that 16 fouls were called on our team and but two on Albright. Craig played the star game for us.

The Felton Athletic club of Steelton next appeared on our floor only to be swamped 54-31.

The closing game of the season was with Kutztown Normal, and they were easily defeated by the score 36-4. In this game Cowan secured 9 goals.

After such a successful season, the HERALD desires to thank the men for their faithful work. They all did well, and Good, the substitute, proved his worth in several of the games. Cowan is undoubtedly the fastest man on the floor that ever represented Normal and his record for the season is phenomenal. Morrison is a fitting team-mate for him. Hoffman and Craig are a pair of guards hard to beat, and Schaeffer is a cool-headed and quick center. The red and blue has been nobly upheld by this team, and the spirit and encouragement of the student body has stirred them to many victories. Although four of the team graduate this year their works will follow them and their great record will always remain in the basket ball annals of the C. V. S. N. S.

'91. Rev. J. M. Hoover, a missionary in Borneo, has had the misfortune to have had his house demolished by a storm. The following is taken from a letter written by Mr. Hoover to Bishop Oldham :

"Last night a storm little short of a hurricane, swept over Sibuan, and our house is a complete wreck. We were not saying much about it, because we wanted to surprise you and Mrs. Oldham. We built it after the plan approved by you and Dr. West two years ago, on the site given by the rajah. It was sixty feet long and 40 feet wide, with a veranda twelve feet wide in front and nine feet wide along one side. The lumber was all of the very best, and the carpenters planed and finished every piece almost to perfection. Every joint was mortised and pinned, and the posts set in the ground four feet with the earth stamped around them. The house was pronounced by everybody the best in the place for workmanship and good lumber. All the framework was complete, one side of the roof was on and the other side about one third done. The storm struck the unfinished side and caught squarely under the finished side, fairly lifting the whole structure from the ground and then dashing it down—there is hardly a whole piece of lumber left. If we recover $300 or $400 from the wreck we will do well, so that our loss will be more than $2,000''

The HERALD extends its sympathy to Mr. Hoover in his loss and we hope he may not be seriously embarrassed by the loss.

'92. Mr. B. M. Shull is Principal of the schools of Lehighton, Pa.

'92. Miss Lida P. Highlands has been doing substitute work in the schools of New York for the past year. She expects to take an examination soon for a permanent position. The HERALD wishes her success.

'94. Mrs. Arthur Saiter (Elizabeth Kisecker) has been for the past three years living in Greencastle, but expects to return to Indiana this Spring.

'94. Mr. Harper Sibbett graduated from the Law School of the University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor, last Spring and is now practicing law in Honolulu.

'95. Mr. J. W. Asherman is in the real estate business at Springer, New Mexico.

'95. Mr. Chas. Albright is teaching in Hanover, Pa.

After graduating at Columbia he was associated in the law business with Messrs. Simpson & Brown, of Philadelphia, but for the past year he is in an office of his own. His address is 920 Stephen Girard Building.

'95. Rev. H. E. Walhey writes that he is in the closing weeks of a happy pastorate of four years, in the Langhome Church of the Philadelphia Conference of the Methodist Church. We wish Mr. Walhey continuous success.

Obituary.

FRANK H. RHODES, '98.

We clip the following from a Greencastle paper:

Mr. Rhodes was born in Antrim township, near Kauffman's station, April 8, 1881, the second son of the late W. Lee Rhodes, and there he was raised. He attended the public schools here, graduated at the Shippensburg Normal School and at Mercersburg Academy and the Dickinson Law School, and with his brother, Joseph L. Rhodes, located at Clarksburg, W. Va., in 1902. In addition to their large law practice there the Messrs. Rhodes were extensively interested in the real estate business and at the time of Mr. Rhodes' death his brother was in Alabama, looking after some real estate investments there. Twice Mr. Rhodes was honored with nominations for office by the Democrats of his county; in 1905 he was nominated for Mayor of Clarksburg and, while defeated for election, it was only by a narrow margin; again last Fall he was named for the House of Delegates and in a spirited campaign he reduced the large Republican majority in the county very greatly.

He was an active member of the Goff Methodist Episcopal Church of Clarksburg and superintendent of the Ash Chapel Sunday School; he was also Grand Warden of the Grand Lodge of West Virginia, I. O. O. F., a member of the B. P. O. Elks and Maccabee Lodges and a Mason.

Here in his old home where his many friends had watched Mr. Rhodes' rapid rise in his profession with much pleasure the news of his untimely end was received with the deepest regret and sorrow. No death in years has so generally shocked the community as did his, and expressions of sorrow and of sympathy for his bereaved family were heard on every side.

The body, accompanied by a delegation of Odd Fellows from the Clarksburg lodge, arrived here yesterday morning at 9.21 o'clock and was taken to the Rhodes home on South Washington street from which the funeral took place this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Services were held at the Rhodes home by the Rev. I. N. Peightel, pastor of the Reformed church here, assisted by the Rev. Arbuthnot, pastor of the Goff Methodist church, of Clarksburg, who was Mr. Rhodes' pastor, and who accompanied the body here, and interment was made in Cedar Hill cemetery.

The HERALD staff extends sympathy to Mr. Rhodes' family.

Exchanges.

Since our last issue, a goodly number of "exchanges" have come to our table. In all we have found much that is interesting and entertaining, while several have contained articles of exceptional excellence.

The "Susquehanna" is sustaining its high grade of literary work. "Nature as Teacher" in the January number and "Commercial America" in the February are especially well written.

The "Crucible" continues to be among the most optimistic of our exchanges. From its columns we quote the following:

"Turn failure into victory
Don't let your courage fade;
And if you get a lemon,
Just make some lemonade.—Ex."

A novel feature of the February "Muhlenberg" is a story written in "Pennsylvania German." It is to be published as a serial, and if we may judge by the first chapter, the story promises to be worth the labor of translating it.

The "Perkiomenite" is a bright, "newsy" journal.

"Parsing of a kiss."—It is a noun though generally used as a conjunction which is never declined. It is more common than proper. It is never very singular and is generally used in the plural, agreeing with you and me.—Ex.

The "Forum" contains a number of good stories. The criticism of "Poe and the Raven" is cleverly written.

The February "Argus" is almost entirely given over to "Signs, Traditions and Superstitions." More variety along literary lines would be an improvement.

The "Mercury" for March is an excellent journal. Its articles on "Political Reform" and "National Ruin" are particularly strong.

"Life is real, life is earnest,
And it might be made sublime,
If we were not kept as busy.
Studying Latin all the time."—Ex.

"The Big Carp" in the "Dickinsonian" is a well told story, possessing that element of interest which makes all "true fish yarns" entertaining.

The increased number of essays in the March "College Rays" is a great improvement to the paper

"If a body meet a body
In the lower hall,
Can't a body stop and talk?
Not at all, not at all.
Can't we talk our troubles over,
Comfort get and give it too?
When we see the Doctor coming
Must we all 'skidoo?' "—Ex.

GENERAL STATEMENT.

The purpose of the Cumberland Valley State Normal School is to prepare young men and women for the office of teacher in our public schools. To this end the course of study, the methods of instruction and the equipment of the school are most carefully adapted.

Thorough knowledge of the fundamental branches of study is the first thing. Without this no one is prepared to teach, no matter what may be his attainments in other branches.

The growing efficiency of our high schools in Pennsylvania and the adjoining states is enabling us to secure students better prepared for the work of our classes, and we are thus able to secure a higher grade of work from them.

Our course of study gives an opportunity for some insight into the more advanced subjects of study, such as Psychology and the sciences. We offer also good opportunities for the study and training in Music and Fine Art, but these are not recommended to our regular students till they are thoroughly grounded in the fundamentals.

English Grammar and Composition, Arithmetic and Algebra, U. S. History and Geography are the ground work of all education. Latin is essential to a good knowledge of English. These are the substantial studies of the first year, and must not only be known but made familiar.

Then the more technical studies of the teaching profession are given careful attention.

Chemistry and Physics are presented in such a way as to give accurate and practical acquaintance with the principles of these sciences—a safe and sure foundation for any course of study in these subjects however advanced or specialized.

Other Sciences, other History, Civil Government, Literature and Languages are included in the course of study, but our aim is not to extend our course to cover the whole field covered by a college curriculum, but to put our best energies into the complete mastering of the fundamentals mentioned above.

The teaching force of the school consists of twenty-one members. Every one is not only well educated, but has had experience in teaching. At the head of each department is a professor who is responsible for all the work of that department, though he may have one or more colleagues in the work.

In addition to the theoretic studies of the course, the Model School conducted by the Pedagogical Department, offers valuable opportunities for the practical application of principles taught in the class room, and experience in active teaching.

The Cumberland Valley is famous for its beauty and its climate. Nothing in this latitude east of the Rocky Mountains is equal to it as a place for schools. Shippensburg is a town of some three thousand people renowned for its churches and its prohibition. There are no saloons within ten miles of the town.

The Cumberland Valley, the Reading and the Western Maryland railroads make it easy of access from all points.

The school buildings are situated on the edge of the town, in a large campus beautifully kept. The water supply is from mountain springs, clear and pure and wholesome.

Our students are for the most part from the substantial families of Central Pennsylvania. They come from good homes and almost without exception are well taught in scripture truth and Christian morals. They are a sturdy and diligent class of young people, bent on getting the worth of their time and money. The tone of the school is remarkably earnest, but none the less bright and merry and sweet.

Everything that can be done is done to make the school days the best days, fullest of pleasant memories and freest from all that may bring sorrow or remorse.

It is the constant effort of the faculty to co-operate with the students in maintaining a bright and refined home life, and to help them in the cultivation of that grace and dignity of deportment that marks the real lady or gentleman.
