History of School, Buildings and Grounds.

The Cumberland Valley State Normal School is located at Shippensburg, Cumberland county, Pa., and is recognized as the Normal School of the Seventh district.

The district is composed of the counties of Adams, Bedford, Blair, Cumberland, Franklin, Fulton and Huntingdon.

The buildings are located in one of the most beautiful and fertile spots of the Cumberland Valley. The grounds are extensive and well suited for a school site.

The buildings are located on elevated ground with perfect drainage in every direction, insuring to the student the most healthful natural conditions to be found anywhere in the state. No epidemic of any kind has ever prevailed in the school. Students are usually healthier while at school than at their own homes.

The outlook from the buildings in every direction is beautiful and inspiring, the mountains on either side of the valley furnishing charming views for the lovers of nature. On every hand the observer can behold fertile fields, beautiful landscapes and handsome country residences.

The buildings consist of an Administration Building and Gentlemen's Dormitory combined, a Ladies' Dormitory, and a Gymnasium Building. A new roof has recently been placed on the Administration and Gentlemen's Dormitory Building, and the upper story changed to make the building harmonize with the modern styles of architecture. The building presents a very fine appearance and the dormitory rooms on the fourth floor are now the most desirable in the building.

The students' dormitories have all been painted and frescoed and many of them newly furnished. All the rooms are cheerful, well lighted and heated.

The chapel is one of the finest halls in the state, and is large enough to comfortably seat an audience of one thousand persons.

LADIES' NEW DORMITORY

The dining hall is a very cheerful and inviting room, beautifully painted and frescoed and capable of holding three hundred students.

The Model school rooms have been constructed with special reference to the needs of a training department. The main room is handsomely decorated, with plenty of light and good ventilation. The recitation rooms are conveniently located and specially adapted to the subjects to be taught and the grade of the pupils who are to occupy them.

The students' dormitories have all been painted and frescoed and newly furnished during the present year. All the rooms are cheerful and well lighted.

The entire building is heated by steam and lighted by gas. An abundant supply of pure mountain water is distributed through the building. Large reservoirs on the fifth floor can be utilized in case of fire. The building is also supplied with fire-escapes of the latest approved pattern.

THE NEW GYMNASIUM BUILDING, a model of its kind, was opened to the students at the commencement of the year. The style of architecture is modern and very attractive. The main building is 40 x 90 and the front annex is 17 x 40. The gymnasium outfit is complete and of the best quality of goods manufactured by the Narragansett Machine Company. This building with its equipment enables us to offer our students free of cost, the very best advantages for physical culture.

THE NEW LADIES' DORMITORY, now completed with the exception of the heating and lighting, is one of the finest buildings of its kind in the state. The building, which is Romanesque in style, consists of three wings projecting from main structure in the center. The main structure is 50 x 50 and each of the wings is 70 x 44. This building is a model of beauty, comfort, and convenience. The whole interior of the building is exceedingly light and cheerful, removing all tendency to homesickness on the part of new students. This building is a beautiful addition to the other handsome buildings already on the campus. It will be furnished throughout with new and attractive furniture, and the appointments will all be made with a view to the health and comfort of students. It has been the purpose of the management of the school to have a separate dormitory for ladies, whenever the growth of the school would warrant it. The prosperity of the school has brought the Trustees the opportunity they have so earnestly desired. The advantages of a separate building for lady students are too obvious to need repetition here, and we expect a large increase of students the coming year, because of the superior advantages we are able to offer lady students in our new Ladies' Dormitory. This building must be seen to be appreciated, and parents who have daughters to educate, would find it to their advantage to visit us and inspect our buildings. I know they would go away like all who have already seen them, delighted with the accommodations they offer.

The campus comprises over ten acres of ground, principally devoted to the students for recreation. It is finely ornamented with flower beds, shrubbery and shade trees. A sparkling fountain plays continuously on the beautiful oval in front of the building.

The Cumberland Valley railroad extends along the entire southern boundary of the campus, and a station at its east corner affords students and visitors the advantage of stopping at the school building, and saves all expenses in transporting baggage to and from the school.

The Philadelphia and Reading railroad and the Western Maryland railroad have their termini in Shippensburg, and afford students convenient traveling accommodations from the east and south.

The growth of the school has been remarkable. Within the last four years the attendance of students has doubled, and from every section of the state we hear good reports of the work done by our graduates.

The leading educators of the state recognize this fact and are speaking a good word for us whenever opportunity offers. The reputation which the school is achieving is not undeserved. The Cumberland Valley State Normal has to-day one of the finest faculties to be found connected with any state normal school in the commonwealth, and the best methods and appliances are used in the work of training and instruction.

The moral and the religious tone of this school is excellent. Character is made the chief end to be attained in the preparation of young men and women for the profession of teaching.

The maximum of culture to be obtained by the completion of the normal school course is sought. The arts are taught not simply to fulfil the course prescribed by the principals, but, also to broaden the teachers' influence and power in the application of these subjects to the work of the school room.

Drawing is made an aid to the study of science, language and number, and elocution bears tribute to rhetoric and literature.

The Cumberland Valley State Normal School is distinctively a training school for teachers. Its success in the past has been largely due to the policy which was determined upon in the early history of the school, to ignore all side issues and concentrate the energies of the school upon the legitimate work of a normal school, the preparation of persons for teaching in the public schools. This policy upon which our success in the past has been won will be closely adhered to in the future.

As a logical result of this policy we graduate a larger percentage of our students than any other school in the commonwealth, and the percentage of our graduates continuing to teach is greater than that of any other normal school in the state.

Advantages.

1. We employ none but high-grade teachers. We advocate the principle that a teacher must know much more than he is expected to teach. All our teachers are specialists in their departments.

2. Our school is thoroughly and properly disciplined. No rude or immoral student is permitted to remain with us; the retention of such students endangers the reputation and character of more worthy ones. We hold ourselves responsible for the moral as well as the intellectual development of our students.

3. We lay great stress on the professional training of our students. The instruction in theory involves a thorough comprehension of the principles of education and a complete discussion of the latest approved methods of teaching. The practice teaching in the model school is under skilful supervision and competent direction.

4. Our school is organized in the interest of the students. Our system of classification enables us to advance students as rapidly as their progress will permit. No person is held in check to accommodate the interests of dull and inattentive scholars. Bright and industrious pupils are given an opportunity to reap the fruits of their talents and industry.

5. We carefully preserve the individuality of our students. Procrustean methods are ruled out in our school, the natural tastes and talents of the student being fully recognized in his development. Our graduates are distinguished by their originality, being something more than blind imitators.

6. Our school is not crowded beyond its capacity. Where such large numbers are in attendance it becomes impossible for the principal to give that personal attention to each student which the student's highest interests demand. Peculiar tastes and temperaments are ignored, and the pupil is looked upon as a machine rather than as a living being, with mental and bodily characteristics differing from every other pupil.

7. Our graduates are doing noble work in their chosen profession of teaching. We have no difficulty in securing good positions for them, as they advertise themselves by the excellent character of their work.

8. No more beautiful spot can be found in the state than that occupied by the Cumberland Valley State Normal School. The most beautiful scenery greets the eye of the observer in every direction.

9. Shippensburg is a pleasant town of nearly three thousand inhabitants. It is accessible by three railroads, the Cumberland Valley, Philadelphia and Reading, and the Western Maryland. Seven of the leading Christian denominations are represented in the town, and it contains some of the handsomest church edifices to be found in the valley.

10. The social enjoyments of our school constitute one of its principal features. School life should be as homelike as possible, and, in order to carry out this idea, we have instituted a series of sociables and parlor receptions. These occasions are made the means of giving social culture to our students and at the same time of adding to the pleasure of student life.

11. We do not claim to have the best school in the country, but we do claim that there is none better. Our school is growing more in popular favor every year, and there is no danger of our losing the vantage ground we have already won.

12. Our boarding department is under excellent management. The students are bountifully supplied with good, wholesome food, and no effort is spared to minister to their bodily comfort in every manner possible.

13. The Cumberland Valley State Normal School is located within forty miles of Harrisburg, the capital of the state, within twenty miles of the Indian Training School at Carlisle, and within thirty miles of the famous battlefield of Gettysburg.

Academic Course.

The purpose of a normal school is two-fold, embracing a thorough knowledge of the branches included in the several courses, and, also, a complete knowledge of the theory and practice of teaching.

The former we include under the head of "Academic Course" and the latter under the head of "Professional Course."

Reading.

The aim of this department is to secure natural, easy style of delivery, to train pupils to correct habits of thought in the analysis of subjects, and to cultivate a taste for good literature. The best talent obtainable is secured for the head of this department, realizing the great importance of this subject in connection with normal school course. A poor reader is a poor teacher, and to be a good reader assists in the comprehension of every other subject belonging to a course of instruction. The elocutionary training is continued throughout the entire senior year.

Composition and Grammar.

A thorough drill in composition is given our junior classes. The principles of expression, capitalization, punctuation, reproduction, classification, paraphrasing and letter writing, cover the ground of this course.

Grammar has a three-fold object—1. As an intellectual exercise to train the powers of the mind. 2. As a means by which the student is taught to comprehend thought when expressed in language. 3. To train the student to correctly and clearly express his own thoughts. Theory and practice are constantly combined in the teaching of this subject. A thorough knowledge of the principles of construction is given the student, making him acquainted with the science of the language as well as the art of using it.

Rhetoric and English Literature.

In Rhetoric the principles of good writing are studied and analyzed with a view to their practical application. During the term considerable time is devoted to composition on themes assigned by the teacher. These productions are read before the class, where general criticisms are offered, after which they are handed to the teacher for more careful correction.

English Literature occupies two terms of the senior year. In addition to a general outline of the subject, much attention is paid to the critical reading of some of the masterpieces of our literature.

The coming year the class will study Shakespeare's Hamlet, Pope's Essay on Man, Irving's Legend of Sleepy Hollow and Lowell's Vision of Sir Launfal.

Latin.

In the department of language the objects sought will be a complete knowledge of inflection, together with the rules by which the noun and tense stems are formed; the reason for the employment of the various clauses given in the text, the principles that control the several cases of nouns; in short to give the student such a knowledge of the structure of the language as will enable him to change the Latin or Greek into good English and English into correct Latin or Greek. The formation of English words from Latin and Greek roots is made a part of the daily exercises.

Mathematics.

In this department special attention is given to the development and elucidation of the fundamental principles on which the several branches included in the course are based. In arithmetic the concrete is first taught by which the pupil may be prepared to apply readily and correctly the principles and rules to every day business, then the abstract, by which relations of numbers, and how from those relations, rules for operations are drawn, are demonstrated, so that the student may know from principle, rather than from memorized rule, what the relations are, and how he may intelligently reach a correct result. Algebra and Geometry are conducted on the same plan, the aim being to have the pupil thoroughly understand what he does and the reason for so doing. In brief to make the pupil a correct, clear, positive mathematician.

Historical Sciences.

Physical, mathematical and political geography are included in this course and are taught with special reference to the explanation and comprehension of general geography and its relation to history and other school subjects. In teaching United States history, our aim is to give the leading place to the national rather than the colonial history of our country, and to group those events of our history that shed light on the responsibilities of the citizen. The object of the study of civil government is to lay the foundation of good and intelligent citizenship. It is regarded as a very important subject because of its general introduction into all grades of schools.

Natural Sciences.

We have excellent facilities for the study of the natural sciences. Our aim is to so prepare our students in this department that they may be able to teach the elements of these branches without the aid of expensive apparatus. There is a large collection of philosophical and chemical apparatus of which frequent use is made in the regular recitations. The object is to establish the habit of rational experimenting and of drawing logical conclusions from observations, whether on the student's or the teacher's experiments.

The work in physiology and hygiene is designed to give the student such a knowledge of the structure and functions of the principal organs of the body as will enable him to understand the conditions under which these organs best perform their respective offices. The subject of hygiene is presented with special fullness, embracing the subjects of ventilation and warming, exercise, clothing, the organs of special sense, the effects of alcohol and narcotics on the system, and the essential conditions for the health in the school room.

It is the aim in botany to lead the student to make close observation of plant structure and plant life. As soon as the spring plants bloom, field work and plant analysis begin. Under favorable circumstances the class have one botanical excursion a week and, as far as possible, each student collects his own plants for work. At least thirty plants are carefully described by the end of the term, and about fifty plants are analyzed and determined. A herbarium of not less than forty plants is prepared by each member of the class.

Vocal and Instrumental Music.

In the vocal department are given, free of charge, class lessons, in which the pupils are taught the rudiments of music and the theory of sight singing. Practice in singing the best part songs and choruses furnish not only the necessary drill in reading music, but also a knowledge of good music. Those taking the professional course receive instruction in the best methods of teaching music, and thus are enabled to supply one of the greatest needs of the times, that of teachers of music in the public schools.

Students have the opportunity of taking voice culture in connection with the other work of the course. The instruction in this subject is based upon a scientific knowledge of the vocal organs and a clear conception of the quality of tones. A thorough knowledge of piano technics is taught through the studies of Czerny, Krauss, Kohler, Heller, Chopin and others, and style and artistic expression are studied from the best composers of ancient and modern times.

Drawing.

Drawing has come to be recognized as one of the most practical subjects taught in the normal course. Its practical relations to the business affairs of life, as well as its culture value in the development of judgment and taste, demand for it important consideration in the teacher's preparation for his profession. The White system of drawing is used with the classes in connection with work from studies. In the senior year the work of drawing is continued in connection with methods.

Professional Course.

The Professional Course embraces those departments of instruction and training which relate to the science and art of teaching.

Psychology.

A knowledge of the branches to be taught is no longer considered a sufficient preparation for the teacher's work. The faculties to be trained are even more important in the pupil's education than the knowledge acquired in the processes of his development. The teacher must know the mind with which he deals, its nature, and the order in which its powers are developed. We aim to give the students a correct knowledge of the elementary principles of this science, and to enable them to correctly apply these principles in their relation to teaching.

Methods.

The methods of teaching the several branches are clearly presented to the students, and by teachers who are specialists in the subjects in connection with which the methods are given. The old-time plan in normal schools of having one teacher give all the methods has been superseded in our school by the modern method of requiring this work to be done only by those who have given special attention to the particular subjects to be taught.

The student is thus enabled to receive the widest culture in special methods possible, the latest approved methods of teaching the various subjects being clearly and exhaustively presented to him.

School Management.

The art of managing a school is made a prominent part of the teacher's professional training. He is given approved plans concerning the arrangement, location and ornamentation of school grounds, and the latest ideas in reference to school architecture. He is taught how to organize and govern a school successfully, the best methods of heating, lighting and ventilating, how to conduct recitations, how to keep his pupils employed, how to incite pupils to study and how to awaken an interest among parents in school work.

Model School.

This is the practical department of the teacher's professional course.

Here the teacher's powers of teaching are developed, his work tested, and direction given to the matter and method of instruction.

Our model school is in the hands of very superior teachers who have been specially trained for the work assigned them.

The best compliment that can be placed to the credit of our training department is the flattering success which uniformly attends the work of our graduates.

We intend to keep the work of our model school prominent, and the best opportunities for practice-teaching will be afforded our students.

Normal and Philomathean Societies.

Among the most valuable auxiliaries to a normal school are its literary societies. In order that there may be life, and interest, and growth in this work, there must be at least two associations of this character in every school where the numbers are sufficient to sustain two organizations.

The Normal and Philomathean societies are both strong, vigorous associations, and in their growth are keeping equal pace with the growth of the school. They meet in separate halls on Friday evenings of each week for literary purposes. The programmes which they render are highly entertaining and instructive, and they look forward with great interest and pleasure to the recurrence of their regular meetings. The libraries of these societies form a valuable addition to that of the school, and include many of the most valuable works of English and American literature, and many excellent works of reference.

Reading Room.

A very handsome reading room has been fitted up for the use of students. All the prominent magazines, periodicals and many newspapers, daily and weekly, are to be found in connection with it.

The students are encouraged to make use of this privilege, and with the most gratifying results.

The information and training received from this source by the students are manifest in broader culture and more varied attainments.

Department.

Character lies at the foundation of all true success. Self-control is the chief element in character. The conduct of the student is as much a matter of concern to the faculty as his intellectual development. In sending out men and women to teach in the public schools, great care must be exercised that they be persons of unimpeachable character. No certificates or diplomas will be granted students on scholarship alone. Sound intellectual qualifications must be accompanied by solid character and correct deportment.

Religious Culture.

Our students are furnished ample opportunities for spiritual growth and development. We have a prayer and lecture service on every Wednesday evening, to which all the students are invited. This service is attended by a large number of the students and is full of interest and profit.

We have a Sabbath school organized among the students. This meeting is held every Sabbath morning and the exercises are highly appreciated and greatly enjoyed by the school. The students, unless specially excused by their parents, are required to attend the church of their choice once every Sabbath, thus affording them the same church advantages which are furnished them at their own homes.

In every possible way christian influences are made to surround the student while he is with us, making the school life to conform to the home life in the christian family.

A Young Men's Christian Association, and a Young Women's Christian Endeavor Society have been formed among the students. Each of these organizations has been doing a good work in building up christian character for its members.

TENNIS COURT AND LADIES' WING.

Suggestions to Students.

1. Come at the opening of the term and remain until its close.
 2. If possible enter at the opening of the fall term. The courses of study are designed to cover a year's work, and students are at a disadvantage who enter after the school year has opened.
 3. Take time to do your work thoroughly. If you have a good knowledge of the common branches you will still need a full year to complete the junior course.
 4. Determine when you enter school to win the respect of the members of the faculty. You will need their good will some time, and when you need it it may not be so easy to secure it.
 5. Give each subject in the course its full amount of attention. Do not give all your time to those subjects for which you have a special liking, to the neglect of other subjects of the course equally valuable to you.
 6. Study to be refined and polite. Take for your standard the most courteous and agreeable students in the school. Nothing costs so little and pays so well as true politeness.
 7. Establish a reputation for character as well as scholarship. "Character is the crowning jewel of life," and there can be no true success without it.
 8. Make up your mind to study hard. No man ever yet succeeded in obtaining a good education without energetic and persistent effort. The easy student is always superficial.
 9. Be prompt and regular in your attendance upon classes. The habit of promptness will be worth much to you in any calling in life. Regularity in attendance is necessary in order to insure the highest success in school work.
 10. Do not be satisfied with a low or even medium standing in class. No man ever yet attained any victories in life worthy of himself except ambition prompted him to the undertaking.
 11. A prompt attendance at the commencement of the session is of the utmost importance, both to the progress of the pupil and the proper organization of the school.
- Students desiring to enter the institution should make application to the principal at as early a date as possible.
