Edinboro is Seeking
Revenge for 12 to 0
Defeat of Last Year

Raider Line Outweighed

The Red Raiders will play the opening game of the 1937 Edinboro football season on their home field this afternoon against the Vulcans of California.

Today's game, which will be the initial contest for both teams, shapes up as a tough gridiron battle because Edinboro, with an experienced—though untried—team, will be fighting to gain avenge for a 12-0 defeat received from the Vulcans in a similar opening contest last season.

Both teams will be evenly matched in regard to experienced manpower. The 1937 Crimson and White squad is minus only a single 1936 graduating letterman while California had a sufficient number of returning lettermen to form a complete eleven. However, it is reasonably

Edinboro Delegates Meet With Religious Leaders at Lock Haven

Marjorie Welsh is To Submit Plans

Ruth Gilbert, Marjorie Welsh, Dr. E. Leigh Mudge, James Wood, and Lee Beck attended a Christian Volunteer movement conference at Lock Haven State Teachers College on September 25th and 26th, which was held in the interest of religious work.

Miss Marjorie Welsh, president of the college Y. W. C. A., presented to the assembled conference the year's plans of the Christian Associations at Edinboro and was asked to submit a complete program of Edinboro's religious activities to each of the teachers' colleges represented at the conference.

Teachers colleges from three states—Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and Ohio—attended the conference at which Dr. Margaret E. Forsyth, head of the Christian Work Department at Columbia University, was the principal speaker.

A panel discussion, in which the Edinboro representatives took part was presided over by Dr. J. G. Flowers, president of Lock Haven State Teachers' College. The topic of this discussion was "The Teacher in the Community".

MANSFIELD IS SECOND FOE OF RED RAIDERS

On next Saturday, October 9, the Edinboro Red Raiders will meet Mansfield in the second and last home game of the season. Don't forget that your team needs your support in order that your school might win for you!

COLLEGE HONORS FATHERS AND MOTHERS ON PARENTS DAY

Edinboro-California Football Game is Big Feature of Annual Parents Day

Dr. Carmon Ross Welcomes Parents

Greetings to Parents:

On behalf of the College, Students, and Faculty, I bid you welcome to our campus! We wish it were possible for you to come often. College education is a co-operative enterprise, no less than the education of our youth in your local communities. Students and instructors can all do better if each understands the other; but our work can be done still better if we know the fathers and mothers who send these young men and women to Edinboro. I hope you will enjoy your visit and that as a result you may come back soon and often. You can offer much in the way of encouragement, understanding, and support, not only to us but to the students themselves.

CARMON ROSS, President.

Program Arranged by General Chairman Waldo
F. Bates Offers
Varied Entertainment

Parents Day, an annual presentation of Edinboro State Teachers' College in honor of the parents of Edinboro students, offers again this year, an interesting and varied program for their entertainment throughout the entire day.

The visiting parents, who are guests of the college, will begin the day with registration and visitation of classes and will end the day at the traditional California-Edinboro football game in the afternoon.

In between these events, they will observe a Women's Athletic Association sports demonstration near the gymnasium in the morning and will be entertained at a complimentary luncheon, with an informal reception after luncheon, in Haven hall.

This program, arranged by General Chairman Waldo F. Bates, acquaints the parents with the actual life of their sons and daughters at Edinboro College. The student body is cooperating with the faculty in extending hospitality and in making this year's Parents Day as great a success as it has been in past years.

78 Per Cent of Last Years Graduates Have Teaching Positions

Many are Placed in Immediate Vicinity
of Edinboro College

According to information announced by Mr. W. A. Wheatley, Dean of Instruction, seventy-eight per cent of the 1937 graduates and certificated students of Edinboro State Teachers College are already actively engaged in teaching.

Seventy-nine of the one hundred and two recent graduates are engaged in some one of the many different fields of education offered at Edinboro. Though the majority of former Edinboro students secured positions in the immediate vicinity, one, Jane Zahniser, is teaching in Cairo, Egypt.

Seven of January Group Teach

Of the January group, seven of the ten members are teaching. They are Frank Edwards, Lucille Pulling, Gertrude Walker, Audrey Clayton, Rachel Williams, Miriam Berkelite, and Virginia Diehl.

Of the six degree art graduates, five have secured positions. Henrietta Boss, Leola Dinges, Ann Forrest, Bernice Howard, and Marian True are all working as Supervisors of Public School Art.

Tony Sarg Presents Marionettes To Big College Audience

Versatility is Shown
In Hour's Program On Wednesday Night

Tony Sarg, Master of Marionettes, Illustrator and Impersonator, presented his Marionette Show to a large audience in Edinboro State Teachers' College auditorium on last Wednesday evening.

Mr. Sarg, who has worked with Marionettes for twenty years, kept the audience laughing—and at times in awed silence—as he skillfully manipulated the almost human Marionettes.

With great versatility, he made the artificial figures eat and dance.

EDITORIAL POLICY

With this issue the Spectator begins another year of publication. An almost entirely new staff has assumed the responsibility of reporting, editing and managing this college's newspaper.

Too, the editorial staff has assumed the larger responsibility of being servants to the voice of student opinion on this campus. With this thought in mind, the staff will, to the best of its ability, serve and be responsive to that opinion which is a natural and necessary part of this institution.

However, this student opinion, though natural and necessary, will not be allowed to degenerate into mere ranting and futile gnashing of teeth. In other words, the Spectator is not to become an instrument of "Veiled comments" and anonymous haranguing between partial groups. Too often, later circumstances have proved that a single boost is many times more valuable than a barrel of knocks. So, with this first editorial, it is the announced policy of this newspaper to discuss with freedom and reason, the opinion of the students on this campus, but, at the same time (and at all times) to keep it out in the open and on a high plane worthy of Edinboro College.

W. I. N.

INCREASED INTEREST IN EDINBORO

Edinboro College, during the past year, has received a great expenditure of money and labor in the work of improving, beautifying and generally making the college more attractive and liveable. Too, the work has not stopped, but is continuing at the present time and—with at least three new buildings in view—it might be said that it has just begun.

Certainly Edinboro students and faculty can take increased pride in their school as the beauty and attractiveness of it is increased by this expenditure. Though this work makes Edinboro a better college physically, it also does another thing—which is undoubtedly more important—and that is that it builds up a more favorable mental attitude on the part of these groups toward their school.

Oddly enough, it is this mental attitude on the part of these two vitally interested groups that really makes a school. Well-kept buildings and spacious grounds are only secondary to the mental viewpoint in which teachers and the students speak of their school. Wonderful schools are "wonderful" more often because of favorable human associations with them than mere attractiveness of grounds and buildings.

Certainly the administration of this college should be congratulated for its splendid work at Edinboro and the students and faculty should take increased pride and interest in their school because of this work.

With Our Faculty Outside the Campus

By Walter Nissen

Mr. W. A. Wheatley, Dean of Instruction, has been traveling during the past few weeks, to various parts of Northwestern Pennsylvania in the interests of the extension courses offered throughout the winter by Edinboro State Teachers' College.

Mr. Royce R. Mallory and Dr. L. H. VanHouten have been aiding Mr. Wheatley in organizing this work and among them, they have been to Corry, Centerville, Meadville, Erie, Lawrence Park, Franklin, and Grove City.

The courses are offered chiefly for the benefit of teachers in service who wish to further their teacher training.

Similar courses for graduates are also offered on Saturday at the College. Regular instructors teach in both types of these courses.

Dr. L. H. VanHouten, head of the Department of Education at Edinboro, has been testing the school children of the Union City school district to determine whether certain pupils are to be assigned to Orthographic classes.

This activity, which has been under way since the start of the school year, has had to do with the giving of visual and auditory acuity tests along with a Benet Intelligence Test and performance scale. The performance scales are of the Cornell-Coxe and the Author types.

The work has been completed for the present.

On October first and second, Dr. Van Houten will travel to Harrisburg to attend the annual Pennsylvania State Conference for the Education of Exceptional Children. It will be a meeting of educators interested in the exceptional child from all over Pennsylvania.

Dr. C. J. Christensen, the new head of the Rural Schools Department, spoke at the meeting of the Community Club of Edinboro which was held in the Methodist church on Monday, September 20.

Dr. Christensen's address was entitled "Fellow Teachers" and was well received by his audience.

On the preceding Saturday night Dr. Christensen addressed a community mass meeting in New Field, New York. The meeting was called to consider the consolidation of nineteen one-room district schools.

Dr. Mudge, Instructor of History, went with four Edinboro students to Lock Haven Teachers Colleges to attend a conference of religious workers in the teachers colleges of Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and Ohio.

Donovan, Lillian Mitchell, Lillian Foley, Beatrice Altenburg, Winnifred Bannister, Beatrice Bradley, Robert Fobes, Grace Griffith, Mary Mahoney, Mildred Pearce, Margaret Boyd, Beulah Burch, Mary Margaret Moorhead, and Julia Sullivan.

Educational Comment

By John Clark

The average high school graduate turned out by our educational system is ill-prepared to cope with modern conditions. He finds that the parents can no longer furnish ample money for clothes and amusement. He becomes increasingly aware that the stores and world are glittering with thousands of things that go to make life comfortable, but that they all are obtainable only at a far greater price than he can pay. Eventually he begins to believe that earning money is life's big purpose, and that those who are educated will never want for plenty of it.

That thought may goad him into a period of strenuous effort on any available job, and of hopefully, but painfully, building up of a reserve in cash. His youthful zest may ease the restlessness which naturally comes with the endless routine of boy-type jobs and makes trivial the hard fact that a few hundred dollars has a way of vanishing suddenly when college training commences.

Is our educational set-up doing its best when thousands of alert high school graduates must go through this long process of working at various jobs in order to have the privilege of preparing to hold one of life's better positions? Shouldn't there be a greater amount of actual training in real life situations at public expense?

It seems reasonable to believe that a vast amount of disillusionment, waywardness, waste, and failure among young people the country over might be averted if each young man and woman could be acquainted with and assured of some stable employment appropriate to his ability. Maybe society's greatest challenge today is to show boys and girls that they are wanted and needed. It can do this by becoming concerned enough in their welfare to provide, at public expense, an adequate training in the art of breadwinning.

Mostly Football

By Norman Dilley

Coach Harrison drills thirty charges daily, in an effort to make Edinboro a football power equal to that of other colleges. Certainly the student body should get behind him in this undertaking.

PEP

The return of Norm Erickson to school, and to the team, promises to add more strength to the center of the line.

BEAT CALIFORNIA

Just imagine Lon Waters, the student football manager cheerfully picking up widely scattered helmets and shoulder pads after a hard scrimmage.

PEP

However, Lon feels better now as he has an assistant manager. Harold Packard will probably have to do the dirty work now.

BEAT CALIFORNIA

Manley Meabon will again handle the water boy assignment this season. He is in fine shape for extra heavy duty.

PEP

Our college squad expects to see a real professional football game October 6, in Erie, when the Chicago Bears, efaturing Bronko Nagurski, play the Warren Pros.

RED RAIDERS ENGAGE CALIFORNIA VULCANS

certain that at least two Freshmen both of whom have been showing up well in pre-season practice, will occupy Varsity positions for Edinboro when the opening whistle blows.

Though the Edinboro backfield will be five pounds heavier—averaging 165 pounds, the Edinboro line will be outweighed nearly ten pounds to the man. The Vulcan forwards average 185 from end to end while the Raider line scales slightly over a 175 weight to the man.

What this disadvantage in forward wall weight will mean when the teams meet is uncertain, but Edinboro followers, weighing the experience and general fine showing of the Raiders in pre-season practice against the superior weight of the California team, are optimistic in regard to a well-earned victory for Edinboro.

Probable lineups for both teams follow:

Edinboro		California
Wolfe	le	Bayshaw
Case	lt	Brown
Dilley	lg	Kuhn
Lytle	c	Roberts
Witalis	rg	Leman
Coyle	rt	Hall
Volitich	re	McCloskey
Burke	qb	Naylor
Abrams	ln	Kuzma
Intrieri	rh	Phillips
Crevar	fb	Bedogne

Paul Jones, of Beaver, will referee the game.

Here's a time joke: (You'll catch on in due time—I hope).

During the World War there was a doughboy in the trenches that was waiting for the signal to go over the top. He became so jittery from waiting that when the whistle blew for advance, he climbed up and ran the opposite way. In a little while he encountered an officer and said: "Excuse me, Capain, but I was so excited that I ran the wrong way."

"How dare you," answered he officer, "Call me 'Captain'? I'm the Colonel!"

The soldier abjectly replied: "Excuse me again, Colonel, I didn't know I was this far away from the front."

Mostly Girls' Sports

By Ruth Diehl

So far this year, the girls' fall sports are going off with a bang, both in attendance and enthusiasm—even if the weather hasn't been so warm.

On Thursday, September 23, the fall sports were officially started. They include volleyball, hiking, riding and tennis, and hockey for both beginners and advanced players.

Eleanor Storer is our new president of the Women's Athletic Association and she fills her position well. The W. A. A. girls extend their congratulations and wish her success as the leader.

Ruth Gilbert was also elected Phi leader. All the Phis will be backing her up in their activities.

An initiation party was held for Freshmen on Wednesday afternoon, September 22, in the W. A. A. rooms. All the Freshmen girls entered into the party with a great spirit of cooperation. Each one contributed a joke, a story, a song or a piano selection to entertain the upperclassmen.

Although the hockey players of the last years have been very good, our Sophomores and Juniors are going to be equal if not superior to the stars of the past years.

We'll miss Ruth Ramsey and Dorothy Sullivan who have been outstanding in hockey for the past three years. They play their last game Saturday before they go to Erie to do their student teaching.

The Freshman Hockey team seems to be the most promising team we've had in years. We're certainly glad to hear this and hope they keep it up.

The volleyball players seem very enthusiastic this year. They have many new Freshmen players who have had experience in high school.

The tennis tournament will probably start next week, October 5. All those who are interested are urged to enter the competition.

The hiking group seem to be real cross-country hikers. At the speed they start out we believe that they smell the steak which they will have at a supper near the last of October.

We wish to extend our praise and thanks to Miss Ruttle who helps so faithfully every year in starting and in guiding us in these sports.

MISS JANE ZAHNISER TEACHES IN CAIRO, EGYPT

Miss Jane Zahniser, a graduate of Edinboro State Teachers' College and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Verne Zahniser, instructor of English, has taken up a teaching position at the American Girl's College in Cairo, Egypt.

Miss Zahniser, according to a recent letter to her parents, is teaching science, English and physical education in sight of the ancient pyramids. Her duties, which she assumed on September first, are for a period of three years.

She hopes to spend her vacation periods traveling in Europe and the Mediterranean region.
