FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

EDUCATION BECOMING MORE AFFORDABLE AT EDINBORO UNIVERSITY

Parents who expect to pay $1,734 for their son's or daughter's tuition this fall at Edinboro University of Pennsylvania may be in for a pleasant surprise. Not only is this the first time in 17 years that Edinboro and the other 13 universities in the State System of Higher Education (SSHE) have not raised tuition, but Edinboro also makes available more than $33 million in financial aid every year.

"Eighty-five percent of our students get some sort of financial aid," said Ken Brandt, Edinboro's director of financial aid. "The average financial aid package is $5,700 a year." This means that only 15 percent of the school's 7,100 students pay the full tuition.

Of the $33 million given out this past academic year, 60 percent was in loans, 36 percent in grants, and four percent in work study programs. The biggest single chunk of assistance – $18 million – comes primarily from federal Stafford Loans which are low-interest loans available to students regardless of financial need. The maximum amount available for freshmen is $2,625. More than 3,700 Edinboro students took advantage of Stafford Loans last year. Another federal program, Perkins Loans, which range from $800 to $2,000, are for undergraduate students with exceptional need.

The second most popular financial aid at Edinboro last year came in the form of Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency (PHEAA) grants. These awards vary in value based upon family income. More than 2,200 Edinboro students received PHEAA grants worth $4.3 million last year. Federal Pell Grants, which range from $400 to $3,000 for undergraduates, were awarded to 2,300 Edinboro students for $3.9 million. Another $418,000 came from federal supplemental grants.

Edinboro's work-study program provided 870 students with $1.3 million in assistance last year. Scholarships, tuition waivers and athletic grants accounted for another $2.8 million.

In addition to the tuition freeze this year and the $33 million in financial aid, Brandt said there is other good news for the families of college students. Earlier this year, Congress reauthorized the Higher Education Act. This means students can look forward to such government-backed programs as Pell Grants for another five years. Brandt said the most important news, however, has been the recent middle class tax relief programs which are expected to total $35 billion over five years. One of those programs is the education IRA which allows taxpayers to invest up to $500 per child, per year. Another program, the Hope Scholarship Credit, offers a tax credit for the first $1,000 of tuition and fees, and half of the next $1,000 of tuition and fees.

The news is also good for Edinboro students from Ohio and New York. For the coming academic year tuition for those students has been reduced to 200 percent of in-state tuition or $3,468 per semester. In 1999 that rate is expected to be reduced to 150 percent of in-state tuition. Brandt reported the University will be even more aggressive in 1999 in recruiting outstanding freshmen by offering $50,000 in scholarships in addition to the tuition cutbacks.

Edinboro University's Van Houten Dining Hall was the host site in June for the 43rd Annual Scholarship Banquet of the Erie Wolves Club, Den VIII. President Frank G. Pogue is shown accepting on behalf of the University a framed print of the U.S. Brig Niagara from Wolves Club member Dan Perfetto in recognition of Edinboro's continuing support of the Club's scholarship program. Founded in 1956, the Erie Wolves Club has gone over the $1 million mark in scholarship money raised for deserving Erie County students. The perpetual scholarship endowment fund established by the Erie Wolves at Edinboro University in 1990 was their first award to a public institution of higher education. One of the five 1998 scholarship recipients, Mercyhurst Prep senior Heather Tardio, will attend Edinboro University this fall.

News Advisory

A group of students from the newly created Kazakh-American University in the Republic of Kazakhstan are touring Edinboro and the Erie area now through Wednesday, July 22. The group of 16 students is led by the president of the university, Amirlan A. Kussainov, and Nurzhauar S. Issayeva, head of the school's international department.

The scholars are here to learn about American society, improve their understanding of the English language and create formal linkages with American institutions.

Their schedule includes:

- Friday, July 11 from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m., a tour of the Troyer potato chip factory in Waterford.
- Saturday, July 11, from 9:30 to noon, a tour of the Drake's Well Museum in Titusville.
- Monday, July 13, from 2 - 4 p.m., a tour of General Electric.
- Tuesday, July 14, from 2 - 4 p.m., a tour of International Paper.
- Wednesday, July 15, tours of the buffalo and alpaca farms in Edinboro in the morning, and a tour of grape industry in North East at 1 p.m.
- Thursday, July 16, beginning at 1:30 p.m., meeting with Erie Mayor Savacchio, followed by a tour of the Blasco Memorial Library and the Maritime Museum.

For more information, call Linda Kightlinger, Edinboro's coordinator for international student services, 814-732-2770.

LIVING-LEARNING IS A POPULAR CHOICE AMONG EDINBORO STUDENTS

Edinboro University of Pennsylvania is expanding a program this fall which it hopes will give more students a greater sense of belonging to the University. Last year, Edinboro created a living-learning area on one floor of Lawrence Towers for students majoring in education. The idea was to bring together students who share the same major for study and support in the hopes it would improve their grades and satisfaction with the University.

The program was so popular that four more living-learning areas are being added this year, and another floor is planned for education students. The new areas are for students majoring in criminal justice, general studies, liberal arts, and science and math.

More than 40 education students signed up for the program last year, and several more were on a waiting list. The two floors for this fall's program are already filled, and another waiting list has been established. So far, 225 students are registered for the seven living-learning floors in two residence halls this fall.

Kim Kennedy, Edinboro's director of residence life and housing, said the key to the program is getting faculty involved. "The program has worked nationally. Where it has succeeded is where faculty have been committed to the program."

For last year's pilot project, the residence life staff met with faculty and department chairs from the School of Education to plan programs and screen applicants. Education professor Kathy Stevens developed a calendar of events and coordinated 11 programs for the students during the year which focused on professional topics.

Susan Criswell, chair of educational services, said the program not only built a good environment for study, but also encouraged a lot of camaraderie on the floor. She said a mix of students were chosen – successful students who were good role models and underachieving students who could benefit from a supportive atmosphere.

The proof of the program's success can be seen in the high number of students returning from last year. A survey of students living in the University's residence halls showed the living-learning floors had a higher level of student satisfaction in most areas, especially in academic achievement, emotional support and involvement with other residents.

"Everyone here acts like a big family," one student said. "We help each other study, joke around, hang out and chat. The floor is a friendly environment to live in."

The program is supported by a two-year grant from the State System of Higher Education. The University is also installing computer labs in Lawrence Towers and Rose Hall which will be available to students in those residence halls.

JAMES SHEEHAN NAMED EDINBORO FINANCE VICE PRESIDENT

Edinboro University of Pennsylvania President Dr. Frank G. Pogue has announced the appointment of Mr. James P. Sheehan to the post of vice president for financial operations and administration at the University. His appointment, which begins on August 1, comes at the conclusion of a six-month national search.

Sheehan succeeds Richard E. Morley, who retired on June 30 after serving 14 years as Edinboro University's chief financial officer.

"Jim Sheehan brings to our campus a breadth of knowledge and experience in finance and administration, and his expertise in effectively connecting the budget and planning processes will be most helpful as we implement our five-year budget, planning and Continuous Improvement process," Pogue said. "He also has a keen understanding of the role that budgeting plays in supporting the goals and aspirations of the University.

"One of the priorities I established as president was to build a collaborative administrative team of professionals who understand and are sensitive to the relationship between what they do and the way we all serve students," said Pogue. "Jim is the newest member of that team and we welcome him to the Edinboro University Family."

Sheehan is currently the assistant vice president for finance at Sacred Heart University, a private institution enrolling some 5,000 students, located in Fairfield, Conn. His responsibilities there included administration of a $50 million operating budget and its allocation in terms of the five-year plan, strategic planning and administrative computing.

Prior to Sacred Heart, Sheehan served as associate vice chancellor for financial management at Appalachian State University in Boone, N.C., as director of fiscal affairs at Bridgewater (Mass.) State College, and as comptroller at Massasoit Community College in Brockton, Mass.

Sheehan's professional career began in 1971 as a staff field auditor in the State Auditor's Office, Commonwealth of Massachusetts. His first higher education position was director of accounting at Bridgewater State College.

Sheehan earned his baccalaureate degree in accounting and finance at Bentley College (Mass.) and his MBA at Southeastern Massachusetts University.

Sheehan and his wife, Betty Jean, have two children, son Shawn, who lives in Massachusetts, and daughter Colleen, a student at East Carolina University.

James Sheehan (left), Edinboro University's newly appointed vice president for financial operations and administration, is welcomed to the Edinboro Family during the University's recent Family Summer Retreat by President Frank G. Pogue. Sheehan, who comes to Edinboro from Sacred Heart University in Fairfield, Conn., succeeds retiring Richard Morley as Edinboro University's chief financial officer.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

EDINBORO OFFERS ASTRONOMY COURSE ON THE WORLD WIDE WEB

Edinboro University of Pennsylvania will expand the way students can take classes this fall by offering its popular Frontiers of Astronomy course over the World Wide Web. Designed for non-science majors, the three-credit course explains the new revolution in astronomy and the latest developments in space exploration based on discoveries from the space program.

Students from anywhere in the world will be able to take the entire course over the Web. Astronomy professor Dr. James LoPresto will assign readings, essays and quizzes from the textbook and provide each student with individualized attention through email consultations. The course will focus on star evolution and the life histories of the solar system, stars, galaxies, and the universe.

Eric Randall, Edinboro's dean of Science, Management and Technologies, said offering the course over the web expands the opportunities for students who possibly would be unable to attend classes in person due to distance, schedule or other reasons.

He cited several advantages to taking classes via the Web. Students can log on at their convenience, and they can study at their own pace. They also have the advantage of learning one-on-one with the professor, albeit through electronic mail. "This is really the old Socratic style of teaching in new packaging," said Randall, "and you can't have better instruction than that."

The class will be limited to 10 students.

More information is available by contacting Sharon Pratt Miller at (814) 732-5555, or Dr. LoPresto at (814) 732-2469. The Web address for the course is www.edinboro.edu/cwis/physics/observ/home.html.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

MEADVILLE RESIDENT TO COMPETE FOR U.S. LAWN BOWLS CHAMPIONSHIP

Meadville resident Richard Sayer and his brother Bob Sayer of West Kingston, Rhode Island, have qualified for the U. S. Championships of the American Lawn Bowls Association (ALBA), which will be held August 17-20 in Seattle. Richard is a graduate of Edinboro University of Pennsylvania and is a photographer for the Meadville Tribune.

The brothers qualified for the tournament by winning the Eastern Division Playdowns held in June at the Buck Hill Falls Lawn Bowling Club in eastern Pennsylvania. They are no strangers to the U.S. championships, having represented the Eastern Division several times this decade. They won the U.S. pairs title in 1996.

Their victory this year came despite not having played together for several months. There are no lawn bowling clubs in this part of Pennsylvania.

The game is played by rolling a set of wooden or composite balls or bowls toward a target ball called a jack. The object is to score points by having the nearest bowl to the jack after all bowls have been rolled.

Sayer said lawn bowling is a game of mental strategy and precise skill – not physical dominance. Old and young compete together on the same level with experience and tactical strategy being the ultimate consistent winner.

Playing the game is more challenging than it looks. Because of the shape of the bowls they curve as they slow down. The player must determine how fast the green is playing, how much curve to allow for the pace of the green, and what type of shot to play in a given situation.

The Sayers have been playing since they were children in Scituate, Rhode Island. They were taught the game by their father, George, and their grandfather, Raymond, who was active in the sport until he passed away last year at the age of 99.

Richard graduated from the Rhode Island School of Photography in 1986 and moved to Meadville with his wife, Samantha, while he earned bachelor's and master's degrees in fine arts from Edinboro.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

EDINBORO HONORS SEVEN DISTINGUISHED ALUMNI

Seven Edinboro University of Pennsylvania graduates were recently named distinguished alumni at a special luncheon ceremony that highlighted the school's 1998 Alumni Reunion Weekend.

Honored were local artist Joan "Matta D" Deckard; Henry Casilli, former executive director of the Pennsylvania Center for the Arts; Katy Harriger, political science professor at Wake Forest University; Edinboro State Normal School art education pioneer Russell McCommons; business executive Herman Tomer; naturopathic physician and research scientist Humbart "Smokey" Santillo; and James Kelly, dean of the School of Health and Human Services at California State University, Los Angeles.

The works of JOAN "Matta D" DECKARD, '61, first gained attention in Europe during the early 1960s with one-woman shows in Paris. Major exhibitions were later shown at New York's prestigious Hemingway Gallery and at the Mickelson Gallery in Washington. In 1985, she created the "Emerging Woman" symbol for the Women's Self Help Center of St. Louis, one of the pioneer organizations of its kind in the U.S. From this she created the Emerging Woman Award, with actress Farah Fawcett as the first recipient for her role in the television drama, "The Burning Bed." Matta D also created the original design, "Angel of Mercy," for the American Red Cross in memory of Clara Barton, its founder. In 1990, to benefit the Erie Art Museum, she and her late husband, sculptor John Silk Deckard, organized the first Erie Artists Exposition to be held in more than 100 years. For the 1974 Erie Summer Festival of the Arts, she created the sculpture, "Changing Faces," which is located at the Louis J. Tullio Convention Center. Matta D is currently creating "Lady of the Great Lakes," a 20-foot-tall sculpture which will be part of the Erie Bayfront Development.

HENRY CASILLI, Edinboro '56, has devoted most of his life to the arts, from creating and teaching to acting as a mentor for young artists. In 1968, he was named executive director of the Pa. Center for the Arts, the prototype for the Governor's School for the Arts. Leaving a teaching and art department chair position at Wilkes University in the 1970s, Casilli became a full-time clay craftsperson specializing in Raku, or pit-fired, techniques, for which he has won a number of awards across the East Coast. During the 1990s, he served in a number of capacities at the Harrisburg Arts Magnet School.

Dr. KATY HARRIGER, a 1979 alumna, became interested in politics as a teenager watching the Watergate hearings on television. She is currently an associate professor in the department of politics at Wake Forest University and director of the Teaching and Learning Center, as well as a member of the Working Group on Presidential Disability and the Twenty-Fifth Amendment. In 1992 she published the book, Independent Justice, which is the only scholarly publication that traces the history of independent counsels. Now recognized as an expert in that field, she has been interviewed on CNN and NPR, and often quoted in Time, The New York Times, USA Today and U.S. News and World Report.

RUSSELL MC COMMONS, one of the Edinboro art department's first instructors – teaching mechanical drawing at the Normal School in the early 1920s – received a certificate in public school art in 1925 and a bachelor of science in public school art from Edinboro in 1927. He earned a master's degree in education from the University of Pittsburgh in 1934 and pursued advanced studies at George Peabody College for Teachers, Penn State University and the Columbia University Teachers College. McCommons has taught at the University of Virginia, George Peabody College, Westmoreland County (Pa.) schools, and at what are now Edinboro, Clarion, Mansfield and Slippery Rock universities. During World War II, he served as an audio-visual specialist with the U.S. Navy. He has also been an electrical draftsman and an educational consultant in early learning and reading disabilities, dyslexia and speech problems. In 1991, McCommons was one of the 13 inaugural recipients of the Edinboro Alumni Art Achievement Award, and was the featured speaker at the 1996 Normal Hall Clock Tower Dedication Ceremony.

HERMAN TOMER, a 1971 Edinboro alumnus, is president of BRM/Gateway, the nation's largest independent disaster recovery center, and executive vice president of Landex, Inc., a land development firm. Previously, he was a vice president for information services with three Fortune 500 companies, and was also president of Gateway Archives and Gateway

Management Services. A former U.S. Navy intelligence officer serving in both Vietnam and the Pentagon, he is active in community service affairs and is the current board president of Big Brothers and Big Sisters of Greater Pittsburgh, as well as a board member of the Edinboro University Alumni Association. Tomer is also affiliated with the Advisory Council of Penn State's School of Business, the College of Business at the University of South Carolina, the AT&T Customer Council, the editorial board of Corporate Computing magazine, and the Association of Records Managers and Administrators.

Dr. HUMBERT "Smokey" SANTILLO attended Edinboro on track and football scholarships, graduating in 1970 with a degree in elementary education. He is a naturopathic physician and research scientist who has investigated the healing capacities of food and natural supplements for the past 20 years. After earning the degree, doctor of naturopathy and master herbalist from the American Medical Naturopathic Association, he wrote his first book, Natural Healing with Herbs, which is considered a classic in the field. Five other books followed, two of them best sellers, including his latest, Food Enzymes. Santillo is the inventor of JUICE PLUS, which removes water from whole fruits and vegetables, concentrates them into a powder in capsule form, and adds enzymes and fiber. He is a much sought-after speaker in this country and in Europe, where herbal medicines are popular.

Dr. JAMES KELLY graduated from Edinboro in 1970 and later earned a Ph.D. from the Florence Heller Graduate School of Policy, Planning and Administration in Social Welfare at Brandeis University. Since 1971 he has been a member of the National Association of Social Workers, the Council of Social Work Education, and the Gerontological Society of America. He is currently dean of the School of Health and Human Services at California State University at Los Angeles. A former student government president while attending Edinboro's old Warren campus, he was a 1971 delegate to the White House Conference on Aging, and more recently, the U.S. representative to the International Meeting of Experts on Gerontology, held by the United Nations Fund for Population Activities. Kelly has been awarded numerous grants for study and work in the fields of AIDS, gerontology and human services, and is the author of several books and professional publications.

Edinboro University has honored 78 distinguished alumni since the program began in 1976.

REVIVING OPHELIA AUTHOR TO SPEAK AT EDINBORO UNIVERSITY

Mary Pipher, Ph.D., the author of the number-one bestseller Reviving Ophelia, will be the keynote speaker at a conference at Edinboro University of Pennsylvania on Monday, October 19, 1998. The professional conference/workshop, "Protecting and Reconnecting our Families," is sponsored by the Ophelia Project and Edinboro University.

Conference organizer and Edinboro English professor Caroline Nobile said the conference will focus on the family, which is the subject of Pipher's 1996 book The Shelter of Each Other, Rebuilding our Families.

"Having the fortitude to look at a problem head on and tackle it is probably the main strength of this grass roots community organization, the Ophelia Project," said Nobile. "We don't claim to have all, or even any, of the answers to the problems our families and children encounter today, but we know that we must work together as a community to begin to effect positive changes in the way we live and relate to each other."

The Ophelia Project, a national organization founded by Susan Wellman in Erie in 1997, is dedicated to saving the selves of girls by protecting and reconnecting families through awareness, education and advocacy. Inspired by the works of Pipher, the group sees itself as part of a groundswell of national concern for what is happening to our sons and daughters.

The conference is expected to cover topics such as the adverse effects of culture and the media on families, other successful programs, networking among parents, and forming partnerships between teachers and parents.

Pipher, a clinical psychologist and therapist from Lincoln, Nebraska, writes about the effects of the culture on families and explores how the loss of community and the proliferation of media and technology have hurt the family.

ADMISSIONS COUNSELORS APPOINTED AT EDINBORO UNIVERSITY

Edinboro University of Pennsylvania has announced the appointment of two admissions counselors to the admissions office – Obadiah (Obie) Aguilar and Sheila Murphy.

Aguilar, a native of New York City, is a graduate of the University of Buffalo where he earned a degree in psychology. Prior to his appointment, Aguilar was an admissions counselor for two years at D'Youville College in Buffalo and worked as a tutor in a bilingual magnet school. He plans to pursue a master's degree in student personnel administration.

Murphy is a native of West Seneca, NY and a graduate of SUNY Geneseo where she obtained a bachelor's degree in special education. She earned a master's degree from Buffalo State University in student personnel administration. Murphy was an admissions counselor at Niagara University for nearly four years before accepting her current position at Edinboro.

Terry Carlin, Edinboro University's assistant vice president for admissions, said, "We are indeed fortunate to add these two very talented and energetic individuals to our staff. With their assistance, Edinboro University will continue to attract students from throughout Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio and the country."

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

WORLD WAR II TRAGEDY STILL AFFECTS LIFE OF EDINBORO GRADUATE

This is a story of two young men – friends and roommates at Edinboro University of Pennsylvania – who were touched by fate in very different ways. One, the son of a common laborer, was acclaimed an artistic genius as a college student. The other was born into one of America's most beloved and admired artistic families. One died tragically at an early age in service to his country, his promise and talent forever unfulfilled. The other has lived a full and rewarding life, excelling as both an artist and a teacher.

This is the story of Wilbur Sloan and Richard Rockwell. It has been more than 50 years since their lives diverged, their friendship shattered by World War II.

Sloan grew up in New Castle, Pa., the son of Leana and Wilbur Sloan, Sr., who worked for a chemical company. It was a burden on the family to put Sloan through college, who graduated from New Castle High School in 1939. He was exceptionally talented; Rockwell said he was the best painter at Edinboro. Sloan's ambition was to attend Columbia University and become an art professor.

He entered the Army on February 16, 1943, just one month after graduating from college. He was assigned to a special training program at the University of Missouri to learn German. The Army expected to need German-speaking soldiers for occupation forces in Germany after the war was over. Unfortunately for Sloan, the program was canceled, and he was assigned to the 66th Infantry Division for combat training.

His unit shipped across the Atlantic to England and in December was ordered to reinforce the Allied forces at the Battle of the Bulge. On Christmas Eve, 1944, Sloan and more than 2,000 other American troops were crossing the English Channel on the Belgian troopship Leopoldville.

At ten minutes to six, less than five miles from its destination at Cherbourg, France, a torpedo from the German submarine U-486 slammed into the Leopoldville. Despite the heroic efforts of the British destroyer HMS Brilliant, the transport sank in the icy waters of the Channel.

Approximately 800 were killed and 650 wounded. Among the fatalities was Sloan. His body was buried in the St. Mere Eglise Cemetery in Normandy. In July of 1948 his body was returned to the United States where he was laid to his final rest in Castle View Burial Park in New Castle.

Rockwell grew up in Kane, Pa., the son of Jarvis Waring Rockwell and the nephew of the great American illustrator Norman Rockwell. Both Jarvis and Norman were born in a house on the corner of Amsterdam Avenue and 113th Street in New York. Jarvis had been a Wall Street stockbroker who lost everything in the stock market crash of 1929. He turned his model ship building hobby into toy designing, moved his family to Kane, and went to work for the Holgate Company creating the Holgate Toy Company. He became the company's chief toy designer and created such classic Holgate toys as the Bingo Bed, Rocky Color Cone, and Lacing Shoe, which are still among the company's most popular toys. The current president of Holgate, coincidentally, is Richard Bly, a 1977 graduate of Edinboro University.

Richard Rockwell said his father's design of the Tyke Bike with its high-rise handlebars and banana seat received the Toy of the Year award for 1965.

Rockwell's mother was Caroline Cushman, who worked for the American Red Cross. Her father was a maritime lawyer in New York who spent a good part of his legal career litigating the Titanic disaster.

Rockwell enrolled at Edinboro and became Sloan's roommate in Reeder Hall for two years.

Like Sloan, Rockwell also enlisted in the armed forces in January of 1943. While at Edinboro he had passed the test for the Army Air Corps. He became a pilot for the 95th Troop Carrier Wing, flying C-47s. The last time he and Sloan saw each other was in Kansas City, Missouri, while Sloan was going to the University of Missouri.

Rockwell was the first of the two to go to Europe, arriving in England two weeks before the Normandy invasion. He flew in the second wave of the invasion of Europe and was involved in operations throughout the war including the ill-fated invasion of Holland. His plane dropped paratroopers, pulled gliders and carried supplies. Once, while carrying a very heavy mobile hospital unit, his plane nearly didn't get off the ground.

While in Europe he received a letter from his first wife, Ellen, who graduated from Edinboro in 1942, telling him Sloan had been killed. At that time, Rockwell assumed he had died in action.

Sometime later, Rockwell had a dream which he still remembers clearly. "I dreamed I saw Wilbur standing on a street corner in Paris. I remember being surprised at seeing him there and I went up to him and said, 'I'm so relieved to see you. I thought you were dead.'"

It would be fifty years later before Rockwell would know the entire story behind Sloan's tragic death.

At the end of the war he was discharged at Ft. Wayne, Indiana. There he was introduced to Braniff Airlines which wanted to hire him as a pilot. Rockwell was interested but something nagged at him – his longing to fulfill his artistic ambitions. "I asked myself, 'Are you going to be an artist or a pilot.'"

It was not a hard decision to make. He paid a visit to "Uncle Norman" in Vermont for advice. "I went to God and God spoke," recalled Rockwell. "He said, 'Go to the Pratt Institute.'" Located in Brooklyn, the Pratt Institute was considered to be one the top art schools in the country. He attended Pratt for two years and when he left in 1948, got a job with Timely Comics, which later became Marvel Comics. Timely's offices were located in the Empire State Building.

In 1952 he went to work for the legendary Milton Caniff, creator of the Terry and the Pirates and Steve Canyon comic strips. Rockwell illustrated Steve Canyon for the next 35 years until the strip ended in 1988.

In addition to practicing art, he also has taught it – at New York University, Parsons School of Design and the Fashion Institute of Technology, SUNY, where he teaches the art of the comic book and the rapid drawing technique know as reportage.

Rockwell had the good fortune of beginning a second career in the early 1980s when The Peekskill Star asked him to be a courtroom artist for the trial of the Weathermen (Brinks armored car robbery) in Goshen, New York. Since then he has covered dozens of cases including the World Trade Center bombing. He is best known now as a courtroom artist for Fox 5 WNYW. He also worked for other network stations, newspapers and CNN.

The History Channel commissioned Rockwell to create art for programs on assassinations, Japanese war crimes, and the Iran hostage crisis. He is also producing 150 drawings for Henry Steel Comanger's book on the 20th century.

It was through his work as a courtroom artist that Rockwell finally learned the fate of his friend Wilbur Sloan. He became friends with Allan Andrade, a New York City police officer who is now retired. Andrade told Rockwell he had written the manuscript for a book on the sinking of the ship, "Leopoldville: Freedom is not Free." Rockwell asked to see the book and offered to provide illustrations for it. While reading through the manuscript Rockwell was astonished to see the name of his roommate. At long last he knew what happened to him.

Upon learning of the circumstances of his death, Rockwell felt the need to contact someone from Sloan's family. Andrade wrote to the New Castle News asking it to locate a member of the family. The newspaper found Eleanor Coates, Sloan's only living sibling, still residing in New Castle. Coates was only 13 when her family was notified of his death.

Rockwell and Coates spoke by telephone and met for the first time when both attended Edinboro University's Alumni Reunion Weekend in June.

Although Wilbur Sloan was just 23 when he died, by looking at the life of his friend Richard Rockwell, we can see what might have been – what should have been – and share in the loss felt by his family and friends from a Christmas eve tragedy long, long ago.

I. Name of Scholarship/Award:

Clarence C. and Cora Crawford Scholarship

II. Description of Scholarship/Award:

The Clarence C. and Cora Crawford Scholarship is valued at $1500 annually. It is made available through contributions made to Edinboro University by Mr. D. Neal Manross in memory of Dr. and Mrs. Crawford.

Dr. and Mrs. Crawford originally came to Edinboro State Normal School in the Fall of 1918. He was the Vice-Principal and an instructor of math. He became the first President of Edinboro State Teachers College in September, 1929. He resigned as President in 1934 due to failing health, but continued to teach. He retired in 1940 and they continued to live in Edinboro. Dr. Crawford was accepted by faculty and students as a scholar and efficient administrator. He was highly respected in the community and appreciated as a friend. He helped many students financially so they could attend school. Years later, Alumni contributed to a fund to provide the Crawfords with a pension—most of their retirement fund had been used helping others. Dr. Crawford died in 1942 and Mrs. Crawford died less than a year later.
