Today's Game

Welcome to the final regular season game of 2008. It doesn't seem that long ago that the Fighting Scots were opening the campaign on a hot Saturday afternoon at West Liberty State. It has been a year to remember, with the Fighting Scots seeking to tie the school record for wins with a ninth victory today.

The hope is that a potential tenth win could be in the offing. That would mean a postseason berth. The NCAA will announce the Division II playoff field on Sunday afternoon on ESPN News.

Edinboro is definitely on the bubble for a playoff berth. For starters, the Scots must win today's game against Millersville. Then it gets very interesting, as games such as American International vs. Southern Connecticut State, Seton Hill vs. West Liberty and even Shaw vs. Elizabeth City State impacts the Scots.

Edinboro's playoff hopes were dealt a serious blow when West Chester upset Bloomsburg last week. A loss would have likely left the Golden Rams on the outside looking in at the playoff picture. Instead, West Chester now meets California(Pa.) in the PSAC Championship Game.

This has been a great season whether a playoff bid is forthcoming or not. There's the big win at West Liberty to open the year, the 24-17 triumph over Indiana(Pa.), and unfortunately, the losses to California(Pa.) and Mercyhurst by a total of seven points.

We'd like to leave you with one more memory. That's in regards to the 13 seniors who are likely making their final appearance at Sox Harrison Stadium. They have enjoyed a great deal of success both on the field and off. For more on our seniors, see page 60.

The Coaches

Scott Browning (Ohio State '81) took over as Edinboro's 13th head coach on January 5, 2006. He was certainly no stranger to Fighting Scot football, however, serving as an assistant coach for the previous twenty years. While at Edinboro he has coached the offensive linemen, defensive backs and running backs, along with serving as the offensive coordinator. Browning became the first head coach at Edinboro to debut with a win since Bill McDonald in 1969 when the Fighting Scots opened the 2006 season with a

28-14 win at West Chester. He went on to lead Edinboro to a 6-5 finish, the most wins ever by a first-year coach. A year ago he led the Fighting Scots to a 7-4 record. With 13 wins after two seasons, Browning tied Bill McDonald and Tom Hollman for most wins in their first two seasons. He now owns a 21-11 mark. (For more on Scott Browning, see pages 6-7.)

Greg Colby (Illinois '75) is in his first year in charge of the Millersville program. Colby came to Millersville after spending six years as the defensive coordinator at Northwestern University. During his time there, the Wildcats posted three consecutive six-win seasons for the first time in 70 years and four out of five six-win seasons for the first time since 1905. Northwestern appeared in the Motor City Bowl in 2003 and the Vitalis Sun Bowl in 2005. Colby has coached for 34 years, including 25 years as a collegiate coach and 10 years as a defensive coordinator at the NCAA Division I level. He has been on staff for two Big Ten Championships and 12 collegiate bowl games. He has also served as an assistant coach at Kent State, Michigan State and his alma mater, Illinois

The Edinboro-Millersville Series

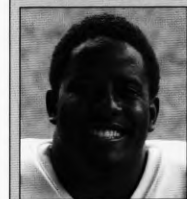

Millersville leads 5-3

This marks the first meeting between Edinboro and Millersville since the Marauders captured a 20-10 decision over the Fighting Scots in 1999 at Sox Harrison Stadium. Millersville has won the last two meetings.

Scouting Millersville

Millersville opened the season with six straight losses, three to teams currently nationally ranked, before handing first-year head coach Greg Colby his first career win, 48-6 over Cheyney. The Marauders have since gone on to lose three straight games for a 1-9 ledger ... Colby earned his coaching reputation as a defensive coach, but it has been a tough year for the former Northwestern defensive coordinator. His defense has 30-or-more points seven times and ranks 14th in scoring defense (38.3 ppg.) and 16th in total defense (494.7 ypg.) ... the Millersville offense has gained steam of late, with 400-or-more yards in three of the last four games.

Players to Watch

Cardoza Jacks, TB -- the 5'9", 200 lb. sophomore has rushed for 100 yards in the last four games, including 101 yards this past week vs. East Stroudsburg. Jacks gained 242 yards a year ago, and now has 699 yards with 6 TDs. He ranks ninth in the league in rushing.

Bill Shirk, QB -- since taking over at quarterback he has thrown for 200 yards in five of seven games.

That includes 290 yards against East Stroudsburg, ten shy of his career high.

Jamal Smith, WR -- a year ago he was the PSAC East Rookie of the Year as a quarterback, passing for 804 yards and rushing for 633 yards. After beginning the year at quarterback he moved to wide receiver and has caught 26 passes for 420 yards.

Andy Tischbein, WR -- the senior has caught seven TD passes in the last four games, and had a career-high 9 catches for 112 yards and a TD vs. East Stroudsburg. Overall, he has 48 catches for 711 yards and 8 TDs.

The Millersville Game

Last Week's Gameboosters

Edinboro 35, Clarion 10

Jeremy Burr jumpstarted the Boro with three runs and Trevor Harris threw for three touchdowns. Burr's 16-yard run on a fake field goal led to a touchdown with 12 seconds left in the half, giving Edinboro a 14-3 lead at intermission. He took the second half kickoff and returned it 49 yards. Edinboro scored two plays later for a 21-3 lead. Finally, Burr's 37-yard run keyed Edinboro's 90-yard drive on the next series. Harris threw a nine-yard touchdown pass to Gary Nolen, and one-yarders to Denayne Dixon and Ryan Rybicki. The Edinboro defense limited Clarion to 89 yards rushing and 232 total yards.

East Stroudsburg 45, Millersville 18

Visiting East Stroudsburg pulled away from the Marauders to spoil Millersville's Homecoming festivities. The Warriors piled up 572 yards in offense and forced four Millersville turnovers. Cardoza Jacks scored on a two-yard run, part of a 101-yard effort. Andy Tischbein had 9 catches for 112 yards, including a 27-yard TD pass from Bill Shirk. John Banzhof booted a 46-yard field goal.

Looking Ahead to 2009

As has been our tradition, here's a look at the tentative 2009 football schedule. Times are all TBA. Make note also that the season opener against West Liberty State is scheduled for a Thursday night. Home games are in caps.

24-21 a Score That Will Haunt the Scots

When Edinboro head coach Scott Browning looks back at the 2008 season, he may cringe when you mention the score 24-21. For starters, that is the score that Mercyhurst beat the Fighting Scots by. In addition, that is the score that West Chester defeated Bloomsburg by this past week. That win for the Golden Rams could ultimately knock Edinboro out of the playoff chase.

Welcome Back Ron

Former Fighting Scot Ron Rankin returns to Edinboro today as an assistant coach for Millersville. He serves as the defensive line coach. Rankin has been on the Marauders' staff for ten years serving in several capacities, including six seasons as defensive coordinator. Rankin began his coaching career at Edinboro in the mid 80's. After stops at Allegheny, Defiance and Gannon, he moved on to South Dakota as an assistant coach. He would serve as the head coach of the Coyotes in 1997 and '98 before joining the Millersville staff.

Battles Paces Rejuvenated Ground Game

Michael Battles entered the Clarion game with 134 yards rushing on 45 carries. The redshirt freshman almost matched that against the Golden Eagles with a career-high 113 yards on 15 carries. Edinboro almost had a pair of 100-yard rushers for the second straight week. Ulysee Davis gained 99 yards on 20 carries as Edinboro ran for a season-high 290 yards. In the loss to Mercyhurst, Davis accounted for 107 yards and Houston Brown 106, all part of a 255-yard effort that was the season high until the Clarion game. Brown, who entered the Clarion game as the team's leading rusher, did not play on offense against the Golden Eagles. Instead, he split time at cornerback with Jesse Williams.

Burr Boosts Offense with His Legs

Jeremy Burr caught one pass for four yards at Clarion. Yet the senior wide receiver had three plays that jumpstarted the offense. With Edinboro lineup up for a field goal in the final minute of the half and clinging to a 7-3 lead, Burr, the holder, executed a perfect fake. He sprinted around the right side for 16 yards. Two plays later Edinboro scored for a 14-3 lead. Burr took the second half and returned it 49 yards to the Clarion 46. The Scots need two plays to score for a 21-3 lead. Finally, after a three-and-out for Clarion, Burr took a handoff on a reverse and went 37 yards on the first play. It was the start of a 90-yard scoring drive that boosted the lead to 28-3.

Welcome to Edinboro University

Dear Edinboro Friends and Fans of the Fighting Scots:

What an exciting time to be on our campus and a part of Edinboro University of Pennsylvania! In athletics, our regional rivals – Gannon University and Mercyhurst College – are now members of the PSAC-West. As a result, we're all more than eager to compete against our City of Erie neighbours! And in the spring, for the first time we'll field our varsity women's lacrosse team. But there's even more happening at Edinboro University. I invite you to take a look around and you'll see the progress of the past year, and the ongoing new construction projects in many areas on campus.

Sox Harrison Stadium's one million dollar renovation of a year ago – the artificial turf, lighting and new scoreboard – have been widely embraced throughout the region, making our stadium one of northwestern Pennsylvania's premier athletic field venues.

Directly across Scotland Road from the stadium, our new multipurpose sports and recreation dome will soon be ready for business, meaning our varsity and intramural athletic teams will share one of the area's finest (and certainly the largest!) indoor practice facilities. Imagine training indoors on an NCAA regulation track or field while the wind howls and the snow flies in sub-freezing temperatures outside. But we'll also use the dome for much more than athletics. In fact, any major indoor event such as commencement and perhaps other community activities, for example, antique car shows, can and will be held there.

Across Scot Road to the south, the first phase of our $115 million student housing project is on track for January occupancy, bringing the finest in student living amenities to northwestern Pennsylvania. Continuing to head south on Scotland Road, the recent $20 million renovation and expansion of the Frank G. Pogue Student Center has quickly become a shining centerpiece and hub of campus activities.

Heading west on Scot Road, you might have noticed the construction just west of the beautiful and serene five-acre Mallory Lake. Within the year, our new Human Services Building will be ready for occupancy there, housing our Nursing programme and our Speech, Language and Hearing Department.

Continuing west along Normal Street, the new $5 million Dr. William P. Alexander Music Center, our first campus structure built specifically to meet the Music Department's needs, stands next to Academy Hall, the first campus building constructed in 1857 and now listed on the National Register of Historic Places. One of the oldest former Normal School buildings in the nation still used for academic purposes, Academy Hall recently underwent a $5 million renovation and now houses our Undergraduate Admissions Office. Please stop by on this or your next campus visit.

And if all that isn't enough, a $23 million construction project will soon be launched on exterior and interior expansion and renovation of Cooper Hall, which houses Edinboro's many science programmes.

So, you can see why we're so excited! Whether in the classrooms, laboratories, libraries or athletic venues, Edinboro University goes far beyond the norm in creating a 21st century higher education experience for the complete college student.

Whether athletics or academics or more than 100 extracurricular activities, whether undergrad or graduate programmes, great things are happening here! And they're going to get even better! I encourage you to be part of our winning team.

Enjoy your visit, and please return often.

Go Fighting Scots!

Head Coach

Scott Browning

3rd Year
Ohio State '81

Scott Browning knows a thing or two about the Edinboro football tradition. With twenty years under his belt as an assistant coach, he was all too familiar with the glory days of Edinboro football. So it didn't take him long to restore some lost traditions when he took over as the 13th head football coach of the Fighting Scots on January 5, 2006.

Most prevalent was the return to the "Boro", the common name the football team was referred to during the 1980's and '90's, some of the most successful periods in Edinboro football history.

One thing Browning didn't mess with was the tradition of winning. In fact, in his first two seasons Browning has tied the record for most wins by a coach with 13 victories. Only Bill McDonald, who guided the 1969 and 1970 teams to 13 wins, and Tom Hollman, who also totaled 13 wins in 1988 and '89, can match Browning's start.

His first edition finished with a 6-5 record, the most wins ever under a first-year coach. But it didn't end just on the football field. The Fighting Scots excelled in the classroom, including a cumulative team GPA of over 2.8 for the spring semester.

Browning became the first coach at Edinboro since Sox Harrison to win his first two games as head coach. That happened in 1926, the first year of football at the Boro. Thanks to a 28-14 win at West Chester, he became the first coach since Bill McDonald in 1969 to win his first game as head coach.

That victory, on the road at West Chester between a pair of 2005 NCAA playoff teams, also displayed Browning's propensity as a riverboat gambler. The Fighting Scots went for it on fourth down four times, and made it three times.

A year ago the Fighting Scots finished with a 7-4 record while facing one of the most difficult schedules in recent memory. Edinboro faced four nationally-ranked teams, upsetting 25th-ranked Bloomsburg thanks to a memorable comeback, 42-41, while losing to eighth-ranked California (Pa.), 17th-ranked West Chester and 24th-ranked IUP. In fact, Edinboro's four losses came to teams which combined for a 40-9.

The Fighting Scots also continued the strong academic trend, with 15 players earning PSAC Scholar-Athlete honors.

"I am very pleased to announce the promotion of Scott Browning to the position of head football coach at Edinboro University," stated then-President Dr. Frank G. Pogue at the time.

"Scott has been a member of the Edinboro coaching staff for 20 years. He has demonstrated his ability to not only coach athletes on the playing field, but also to lead young men by the example of his character and by his dedication to them as students and as individuals. He will join our other highly successful coaches at Edinboro University."

After serving as the offensive line coach and recruiting coordinator in Lou Tepper's first season, Browning took over as the offensive coordinator in 2001.

He had previously served as the offensive coordinator for five seasons under Tom Hollman. In all, Browning had served as Edinboro's offensive line coach the previous 12 years.

Browning joined the Edinboro program in 1986 as the running backs coach under Steve Szabo. After two seasons on the offensive side of the ball, the graduate of The Ohio State University moved to the defensive side, serving as the defensive backfield coach under Hollman. In 1994 he moved back to offense as the offensive line coach. He had remained in charge of the line-men since that time, coaching such All-Americans as Jeremy O'Day, Joe Valvoda and Greg Bzorek. The last two years Browning's offensive line led the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference in fewest sacks allowed.

When Tepper came on board in 2000, Browning was appointed the who have the ability to be successful both in the classroom and on the football field. It is my sincere belief that when they take the field, they must wear the Edinboro jersey with pride, and when they are in the community, that they have earned the respect that comes with being a Fighting Scot."

Browning has served on the staffs at three NCAA Division I institutions. Prior to joining the Fighting Scot staff, he coached receivers and running backs at Ohio State for two years while serving as a graduate assistant. That group included Keith Byars. The Buckeyes went to the Rose Bowl in 1984, dropping a 20-17 decision to USC to finish with a 9-3 record. The following year Ohio State went bowling again, this time defeating Brigham Young, 10-7, in the Citrus Bowl, to once again finish at 9-3.

Browning served as a graduate assistant coach at New Mexico State in 1982, and the following year instructed the receivers at Idaho State. Idaho State reached the NCAA Division I-AA Playoffs before suffering a 27-20 defeat to Nevada.

A 1981 graduate of The Ohio State University with a bachelor's degree in Education, Browning began his coaching career as an assistant coach at Worthington High School and Dayton-Fairview High Schools in Ohio from 1979-81. Before transferring to Ohio State he attended Capital University where he played football for one season. Browning later earned a master's degree in Education Administration from New Mexico State in 1983.

Browning, 49 and a native of Loudonville, Ohio, and his wife, Lynn, reside in Edinboro and have two children, Andrew (14) and Katelyn (10). His brother Mitch has also enjoyed a successful career as a football coach. After several noteworthy seasons as the offensive coordinator at the University of Minnesota, he was hired this past winter as the offensive coordinator at Syracuse University.

recruiting coordinator in addition to his duties with the offensive line. A year later he was named the offensive coordinator, and the Fighting Scot offense made great strides over the last five years. Browning emphasized a balanced attack which showcased the combination of a strong ground game and dangerous aerial attack. Over his last three seasons Edinboro averaged 29.9 ppg. in 2003, 33.2 ppg. in '04, and 31.4 ppg. in '05.

All told, Browning has been an assistant coach on all seven of Edinboro's NCAA playoff teams, along with five of the nine PSAC champion squads. He took over a team which has been to the NCAA Division II Playoffs two of the last three years, and during that period has posted a 26-8 record. The 26 wins were the most in a three-year period in Edinboro history.

"It goes without saying that I am extremely excited to have this opportunity," noted an elated Browning. "I was proud to be a part of the teams in the 1990's that ranked among the best in Division II, and over the last few years we have once again elevated the program to one of the best in the country. The University and the community of Edinboro mean a great deal to me. Over the years we have tried to become an integral part of this community. I am thrilled that I can continue that association while taking over a group of players that represent the ideals I believe in.

"I'm sure you will see some changes in the future, but I can tell you this, the ideals remain in place for this program, and always have in the time I've been here. Without question we want to be successful on the field, and that means challenging for the PSAC West title. But we won't compromise integrity. We will continue to bring in young men

Bradford orchestrated the top defense in the country three years ago, as Edinboro paced Division II in scoring defense (9.3 ppg.), total defense (211.2 ypg.), and rushing defense (53.7 ypg.). In addition, Edinboro was third in pass efficiency defense and turnover margin. The Fighting Scots recorded three shutouts, the most since the 1975 team also shut out three opponents. A total of seven opponents were held to seven points or less. He coached four all-conference performers a year ago.

Two years ago his defensive unit recorded two more shutouts while leading the PSAC in rushing defense (70.6 ypg.), good for third in the country.

A year ago Bradford guided a young defense that ended up having five players earn All-PSAC honors.

Under Bradford's tutelage, Edinboro has had thirteen first team All-PSAC West defensive linemen. In fact, he has been responsible for three of the last four PSAC West Defensive Players of the Year, with Ben Stroup earning the honor in 2006, Chris Amico the 2005 recipient, and Seth Fragale the winner in 2004.

Sox Harrison Stadium

Sox Harrison Stadium serves as the home of the Fighting Scots. Dedicated in 1965, the stadium honors the memory of B. Regis "Sox" Harrison, the head football and basketball coach at Edinboro University for 34 years. Sox Harrison was the key figure in the building of Edinboro's athletic program, unselfishly devoting 34 years of service to the University as an athletic director, coach and physical education instructor. Appropriately, he was the first member inducted into the Edinboro Athletic Hall of Fame in 1982.

Harrison coached the Fighting Scot football team from its inception in 1926 to 1938, the returned to guide the gridders in 1941 and '42. In addition, he coached the men's basketball team for 23 seasons, from 1928-53, winning 175 games.

The stadium received a facelift last summer, giving it a spanking new look. Most noticeable is the installation of an artificial surface, Sportex, to replace the natural grass. And it is now illuminated, with lights being installed for the first time. Finally, a new scoreboard was installed.

Sox Harrison Stadium seats 6,000 people in its two grandstands, along with plenty of standing room. In addition to press boxes on both sides of the stadium, the facility has locker rooms, a training room and complete amenities for fans.

The stadium has undergone several renovations, including a new sound system and improved handicapped access areas in 1999. In 1997, a new grandstand was constructed on the visitor's side of the field, adding 2,500 permanent seats, along with a press box, locker rooms and a training room.

In addition to the football field, the facility contains complete track facilities.

THE AGONY AND THE ECSTASY

There is a "Peanuts" comic strip where Linus comes running out of the house to tell Charlie Brown about the amazing finish of a football game he just watched. Linus goes into great detail about how one team was down and won the game on a miracle play, and he's practically out of breath with exhilaration as he finishes his tale, to which Charlie Brown responds in a way that proves the genius of Charles Schulz: "How did the other team feel?"

For every great moment in the history of your favorite college football team, there are probably one or two that linger in your mind as instruments of torment. Division III Trinity College of Texas was the talk of America with last season's 15-lateral play to beat Millsaps. For Trinity: ecstasy. For Millsaps: well, one can guess they have a little less fun watching that play than most of us.

That's the beauty of college football though. Its ability to bring us joy makes living through some of the tough games worth it. But how those tough defeats can stick with you!

I went to grad school at Bowling Green, and I've enjoyed watching the Falcons win some bowl games and beat some BCS teams, but I will probably never get over the game in 1994 when, with a bowl game berth on the line, and BG having lost only one game all year, Central Michigan's inordinately bulky punter executed a fake punt that had the whole stadium watching in shock as he rumbled for what seemed like an eternity into the end zone. In those days, the MAC had one shot at a bowl and BG's died when the punter collapsed past the goal line for six points. I can still see it now.

So this issue of TDI celebrates the pain that college football can bring as well as the joy. And asks you to look back in your mind's eye. What are the plays that drive you mad still? And what are the ones you could relive again and again with a smile?

TDI Game Ball Goes To: Penn State University Nittany Lions

BY STEPHANIE PLOTINO

their Facebook-style home pages on the Uplifting Athletes Web site to reach out to their fans and request donations.

"This is a way to give back to the community," says Brett Brackett, a sophomore wide receiver and president of the organization, who has reached his goal of $5,000 raised this year. "It's just an opportunity to do something good."

Kidney cancer is diagnosed in approximately 30,000 Americans each year and is therefore relatively rare compared to other forms of the disease – breast cancer affects approximately seven times more people annually.

As a result, "kidney cancer is an underserved disease," Brackett says.

But the PSU football team is using Lift for Life to change that.

For former Penn State University wide receiver Scott Shirley, his father's diagnosis of the disease in 2003, coupled with the news that a few of his teammates had family members also struggling with kidney cancer, inspired him to create Lift for Life.

Now the team holds the fundraiser every summer, and it has achieved quite a following.

"At first [Lift for Life] was something I just did because the opportunity was there," says Jordan Norwood, a senior wide receiver. "Personally I didn't know a lot about Lift for Life or kidney cancer in general. But being able to put a face or a name to kidney cancer is what personally makes me continue to do this and write to [the patients] and have a personal relationship with these families."

This year 96 Nittany Lions – the team's greatest participation yet – split into 24 teams of four players each. Beginning at 2 p.m., every 15 minutes a new group started its hour-long lifting challenge. The competition lasted until 7:30 p.m. and was witnessed by a record number of fans.

"This year was unbelievable," Brackett says. "There were a lot of fans there for a long period of time. People came out to support the team through the cause that we support. I can't put a number on it, but this was our best year."

Part of that may be because the team has made the event more and more fan-friendly every year.

"You can come and watch your favorite players. There is a silent auction that goes on. We try to add different things each year to become more interactive with the fans. After they lift, the players go outside and sign autographs for the fans," Brackett says.

In all, the team raised more than $77,000 this fiscal year to bring its six-year total over the $300,000 mark. And they're still going. Like the Nittany Lions' offense, there's just no stopping 'em.

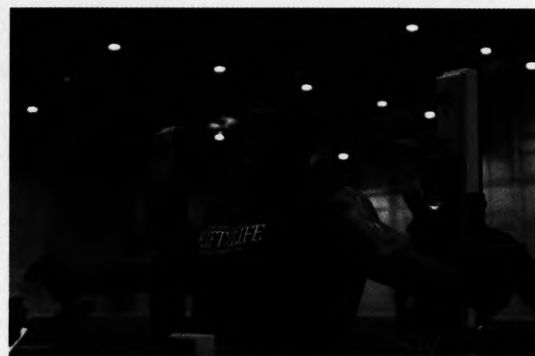

Ever heard of kidney cancer?

Many people haven't. But the Penn State University football team and its fans sure have, and they've underscored their awareness about 300,000 times.

The Nittany Lions have raised nearly a third of a million dollars over the last six years, all of which has gone to kidney cancer research. And they've done it all through their Lift for Life program.

The program, which is sponsored by Penn State University Uplifting Athletes – a non-profit organization that works to raise money and awareness for diseases that afflict fewer than 200,000 people each year – invites Nittany Lions football fans to campus to watch the players compete in an 11-station, weight-lifting obstacle course every summer. The players test their mental and physical strength in events such as the bench press and the giant tire flip.

All fans who attend are urged to donate a suggested minimum dollar amount at the door. Also, in the time leading up to the event, the players use

Honored with National Service Award

For the second time in three years, a group of Defiance College (OH) student-athletes has earned a Community Service Award from the National Association of Division III Athletic Administrators and Jostens. Eighteen institutions and/or conferences across the country are being recognized for the impressive community service projects performed by their student-athletes during the 2006-07 academic year.

Defiance College earned an Award of Merit for a project in which eight Defiance football players accompanied by head coach Robert Taylor spent several days in hurricane-ravaged New Orleans conducting restoration work on homes and helping at a Toys for Tots event.

Student-athletes participating were Josh Staggs, Kyle Fuller, Mike Haydon, John Lancaster, Andrew Mickey, Robert Miller, Josh Roe and Eric Stricklin. The project was nominated for the award by DC athletic director Dr. Richard Kaiser. Funding for the project was provided by Defiance's McMaster School for Advancing Humanity.

"This was a life-changing event for these young men and Coach Taylor," said Kaiser. "They took it upon themselves to drive 2,400 miles round-trip to try to help out somebody in need. This is the second time in three years that Defiance has been honored by Jostens for an outstanding student-athlete service project."

Craig Rutter, assistant athletic director for student-athlete engagement, noted that the New Orleans project conducted by members of the football team is indicative of the efforts put forth by all of Defiance's student-athletes. During the 2006-07 academic year, student-athletes at DC contributed more than 2,000 hours of service in the Defiance area and around the country.

"We're changing attitudes, showing people that you can make a difference one person at a time," said Rutter.

Noting that many service trips have been made to the New Orleans and Biloxi areas by Defiance College and community groups in recent years, Rutter stressed, "It's about the relationships you build with the people you are serving. People know you care when you come back, when you become a familiar face."

The awards program is co-sponsored by the NADIII and Jostens and is intended to recognize the many contributions Division III student-athletes regularly make to their campuses and local communities. Awards were presented at the NCAA Convention held recently in Nashville. Defiance College was the only Ohio school to receive recognition.

The NADIII is an association comprised of athletics administrators from the nearly 450 institutions and 40 conferences competing at the NCAA Division III level. A primary purpose of the NADIII is to encourage the continued development of athletics programs focused on the student-athlete and based on sound educational philosophy.

Minneapolis-based Jostens is a leading provider of products, programs and services that help people celebrate important moments, recognize achievements and build affiliation. The company's products include yearbooks, class rings, graduation products, school photography, employee and achievement awards, and products for athletics departments and their fans. Jostens is the exclusive sponsor of the NADIII.

The Heisman Trophy Breakdown... Winners by Position

PRESENTED BY

When University of Chicago running back Jay Berwanger won the first Heisman Trophy in 1935 he started a trend that continues to this day. Out of the 73 college football players who have won the coveted Heisman Trophy, 41 of them have been running backs, by far the most of any position. Of those 41 running backs, three players have been fullbacks, most recently Oklahoma's Steve Owens in 1969. Only one defensive player, Michigan cornerback Charles Woodson in 1997, has won the award. Quarterbacks have the second-most amount of Heisman wins at 27 and last year's winner, Florida's versatile QB Tim Tebow, became the first sophomore ever to win the award. In 1987, Notre Dame's Tim Brown became the first of only two wide receivers to grab the Trophy (Michigan's Desmond Howard in 1991 is the other). Two ends have won the award, the last being Notre Dame's Leon Hart in 1949. A look at the recipients by position...

USC's Rod Sherman caught the game-winning touchdown against Ara Parseghian's (opposite) Notre Dame Fighting Irish in a 1964 contest that spoiled Notre Dame's perfect season.

THE SPOILERS & THE SPOILED

BY MICHAEL BRADLEY

Ara Parseghian was in a full froth. His first team, Notre Dame's 1964 edition, led Southern California at the half, 17-0, but he wanted more. He wanted to close the deal that would bring the Fighting Irish back from nearly a decade of mediocrity. All he needed was another half of great football. Just 30 more minutes.

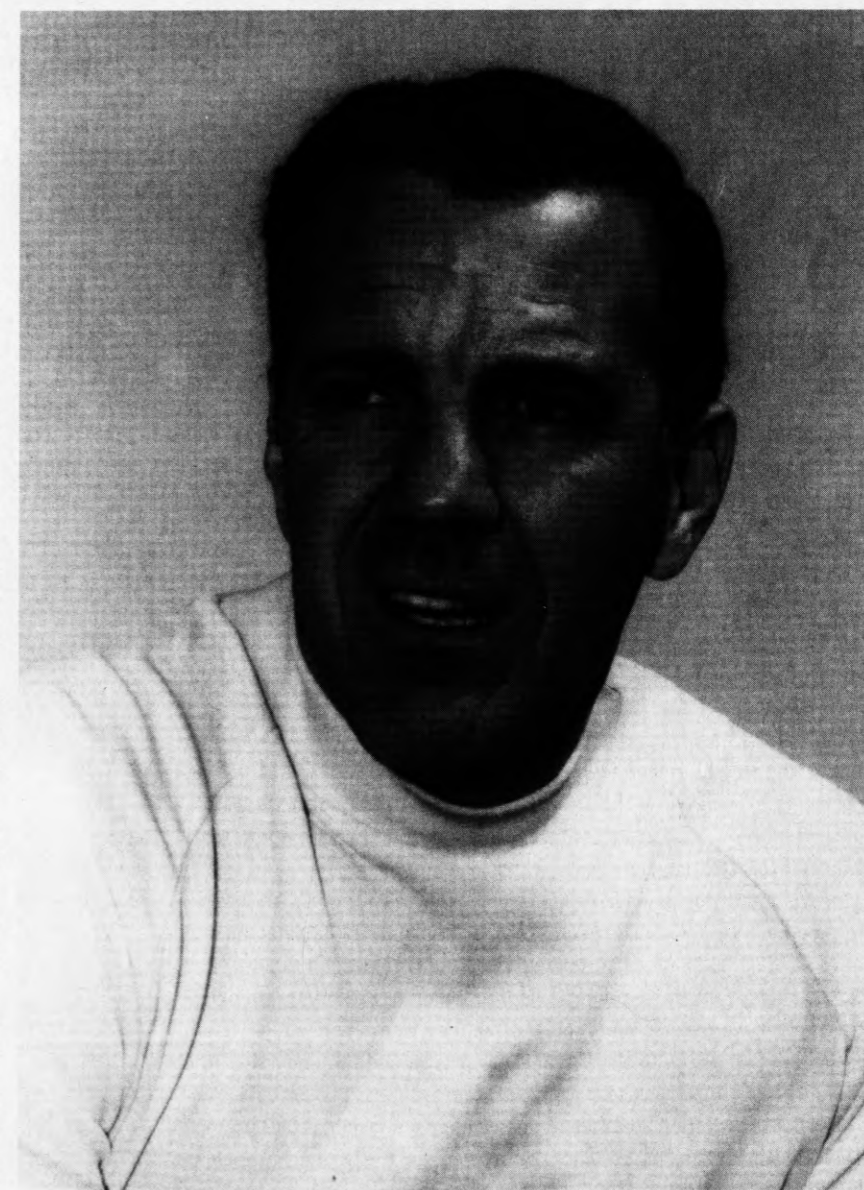

"Thirty minutes stands between us and the greatest sports comeback in history," he said. "Thirty minutes! You've got to go out there and play this second half, boys — a 60-minute football team."

Suitably inspired, the undefeated, 9-0 and top-ranked Irish, who had outscored opponents to that point by an average of 30-6, went back onto the L.A. Coliseum field and collapsed. USC, which had robbed the Irish of undefeated seasons in 1931 and '38, came to life in the second half, even though the 6-3 Trojans were heavy underdogs. With 1:33 remaining, Craig Fertig hit running back Rod Sherman with a 12-yard pass at the ND three, and Sherman dashed into the end zone to give 'SC a 20-17 triumph and spoil the Irish perfection.

Forty-four years later, few remember the particulars of the game or how a quartet of second-half penalties played a role in the upset win — at least according to Parseghian. They just know the Trojans won. In 2005, the then-81-year old Hall of Fame coach recalled the game vividly and remained outraged at the circumstances he believed decided the contest.

"In that particular game, the national championship was ours to win, but four calls influenced the outcome," he said.

Parseghian's bitter memories are classic reactions from coaches, players and fans who see brilliant regular seasons spoiled by late upsets. College football history is littered with the broken dreams of undefeated teams that couldn't finish the job. Months of perfection are erased in one afternoon, and the echoes of the disappointment can a similar fate — by the same score, no less — against Miami. The top-rated Irish couldn't stop the quicker, seventh-ranked Hurricanes and saw their 11-0 mark spoiled on the Saturday after Thanksgiving.

While USC has a long history of ups and downs with Notre Dame, it is also well-acquainted with triumph and tragedy against cross-town rival UCLA. One of the first such incidents occurred in 1952, when the fourth-ranked, 8-0 Trojans overcame third-ranked and 8-0 UCLA, 14-12. The happiness was fleeting, since ND spoiled the perfect season a week later with a 9-0 triumph.

In 1959, UCLA was a mere 3-3-1 when it met 8-0 USC in the Coliseum, but the underdog Bruins whipped the fourth-ranked Trojans, 10-3. 'SC standout O.J. Simpson, who would be shackled by Notre Dame in '68, enjoyed plenty of running room in 1967 against the Bruins. In fact, his twisting, winding 64-yard fourth-quarter run was the difference in a 21-20 Trojan win that knocked the top-ranked and undefeated [7-0-1] Bruins from the national title chase. In 1976, USC did it again, beating 9-0-1 UCLA, 24-14, dislodging the Bruins from the second spot in the rankings.

It would be 22 years until UCLA would experience such despair again.

often be heard decades later. Like Notre Dame, though, the spoiled can also spoil. ND has ruined other programs' magical runs and left opponents with the same desperate memories as Parseghian has from 1964.

And, yes, ND returned the favor to the Trojans. Four years later, undefeated, top-ranked and defending national champion USC hosted the twice-beaten Irish in what was supposed to be a coronation. But the Irish held Heisman Trophy winner O.J. Simpson to 57 yards rushing and earned a 21-21 tie that knocked the Trojans from the top of the rankings. Twenty years later, in a matchup of the two top-rated teams in the nation, number one Notre Dame completed a perfect regular season with a 27-10 triumph.

The Irish and Trojans have delighted in ruining each other's perfection, but they have made other teams miserable, too. In 1993, undefeated and top-ranked Florida State came to South Bend to face second-rated — and also pristine — ND. The Seminoles, led by eventual Heisman-winning QB Charlie Ward, were expected to roll, but the Irish won a taut, 31-24 victory that wasn't decided until Notre Dame thwarted a late FSU incursion. The excitement of the win was short-lived, however, since seven days later Boston College invaded South Bend and claimed a shocking 41-39 triumph behind swashbuckling quarterback Glenn Foley and the last-second kicking heroics of David Gordon.

A year after dumping 'SC in the 1988 1-vs.-2 battle, Notre Dame suffered

On the 1998 season's last week, in a game rescheduled because of a previous hurricane, the 10-0 and third-rated Bruins had national title hopes dashed by a 7-3 Miami team, 49-45, as Edgerrin James ran for 299 yards and three TDs, the final score coming with 0:50 to play.

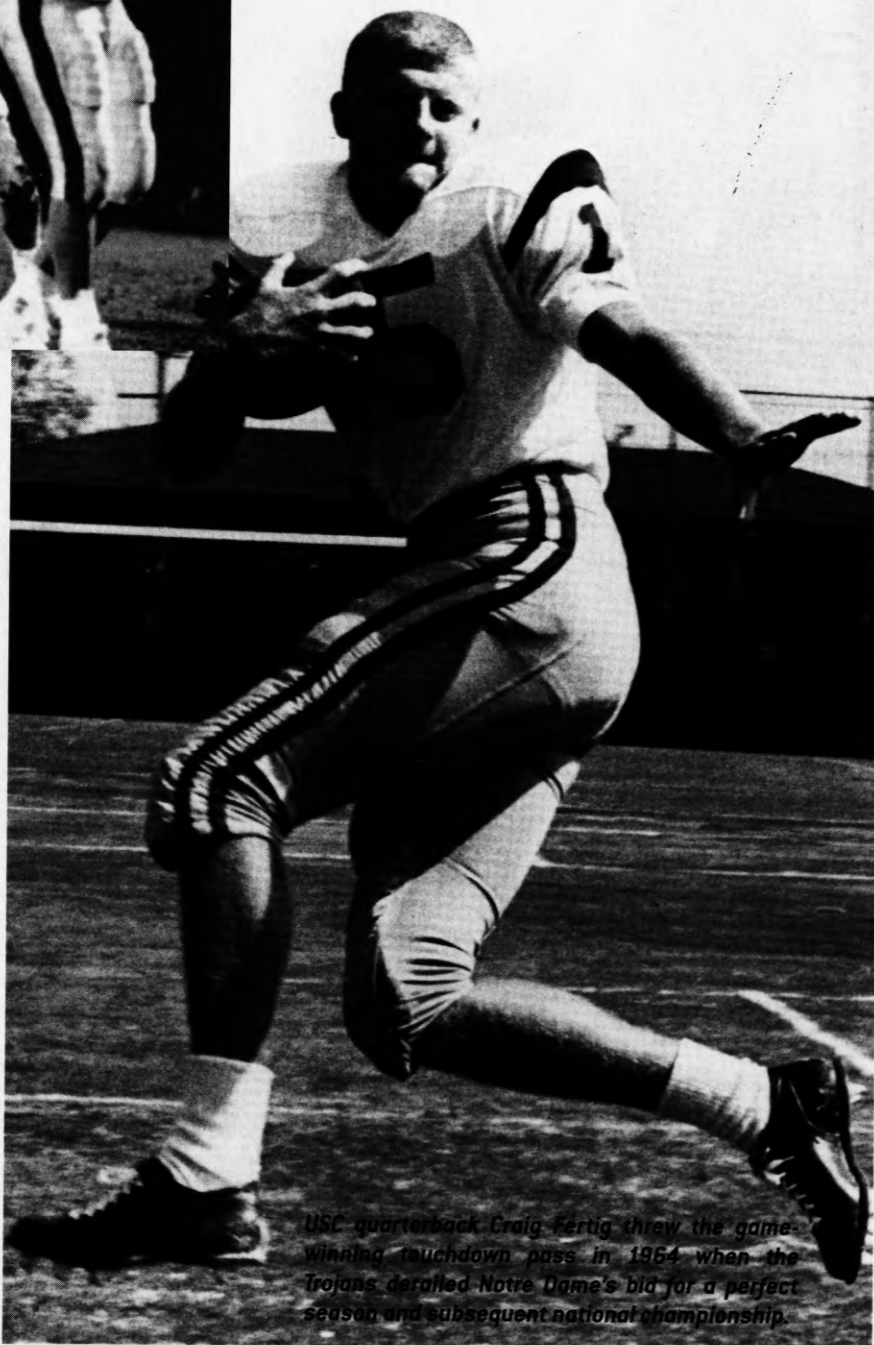

The Hurricanes had another chance to ruin another team's run at perfection late in a season in 1991, and it was particularly delicious, because the victim was Florida State, Miami's top rival. The Seminoles were 10-0 and ranked first when they hosted the 8-0 and second-rated 'Canes in mid-November. FSU held a 16-7 lead midway through the fourth period, but Miami scored 10 unanswered points and then survived a late scare when Gerry Thomas' 34-yard field goal attempt went wide right at the final gun.

Five years later, the Seminoles had the chance to spoil a rival's perfection when FSU met Florida in a battle of the nation's two top-ranked teams. In this one, the second-ranked Seminoles earned a 24-21 triumph, knocking the Gators back to fourth in the rankings. In an ironic twist, the teams met again in the Sugar Bowl for the national title, and this time, third-rated Florida dumped number one and undefeated FSU, 52-20.

Those two schools have had a long history of agitating each other, but Nebraska and Oklahoma have been even bigger problems for each other. The teams have ruined each other's perfection late in the regular season seven times since 1964, with Oklahoma dumping the undefeated Cornhuskers on five occasions. Twice ('64 and '66) a three-loss Sooner outfit whipped a 9-0 Nebraska edition. In 1975 and '79, a one-loss Oklahoma squad ruined Cornhusker perfection, preventing a 10-0 NU team from reaching the Orange Bowl and taking a shot at the national title.

Though Nebraska holds the distinction of bumping off an undefeated OU team only twice, it did win the most famous game between the two teams — and one of the most celebrated of all time. That would be the 1971 "Game of the Century" between the number one Cornhuskers and number two Sooners. The 35-31 NU verdict came after a scintillating afternoon of back-and-forth action that was punctuated by a punt return by Cornhusker wingback Johnny Rodgers, the eventual Heisman winner. Nebraska went on to win the first of two straight national titles.

The teams have delighted in spoiling each other's parties, but both have fallen prey to upset bids by other teams. Three times from 1989-2001 Colorado took out an undefeated Nebraska squad, including a 62-36 triumph in '01 that left the 11-0 Cornhuskers reeling. Oklahoma has been stung by a trio of upstarts, with the most painful a 23-3 defeat at the hands of Kansas in 1975 that snapped a 28-game winning streak and 37-game unbeaten string. In 2002, a 5-4 Texas A&M squad spanked the 8-0 Sooners, 30-26, and the next year, 12-0 OU was routed, 35-7, by 10-3 Kansas State in the Big 12 title game.

Those losses were crushing, to be sure, but when it comes to the champion of being spoiled, Michigan reigns supreme. Sure, the Wolverines have done their share of messing up others' seasons, most notably four upset wins over Ohio State. But Michigan has had its undefeated hopes dashed on eight occasions, often (five times) by the Buckeyes, but also by Minnesota and Purdue.

The Michigan/OSU rivalry is generally considered college football's finest, and it enjoyed its heyday from 1969-78, when Wolverine boss Bo Schembechler and Buckeye legend Woody Hayes matched sideline tactics. In '69, a two-loss Michigan team stopped the defending national champs' bid for a repeat with a stunning 24-12 win on the season's last day. But OSU struck back throughout the '70s, spoiling perfect bids by Michigan in 1970 and '72-74. In 2006, undefeated and top-ranked Ohio State overcame perfect, second-rated Michigan, 42-39, just two days after Schembechler died suddenly.

FSU SPORTS INFORMATION

The build-up for that one was enormous, but few expected much on Nov. 6, 1976, when top-ranked and 8-0 Michigan traveled to Ross-Ade Stadium in West Lafayette, IN, to take on a 3-5 Boilermaker squad. Thanks to the hard running of Scott Dierking, Purdue produced a stunning, 16-14 upset that ruined Wolverine perfection. A year later, Minnesota's 16-0 win over top-ranked Michigan was the sole Wolverine blemish to that point. The Gophers did it again in 1986, dumping second-ranked and 9-0 U-M, ruining Schembechler's bid for his 200th career win.

Not that OSU has been immune to similar problems. In addition to having the Wolverines destroy their undefeated hopes in '69, '93, '95 and '96, the Buckeyes were stunned in 1974 and 1998 by Michigan State, the second time at home. Last year, Ohio State was 10-0 and looking ahead to its annual season-ender with Michigan when it was upended by Illinois at home, 28-21. The Buckeyes still beat the Wolverines to earn the Big Ten title, but regular season perfection had eluded them.

Not that OSU should have felt too bad. It has had plenty of company over the years.

David Klingler set the NCAA record for touchdowns in a single game when, as a member of the Houston Cougars, he threw for 11 scores in a November 1990 win over Eastern Washington.

KLINGLER HITS ELEVENTH HEAVEN

BY STEVE SINISKI

Few college football players can match the individual achievements of David Klingler, who was putting up video game numbers for the Houston Cougars nearly 20 years before professional gaming became a career path of choice. The former quarterback turned record-breaking into an art form, posting single-game and single-season statistics that would cramp the hands of even the best members of the Major League Gaming Circuit.

A 2008 inductee into the Cougars' Athletic Hall of Fame, Klingler once stood atop the NCAA's all-time charts of more than 50 different individual benchmarks. Several have been broken since Klingler's heyday, including his season record of 54 touchdowns—by Hawai'i's Colt Brennan (58 scores in 2006) with three extra games under his belt. But during a time when Guns N'Roses, MC Hammer, Paula Abdul and for better or worse—Milli Vanilli—were considered the record-makers and breakers, not even they could match the bars Klingler established for future quarterbacks to shoot for. Amazing as some of the records may seem, however, there's little evidence that Klingler did anything other than follow the gameplan under head coach John Jenkins each Saturday.

"I knew every route, every receiver and every adjustment for every pass coverage," he said. "We had 50 options on every route and attacked the weakness [of the defense]. It was literally not uncommon to have five guys wide open."

One record in particular still tops the NCAA's charts after 17 seasons but seems to get lost in the shuffle because it happened away from the television camera's national spotlight while the Cougars were serving their final year of probation. An ominous day in the history of Eastern Washington football history also ranks as one of the best of Klingler's career. The rifle-armed quarterback threw 11 touchdowns in the 84-21 win on Nov. 19, 1990, breaking the previous mark of nine set by San Diego State's Dennis Shaw in 1969.

"Eleven touchdowns wasn't unusual," Jenkins said. "He was throwing seven or eight against everyone else."

Indeed, Klingler was probably destined to break the record for touchdowns in a game, averaging five per game that season alone. "We went out with the mindset that we needed to score 60-70 points [every game]," Klingler said. "If we went out and scored 28 points, we'd get beat, 50-28."

The frenetic pace of Jenkins' Run-n-Shoot offense lent itself to high-scoring games and as the triggerman, Klingler never disappointed. The stats against Eastern Washington show the 11 touchdowns as coming in a single game, and though that's 100 percent correct, the numbers are slightly misleading. Had Klingler played the entire game, he could have put the record into another stratosphere altogether. The former Houston quarterback tied the previous mark of nine touchdowns in a game in the third quarter on a 7-yard pass to senior Craig Alexander and broke the mark with 13:35 remaining in the fourth on an 8-yard pass to sophomore TiAndre Sanders. It's entirely possible the total could have been several scores higher had Jenkins not removed his star immediately after the "accidental" 11th touchdown just 55 seconds later. That score also tied Jim McMahon's mark of 47 touchdowns in a year, a mark Klingler claimed for himself in the next game against Arizona State.

Sophomore Michael Grant caught the final touchdown from Klingler in the fourth, though the quarterback and Jenkins both admit the play wasn't exactly drawn up to go the distance. Jenkins inserted Klinger back into the game for one more completion, but Grant did more than just catch the ball and fall down. "He had thrown 10 [scores] and was going to stay in for one more play and deliver the ball to Marcus Grant," Jenkins said. "[Grant] caught the ball with two defenders draped on him, shook them loose and ran it in for the touchdown. It was not intended to be one more strike against those guys. It was just one of those plays that happened."

Klinger found nine different wide receivers scores during his 11 touchdown effort against Eastern Washington. Along with the NCAA record for touchdown passes in a game, Klinger established another record: number of different pass-catchers with a score in one game.

Most of the touchdowns that day "just happened," in the flow of an offense that averaged a nation's-best 46.5 points per game for the season. Four scores were from at least 29 yards out, and not one of the 11 touchdown drives engineered by the offense took more than 2:38 or required more than seven plays. "It was trained into us that it was our job to score every time we touched the ball," Klinger said, noting Jenkins' unhappiness when the offense didn't run-and-shoot smoothly.

As much as Klinger and the offense get the ink for the team's highest-scoring outburst of the season, the defense did force four interceptions and recovered a fumble allowing for a few short drives down field.

What may come as a shock is Jenkins' displeasure with the unit after the 42-point showing before intermission. Perfection doesn't come easy, and Klinger readily admits there were times when even a significant offensive output wasn't met with smiles and high-fives. "At halftime [against Eastern Washington] we got one of those chewings," Klinger said.

Along with the 11 scores, Houston's sticky-fingered pass-catchers also helped Klinger establish an NCAA benchmark for the number of receivers with a touchdown in one game. Nine different players found the end zone with seniors Emmanuel Hazard and Chuck Weatherspoon the only receivers to grab more than one. "That was second-teamers and third-teamers getting in the game and relieving," Jenkins said.

One question lingers from the performance against Eastern Washington—Can the single-game record be broken? According to Klinger it can, and the way he explains it, the reasoning doesn't defy logic. "Back then we didn't have overtime," Klinger said. "In overtime, touchdowns count. I think it's conceivable in this age of throwing the football a lot, in an overtime game where each team scores three or four times."

For the record...

While David Klingler's 11-touchdown game against Division I-AA's Eastern Washington in 1990 immediately stands out as an amazing achievement, neither Klingler, nor his former head coach, John Jenkins, considers it at the top of their personal lists. "It was just a normal Saturday," Klingler said. "Nothing stands out because the game was common. That year I threw seven touchdowns three times."

"I think there were several that year that were much more impressive."

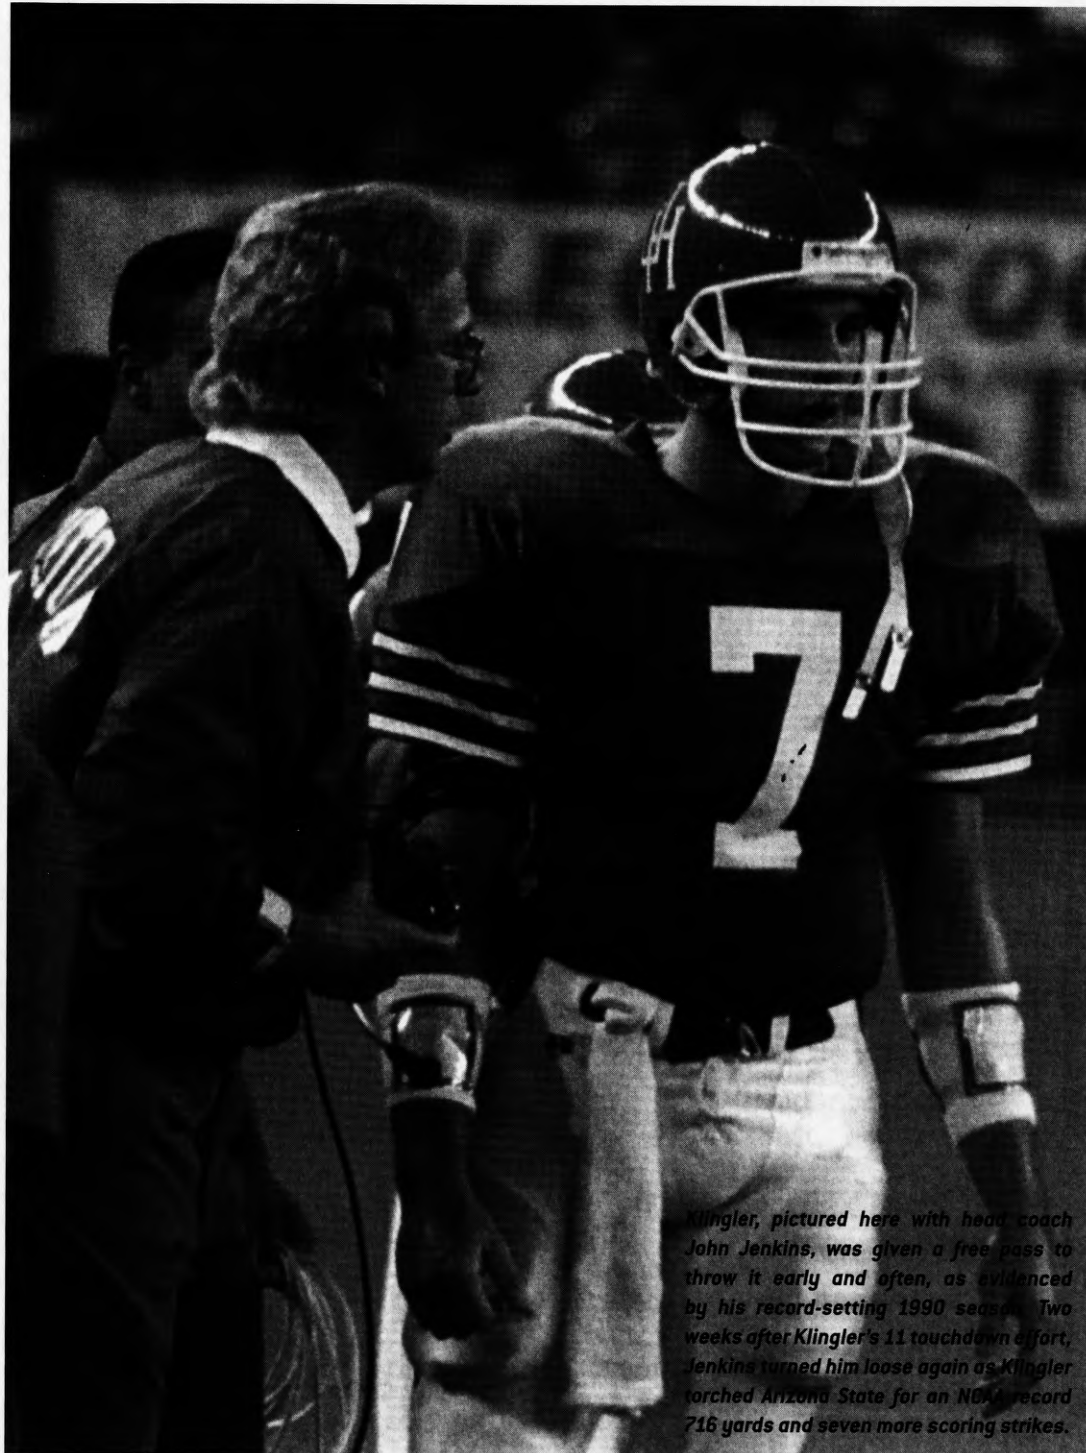

Trying to choose one game, or moment, from among the lifetime of memories Klingler created in just a few years with the Cougars, it's apparent his effort against the Eagles was merely a tune-up for a bigger test that awaited. Klingler quickly points to a 62-45 victory over Arizona State on Dec. 2, 1990, barely two weeks later, when he threw for an NCAA-record 716 yards and seven touchdowns, torching a defensive backfield boasting four future NFL draft picks.

Jenkins suggests a 73-3 victory over Louisiana Tech on Aug. 31, 1991, as one of Klingler's more impressive performances. He set an NCAA record with six touchdown passes in the second quarter. "Most teams don't get but two or three possessions in a quarter," Jenkins said of the mark that had been previously set by Klingler's former teammate, Andre Ware, in 1989. "It was unbelievable to see that happen in one quarter."

Klingler was kept out of the end zone to open the game but exploded for the half-dozen scores spread out among four different receivers, and only one came from outside of 16 yards, a true indicator of the swiftness with which Jenkins' Run-and-Shoot offense moved the ball downfield. "That was just part of [our] game," Jenkins said. "We were a machine that was on a roll and couldn't be stopped. We rolled up 60 points on Texas three years in a row. It didn't matter who the opponent was, we treated them the same way."

Steve Siniski is a contributing writer for College & Pro Football Newsweekly based in New York.

Klingler, pictured here with head coach John Jenkins, was given a free pass to throw it early and often, as evidenced by his record-setting 1990 season. Two weeks after Klingler's 11 touchdown effort, Jenkins turned him loose again as Klingler torched Arizona State for an NCAA-record 716 yards and seven more scoring strikes.

Under the most normal circumstances, the loss of a starting running back would be a problem, but Gordie Lockbaum showed that some problems can create tremendous opportunities.

Lockbaum was what scouts would call a "tweener," a player who isn't an ideal fit for a particular position. At first glance, that might not seem like a good situation, but Lockbaum made it a strength that catapulted Holy Cross football into the national spotlight in the mid-1980s — largely by playing on offense, defense, and even some special teams, in a style that was reminiscent of the 1940s.

Lockbaum became the first player of note in several decades to start on both offense and defense, playing running back on offense and cornerback on defense. His play set the stage for what Charles Woodson would do in the 1990s.

"I was recruited as an athlete, meaning that there was a chance I could wind up on the offensive side or on the defensive side of the ball depending upon the need and how I adapted to moving up from high school football to the college level,"

Lockbaum said. "At Holy Cross, I settled into a defensive back position. I was a cornerback as a freshman. I played some special teams. As a sophomore, I took the starting position at strong safety and played as a sophomore."

Following a coaching change in the spring of 1986, new coach Mark Duffner brought in Tom Rossley to coach the offense, and Rossley promptly installed the run and shoot offense. Then, an injury provided the opportunity for Lockbaum to step in.

"Somebody was hurt, and we didn't have enough running backs," Lockbaum said. "I ran some routes. I caught some balls and ripped off a couple of decent runs. The coaches were kind of thinking, 'Hmm, he can probably help us on the offensive side.' The problem was that our defensive backfield wasn't the strongest position, either. We were coming off a poor season and we hadn't really played very well. We were a young group, mostly sophomores, and we had taken our lumps that year, so it wasn't like we had an abundance of personnel in the defensive backfield. We finished the spring with me kind of bopping back and forth and the coaches were left with the decision of what position I was going to play, whether it would be offense or defense. That was settled when I got back to camp. They said "We've been thinking about it, and we think we're just going to play you both ways."

The situation might have been unusual for most college players, but for Lockbaum, it just felt right. He had played both offense and defense in high school, and versatility was one of his greatest strengths.

"Pretty much all my life I had played both ways and I was always considered to be a conditioned athlete, one who could get a lot of snaps and run well and stay pretty fresh, so I was up for it," Lockbaum said. "They couldn't have said anything better to me. I know they labored over the decision, but I was all for it, because for me, that meant I didn't have to come off the field. That was a dream come true for any player. It created a lot of other problems for the coaches because they had to figure out how to practice, how to game plan, how do you prepare somebody to play at a high level because in college football these days, there are a lot of adjustments that go on week to week that the players have to be aware of."

Lockbaum made the most of the rare opportunity to play both offense and defense. In 1986, he sparked the Crusaders to a 10-1 season as a junior. In their lone defeat, the Crusaders jumped out to a stunning 14-0 lead on Boston College in the final game of the season before falling 56-26. The following season, Lockbaum led the Crusaders to an 11-0 record, finishing third in Heisman Trophy balloting, after having finished fifth in Heisman voting as a junior.

Still, there was more to Lockbaum's success than mere statistics and record-setting performances. He focused the attention of the college that happened was that people came in to watch Gordie, but they saw Andy Martin and Tom Kelleher and Robbie McGovern and Jerry McCabe and a lot of other players who ended up playing in the NFL who may not have gotten a look had we not had that type of notoriety for something so unique."

Lockbaum started as a defensive back during his freshman season and continued to play defense when the Crusaders needed a spark.

Holy Cross went 21-1 and won back-to-back Patriot League championships during Lockbaum's last two seasons, but Lockbaum's favorite memory isn't the championships or the accolades, it's the experience.

"Most often, as athletes we come to remember game stuff, but a lot of times, for me, it comes to camps, practices, meetings, just the general day-to-day of being on a team and being closely knit with a large group of guys," Lockbaum said. "I think it was just a great life experience."

After being drafted by the Pittsburgh Steelers, Lockbaum played in preseason games over two seasons with the Steelers and the Buffalo Bills in the hope of developing an NFL career. The level of competition in the NFL prevented Lockbaum from making as big an impact on the professional game as he did in the college game, and he moved on to an insurance brokerage firm in Worcester, Mass. with no regrets. Still, Lockbaum brought an excitement to college football that was undeniable. For a few seasons, Lockbaum took the college game back to the era of leather helmets with no facemasks.

"Most of us have a nostalgic bone or two in our body and that's why we like looking at old buildings, old cars, talking about the old baseball players and football players, just looking back in time and reminiscing," Lockbaum said. "It was kind of nice to have a modern day guy take everybody back to an older generation. The old guys used to love coming up to me and telling me how they played every snap and you couldn't substitute and the limited substitution rule and everything else and that's the way it should be played, and that's not always the case. The old way isn't always the best way, but it's fun when it's re-explored occasionally. I think that was the fun. It was taking a step back in time. Holy Cross has a great athletic and football tradition. We've had some great teams and players come through here, and to be thrown back into that long-gone era was a fun thing to go through."

football world on Holy Cross, and on many other Crusader players.

"I'm just thankful that the coaches thought enough of me to try it and that the rest of the players understood that some accommodations were made for me to have that type of success," Lockbaum said. "I think that it also reflected well on the program and the other players, because we had great success, we had great notoriety. One of the wonderful things

HEADING IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION

BY MICHAEL BRADLEY

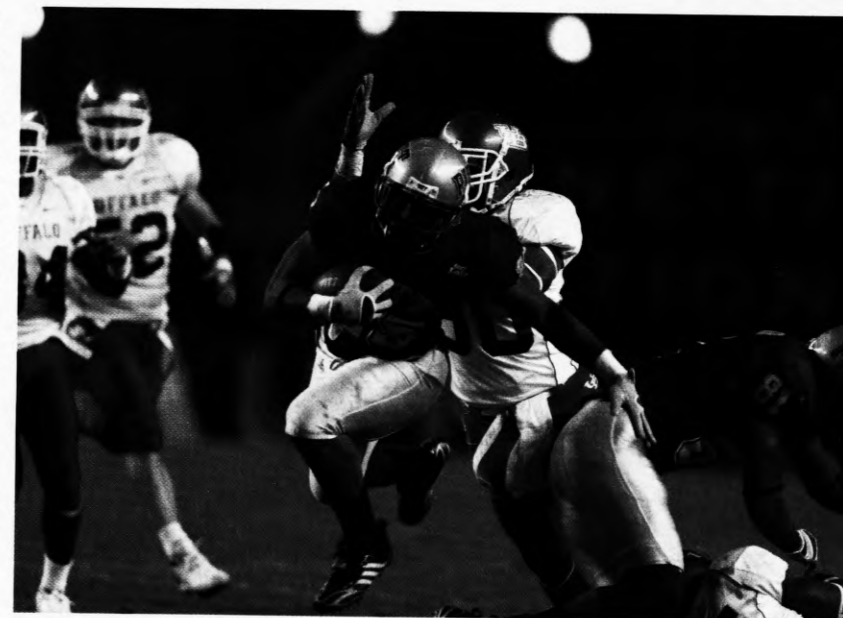

Pile on, everybody. Pittsburgh won a big game last year, and it's a straight shot from the wild, post-Backyard Brawl celebration to a 2009 BCS Bowl game. Read all the glowing forecasts for the Panthers, and it's hard to believe this is the same team that finished 5-7 last year and lost back-to-back games to Connecticut and Virginia by a combined 50 points.

That 13-9 win over West Virginia last December was really something. The Panthers knocked the Mountaineers from the championship tilt and convinced many of the same people who thought Pitt would lose to its rival by about 40 points that this was truly a program on the rise.

"We win one game, and all of a sudden everybody is on the bandwagon," Pitt coach Dave Wannstedt says.

That's how it goes these days. You don't need a long, distinguished history to be hot, just a signature victory and some returning firepower. Oh, and a coach who has executed a gradual, yet successful, turnaround by emphasizing a strong defense and smart, targeted recruiting. Pitt may not be ready for the BCS title game, but it is definitely on the threshold of a return to the FBS conversation. The Panthers almost made it last year, dropping three games by seven points or fewer and playing some excellent defensive football.

Near misses aside, Pitt is in pretty good shape. Wannstedt tries to dismiss the carryover from the victory over WVU as last year's news, but there is a gathering buzz in Pittsburgh, and not just because of the Penguins or Ben Roethlisberger's fat new contract. After three years of middling results under Wannstedt, Pitt appears ready to take a step forward. It may not be as dramatic as what some believe it will be, but it will represent further progress toward contention for a Big East title and perhaps something bigger.

"The victory against West Virginia was very big for the university, the team and everybody associated with the University of Pittsburgh," linebacker Scott McKillop says. "It showed how close we are. Last year, no one got down on anyone, and we gelled as a team late in the year.

"But after the game, every one of the coaches said, 'Just because you beat West Virginia, doesn't mean you're there.'"

McKillop represents the Pitt success story more than most. He spent his first three years in the program as a backup linebacker behind standout H.B. Blades. Worse, his older brother Chris was a starting defensive lineman, so Scott was in his shadow as well. When last season dawned, McKillop was atop the depth chart at MLB and led the nation in tackles [12.6/game]. It took some time for him to arrive, but he got there. And like the team for which he plays, McKillop has more to do before he can be considered truly successful.

"I compare [McKillop] to Blades, and he's bigger and a step faster," Wannstedt says. "He has great instincts and a chance to play on Sunday, no question about it. He just needs to play the game more."

McKillop's journey to the starting position and national recognition is also instructive in terms of his development as a leader. Because the Panthers have been so young, they haven't had many people capable of showing the way. Blades did it during his time in the program. So did former QB Tyler Palko. Last year, when most of the team's key components had played only under Wannstedt, who took over for Walt Harris in 2005, and starting QB Bill Stull

After a season-opening loss to Bowling Green, senior linebacker Scott McKillop (120) and sophomore running back Andrew McCoy (10) were key to the Panthers' three straight wins.

Pennsylvania native and Pittsburgh head coach Dave Wannstedt followed up a disappointing 2006 campaign by bringing in the 8th-ranked recruiting class before last year. Those recruits included LeSean McCoy (below) who led the nation in rushing yards by a freshman with 1,328 which was also a Big East record.

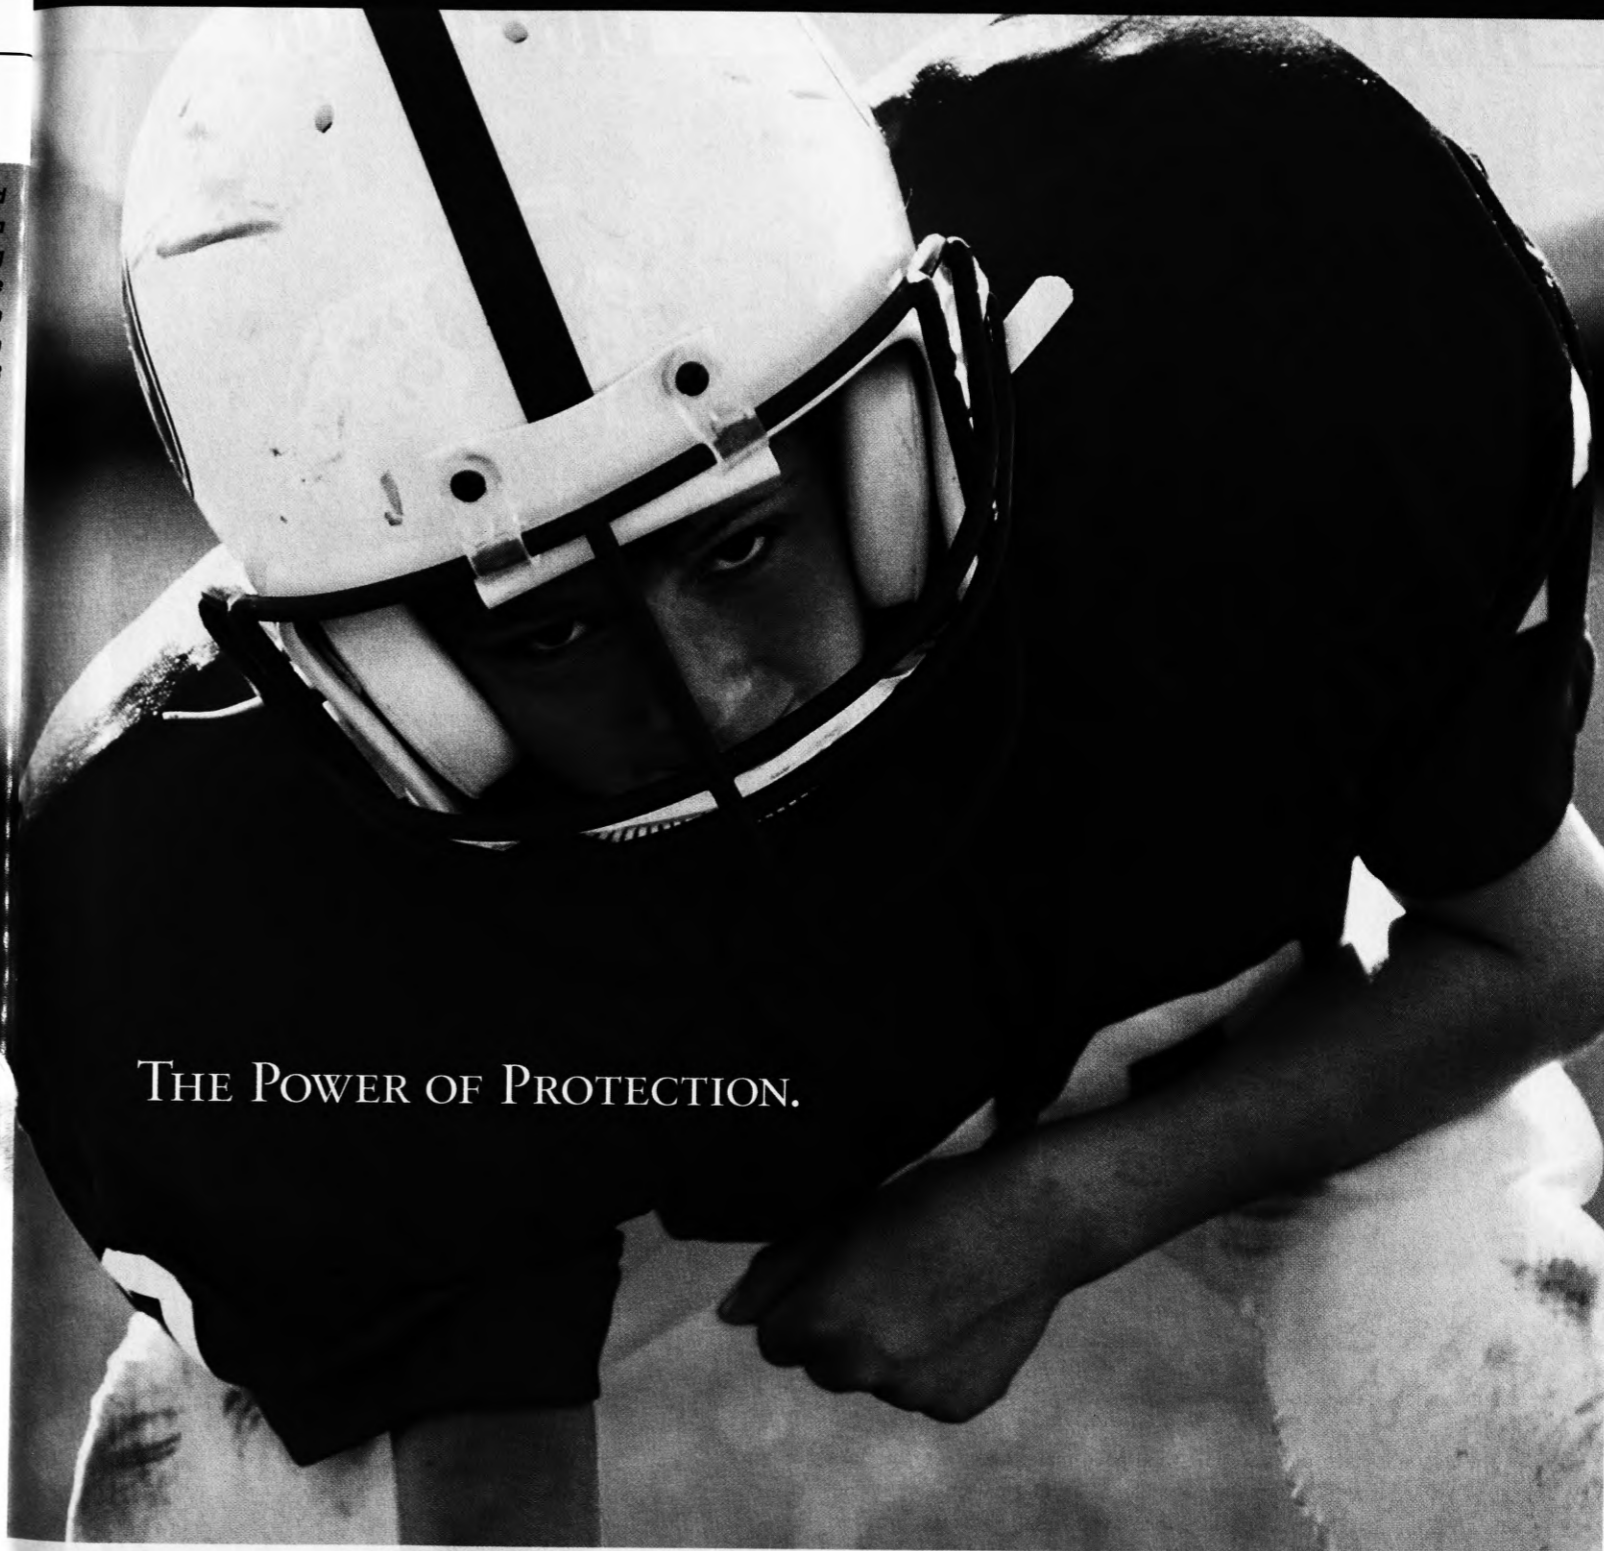

went down with an injury early on, it was up to McKillop and others to step forward. Though unaccustomed to such a role, the junior LB responded. The same went for freshman running back LeSean McCoy, who became the team's offensive meal ticket not long into the '07 campaign. Wannstedt says it's unusual to have two first-year starters as your primary leaders, but that's what happened.

"At first, it was difficult, because I wasn't used to it," McKillop says. "As the season went on, I got used to it. I'm not going to get in people faces. I'm vocal, but I let my actions speak louder. I want people to match my intensity."

The Panthers will need to have that focus throughout the season, if they want to make the jump so many people believe they will. The Big East is not in the class of the SEC, Big 12 or Pac-10, but it does have a strong group of bowl-caliber teams and in West Virginia it has a top 10-15-caliber squad. Whether Wannstedt or McKillop wants to admit it, the win over the Mountaineers is indeed a springboard. It helped foster a more committed approach to winter workouts and a more intense atmosphere at spring practice. The win over WVU won't count in the 2008 standings, but it has established what Pitt can do and that Wannstedt and his staff are the people to lead the way.

"It helped us in recruiting, not because we were talking with different players, but because the players we were recruiting felt better about saying, 'I'm going to Pitt.'" Wannstedt says. "You can do the right things and talk about the right things, but sooner or later, you have to win a big game to make it valid."

The Panthers have the win. Now, they need more. And the team looks capable of providing it. The talk, naturally, is about McKillop and McCoy, who set a Big East freshman rushing record with 1,328 yards last year and established new freshman marks at Pitt in rushing TDs (14) and points (90), zipping past Panther legend Tony Dorsett in the process. What makes his performance most impressive was that opponents knew he was the focal point of the Panther offense last year. Once Stull went down with a thumb injury, the Pitt passing attack suffered. Wannstedt, who is nothing if not pragmatic, understands the need for more playmakers on the offensive side of the ball. Stull's expected full-strength return should help, as should the comeback of wideout Derek Kinder, who missed last year with a knee injury after catching 57 passes in '06. That still might not be sufficient to make the Panthers explosive enough to be a part of the Big East race.

They have what's needed defensively. The Panthers allowed a mere 297.7 yards per game last year, fifth-best in the country, and welcome back seven starters. One of Wannstedt's priorities since taking over has been the reinforcement of the defensive line. As an old defensive coordinator, he understands the value of that up-front push. "We have given 16 scholarships in three years to defensive linemen," he says. "We're starting to see the benefit." So is McKillop. With the interior of the front four returning in tact, the senior linebacker won't have to worry so much about enemy blockers, something that should keep that tackle total sky-high.

Predictably, the modest senior doesn't look to his statistics to measure success. He's extremely self-critical – "I'm never happy with my play," he says – yet aware of his role on the team. Not even the best clubs have 22 standouts in the starting lineup. There are big producers, and there are role players. "We know what each person is capable of," he says. McKillop also understands the need for the team to look past the positive publicity, the rosy forecasts and the afterglow of the WVU win and play winning football from the first game on.

"Sometimes, people might get cocky with all of this," he says. "We've got to say to ourselves, 'We were 5-7 last year, and we haven't made it to a bowl game in three years.' We're a good football team, but we want to be a great football team. Just because we beat West Virginia doesn't mean we're there."

True, but the bandwagon is heading in the right directions, and suddenly, McKillop and his Panther teammates have plenty of company.

Whether they want it or not.

McKillop anchored a defense that walked into Morgantown and stunned then No. 2-ranked West Virginia, effectively ending the Mountaineers' hopes for a shot at the national title. Fans of the Panthers hope that last year's thrilling 13-9 win over WVU in the Backyard Brawl will help launch Pitt's 2008 season and lay the groundwork for future successes.

TDI PRESENTS, ORIGINAL FICTION: "Center," BY MATT ROUGE

Part Four: Things are moving at breakneck speed for Dale and it all seems bad. Only football can help him keep his sanity.

Al Rodzinski, head coach of Williams State University's football program, was 5'11" tall, his frame was spare of fat and muscle, and his face had a pale complexion that did not look entirely healthy; but he also looked young for his fifty-six years, his voice was big, and his eyes were expressive. The assembled members of his junior varsity team, many of them like freshman center Dale Trump hearing him speak for the first time, sat on the grass of the football field and gave the coach their full attention. Dale was sitting next to Tex Teague, his roommate and fellow scholarship athlete.

"It looks like we have a good team together this year," said Coach Rodzinski. "But are we good enough to beat Nielsen? That's going to depend on you guys and how much fight you bring to the gridiron. If you don't have fight, you won't make it on this team."

"Remember that you're a team—and that means teamwork! Everyone knows it but everyone forgets it. The new rules this year allow for unlimited substitutions. That's right. I can take you out as quarterback and stick someone in, then put you back on defense and take you out again—as many times as I like. But can I substitute the entire team? No. Is there a substitution for teamwork? No. So, as far as I'm concerned, there are no substitutions."

"I know we have some new star talent—like these two fellas," said Coach, motioning toward Dale and Tex. "We don't like to see the big high school football stars wash out here, but often they do. Suddenly you're around better players than you, and you've got tough new classes, and I'm pretty tough myself," said Coach, chuckling. "Today, when we run laps around the field, these two tough guys can run double and show us what they're made of!" The team, except for the freshmen, erupted in cheers and applause.

"I can handle it, Coach," said Tex with a wide grin.

"Oh, can you?" said Coach with a bemused look. "Then maybe you'd like to run triple? Thirty laps around the field for you?"

"I'm from Texas; we do everything big there," said Tex, not losing his smile.

"Thirty isn't so big then, is it? How about forty?"

"Coach, that's nearly eight miles!" said a sophomore who was quick with numbers.

"Less than an hour's worth of running," said Coach. "He can handle it—can't you, freshman?"

"Yes, sir," said Tex, at last losing his smirk, or at least most of it.

"With all due respect, Coach," said Dale. "I'm going to run the whole forty with him."

"What?" said Coach. "I only gave you twenty. Are you crazy?"

"Not crazy, sir. But, like you said, we're a team. He's a quarterback and I'm a center, if you choose to play us that way. We've got to work together on every play. Plus, we're roommates."

The team looked at Dale with silent surprise.

"Very noble," said Coach Rodzinski, "but the next time you want to run extra laps, just run 'em and keep it to yourself."

"Yes, sir," said Dale.

Dale insisted that he and Tex run their laps ahead of the rest of the team. "We're going to look like idiots if we lag behind everyone else, so we've got to make this the run of our lives, at least until everyone else goes away."

"Then we can just leave, right?" said Tex.

"No, we said we'd run the laps, so that's what we'll do," said Dale, barely able to get the words out between the breaths he was taking.

Later, when it was just the two of them running around the big rectangle still warm and bright in the midday July sun, Dale and Tex slowed down their pace and were able to talk with somewhat greater ease.

"This whole thing with Jenny and Vince is eating me alive," said Dale. "I don't know what to do."

"You've got a car—just drive over there," said Tex.

"But it's over two hours away."

Tex chuckled. "Abilene is over 180 miles from Dallas, and we consider it a short little jaunt. Anywhere else, we expect to add a few quarts of oil, bust a tire or two, tune up the engine, and it's all in a day's work. If she's everything you say she is, and you sure say it a lot, you need to get home pronto and see what's going on."

"You're right," said Dale.

A little later, Dale got in his car, exhausted but wide awake from two cups of drugstore coffee, and started off for his hometown.

The fields of corn and wheat and patches of forest seemed to greet him with joy and validate his journey. In time, he came to the intersection where his mother had died just a handful of months before. As he had done on his recent journey to school, Dale stopped and got out of the car for a moment. The place affected him more this time, and his eyes filled with tears as he looked at and contemplated the empty intersection.

Coach was right—there are no substitutions, he thought.

Dale was not nervous as he pulled up to the Graham residence; the familiar house seemed to welcome him as much as had the fields and forests. Vince heard the sound of the car and walked out to greet Dale with a smile and a handshake.

"I can't believe it!" said Vince. "You're looking hale and hearty."

"Thanks," said Dale. "I thought I'd stop by and see Jenny. I figured you'd be at school, though."

"We, uh—we had a family conference," said Vince with a grave look on his face.

"Oh? What's going on? It sounds serious."

"I, uh, it's all related to what we talked about recently, Dale. You know, you and I are best friends, always will be, but it's best that you and Jenny part ways."

"So, your family conference is about me? I can't believe that."

"No, no it's not," said Dale with pain in his eyes that appeared genuine. "We don't want to make it about you at all. It's not about you. You've done nothing wrong."

"Let me just talk to Jenny."

"It's a bad idea."

Jenny appeared at the doorway, pulling away from her mother's grasp. As she ran toward Dale, her mother gave Dale an embarrassed wave.

Jenny hugged Dale. Vince looked at the gravel of the driveway.

"I missed you so much," said Dale.

"I missed you too," said Jenny.

"Vince says we can't be together. That isn't true, is it?"

When Jenny lifted her face up to look Dale in the eye, his shoulder was wet with tears. "It is," she said, choking back a sob.

"Well, it can't be true!" said Dale, pulling away from Jenny but keeping his big hands on her shoulders.

Vince patted Dale on the back. "Dale, there are things you don't understand." As he said this, Jenny pulled away from Dale and ran back toward the house.

"Wait a second!" said Dale.

"There are things you don't—"

"I heard you the first time. My mother died. What else do I need to understand?"

"I know. And this—this is soon after that, and it's not right."

"Not right? It doesn't make any sense. Why is your family ganging up on me?"

"We're not—"

"Yes you are! And you were really a jerk in our phone call recently. What was that all about?"

"Dale, you don't—I can't explain it all. Things have been tough on our family lately; it's not just about you, you know? I didn't handle that call the right way at all, and I apologize."

"I don't believe you!" said Dale, getting red with rage. "This is all a bunch of lies! I'd like to put your lights out right now, but I'll save it for the gridiron in September. That's when I'll hit you harder than you've ever been hit before."

"Okay," said Vince, "if that's what you have to do."

Dale walked to his car and drove away without saying another word. When he got home, his father was snoring on the couch with beer cans scattered on the floor beneath his drooping hand. Slipping into his old familiar bed felt good to Dale. He slept well and left early in the morning to arrive at practice on time.

THE LATE BILL FLEMMING REMAINS
ONE OF COLLEGE FOOTBALL'S
GREATEST BROADCASTERS

Bill Fleming peers out of the press box at Michigan Stadium to survey the crowd. Fleming's voice became synonymous with Big 10 football during his career.

Touchdown Illustrated

BY JEFF CUMMINS

The 1973 game between Michigan and Ohio State featured a bitter showdown of undefeated arch-rivals.

The game already possessed an air that was almost larger than life, so announcer Bill Fleming simply announced the names of the starting players to the national television audience. Nothing more was necessary.

For several decades, Fleming was one of the voices and faces of college football on television. He possessed a voice as clear as a perfect Saturday afternoon in the fall, and he never tried to overshadow the game, or hype it too much.

Fleming was also one of the original personalities on "Wide World of Sports," and he also covered events like track and field, auto racing and 11 Olympics. Yet, there was something about Fleming that just seemed to mesh perfectly with college football.

Fleming flowed with the sport. He described the action, but he left the excitement to the players and the people involved in the game. He never became too animated, choosing to leave the spotlight to the game itself.

College football was always one of Fleming's preferred assignments, particularly the classic rivalry between Michigan and Ohio State. Nonetheless, Fleming showed his versatility by introducing a generation to sports like cliff diving and hurling on "Wide World of Sports." He also got an exclusive interview with chess legend Bobby Fischer, a reclusive man who seldom granted interviews.

"I think first of all Bill was one of the most thoroughly prepared broadcasters I ever worked with," said Dave Diles, a former television colleague. "He was versatile. He could do anything from stock car racing to track and field to football or anything. He had a good studio presence. He was just a versatile guy who you could put on any assignment anywhere, and he would do a good job for you."

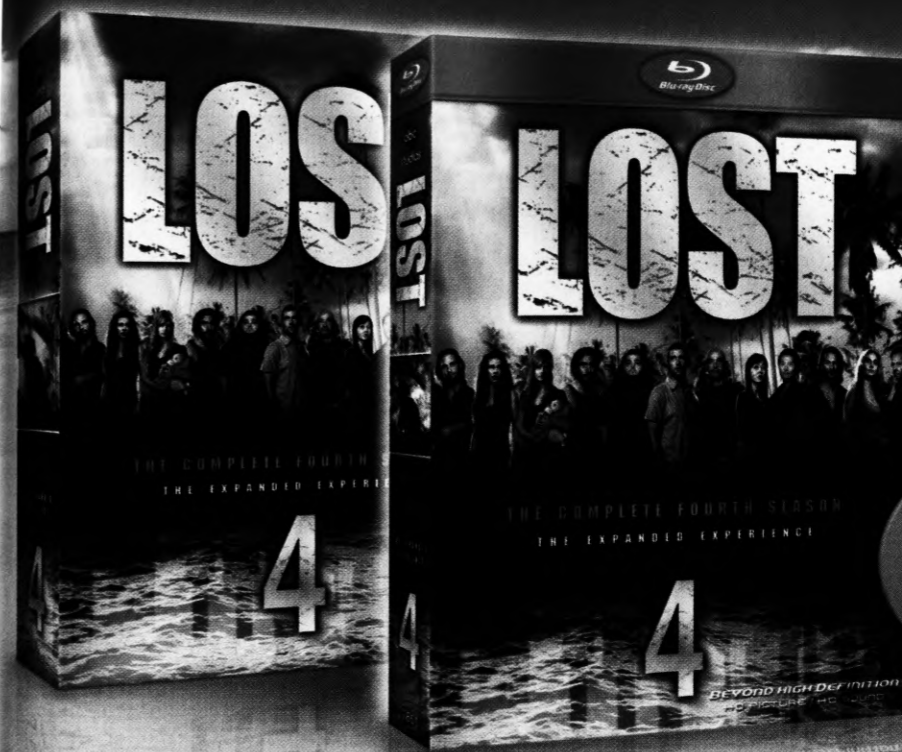

One of the major differences with Flemming was that he came from radio, and viewed himself as a journalist, not an entertainer. That philosophy enabled him to streamline his presentation, which made following the game easier for viewers.

"Bill Flemming was of that journalistic ilk," said Bruce Madej, associate athletic director at the University of Michigan. "He was the type of individual who felt the game was more important than anything else. In a lot of ways, he wanted to promote the game because you have to realize that when he started coming up television really did not do much for sports back then. He would do the Big Ten Football Preview Show. He would do cliff diving from Acapulco. He used to do unlimited hydroplane racing. When you take a look at what Bill Flemming did, he was of another era, an era that I think valued sports more than it valued marketing. He let the game tell the story; he just helped explain it. He wasn't a screamer. He made it easy for people to follow the game. He was literally brought up in the days of radio, so he didn't feel like he had to stay on top of the game all the time. He did what I think good play-by-play announcers do; stay a little bit behind the game so that they make sure they know what they're calling."

Flemming got his start in radio by winning a campuswide contest at the University of Michigan in 1949. After graduation, Flemming moved on to local television and in 1961, joined ABC's "Wide World of Sports."

"He made it easy," Madej said. "What was fun was that you had to watch the games back then, so it was more important to have somebody tell you what was going on because you might not have seen it. He was your replay, too. They didn't have replays necessarily, or that many replays back then. In my mind, I wish we could go back to those type of days. Bill was not a yeller. He didn't scream. He just told you what was going on, and if the game was good, the game was good. If the game wasn't good, the game wasn't good. He still made it entertaining, but he told you what was going on. He was truly a broadcaster who was a journalist, not a pretty face."

"He wasn't colorful," Diles said. "There was nothing distinguishing about him like Keith Jackson or Al Michaels. Bill wasn't the best at anything, but he was very good at everything. He enjoyed his work, that's for sure. He flew himself to most of his assignments in his private plane."

Despite Flemming's versatility, there was no hiding his love for college football and the Big Ten in particular. The game always seemed to bring out the best in Flemming.

"His affinity for the University of Michigan and the Big Ten was primary in his professional sports upbringing," Madej said. "I just think that Bill loved sports. He loved it for what it was, from doing the Indianapolis 500 and from doing Michigan football; he knew what he was talking about."

Ultimately, Flemming was synonymous with football in the Big Ten, and football in the heartland. When the weather turned colder, and the games became more important, thoughts automatically turned to chilly games in the Midwest, with Flemming on the sideline or in the booth.

"I think what Bill did was, he was in an era where he helped ABC grow into becoming a predominant sports network," Madej said. "That's what I think his legacy is for television. His legacy also is that supporter of Big Ten sports and Michigan. He truly was a journalist first. He really pushed the entire Big Ten."

Flemming passed away in July of 2007, long after his career ended. With the proliferation of old film clips and games shown on various networks, Flemming's voice and image is still present. Maybe just as important, the memory of his work with college football in the game's first few decades of prominence on national television lives on in the hearts and minds of many college football fans throughout the nation.

All-Americans

Harlan Hill Trophy

Two Edinboro football players have been finalists for the Harlan Hill Trophy, presented annually to the top player in NCAA Division II football.

Running back Elbert Cole was one of three finalists in 1989, while wide receiver Ernest Priester was a finalist a year later. Cole placed third in the '89 balloting. He earned All-American honors in 1989, receiving first team accolades from Kodak/American Football Coaches Association, second team recognition from Football Gazette, and third team status from Associated Press.

Cole rushed for 1,507 yards and set Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference records for touchdowns (24) and points (148). He led the Fighting Scots to the PSAC West title, a 8-3 record and a number seven ranking in the final Division II poll.

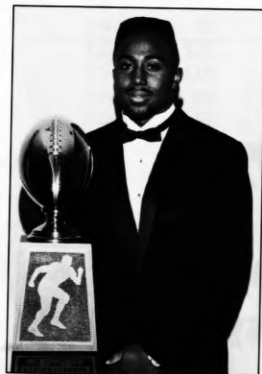

Priester was runnerup to North Dakota State quarterback Chris Simdorn in 1990 when the Bison claimed the Division II national title. Priester was the PSAC Western Division Co-Player of the Year in 1990. He was also recognized by Kodak/American Football Coaches Association, Associated Press and the Football Gazette as a first team All-American.

The wide receiver hauled in 47 passes for 1,102 yards and 15 TDs. Edinboro finished 9-3, reaching the Division II quarterfinals.

Last year sophomore quarterback Trevor Hrris was a Northeast Region semifinalist.

Four years ago Andre Burke (below) made a run at the Harlan Hill Trophy, as the tailback was a Northeast Region semifinalist. Burke ended up with a school-record 1,713 yards and 19 TDs.

Elbert Cole, a 1989 finalist, with the Harlan Hill Trophy.

The Cactus Bowl

Kyle Witucki continued the tradition of Edinboro Fighting Scots playing in the Cactus Bowl in January 2008. (NOTE: The 2007 contest was suspended.) The tight end hauled in an eight-yard touchdown reception to help the East All-Stars beat the West All-Stars, 42-13. For a number of years Division II football teams had an all-star game named the Snow Bowl, which was played in Fargo, North Dakota. In 2000 the contest was moved to Kingsville, Texas and renamed the Cactus Bowl. The contest features the top small college seniors in the country. Edinboro has had at least one representative in every Cactus Bowl (aka Snow Bowl) but one, with a streak of eight straight years. Here's a complete list of the Fighting Scots who have performed in the Cactus Bowl Division II All-Star Game.

1994	Jason Perkins, LB Mike Kegarise, OL Gary Lhotsky, P
1995	Lateef Walters, WR Larry Jackson, RB Pat Schuster, DE
1996	Gilbert Grantlin, WR Jeff Traversy, DL Corey Keyes, TE
1997	Gerald Thompson, RB Rob Barney, TE

Dear Fans:

I hope that our fans will applaud and frequent the 15 supporters listed below from the Edinboro community who have supported our players with evening snacks through the grueling practice sessions in August. This is the eighth consecutive year that the community has reached out and assisted us. Our players have asked me to thank each of the restaurants/eateries below. Chris Cummings

Jennifer Hansen

Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference Commissioner Steve Murray is proud to recognize 1,488 student-athletes from the league who will be known as "Scholar-Athletes" for the 2007-08 academic year. The total eclipses last year's figure of 1,420.

Atop the list are the 2007-08 PSAC Pete Nevins Scholar-Athletes of the Year: Mansfield's Chris Cummings and Slippery Rock's Jennifer Hansen.

The PSAC Pete Nevins Scholar-Athlete of the Year Awards are presented to the top student-athletes who have achieved at least a 3.25 cumulative grade point average while competing at an outstanding athletic level. Student-athletes must have been recognized as a Fall, Winter or Spring Top Ten Award winner to be eligible.

In its 18th year of existence, the awards were renamed in 2007 to honor East Stroudsburg's long-time sports information director Pete Nevins, who passed away earlier that year after a short battle with cancer. Nevins held his position at ESU for 33 years, and it is estimated that he wrote articles on more than 12,000 ESU events that covered more than 5,000 student-athletes.

Cummings, a graduate student at Mansfield, excelled in his final season of eligibility. He was the only PSAC male to garner All-America honors in cross country, indoor and outdoor track and field. His highest national showing came with a second-place finish in the mile during the indoor championships. At other NCAA Championships, he placed sixth in the 1,500m during the outdoor season, and was 26th at the cross country nationals. During the indoor season, Cummings won the mile and ran a leg of the winning distance medley relay at the PSAC Championships. He was crowned co-MVP of the meet and was later recognized as the 2008 PSAC Indoor Track Athlete of the Year.

Recently named an NCAA Postgraduate Scholarship recipient, Cummings maintained a 4.0 GPA while pursuing his master's degree in education. As an undergraduate, Cummings carried a 3.86 GPA as a physics major. He finishes his storied career at Mansfield as a five-time All-American - twice each in indoor and outdoor track and field, and once in cross country. Between the two track seasons, the Mansfield native owns school records in nine individual and four relay events.

Hansen, a junior elementary education major, has established a 4.0 GPA. The Charleston, W. Va. product continues to set new standards in the pole vault, which includes All-America citations during this year's indoor and outdoor seasons, finishing third at both national events.

Her outdoor season included a vault of 13-3.75 at the league championships, establishing a new meet record. Coupled with her third-place effort in the long jump, Hansen was named the Most Valuable Field Athlete for the meet. Just a few weeks earlier Hansen established a new PSAC overall record in the pole vault, clearing 13-5.25 at Allegheny's Gator Invitational. It marked the fourth time in two weeks that she had broken the conference record. During the indoor season, Hansen registered a meet and overall record by vaulting 13-1.25 at the conference championship and was later honored as the PSAC Field Athlete of the Year.

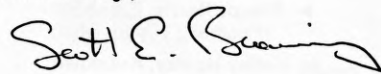

Hansen was one of only three PSAC student-athlete to earn first-team Academic All-America status from ESPN The Magazine, and the only one to do so in the cross country/track and field category. She is a five-time PSAC Champion and four-time All-American.

This marks the 23rd season that I have been fortunate enough to be a member of the Edinboro football staff. During that time it has been very gratifying to see the response of local organizations in assisting Edinboro football. In recent years the service organizations has provided invaluable assistance, including running the 50/50 raffles. We look forward to working with these organizations again this year, and thank them for their support of Boro Football.

GREAT THINGS HAPPEN HERE! The phrase was coined by new Edinboro University President Dr. Jeremy Brown, and it certainly is appropriate for the success the athletic department has continued.

What is truly rewarding is the continued success we enjoy year-in and year-out. We're not talking about a one year phenomenon. Fighting Scot athletic teams have enjoyed tremendous success for many years now. The 2007-08 season saw Edinboro athletic teams post an overall record of 148-84-3. That's just the start of what will go down as a memorable campaign.

SUPERIOR COACHING STAFF: I've always felt that Edinboro has assembled a coaching staff that rivals not only the best in the PSAC, but in all of Division II. For starters, men's basketball coach Greg Walcovich became just the ninth active coach in Division II with 500 wins. Women's basketball coach Stan Swank eclipsed 350 wins this past year, while Missy Soboleski (volleyball) and Jim Glatch (wheelchair basketball) topped 200 wins and women's soccer coach Gary Kagiavas went over the 100-win plateau. All Tim Flynn has done is lead his wrestling program to ten Eastern Wrestling League crowns in 11 years and nine PSAC titles in that same period. He has been named the Coach of the Year in at least one of the two leagues in nine of those 11 campaigns. Long-time cross country coach Doug Watts was once again recognized by the PSAC as its Men's Coach of the Year.

SCOTS DOMINATE INDIVIDUAL HONORS: If there is one thing that stood out above all else this year, it was the incredible individual success our student-athletes enjoyed. No fewer than six Fighting Scots were named the PSAC Player of the Year in their respective sports (Gregor Gillespie - wrestling; Trevor Harris - football; Brooke Heath - women's swimming; Rachael Lanzel - women's cross country; Ryan McLemore - men's basketball; and Jenna Newman - volleyball. In addition, three Scots were named PSAC Rookie of the year - Chris Honeycutt (wrestling), Barry McLaughlin (men's cross country); and Katie Wilkins (volleyball). Last, but certainly not least, three coaches earned PSAC Coach of the Year accolades - Tim Flynn (wrestling); Gary Kagiavas (women's soccer); and Doug Watts (men's cross country). Those are just a few of the honors our student-athletes picked up this year.

UPGRADED FACILITIES: Edinboro's athletic facilities have made a quantum leap the last two years. Sox Harrison Stadium was renovated a year ago, complete with a new artificial playing surface, lights, and a new scoreboard, along with improvements to local rooms in the facility.

Journeying over to McComb Fieldhouse, the long-awaited weight room project was completed last summer. Edinboro athletes can now work out with some of the finest state-of-the-art exercise and weight training equipment. The gymnasium floor has a bright new paint job that caught the eye of many this past year.

ON THE HORIZON: We anticipate that by the time 2009 rolls around the new air-supported dome will be completed. This structure, like the new surface at Sox Harrison Stadium, will accommodate not only athletics but many other campus activities. It obviously will provide our athletic teams a tremendous opportunity to practice inside during those blustery Edinboro winter days. In addition, you will notice a renewed emphasis on track & field, along with the ability to expand our camp offerings.

We're very proud of everything that has been accomplished, not only this past year but in previous years. We look forward to what lies ahead in the future, realizing that it will indeed be a challenge. Other Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference schools are experiencing many of the same improvements we are, or have done so in recent years.

The support of the administration and the Student Government Association is greatly appreciated. But we can't stop there. Our Edinboro Family must continue to grow. I can't tell you how valuable your support has been since the start of the Annual Athletic Fund. We hope you'll once again choose to sit down and contribute to the Athletic Fund. If you haven't contributed in the past, please explore the possibility of helping Edinboro not only maintain its athletic tradition, but move forward. Finally, please spread the word around. The greatest way we can prosper is by networking, so please tell a friend or two about the Annual Athletic Fund.

As always, thanks for your support. If you haven't had an opportunity to do so recently, come and visit us and get a first hand look at what is happening. You'll walk away agreeing that Great Things Happen Here!
