Scots Host Fairmont State

THE GAME:

The Scots host Fairmont State College with Pizza Hut serving as the game sponsor. At half time Pizza Hut will hold an "All You Can Eat Pizza Contest" for the fraternities and sororities.

THE RECORDS:

The Boro looks to recover from 20-17 setback from IUP. This was the first time that the Plaid lost at home to a Division II school under Tom Hollman. Edinboro has dropped three of their last four games.

Edinboro opened with a loss at I-AA YSU 24-0 then rebounded with wins over Northwood (25-14), Southern Connecticut (35-16), Bloomsburg (23-21), Clarion (17-9), and Lock Haven (28-12). The Plaid fell at Shippensburg (45-7) then drilled California (45-10) before suffering their second shutout of the season at the Rock (7-0).

Fairmont owns a forfeit win over West Virginia Tech and a tie with West Liberty (10-10) and stand at 1-7-1. They have fallen to Clarion (24-21), Slippery Rock (32-7), WV Wesleyan (3-0), Concord (21-16), Glenville (44-34), WV State (27-25) and most recently Shepherd (33-16).

THE SERIES:

This will be the second time that both teams have ended the regular season against one another. Fairmont holds a 6-3-2 record over the Scots. The series started with a 0-0 tie back in '73. In 7 of the 11 battles, games have been decided by 9 points or less. In the series, the Scots have tallied 160 points to the Falcons 169.

THE COACHES:

Hollman stands at 28-14-1 including an impressive 18-5-1 slate against western foes. Hollman's overall head coaching slate of 52-25-2 (.658%) ranks high among active Division II coaches. The Scots have been 5-4-1, 8-3, 9-3 and currently 6-4 under Hollman.

Veteran coach Wally Hood directs the Falcons. His eight-year slate with FSU is 41-35-4. Hood's overall slate in 17 years of collegiate coach is 90-74-7.

LOOK AT THE NUMBERS:

	Edinboro	Fairmont
Scoring	19.7 ppg	16.2 ppg
Total Offense	323.3 ypg	280.6 ypg
Rushing Offense	175.6	201.9
Passing Offense	147.7	78.7
Scoring Defense	17.8 ppg	23.7ppg
Total Defense	337.9 ypg	391.7 ypg
Rushing Defense	153.8	146.6
Passing Defense	184.1	245.1

THE OFFENSES:

Jody Dickerson (98-182-1,313-7 td-13 int) directs the offense and looks for Wrentie Martin (39-607-3 td), Lateef Walters (21-434-1 td), Paul Stone (8-107) and tight end Brian Heebsh (12-141-2 td).

Derrick Russell (58-300-3 td) got the call against IUP and responded with 102 yards and a pair of scores. The status of Lester Frye (128-637-11 td) and Derrick Lewis (57-282-2 td) is questionable following a game suspension. Freshman Larry Jackson (24-156-1 td) is another threat. Blocking up front continues to be Gordy Hitchcock, Wally Spisak, Curtis Rose, Mike Kegarise and Scott Nickel.

The Falcons counter with the running of tailback Irwin Hastings (222-1,080-8 td), a transfer from Kent State. He averages over 120 yards per game.

FSC is expected to start Aramis Figueora (40-92-496-2 td-6 int) over center. Hastings (12-92-1 td) can also catch the ball out of the backfield while Bryan Wilson (12-141-2 td) and Eric Ritz (11-196) are solid wideouts. Ritz is questionable after missing the Shepherd game with injury.

The Falcons love to run the ball evidence of their 201 yards per game average on the ground.

THE DEFENSES:

The Boro looks to contain the ground game with the play of All-American tackle John Messura (62 tackles-14 for loss-6 sacks), linemate Russell Cray (39) and ends Delvin Pickett (61-9 for loss-6 sacks) and Anthony Mariani (38).

The linebacking crew has been strong as of late with Jason Perkins (122-7 for loss-4 sacks-2 int), Joel Marratta (81-4 for loss-4 sacks), Mike Barnes (77) and Steve Russell (41-2 sacks-2 int).

The secondary has improved spearheaded by Georj Lewis (45-2 rec) who will start his 34th consecutive game at the corner. Wade Smith (67) is at free safety while Mario Houston (68-1 int) is at the other back spot.

FSC has picked 18 enemy passes and is a threat to Dickerson. SS Derek Judd (54 stops) owns 5 interceptions while CB Vashon Page (75) has 3 and 12 deflections. MLB Matt Joseph (128-2 int-2 rec-3 sacks-2 blk kicks) is outstanding. Up front, end Deion Frazier (68-3 rec-8 blk passes) and Allon Sansom (60) are both active.

SPECIAL TEAMS/KICKING GAME:

The Scots look to punter Gary Lhotsky (38.0-46 punts) and freshman placekicker Scott Rupert (4-6 field goals-19-23 PAT). Kick return specialist Larry Jackson (18-446-24.8 ypr) is one of the nation's best while Mike Barnes (7.5) handles punt return duties.

Punter Heath Flickinger (32.3) and Scott Lewis (4-10 fg-16-17 PAT) handle specialty chores. Charles Washington (22.7 ypr) and Hastings (18.5) return kickoffs while James France (7.1) will be back on punts.

President Foster F. Diebold

Since his appointment as president of Edinboro University of Pennsylvania on August 1, 1979, Foster F. Diebold has initiated a wide variety of policies and programs designed to complement his desire for an increased level of excellence and quality in higher education.

The Orange, New Jersey, native is a graduate of Monmouth College and also holds a master of arts in educational administration from Seton Hall University. He has met coursework requirements for a doctorate in education at Rutgers University and is currently completing the dissertation requirement for the Ph.D. program in higher education at the University of Pittsburgh.

Prior to his presidency of Edinboro University, President Diebold was president of the University of Alaska and the director of development and planning at Kean College in New Jersey. He has also served as an assistant superintendent of the Neptune Township (New Jersey) Public Schools.

Recognized for his extensive experience in the field of educational management, President Diebold's principal professional interests include ethics in higher education, budget development and fiscal control, legislative affairs, international education, personnel management and collective bargaining, and institutional advancement.

His scholarly achievements in the discipline of applied ethics in higher education deserves special mention. The model statement he authored for the American Association of State Colleges and Universities, "Ethical Practices for College Presidents," was unanimously adopted by that professional organization and published as policy for the chief executives of its nearly 400 member institutions nationwide. It has also been adopted by the Pennsylvania State System of Higher Education Board of Governors as a guiding statement for presidents of those institutions.

A staunch advocate of a statewide system of public universities in Pennsylvania, President Diebold supported the enabling legislation for the State System of Higher Education (Act 188 of 1982) and saw the State System come to existence in 1983 as a member of the transition team. He currently serves on the System's Executive Council of Presidents and on the boards of the Pennsylvania Academy for the Profession of Teaching, the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference, and the University Center at Harrisburg.

For his leadership and scholarly achievement on an international scale and for his many contributions to advancements of higher education and enrichment of an emerging culture in Pakistan, President Diebold was decorated with prestigious gold medals from three Pakistani universities. The awards for educational eminence were presented during visits to the Edinboro campus by official Pakistani delegations. Active in the community, he serves on the Board of Directors of the Erie Conference on Community Development, the United Way of Erie County, the Board of Corporators of both St. Vincent Health Center and Hamot Medical Center, and on the Executive Committee of the French Creek Council of the Boy Scouts of America. He is also a member of the Marine Bank Advisory Board, the Advisory Board of the McMannis Educational Trust Fund, and the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Corporation Scholarship Review Committee.

Athletic Director James K. McDonald

Jim McDonald

Edinboro University's athletic program was placed under the talented and aggressive leadership of Jim McDonald in July of 1981. Increased emphasis on fund raising to provide a sound scholarship foundation has become his top priority while numerous changes and innovations have also keyed the Scots' athletic program under his direction.

Through his efforts more than $4 million has been raised during the past ten years. The funds generated by the energetic athletic director's efforts will be used to assist Edinboro's men and women athletes who compete in the Scots sixteen intercollegiate sports.

In addition to maintaining Edinboro's respected winning tradition in intercollegiate athletics, the former health and physical education professor has vastly expanded the University's summer activities.

Fifty-six camps were sponsored by the Fighting Scots Booster Club this past summer on the University's campus. Sox Harrison Stadium is the site of the Cleveland Browns vs. the Buffalo Bills annual rookie scrimmage, which has been a mid-summer highlight.

The personable athletic director also introduced Edinboro's Hall of Fame program which has evolved into an annual year-ending event to honor present and past athletes.

McDonald has been at Edinboro since 1962 and for 12 years served as the Fighting Scot basketball coach (1962-1975) and never experienced a losing season while his teams compiled an impressive 181 wins against only 89 losses. During that span, his cagers won four Western Division Pennsylvania Conference crowns, the PC state championship and two District 18 titles that netted trips to the NAIA National Tournament. His teams set 27 University records and made 19 post-season appearances while four of his players were named All-Americans.

Prior to accepting his position at Edinboro, McDonald served as assistant basketball coach in Erie, Pa. He is a 1956 graduate of Bridgeport High School in his home town of Bridgeport, West Virginia.

In 1960 he received a degree in chemistry and physical education from West Virginia Wesleyan College and he also holds a master's degree in health from the University of Buffalo.

As an undergraduate, he set nine school records at Wesleyan and was twice voted both AP and UPI basketball All-American. In 1960, he was the second leading scorer in the United States, averaging slightly over 33 points a game, and led his team to the national basketball tournament in Kansas City, Missouri. He was named to the NAIA's All-Tournament Team in 1959 and 1960.

In 1966, McDonald was selected Area Eight Coach of the Year by the eastern seaboard coaches and that same year was honored as one of the top ten finalists in the Coach of the Year national poll. McDonald's honors also include selection to the West Virginia All-Time College Basketball Team and membership in the West Virginia Sports Hall of Fame.

As a resident of Edinboro, McDonald has a record of extensive community involvement. He was Little League Baseball director for four years and also held a four-year post as a member of the General McLane School Board. He and his wife, Mary Lou, have three sons - Mark, Mike and Matthew.

Can the Scots Make it Three in a Row?

The Edinboro University Fighting Scot football team, under the direction of four-year coach Tom Hollman, will look to remain among the NCAA Division II elite in 1991 as they set their sights on a third consecutive trip to the national playoffs.

Hollman, a 1968 graduate of Ohio Northern University, has earned high marks as the Scot mentor, leading Edinboro to a 22-10-1 overall mark and consecutive appearances in the NCAA playoffs. Even more impressive is his 15-2-1 slate in the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference Western Division. Hollman's overall coaching mark of 46-21-2 (.681%) ranks 11th among active Division II coaches.

The 1991 Scots return 14 starters and 40 lettermen from their 9-3 squad and will once again battle for PSAC West supremacy. The Scots captured the western crown two years ago and took second in 1990. Edinboro won their first ever Division II playoff game last November with a 38-14 win over Virginia Union then fell to arch-rival IUP 14-7 in the NCAA quarterfinals.

The Scots will once again face a rugged schedule in 1991 as they open at Division I-AA power Youngstown State on September 7. It is on the road again in week two at Northwood Institute (MI) - a squad that downed NAIA power Westminster in 1990. Edinboro returns home for weeks three and four hosting Southern Connecticut and Bloomsburg (Homecoming) on September 21 and 28.

Edinboro then faces consecutive western division tests at Clarion, Lock Haven and Shippensburg before returning home for a battle with California in late October. Playing five of their first seven games on the road will pose a great challenge for Hollman and the Scots.

After a trip to Slippery Rock in week nine, Edinboro hosts the showdown with IUP on November 9. Rugged Fairmont State follows at home to conclude the regular season.

A Look at the Scots

Skill Positions

The Scots will have to somehow find a way to replace the record setting passing combination of quarterback Hal Galupi and All-American Ernest Priester.

All-American tailback Lester Frye returns and once again carries a huge offensive load. With his record 317 carries last fall, Frye broke the all-time PSAC mark with 1,630 yards rushing. Frye rushed for 234 yards, including 203 in the first half, in the Scots' playoff win against Virginia Union.

Joining Frye will be returnees Derrick Russell (656 yards, 6.8 YPC avg., 6 TDs) and fullbacks Tom Tedder (192 yards, 1 TD) and Matt Koehle. At receiver, replacing Priester is impossible but the Plaid does boast Wrentie Martin (26 catches, 285 yards, 1 TD), Paul Stone (21, 270, 1 TD) and tight end Brian Heebsh (13, 238) to make up a strong receiving trio.

The quarterback spot is wide open with freshman redshirt Eric Kuhn and returnee Sean Seibert, who led the Scots to their playoff win, expected to battle for the #1 spot. Kuhn has never taken a snap for the Plaid while Seibert is nursing a wrist injury suffered in the spring.

Offensive Line

First team All-American Curtis Rose (OG) anchors the line at 6-3, 278 pounds. Named to numerous 1991 pre-season All-America teams, Rose has spearheaded the ground attack over the past three years. All-PSAC second team pick Wally Spisak returns at tackle while starters Scott Nickel and Mike Kegarise give the squad great strength up front. The latter two performers were first-year players in 1990 and also had great years for the Scots. Frank Gibson is expected to fill the void left by All-Conference pick Brad Powell.

Defensive Line

Here again, some holes to fill with the graduation of All-American Jeff Jacobs and Matt Miller. All-Conference choice John Messura (80 tackles, 10 for loss) can also rush the quarterback from his tackle spot. His nine sacks were second only to Miller in 1990. End Delvin Pickett (67 stops, 2 fumble recoveries including a score) is quietly effective on the outside. The Scots could get help as linebacker Anthony Ross (team high 115 tackles) is expected to move to the down position.

Linebackers

With Ross moving to the defensive end spot, returnee Jason Perkins (83 tackles) will carry a heavy load of responsibility on the inside. His 55 solo stops were second best for the Scots last fall.

Also returning on the inside will be Joel Marratta (72 tackles) who was a key man in the defensive success a year ago. Marratta was also the Boro's top special teams performer for 1990 as voted on by the players. Mike Gentile, Anthony Mariani and Steve Nagy have also seen game action in the past. This is a key position for the defense and the Scots will also look for someone to replace veteran All-PSAC performer Al Donahue.

Secondary

Possibly the strength of the 1990 squad, the defensive backfield will return in full. Pre-season All-American Wade Smith, a first-team PSAC pick last fall, will call the shots from his free safety spot. His 81 stops and four interceptions were among the team leaders in 1990. Smith's 12 interceptions is tied for second on the all-time Edinboro list.

Cornerbacks Mario Houston and Georj Lewis will be in the starting lineup while strong safety/outside linebacker Mike Barnes also returns. Houston was the PSAC West "Rookie of the Year" for 1990 and led the Scots with five interceptions. He was also in on 63 tackles. Lewis begins his third season in the secondary and has started every game since his freshman year. Lewis totaled 68 tackles with a pair of interceptions last year. Barnes was in on 63 stops and was tied with Smith for the team-lead in fumble recoveries with three.

Kicking Game

The place-kicking duties will be up for grabs during the fall season as the Scots must fill a void here. The punting chores will be secured by sophomore Gary Lhotsky who did a very solid job for the Plaid last fall. His 34.6 yards per punt mark on 40 tries was excellent for a first-year player.

Head Coach Tom Hollman

In January 1988, Edinboro University hired Tom Hollman, Athens, Ohio, as its eleventh head football coach in the school's history. Hollman came to Edinboro from Ohio University, where he was the defensive coordinator.

Hollman, beginning his fourth year, has turned the Scot program around. With the Scots he has earned 22 wins against just ten losses and one tie and owns an impressive 15-2-1 slate against the PSAC West.

In 1989, he was named the top coach in the East Region by the National Football Coaches Association and also tabbed the top coach in the PSAC West. Last season, he guided the Scots to their first-ever NCAA II playoff win as Edinboro routed Virginia Union and advanced to the national quarterfinals.

"Edinboro has been a great experience, and I like the direction of the program," Hollman said.

"As a coach, I have been fortunate to coach at many different levels, from high school to Division I. The Division II level here at Edinboro is very appealing to me in relation to my career goals. It is a great feeling to be a head coach at this level."

"I still feel one of the most important things about football on the Division II level is to make it fun for the players involved. My initial goal for this team when I got here was to make football an enjoyable environment for the team and coaching staff," Hollman added.

Hollman's educational background begins with a high school diploma from Memorial High School in St. Mary's, Ohio, followed by his undergraduate degree in education from Ohio Northern University in 1968. Three years later Hollman received his master of science degree in education from Xavier University in Cincinnati, Ohio.

While at Ohio Northern, Hollman was a three-year starter for the football team and a two-way performer as a defensive back and offensive end during his junior and senior years. He holds the school record with 13 career interceptions and earned All-American and All-District honors during the 1966 and 1967 seasons. Hollman also lettered in baseball for three years during his stay at Ohio Northern.

A chronological look at Hollman's coaching career begins in 1968 as an assistant coach at Sidney High School in Sidney, Ohio. From there, Hollman moved on to Greenville High School in Ohio where he became head coach from 1971-73. His Greenville squads posted an impressive 26-2-2 mark during his three-year stay.

Hollman then moved on to Fremont Ross High School as head coach for the 1974 and 1975 seasons, where his squad recorded 15 wins against three setbacks and two ties. Fremont was the Buckeye Conference champ in '74, unbeaten at 9-0-1.

In '76, Hollman moved on to the collegiate ranks where he was the defensive coordinator for his alma mater at Ohio Northern University.

The following year, Hollman accepted the head coach position at Wooster College (OH) and guided his squad to the best four-year record in the school's history (24-11-1).

In 1981, Hollman took an assistant coaching spot with Ball State University which he held through the '84 campaign. Then, beginning in 1985 Hollman held the defensive coordinator position at Ohio University.

"It has been a very comfortable transition for me," Hollman added. "I have found the community to be supportive and the administration is giving me every opportunity to be successful here at Edinboro," he concluded.

Tom resides in Edinboro with his wife, Kandi, and four children, Mari, Jon, Tim and Denise.

BY BILLY WATKINS

Coaches will tell you that big plays—long gainers that earn momentum, field position and sometimes even points—are the keys to football games. Coaches also will tell you that downfield blocking is the key to big plays.

"Good downfield blocking is the difference in a 10- or 12-yard run and a 60- or 80-yard run," says Phillip Fulmer, offensive coordinator at Tennessee.

"On just about every long run or a short pass that turns into a long gainer, there is a minimum of at least one downfield block," says Pete Cordelli, receivers coach at Notre Dame. "We shoot for four downfield knockdowns per half. We tell our players that if they give us four a half, then big plays will come. Stay with it. Stay with it. Persistence will pay off. And quite often that can mean the difference in the game."

"I remember a game a few years ago when we beat Alabama on a long run in the last few minutes," Fulmer says. "We knocked four Alabama guys on the ground downfield. It was exciting to show our guys the film of that because they saw for themselves what happens when you get downfield and throw good blocks. We make as big a deal over a good block as we do a touchdown.

like: blocks thrown in the defensive secondary, past the line of scrimmage. They might be five yards past the line of scrimmage, they might be 55. It depends on how the play develops.

In modern-day football, backs and wide receivers do a majority of the downfield blocking.

"We have certain plays where linemen are called on to block downfield," Fulmer says. "But we're basically an I-formation team, and our plays develop slowly. That forces us to keep our backside linemen in to block on the line of scrimmage."

Wide receivers hardly have the image of devastating blockers. Selling them on the job is a coach's top priority.

"Ninety-five percent of downfield blocking is simply wanting to," Fulmer says. "We tell a guy that he can play (at wide receiver) here if he'll go out and throw his body around. He may not play on third-and-long, but he'll play on other downs."

"Nowhere in the rule book does it say that wide receivers can't be physical," says Cordelli. "They're supposed to be pretty boys who never get knocked down...well, we don't look at it like that around here."

"The more things a receiver can do, the more valuable he is. There are pride factors involved. One guy will say, 'I got four knockdowns last game.' Another will say,

'Yeah, I got five.' We have a board set up that we call our winner's chart. Among other things, we keep up with how many knockdowns each receiver gets in a game."

"If a guy stays here three years and doesn't understand the importance of downfield blocking, I guarantee you he won't be playing. But it takes awhile for them to understand the importance of it."

"Downfield blocking is a mindset, a mental state of mind. They have to realize that an offense is 11 guys working in unison, not 9 or 10. They have to know that if they're not catching the football on a particular play, then they'd better be blocking for the guy who has the ball."

"And what really sells them on it is when they make a big block and the guy breaks it for a touchdown. They say, 'Hey, my block did that.'"

"We always make as big a deal as we can about a great downfield block," Fulmer says. "We want them to know how important (the coaches) think it is."

The importance is obvious at practice. "We usually work on it every day," Fulmer says. "If not every day, then certainly every other day."

"We work on it 15 minutes every day," Cordelli says. "Crossfield, downfield...we stress it all."

If desire to get the job done is the key, then proper technique is key 1-A. And blocking downfield correctly is much tougher than it may appear.

"Everybody says the toughest thing in football is making an open-field tackle," Cordelli says. "Wrong. The toughest thing is an open field block because the offensive guy can't grab, can't hold. You're on an island out there. It's just you and the defensive back one-on-one. And since you can't grab, you've got to be agile enough, tough enough, and keep your eyes open so that you can react to what the defensive back does.

"A defensive back should never miss a tackle in the open field because he can grab the blocker and throw him out of the way. And it's hard for the offensive guy not to grab, especially if the defensive guy gets around him. We emphasize in practice not grabbing the guy. If it happens, the player runs extra. There's nothing worse than having a long run, then seeing a yellow flag on the ground because a receiver reached out and grabbed somebody."

A recent rule change has allowed downfield blockers to extend their hands but not grab.

"It's made a big difference," Fulmer says. "It's helped in shielding the guy, but you have to be careful that it doesn't take away from the aggressiveness of the blocker."

Still, the downfield blocking technique is a tough one to master.

"...We make as big a deal over a good block as we do a touchdown."

Pete Cordelli

"The key, of course, is intensity," Cordelli says. "But another big key is knowing the proper angle to take to the defender so that you don't clip. It doesn't matter how hard or fast you go if you don't take the proper angle."

"Let's say a play is going away from you, the receiver. You should step first with your inside foot, the one towards the football, at a 45-degree angle, and work up the field. What you want to do is put your body between the defender and the ball. It's just like playing defense in basketball. You're not asking somebody to go out and kill the defender. It's a shield sort of block."

"And you must work on the upfield shoulder. What do I mean? Let's say you're the receiver and your right hand is to the ball. The shoulder you have to work with is your right shoulder, the one to the ball. If you blocked him with your left shoulder, you'd be knocking him into the play."

"One thing Coach (Lou) Holtz always emphasizes is that the hole runs from the line to the goal line. Whether the goal line is 99 yards or 12 yards away, as soon as the back breaks the line, he heads straight to the goal line. That allows the receiver to know the proper blocking angle to take.

"Now there comes a point where a cut by the running back is involved. The advantage the defender has is that he can see where the runner is going. If they're in zone coverage—if they're in man coverage it's no problem because you simply run him off—you teach the blocker to react to the defender's eyes. The defender will look right through the blocker to the runner, and those eyes will tell you where he's headed."

Practicing downfield blocking is difficult and risky. When asked how Tennessee goes about it, Fulmer answered: "Carefully. Too many times you get a guy's shoulder hurt if you're not careful."

"We used to do the old Burma Road cut drill, hash mark to hash mark. But we're more careful now. How? Well, I don't want to give away any secrets."

Says Cordelli: "We work from a frame of mind that if you're in a proper football position—staying low, under pads, have a good base—you cannot be injured. Sure, we used dummies for a lot of our practices, but there are days when we go live."

Cordelli says past success has helped build a pride factor about blocking among his receivers.

"Remember Tim Brown?" Cordelli says. "He was a great, great blocker. I can't tell you how many big plays he sprung for us. Another guy we have right now, Rocket Ismail, is a great blocker. He hit a guy last year right under the chin, and our entire sideline heard it."

"That sort of thing disrupts a defensive back's concentration. And anything we can do to take away from his concentration, we want to do it. Be in his face. Knock that sucker down." ■

The truth about the National Guard will blow you away.

We live next door to you.

We work with you. We teach your children. Build your homes. Pilot and maintain commercial airlines. Even repair your automobiles.

We're from all walks of life. And while we're really no different from you, something very important sets us apart.

We're America's citizen-soldiers. Dedicated to coming to your aid at a moment's notice. To protect your home. And defend our homeland. Yet, most Americans are unaware of just how many ways they depend on us.

On the frontline in Operation Desert Storm. On the frontline in the War on Drugs. On the frontline in local and state emergencies. On the frontline in nation-building efforts around the world. The Guard is there, defending the National interest, protecting our citizens and adding value to our states and nation.

The truth is that almost half the Army's combat units belong to the Army National Guard. You'll find us using the latest technology and equipment. From state of the art artillery units in Desert Storm to engineering and medical units helping our international neighbors.

And the Air National Guard? Today, we're a major contributor in all Air Force missions. From frontline fighter aircraft, medical evacuation and engineering units, to tactical and strategic airlift, and aerial refueling aircraft. We were airborne in the first hours of Desert Shield and Desert Storm.

We face other enemies, too. Fighting alongside the U.S. Border Patrol and U.S. Customs Service, we help keep millions of dollars worth of illegal drugs from ever reaching our children.

The National Guard was formed to protect our colonies over 350 years ago. Close to 186,000 Guardsmen were killed or wounded overseas during World War II. Almost the same number were called to action during the Korean War. In Vietnam, Guardsmen received over 1,700 medals for bravery. In Operation Desert Storm, 72,000 Guardsmen were called to duty with over 40,000 serving in the Gulf.

Unlike other branches of the Armed Forces, the National Guard's charge is two-fold. Times of disaster, strife and need find the National Guard always ready to lend a hand—whether it's halfway around the world or right in our own backyard.

The National Guard is the finest men and women of your hometown. We're skilled. Capable. Intelligent. We're Americans at their best.

And that's the truth.

Americans At Their Best.

WHO'S A TURKEY? The teams commandeered by head coaches Randy Oberembt and Kelly Kane (Knox, Monmouth College) usually battle it out on the gridiron, not on this turkey farm outside Peoria.

"OH YEAH?"

MONMOUTH COLLEGE SPORTS INFORMATION OFFICE

"YEEEEEAH!"

Meet a couple of feuds, outside of Division I no less, that would make the Hatfields and McCoys proud.

TOUCHDOWN ILLUSTRATED

BY MICHAEL BRADLEY

Knox College hadn't defeated Monmouth in 10 years when the two renewed their battle for the comically-named, yet highly-coveted, Bronze Turkey Trophy in November, 1976. In a rivalry as intense as this central Illinois classic, a decade-long victory drought can lead to some pretty heavy abuse. The two schools are 15 miles apart, so staying clear of enemy slings and arrows during the off-season is nearly impossible.

When Monmouth recovered a Knox fumble on the opening kickoff, Knox faithful probably started plotting ways to lay low for another year. But senior free safety Rodney Swan averted tragedy when he made a spectacular leaping interception to thwart the Monmouth drive. There was still hope for happiness during the next year.

Swan's play revived the Siwash, who ended their frustration with a 31-28 win. But when he tried to join in the wild celebration, Swan found that his leg wouldn't allow it. He had landed hard after that early interception, and exulting—not to mention walking—had become difficult.

"He came up to me and said, 'Coach, I think I'm going to need some help,'" said Knox Athletic Director Harley Knosher, then the school's defensive backfield coach. "I couldn't understand what he meant, because he had played so well.

"But after we got him off the field, we found that he had played the whole game with a broken leg suffered on the interception."

For small colleges throughout the country, the heroics of Rodney Swan and the like comprise the fabric of spirited rivalries with colorful histories and valiant efforts of every kind.

The whole country may tune in to see Michigan and Ohio State play for a bowl berth and national ranking, but only the residents of Galesburg and Monmouth get worked into a froth about the annual Bronze Turkey game. Ditto for other storied rivalries like Wabash-DePauw or Lehigh-Lafayette. The annual blue blood-letting between Yale and Harvard attracts a somewhat wider audience, due mostly to large alumni bases and the schools' roles in the history of college football.

All four rivalries have the components of their more fabled Division I-A counterparts—tradition, anecdotes, campus hijinks, heroes, goats, brags and boasts, winners and losers—without the hype or dollar signs. The games are played by non-scholarship student-athletes for pride and accomplishment, not bowl revenues and professional contracts. And while no national networks vie for the broadcast rights to these annual battles, their spirit and intensity are equal to that of rivalries on any other level.

"The intensity of the game between Wabash and DePauw caught me by surprise," admitted Tommy Mont, former coach and athletic director at DePauw and a former head coach at the University of Maryland. "As the game progressed, I began to realize that this is what college football is meant to be.

"The people playing love the game. There is no incentive for them other than desire."

THE BRONZE TURKEY

For two consecutive seasons during the 1960s, Knox and Monmouth both appeared on Look magazine's weekly college football "Bottom Ten" ranking of the nation's worst teams. The first year, Knox whipped Monmouth. The next, Monmouth defeated Knox.

"It was bad enough being on the list," Knosher said. "But if you could beat Monmouth, everything was okay. If you lost, it was unbearable."

Throughout the 101 years of the battle for the Bronze Turkey, the Division III teams have experienced the unbearable and the unbelievable. Monmouth's 19-14 win in 1990 gave it a 46-45-10 advantage, its first-ever lead in the series. Knox won the inaugural game in 1884, 22-4.

The game used to be played on Thanksgiving (it is now played in early November)—thus the genesis of the Bronze Turkey prize. In 1928, a Knox player named Bill Collins decided the game should be played for some award—a la Big Ten prizes like the Old Oaken Bucket or Little Brown Jug. He persuaded two local newspapers to contribute $40 apiece and bought the trophy from a local jeweler. That year, Monmouth won the initial battle for the bird, 2-0.

Since that time, the Bronze Turkey has been the target of several pranks and thefts. In late 1942, the gobbler disappeared from the Monmouth trophy case and wasn't returned until 1947. Legend has it that the bird had been buried in the basement of the school's gymnasium.

In 1965, two Knox students, posing as journalists from a Peoria paper, asked that the trophy be removed from its case at Monmouth so that they could photograph it without glare. When no one was looking, the "reporters" dashed off with the prize.

"I don't think the rivalry is as bitter as it was in my day," said Bobby Woll, who played at Monmouth from 1931-33 and was the school's athletic director for 25 years. "When I was A.D., we had to stand guard to make sure they wouldn't burn a 'K' into our field."

127 GAMES AND COUNTING: Lehigh and Lafayette have been battling it out since 1884.

Monmouth named its football field after Woll, the school's famous "Mighty Mite" who helped the Scots to a 30-6 win in 1933 with an 87-yard touchdown run.

The 129-pound Woll would not have been able to run wild had he played in 1972. That year, Knox came to Monmouth with a fleet team but found the Scots' field a quagmire, despite no rain having fallen in days. The larger Scots prevailed, 7-6, and Knox supporters were irate.

"Their coach told us that the guy in charge of watering the field fell asleep," Knosher recalled with a chuckle.

You can tell Knosher respects Monmouth for its "strategy" in that game. He realizes incidents like that preserve the tradition of such a storied rivalry.

"We get kids pretty fired up around here for a Knox-Monmouth golf match," he said.

And they're not even playing for a turkey.

FAMILIARITY BREEDS RESPECT

During the usual, pre-Super Bowl mass-media circus in 1982, a reporter stuck a microphone in the face of Cincinnati Bengals' wide receiver Steve Kreider and asked his opinion of the world's biggest football game.

"It's not Lehigh-Lafayette, but it will do," Kreider said.

There are older and even more storied rivalries, but no two teams have played as often as Lehigh University and Lafayette College. The two schools, located in the neighboring northeast Pennsylvania towns of Bethlehem (Lehigh) and Easton, have played 126 games since their initial contest in 1884, thanks in part to multiple meetings during the game's early years. Lafayette won the opener, 50-0, while Lehigh took last season's contest, 35-14, closing Lafayette's series lead to 69-52-5.

The two schools share similar educational missions and joined the Patriot League because of its commitment to the Ivy ideal of academics first. Yet even the stodgiest bookworms find it easy to get excited about the big game.

"Everything builds toward the game," said Joe Whritenour, who served as sports information director at Lehigh from 1965-84. "The coaches are judged by their performance in that game. It's a second, one-game season, and it's a long time until next year, especially if you have to keep explaining why you got licked."

Like any spirited rivalry, Lehigh-Lafayette has had its share of pranks and practical jokes.

In the early 1980s, some students from Lafayette sneaked into Lehigh's Taylor Stadium three weeks prior to the game and used a weed killer to spell out a vulgar phrase on the field. The grass died two days before kickoff, revealing the message.

"When the odors are mean..."

OH YEAH?

"That called for some quick mowing and coloring," Whritenour said.

In the 1930s and '40s, Lafayette had a live leopard on campus as a mascot that was a frequent target of would-be Lehigh thieves. Another time, two Lafayette students slept in a van outside the field where Lehigh's pre-game bonfire was to be held and lit the blaze a day ahead of schedule.

These days, guards are posted on both campuses during game week to protect against pranksters. Those unfortunate enough to be caught in the act generally get an impromptu trip to the barber.

The off-field shenanigans are generally overshadowed by the games themselves. The 1940 Lafayette team entered the season-ending matchup with the Engineers undefeated, and Leopard coach Hook Mylin was afraid his team may be overconfident. It took one half of play to allay his fears.

"We got out to a 33-0 halftime lead, and Hook came in and said, 'What can I say?'" said James T. Farrell, a halfback on that team. "We ended up winning 46-0."

The 1977 Lehigh team won the Division II national title and got some unexpected support.

"Lafayette was rooting for us throughout the playoffs," Whritenour said. "It's an intense rivalry, but both teams respect each other."

THE MONON BELL

Wabash College Athletic Director Max Servies cranked up his calculator last winter and came up with a remarkable statistic. In the 124 years Wabash has played DePauw University in athletic events of every kind, a scant one game separated the two teams.

Heading into the spring 1991 season, Wabash led its heated rival 325-324-14.

"This is the greatest rivalry in Division III," said Servies, who's not at all biased by his 31 years as a coach and A.D. at Wabash. "The intensity in the general rivalry in academics and athletics is tremendous."

DePauw leads on the football field, 45-44-8, thanks to a 20-13 win last season, its fourth straight over Wabash. The win meant DePauw maintained custody of the coveted Monon Bell trophy, a 350-pound railroad bell donated by the Monon Railroad Company to the schools in 1932.

Even without athletics, the two schools would be rivals. Wabash, located in Crawfordsville, Ind., is an all-male school just 27 miles from DePauw's co-ed Greencastle campus. DePauw students refer to their Wabash rivals as "Cavemen," while Wabash men respond with cries of "Sissies" to the Dannies, as DePauw students are known.

"Wabash likes to play up its image as cavemen," said former DePauw coach and A.D. Tommy Mont. "But the truth is that some of the co-eds from DePauw date Wabash men."

Mont's role in the history of the DePauw-Wabash clash is clearly defined. He is as revered for his decision to leave Division I Maryland for the serenity and charm of Division III life as he is for his 13-5 record against Wabash. His legend is enhanced by his actions in 1960, his second year at DePauw and the first year the two-point conversion was instituted in NCAA football.

The Dannies scored a last-minute touchdown to pull within 13-12 of their archrivals, and Mont had to decide whether to try for two points and the win or one and a tie. He chose to accept the consensus. He asked the DePauw crowd. They screamed "Go!" He did, and DePauw won, 14-13.

"We tried to downplay the rivalry when I was coaching and try to make it as relaxed as possible for the kids the week before the game," Mont said. "One of the things we did in the summer was get ready for Wabash, so when the week of the game came, we had our basic game plan in already."

It's never too early to start planning for the big game.

THE GAME

Yale Coach T.A.D. Davis stood before his players in mid-1920s and told them, "Gentlemen, you are about to play football for Yale against Harvard. Never in your lives will you do something so important." To some Yalies, that is not hyperbole. Among football rivalries on any level, none can match the history and legacy of Harvard-Yale.

Harvard is not even Yale's longest-standing opponent. That distinction goes to Princeton, which has played the Bulldogs since 1873, the NCAA's oldest current rivalry. Together, those three schools dominated college football during its formidable years. And though today's Harvard-Yale games have little significance in the temporal gridiron world—thanks to the schools' move to Division I-AA—each time the game is renewed, football is a little richer.

"The nature of the game hasn't really changed," said Vic Gatto, a Harvard half-back from 1966-68 and now the finance director of the Massachusetts Republican Party. "It was then and continues to be a really good barometer of what it means to play amateur football."

In Gatto's senior season, 1968, the two teams entered the game undefeated and played what is possibly the most exciting game in the entire, 115-year series (Yale leads, 58-41-8). Gatto helped lift the Crimson from a 29-13 deficit to a 29-29 tie in the game's final 42 seconds, prompting the Harvard Crimson to run a headline reading, "Harvard beats Yale, 29-29."

"About 50,000 people filled Harvard Stadium for that game, but because things were so discouraging after three-and-a-half quarters, most of them had left to beat the Boston traffic," Gatto said. "Of course, about 250,000 now say they were there at the end."

Yale's quarterback that day was Brian Dowling, since immortalized in the comic strip "Doonesbury" as the helmeted "B.D." He remembers the frustration of watching from the sidelines as Harvard came back from the big deficit, yet he understands the rally's significance in the rivalry's storied history.

"The Game brings together two of the oldest and most reputable universities in the country," Dowling said. "And the significance of the rivalry doesn't hit you until after you've played. What happened in the final game when Vic and I played just adds to it."

So do the extracurricular activities surrounding the game. Alumni come from all over the country to participate in some of the country's most elaborate tailgating parties. "I'm sure all sorts of deals are made, stocks exchanged and real estate sold outside the stadiums," Gatto said.

Students from MIT even get involved in the fun. Last year, a balloon came out of the ground and floated across the field at Harvard Stadium with a message about MIT.

"The two teams have a totally different perspective on football," said Gatto. "It's a good one." ■ 222-0!

While powerful Georgia Tech was busy running up the score, poor Cumberland College was running for dear life.

BY TOM SLEAR

The final score was 222-0; 63-0 after the first quarter, but George Allen, Cumberland University's coach, hardly noticed. He was too busy trying to keep his players on the field to face the behemoths from Georgia Tech. Two players had already deserted, only to be discovered when a frightened halfback ran off the field to avoid an army of Tech tacklers. Not feeling safe enough just being out of bounds, he jumped the fence surrounding the field and landed in the laps of his AWOL teammates.

Another Cumberland player refused to leave the safety of the Georgia Tech bench. When Coach Allen looked down at his own bench, his players quickly grabbed a limb and grimaced in pain. Allen even thought about putting himself into the game, but he didn't work up the courage until the third quarter, when he went in as a punter. His kick was deadly accurate, striking his own center squarely in the back of the head.

The year was 1916, the date was October 7, and the event was the most absurdly lopsided game ever played in college football. Its genesis is difficult to pinpoint. Maybe it was when in 1904, when John Heisman, the innovative and celebrated college coach, was lured away from Clemson to Georgia Tech.

Tom Slear is a freelance writer living in Maryland and a frequent contributor to sports publications.

Illustrations by Jeffrey Allen

Heisman was happy with the powerhouse he had built at Clemson and even the bloated salary of $3,000 could not entice him to go farther south. But a little research did. Georgia Tech's search committee discovered that the dictatorial coach was a frustrated Shakespearean actor. Though he was given to occasional outbursts of "Block, you flaming jackasses," he more often pleaded with his players to "Block with courage and determination so we shall win the day."

When the coach was asked if he knew that Atlanta had the best theaters in the South, he replied with something like, "Gentlemen, where shall I affix my signature so that I may serve you faithfully as your football coach?"

Heisman's theatrics did not stop with his language. A year earlier, on the day before Clemson played Georgia Tech, he sent ahead an out-of-shape group of students to masquerade as the football team. The welcoming committee in Atlanta directed them to nearby saloons where the "players" stayed most of the night. The next day, the Georgia Tech team was confident of beating their hung over opponents until the real players, whom Heisman had sequestered in a hotel outside of Atlanta, ran out to meet them. In the stands were the bleary-eyed stand-ins, the school's cheerleading squad. Clemson won 73-0.

Predictably, Heisman brought Georgia Tech to national prominence while introducing the center snap, the command of "hike," a scoreboard, formations that resemble today's T and I, and the hidden ball trick. But a national championship eluded him because the polls were based principally on points scored. Heisman thought it ridiculous, but if Heisman was anything, he was practical. Consequently, the 1916 game with Cumberland University, a small school (now a college) in Lebanon, Tennessee, whose football glory days were 10 years past. The deal was clinched with a $500 guarantee, or, as it would turn out, just over $2 a point.

And Allen, a law student fascinated by coaching sports, but not participating in them, was greedy. Though Cumberland had dropped football the year before, he was determined to resurrect the sport with the battle cry of "Remember $500."

Like Heisman, Allen had a theatrical inclination. To get the payoff, he had to field a football team without the school's hierarchy

The first PS/2 for people with window offices.

INTRODUCING A PS/2® LAPTOP THAT PERFORMS LIKE A DESKTOP PS/2.

For millions of people, there's a whole world of business where the window offices have wings and your lap is your desk. It's as far from working in an office as you can get, but it's every bit as demanding. That's why IBM has created its most personal computer ever—the Personal System/2® Laptop 40 SX.

Although it's just 7.7 pounds, the PS/2 Laptop still lets you carry a lot of weight. It has the same Intel 386SX™ processor you'll find in best-selling desktop computers, so it's powerful enough to let you create or plan right on site. It also has a 3.5" diskette drive like the one in your office, and the 60MB hard drive can store all the information you'll need to close the deal or make the presentation.

Instead of compromising comfort, the PS/2 Laptop has a full-size keyboard spaced and arranged the same way as a desktop PS/2's. And the large, easy-to-read, 10"-diagonal screen delivers VGA-quality graphics with amazing clarity and contrast, so it's easy on your eyes.

It even comes with a numeric keypad you can plug in for serious number crunching and a special feature suspends power when the screen is closed and returns to full power when you open it, letting you resume work right where you left off. With a Data/Fax Modem you can plug into a phone line and communicate with other computers, access up-to-the-minute facts and figures—you can even write memos or place orders instantly and fax them to the home office.

And the PS/2 Laptop comes with something no laptop should be without—an international warranty* backed by thousands of Authorized Remarketers worldwide, so you're never far away from service and support.

THEY SAID IT COULDN'T BE DONE

Great Comebacks and Other "Against All Odds" College Football Stories — presented by Rogaine.

Harvard's Comeback Ties "The Game"

Each year Harvard and Yale play in a game so big that their alumni merely refer to it as "The Game."

Nothing fancy, just "The Game." Dating back to 1875, none matched the pyrotechnics of the 1968 game, one that saw both teams come into the game undefeated for the first time in 59 years. And go out the same way.

But therein lies the "They-said-it-couldn't-be-done" storyline. For Yale, led by Calvin Hill and Brian Dowling, had dominated the game, leading 29-13 late in the fourth period. That's when a second-string Harvard quarterback named Frank Champi decided to show the crowd that it was he and not Dowling who was the reincarnation of Frank Merriwell. First, Champi drove Harvard downfield in a nine-play, 86-yard drive, culminating with a scrambling 15-yard pass for a touchdown. The two-point plunge was good and the score now stood 29-21. Only 38 seconds remained, and Yale fans, waving handkerchiefs and shouting "We're No. 1," didn't seem fazed. But Harvard tried an onside kick and recovered the fumbled ball on Yale's 49-yard-line. Champi faded back and then scrambled down to the Eli 35. A face mask penalty tacked on another 15. Time remaining: 32 seconds. After attempting two "Hail Marys" into the end zone, Champi surprised everyone and called a trap, which brought the ball down to the six. After a loss of two yards there was time for only one more play. That was all Champi needed as he scrambled around in the backfield and found his senior captain, Vic Gatto, for a touchdown.

Now down 29-27 — and with no time on the clock — the well-wishers on the field were cleared off and Harvard lined up for a two-point conversion. Champi, living up to his newly-minted hero status, calmly fired a bullet pass into the gut of Peter Varney and the greatest comeback in the history of "The Game" had been pulled off.

One of football's surprise ploys is the onside kick, an ambush of the other team that more often than not misfires. And yet it is something that every team worth its water bucket has in its arsenal, saving it for just the right moment. Back in 1972, tiny Catawba College of North Carolina needed something, anything against Carson-Newman College of Tennessee. Down 33-0 at half-time, Catawba's coach decided to come out for the second half and try an onside kick. It worked and Catawba marched down the field to score. Not wanting to leave well enough alone, they tried another onside kick. It worked and, again, they scored. Again they tried; again they scored.

Catawba QB Donnie Davis completes a pass against Carson-Newman

Five straight times, Catawba kicked off onside and five straight times they recovered and scored, controlling the ball for 26 consecutive plays and nearly 15 minutes. Unfortunately, it still wasn't enough as Carson-Newman hung on to win 41-34 in one of the strangest games on record.

There have been half-time pep talks and there have been half-time pep talks. Certainly the most famous was the inspirational one given by Knute Rockne to his down-at-the-heels Notre Dame team between halves of an Army game when he invoked his "Win-One-for-the-Gipper" speech and then stepped back to watch his team take apart the Cadets in the second half.

But perhaps the most unusual and effective locker room speech came from Nebraska coach Dana X. Bible during the Indiana-Nebraska game of 1936. Losing 9-0 to Indiana at halftime, Bible walked dejectedly into his dressing room and tried to fire up his Cornhusker team. First he tried the usual fire-and-brimstone approach: "You don't have the desire to win!" he thundered. "You don't have the courage to fight back."

After that Bible shifted into second gear: "The first eleven players who go through that door will start the second half. The rest of you will sit on the bench." And, with that, he stepped back and added one more thing: "Alright, girls, let's go!" That did it. A slugging match followed as players began tearing at each other to get through the door first. Finally eleven strong and sturdy did manage to break away from the resulting free-for-all and make it out onto the field, where they turned the game around and beat Indiana in the second half, 14-9.

Medical studies reveal...

The earlier you use Rogaine, the better your chances of growing hair.

Rogaine is the only product ever proven to grow hair. And studies show that using it at the first signs of hair loss gives you the best chance that it will grow hair for you.

What are the early warning signs of losing hair?

Everyone loses a little hair. Fifty to 80 hairs a day is normal. If you're losing more than 100 hairs a day without normal replacement, the first sign will often be thinning of the "crown" at the top of your scalp. See your doctor when you first notice it, because this small bald spot can grow larger over time.

Two million men worldwide have tried Rogaine. In year-long clinical tests conducted by dermatologists at 27 medical centers nationwide, virtually half (48%) of the men who tried Rogaine saw at least moderate hair regrowth. Thirty-six percent had minimal regrowth and only 16% had no regrowth.

Doctors also found that it usually takes 4 months or more before you can begin to evaluate your use of Rogaine. Side effects were minimal: only 5% of the men tested had itching of the scalp.

"I may not have grown any hair after 6 months, but most of my hair's stopped falling out. I'm glad I got to the doctor fast." —Luis Silva, 20

Will Rogaine work for you?

Only a dermatologist or other doctor who treats hair loss can tell you, so see one soon. The sooner you get your prescription for Rogaine (which is now available in an economical three-pack), the sooner you could be growing hair.

For more information, a list of doctors in your area who can help you, and a certificate worth $10 as an incentive to visit your doctor, call the toll-free number below.

Call 1-800-753-5559 ext. 694 for your $10 certificate. Soon.

"The first time I saw hair growing was at about 8 months. I hadn't lost much... but I'm not taking any chances." —Tony Vila

"My hair's completely filled in. It started growing in under 2 months. It was amazing! Early treatment... it works!" —Jim Willets, 30

CHECK YOUR PRECONCEIVED NOTIONS AT THE DOORS. The All-New Bonneville.

If you've always believed the only way to get an agile, aero-styled, high-performance sedan was to buy small, you're in for a big surprise. It's time to forget the past, and introduce yourself to the all-new 1992 Pontiac Bonneville.SM

By its engineering specifications alone, the new Bonneville shatters that myth convincingly. Under its beautifully redesigned shape lurks a potent 170 horsepower 3.8L 3800 V6 with tuned port sequential fuel injection locked onto an advanced electronic 4-speed automatic. Available anti-lock brakes and a precision-engineered, road-gripping sport suspension for outstanding control, stopping or steering. Available advanced traction control for superb power application on slippery surfaces. There's even a driver's-side airbag for additional safety assurance.

That's the technical side. But to really get the feel of the new Bonneville, you've got to get behind the wheel. Notice how the solid-feeling controls react smoothly to the touch. How the full complement of analog gauges are well-defined for quick, decisive reads. How the whole cockpit is driver-oriented, and designed for performance.

And by the way, the new Bonneville is a full-fledged, full-sized four-door that can easily carry six adults. Just thought we'd remind you.

The all-new 1992 Bonneville. Climb in and throttle one up. Just be prepared for an attitude adjustment to take place. Very, very quickly.

MINOLTA

TIPS ON SHOOTING SPORTS

Imagine this. There's less than two minutes left in the game. Buffalo Bills quarterback Jim Kelly goes into a no-huddle offense. He's working out of the shotgun, taking one-step drops and firing 10-yard passes to star wide receiver Andre Reed. The L.A. Raiders are caught off balance. Kelly remains cool. In just a few quick plays, the Bills have marched 50 yards down the field, deep into Raiders territory. The Raiders defense has no time to get set.

And neither do you. Not if you're the photographer. With this kind of fast, unpredictable action you've got to be ready to catch it the instant it happens. Today's sophisticated SLR equipment can get us into the game like never before. Autofocusing lets us cover all the angles, while fast film and fast lenses offer more action-stopping potential than ever. But now, there's even more. Another breakthrough in photo history.

Just recently, the photographic company that pioneered autofocusing in SLR cameras introduced a camera that operated in an entirely new way. With the use of an intelligence system featuring fuzzy logic control, they created a camera that actually thinks!

Programmed with the experience of professional photographers, this revolutionary new decision-making 35mm SLR can make up to a million calculations per second and distinguish between sports action, closeups, portraits, landscapes, and even romantic low-light scenes. All in the blink of an eye. Since the camera thinks along with you, it can react instantly to any situation at any time.

This sophisticated new SLR can respond to the most subtle changes in movement, lighting or contrast within the scene being photographed. It discerns the main subject and sets the best exposure program for that subject and condition. Autofocusing is lightning-fast, continuous, and omni-directional. It tracks even quick, erratic subject movement in any direction with ease.

But what about the unpredictable? Those split-second expressions, gestures, or moments that can be missed in the time it takes to zoom the lens and compose the shot. Two exclusive new features called eye-start operation and autozoom provide the solution. When you pick up the camera and look through the viewfinder, special sensors in the grip and eyepiece activate all its functions. So the camera is always ready when you are.

And then an amazing thing happens. The lens automatically zooms to compose your shot, and you don't have to touch a single button! The camera does all the work. It instantly gives you an ideal subject magnification, saving precious seconds so you can capture that once-in-a-lifetime shot.

This is the first of a new breed of SLR cameras born for action. It gives you ultimate performance while keeping you in the creative driver's seat. With a unique transparent graphic display viewfinder, you can monitor camera functions and select shutter-priority, aperture-priority, expert program, or metered manual exposure control.

And if you want unlimited creative potential, check out today's optional SLR accessories like the tiny software cards that program the camera for specialized functions. One such card tells the camera to select the highest shutter speeds possible—to freeze sports and other fast action without a blur.

So, to catch fast sports action as fast as it happens, tap into today's advanced technology. All you have to do is look through the viewfinder, and the camera does the rest. Just press the shutter button when you want to take the picture. And if the action gets really hot, hold that shutter button down and the camera will shoot high-speed action-stopping sequences at four frames per second, ALL IN PERFECT FOCUS.

Fuzzy logic control, eye-start operation, autozoom, and camera software cards. Incredible advancements in photographic technology created for just one purpose—to give you expert results that were at one time limited only to professionals. Imagine what it can do for you. Good luck and good shooting!

Palmolive® Softest Hands

A Six-Part Series Saluting College Football's Greatest Receivers

THE SOFT HANDS THAT MADE THE HEISMAN

By Bert Randolph Sugar

There have been twosomes throughout history as well paired as salt and pepper. These twosomes have sprung up in every imaginable field — food: ham and eggs; mythology: Damon and Pythias; music: Gilbert and Sullivan; finance: Dow and Jones; theatre: Lunt and Fontaine.

But what about football? Why have the soft hands of the receiver been as overlooked as Whistler's Father when discussing passing twosomes?

Look at the number of quarterbacks who have won the Heisman Trophy. Who were they throwing the ball to? And why haven't the other halves of these passing tandems shared in the quarterback's celebrity?

After all, so the reasoning goes, all those completions went to someone, didn't they? Then why has the name of the receiver who made all of the completions been air-brushed over, lost to the annals of time?

Where, for example, would Auburn's Pat Sullivan have been if it weren't for the soft hands of Terry Beasley? And Johnny Lujack without Terry Brennan or Tommy Harmon without Forest Evashevski?

In a belated effort to set the record straight, let's look at those Heisman Trophy winners who won at quarterback and their favorite receivers that brought them fame, the Heisman and, not incidentally, all those completions:

Year	QUARTERBACK	RECEIVER	Year	QUARTERBACK	RECEIVER
1937	Clint Frank, Yale	Larry Kelley	1964	John Huarte, Notre Dame	Jack Snow
1938	Davey O'Brien, TCU	Earl Clark	1966	Steve Spurrier, Florida	Jim Yarborough
1940	Tommy Harmon, Michigan	Ed Frutig and Forest Evashevski	1967	Gary Beban, UCLA	Dick Trapp
1943	Angelo Bertelli, Notre Dame	Jack Yonakor	1970	Jim Plunkett, Stanford	Dave Nutall
1944	Les Horvath, Ohio State	Jack Dugger	1971	Pat Sullivan, Auburn	Randy Vataha
1947	Johnny Lujack, Notre Dame	Terry Brennan	1984	Doug Flutie, Boston College	Gerard Phelan
1956	Paul Hornung, Notre Dame	James Morse	1986	Vinny Testaverde, Miami	Brett Perriman
1962	Terry Baker, Oregon State	Vern Burke	1989	Andre Ware, Houston	Manny Hazard
1963	Roger Staubach, Navy	Dave Sjuggerud

But, just as it's unfair to single out the quarterback without mentioning his favorite target, so, too, is it equally unfair to mention a Heisman winner who was a receiver without mentioning the man who threw him the ball. Therefore, in the name of fairness, we list those soft-handed receivers who have won the Heisman and the quarterback who made their accomplishments possible:

Year	RECEIVER	QUARTERBACK
1936	Larry Kelley, Yale	Clint Frank
1949	Leon Hart, Notre Dame	Bobby Williams
1972	Johnny Rodgers, Nebraska	David Humm
1987	Tim Brown, Notre Dame	Tony Rice

A boy named Mike grows up in Oregon and decides the two things he values most in his young life are his family and sports. So, he sets his goal early and never wavers: a college athletic scholarship, which will further his dream of playing professional sports and help out his family financially.

Many dream this dream, of course, and some succeed. Like Mike, who becomes a model student and a talented, multi-sport athlete who attracts college recruiters and, one day, is awarded a football scholarship at UCLA.

Nothing particularly unusual about Mike's story. Nothing except the fact that his given name is actually Huy Hung Nguyen and he was born in Saigon in 1972, which makes Mike Nguyen (pronounced win), an otherwise typical redshirt freshman striving for playing time at a big-time football power, the first person born in Vietnam to play college football.

It also makes whatever difficulties he might face on a football field this fall against Stanford or USC trivial by comparison to what his family has already been through.

"Everything I know about Vietnam is second-hand," he says in perfect English. "I was very young, and I don't really remember. I know this, though. We're really lucky to be alive."

Mike does not remember the dangers his family faced in Vietnam. He wasn't yet 3 years old when his mother carried him through the chaotic streets of Saigon the night of April 29, 1975, just hours before North Vietnamese troops captured the city. He doesn't remember the nightmarish scene at the South Vietnamese naval base, where families fought each other, even shot each other, for spots on a boat that would carry them to God only knew where.

When the boat appeared ready to leave Mike's mother on the dock, his father, an electrician in the South Vietnamese navy, cut the ship's power until Mike's mother could board. Left behind to face the wrath of a vengeful enemy were Mike's grandparents and aunts and uncles, whom he has never seen since.

"It's been hard to have any contact with them," says Mike. "My mom sends letters, but a lot of them don't get through."

Having escaped Saigon, the family—father Hung Nguyen, mother Hoang Tran, Mike and his infant sister—headed for the Philippines, then to Guam, then to Camp Pendleton in California. Within a year, they were sponsored for residency in a small town in Oregon, where Hung was employed as a gardener and Hoang as a maid. Their total compensation: $150 a month and use of a one-bedroom house.

But when Hoang became pregnant, the family was kicked out of the house and ended up in Roseburg, Ore., aided by a Lutheran minister who sought donations for them and helped them find a house.

"Our living conditions were very, very difficult," says Mike's mother, Hoang. "We had difficulty learning English, and my husband and I both went to school, which meant we didn't have as much time with the kids as we wanted."

Their goal was to blend in. They had no choice.

Mike remembers little of that period. As he grew up, he began hearing stories of who he was and where he came from. The details would fade from memory until, one night, the story would be retold, and it was like a new story all over again.

"My mom doesn't always remember what she's told me," he says. "It seems like sometimes I'll hear a new story, and I'll be shocked."

Like the story about his father, before Mike was born, riding in a jeep with three other sailors and striking a land mine. His father was the only one who survived the explosion.

"I've never been back to Vietnam," says Mike. "Someday, I'd like to. But growing up, I didn't feel Vietnamese, really. I didn't know anything about the war. I was becoming very Americanized. You have to be, whether you want to or not, because of the interaction with the other kids. You have to fit in."

What Mike remembers, mostly, is sports.

"I started when I was 8 years old," says Mike. "A friend of mine at school was on a baseball team. I'd go watch his practices. I never really had any intention of playing, but one day they were short a man. I went in, and I guess I liked it. From there, I started playing baseball."

One thing led to another, and pretty soon young Mike was excelling in just about everything: baseball, football, basketball, track.

Meanwhile, Mike's father had earned his electrician's license and the family had moved to Portland, with the American dream clearly in sight.

Then, in 1982, his father was seriously injured in a motorcycle accident. For two and a half years, he was paralyzed, unable to move or speak, and he died in 1985 at age 39.

Says Mike: "It was really hard, something you can't explain unless you go through it. I was at an age that I just wanted to know why. It was a really sad time, something we all had to deal with. I knew that I had to go see him, yet I dreaded it, and then I felt bad for not wanting to see him."

After her husband's death, Hoang started her own business, helping southeast Asian refugees with a wide range of services, such as taxes, language skills and referrals. She also now owns an Oriental gift and flower shop.

"She's very independent," says Mike. "She had to be."

Despite the demands of her business and coping with being a single parent in an adopted country, her children blossomed. All three, Mike and daughters Susan and Melissa, have excelled in the classroom. Mike left Portland's Franklin High School as one of four recipients of the school's outstanding citizenship award, and his 3.9 GPA placed him in the National Honor Society.

On Franklin's playing fields, Mike was similarly special. He routinely set records and won honors. He lettered in baseball, basketball and track, but it was in football, where he was a team captain for three years, that he attracted the most attention. As a senior wide receiver and defensive back, he caught 53 passes for 745 yards and 10 touchdowns, and intercepted four passes. He was first team All-State and on various All-America lists.

"His concentration and his motivation were just incredible," says his football coach, Frank Geske.

At 6-2, 180, he is unusually tall for a Vietnamese man. His father was 5-9. His mother, barely 5 feet, says there are tall men in the family back in Vietnam. Says Mike: "It's really strange. I have stretch marks on my body for no reason. On my shoulders and on my back. I really don't know how I got so tall."

He is playing wide receiver at UCLA, where he figures to see plenty of action with quarterback Tommy Maddox directing offensive coordinator Homer Smith's wide-open attack.

Although Mike was a good enough center fielder to attract some baseball scouts, football was always his first choice.

"Football was the most exciting of all the sports I played," says Mike. "The feeling you get playing a football game doesn't compare to anything. It's kind of hard to explain. It just seems there's so much more work that goes into it, and it's a lot more rewarding."

And they give you a free education if you're good enough at it. For a boy who, when his family was struggling financially, promised his mother he was going to get a college scholarship, that meant a lot.

"He's my son, and I'm proud of him no matter what he accomplishes, but I have to say that he has been like a dream come true for me," says Hoang, who recently remarried.

Not that she doesn't get a kick out of Mike's sports.

"At first, she didn't really know much about football," says Mike. "She used to think it was just a whole bunch of people out there just beating each other up for the ball. But the last couple of years, she doesn't miss a game. She really loves football now, and she understands it. It's gotten to the point where if I'm not around or not playing in a game and there's a game on TV, she'll sit down and watch it. It think that's really neat."

Mike has very few feelings about America's involvement in Vietnam or of the war. In that sense, he's not too different from most Americans of his generation.

Nguyen is expected to see plenty of action this season at UCLA after redshirting in his freshman year.

"Most of the people I interact with are my age," he says. "They were the same age I was when the war was going on. They really don't comprehend it as much as older people would."

He sometimes sees discrimination against Vietnamese, though, "and that really ticks me off. Most people who discriminate don't really understand that for most of the Vietnamese people that are in this country, it wasn't their idea to come here. The communists took over..."

As he was growing up, he didn't delve into the many books and movies about Vietnam. He didn't see Platoon or Apocalypse Now.

But he understands the attention he'll receive as the first Vietnamese-born college football player.

"It's something that people bring up a lot," he says. "It's strange, because the way I see myself is just like any other football player. I don't see myself as different."

His mother does.

"I'm very proud that he's the first," she says. "We live in America now. What Mike has accomplished, it's not only helped him, but all of us in the Asian community."

She points out that, the stereotype notwithstanding, not all Vietnamese refugees are mathematical geniuses headed for Harvard or Cal Tech. Some have gravitated toward street gangs for a sense of identity.

"We've had some problems with Asian children and gotten a lot of bad publicity," she says. "Hopefully, Mike can help show people that there are Asians who work very hard to get somewhere. He wanted to get a scholarship and play sports, he worked hard and he's accomplished his goals." ■

1991 AT&T LONG DISTANCE AWARD

AT&T brings you another great innova- tion in long distance connection.

It's doubtful Hollywood could have produced a more unbelievable long distance ending than the one that occurred at Cal-Berkeley's Memorial Stadium on Nov. 20, 1982.

Actually, fans got two fantastic finishes for the price of one.

Stanford quarterback John Elway had just directed a thrilling 87-yard scoring drive—including a successful fourth-and-17 pass play—to set up a Mark Harmon field goal with :04 remaining.

The kick seemingly lifted the Cardinal to a 20-19 win over its Pac-10 rival.

Dramatic? Sure. On most days, enough to warrant small headlines across the country's sports sections.

By the end of this game, the contest was destined for the network news, and a place in college football history.

Stanford, in an attempt to secure a triumph, opted for a squibbed kick. Bear cornerback Kevin Moen fielded the ball at the Cal 44, and advanced three yards.

He then pitched backward—although Stanford faithful insist forward—across the field to cornerback Richard Rodgers, who forged ahead a couple of yards before lateraling to running back Dwight Garner, who was at the Cal 43.

Garner ran to midfield, where he was met by four Cardinal defenders. In the process of going down, Garner pitched the ball back to Rodgers, who was at the Bear 47.

That's when the fun really began.

The Stanford band, thinking that Garner had been tackled, marched onto the field to celebrate the Cardinal win.

Rodgers, meanwhile, took the ball to the Stanford 45, from where he pitched back a yard to wide receiver Mariet Ford, who ran to the Stanford 25.

About to be hit by three defenders, Ford heaved the ball over his head. . . and the pigskin landed in the hands of Moen, who scampered 25 yards down the right side of field—and through the band, levelling a trombone player as he crossed the goal line.

But was it a Cal victory? Was it a Stanford victory? Would they run the play over?

The officials huddled near midfield before ruling: "Touchdown!"

Other aspects of the five-lateral play have been talked about since:

- There was a penalty flag—but it was against Stanford, so the penalty was declined.

- Replays showed California didn't have enough players on the front line for the play.

- With the exception of Ford, all the Bear ball carriers on the final play had practiced lateral plays as members of the Cal rugby team.

Try to equal that, Hollywood!

AT&T honors Division I-A players in six Long Distance football categories, by contributing to their respective school's General Scholarship Fund. At the conclusion of the season, AT&T will present Long Distance Awards and scholarship donations based on season-long statistics.

At AT&T, we honor players who've reached their goals on the field and we help others reach their goals off the field. Look for announcements in your local paper each week to see if your favorite players win the AT&T Long Distance Awards.

Strike up the band: Cal's Kevin Moen, who began the five-lateral play, crosses the goal line for the winning TD as the Stanford band scatters.

BALL

Think today's ball never has and never will change? Don't be so sure.

BY JACK CLARY

What is the one thing that makes football such a unique game? . . . You guessed it, the football.

Or more specifically, the fact that some wise old rule-makers back in 1896 ruled that the football must be a "prolate spheroid." And a "prolate spheroid" it has been ever since—the one being used in today's game being the great, great grandson of what came off their drawing board; and like all great, great grand-progeny, it is slightly different in appearance and better built to fit the times.

Those bewhiskered gridiron legislators of 1896 couldn't have realized the eventual impact of their geometric ruling, but the selection of a "prolate spheroid" really gave the game its most distinctive feature because of what can occur every time the football hits the ground and begins to bounce around. Unlike sports played with round balls where bounces are truer, when a football is loose, it can go in a lot of crazy directions—and so can a game—before someone finally gets a grip on it.

Just as important in a tactical sense, they also started an inevitable process whereby some of the "foot" eventually was taken out of football, paving the way for a ball capable of being gripped with one hand and thrown to all parts of the field with amazing accuracy.

Let's face it, for young American athletes, life is just one ball after another, most of them round—baseballs, basketballs, soccer balls, volleyballs. Only in football, however, must they master something completely different. It wasn't always that way. The first official intercollegiate game, played between Rutgers and Princeton in 1869, really was an English football—meaning soccer—game because the ball was a round soccer ball of that time.

American football didn't change until the rugby team from McGill University in Montreal ventured to Boston a few years later and played Harvard. The Harvards liked the running and contact of the rugby game and began to popularize it at colleges throughout the East. Since Harvard led the way for all innovations in the sport at that time, the American game of football began to take a different form—and so did its ball.

The "prolate spheroid" shaped ball had been used for five years before it was officially sanctioned by the rule-makers in 1896, but it still looked more like a misshapen basketball than the recognizable football of today. Spalding's Official Guide that year advertised it as "officially adopted by the intercollegiate Foot Ball Association for 1896. . . the fifth year of its adoption. . . and the only football used in match games between the large colleges." It sold for $5, including a "polished brass football inflater."

In 70 years, there has been just a quarter-inch difference in the end-to-end circumference and just 3/4 to 1 3/4 of an inch at its middle. In 1982, the Rules Committee decreed that the colleges adopt their own "official" ball in the dimensions just described, maintaining "a pebbled surface" and its weight of "slightly less than a pound."

Unlike professional football where the NFL's ball is made by just one manufacturer and its dimensions do not vary, the college's football is manufactured by several firms as long as its dimensions fall within the stipulated measurements. Each team can use the ball of its choice whenever it is on offense. Thus, two different brands of footballs often are used in a game.

It wasn't until an intrepid innovator, Charles O. Finley, the former owner of the

BOUNCING BALL

Oakland Athletics, introduced a new type of football in 1990, that the football has undergone any startling change. Finley, you may recall, once proposed that major league baseball use an orange fluorescent ball to make it easier to follow, and he made a similar proposal for a fluorescent hockey puck when he owned a team in the National Hockey League. That caused the venerable Lords of Baseball and Hockey to recoil in horror at the mere suggestion that they change something.

Finley developed what he calls the "Double Grip" football—a ball whose surface, while still "pebbled," is different than other footballs because there are no bumps. Instead, the ball's cover really is turned inside out and those "bumps" have become dimples, much like the cratered surface of a golf ball. The idea resulted when Finley's dream of becoming a quarterback in high school failed because he couldn't hold the ball. Instead, he became a guard, depriving himself of what he always believed he could do best—tell his team what to do.

Still, he never gave up the idea of developing a ball that might be easier for other young players to grasp, and a couple of years ago his idea came alive in the form of a new football, which was presented for the NCAA's Football Rules Committee approval.

His real targets were the high schools where other young "Charley Finleys" were experiencing the same difficulties. However, when he encountered Bo Schembechler, president of the Detroit Tigers and former Michigan athletic director and head coach, at the 1990 Major League All-Star game, he talked of its merits. Schembechler was intrigued and suggested that Finley send several of them to John Falk, the Wolverines equipment manager.

Falk gave them to coach Gary Moeller and quarterback Elvis Grbac, who also liked it. The Wolverines were set to use it in their 1990 season-opening game against Notre Dame, but they didn't get approval until mid-season, against Illinois.

"We were struggling a bit at that time, but Gary decided to let Grbac use it since he liked it so much," Falk said. "It was somewhat of a courageous decision but it worked because we began to win and wound up with a victory in the Gator Bowl."

Falk then told friends who were equipment managers at the University of Washington and the Air Force Academy whose teams also used the ball. This season, more teams will use the ball, which is manufactured by both Wilson and Rawlings, the two major suppliers of footballs.

"There is a difference," said Falk, "because with other balls, we had to unpack them, wet them down, rub them up and treat them often with a leather conditioner. With the Double Grips, we just unpack them and give them a little conditioner and they're ready to go. The grip is the key because they are not as slippery and don't need the constant treatment.

"I don't see any big difference between dimples and bumps," Falk added, "nor do they seem to fly farther, faster or with greater accuracy. But our quarterbacks like them, and they started to win when we used them."

"Quarterbacks are like kickers sometimes," noted Dave Nelson, the secretary of the NCAA Rules Committee. "They get their minds set on something and you can't budge them. If a quarterback says a ball feels better, and you don't allow him to use it, suddenly his passes start flying all over the place because he just doesn't feel comfortable. It's mostly mental but any smart coach tries anything within reason that will make his quarterback perform better."

The key to this new ball is in the manufacturing process, which is a specialized craft regardless of the type of ball. It begins with four pieces of cowhide (forget the pigskin deal; that was centuries ago when "soccer" players tired of kicking hard skulls and switched instead to the bladders of pigs and cows), each of which is lined to give the ball its shape. Two pieces are sewn together and those two are sewn to another two, something that takes up to a half year to learn, two years to become an expert. Valve-type bladders are then inserted. For the non-Double Grips, the bladders are inserted after the ball is turned inside out in a process developed in the mid-1920s whereby a worker sticks one end of the football on a steel bar and tugs down. He does it with the other end until the leather is on the outside.

The ball is then pre-laced with heavy linen thread and cold-molded by being inflated up to 80 pounds of pressure to stretch out the linings and leather, straighten out the seams and catch any potential problems. They are then partially deflated and laced on the top. The process ends with some rough and fine buffing to bring the natural tackiness of the leather to the surface.

What happens then is up to those who use the ball of their choice—which is frequently unpredictable. What more could you ask of a "prolate spheroid?"

DIVISION II

Southwest Baptist University: Basketball fever is heating up in Bolivar, Mo., and the Bearcats are the reason why. Last year, Baptist advanced to the Division II quarterfinals before bowing out of the tournament, and despite losing five players from last year's squad, the cupboard is anything but bare for the 'Cats this season.

Key returning players are 6-4 forward Glenn Stanley, who averaged 14 ppg and 7.4 rpg during last season's 29-3 run, and Brad Johnson, a 6-6 guard/forward who should improve on his nine ppg average, especially if he fires up more treys, which he hit 44 percent of the time last season.

Adding more fuel to the optimistic fires is the arrival of Darrell Barnett, a 6-1 transfer from Temple; Hensley Parks, a 6-7 forward from Kilgore (Texas) Junior College who played his high school ball at well-respected Dunbar High in Baltimore, Md.; and Brent Blevins, a 6-2 guard from Forsyth, Mo., High.

Cal State Bakersfield: Two years ago, the Roadrunners finished second in the Division II tourney; last season, they finished fourth. Will Cal State break that very slight spiral and return to the title game? Chances are good that the Roadrunners will "beep-beep" their way at least to the Final Four—and perhaps to a championship.

One point is virtually certain: Coach Pat Douglass' team will make its eighth consecutive trip to the NCAA Division II tourney. Yes, gone is Ray Burris, who averaged 10.6 ppg a year ago and departs as the team's best-ever free-throw shooter. But returning is senior Beau Redstone, who set a record for best field-goal shooting percentage (65.2) and is on track to become the team's most prolific rebounder. With a year of experience under his belt, sophomore Kenny Warren, whose 54 treys last year set yet another mark for the college, should improve on his 11.1 ppg average. His 138 assists of a year ago, when combined with the passing prowess of his backcourt mate, Fred Eckles (130 assists), gives the Roadrunners a dynamic guard tandem. And Russ Jarvis, the team's leading scorer last year (14.2 ppg) will be expected to produce more offensively this year.

Douglass brings a 96-32 mark at Cal State Bakersfield into the '91-'92 campaign. Most certainly, he'll get his 100th win as the Roadrunner coach—and, quite possibly a return trip to the championship game.

University of North Alabama: Only two starters return from coach Gary Elliott's Division II champions, but that's not really a consideration under the coach's system. During the team's championship season, six players averaged in double figures, and, on any given night, virtually any player was capable of stepping forward and dominating a game. For example, in Elite Eight play, three different players each led the team in scoring in those three final games of the season—with more than 30 points each time.

The most likely player to dominate this year, however, is Tony Dorsey, who averaged 14.2 ppg and 7.8 rpg—both team-leading numbers—off the bench. He'll be helped by the presence of Ricky Johnson, the 6-7 center who hauled in 7.1 rpg while scoring at a 12.1 clip. Kevin Simmons, a 6-2 guard, averaged 12.6 ppg, and should improve on that figure, as should Dorsey and Johnson, this year.

Returning, too, are Eric Smith and Darrell Hardy, both of whom played as many minutes as did some of the starters.

So, the cupboard is anything but bare for Elliott, who's 65-23 in his three years as coach of the Lions. Certainly, he has enough returning talent to make a run at the tourney again. Whether or not the chemistry—or the depth—is there for a successful title defense remains to be seen.

University of Bridgeport: Answer: Lambert Shell. Question: Why do the Knights have as good a shot as any other team to win the Division II title?

A year ago, Shell was almost enough. But Bridgeport lost the title game to North Alabama, which has to consider the Knights as something of a good-luck charm in the Final Four: in 1979, the Lions had to defeat Bridgeport in the semifinals before winning the national title.

Shell returns—again—and is a shoo-in to repeat as All-America. Last year, he was named outstanding player of the Division II tourney and, on the season, averaged 23.8 ppg. This season, with some additional help from his supporting cast, Shell may be able to bring a Division II crown to Connecticut, matching the feat of nearby Sacred Heart University in 1987. One bad omen for shell and his Knight teammates, however, would be facing North Alabama in the Final Four.

Shaw: Yes, this team is a longshot, but it has two of the marquis players in Division II returning for their senior years. Terry McCoy averaged 23.7 ppg a year ago, and there's no reason to believe he'll light up the scoreboard for any less this year—particularly when you figure in his four treys made per game of a year ago. Also expected to improve on already-gaudy statistics is Curtis Reed, whose 10.8 rpg made him the 10th-best rebounder in Division II. Combine him with the division's leading rebounder a season ago, Shaw's Sheldon Owens (12.0 rpg), and you begin to realize why this team may go places.

With players the caliber of Owens, Reed (who last year hit two of every three shots from the field) and McCoy, a team such as Shaw can catch fire in a short-term situation such as a tournament, and make a legitimate run for an Elite Eight berth.

BEST OF THE REST

Slippery Rock returns Donald Burnett, but loses four starters from last year's Elite Eight team. Still, Burnett is enough of a talent to make the Rock a late-season contender...Chaminade earned headlines years ago by upsetting Georgetown's Hoyas. This year, the team boasts the leading returning Division II scorer in George Gilmore (28.3 ppg) and may make waves in Division II. Gilmore is also the leading returning three-point shooter (along with McCoy) in the Division. Last season, he averaged four treys per game.

DIVISION III

Otterbein: The Cards led the division in shooting last year with 59.3 percent accuracy from the floor en route to a 30-3 mark and a third-place finish in the country. Is there a better season in the Cards this year? Much of that depends on how well coach Dick Reynolds (career: 335-179) replaces all-everything Jim Bradley, who led Otterbein in scoring (26.1) and rebounding (5.3) during last year's superlative season. Four other seniors are lost from that team, but the Cards are still well-stacked.

The best of the returnees includes Jerry Dennis, a 6-1 guard who will most definitely improve on his 13.8 ppg average of a year ago, now that the long shadow of Bradley is gone. It's obvious he can shoot; Dennis hit more than 60 percent of his shots last year. Ditto for his backcourt mate and fellow co-captain Larry Laisure, who hit almost half of his three-point attempts and whose 9.8 average will likely double. Sophomore Nick Gutman didn't start a game last year but still averaged 10.5 ppg and hit 40 percent of his three-point attempts. This is another full deck for these Cards in '91-'92.

Tough rebounder Beau Redstone is one reason that Cal State Bakersfield is almost certain to get to the Division II Final Four.

Calvin College: For the past two seasons, the Knights have been a member of the Division's Elite Eight. Last season, Calvin was denied a second straight trip to the Final Four by Otterbein, which downed the Knights, 75-73.

This season, however, Calvin may not be content with just a third straight trip to the Elite Eight. The only loss from last year's squad is guard Todd Hennink, who once tied a Division III single-game record for three-pointers, making 12 in just 14 attempts. But ready to pick up the slack is Steve Honderd, an extremely viable All-America center candidate. Last season, the 6-7 Honderd hit 65.6 percent of his shots from the field and was the team's leading scorer with a 20.6 ppg average. He again should be the top rebounder for the Knights, and is expected to improve on his 7.1 rpg of a season ago. He'll be helped in scoring and rebounding by Tom Broene, a 6-5 forward who hit half of his shots en route to averaging 11.6 ppg and 3.6 rpg. Also returning is Matt Harrison, a mercurial guard who holds the college record for assists (185). He'll be joined by Matt Rottman, who hit half of his treys and should pick up where the departed Hennink left off.

Coach Ed Douma is a sterling 145-41 in seven seasons with his alma mater. Don't expect this season's mark to lower that impressive winning percentage of .780—and don't be surprised if the Knights are crowned kings of Division III.

Franklin & Marshall: What do you call a team that returns all but one member (who played less than five minutes per game) of a team that went 28-3 and lost to Wisconsin-Platteville, 81-74 in the finals of the Division III tournament? The favorite.

To further strengthen their claim as the pre-season choice to win it all, the Diplomats include among their returnees two All-America selections in guards Chris Finch and Will Lasky, arguably the best backcourt in Division III. Lasky averaged 18.3 ppg and his colleague, Finch, 14.1, while leading the team in rebounding (6.1). Toss in the three-point shooting of Tom Nicholson, who hit 47 percent of those shots last year, and the scoring of Mark Maggioncalda (13.8 ppg) and that's all the offense this team needs.

Ever-improving Dave Wilding is the team's 6-7 center who played superlatively in the Final Four and made its all-tournament team, setting a host of tourney shooting records along the way.

Topping it all off is Glenn Robinson, entering his 21st season as the F&M coach, with a career mark of 377-163. Robinson, who has led his team to the tourney in 11 of the past 17 years, has never grabbed the elusive brass ring. This year, his hand is outstretched and the championship just may be within his grasp.

University of Rochester: Last year, the Yellowjackets came just a basket away from earning a berth in the Division III Final Four and the chance to defend the national title they won in 1989-90. Such an accomplishment may be a stretch this year, but you have to remember this team is a combined 50-12 over the past two seasons, including an incredible 9-1 mark in post-tourney play. So, don't put anything past coach Mike Neer and his U of R squad. In fact, in some ways, the '91-'92 season may be easier for Neer. First of all, his team won't play 15 of its last 17 games away from home, as the Yellowjackets did a year ago. In fact, they may have as many as 17 home games this season.

Secondly, Chris Fite, the team's 6-8 center, is bound to get better—and he's already earned first team All-America honors. Last year, he averaged 20.4 ppg, 10.2 rpg, shot 55.1 percent from the field and was second on the team in assists with 114, in blocks with 36 and in steals with 41. Even though the Yellowjackets lose three starters from last year's squad, Fite's imposing presence in the middle will make up for a host of shortcomings. He'll be helped by Michael Coleman, a 6-7 forward who averaged 12.7 ppg and 7.3 rpg a year ago, and who is the other returning starter.

The backcourt isn't as unsettled as it may appear at first blush. Jim Jordan, a junior, should be fully recovered from anterior cruciate ligament surgery and will improve his under-three ppg average. Soph Kyle Franklin & Marshall's Will Lasky heads up the best backcourt in Division III.

Meeker will likely start at shooting guard, and Neer will count on him to hit the trey for the 'Jackets this season.

Wisconsin-Platteville: Are the defending Division III champs rebuilding or simply reloading? Coach Bo Ryan loses six seniors from last year's 28-3 squad, but 10 players saw a ton of minutes last year, and four of those players return.

That group is led by T.J. Van Wie, a 6-0 junior point guard who averaged 11 ppg while hitting 51 percent of his shots from the field. He also dished out five assists per game and led the team in minutes played—not an insignificant accomplishment under Ryan's system, where two of last year's three leading scorers came off the bench.

Van Wie will be joined at guard by fellow veteran Carlton Jeter, a 6-2 senior who started last year. The middle is deep with returning starter Brian Gilmore, a 6-5 senior, and Mark Macomber, a 7-foot senior.

Additionally, Ryan has a corps of red-shirt players who practiced against the national champions all last season. That experience—and the talent left over from last year's squad—just may be enough to prompt the Pioneers to explore for another title.

BEST OF THE REST

Hamilton posted a 26-1 mark last year, and returns Mike Smith, who led the division with 16.1 rpg...Potsdam State is a perennial power that may be ready to threaten for the title again...Andre Foreman, who topped all Division III scorers with a 31.5 ppg average, makes Salisbury State a threat to win any ballgame. ●

Assistant Coaches

Scott Browning – Secondary

Moving to the defensive side of the ball, from the offensive backfield, Scott brings a wealth of coaching experience in his sixth year at the 'Boro. Under his guidance the Scot defense has intercepted 56 passes the past three seasons. He has guided the fortunes of Boro All-American Wade Smith and PSAC Rookie of the Year Mario Houston.

Scott came to Edinboro from Ohio State University, where he coached receivers and runningbacks including Keith Byers. Prior to his start at OSU, Browning coached at Worthington and Dayton-Fairview High Schools in Ohio, from 1979-81. Then, as a graduate assistant, he coached the defensive secondary at New Mexico State in 1982.

In 1983, he mentored the receivers at Idaho State University which advanced to the Division I-AA playoffs.

Browning earned a master's degree in education administration from New Mexico State in 1983, and a BS in education from Ohio State in 1981. Earlier, before transferring to OSU, Scott attended Capital University where he played football for one season. Browning was a four-year letterman in four sports at Loudenville High School (OH) prior to his collegiate days. Scott recently married the former Lynn Hook and resides in Edinboro.

Dan Gierlak – Running Backs

Dan Gierlak enters his fifth season as a full-time coach with his responsibilities concerning the running backs. He is also the head women's softball coach for the Scots and led the squad to the PSAC playoffs in 1990.

Gierlak came to the 'Boro from Thiel College (Pa.) where he coached the defensive secondary for the 1984 season. Dan, a starter and three-year letterwinner for the Plaid in the secondary, moved on to the semi-pro ranks with the Chicago Cowboys. During his short stint with the Cowboys, Gierlak's squad gained national championship honors in 1984 and runner up nationally in the 1985 season. Gierlak brings both playing and coaching experience to the staff, giving the Scot players an added plus on the offensive side of the ball. As backfield coach, he has guided former Harlon Hill finalist Elbert Cole and current Boro All-American Lester Frye.

Originally from Buffalo, New York, Dan graduated from Edinboro with a degree in health and physical education. He and his wife, the former Amy Adams and new-born daughter, Alexandria Alicia, reside in Edinboro.

Mark Niswonger – Defensive Coordinator/Linebackers

Mark Niswonger, a veteran of the coaching ranks for 18 years, begins his fourth year with the Plaid as defensive coordinator and linebacker coach. Former understudy of head coach Tom Hollman at Greenville High School, Mark brings extensive experience both on and off the field to the Scot coaching staff. He has helped mold the Scot defense into one of the toughest in the country over the past two years.

His coaching stint began back while attending Findlay when he was the head scout for Arlington High School. His first job after college was as defensive coordinator for Bryan High School (OH) where the team earned a 9-1 record. The next two seasons, Niswonger was the defensive coordinator at West Carrollton High School (OH) where his squad posted an impressive 17-1-2 slate.

After West Carrollton, he then returned to graduate school at Ball State University where he helped coach the tight ends and offensive linemen.

From 1981-84, Niswonger was the head coach at Franklin City Schools and was named "coach of the year" in 1982 when his squad won its first league championship in 18 years. He then moved on to the collegiate ranks in 1984 at Manchester College as defensive coordinator and then back to his alma mater from 85-87 as their secondary coach.

Niswonger's education includes an undergraduate degree in physical education and political science from Findlay and a MA in physical education from Ball State. Mark and his wife Patty and new-born daughter, Megan Marie, reside in Edinboro.

Gene Smith - Defensive Line

Gene Smith will enter his fourth year directing the Scot defensive line. The Scots defensive line was ranked first in the PSAC and in the NCAA top ten nationally last season in rushing defense. He aided in the development of Scot All-American defensive end Jeff Jacobs.

Smith also has past association with Coach Hollman as he was a graduate assistant working with the defensive line under Hollman at Ohio University. The following season with the Bobcats, Smith moved to the offensive side of the ball as tight end/tackle coach for OU. He also worked extensively with the weight training program as a strength coach. Gene is the coordinator of strength and conditioning for the Scot football squad.

As a player, he enjoyed an outstanding career at Heidelberg College. Smith captained Heidelberg his senior season. He obtained his B.S. degree in education during his undergraduate years and later completed his M.S. in athletic administration from Ohio University. Smith has also completed post-graduate hours.

Smith, originally from Monroeville, Ohio, is single and resides in Edinboro.

Ed Stults - Offensive Line

Ed Stults enters his third year directing the Scot offensive line. In his initial year with Edinboro, Stults organized an offensive front that was one of the best in the country. He directed the fortunes of three All-Americans including Scot first-teamer Curtis Rose and numerous All-Conference players. He has had an immediate impact on the Scot offense.

He brings over ten years of coaching experience to the Scot linemen. He began his coaching career at his alma mater, Blufton College, in 1981 directing the linebackers. Later on in his coaching stint he turned his attention to the offensive line. He played linebacker at Blufton from 1976-79 and he graduated in 1980 with a BA in education.

After his coaching tenure at Blufton that spanned 1981-87, Stults took the offensive line duties at the University of Cincinnati in 1988. Last season he joined the Fighting Scots.

Stults is married to the former Pamela Lewis and resides in Edinboro.

Scots Ready for Challenge in 1991-92

When Edinboro University packed its bags for Christmas vacation a year ago, there were several questions left unanswered. Could a struggling team with three early season road losses compete in the PSAC? What the Scots did was more than merely compete.

The Fighting Scots showed that a team with early setbacks could pull together. "Our guys did a great job of coming together," said third year coach Greg Walcavich. "They never doubted each other. We came back in January and started all over."

Walcavich's club may not be so fortunate this year to be able to catch a second wind in January. This is due to a very strong first half schedule that features Bloomsburg (last year's top finisher in the PSAC East) along with two of the best teams in the West Virginia Conference (Salem-Teikyo and West Virginia Tech) in the Edinboro tournament. The road will not get any easier for Walcavich's club. "We have a rigorous schedule," commented Walcavich. "We could have an outstanding basketball team and not win 18 games. We may be competing for a league playoff spot with a lackluster record."

The Plaid finished the 1990-91 campaign at 18-10 overall and 8-4 in the PSAC with no less than six league games decided at the buzzer. "We won a number of close games (last year)," Walcavich noted. "Out of twelve league games, six were decided on the last shot. We hit four of them, we were four shots away from being 4-8 or 10-2."

Edinboro will have some big shoes to fill in the '91-92 season. The Scots will be without the services of 6-5 forward Sterling Washington, last year's leading scorer and rebounder (17.1 ppg, 8.5 rpg); 5-11 guard Mark Murdock (12.6 ppg) and 6-8 power forward John Mohre (6.9 ppg), all due to graduation. If those losses weren't tough enough for the Scots' mentor, things got worse with the news that Sean Gibson, this year's leading returning scorer at 14.4 ppg, will not return to school.

Derek Walton, a 5-9 senior guard will be the nucleus to build around in the backcourt for Walcavich. Walton averaged 12.6 points and 4.4 assists per game a year ago. "We will certainly look forward to a good year from Derek," commented Walcavich. "He did a real nice job for us last year."

The team leader for the 1991-92 campaign will be 6-5 senior forward Aaron Brown, the PSAC "Rookie of the Year" in 1988-89 who averaged 9.7 points per game last year. Brown will likely end his career on the top 15 all-time scorers list at Edinboro. He needs just 194 points to reach the milestone. "Aaron was here before me," noted Walcavich. "I anticipate him being one of the best players we'll have this year, he'll really do well."

Also returning from last year's squad are sophomore forward Torry Rollins, junior forward Sam Dickerson, junior guard Greg Fox, and sophomore guards Ron Santiago and Carlos Peterson.

Rollins played in 24 games for the Scots last year, averaged 5.3 points and 3.6 rebounds. He shot 49.6 percent from the floor while making 72 percent of his free throws.

Dickerson played in 23 games, averaging 4.3 points and 2.5 rebounds per game last year as a sophomore, including 8 rebounds in a win at Lock Haven.

Santiago only averaged 2.5 points per game but did play in 26 games last year as a freshman.

Fox played in 20 games last year and connected on 8 of his 18 field goal attempts.

Newcomers for the upcoming year will include forwards Keith Perry, Price Williams, Marc Pope and Exavier Zollicoffer.

Perry, a 6-4 forward, averaged 22.5 points, 12 rebounds and 2 blocks per game for Wilbur Trosch at West Mifflin High School. He scored over 1,200 points in his high school career.

Williams is a 6-4, 185 pound junior college transfer from Prince George's Community College in the Washington, D.C., area and was a junior college All-American on the nation's number four ranked JC squad.

Pope, a 6-6, 205 pound transfer from Cuyahoga Community College, averaged 10 points and 11 rebounds per game. He was a three-year letterman for Doc Daugherty at Euclid High School, averaging 15 points and 10 rebounds per outing.

Zollicoffer, a 6-3, 210 pound sophomore, played at Canton McKinley (OH) Senior High School where he led his team to a state championship with a 27-1 record.

Junior Simpson, a 6-9, 215 pound forward was a redshirt last year and should see action at the forward/center position.

Simpson gives the Scots a solid defensive performer on the inside, something the squad has needed for years.

Adam Cheek, a 6-2 junior and Walter Reap, a 6-1 junior are the newcomers at the guard spot.

Cheek averaged 12.5 points and 5.2 rebounds per game at Ballard High School in Louisville, KY. He also dished out 2.5 assists and had 2.3 steals per game for the Bruins.

Reap is a transfer from Cuyahoga Community College where he received All-Conference honors in both years. He is from Atlanta, GA, and played under Coach Mark Osina at C. E. Ellison High School in Texas, where he averaged 20 points and 6 assists per game. He was named to the All-District and All-Central Texas teams as a senior.

The Scots will begin their annual tournament in McComb Fieldhouse on November 22. In this year's tournament the Plaid will battle Bloomsburg, West Virginia Tech and Salem-Teikyo for the title.

James H. McCormick
Chancellor

Greetings,

On behalf of the Board of Governors for the State System of Higher Education and the Office of the Chancellor, I am pleased to welcome you to today's exciting athletic event.

Each season, student athletes throughout the State System's 14 universities compete among the best in the nation as part of the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference (PSAC). National and regional champions, All-Americans, and top scholar athletes participate in PSAC programs. The efforts of these women and men representing their universities in the athletic arena are applauded, as are their many academic accomplishments. Balancing a combination of classroom study and athletic competition requires special abilities.

The university coaching staffs who give of their knowledge, leadership, time, and talent in making this contest possible also deserve recognition for their contributions. For the special talents which they exhibit as teachers and mentors, we are grateful.

The Board of Governors, the university presidents, the campus communities, and I hope you will continue to support our State System universities and their athletic programs during the 1991-92 academic year. We appreciate your attendance.

Sincerely,

James H. McCormick

Battle of Edinboro

On Thursday, November 7, the Fighting Scots did battle with the Rolling Scots in a wheelchair football game. The game was played as part of Disability Awareness Week.

Both teams were psyched up for the game. The Fighting Scots won the opening coin toss and elected to receive the ball. They were held in check by the tenacious defense of the Rolling Scots who have held their opponents to just 23 points in 5 games. The first score of the game came from a punt return for a touchdown by the Rolling Scots. The Rolling Scots went on to add 30 more points in their 37-0 win over their able bodied counterparts. Jim Valvo led all scorers with 21 points and he also intercepted the Fighting Scots twice. Ken Kisiel led the potent offense of the Rolling Scots with 6 completions out of 9 attempts, 3 touchdowns, and only 1 interception.

Although the Fighting Scots didn't get on the scoreboard, they started moving the ball toward the end of the game. They should be commended for their heart and sportsmanship that they displayed during the game. And most of all, they should be applauded for their participation which helped in making Disability Awareness Week a big success.
