On The Radio

Edinboro University football fans can catch all the Fighting Scot gridiron action on WFSE FM 88.9. The Edinboro student radio statio will broadcast all eleven games, providing valuable broadcasting experience for Edinboro students, along with quality broadcasts of Fighting Scot athletics.

In addition, Edinboro football can now be heard live on TEAMLINE -- the brainstorm of 1978 Edinboro graduate Tom Za-wistowski, CEO and founder of TRZ Communications. All a fan has to do is dial 1-800-846-4700 and then enter 1644 as the four-digit code. Listen to as little or as much of the game as you like.

The East Stroudsburg Game

Terwilliger a Nightmare for Scots, and Everyone Else

Without question East Stroudsburg senior quarterback Jimmy Terwilliger has been a nightmare for Edinboro. You may find it hard to believe, but the Edinboro defense has had more success than most against the 2005 Harlon Hill Trophy winner. Over the last two years the Boro D has hounded, harrassed and pounded the 6'0", 172 lb. signalcaller. But he has two last-second wins to his credit in those games, and is overall 3-1 against Edinboro. Here's what Terwilliger has done against Edinboro in four career meetings:

Prall Not Bad Either

With a standout quarterback like Terwilliger, the wide receivers will be putting up big numbers. Edinboro has experienced that, first in the form, of Tim Strenfel, and a year ago Evan Prall. Prall caught 8 passes for 172 yards and a TD a year ago against Edinboro. That propelled him to an All-American season, as he set school records for receptions (88), yards receiving (1,766) and touchdowns (23). The swift senior seems intent on resetting the records this year, as he already has 46 catches for 792 yards and 9 TDs. He broke Strenfel's record for career receiving yards last saturday, now at 3,711 yards.

Pair of Ryans Picking Up Aerial Attack

Ryan Valasek has been a potent weapon for the Fighting Scots all year. Now he is joined by Ryan Rybicki, who has assumed the starting spot opposite Valasek and comes off a career-best day vs. California(Pa.). Rybicki hauled in 4 passes for 74 yards. Valasek, meanwhile, enjoyed another productive afternoon with 5 catches for 58 yards. He has already matched last year's total of 28 receptions, moving him into sole possession of sixth place in career catches with 96.

Uncharacteristic Goose Eggs

California(Pa.)'s shutout of the Fighting Scots was a rarity. Edinboro had not been shut out since a 7-0 loss at Clarion in 2000. And you have to go all the way back to 1980 to find the last time the Fighting Scots were shut out at Sox Harrison Stadium. That covered a span of 131 games. In addition, the loss was the third straight at home. That hadn't happened since 2002. The last time Edinboro lost four straight games at home happened in 1978.

Ground Game Struggles for Consistency

As a disciple of Woody Hayes, Scott Browning knows the value of a strong running attack. Unfortunately, the Fighting Scots have run hot and cold when running the football. In Edinboro's three wins it is averaging 195.7 ypg. on the ground. In the three losses that figure is 44.3 ypg. Last Saturday the Fighting Scots were held to 37 yards rushing.

Trevor Already Among Career Leaders

The Edinboro coaching staff quietly predicted a year ago that Trevor Harris had the potential to rewrite the school's passing records. While the redshirt freshman has a long ways to go, and hopefully a lot more games, he has enjoyed an outstanding start to his career. In just six games, Harris has already thrown for 1,225 yards, putting him 14th in career passing yards. Jody Dickerson's career record of 7,299 yards are a long ways off, but Harris is averaging 228.3 ypg. passing over the last back heartbreakers for the Fighting Scots in the 2004 NCAA Playoffs and the second game of the 2005 season.

But let's get back to why we're here -- to see the Fighting Scots. First-year head coach Scott Browning knew the opening half of the schedule would be tough, and it has been just that for a team that is young in several key areas. Edinboro has lost three straight home games -- something which hasn't happened since 2002. But thoses losses have come to Bloomsburg, IUP and California(Pa.), three teams with a combined 13-4 record.

Now comes an East Stroudsburg team which has won three straight games and is 4-2 overall. If the 3-3 Fighting Scots maintain any hopes at all of an NCAA playoff berth, a win is a must against Terwilliger and his impressive aerial attack.

Enjoy what promises to be an entertaining contest.

The Coaches

Scott Browning (Ohio State '81) took over as Edinboro's 13th head coach on January 5, 2006. He was certainly no stranger to Fighting Scot football, however, serving as an assistant coach for the previous twenty years. While at Edinboro he has coached the offensive linemen, defensive backs and running backs, along with serving as the offensive coordinator. Browning became the first head coach at Edinboro to debut with a win since Bill McDonald in 1969 when the Fighting Scots opened the 2006 season with a 28-14 win at West Chester. Even more incredible, he became the first coach since Sox Harrison in 1926, the first year of football end's Family Festival festivities. This is likely the final opportunity Edinboro will have to extract some revenge on Jimmy Terwilliger, East Stroudsburg's brilliant quarterback and the 2005 Harlon Hill Trophy winner, Division II's equivalent to the Heisman Trophy.

Terwilliger is in the twilight of a record-setting career at ESU, and he has certainly bedeviled the Fighting Scots. He has won three of four games against his Western Division rivals, including back-to-

Denny Douds (Slippery Rock '63) is in his 33rd year as the head coac' at East Stroudsburg, picking up his 200th career win with a 45-14 win over Lock Haven in September. Douds has a career record of 203-132-3. He has led the Warriors to nine PSAC titles, three NCAA playoff appeal ances and one Northeast Region title.

The Last Meeting

2005 -- East Stroudsburg 23, Edinboro 21

After sending Edinboro home from the NCAA Playoffs a 36-32 lastsecond loser in 2004, Jimmy Terwilliger engineered another stunning comeback to defeat the Fighting Scots. Actually, it was the Scots who enjoyed the brilliant comeback, as Justin Bouch rallied the Boro from a 20-7 deficit. Edinboro pulled to within 20-14 on a 48-yard pass from Bouch to Jordan Bobitski midway through the third quarter, then took the lead on a 15-yard pass from Bouch to Jeff Dinger with 2:08 left in the contest. Unfortunately, that was too much time for Terwilliger. Beginning at its own 27, ESU drove to the Edinboro 25 with ten seconds remaining, as Terwilliger completed three passes in an eight-play, 48-yard march. Mark Brubaker then came in and booted his third field goal of the day, a 42yarder with five seconds left. Terwilliger finished the day completing 14 of 32 passes for 317 yards with 2 TDs and an INT. Evan Prall hauled in 8 passes for 172 yards. Bouch was 20 of 34 for 207 yards with 3 TDs and an INT, while Ulysee Davis led the Boro ground game with 87 yards on 21 carries.

Last Week's Games California(Pa.) 10, Edinboro 0

The Edinboro defense held a high-powered California(Pa.) offense to just ten points, but the Fighting Scot offense was shut out for the first time since 2000, and for the first time at Sox Harrison Stadium since 1980. A pair of bad snaps also did in the Fighting Scots. One was a high snap on a punt, resulting in a Cal block and recovery at the Boro six. Three plays later the Vulcans took a 7-0 lead. The second came after the Fighting Scots put together one of their best drives of the day, to the Cal 21. Kody Robertson's 38-yard field goal attempt was wide left following a poor snap. Edinboro had previously reached the Cal 13 in the first quarter, but a lost fumble foiled that drive. Ben Stroup led the defense with 19 tackles, with Dave Jazenski adding 12 hits and A.J. Cousins 11. With the ground game managing just 37 yards, Edinboro was once again forced to go to the air. Redshirt freshman Trevor Harris completed 16 of 27 passes for 233 yards. Ryan Valasek caught 5 passes for 58 yards, and Ryan Rybicki enjoyed a career day with 4 catches for 74 yards.

East Stroudsburg 30, Millersville 19

ESU won its third straight game as the Jimmy Terwilliger to Evan Prall combination clicked again. Terwilliger accounted for 392 yards in total offense, including TD passes of 30, 8 and 10 yards to Prall. Prall, who became the school's all-time leader in receiving yards, caught 10 passes for 109 yards. Terwilliger threw for 274 yards, completing 26 of 36 passes, and ran for another 118 yards on 14 carries. In all, the Warriors accounted for 559 yards of total offense.

four games. That includes a 233-yard effort last Saturday vs California(Pa.), along with a career-high 272 yards against IUP.

Did You Know, Douds Has Local Ties

Denny Douds has been East Stroudsburg's head football coach since 1974. But upon completing work on his bachelor's degree from Sliptery Rock in 1963, Douds got his start as a teacher and coach at nearby Mc-Dowell High School. He served as a physical education and safety education instructor at McDowell from 1963-65. His coaching career also got underway -- as the tennis coach!

Now in the Starting Lineup -- Scott Christie, and Scott Christy

Now starting for Edinboro -- and East Stroudsburg -- Scott Christie. inboro's version is a 6'4", 286 lb. sophomore who made his first career start at right guard against California(Pa.). In the meantime, East Stroudbsurg has its own Scott Christy, spelled differently, who starts and cornerback and is also a sophomore. He has 16 tackles, an interception and two passses broken up.

Welcome to Edinboro

Dear Family, Friends and Fans of the Fighting Scots:

We are engaged in one of the most exciting years in the history of Edinboro University - our school's 150th anniversary, the Sesquicentennial. This year also promises to be one of our best for our athletics programs as they strive to match last year's incredible successes, when many of our teams and athletes went on to post-season competition.

Much of the success of our men's and women's athletic teams is due to your loyal support of our scholar-athletes in basketball, cross country, football, soccer, softball, swimming, track, volleyball, and wrestling, as well as wheelchair basketball and other adaptive sports.

The long legacy of Edinboro athletics will be one of the highlights celebrated during our Sesquicentennial in 2006-2007. As we prepare to celebrate the University's 150th anniversary, we are guided by the theme "Building a prosperous future through academic excellence and civility." Our athletes' dedication to education, discipline, and sportsmanship that are at the heart of Edinboro athletics will serve them well as they pursue their dreams beyond the playing fields of their alma mater. Their success in competitive endeavors will contribute to the quality of life on our campus and throughout the communities of northwestern Pennsylvania.

Fans of the Fighting Scots are always welcome at Edinboro University and I look forward to greeting you at our many athletic, cultural and arts presentations. Please visit our campus as often as possible.

Head Coach

Scott Browning

1st Year Ohio State '81

University President Dr. Frank G. Pogue announced the promotion of Scott Browning as head football coach on January 5, 2006. He becomes the 13th head coach of the Fighting Scots, serving as an assistant under three different head coaches.

the promotion of Scott Browning to the position of head football coach at Edinboro University," stated Pogue. "Scott has

of the Edinboro coaching staff for 20 years. He has demonstrated his ability to not only coach athletes on the playing field, but also to lead young men by the example of his character and by his dedication to them as students and as individuals. He will join our other highly successful coaches at Edinboro University."

After serving as the offensive line coach and recruiting coordinator in Lou Tepper's first season, Browning took over as the offensive coordinator in 2001. He had previously served as the offensive coordinator for five seasons under Tom Hollman. In all, Browning has served as Edinboro's offensive line coach the last 12 years.

Browning joined the Edinboro program in 1986 as the running backs coach under Steve Szabo. After two seasons on the offensive side of the ball, the Ohio State University graduate moved to the defensive side, serving as the defensive backfield coach under Hollman. In 1994 he moved back to offense as the offensive line coach. He had remained in charge of the linemen since that time, coaching such All-Americans as Jeremy O'Day, Joe Valvoda and Greg Bzorek. The last two years Browning's offensive line led the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference in fewest sacks allowed.

When Tepper came on board in 2000, Browning was appointed the recruiting coordinator in addition to his duties with the offensive line. A year later he was named the offensive coordinator, and the Fighting Scot offense made great strides over the last five years. Browning emphasized a balanced attack which showcased the combination of a strong ground game and dangerous aerial attack. Over the last three seasons Edinboro has averaged 29.9 ppg. in 2003, 33.2 ppg. in '04, and 31.4 ppg. in '05.

All told, Browning has been an assistant coach on all seven of Edinboro's NCAA playoff teams, along with five of the nine PSAC

"I'm sure you will see some changes in the future, but I can tell you this, the ideals remain in place for this program, and always have in the time I've been here. Without question we want to be successful on the field, and that means challenging for a fourth straight PSAC West title this year. But we won't compromise integrity. We will continue to bring in young men who have the ability to be successful both in the classroom and on the football field. It is my sincere belief that when they take the field, they must wear the Edinboro jer-

Wayne Bradford

Defensive Coordinator/Linebackers 8th Year

Salisbury State '90

Wayne Bradford is in his eighth year as a member of the Edinboro coaching staff. He enters his second season as the Fighting Scot defensive coordinator, and had previously held the same title in 1999 under former head coach Tom Hollman. After overseeing the defensive line for seven seasons, Bradford will take over as the linbackers coach in 2006.

Bradford orchestrated the top defense in the country a year ago, as Edinboro paced Division II in scoring defense (9.3 ppg.), total defense (211.2 ypg.), and rushing defense (53.7 ypg.). In addition, Edinboro was third in pass efficiency defense and turnover margin. The Fighting Scots recorded three shutouts, the most since the 1975 team also shut out three opponents. A total of seven opponents were held to seven points or less.

He coached four all-conference performers a year ago.

Under Bradford's tutelage, Edinboro has had ten first team All-PSAC West defensive linemen. That includes the last two PSAC West Defensive Players of the Year, with Chris Amico earning the honor last year and Seth Fragale, who won the honor in 2004. Fragale was a three-time All-PSAC West selection.

In addition, he has coached Dave Smith, a four-time All-PSAC selection who ranks first in career tackles for losses and tied for second in sacks, and Eugene Grooms, who was a threetime All-PSAC selection.

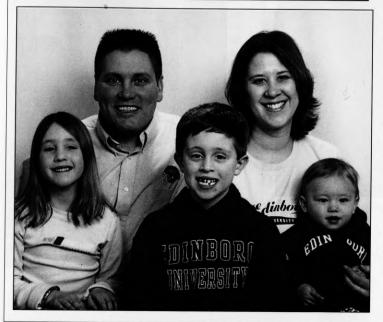

Bradford had previously been at Salisbury State since 1990, and was the Sea Gulls' defensive coordinator from 1994-98.

A graduate of Salisbury State, Bradford began his coaching career at his alma mater in 1990, serving as an assistant coach in charge of the linebackers (1990-92) and defensive linemen (1992-94). In 1994, he was promoted to defensive coordinator. In 1997, Salisbury State ranked 38th in NCAA Division III in total defense, allowing just 268 yards per game. His 1995 defensive unit produced a first team AFCA All-American at linebacker, and helped the Sea Gulls finish 7-2 with a berth in the ECAC Southwest Championship Game.

Bradford graduated from Salisbury State in 1990 with a bachelor's degree in Business Administration. He completed work on his master's degree in Business Administration from Salisbury State in 1992. In addition to working as a member of the football staff, Bradford was a faculty member in the School of Business. Beginning in 1996, he was the Director of the Business Graduate Programs for the Perdue School of Rusiness

As an undergraduate, Bradford was an offensive lineman. He layed on the 1986 Salisbury State team which finished as the NCAA Division III national runnerup.

Bradford and his wife, Gwen, reside in Edinboro with their eightyear-old son, Nicholas, six-year-old daughter, Julia and one-year-old son Mitchell.

Mike Yurcich enters his second season as a member of the Edinboro University coaching staff. Yurcich joined the football staff in April 2005 as the quarterbacks coach. He takes over as the offensive coordinator in 2006.

A native of Euclid, Ohio, Yurcich served as a graduate assistant coach at Indiana University in 2003-04. In addition to conducting statistical analysis for the Hoosiers' offense, he assisted with the wide receivers.

Yurcich is no stranger to the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference. After attending Mount Union in 1994-95, he transferred to California (Pa.) and played three seasons for the Vulcans. Yurcich was a two-year captain at California (Pa.) serving as the starting quarterback in 1996 and sharing the starting role in 1998.

Yurcich graduated from California (Pa.) with a bachelor's degree in Industrial Organization Psychology in May 1999, and later earned his master's degree in School Counseling from St. Francis(IN). While at St. Francis(IN), he served as an assistant coach for the Cougars, helping USF to four consecutive Mid-States Football Association Mid-East League Championships and four NAIA Playoff berths. The Cougars were 38-8 during the four-year period.

After coaching the running backs in 1999 at St. Francis, Yurcich worked with the quarterbacks in 2000 and 2001. He served as the offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach in 2002. He was also the junior varsity head coach from 2000-02

Dan Holland enters his third season as a member of the Edinboro coaching staff but is well-known in western Pennsylvania. All told he has 14 years experience on the high school level, serving as the head coach at Saegertown High School from 2001-03 in addition to stints as an assistant coach at McDowell High School and General McLane High School. After previously coaching the strong safeties and drop linebackers, he will work with the tight ends in 2006.

Holland led Saegertown to the 2002 French Creek Valley Athletic Conference championship, as the Panthers finished with a 9-1 record. He was recognized as the 2002 FCVAC Coach of the Year and was also named the PIAA District 10 Coach of the Year by the Pennsylvania State Football Coaches Association. He posted a 19-10 record in three seasons as head coach, resurrecting a program which had gone just 1-17 the previous two years.

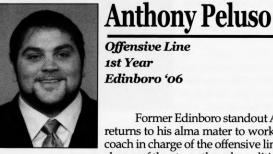

Holland began his coaching career as an assistant at General McLane in 1990, leading his 1993 junior varsity squad to a 7-1 record. He moved on to the McDowell school system in 1994, working for three seasons as the head coach at J.S. Wilson Middle School before joining the varsity staff in 1997. The 1997 edition of the Trojans advanced to Holland's the PIAA Class AAAA western finals. While serving on the McDowell staff for four seasons, Holland worked with the offensive and defensive lines, tight ends and special teams.

A 2001 graduate of Edinboro with a bachelor's degree in Specialized Studies, Holland resides in Meadville with his wife, Brenda, a 1996 graduate of Edinboro University with a bachelor's degree in Education.

t's been 10 years since the University of Florida took home a national championship. Coincidentally, 1996 also was the last year the Gators had a Heisman Trophy winner.

Chris Leak believes he has a chance to end both droughts this year.

Going strictly by wins and losses, there is little reason to compare Leak to Danny Wuerffel, who quarterbacked UF's '96 national champion while taking home that year's Heisman, other than that they are the last two four-year starters at Florida. Heading into the 2006 season, the Gators had lost more than twice as many games in three years with Leak at the helm (13) than they did in Wuerffel's four (6).

But a look at the record books tells another story. It shows that Leak is likely to graduate as the school's all-time leader in pass attempts, completions, yardage, completion percentage, 200-yard games and lowest interception percentage.

Still, Leak, who was selected Preseason All-SEC First Team quarterback by the league's coaches and who is being mentioned as a Heisman Trophy candidate, isn't making any comparisons to Wuerffel or Steve Spurrier, the school's other Heisman winner in 1966, even though last year he broke Spurrier's school record for consecutive completions (17) and came within four attempts of tying Wuerffel for most consecutive attempts without an interception (117).

More important is achieving team goals, starting with getting back to the SEC Championship Game, from which the Gators have been absent since 2000.

"I really don't pay attention to [Heisman] hype and all those things," said Leak. "I just concentrate on my team, how I can make my team better."

"What's really important to the players is getting to Atlanta and winning that game," said Urban Meyer, who was 9-3 in his inaugural season at Florida, but only 5-3 in the SEC. "The reason Rex Grossman, Shane Matthews, Wuerffel are great quarterbacks is the fact they have a ring that said they were the best at what they do, not because they threw for some yards. Chris' job is to win a championship."

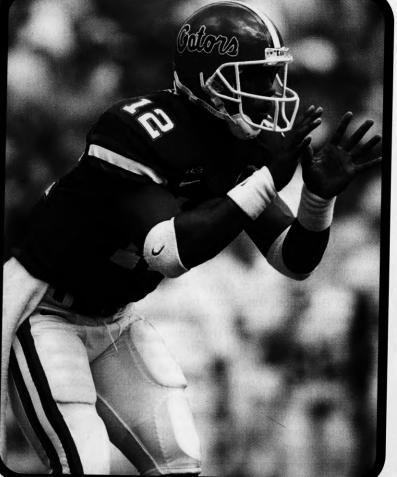

The best way to meet that goal is by displaying a better grasp on Meyer's spread offense than he did last season. Based on his play in the spring, Leak is confident that will happen.

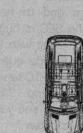

"Coach, from day one, said that he wanted to build this system around me and strong players like me," said the senior QB, who has made 33 straight starts (his record entering the season was 22-11, 15-8 in the SEC), and has thrown a touchdown pass in all but two of those starts. "I just have to go out and think about my teammates and be their leader. We have to know how to break down the defenses.

"It is the second year for everybody and we are all more comfortable," he added. "Everybody is more understanding of what they need to do. It takes time for everything to happen, to have all the receivers on the same page and for everybody to know what to do in a split second."

Leak's confidence is good news for Meyer, who was pleased with the way Leak ran the offense last year, when he was second in the SEC with 219.9 passing yards per game and was third in passing efficiency (136.5) and touchdown passes (20).

"Chris Leak had a very good year in the spread offense," said Meyer. "He won more games than he's ever won. His completion percentage was higher (.628). He threw half as many interceptions (6, he threw 12 in 2004). At the University of Florida, and most programs, you're not evaluated on yards thrown but winning championships. The only just criticism of Chris right now in my opinion is that he has not won a championship."

But critics blamed Leak, who also was second on the Gators with six rushing touchdowns, for the offense's lack of production last season-UF averaged 28.6 points (the second-lowest total in 13 years) and 373.4 yards per game (the lowest total in 17 years).

Leak, who in 2003 became only the fourth Gator ever to win SEC Freshman of the Year (Emmitt Smith 1987, Danny Wuerffel 1993, Jabar Gaffney 2000), believes that will turn around not only with familiarity with the spread, but with having his targets healthy.

His favorite target is wide receiver Andre Caldwell, who last season had 336 all-purpose yards in his first two-and-ahalf games before suffering a season-ending injury on the second-half kickoff against Tennessee.

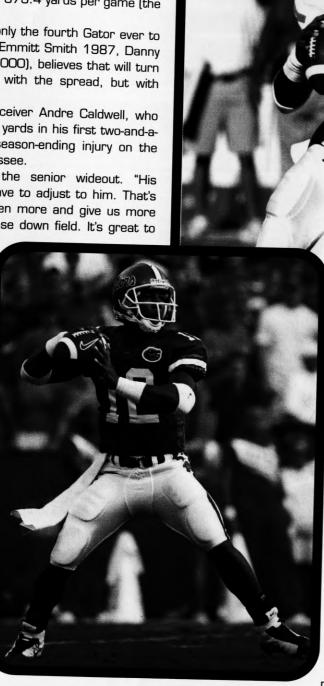

"He's huge," said Leak of the senior wideout. "His speed really makes a defense have to adjust to him. That's going to open up the offense even more and give us more opportunities to attack the defense down field. It's great to have him back."

Meyer points to Florida's increased production toward the end of the season, when the Gators began to get healthy again on offense.

"We had a little sweep in the middle there where we struggled very much on offense," said Meyer, referring to a rugged stretch that saw injury-riddled Florida score fewer than 20 points three times in four games (losses at Alabama and at LSU but also a victory against Georgia). "More so than Chris Leak in a squarepeg, round-hole theory is that personnel on the outside was not conducive to SEC conference play.

"Dallas Baker was full speed in the bowl game, and so was [Jemalle] Cornelius the last two games, and production went back up," said Meyer. "If those cats are healthy on the outside, your quarterback tends to have a little more production."

A good omen for Florida and Leak in 2006 is the history of improvement made by Meyer's teams in his second year. Utah, led by Alex Smith and under the tutelage of current Florida offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach Dan Mullen, averaged 16 more points and 125 more yards per game, while Bowling Green's offense was up 10 points and 65 yards in their second seasons.

Georgia, Tennessee and Florida State, something accomplished last season for the first time since 1995-in fact, for the first time ever, they never trailed in any of those gamesas well as a victory over Iowa in the Outback Bowl.

But in Gainesville, only one bowl game counts and that's the very last one played. Leak feels that he has worked too hard to see his collegiate career end with anything less than a championship.

Of course, dominating the Mountain West and the MAC are not the same as dominating the SEC. But factor in Leak's experience as a four-year starter and drastic improvement at Florida is realistic.

"Being able to have that experience and to have success in the SEC is huge," said Leak, who, along with Wuerffel is the only Florida quarterback to beat four top-10 teams away from The Swamp. "You grow fast as a player and you understand things better."

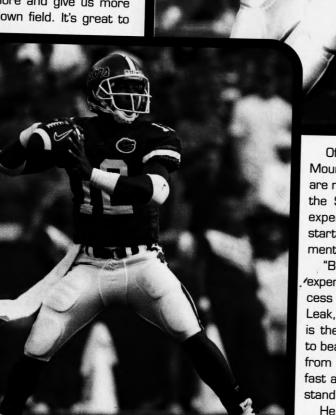

He understands how much losing, especially to Spurrier, now head coach at South Carolina, overshadowed victories over the trio of No. 4

"There are no shortcuts," he said. "I've been working hard and listening to my coaches, and I'll try to do whatever it takes to help my team win. As a captain and a leader of my team, that's one of the things you have to do. You have to lead by example and get guys to better themselves and to work hard."

Getting there and winning is crucial and was made even more so by the Florida men's basketball team, which took home a national championship and bragging rights at what used to be an unquestioned football school.

"We know a lot of those guys," said Leak with a laugh. "Obviously it would be great for us to get a ring the same year they got theirs. That would be a great story to have when you get older."

A national championship and possibly an early-December visit to New York City would make for a great story and a fitting final chapter to Leak's storied college career.

to the professional ranks at the big-time Division I programs of Auburn and Utah respectively, both had roadblocks thrown in their way. For Jacobs, it was the presence of Carnell Williams and Ronnie Brown during the 2003 season that led to his departure one year later. Elliott's immediate problem was Alex Smith, who had taken over the starting quarterback role at Utah when Elliott went down with a broken wrist during the second game of the 2003 season against Texas A&M.

Looking back now, Jacobs and Elliott had their collegiate careers detoured by three players who would all be selected within the top five picks of the 2005 NFL Draft. The smooth ride became a potentially windy, mountainous road that threatened to derail both players' immediate playing time and ultimately, their future playing careers. Rather than ride the pine and wonder what might have been, Jacobs and Elliott decided to blaze their own trails, based around one simple goal: getting back on the field.

"My stay at Auburn, I had fun there," Jacobs said. "I just didn't get the opportunity that I felt I should have been granted."

In a move that could have been a career killer in the eyes of some, Jacobs transferred to a Division I-AA program, Southern Illinois, where he became a member of another three-man rotation. Only this time, the results were quite different.

"Southern Illinois runs the rock," he said of the main, but not the only reason, for his selection. "There were a lot of players I went to junior college with [on the team]."

His familiarity with both the Salukis program and the coaching staff sealed the deal, and even the prospects of another crowded backfield didn't deter Jacobs, who knew exactly what he was getting into this time around. "We had three backs," he said of the Southern Illinois rotation. "Terry Jackson transferred from Minnesota [another I-A program]. We all got the ball enough—14, 15 times a game. There were a number of differences between Utah and Linfield, not the least of which was the absence of spring football to prepare for an upcoming season. And there was also the issue of money, although Elliott discovered something unique about the Division III atmosphere that no price tag could be put on. "Playing the game is most important." he said. "It's not about the scholarship, it's about teammates.

And it was those teammates that demonstrated how the game of football isn't just about dollar signs to everyone. It can also be a way of life. "The speed is slower and the size is smaller," he said. "But there's no difference in love for the game. The guys at Linfield had a strong passion and that's what I enjoyed, being around guys with such a passion [for football]. philosophy was run the ball first, run the motivating factor," he said of stepping ball second, throw third."

The one-year plan worked, and Jacobs excelled as one part of a devastating running game, racking up 992 vards and 16 touchdowns on just 150 carries. Other than adjusting to life in a different college town, the switch from Auburn to Carbondale was an easy one for Jacobs, who had previously spent two years at Coffeyville (Kan.) Community College before suiting up for the Tigers.

To those that scoff at the notion of Division I-AA play being as competitive as Division I-A games, the intensity wasn't much different according to Jacobs. "The tempo slowed a little, but there was some real good competition. Those guys [in I-AA] are playing to show that or 5,000 people." they're able to make it."

Fresh off a seven-touchdown rookie campaign in the NFL, Jacobs is direct about any advice he'd give players in a similar situation as his. "Keep working," Jacobs said. "Keep your heart in it and no matter what you do, give 110 percent."

ONE BREAK LEADS TO ANOTHER

Unlike Jacobs, who stayed on the radar of NFL scouts at a Division I-AA program, Elliott nearly evaded the professional GPS system altogether in transferring to Division III's Linfield College, just an hour's drive from where he grew up in Oregon.

"Getting to play again was the only down several levels of the NCAA maze. "Once I got there, I realized a small school was where I should have been the whole time." Elliott essentially became Wally Pipp to Alex Smith's Lou Gehrig. It's not often a player will lose his starting job to injury, but that point would have been tough to argue on the heels of Smith's performance in Elliott's absence-a 9-1 record with 2,247 yards and 15 touchdowns in 2003. The decision to transfer in Elliott's mind was a no-brainer.

"I transferred because I got hurt and wasn't going to play," he said. "I love football and I wanted to play, whether it's in front of 80,000 people

The pairing of Elliott and Linfield fit better than a restless infant and a pacifier. He soared both individually and as part of a national championship team in 2004, his first year with the program. Elliott threw for 4,595 yards and 61 scores in his second and final campaign, earning the Melberger Award as the top player in Division III in 2005. The touchdown passes are a single-season record, no matter the division. But he doesn't hesitate when it comes to defining the best moment of his college career. "The plane ride home after winning the national championship," Elliott said. "We felt untouchable and on top of the world. That was one of the best feelings."

Q&A

Edinboro Football 2006 The Boro is Back!!!

After toppling SEC power Georgia in last year's Sugar Bowl, Rich Rodriguez and the Mountaineers haven't yet peaked.

By Michael Bradley

BIGEAST BEAST

It has been quite a year for West Virginia coach Rich Rodriguez. By winning the Sugar Bowl against heavily favored Georgia, the Mountaineers not only captured their first-ever BCS victory, they also defended the honor of the Big East Conference, which had been ripped by critics all season. In one evening, West Virginia went from an overmatched representative of a second-rate league to a national factor. In the process, it helped the Big East's flagging reputation, which still needs some polishing, but which was helped by the win over the Bulldogs.

The fallout has been substantial. West Virginia began the season in everybody's top 10, and some picked the Mountaineers to win the national championship. Interest in the program skyrocketed, and benefits were realized on the recruiting trail. Making it all the more sweet was the fact that Rodriguez is a WVU alumnus and native West Virginian. As the '06 season neared kickoff, the man who rebuilt the Mountaineers took some time to talk about his accomplishments

G & A

Touchdown Illustrated: Did you spend the off-season reflecting on the Sugar Bowl win?

Rich Rodriguez: No, not really. I tried to avoid that. We still wanted to embrace the high expectations. That's what all top programs have. But we didn't want to rely on our past success. Our mantra was, "Stay humble, stay hungry."

TDI: What did the win over Georgia mean to the program? RR: It was the first BCS win in school history, and it was big for the league. Naturally, for us, it reaffirmed our belief that if you get a bunch of guys with talent, and they all pull together, they can win big ballgames. It doesn't automatically make us a top-10 program, but it's a good start.

TDI: What have been some of the benefits of last year?

RR: We sold out all of our season tickets. That's the first time it ever happened, and it was one of our goals when we first came here. Our annual giving is at an all-time high, and the level of interest the players are getting is an all-time high. There are a lot of residual effects.

TDI: How about recruiting?

RR: I thought it would make more of a positive impact in the next year than in the next month (after the win). People know us who didn't know us before.

TDI: The Big East folks are certainly happy with you, aren't they?

RR: We have had a lot of nice comments from coaches and others within the league. There was a lot of media bashing going on. We still see some of it, but it's getting better.

TDI: Your spread offense has been a key to West Virginia's success. What makes it successful?

RR: Every spread offense is different. It's not like the wishbone, where if you have seen one, you've seen them all. It gives us a lot of different answers to problems. If a defense is taking "this" away from us, then they're giving us "that." You have to have the players to execute things. Everybody understands we have answers if we get into trouble. It's a very versatile offense. We can play to our strengths, especially our skill players. It starts off with the quarterback. We can throw it 65 times, or we can run it 65 times, if we want to.

marvelous job. Now, he's more confident and comfortable in the system. A lot of times when players first play, they're only worried about what their guys are doing. As they mature, they concentrate on what the defense is doing. Pat is seeing the field now and understanding the game. He is a great runner in the open field. He has great speed. Sometimes, if the defense comes after him, it's not a bad thing for him to take off running. He's understanding the system better and managing games better.

TDI: Some people wonder whether it's good to have a running guarterback. Is that a concern?

RR: Even stationary quarterbacks get hit. In our system, there are a lot of chances to run, but you've got to be smart. You don't want to run it 30 times. You have to pick your times to run and use it right.

TDI: Was last year a surprise?

RR: It was a little bit of a surprise. You're not sure how you're going to perform in high-pressure tive things that people said about us the past few years now situations, until you're in them. I thought we might surprise seem to have gone out the window. It's all positive now. some people, but I didn't know how we would do in some Michael Bradley is a freelance writer based in Broomall, Pa. situations, because we had some young players in them for TDI: What does it mean to be considered a top-five team?

RR: One of our goals and aspirations when we came was to be in a situation where high rankings are the norm. We're not there vet. I'm not going to dismiss the ranking, because we worked hard to get it. But our guys understood that nobody's going to give us anything.

TDI: How hard was it to get the program going in the right direction after you took over? RR: Any time a new staff comes in, it's tough to get everything implemented the way you want it. I think that in our first couple years, things were implemented well. Since day one, we have always said that we wanted to build a program, rather than a team. I think we've built a program, not just a team.

TDI: How much does it mean to you to be doing it at your alma mater and in the state where you grew up?

RR: Having this be my alma mater and being from West Virginia is an extra bonus. I have a lot of family and friends in the area, and it's neat to be here. The school's growing, and that mirrors the program's growth. Enrollment is at an all-time high-27,000. Of course having so many family and friends around means that if things don't go well, I'll hear about that, too.

TDI: Do you feel like you're getting the school's name out there?

RR: It's easier when you're in a BCS bowl, because so many people are watching, and it becomes a four-hour commercial for the university. It helped that we went out and played well and made a strong showing. But there are still steps we have to take.

TDI: And do you think the Big East Conference is moving ahead. too?

RR: We're more settled now. We have a new TV contract that is a great contract for football and basketball. All the nega-

Athletic accomplishments weren't even on their minds when in the fall of his senior year in 1965 when Princeton faced Cornell. When Cornell determined that Gogolak was virtually impossible to stop with any conventional defense, a new formation was devised. they came to America.

"My senior year at Cornell, they put two players on the shoulders of two other players, and they were standing about 14 feet or 15 feet high with their arms up, and I have to kick over them," said Gogolak, whose voice still carries a trace of the accent of his native Hungary. "The next year the NCAA outlawed that kind of defensive formation; it said when football players take the field of play they must have two feet on the ground or two limbs on the ground. So it presented quite an obstacle in terms of thinking, 'Geez, can I kick over these guys? These quys are so tall.

Gogolak may have been fazed by Cornell's strategy, but you'd never know it right, as a teenager, and you want to from the results. He kicked a 54-yard field get integrated into social life, those first four goal that day, setting an lvy League record that stands or five years were actually very difficult. "It was a very substantial transition to a totally different life, different language, different customs and a different culture," said Gogolak. "We actually left a big city-Budapest-and we ended up in Ogdensburg, N.Y., about 120 miles north of Syracuse on the St. Lawrence River. We were so focused on achievement at that stage in our life, and for the family to stick together, that adapting was difficult. It was a small town; we were the only foreign kids in the school and I think a lot of the other kids were actually very helpful in embracing us and accepting us. where everything was different. That's how a lot of people start in America and I'd like to think part of that is what makes us a great country."

Charlie's path to college football, and eventually to the NFL with the Washington Redskins and the New England Patriots, took a different path than most players experienced. Youngsters throughout America dream of the day when they'll run into a huge stadium with a throng of fans, but for Charlie, it was a little different. Part of the cultural difference was that the Gogolak brothers didn't even know what American football was-and they certainly didn't arrive with any intention of playing.

"Things work out in funny ways," Gogolak said, referring to his arrival in St. Lawrence. "Not only didn't they have soccer, I think most of the people never heard of soccer. So the simple answer is that there was no soccer team at all. We lived outside of town on these hospital grounds where my father worked as a doctor, so we were not very much in the loop near the high school, so my first year, we didn't even know that such a thing as a football team even existed. Then, since my older brother was a bigger kid, some of his friends said, 'Hey, you have to come out for this sport, you've got to try this thing.' So he went out and tried it and, lo and behold. they were actually looking for somebody to kick off. and he said, 'Oh, I'll give that a shot.' That's literally how it started. I can almost guarantee you that if we had gone to New York and that if the high school had a soccer team, we both would have played soccer and, in all likelihood, never would have played football."

Football wasn't Charlie's primary concern in his collegiate search and his introduction to college football contrasted sharply with the way prospective players approach college football today. Charlie wasn't recruited. He was fortunate to meet the coaching staff, and he quickly cited what his brother had already accomplished, which lent him a little credibility. It wasn't easy. Not only did he have to convince colleges that he could kick, dance yourself."

A conversation with Charlie Gogolak offers a snapshot of a time when college football was less pretentious, when it wasn't such a big business. Listen to Gogolak tell stories of his days at Princeton, and you're immediately taken back to a time before the Bowl Championship Series, before corporations sponsored bowl games and before ESPN's College Gameday was pumped into living rooms nationwide. Gogolak takes you back to an era when the Ivy League was still Division I, not Division I-A. He also takes people back to Palmer Stadium, an old horseshoe stadium that was the essence of college football on a Saturday afternoon. "What a gorgeous place Palmer was a very special place." Years later, Princeton replaced Palmer Stadium with Princeton Stadium. putting the new structure—which retained the horseshoe shape of its predecessor-right on the same spot where Palmer Stadium stood for generations.

"I think the new stadium is gorgeous, but I'm glad the locale has not changed," said Gogolak. "I don't feel like it's a completely different place." - J.C.

Stadium was," said Gogolak. "I know it got a little bit old, but we had a beautiful, beautiful field and we had great fall weather there. "We practiced right next to the stadium the whole time, so we really felt it was our home, and we had this little locker room there was that very, very spartan," said Gogolak. "I think we had a dirt floor. After pre-game warm-ups, we'd go into that room, and Cosmo lacovazzi was our leader, and our senior year Cosmo was the captain and he was a fiery Italian and we practically tore the doors down before going out. They kind of locked you in there; the coaches left and the captains would fire up the team. It

As the years progressed, the soccer style approach to kicking introduced by the Gogolak brothers became the norm, rather than the exception. Suddenly teams realized that kickers had more room for error with the soccer-style approach, that they were able to get more of their foot on the ball in a motion that seemed to be more natural. Pete and his brother went from being novelties to pioneers.

"I think our kicking catapulted the value of the field goal in a huge way because we were followed by other soccer-style kickers who were good athletes, or certainly had good soccer backgrounds," said Gogolak. "The methodology of kicking was more proficient than the toe kicking. You had coordinated kickers who were going to make a higher percentage of their kicks, and ultimately were able to kick a longer distance."

Football is long since behind Gogolak; who splits his time now between Florida and New England, though he still reminisces about his days at Princeton.

"I feel completely blessed and fortunate," Charlie said. "I'll be 62 at the end of this year and I've retired. I was in the financial services industry, and a couple of years ago, when I got close to 60, I managed to get out of the business with my skin still alive."

n Greg Schiano's first day as Rutgers football's czar, all the way back in 2001, he met with a large group of New Jersey's high school coaches.

And a message was sent.

Yeah, I want to win. But first, things to change.

Truth is, everything had to change. Perception facilities, recruiting. Heck, the whole infrastructure of the program.

Where to start? With the kind of kid Rutgers pursued.

That kid, of course, had to be more talented to get Schiano where he wanted to go. The most important thing, though, was his mind and not his body.

"I had to fix the academic support," Schiano says. "We were losing one in every three kids, and they were flunking out of school. The way you're going to succeed is to have 18-year-old kids become 21- and 22-year-old men in your program. We're able to do that now."

The academic tutors were going to report directly to the football coach. The football coach was going to make the players accountable.

In turn, he was holding himself accountable everywhere else.

Five years later, the returns are coming back glowing.

Schiano, quite simply, has succeeded where almost anyone would fail and has failed. After two ragged seasons, the program showed flashes, winning nine games over two seasons in Years 3 and 4, with foretelling victories over Syracuse and Michigan State.

Then came the burst. Seven wins. The school's first bowl game appearance in 27 years. A third-place finish in the Big East.

It was just, well, different than anything Rutgers had seen in as long as anyone can remember. Behind iss flary coach, Flusgara is quickly gaining sha assansion of sha nasion—and of highly sousad racruisa.

RUTARDA

THE UNDERGROUND

"We were more talented, that's number one," Schiano says. "In addition, we were more of a football team. We've been stricter, from the players to the coaches, every year I've been here, and the level of accountability last year was the highest we've had.

"We coached better, too, and it all meshed, and we had a little luck."

And as much as he's proud of that effort, he knows that this program he built needs more. For all the work accomplished, "this year and next year are critical," Schiano explains. "It's important to show people in this area that wasn't a one-year deal, that we have a program, not just one team."

To do that, they'll have to, again, ratchet up the accountability. And stick to a plan that's been in place since the beginning.

• •

It starts with the state of New Jersey itself.

Yes, Rutgers is the flagship university. Just not in the way Ohio State or Penn State or Texas or Oklahoma are.

And that's not the only way Jersey's different. It's in the attitude of people in general and the way everything works. It takes a Jersey guy to know that, and that's just what Schiano is.

"It's a tough place to gain acceptance, it's not the most welcoming place," says Greg Toal, who's been a head coach in the Jersey high school ranks for the last 21 years, the last eight with state behemoth Don Bosco. "People want to see what you're doing, what you're about. And if you come in from California, like (Schiano's predecessor Terry) Shea did, it's tough."

So instead of having to feel things out, Schiano hit the ground running.

The plan was cultivated. The first part was changing the kind of kid that came in. The second was spreading the word.

The staff was tireless. Schiano deman ed that all 350 high schools in the stat got a visit each year.

They went to elementary schools, gav away Rutgers Football T-shirts and aske they be awarded on a merit basis. The even enlisted alum James Gandolfini—yes Tony Soprano—to spearhead a publicit campaign by posing for billboards.

"We did things to create excitement and to have James Gandolfini in helper immensely," Schiano says. "We did the commercials and some might say, "S what?' But we had to get out there in the public eye. Winning games is the way to d it, but we had to do other things in the meantime."

Those things, to the outsider, seeme impossible. Rutgers getting attention in the New York metro area?

Eventually, they did.

To other coaches, being near New York as college football coach may have been seen as hindrance. Schiano saw it as an advantage.

First, there are the built-in edges of using th city as a recruiting bargaining chip. Second, would be the base of his talent search.

Coming over from Miami, where he wa defensive coordinator under Butch Davis Schiano took an idea with him. The Hurrican program's foundation was built on Howar Schnellenberger's "State of Miami," area around Florida that he wanted to claim a ne U" in recruiting wars.

property of "The U" in recruiting wars.

Its seniors have been Rutgers' building blocks for success

The idea, as Rutgers coach Greg Schiano explains it, is for your best players to be your seniors. That way, year after year, you're replacing experience with more experience and the example is being set from the top. For the first time in Schiano's six years, this year, that's more reality than aspiration.

This year's seniors, who filtered into school in 2002 and '03, have got a legit shot to make history. With seven wins, the number the Scarlet Knights compiled last fall, these guys will become the winningest class at Rutgers in 25 years.

"That's when you have a program—when your seniors are your best players," says Schiano. "Guys like (fullback) Brian Leonard, (wide receiver) Shawn Tucker, (tight end) Clark Harris, they've been here for four, five years. They've grown into mature young men and become outstanding players.

"And having seniors like that every year, that's when you get that pipeline. It's evidence you have a real program."

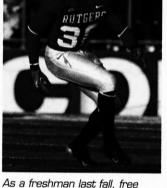

There are 22 of them, and 12 of them start. Meaning, for the first time since Schiano arrived in 2001, he has an honest-to-God veteran team.

What it also means is that recruiting has leveled off a bit, which it has to. The key now is in consistency having top-notch seniors every year.

"Once interest in recruiting's at a sustained level, the only way you can up more is to take smaller steps," Schiano explains. "We continue to get a higher caliber of student-athlete. The thing is that, as you get better, the level of improvement begins to shrink."

Which, in the grand scheme, is a good thing.

Similarly, Schiano gave birth to the "State of Rutgers." In it was New Jersey, Eastern Pennsylvania. Southern Connecticut, all five boroughs of New York City and Long Island. Plus talent-rich South Florida, where Schiano's connections remain vast.

It took two years to really sink in. Once the groundworkthe academic recovery, the staff improvements, the gladhanding road trips-was laid, it took off.

"The first two years, it was a sprint trying to get the infrastructure in place and recruit as well." Schiano says. "The third year, we had a breakthrough. And we weren't just getting top players, they were good students too, they were total packages. It's grown incrementally."

They were pulling good prospects, guys like Brian Leonard, do it right here." who was offered by Penn State, and Jeremy Zuttah, also offered by Ohio State.

And what may be more important was the kid Rutgers wasn't getting-the elite player, the one who wouldn't give the Scarlet Knights a second thought in years past. He was now considering RU.

That's a step.

"He has to get those kids if he wants to take the next out well for him." step," said Vic Kubu, for 22 years the coach at state power Middletown South High. "Personally, if I'm an elite kid, I'm not going (to Rutgers). Even if they do the best they can, if USC's calling, I'm not going there."

Therein lies another hurdle

Toal's younger son Brian was a senior at Don Bosco during the 2003-04 school year and among the best handful of linebackers in the country.

He considered, naturally, Miami. Boston College, long a dominant figure in Jersey recruiting, was in there, too. And Improbable. there was Rutgers, right up to the end.

"They were relentless," the father says. They introduced Brian at a basketball game, gave him a jersey, let him know now important he was to the class of '04.

In the end, Brian Toal picked BC, where his older brother Greg Jr. played.

But just how serious Brian was about Rutgers left a strong moression on his father.

"Sometimes, people will look at an elite kid and say to the Rutgers people, 'Why are you even recruiting him?' " the elder Toal explains. "It's because they believe they can land anybody, and that's positively the right way to look at it. With their tenacity, if they stay at it, they'll get there."

The key to that next step, Schiano thinks, is keeping things the way they are.

It worked before. After going 3-20 in their first two seasons, Schiano's soldiers stayed the course.

Success followed.

"The reason I don't put timelines on things is because if you make a couple big mistakes, you need to keep working," he explains. "It'll happen. But if we were to put a timeline on it, and then you don't quite make it, you may abort the mission and mess everything up. If you prematurely quit, then you don't believe in your plan. If you do believe in it, you keep executing it."

See. Schiano doesn't deal in absolutes. Even when he says it's important to keep succeeding, he'll admit he's "not sure" really what that means.

"I just think we need to keep doing what we're doing and it'll work out," he says. "We have tremendous facilities, there's a $13 million addition on the football building, an indoor field, a (fairly) new stadium, a great location, we have all these things. We've just got to continue with it, because already we're a real viable alternative.

"Kids don't need to go away to school anymore. They can Even so, don't think for a second that Schiano's foot is coming off the pedal. The staff still blankets the state, meeting with high school coaches, visiting elementary schools, making public appearances.

"He's definitely exuded confidence and really believes in his plan," says Toal. "He didn't get detoured whatsoever when they struggled. He had a belief, and, to his credit, it worked Schiano has another belief, one that probably won't be realized until after the Scarlet Knights have long since said farewell to guys like Leonard and guarterback Mike Teel, another protege of Toal's.

It's one that really doesn't seem all that realistic. Then again, you listen, because what he's already done didn't seem possible before.

"The goal, without exception, is to be national champions," says the coach. "When I got here, I said that and people laughed. They still laugh. But there's no reason why we can't."

Impossible, you would've said five years ago. Now?

Yes, things have changed.

Is it possible to think of a health insurer ds you would a next door neighbor?

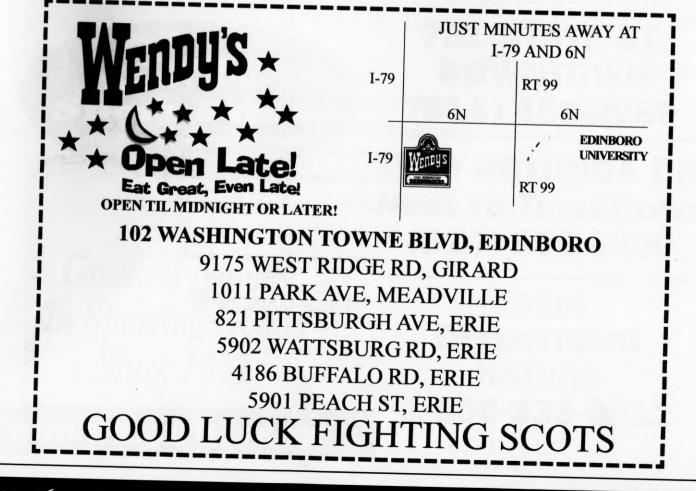

> A familiar face. A supportive shoulder. A willing hand. Through the years, Highmark has funded programs that address domestic violence and promote nurturing, positive family environments. Supported numerous health and wellness programs. And worked to keep donations flowing into local United Ways. So why do we do all this, and more? To improve the health and well-being of our communities, of course. And, to make some good friends along the way.

Fighting Scot Football Team!!!

All-Americans

Harlan Hill Trophy

Two Edinboro University football players ave been finalists for the Harlon Hill Trophy, presented annually to the top player in NCAA Division II football. Running back Elbert Cole Was one of three finalists in 1989, while wide receiver Ernest Priester was a finalist a year later. Cole placed third in the '89 balloting. He earned American honors in 1989, receiving first team accolades from Kodak/American Football Coaches Association, second team recognition m Football Gazette, and third team status from Associated Press. Cole rushed for 1,507 yards and set Penn-Ivania State Athletic Conference records for touchdowns (24) and points (148). He led the Fighting Scots to the PSAC West title, a 8-3 ecord and a number seven ranking in the final Division II poll.

Priester was runnerup to North Dakota State quarterback Chris Simdorn in 1990 when the Bison claimed the Division II national title. Priester was the PSAC Western Division Co-Player of the Year in 1990. He was also recognized by Kodak/American Football Coaches Association, Associated Press and the Football Gazette as a first team All-American.

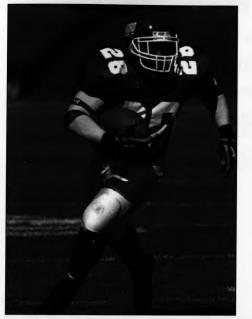

The wide receiver hauled in 47 passes for 1,102 yards and 15 TDs. Edinboro finished 9-3, reaching the Division II quarterfinals.

Two years ago Andre Burke (below) made a run at the Harlon Hill Trophy, as the tailback was a Northeast Region semifinalist. Burke ended up with a school-record 1,713 yards and 19 TDs.

Elbert Cole, a 1989 finalist, with the Harlon Hill Trophy.

Dave Smith was a four-time All-PSAC selection. The defensive end earned first team honors in 1999, 2000 and 2001, and was a second team selection in 2002

Dear Fans:

I hope that our fans will applaud and frequent the 13 supporters listed below from the Edinboro community who have supported our players with evening snacks through the grueling practice sessions in August. Our "August Snacks Program" has been a huge success. I can't tell you how appreciative our players are of these generous donations. This is the sixth consecutive year that the community has reached out and assisted us. Our players have asked me to thank each of the restaurants/eateries below. Please support these Edinboro business! THANK YOU.

This marks the 21st season that I have been fortunate enough to be a member of the Edinboro football staff. During that time it has been very gratifying to see the response of local organizations in assisting Edinboro football. In recent years the service organizations has provided invaluable assistance, including running the 50/50 raffles. We look forward to working with these organizations again this year, and thank them for their support of Boro Football.

Sincerely,

Seatt E. Braning

FROM THE ATHLETIC DIRECTOR

Thank you for your support of the Annual Athletic Fund Drive.

I feel like I'm getting redundant. For the past two years I've boasted about how well the Fighting Scot athletic teams have done, only to see the next year's teams exceed those performances. It gives me great pleasure to tell you that we once again enjoyed an outstanding season, topping the previous year's accomplishments, in my estimation.

As someone who knows a thing or two about the sacrifices it takes to be successful, I can tell you that it isn't easy to maintain this type of performance year-in and year-out. And I'm not just referring to on-the-field performance. These young men and women have taken to heart what we preach - academics are still the number one priority.

I am not going to take the time to tell you all of the accomplishments. Some will be noted in this brochure, such as four teams winning PSAC championships, nine teams or individual representatives in NCAA tournaments, 14 All-Americans, four league Coaches of the Year, and four league Athletes of the Year. The list goes on and on. I would recommend that you view our website for indepth information on our programs. The website address is www.edinboro.edu. The site underwent a maior renovation last September and will continue to grow in the future.

Speaking of building, by this time next year construction will be winding down on our new weight room. A major need for a number of years, this project will not only bring our weight room up to par with our competitors but will also provide a film room for our coaches and athletes, several new offices and a new concession area.

This weight room, along with the new track and locker room updates in wrestling and volleyball, are just some of the examples of Edinboro athletics moving forward. But as you know, it comes at a steep price. In the past, we have had numerous individuals become a part of the Edinboro Family.

I can't tell you how valuable your support has been since the start of the Annual Athletic Fund almost a decade ago. I know without your help, this would never have been possible. We hope you'll once again donate to the Annual Athletic Fund. If you haven't donated in the past, we encourage you to become a part of the Edinboro family. And please tell a friend. Edinboro celebrates its Sesquicentennial in 2006-07. We'd like to do our part by making it an athletic season to remember, but we need your help.

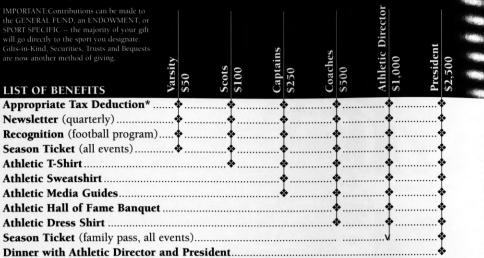

I want to leave you with one other thought. In conjunction with our 150th year celebration, the athletic department has been compiling its All-Time Teams in the various sports. Make sure to keep an eye out for these on our website during the coming months.

Pair of Underdogs Key to Boro Defense by Bob Shreve, Sports Information Director

Dave Jazenski

Iim Soltis

Two of those players flank Stroup at linebacker - Jim Soltis and Dave Jazenski. Sure, Soltis was named to the All-PSAC West second team a year ago. But take a look at the numbers -- 64 tackles, second on the team, three passes broken up, a pair of forced fumbles, and two blocked kicks. All that for

The Edinboro defense has enjoyed great success over the last couple years. A year ago, the Fighting Scots finished as the top-ranked defense in the country, leading NCAA Division II in scoring defense, total defense, and als during that period. A year ago former head coach Lou Tepper was named the PSAC

West Coach of the Year. Chris Amico was recognized as the PSAC West Defensive player of the Year, and A.J. Cousins was named to the

All-PSAC West first team the last two years.

Ben Stroup was also a first team choice a year great the past few years are the players who don't necessarily gain a great deal of notoriety.

But what has really made this defense the tall and lanky senior from Garrettsville, Ohio who hardly seems to pack the listed 196 pounds on his 6'3" frame.

rushing defense.

"Pound for pound, Jim might be our toughest guy," boasted defensive coordinator Wayne Bradford, "and we have a lot of tough guys. Jimmy was an under-recruited guy. He came here as a walkon and has been a classic overachiever. Don't get me wrong, he's a talented player.

"He plays great in space, is a great special teams player, and is very versatile. He's as important to our defense as anybody."

Jazenski, meanwhile, was named the Erie County League Co-Player of the Year as a senior at nearby Iroquois High School after rushing for 1,883 yards and 20 TDs. Yet there was question whether he could run well enough to play linebacker at the Division II level. "Jaz is a better football player than he was given credit for," related Bradford. "The thing that I remember about Jaz was seeing him in the Save-an-Eye Game, and he ran down Jovon Johnson, who went to Iowa to play cornerback, from across the field. That was enough for me.

"Jaz is a very smart football player," Bradford continued. "He's kind of the gritty, old man of the unit. He plays hurt and he's tough. He's just a good football player."

Both Soltis and Jazenski have had to overcome hardship to become integral parts of the defense. For Soltis, it was the loss of his mother to cancer in his first year at Edinboro.

"My first game here at Edinboro she wasn't here," he recalled. 'Her loss was huge. I was used to seeing her every game in the stands. She practically took me to every practice and picked me up. I think about it every game."

However, there is still a large contingent of Soltis family members who make every game.

As for Jazenski, he has battled shoulder injuries since his arrival. The injuries have slowed the stocky, 5'11", 214 lb. senior, but he has overcome them to earn a starting role the last two seasons. A year ago he finished with 48 tackles while playing in nine games, sitting out the final game with, what else, a shoulder injury. But unlike the last two seasons when he was forced to miss spring ball, he came out of the 2005 campaign healthy.

"Being able to take part in spring ball helped a ton," admitted Jazenski. "Particularly with the new calls and new checks. Getting the reps really helped. I really didn't understand everything with the new defense, but having all the reps helped clear things up."

Soltis is in his third season as a starter at outlside linebacker. Despite looking more like a free safety than a linebacker, he has displayed the versatility so necessary in his position. He does an outstanding job in pass coverage, yet his toughness and quickness make him a solid player on the edge of the line.

In some respects, Soltis enjoyed his coming out party in the 2004 NCAA playoffs. He registered 8 tackles and had a pair of fumble recoveries as edinboro outlasted Bentley, 46-44, in the first round of the Northeast Regional. The following week he was named the Football Gazette Defensive Player of the Week and D2football.com Co-Defensive Player of the Week after finishing with 9 tackles in a 36-32 loss to East Stroudsburg. That was just the tip of the iceberg. he returned an interception 47 yards for a touchdown, with 3 tackles for losses, a sack and a fumble recovery.

Now as Soltis and Jazenski reach week number seven of their final season, they realize their playoff futures are in the balance with East Stroudbsurg's Jimmy Terwilliger standing in the way. Last year's Harlon Hill Trophy winner, the equivalent of the Heisman Trophy in Division II, Terwilliger has broken Edinboro's hearts in the last two minutes with late comebacks.

With a 3-3 record, the 2006 season has hardly gone as the Fighting Scots had expected. "Our main goal was to go undefeated," explained Soltis. "Obviously that can't happen. But our second goal was to make the playoffs, and that's still possible."

In three-plus seasons Soltis and Jazenski have been part of teams that have gone 29-11, setting the winning trend at Edinboro. "we're so used to win-admitted ning," Jazenski. "We were the last group to have a crappy team, our first year. They (younger teammates) don't know how hard it is to get there." Soltis feels the 2006 team isn't finished just yet. "We've been in the same poisition before. The seniors have to step up. We take it for granted. I think this week we'll be the underdog. We've played well in that role in the past."

Jim Soltis tackles Jimmy Terwilliger in 2004 playoff game.
