Today's Game

Welcome to another season of Edinboro football. Second-year head coach Scott Browning is hoping this will be a very special season for his Fighting Scots.

It will be this afternoon, as Edinboro unveils a newly-refurbished Sox Harrison Stadium.

When we last saw Sox Harrison Stadium, it was covered in mud from an November snowstorm. The result -- Senior Day against Shippensburg moved down I-79 to Allegheny College.

That ultimately set into motion a plan to install an artificial turf field surface.

That brings us to this afternoon, as we dedicate not only the new playing surface, plus a new scoreboard and visitor's locker room.

The only problem is, standing in the way is a West Chester team that has made the NCAA Division II Playoffs the last three years and has been chosen the preseason favorite in the PSAC East. The Golden Rams show up in every national preseason poll, including 17th in the AFCA poll.

Did we mention that there's a little revenge motive for the Golden Rams? These same two teams met in last season's opener at West Chester. It just so happens that the Golden Rams were playing for the first time on their brand new artificial surface. Only the Fighting Scots spoiled the celebration, defeating West Chester, 28-14.

Realistically, West Chester's motive to win lies in its search for a fourth straight NCAA Playoff berth, and has nothing to do with revenge. But you just know head coach Bill Zwaan will remind his team, the preseason favorite in the PSAC East, of last year's score, and the chance is there to return the favor.

As for the pre-game ceremonies recognizing the new field, check out page 60 for more details. Hopefully it will make today a very special occasion, and part of a special season.

One thing is for sure. When the ball is kicked off to start the 2007 campaign, you'll witness two of the top teams and some of the best talent in the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference. We hope you enjoy it, along with all the new amenities at Sox Harrison Stadium.

The Coaches

Scott Browning (Ohio State '81) took over as Edinboro's 13th head coach on January 5, 2006. He was certainly no stranger to Fighting Scot football, however, serving as an assistant coach for the previous twenty years. While at Edinboro he has coached the offensive linemen, defensive backs and running backs, along with serving as the offensive coordinator. Browning became the first head coach at Edinboro to debut with a win since Bill McDonald in 1969 when the Fighting Scots opened the 2006 season with a 28-14 win at West Chester. He went on to lead Edinboro to a 6-5 finish, the most wins ever by a first-year coach. (For more on Scott Browning, see pages 6-7.)

Bill Zwaan (Delaware '79) begins his fifth season as the Golden Rams' head coach. During that period he owns an impressive 36-17 record with three trips to the NCAA Playoffs. Including six seasons at Widener, he has a 90-38 ledger as a head coach.

Scouting West Chester

The Golden Rams return a veteran team that has reached the NCAA Division II Playoffs each of the last three years. Now they have been chosen as the favorite in the PSAC East preseason poll, and have bigger ambitions. The talk centers on advancing to the NCAA semifinals. A year ago the Golden Rams defeated Bryant in the first round of the Northeast Regional, 31-29, before suffering a 21-20 loss to Bloomsburg in the region semifinals ... WCU finished with a 9-4 record, and returns 38 letterwinners, including eight starters on offense and six on defense.

Players to Watch

Lateef Ferguson, ILB -- the 6-0, 245 lb. senior is a consensus pre-season All-American who looks to lead the team in tackles for the fourth straight year ... the 2006 PSAC East Defensive Player of the Year, he finished with 114 tackles and needs 99 tackles to break the school record ... named D2Football.com second team All-American in 2006.

Mike Washington, WR -- a two-time All-PSAC East performer who burned the Fighting Scots for 9 catches for 136 yards and 2 TDs a year ago ... he caught 55 catches for 1,170 yards and 16 TDs all told, and in two seasons has 2,355 yards and 31 TDs.

Osagie Osunde, RB -- despite battling injuries and finishing with 522 yards on 89 carries, the senior earned first team All-PSAC East honors ... was limited to seven games ... in 2004 rushed for 1,151 yards.

Bill Zwaan, QB -- the son of head coach Bill Zwaan, the senior earned second team All-PSAC East honors after throwing for 2,110 yards with 22 TDs and 10 INTs.

The West Chester Game

of Scott Browning, travelling to the eastern part of the state and handing West Chester a 28-14 defeat in a PSAC crossover game.

The Fighting Scots used a familiar formula in the win, with a dominating defense and an efficient offense. Ranked number one in the country a year ago in rushing defense, Edinboro limited the Golden Rams to just 49 yards rushing. Overall, Edinboro outgained WCU 340 yards to 279, while holding the ball for 35 minutes and 49 seconds.

Edinboro forced six turnovers, all in the second half to erase a 7-3 halftime deficit. Redshirt freshman QB Trevor Harris hooked up with Ryan Valasek for a pair of scores in the third quarter, covering 15 and 29 yards. Ulysee "Spud" Davis added a 7-yard scoring run early in the fourth quarter to give the Boro a 22-7 lead. West Chester would pull within 22-14 with just under six minutes to play, but any comeback hopes were dashed when freshman CB Houston Brown picked off a pass and returned it 40 yards for a touchdown.

Edinboro Picked 4th in PSAC West Preseason Poll

The Fighting Scots were picked fourth in the PSAC coaches preseason poll. West Chester, meanwhile, is the favorite in the East.

Senior TE Kyle Witucki was named a second team Lindy's Magazine preseason All-American, and was also recognized as a second team preseason All-American by D2Football.com. Witucki, 6'4", 249 lb., received plenty of recognition a year ago. He was accorded second team Daktronics All-American honors and was an honorable mention All-American by D2Football.com and Football Gazette, in addition to being named to the All-PSAC West first team. Witucki caught 31 passes for 455 yards with 5 TDs.

Fighting Scots on ScotsCast, PA SPORTSfever

Fighting Scot fans can catch Edinboro on television this season, as ETV, the campus television station, will televise all five home games, called ScotsCast. The games will also be streamed through the internet. In addition, all road contests can be heard on the internet through EZstream. The November 3 home game with Clarion will be shown live on the PA Sportsfever network, encompassing much of Pennsylvania. Note that the kickoff has been moved to 3:05 p.m. to accommodate television.

WCU Won't Recognize Houston

A year ago Houston Brown was a thorn in the side of the Golden Rams. He hopes to make a similar impact this year, although it will be distinctly different. As a freshman cornerback, Brown ended up being named the PSAC West Defensive Player of the Week after finishing with 3 tackles, a pair of fumble recoveries, and his first career interception, which he returned 40 yards for a touchdown. After seven games Brown was moved to tailback, and in four games finished with 414 yards on 85 carries. In fact, he was named to the All-PSAC West second team.

Amico Leads Group of Five Returning All-PSAC Performers

Three-time All-PSAC West selection Chris Amico headlines a group of five returning Fighting Scots who were accorded All-PSAC West honors a year ago. The senior defensive tackle was named the 2005 PSAC West Defensive Player of the Year, and a year ago was a first team choice for the second straight year. Senior TE Kyle Witucki was also a first team selection. Sophomore QB Trevor Harris was a second team choice and was also voted the PSAC Rookie of the Year. Senior FS Tom Davidson was named to the All-PSAC West second team for the second time. As a freshman, Houston Brown was a second team pick at tailback.

Division I Transfers Add Punch

Edinboro added four Division I transfers this summer, and all figure to make an immediate impact. Most noteworthy is Tommie Campbell, a junior strong safety who started six games at outside linebacker for Pittsburgh last year, finishing with 49 tackles. Lucas Cox played tight end at Iowa, but now the junior will line up at defensive tackle. Rob Stoner (Youngstown State) and Justin Gomes (Ohio) are redshirt freshmen who will start at offensive guard and kicker, respectively. Both are local products, with Stoner playing at General McLane High School and Gomes at McDowell High School.

Welcome to Edinboro

Dear Family, Friends and Fans of the Fighting Scots:

It is a pleasure to be a part of the Fighting Scots Family at Edinboro University. In the short time I have been Edinboro's President, I have been impressed with the excitement and enthusiasm I have felt on campus, especially among our athletes and coaches. This year, for the first time in the school's history, we have artificial turf and lighting at Sox Harrison Stadium. McComb Fieldhouse has been extensively remodeled and now features, among other improvements, one of the finest weight rooms in the state.

We have adopted a new message for Edinboro: "Great Things Happen Here." That greatness applies to athletics as well, as it goes hand in hand with the academic development of our students. I have participated in athletics for most of my life. Prior to coming to Edinboro, I coached the men's and women's squash teams at St. Lawrence University, including at the national tournament.

At Edinboro, we are focused on raising our academic and athletic standards campus wide. As we grow, we will take the University not only to the next level, but to the level beyond that. We believe that everything we do at Edinboro should reflect the excellence of the institution.

I invite you to become a part of this new and "Great" era at Edinboro University.

Go Scots!

 Jeremy D. Brown, President

replace the natural grass. And it will now be illuminated, with lights being installed for the first time. Finally, a new scoreboard was installed.

Sox Harrison Stadium seats 6,000 people in its two grandstands, along with plenty of standing room. In addition to press boxes on both sides of the stadium, the facility has locker rooms, a training room and complete amenities for fans.

The stadium has undergone several renovations, including a new sound system and improved handicapped access areas in 1999. In 1997, a new grandstand was constructed on the visitor's side of the field, adding 2,500 permanent seats, along with a press box, locker rooms and a training room.

In addition to the football field, the facility contains complete track facilities.

Sox Harrison Stadium serves as the home of the Fighting Scots. Dedicated in 1965, the stadium honors the memory of B. Regis "Sox" Harrison, the head football and basketball coach at Edinboro University for 34 years. Sox Harrison was the key figure in the building of Edinboro's athletic program, unselfishly devoting 34 years of service to the University as an athletic director, coach and physical education instructor. Appropriately, he was the first member inducted into the Edinboro Athletic Hall of Fame in 1982.

Harrison coached the Fighting Scot football team from its inception in 1926 to 1938, then returned to guide the gridirers in 1941 and '42. In addition, he coached the men's basketball team for 23 seasons, from 1928-53, winning 175 games.

The stadium received a facelift this summer, giving it a spanking new look. Most noticeable is the installation of an artificial surface, Sportex, to

Scott Browning

2nd Year
Ohio State '81

Scott Browning knows a thing or two about the Edinboro football tradition. With twenty years under his belt as an assistant coach, he was all too familiar with the glory days of Edinboro football. So it didn't take him long to restore some lost traditions when he took over as the 13th head football coach of the Fighting Scots on January 5, 2006.

Most prevalent was the return to the "Boro", the common name the football team was referred to during the 1980's and '90's, some of the most successful periods in Edinboro football history.

One thing Browning didn't mess with was the tradition of winning. His first edition finished with a 6-5 record, the most wins ever under a first-year coach. But it didn't end just on the football field. The Fighting Scots excelled in the classroom, including a cumulative team GPA of over 2.8 for the spring semester.

Browning became the first coach at Edinboro since Sox Harrison to win his first two games as head coach. That happened in 1926, the first year of football at the Boro. Thanks to a 28-14 win at West Chester, he became the first coach since Bill McDonald in 1969 to win his first game as head coach. That victory, on the road at West Chester between a pair of 2005 NCAA playoff teams, also displayed Browning's propensity as a showboat gambler. The Fighting Scots went for it on fourth down four times, and made it three times.

"I am very pleased to announce the promotion of Scott Browning to the position of head football coach at Edinboro University," stated then President Dr. Frank G. Pogue at the time. "Scott has been a member of the Edinboro coaching staff for 20 years. He has demonstrated his ability to not only coach athletes on the playing field, but also to lead young men by the example of his character and by his dedication to them as students and as individuals. He will join our other highly successful coaches at Edinboro University."

After serving as the offensive line coach and recruiting coordinator in Lou Tepper's first season, Browning took over as the offensive coordinator in 2001.

He had previously served as the offensive coordinator for five seasons under Tom Hollman. In all, Browning had served as Edinboro's offensive line coach the previous 12 years.

Browning joined the Edinboro program in 1986 as the running backs coach under Steve Szabo. After two seasons on the offensive side of the ball, the graduate of The Ohio State University moved to the defensive side, serving as the defensive backfield coach under Hollman. In 1994 he moved back to offense as the former President, Edinboro University

When Tepper came on board in 2000, Browning was appointed the recruiting coordinator in addition to his duties with the offensive line. A year later he was named the offensive coordinator, and the offensive line coach. He had remained in charge of the linemen since that time, coaching such All-Americans as Jeremy O'Day, Joe Valvoda and Greg Bzorek. The last two years Browning's offensive line led the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference in fewest sacks allowed.

Head Coach

Scott Browning is introduced as Edinboro's 13th head coach by then Edinboro University President Dr. Frank G. Pogue on January 5, 2006.

Fighting Scot offense made great strides over the last five years. Browning emphasized a balanced attack which showcased the combination of a strong ground game and dangerous aerial attack. Over his last three seasons Edinboro averaged 29.9 ppg. in 2003, 33.2 ppg. in '04, and 31.4 ppg. in '05.

All told, Browning has been an assistant coach on all seven of Edinboro's NCAA playoff teams, along with five of the nine PSAC champion squads. He took over a team which has been to the NCAA Division II Playoffs two of the last three years, and during that period has posted a 26-8 record. The 26 wins were the most in a three-year period in Edinboro history.

"It goes without saying that I am extremely excited to have this opportunity," noted an elated Browning. "I was proud to be a part of the teams in the 1990's that ranked among the best in Division II, and over the last few years we have once again elevated the program to one of the best in the country. The University and the community of Edinboro mean a great deal to me. Over the years we have tried to become an integral part of this community. I am thrilled that I can continue that association while taking over a group of players that represent the ideals I believe in."

"I'm sure you will see some changes in the future, but I can tell you this, the ideals remain in place for this program, and always have in the time I've been here. Without question we want to be successful on the field, and that means challenging for the PSAC West title. But we won't compromise integrity. We will continue to bring in young men who have the ability to be successful both in the classroom and on the football field. It is my sincere belief that when they take the field, they must wear the Edinboro jersey with pride, and when they are in the community, that they have earned the respect that comes with being a Fighting Scot."

Browning has served on the staffs at three NCAA Division I institutions. Prior to joining the Fighting Scot staff, he coached receivers and running backs at Ohio State for two years while serving as a graduate assistant. That group included Keith Byars. The Buckeyes went to the Rose Bowl in 1984, dropping a 20-17 decision to USC to finish with a 9-3 record. The following year Ohio State went bowling again, this time defeating Brigham Young, 10-7, in the Citrus Bowl, to once again finish at 9-3.

Browning served as a graduate assistant coach at New Mexico State in 1982, and the following year instructed the receivers at Idaho State. Idaho State reached the NCAA Division I-AA Playoffs before suffering a 27-20 defeat to Nevada.

A 1981 graduate of The Ohio State University with a bachelor's degree in Education, Browning began his coaching career as an assistant coach at Worthington High School and Dayton-Fairview High Schools in Ohio from 1979-81. Before transferring to Ohio State he attended Capital University where he played football for one season. Browning later earned a master's degree in Education Administration from New Mexico State in 1983.

Wayne Bradford

Defensive Coordinator/Linebackers
9th Year
Salisbury State '90

Wayne Bradford is in his ninth year as a member of the Edinboro coaching staff. He enters his third season as the Fighting Scot defensive coordinator, and had previously held the same title in 1999 under former head coach Tom Hollman. After overseeing the defensive line for seven seasons, Bradford took over as the linebackers coach in 2006.

Bradford orchestrated the top defense in the country two years ago, as Edinboro paced Division II in scoring defense (9.3 ppg.), total defense (211.2 ypg.), and rushing defense (53.7 ypg.). In addition, Edinboro was third in pass efficiency defense and turnover margin. The Fighting Scots recorded three shutouts, the most since the 1975 team also shut out three opponents. A total of seven opponents were held to seven points or less. He coached four all-conference performers a year ago.

A year ago his defensive unit recorded two more shutouts while leading the PSAC in rushing defense (70.6 ypg.), good for third in the country.

Under Bradford's tutelage, Edinboro has had twelve first team All-PSAC West defensive linemen. In fact, he has been responsible for the last three PSAC West Defensive Players of the Year, with Ben Stroup earning the honor a year ago, Chris Amico the 2005 recipient, and Seth Fragale, the winner in 2004.

Bradford had previously been at Salisbury State since 1990, and was the Sea Gulls' defensive coordinator from 1994-98.

A graduate of Salisbury State, Bradford began his coaching career at his alma mater in 1990, serving as an assistant coach in charge of the linebackers (1990-92) and defensive linemen (1992-94). In 1994, he was promoted to defensive coordinator.

In 1997, Salisbury State ranked 38th in NCAA Division III in total defense, allowing just 268 yards per game. His 1995 defensive unit produced a first team AFCA All-American at linebacker, and helped the Sea Gulls finish 7-2 with a berth in the ECAC Southwest Championship Game.

Bradford graduated from Salisbury State in 1990 with a bachelor's degree in Business Administration. He completed work on his master's degree in Business Administration from Salisbury State in 1992. In addition to working as a member of the football staff, Bradford was a faculty member in the School of Business. Beginning in 1996, he was the Director of the Business Graduate Programs for the Perdue School of Business.

As an undergraduate, Bradford was an offensive lineman. He played on the 1986 Salisbury State team which finished as the NCAA Division III national runnerup.

Bradford and his wife, Gwen, reside in Edinboro with their nine-year-old son, Nicholas, seven-year-old daughter, Julia and two-year-old son Mitchell.

Mike Yurcich

Offensive Coordinator/Quarterbacks
3rd Year
California (Pa.) '99

Mike Yurcich enters his third season as a member of the Edinboro University coaching staff. Yurcich joined the football staff in April 2005 as the quarterbacks coach. He enters his second season as the offensive coordinator after assuming that role in 2006.

A native of Euclid, Ohio, Yurcich served as a graduate assistant coach at Indiana University in 2003-04. In addition to conducting statistical analysis for the Hoosiers' offense, he assisted with the wide receivers.

Yurcich is no stranger to the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference. After attending Mount Union in 1994-95, he transferred to California (Pa.) and played three seasons for the Vulcans. Yurcich was a two-year captain at California (Pa.), serving as the starting quarterback in 1996 and sharing the starting role in 1998.

Yurcich graduated from California (Pa.) with a bachelor's degree in Industrial Organization Psychology in May 1999, and later earned his master's degree in School Counseling from St. Francis (IN). While at St. Francis (IN), he served as an assistant coach for the Cougars, helping USF to four consecutive Mid-States Football Association Mid-East League Championships and four NAAIA Playoff berths. The Cougars were 38-8 during the four-year period.

After coaching the running backs in 1999 at St. Francis, Yurcich worked with the quarterbacks in 2000 and 2001. He served as the offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach in 2002. He was also the junior varsity head coach from 2000-02.

Yurcich resides in Edinboro.

Keith Braxton

Defensive Line
2nd Year
Virginia Military Institute '98

Keith Braxton was named Edinboro's defensive line coach in March of 2006 after serving as a member of the Virginia Military Institute coaching staff for five seasons. He was in charge of the defensive line after previously earning four letters as a defensive tackle at VMI. He also served as the defensive tackles coach at Loras College during the 1997 season.

As a player, Braxton was a three-year starter at VMI from 1994-96. He posted 195 career tackles, including 11 tackles for losses and 6 sacks. He had one of his top games as a sophomore, finishing with 8 tackles, 6 of those solo, in VMI's 26-23 win over Appalachian State.

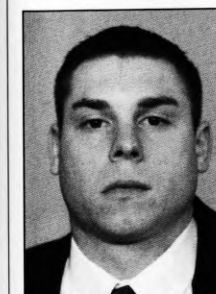

In all, he played in 44 career games with 35 starts. He was a tri-captain as a senior.

After serving as an assistant coach at Loras for a year, Braxton left coaching for two years to work as a customer service representative at First Union National Bank in Richmond, VA before returning to his alma mater in 2001.

Braxton is a native of Beaverdam, VA. He graduated from VMI in 1997 with a bachelor's degree in History. He is single and resides in Edinboro.

Anthony Peluso

Offensive Line
2nd Year
Edinboro '06

Edinboro head coach Scott Browning considers former Boro standout Anthony Peluso an up-and-coming talent in the coaching profession. Peluso will once again work as an assistant coach in charge of the offensive line, a duty he assumed a year ago. He is also in charge of the strength and conditioning program. Two years ago Peluso assisted current head coach Scott Browning with the offensive line.

A native of Aliquippa, PA, Peluso was a three-year starter at right guard for the Fighting Scots. In all, he started his final 33 games at Edinboro, while playing in 43 career games.

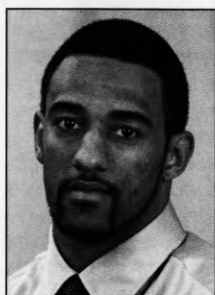

As a senior, Peluso was a key reason Edinboro made its first appearance in the NCAA Division II Playoffs since 1995, finishing the year with a 9-3 record. He earned first team All-PSAC West honors and was an honorable mention D2Football.com All-American. He also earned second team Football Gazette All-Northeast Region recognition.

Peluso has played professionally the last two years for the Erie Freeze, an arena league team. He has been a starter on the offensive line since joining the Freeze midway through the 2006 season.

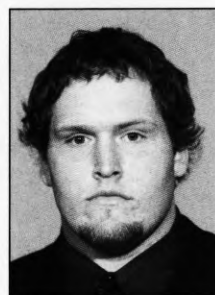

Peluso completed work on his bachelor's degree in Social Science in May 2006. He is single and resides in Edinboro.

Hail Flutie

Twenty-three years after the fateful pass, the "midget moses" from Natick goes immortal

By Jake Lemkowitz

□ Doug Flutie's football résumé includes one Heisman trophy, six CFL Player of the Year awards, one stint as a star attraction in the ill-fated USFL and a 21-year professional career that includes 12 years in the NFL. Now he can add one more accomplishment to that list: College Football Hall of Fame inductee. The honor was given to Flutie this past May, and ensures that his lasting legacy will be as one of the greatest college quarterbacks of all time.

Flutie broke more Boston College records than you can count on both hands, and in the minds of college football fans, he single-handedly put BC on the map. Applications for admission to Boston College shot up so high the year after Flutie led the Eagles to the Cotton Bowl, the influence of NCAA athletics on college applicants is now referred to as the "Flutie Effect." After his senior season, the man who wore #22 graduated with the most all-time total offense in a college career (11,054 yards) and the most all-time college career passing yards (10,579). That year he won the Heisman Trophy, the Maxwell Award, the Walter Camp Award, the Davey O'Brien National Quarterback Award and the lists goes on. To top it all off, he excelled in his classes. He's the only player to ever be nominated for both a Heisman and a Rhodes Scholarship.

But Flutie's four years as an Eagle are indelibly defined by a single moment: the Hail Mary pass that gave Boston College a 47-45 victory over Miami as time expired on the day after Thanksgiving, 1984. Flutie scrambling, the seconds ticking away, the improbable distance of the pass, Gerry Phelan (Flutie's roommate) making the catch, the announcer screaming in the booth, Flutie running down the field to celebrate. It's one of those college football moments that transcends fan affiliation and carries a vague sense of historical greatness.

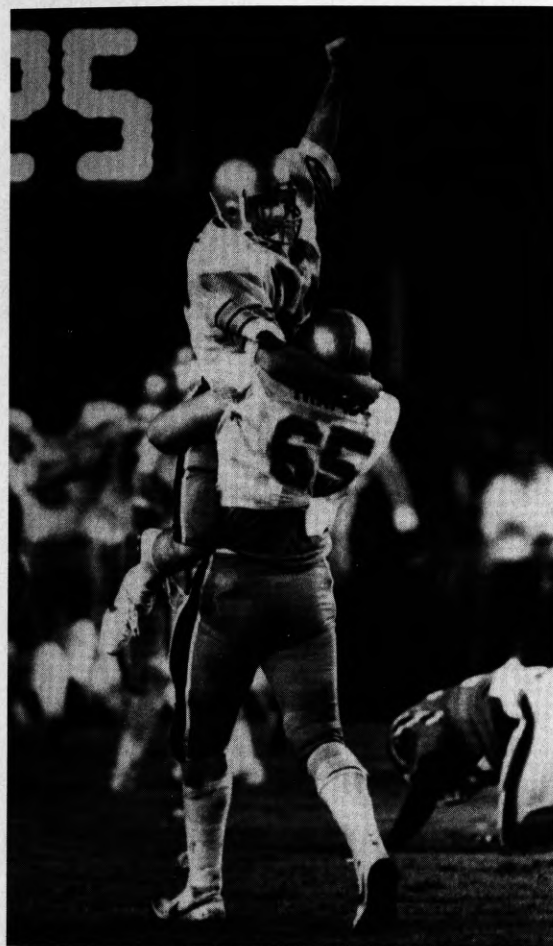

But it didn't take long for the young quarterback to discover that the greatness of this one moment was both a blessing and a curse. While Flutie had been propelled to household name status, he was forced to play in this one moment's shadow for the rest of his career. Not that the 5-foot-9, 175-pound man from Natick let that phase him one bit. As long as he has played the game, Flutie has approached every chance to step onto the field as a chance to prove himself to skeptics.

You're too small. That was what they told nine-year-old Doug Flutie, who at 63 pounds, was under the minimum required weight to play on his brother's Pee Wee team. Flutie heard the same tune when he got to high school, and he heard it again four years later, even after graduating from Natick High as an All-League QB with a missile-launcher arm. Boston College was the only Division 1 school to offer Flutie a scholarship. He was short for a quarterback, but knew how to see the field and was lightning quick out of the pocket. He had potential.

Flutie rose quickly through the ranks. First he worked his way up to the fourth-string QB spot as a freshman in training camp. Then the starting quarterback went down with an injury before the season started, and the second and third stringers couldn't find a way to win any of the team's first three games. BC decided to give Flutie a shot. Two starts later, he threw for 244 yards and three touchdowns in a 41-6 win over Army.

From that moment on, Flutie was the man. Until he got to the pros, that is, when the whole business of proving that he was big enough to play started all over again. But while Flutie certainly had his detractors over the years, there's no question that he is loved in every city that he ever played, from Boston to San Diego to Buffalo to Calgary.

For College Football Hall of Fame voters, the choice was obvious, and the QB from Natick was happy to accept. "My whole life of being the little guy and having a little chip on my shoulder, from year to year trying to prove myself, and at the end of the day to be inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame is a very special honor for me," he said at a press conference the day that the award was announced. Flutie is now going into his first year as a college football analyst for ABC and ESPN. If his other rookie performances are any indication, he'll do just fine. 🐾

The play calling of announcers Dan Davis and Gino Cappelletti is part of what makes Flutie's Hail Mary one of the most memorable college football moments of all time. This is the transcript of the final moments of that Boston College vs. Miami game.

DAVIS: Here's your ballgame, folks, as Flutie takes the snap...He drops straight back...has some time... Now he scrambles away from one hit...looks...uncorks a deep one for the end zone...Phelan is down there...

CAPPELLETTI: Oh, he got it!

DAVIS: Did he get it?

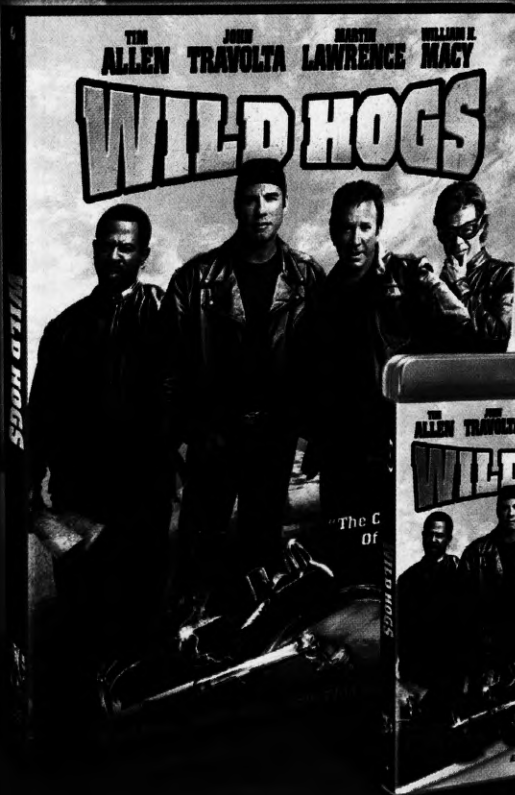

CAPPELLETTI: He got it!

DAVIS: Touchdown! Touchdown! Touchdown! Touchdown! Touchdown, Boston College! He did it! He did it! Flutie did it...He hit Phelan in the end zone... Touchdown!

CAPPELLETTI: I don't believe it!

DAVIS: Oh, my goodness!

The Greats: Catching up with Bruce Smith

Two decades after terrorizing quarterbacks as a Hokie, Bruce Smith has been carried back to old Virginia.

By Jeff Cummins

■ Bruce Smith was ahead of the curve as a pass rusher in the early to mid 1980s. He had size, strength and speed. A little known fact, however, is that much of his success came from the moves he learned from playing basketball and from using the mental strategy of a baseball pitcher.

Smith utilized the agility he learned playing basketball to evade blockers, rather than merely relying on his ability to overpower them. He also used the strategy of a pitcher to manipulate the blocker. Smith would use one move several times before using a different one to surprise the offensive lineman.

"Yeah, I think I was somewhat ahead of the curve," Smith says. "People think of me as having been a great football player, but in truth, I got a tremendous amount of my moves from playing basketball. Quickness, agility and having great balance, I got all that from playing basketball. So I attribute a lot of my success to playing basketball. It allowed me to be able to use moves that 99 percent of the guys on the playing field wouldn't even attempt, wouldn't even think about."

Smith says that today, Julius Peppers of the Carolina Panthers, who played both football and basketball at North Carolina, reminds him most of how he played at Virginia Tech.

"In my particular case, I would always think of rushing the quarterback as being like a Major League pitcher. I'm going to keep him off-balance," Smith says, referring to his strategy against offensive tackles. "I'm not going to let him know what I'm thinking or what moves I'm planning on using. I'm going to set him up. I'm going to give him the speed rush, and then when I get him leaning, I'm going to spin on him, and once you spin on him, he's going to say, 'OK, I can't jump out there as quick anymore,' and that will set up your ability to get around the corner, slap his hand, duck that shoulder up underneath and get leverage on him. So you give a fastball, another fastball, and then you throw him a curve, and then you throw him a slider. Then you've got him thinking, instead of going on his particular pass sets that he was taught. Then you've got him. Once you get him thinking instead of listening to the play that's called and saying, 'OK, it's a five-step drop, I've got to slide out two yards or three yards.' Once you get him thinking, if he starts running out trying to catch you, it's all over."

Smith played 19 years in the National Football League, earning 12 Pro Bowl selections and leading the Buffalo Bills to four Super Bowls. After retiring from professional football, Smith is right back in Virginia, where he consults on many commercial development projects, not far from where he played college football.

"I would always think of rushing the quarterback as being like a Major League pitcher. I'm going to keep him off-balance."

✪ The Greats: Bruce Smith

Smith played for Virginia Tech from 1981 to 1984, and up to that point, the school had yet to achieve powerhouse status in football. Ultimately, Smith saw the future opening up for Virginia Tech, and decided it was the right school for him, a decision that changed Virginia Tech's fortunes considerably.

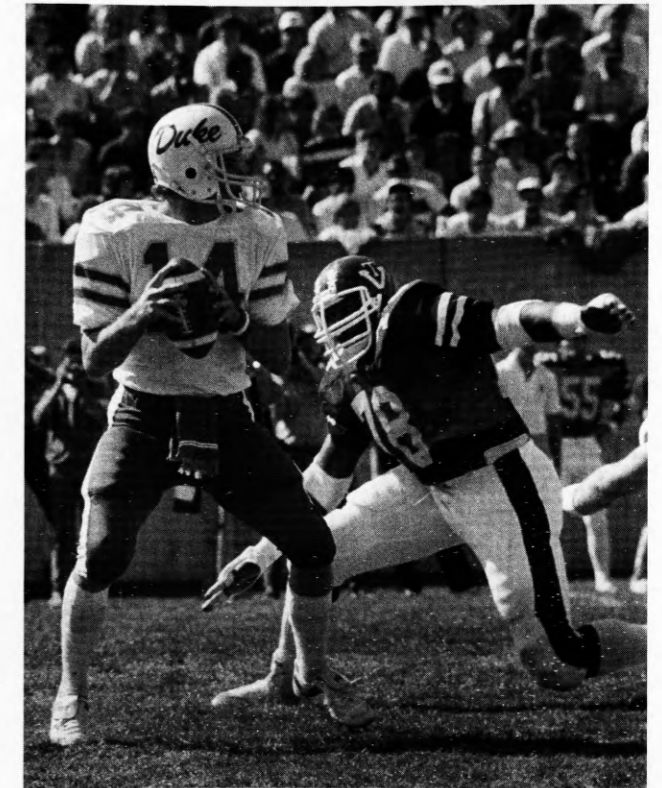

"I saw the potential," Smith says of Virginia Tech. "I saw that they had an up and rising athletic program. It was one of the top schools in the country, and it was in a beautiful setting, located in the mountains in Virginia, and that was a big factor for me, being able to stay in the state of Virginia and get a quality education and play some big-time football, but it was under the radar screen. I think with my selection as the first player taken in the NFL Draft is what helped put the VT football program on the map."

Using his quickness and an array of moves, Smith sacked Duke quarterback Ben Bennett four times in one game, but there was something about Smith's play that a mere recitation of statistics doesn't capture.

"Another game that stood out was when I played against West Virginia and Jeff Hostetler was the quarterback," Smith says. "I broke through the line of scrimmage and got an incredible hit on Hostetler. He laid there for a second, got up, took one step and collapsed, and they had to take him off the field."

Those impact plays were vital to Smith's selection as the No. 1 overall pick in the 1985 NFL Draft, and for his 2006 selection to the College Football Hall of Fame.

Naturally, Smith acknowledges that he picked up priceless football knowledge along the way. He lists coach Bill Dooley as his biggest influence during college.

"Bill taught me valuable lessons of being able to distinguish the difference between playing hurt and playing injured," Smith says. "Certainly, you can play with some degree of pain, but you can not play injured. There was one particular situation in which I sprained my ankle in a game and during the week I couldn't practice because my ankle was still swollen. He pulled me aside and he said in vague terms, 'I understand you can't practice, your ankle is swollen, but what are you going to do come Saturday?' I said, 'Well, I'll be there for you.' Those experiences helped prepare me for what lied ahead in playing in the National Football League."

Smith's devotion to his alma mater is obvious, and it's amplified by the tragedy that took place last spring. Like so many people, he appreciates the outpouring of support for the victims, and he's looking forward to the day when the football team takes the field for its first game.

"I think it's certainly going to be an emotional day, an inspiring day. You will see the whole Hokie nation, as well as individuals from around the country giving support to this university, to the victims, to everyone who was affected, all of our Hokie family. It's going to be a tremendous outpouring of support. I'll tell you, that first game, I plan on being there." ●

01 AND 10 WITH

Matt Ryan

Boston College Quarterback

By Dale Brauner

It must sometimes seem like fate that Matt Ryan became a quarterback at Boston College, having been born in Pennsylvania, a breeding ground for signal callers, with John Loughery (QB at BC from 1979 to 1982) as his uncle. "I had always been kind of a Boston College fan," Ryan says. "I know I'm happy with the way things have worked out here." Fans are too. Ryan is coming off an All-ACC first-team season during which he completed 419 of 693 passes for 4,806 yards and 25 touchdowns while also running for nine scores, a campaign made more astounding by the fact Ryan played half of the season with an injury. Healthy now, the senior captain is looking forward to 2007.

TOUCHDOWN ILLUSTRATED: Tell us about the upcoming season. You have a new coaching staff that is very offensively minded.

MATT RYAN: First of all I'm very excited to work with coach Jeff Jagodzinski and coach Steve Logan [new offensive coordinator]. Any time you're a quarterback and the coach says he wants to push the ball downfield, your eyes light up and you're excited.

Jagodzinski said this spring that he expects you to call some of your own plays at times. How do you feel about that?

I think it's exciting when coaches put a lot of responsibility on the quarterback and his decisions he makes on the field. When you watch quarterbacks in the NFL, a lot of what they do is change plays. It's a challenge, it really is, but at the same time it's something as a senior and having been around BC for a while, that I really relish and want.

What have you been working on this offseason?

The first part of the off-season was getting healthy. I had surgery on my foot to repair a broken bone. The rehab went well. From there, it's getting back in shape, trying to put on a little weight for the season and working on my mobility. Inside the pocket, being able to move as quickly as possible is really important. And I've been learning the offense. I think all of those things combined make for a pretty busy offseason, but one that I hope will make for a productive season.

Playing with the foot injury last year, how did you do it?

I think that football is a tough game and you have to be a tough player to play this game. The way I see it, I was just doing what everybody else does. So many guys in different positions play in pain and don't get the notoriety that the quarterback position gets. We had a bunch of guys on our team who played banged up and I was just one of those guys. It's just the mentality you have to have as a football player. If you can go, you go.

And your steeliness in overtime? Your teammates call you "Matty Ice" for your cool demeanor on the field.

If you stay tough and stay focused through it at the end of the game, a lot of times it will turn in your favor. Winning that way, it makes you feel like any time you go out there, you can make plays. It doesn't always happen, but at least you have the feeling you can do it.

Can you look ahead to your competition in the Atlantic Coast Conference?

I think it's going to be really tough. You have a lot of people returning in conference and a lot of talent on both sides of the ball. We have some new coaching staffs coming into the ACC as well. I think it's going to be a tough season for everybody. A lot of the games are going to be close.

One of those new staffs is your former coach Tom O'Brien, who's now at North Carolina State. How will it feel to face the man who recruited you?

It's definitely going to be different to see Tom O'Brien on the sideline. I wish him all the best down in NC State and I was fortunate to have four great years with him. But come Game Two, I am going to be out there trying to beat NC State with everything we've got and I know he'll be doing the same to us.

You've got some pretty good receivers to work with.

We have some really talented wide receivers coming back from last year, such as Brandon Robinson and Kevin Challenger. I'm glad to have both of them back. It takes a lot of pressure off me when you have some really good receivers out there.

What's your most memorable college highlight?

Hopefully the best is yet to come. But probably my most memorable moment would have to be coming out in the first game I played in that I threw a touchdown pass, at Temple in 2004, because I'm from Philadelphia and it was the first time I saw significant playing time. I went down there and threw my first touchdown pass. A lot of family and friends from back home were at the game. ●

Only a rookie and already the most imposing player in its league.

TDI's Preseason Top 25

A look at the cream of 2007's college football crop.

By David Malamut

- 01 USC (11-2 in 2006)
The Trojans return 10 defensive starters, and if they can catch up with the offense then USC will dominate all of college football. Last season's standout wide receivers, Dwayne Jarrett and Steve Smith, have moved on to the NFL, but QB John David Booty and running back C.J. Gable will make sure the Trojan offense does not skip a beat. Coach Pete Carroll looks like he will be fielding another team with BCS title aspirations.
- 02 TEXAS (10-3)
QB Colt McCoy had a fantastic sophomore season last year, throwing for 2570 yards with 29 touchdowns and only seven interceptions. He may be the early Heisman Trophy frontrunner. The Longhorns have to travel to Texas A&M on Nov. 23rd, but get Oklahoma at home. It would not be a big surprise to see Texas atop the Big 12 all year.
- 03 LSU (11-2)
QB Matt Flynn will have big shoes to fill if he wants to replace the top pick in the NFL draft, JaMarcus Russell. Also playing on Sundays are both starting receivers from last year's team, Dwayne Bowe and Craig Davis. The Tigers' defense, led by the nation's top defensive player, Glen Dorsey, will have to carry the team through a tough SEC.
- 04 WEST VIRGINIA (11-2)
Running back juggernaut Steve Slaton is a legitimate Heisman candidate, and may be the nation's best offensive player. Alongside QB Pat White, West Virginia could have the most explosive offense in all of college football. The Mountaineers face Rutgers in NJ on Oct. 27th, and host Louisville on Nov. 8th. These key matchups will be West Virginia's two toughest games in an otherwise weak schedule.
- 05 MICHIGAN (11-2)
Michigan returns its top three players on offense in QB Chad Henne, RB Mike Hart and WR Mario Manningham. The offense will not be a problem this year, but with the loss of CB Leon Hall, DT Alan Branch and LB LaMarr Woodley, the defense could have a few question marks. Michigan gets a break this season with Penn State, Notre Dame and Ohio State all making trips to the Big House.
- 06 FLORIDA (13-1)
The Gators lost a lot of talent from their 2006 BCS championship team, returning only two starters on defense. Will QB Tim Tebow and Heisman Trophy candidate Percy Harvin, along with a top recruiting class, be enough for Urban Meyer's Gators to compete for back-to-back BCS titles? A challenging conference schedule and high expectations from Gator Nation will make it a tough task.

CONTINUED

DI Preview

- 07 LOUISVILLE (12-1)
Senior QB Brian Brohm gave Louisville fans something to smile about when he decided to return to school. Look for Brohm to vastly improve on the 16 touchdown passes he completed in 2006. New coach Steve Kragthorpe's defense is one of, if not the best in the conference. The Nov. 8th game at West Virginia will probably decide the Big East.
- 08 WISCONSIN (12-1)
Junior RB P.J. Hill had a great 2006, rushing for 1569 yards and 15 touchdowns. A good start to this season, and Hill will be a serious Heisman candidate. The Badgers have a difficult schedule and must play at Penn State and at Ohio State, but fortunately they are returning nine starters from last year's offense. So if the wide receivers can perform, Wisconsin may produce the Big Ten's best offense.
- 09 OKLAHOMA (11-3)
The loss of Adrian Peterson hurts the offense, but the good news is all four receivers are back, and four of the starting five offensive linemen are also returning. The Sooners play at Texas and at Texas A&M; if they can win both those games, a Big 12 title will be in their future. Circle the Sept. 8th matchup versus Miami, it could be an early season gem.
- 10 RUTGERS (11-2)
The Scarlet Knights have a top Heisman candidate at running back in Ray Rice. If the defensive line can get and stay healthy then it could be the best in the Big East, where it looks like it may be a three-team race between Rutgers, West Virginia and Louisville. If Rutgers can beat West Virginia at home and Louisville on the road, a conference title will be theirs.
- 11 VIRGINIA TECH (10-3)
If Chris Ellis fully recovers from offseason shoulder surgery, he will be the ACC's top pass rusher. Ellis, along with seven other returning starters from the defense will have ACC teams fearing the Hokies. The Sept. 8th game at LSU should be a great matchup early in the season. Frank Beamer has a tough road ahead of him trying to put the focus back on football, but there's potential for the Hokies to be the feel-good story of the year.
- 12 OHIO STATE (12-1)
2006 Bronko Nagurski Award winner James Laurinaitis anchors a top notch Buckeye defense. Troy Smith and Ted Ginn Jr. both moved on to the NFL, but look for RB Chris Wells to bust out for a huge year in 2007. A Nov. 17th showdown at the Big House in Michigan could decide whether or not Ohio State will top the Big 10 again this year.

DI Preview

13 ARKANSAS (10-4)
Darren McFadden and Felix Jones are the country's second-best running back duo, behind Clemson's CJ Spiller and James Davis. QB Mitch Mustain decided to transfer to USC, so Casey Dick is now the man and will have to step up. On defense, the loss of DE Jamal Anderson to the NFL will have the Razorbacks searching for help rushing the passer.

14 UCLA (7-6)
The Bruins will return 20 starters from last year's team, which went 7-6 overall, including a 5-4 conference record. UCLA's defense was ranked #1 against the run last season, and should dominate the line of scrimmage again this season. If QB Ben Olson comes back strong from last year's injury, and the offense steps up, look for the Bruins to compete with USC for a Pac 10 title.

15 AUBURN (11-2)
Auburn has one of, if not the most difficult schedule in all the nation having to play Florida, LSU, and Georgia on the road. QB Brandon Cox had an injury-prone season last year, but if he stays healthy there will be many points on the scoreboard. Auburn's defense looks dominant up front, and if they can carry the team past those three road games, the Tigers will be challenging for a BCS title.

16 BOSTON COLLEGE (10-3)
Senior QB Matt Ryan may not get much hype, but he could be the best quarterback you've never heard of. The two-headed running back monster of Andre Callender and L.V. Whitworth makes BC's offense legitimate, and the Eagles an ACC title contender. The defense, which played very well last season, returns nine starters and is deep enough to have talented players on the field at all times.

17 CAL (10-3)
QB Nate Longshore has the potential to be All-Conference this year. Led by DeSean Jackson, Cal boasts the best group of wide receivers in all of college football. But losing shutdown corner Daymeion Hughes, along with five other starters from last season, will have the defense looking to fill some holes.

18 GEORGIA TECH (9-5)
You would think that when you lose your star QB and the best wide receiver in all the land, it's time to rebuild. Not in Yellow Jacket country. Even with Reggie Ball and All-World wide receiver Calvin Johnson gone, Georgia Tech is very excited about the upcoming 2007 season. QB Taylor Bennett has been impressive this spring and is prime for a big year. RB Tashard Choice and WR James Johnson round out an impressive offense, and will have the Yellow Jackets thinking ACC title.

DI Preview

- 19 WAKE FOREST (11-3)
The defending ACC champs flew under most people's radar last year. QB Riley Skinner returns to lead the offense but one that lost both starting wide receivers from last season. A much-improved ACC will make repeating as champs quite a difficult task. Coach Jim Grobe's team will need RB Micah Andrews healthy, and his defensive line to play better than expected for the team to have a chance.
- 20 OREGON STATE (10-4)
The Beavers ended the 2006 season by going 8-1 over their last nine games and finishing with a respectable 10-4 record. If the team can get off to a good start in 2007, Oregon State could have back-to-back 10-win seasons for the first time in school history. A talented offense and a solid defensive squad has Beaver fans excited about the upcoming season.
- 21 MIAMI (7-6)
After last year's ugly season, new coach Randy Shannon will look to improve from the Cane's 3-5 conference record, instill discipline and return the Cane's to their former glory. If Kyle Wright can get a grasp on the offense and play up to his potential, the Canes should be in the mix for the top spot in the ACC.
- 22 CLEMSON (8-5)
The Tigers come into the 2007 season with the best RB duo in all of college football, C.J. Spiller and James Davis. The QB position will be up in the air until either freshman Willy Korn or junior Cullen Harper can establish themselves as the number one guy. If linebacker Tramaine Billie is 100 percent healthy to start the season, that will give Clemson's defense a huge boost.
- 23 PENN STATE (9-4)
Wide receivers Deon Butler and Derrick Williams should make QB Anthony Morelli look like a star his senior season. Even with top linebacker Paul Posluszny gone to the NFL, Penn State has a good group of linebackers leading an up-and-coming defense. On the flip side, offensive lineman Elijah Robinson's career is over because of a spinal condition, and the Nittany Lions will have trouble trying to replace him.
- 24 GEORGIA (9-4)
After a 4-4 conference record last year, the Dawgs will be looking to return to prominence with help from a solid defense and QB Matthew Stafford. As a freshman, Stafford had 13 interceptions to only seven touchdown passes, and a much better ratio in 2007 is a key. The SEC is running deep this year, so Georgia will have a lot of work to do if it wants to return to the top.
- 25 TENNESSEE (9-4)
Tennessee got a break from the schedule makers this year and won't have to face LSU or Auburn. QB Erik Ainge has shown improvement every season, but his receivers this year are unproven. Juco transfer Kenny O'Neal needs to prove he can live up to his potential on and off the field.

TDI's Preseason Top 20

A look at the NCAA Football Championship Subdivision in 2007.

By Brian Lester

- 01 APPALACHIAN STATE UNIVERSITY (14-1 in 2006)
In eight of its 14 games last year, ASU scored 40 points or more. Another offensive explosion is expected this year as the Mountaineers return their three top rushers, including Kevin Richardson, and All-American quarterback Armanti Edwards, who threw for 2,251 yards and ran for 1,153 in 2006. The bottom line is that it will be a tall order for anyone to knock this team off the top of the mountain.
- 02 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS (13-2)
If the Minutemen are to make a return trip to the national final, they will do it behind their defense. Linebackers Jason Hatchell and Charles Walker will anchor the squad. The duo combined for 265 tackles last season, including a team-best 134 by Hatchell.
- 03 JAMES MADISON UNIVERSITY (9-3)
The Dukes won an NCAA title in 2004 and they seem to have the talent to win another one. JMU returns 12 starters - one is running back Eugene Holloman (1,085 yards in 2006) - and a total of 48 letterwinners. Over the last three years, the Dukes have gone 22-9.
- 04 UNIVERSITY OF MONTANA (12-2)
The Grizzlies reached the national semifinals last year and have their eyes on a bigger prize in 2007. The key is settling the quarterback situation, which includes a junior (Cole Bergquist), a freshman (Jeff Larson) and a redshirt freshman (Andrew Selle). Nothing will be settled until the fall, but Larson got the most reps in the team's spring scrimmage.
- 05 NORTH DAKOTA STATE (10-1)
Quarterback Steve Walker is being mentioned in the same breath as former FCS greats Steve McNair and Brian Westbrook. He is one of the top players in the country to watch for in 2007 after throwing for 2,220 yards and 16 TDs a year ago. His effort is impressive when one considers the Bison are a run-dominant unit.
- 06 UNIVERSITY OF NEW HAMPSHIRE (9-4)
Ricky Santos is considered the #1 signal caller in the country and his presence means the Wildcats are poised to make a run at the national title. Santos is the reigning Walter Payton Award winner and has thrown for 10,240 yards and 99 TDs in his phenomenal career.

DI-AA Preview

- 07 FURMAN UNIVERSITY (8-4)
Austin Holmes is one of eight returning defensive regulars on a team that has a total of 50 letterwinners coming back. Homes is considered one of the top cornerbacks in school history, and it won't be a surprise if the Paladins ride their defense into the title picture.
- 08 UNIVERSITY OF NORTHERN IOWA (7-4)
Going up against the Purple Panthers is never easy, and this season won't be an exception. Despite going 7-4 a year ago, UNI is among the teams on the rise for this coming season. They have a legit shot at playing in their second national final in three years. UNI has a solid quarterback in Eric Sanders and a rising threat at running back in Derrick Law.
- 09 ILLINOIS STATE UNIVERSITY (9-4)
ISU added a little extra something to its talent pool in the offseason in Pitt transfers Kelvin Chandler (WR) and Nick Williams (DL). The two are former prep stars in Florida and should make an immediate impact for the Redbirds.
- 10 SOUTHERN ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY (9-4)
Replacing Arkee Whitlock, one of the top running backs in the nation, won't be easy for the Salukis. But head coach Jerry Kill has done a tremendous job of keeping SIU among the nation's best and his experience will prove beneficial again. The key game is a season-ending showdown at Hampton.
- 11 HAMPTON UNIVERSITY (10-2)
The Pirates have a solid defensive unit that showed flashes of its potential by stopping the offense on 17 out of 20 possessions in the team's annual spring scrimmage. Rising star Justin Holland, a defensive end, registered three sacks in the game. Hampton is eager to make up for last year's 41-38 gut-wrenching loss to New Hampshire in the national playoffs.
- 12 CAL POLY STATE (7-4)
The Mustangs were ranked 17th in last season's final national poll, and go into 2007 with high expectations. They have established a tradition of winning in recent years, picking up 32 victories over the last four seasons.
- 13 MCNEESE STATE (7-5)
Offensive lineman David Ballard is one tough guy. He benched 385 pounds in a contest during the spring and will anchor the O-Line for the Cowboys, who are always in the hunt for a postseason trip.

- 14 ■ EASTERN ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY (8-5)
The Panthers won their second straight Ohio Valley Conference title last year and made it to the playoffs. They have high hopes for this season, as they bring back OVC Defender of the Year Donald Thomas, a linebacker who made 127 tackles a year ago.
- 15 ■ SOUTH DAKOTA STATE (7-4)
Ryan Berry looked good in the spring game, completing 11 of his 16 passes for 172 yards, and his performance has the Jackrabbits thinking big in 2007. Their schedule will be difficult, though, with four teams ranked in preseason top 25 polls, including North Dakota State.
- 16 ■ UNIVERSITY OF SAN DIEGO (11-1)
Things are looking up for San Diego, which will be under the direction of first-year coach Ron Caragher. A total of 75 players return from last season, including five All-Americans led by quarterback Josh Johnson and wide receiver Wes Doyle.
- 17 ■ UC DAVIS (6-5)
Junior defensive back Brandon Brown should make a big impact for the Aggies this year as they look to contend for a national title. Brown showed flashes of his potential by returning two fumbles for touchdowns in the spring scrimmage.
- 18 ■ UNIVERSITY OF CENTRAL ARKANSAS (8-3)
The Bears appear to have the talent on offense to be in the playoff picture come November. There are question marks about the defensive side of the ball - 15 players were lost to graduation - but the coaching staff is confident the younger players will come around. If that is the case, UCA should have no problem building on last year's 8-3 campaign, its first in Division I.
- 19 ■ YALE UNIVERSITY (8-2)
With freshman quarterback Rich Scudellari looking good in the spring game - he threw for 130 yards - the Bulldogs have every reason to be thinking about a second consecutive Ivy League title and postseason trip in 2007.
- 20 ■ ALABAMA A&M (9-3)
The Bulldogs are the defending SWAC champs and should be among the best in 2007 with a defense that features several key returning players. Strong Safety Marcus Thomas, a redshirt freshman, made two interceptions in the spring game and should be a force for the Bulldogs.

A Day in the Life...

Behind the beard of West Virginia Football's Mountaineer, Brady Campbell

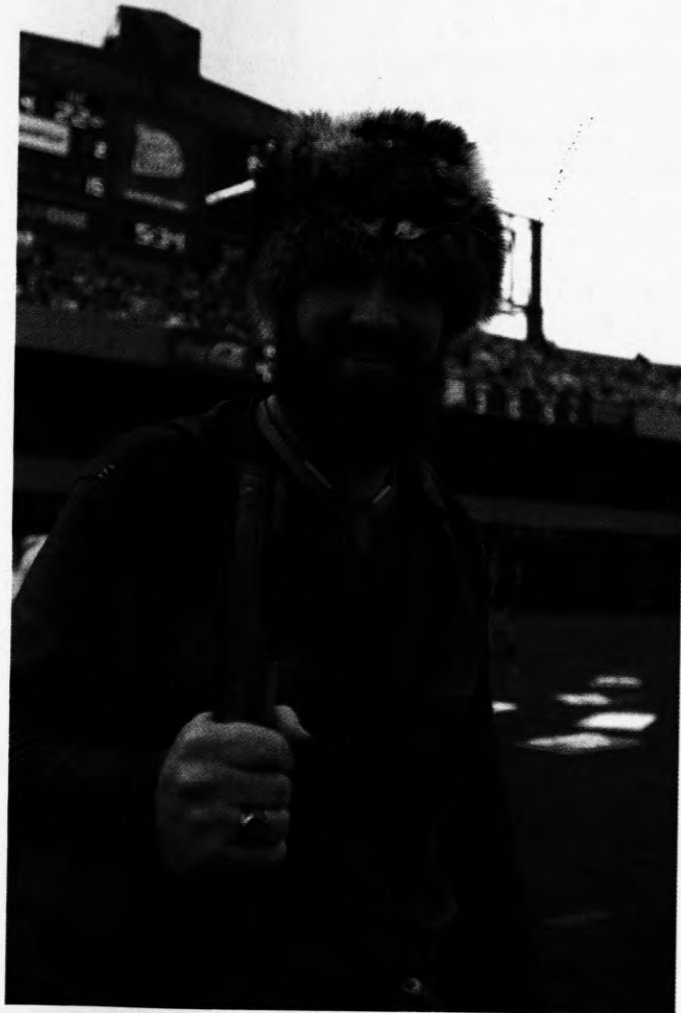

By Chris Strauss

Despite the presence of Heisman candidates Pat White and Steve Slaton, West Virginia senior Brady Campbell is by far the most recognizable sports figure in Morgantown. In his second season as the legendary Mountaineer mascot, the Wood Science major from Charleston has grown accustomed to shouts of "Hey Mountaineer," even when he's walking around without his coonskin cap and buckskins. "Anywhere you go in the state, they recognize you," Campbell says. "I was in a Burger King two and a half hours away and the manager came up and asked if I was the Mountaineer."

Not that the job is all about celebrity. Campbell – who became the 60th Mountaineer in school history following a month-long audition process in 2005 – doesn't take his responsibilities lightly. As soon as he finishes class on Friday before a home game, Campbell begins preparing the gunpowder for his rifle, which he fires about 40 times on a given Saturday. "I fire it twice for every time we score a touchdown and once for a conversion or extra point," he says. "I also fire it to bring on the team and before the game for fans in the parking lot." Campbell measures out a preset amount of powder and places it into small plastic capsules called preloaders. "When you're running down the field on Saturday, you don't have time to measure out your gunpowder," he says. "This way you just pour it in the gun." Once the preloaders are prepped, Campbell spends about an hour cleaning the rifle, making sure the brass is shined and the barrel is ready. "I don't fire the muzzle ball out but there's still an explosion," he says. "There's a Mountaineer in the '70s who blew a finger off. It's real enough to hurt somebody [if you're not careful]."

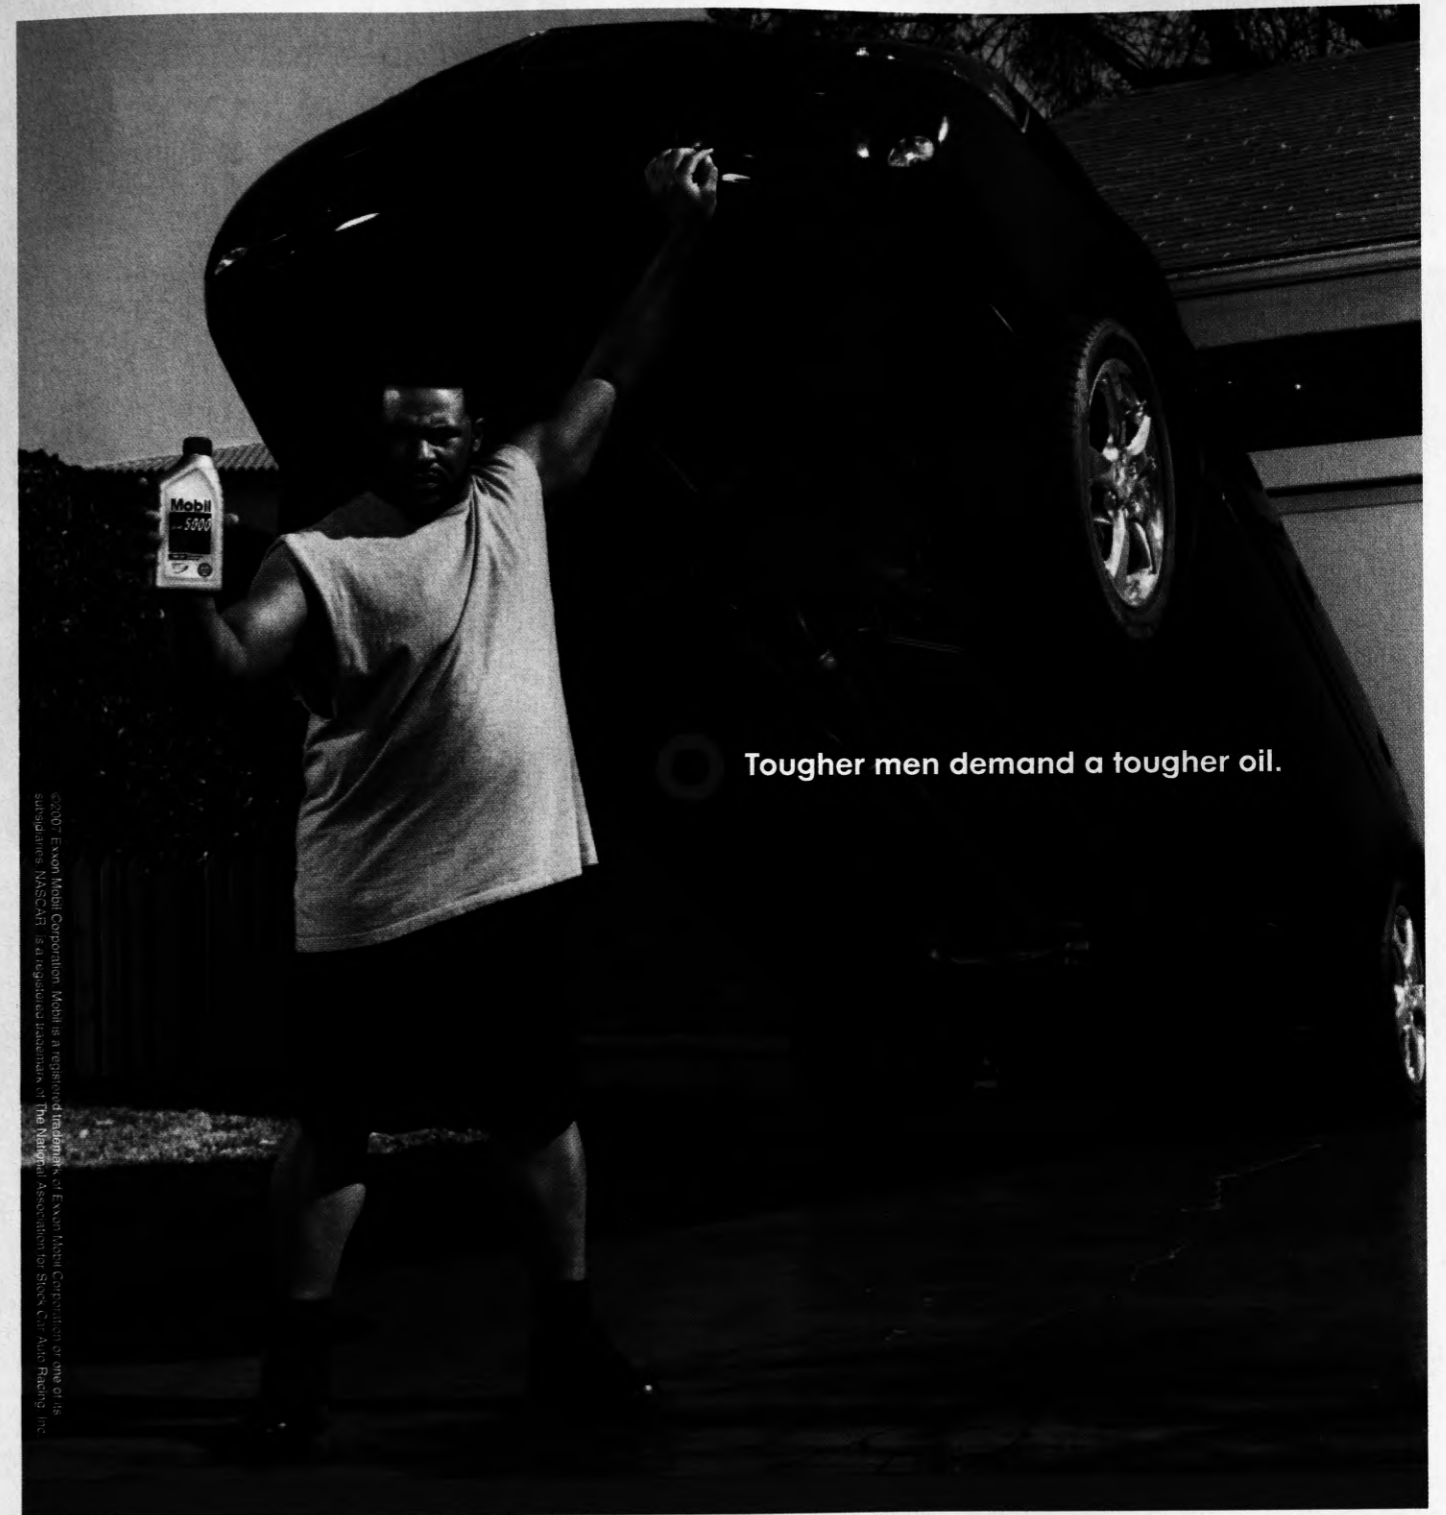

After making sure that he has hundreds of signed postcards ready for the morning, Campbell usually spends a low-key evening before a game with friends at his off-campus apartment. "Friday isn't really a party night on campus," he admits, noting that the revelry will begin soon enough. "People wake up at five or six in the morning to secure a good spot in the parking lot." Campbell gets up slightly later, arriving at the field by 8 a.m. for a noon game. His first move is to place a water bottle in each corner of the stadium. "You sweat a lot wearing a coonskin cap and leather on an August afternoon," he says. He then heads to the parking lot, where tailgaters offer more food than he can consume. A well-fed Campbell usually finds himself surrounded by a line of fans by 9 a.m., most looking to say hello or take a quick picture. Following the occasional meet and greet with university groups, Campbell makes his way down to the field about an hour before game time, when he'll fire up the crowd and fire off his gun as the team is introduced.

While the hometown fans are usually respectful, Campbell is kept at a distance thanks to Mountaineer Field's eight-foot wall. That wasn't the case during a road game against UConn last season, when a group of Huskies fans went undercover in gold shirts and lined up along the railing of the WVU section. "At the end of the game, I'm giving people high-fives and there goes my hat," he recalls. "It's gone. Next thing I see is a guy in a Connecticut jacket running up the stairs as fast as he could." It took about an hour and a half to get the hat back, especially after the initial thief – who tossed it to a waiting pal – was arrested and placed in the stadium drunk tank. "Once they threw him in the cell, he started talking," Campbell laughs. "We didn't press charges. Ends up the guys weren't even students. They were lawyers." After that incident, Campbell – who plans to attend law school himself – bought a backup just in case.

So where does this bearded pioneer explore after the game is over? His couch, for starters. "After I struggle up the hill to my car, I usually go home and take a short nap," he admits. And then? "I head out for the night. I'm just like any other college student." ●

Heisman Hopefuls

THE HEISMAN

PRESENTED BY

With the season barely underway, this year's class of candidates is still pretty deep. Here's the inside scoop on five players who have been getting hype since the pre-season. In the end, it's all about what happens on the field.

By Steve Siniski

01 DARREN MCFADDEN, Junior, RB, Arkansas

The Résumé: The very definition of McFadden's job title is to run, run and run some more. But this ball Hog's game is far more complete, and that's the reason why he tops the list of Heisman Trophy favorites in 2007. McFadden did the bulk of his work on the ground, but his stutter-step didn't stop with handoffs. He also threw three touchdown passes and averaged 26.2 yards on kick returns, including a 92-yard touchdown. Voters and fans alike love versatile, big-play personas, and McFadden fits the bill.

Bottom Line: The Heisman runner-up in 2006, McFadden now slides into role of favorite.

2006 STATS	Team	ATT	YDS	AVG	TDS
	Arkansas	284	1,647	5.8	14

02 COLT BRENNAN, Senior, QB, Hawaii

The Résumé: Brennan's 2006 season was straight out of a video game. Not only did he break the all-time record for passing touchdowns, Brennan also led the nation in completion percentage (72.6 percent). Backed by the return of his top three receivers, Brennan's senior season is going to seem like a broken record...but only because that's what the senior does. He set or tied 16

NCAA marks and passed up the NFL for one last shot at the college level.

Bottom Line: Brennan directed college football's top offense in terms of points (46.9 per game) and yards (559.2 per game).

2006 STATS	Team	ATT	COM	YDS	TDS	INTs
	Hawaii	559	406	5,549	58	12

03 RAY RICE, Junior, RB, Rutgers

The Résumé: Rutgers followed the lead of its on-field Scarlet Knight, Rice, straight to a Bowl Championship Series berth and burst on the national scene in 2006. He set the school freshman rushing mark, then pounded a program-record 1,794 yards into the books on 335 carries as a sophomore. Who says the sequel is never better? Since Rice joined the program, Rutgers is 18-7. Prior to his arrival, the Scarlet Knights had won just 15 games this century (five seasons). If it's impact the voters want, it's impact they - and opposing defenses - will get.

Bottom Line: Rice finished second in the nation in rushing yards, and was one of just two backs to score at least 20 times.

2006 STATS	Team	ATT	YDS	AVG	TDS
	Rutgers	335	1,794	5.4	20

04 COLT MCCOY, Sophomore, QB, Texas

The Résumé: Sophomores generally don't make the cut when it comes to the Heisman Trophy watch list. But then again, redshirt freshman quarterbacks don't usually step into a college uniform and set a single-season record for touchdowns. McCoy did. They also don't set a program record for scoring passes in a game. McCoy did that, too. Showing both efficiency (a Texas-record eight straight games with at least two scoring passes), and explosiveness (nine completions of at least 40 yards), McCoy set the table for a huge sophomore campaign that includes the return of his top four wide receivers.

Bottom Line: A fast start could have Texas fans thinking BCS for two reasons: Bowl Championship Series and Basking in Colt's Success.

2006 STATS	Team	ATT	COM	YDS	TDS	INTs

05 BRIAN BROHM, Senior, QB, Louisville

The Résumé: A lot can be said of experience, whether it's returning on the field or on the sideline. For Brohm, who gets set to work with new head coach Steve Kragthorpe, his surrounding cast - which includes a pair of receivers who combined for 128 receptions last season - provides the perfect support for a Heisman campaign. The Cardinals are expected to remain beasts in the Big East, and Brohm is the triggerman for one of the nation's most potent offenses.

Bottom Line: The 2005 Big East Offensive Player of the Year, Brohm is also the league's leader in all-time 300-yard passing games (11).

2006 STATS	Team	ATT	COM	YDS	TDS	INTs
	Louisville	313	199	3,049	16	5

DII Preview

TDI's Preseason Top 20

Division II predictions and the teams to look for in 2007.

By Brian Lester

01 GRAND VALLEY STATE (15-0)

The Lakers are the team to beat in Division II until someone proves otherwise. Despite losing a cast of talented players, including four who signed NFL contracts, the Lakers have an understanding of what it takes to win and that will make up for their youth and the inexperience of their frosh athletes.

02 NW MISSOURI STATE (14-1)

Xavier Omon is back to lead the Bearcats after rushing for 1,518 yards and 22 TD's last season. He is one of eight returning starters on offense, and his presence means NW Missouri will be in the national title picture.

03 UNIVERSITY OF NORTH DAKOTA (11-2)

The Fighting Sioux will soon be a I-AA team, but for now, they are still one of the top D-II programs in the nation. Sophomore quarterback Dan Freund looked sharp in the spring game (10-of-15, 135 yards, 1 TD pass) and will be in charge of engineering an offense that averaged 31 points per outing a year ago. If he can handle the play calling, UND will be in good shape for a deep playoff run.

04 DELTA STATE UNIVERSITY (12-3)

A new era has arrived for the Statesmen, who will be under the direction of Ron Roberts. He is entering a good situation, as DSU is coming off a year in which it reached the national semifinals. The Statesmen won a record 12 games in 2006.

05 UNIVERSITY OF N. ALABAMA (11-1)

Experience won't be a problem for the Lions, who have 49 lettermen back from a team that reached the quarterfinals of the national playoffs. With that said, UNA should have no problem making the program's 13th trip to the national playoffs.

06 UNIVERSITY OF SOUTH DAKOTA (9-4)

Seventeen starters are back for the Coyotes, who were nationally ranked all last season. They play one of the toughest schedules in the nation this year - five games against 2006 playoff teams - but the talent is there to be in the hunt for the national championship.

- 07 ▣ PITTSBURG STATE UNIVERSITY (10-2)
The Gorillas are in good shape defensively as two of their four captains will play on that side of the ball, including senior defensive back Nick Dellasega, who registered 57 tackles and two interceptions before going down with a knee injury last season.

- 08 ▣ UNIVERSITY OF NEBRASKA AT OMAHA (8-3)
The Mavericks, coming off of a third consecutive North Central Conference title, won't be fading from the national picture this year. Not with 14 players back who have experience in the starting lineup.

- 09 ▣ INDIANA UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA (8-2)
Lou Tepper is counting on several transfers to help make his second season even better than his first, when IUP went 8-2. Among the key newcomers is running back Pooh Bear McNeal, who rushed for 64 yards and a touchdown on 10 carries in the spring game.

- 10 ▣ BLOOMSBURG UNIVERSITY (12-2)
With its veteran defense looking as dominant as ever – it blanked the offense in the spring game – the Huskies have high hopes of going one step further than last season's national semifinals performance.

- 11 ▣ VALDOSTA STATE UNIVERSITY (8-2)
VSU has 22 starters returning, including 47 letterwinners. And with returning quarterback Willie Copeland, the Blazers could very well repeat the success of their 2004 national championship season.

- 12 ▣ NORTHWOOD UNIVERSITY (MI) (8-3)
With its vaunted Woodbone option offense, the Timberwolves are always a tall order for any opponent. Torris Childs rushed for a team-best 973 yards and 16 touchdowns last year and his presence will make up for the loss of quarterback Kyle Kolbe.

- 13 ▣ ABILENE CHRISTIAN UNIVERSITY (8-3)
The Wildcats are hungry for more success after making their first-ever trip to the NCAA Division II playoffs a year ago. They have the talent to satisfy that hunger as 16 starters return for ACU.

- 14 ▣ SHEPHERD UNIVERSITY (11-1)
Three preseason All-Americans will be on the roster for the Rams, including defensive standouts Louis Corum (linebacker) and Michael Spiegelberg (lineman). Shepherd has won three straight West Virginia Intercollegiate Athletic Conference titles and owns a 28-game regular season win streak.

- 15 ▣ WEST TEXAS A&M UNIVERSITY (11-2)
The Buffalos have gone 21-4 the last two years, winning back-to-back Lone Star Conference titles along the way. They will have a rugged schedule, including a season opener against South Dakota, but they have the depth to be among the division's best again this year.

- 16 ▣ WAYNE STATE UNIVERSITY (6-5)
Last season was magnificent for Joique Bell, with the freshman becoming just the 14th player in D-II history to rush for more than 2,000 yards (2,065). Don't expect a sophomore slump, but do expect the Warriors to break through to the playoffs.

- 17 ▣ MISSOURI WESTERN STATE COLLEGE (9-3)
Quarterback Chad Rupp is on the money more often than a professional archer and The Griffons made the playoffs for the first time in school history a year ago. They lost a talented senior class that won 32 games in a four-year span, but they also have a talented group of recruits coming in to start the season.

- 18 ▣ MIDWESTERN STATE UNIVERSITY (10-3)
After rolling to the national semifinals a year ago during a magical 10-3 season, the Mustangs have reloaded and have the veteran experience needed to make the 2007 campaign a special one.

- 19 ▣ BRYANT UNIVERSITY (8-3)
Howard University transfer Jerrell Smith rushed for more than 100 yards in Bryant's spring game. If that performance is an indication of things to come, the Bulldogs will be the team to beat again in the Northeast-10.

- 20 ▣ ALBANY STATE UNIVERSITY (7-4)
ASU lost defensive star Alton Pettway, but the Golden Rams are always one of the best in the country and there should be no exception to that rule this year.

TDI's Preseason Top 20

A look at the teams poised to make a splash in Division III in 2007.

By Steve Siniski

01 MOUNT UNION COLLEGE (15-0 in 2006)

Easily one of the best ever football programs in their division, the Purple Raiders boast a 150-4 record since 1996. Their dominance on the road (62 straight wins) earns respect on any field. Fresh off back-to-back Division III crowns, the team returns 14 starters, including star tailback Nate Kmic, who rushed for a record-breaking 371 yards in one game last season. Since 1994, Mount Union has 35 more wins than any other Division III program and lost just seven games. The word dynasty is applicable, if not defined, by the Purple Raiders.

02 UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN-WHITEWATER (14-1)

Two consecutive runner-ups to Mount Union give the Warhawks something to prove. Something's got to be said about making back-to-back title appearances, but the stamp of greatness won't come until the championship hurdle is cleared. Four returning All-Americans, including running back Justin Beaver, keep the team in the mix for another big run.

03 ST. JOHN'S UNIVERSITY (MN) (11-2)

A legendary head coach in John Gagliardi and a four-year starter under center Alex Kofoed keep the Johnnies among the elite. On the heels of a run to the Division III quarterfinals, only Mount Union has more wins since 1994 than St. John's. Pencil Gagliardi's bunch in for another season of 11-plus wins. They have accomplished that feat eight times in the last nine years.

04 WESLEY COLLEGE (13-1)

The Wolverines made plenty of noise with their run to the semifinals, losing to eventual Division III runner-up, Wisconsin-Whitewater. Rarely in the giving mood, Wesley just takes what they want, and they proved that last season by forcing 51 turnovers. That type of proficiency in creating opportunities leads to big offensive numbers, and more can be expected from a team wise beyond its years in terms of experience.

05 UNIVERSITY OF MARY HARDIN-BAYLOR (10-3)

Slotted right below the team that bounced them from last year's playoffs, the Crusaders have a strong nucleus of defenders primed to take another step forward. Linebacker Jerrell Freeman is the centerpiece and makes good use of his ability to roam from sideline to sideline. The All American is a tireless defender that makes those around him hungrier with his sheer hustle.

06 CAPITAL UNIVERSITY (11-2)

An experienced senior class led Capital's crusade to the semifinal round of the Division III playoffs. Now, by welcoming back wide receiver Derrick Alexander and a defense that finished among the nation's best in points allowed, certainly gives hope for another 10-win campaign. Because the Crusaders lost the third all-time passing leader in Division III history, as well as 1,190 yards rushing in the backfield, they won't make the top five this preseason. It's best to take a wait-and-see approach, because even this may be a little high to start.

DIII Preview

- 07 TRINITY UNIVERSITY (TX) (7-1)
Trinity's defense has been the best in DIII football four years running, and this year the offense may not be far behind. The starting offensive line allowed a mere two sacks last season, and four of the big heavies are expected back in the trenches. Opponents can't sleep on Eric McGrath, who has plenty of beefy bodies giving him the necessary ingredients for any successful quarterback—time and protection.
- 08 ROWAN UNIVERSITY (9-3)
This season's schedule is slightly unbalanced, as the Profs are home for just four dates and hit the road for six others. But Rowan's calling card is defense, and on the gridiron that side of the ball usually travels well and cares little about late-season weather.
- 09 ST. JOHN FISHER COLLEGE (12-2)
One of the few teams to give Mount Union a scare in 2006, the Cardinals will get to see what senior tailback James Reile can do in a full-time starting role. He ran for 2,040 yards and 26 touchdowns over the last two years, mostly as a supporting member of the offense. The most successful season in the program's history is now in the rearview mirror, but the Cardinals are still a force in the Empire 8 Conference.
- 10 WILKES UNIVERSITY (PA) (11-1)
Al Karaffa's a well-protected quarterback working behind an experienced offensive line. That alone gives the offense some juice on the heels of averaging 26.2 points per game. Throw in a defense stingier than Ebenezer Scrooge (8.7 points per game) and a friendly schedule, and the Colonels are staring at another trip to the playoffs. The biggest potential bump is a home battle with Rowan, the team that knocked Wilkes from last year's semifinals.
- 11 HARDIN-SIMMONS UNIVERSITY (8-2)
The Cowboys' mettle will be tested often, as they face Wisconsin-La Crosse, Linfield and Mary Hardin-Baylor, all before Columbus Day. But it's tough to overlook what could be if they win two of those games, considering there's a brand new quarterback in town to take over for one of the best in the program's history. Having the division's top runner (Quinton Jones) and receiver (Mychal Carrillo) helps.
- 12 BETHEL UNIVERSITY (9-2)
Brandon Carr is a huge talent in the secondary, and a major reason why the defense is among the best in the nation. And there must be something about the rushing offense and run defense lining up against each other in practice. When teams can run it down an opponent's throat and prevent it at the same time, it can only mean good things for Royals fans.
- 13 BALDWIN-WALLACE COLLEGE (7-3)
Boosted by the return of 15 starters, including safety Jake Knipp, an All-America honoree who missed almost all of last season, the Yellow Jackets have their sights set on more than just a playoff berth. With two experienced quarterbacks and a solid receiving corps, the offense appears set. Replacing the production of running back Brandon Hedges won't be easy, but the Yellow Jackets have sleeper written all over them.

14 LINFIELD COLLEGE (6-3)

A wolf in sheep's clothing? Almost, but not quite. The Wildcats were a regular in the top 20 before an unexpected twist at quarterback added an unforeseen degree of difficulty. Despite an early freefall, the late-season rebound is the key here. The Wildcats were in the running for the Northwest Conference Championship despite having a new head coach and a quarterback who was expected to hold a clipboard for much of 2006. No price can be put on experience, and the Wildcats are rich with it once again.

15 WARTBURG COLLEGE (IA) (8-2)

The Knights have missed the postseason two years in a row, but an appearance in 2007 is more than just a pipe dream. The defense is their strength, without question, and it makes a living by turning the little things (turnovers) into big results.

16 OCCIDENTAL COLLEGE (10-1)

The regular-season winning streak is still alive at 26 and counting entering 2007, and running back Matt Anderson, who ranked third in the nation in scoring (12.0 points per game), is a great centerpiece for the offense. A fourth consecutive Southern California Intercollegiate Athletics Conference title may be only the beginning for the Tigers.

17 WHEATON COLLEGE (10-2)

The offense may get most of the ink, but Wheaton's defense is going to be the anchor that keeps the Thunder in the Top 20. Defensive end Andy Studebaker treats opposing quarterbacks like a hungry dog does red meat, and forms an excellent one-two punch with cornerback Pete Ittersagen. With two primetime players locked into key positions, expect continued improvement by the stop unit, while the offense ushers in a brand new era.

18 UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN-LA CROSSE (9-2)

The Eagles lost some big production in a few key spots, most importantly the one under center. But the team has just enough key veterans sprinkled throughout the rest of the lineup, specifically the offensive line that it shouldn't take long to kick back into high gear.

19 FRANKLIN COLLEGE (9-1)

Quarterback Chad Rupp is on the money more often than a professional archer and set a school record by completing 69 percent of his throws in 2006. With his top running back returning to the fold, and a defense anchored by a pair of versatile All-HCAC seniors in linebacker Lance Pickrell and lineman Dan McManus, keep an eye on the Grizzlies, who are thirsty for continued success after posting the best record in school history. Up next could be a berth in the Division III playoffs.

20 WHITWORTH COLLEGE (11-1)

The Pirates made off with plenty of booty in a record-setting 2006, including the first-ever playoff victory in the program's history. But the run to glory was led by a productive senior class that must be replaced. Whitworth could benefit from a fast start with four of their first five games at home.

Mount Union: A Division III Dynasty

When looking at a powerhouse team like Mount Union, which has won back-to-back Division III national titles, the last thing anyone would expect is that it's an offense driven by an underclassman running back responsible for 3,584 rushing yards and 44 touchdowns in just two years. But that's exactly the case with the Purple Raiders and now-junior running back Nate Kmic, a first-team All-American selection by Don Hansen's Football Gazette and D3football.com's 2006 Offensive Player of the Year.

"We play the best players," Mount Union head coach Larry Kehres says of his team, which has posted an astounding 172-7 mark since 1994 and won eight national titles during the span. "If you have a good team you have more good players. It's difficult to become a starter [as an underclassman], but it's not impossible."

As he enters his second full season as a starter, Kmic has already shown a knack for saving his best games for when the chips, and sometimes the snowflakes, are on the table. After setting a school-record with 361 yards rushing in an icy second round Division III playoff matchup against Augustana in 2005, he broke his own record in the '06 semifinals. Kmic tore St. John Fisher's defense apart for 371 yards as Mount Union won a 26-14 decision.

"In playoff games, close games, tight games, games where weather can affect conditions, Nate got an opportunity to play late," Kehres says. "The weather was not ideal, but running was imperative."

After averaging a healthy 41.7-point margin of victory through the first 12 games last year, the Purple Raiders had a pair of close calls but Kmic ended up donning his purple cape and pulled off feats of superhero performances. He totaled 174 yards in a 17-14 victory over Capital the week before shredding St. John Fisher for the historic 371. But according to Kehres, the clutch performances are something the junior takes in stride, and are simply a by-product of his desire to be on the field. "Nate likes football practice," Kehres says. "He's one of those guys that enjoys the game and has fun. He tends not to be [consumed] by statistics and honors. He likes football and likes to be out there."

TDI's Game Ball Goes To: Grand Valley State

After their championship season, the Lakers make a difference off the field.

Grand Valley players and coaches spent their off-season in the service of others

By Doug Mittler

Spring football practice must have seemed easy to the defending Division II national champions. The real work for Grand Valley State came a few weeks later and 1,100 miles away from the Allendale, Michigan campus.

Grand Valley State has already been built into a small college national power. This is a school that has won four Division II National Championships since 2002. Two of the titles have come in three seasons under head coach Chuck Martin, who has compiled a phenomenal 38-3 record.

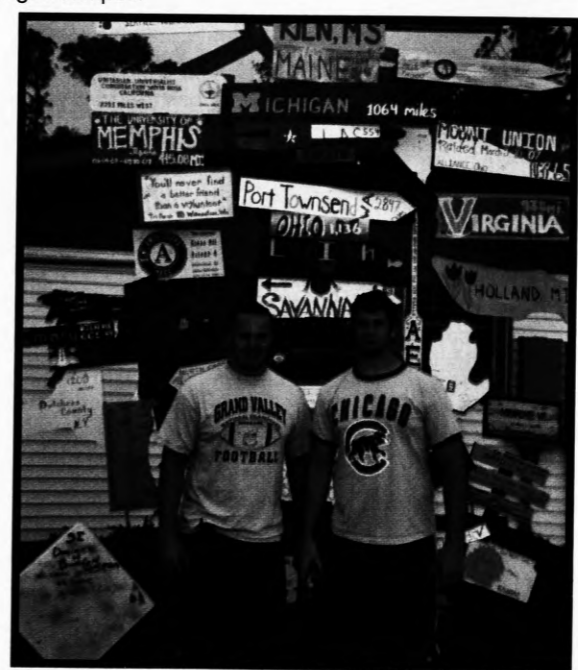

The 38-year-old Martin did some different type of building during a week in late April and early May, normally a vacation period after spring semester finals and spring practice was completed. Martin, five of his assistants and 30 Lakers players traveled to Kiln, Mississippi to help rebuild five homes and a church that were destroyed by Hurricane Katrina.

"Every kid said it was the hardest week of work in their life. It also was one that came with many rewards," Martin says. "It was a blue-collar working week."

According to one relief agency organizer, Grand Valley State is believed to be the first college football program to travel en masse to work for an extended period on Hurricane Katrina relief.

Community service projects for student-athletes are nothing new at Grand Valley State. Players in the past had built houses for Habitat for Humanity, for example, but the bulk of the activities took place at the local level.

"We care about the kids as athletes, as students and as people," Martin says. "We push them hard and we want to help them improve as people. We believe in community service. We believe it should be a part of our football program."

Schools from around the country left their mark in Kiln, Miss.

Game Ball: Grand Valley State

The inspiration came one night in January when Martin was watching CNN with his wife and saw a report about the Hurricane region. More than 16 months after Hurricane Katrina swept through the Gulf Region in 2005, Martin saw that plenty of devastation remained.

"We saw how not enough was being done," the coach says. "We were looking for something to sink our teeth into."

Martin asked around to see who might be interested, and insisted that any participation would be completely voluntary. John Hinken, Martin's neighbor in Michigan, went to Mississippi in January to rebuild houses. Chuck Hinken, John's father, was a main organizer for Kiln's Camp Coastal Outpost, which oversees relief efforts in the area.

"I was a little worried about how this might work out, whether we would have enough kids with the necessary skills," admits Chuck Hinken, who was honored by President Bush in April with the nation's Volunteer Service Award. "But you couldn't ask for a better bunch of guys."

Martin was hoping 10 players might sign up, but ended up with triple the number, an impressive figure since Grand Valley State football players do not get full-ride scholarships, making free time even more valuable. When you factor in classes, exams and football related activities, there are only about three weeks off for the student-athletes during the academic year.

Private donations were sought and more than $8,000 was raised from friends of the school's football program to send the student-athletes south.

"The support was overwhelming," Martin says. "The kids didn't have to pay a dime of out-of-pocket expenses."

The contingent piled into five vans in the early morning hours of April 29th and drove south to Kiln, the city where Brett Favre, the future Hall of Fame quarterback of the Green Bay Packers, was raised.

"We stopped in a gas station and saw all these Packers posters on the wall," says Lakers quarterback Brad Iciek. "I was hoping he would show up, but I know he had other priorities."

Kiln also was a city that stood right in the middle of Katrina's wrath, and the devastation remained.

"It opened up our eyes," Iciek says. "Almost two years have gone by, and there still are people without homes."

The players and coaches stayed at a barracks-style facility that provided food, lodging and bathing facilities for volunteers for $15 a day. They arrived in the evening and were hard at work the next morning.

The main task involved the building of the St. Rock Methodist Church for members of a congregation that had seen their building wiped out, as well as the five homes nearby.

"We experienced every possible emotion. It was both fantastic and at the same time depressing. It was an uplifting experience," Martin says. "Any emotion you could feel, we felt it."

While Martin and his group provided a willing work force, it was Hinken and the crew at Camp Coastal Outpost who made sure that the talent wasn't wasted.

"A lot of people come down there with the best of intentions, but if you don't have people that know what they're doing, it's not always helpful," Martin says. "They were the skilled laborers. We were the work force."

The work was varied as well as arduous. The players were digging trenches, building decks and pouring concrete. They installed aluminum siding and put up shingles.

Some of his players who had carpentry and construction skills were moved up to the head of the class.

"I was part of the group that had no skills," admits Martin, who before the trip considered raking his lawn a tough day of manual labor.

Not everything went smoothly. Within the first two hours on the job, two of the Grand Valley State players suffered cuts that required trips to a hospital emergency room. None of the injuries were serious.

"We just started and I had already taken two kids to the hospital," Hinken says. "I was wondering how this week would end."

But things went more smoothly from there. Hinken was impressed with the seriousness the football players took to their tasks and the way they bonded with volunteers from Hinken's Fellowship Reformed Church. "Many of those volunteers were in their 50s and 60s. They clicked with the players from the start," says the 62-year-old Hinken. "You don't see that nowadays."

The players were split into groups to maximize the tasks at hand, not unlike a depth chart for a team. That was of particular interest to Iciek, who is taking over at quarterback for the departed Cullen Finnerty, one of the most prolific small-college passers in history who signed with the NFL's Baltimore Ravens this spring.

"We showed we could work together off the field," Iciek says. "Everyone who came ended up being a leader."

The contingent also included tackle Brandon Barnes and All-American linebacker Anthony Adams.

The Grand Valley party headed back to Michigan at the end of the week. They had just a taste of the difficulty of relief work, and an appreciation was gained for those who do that work as a life-long vocation.

"We should take our incoming freshman class down there and show them how tough real work is," Martin says.

Martin did not come home empty handed. One hurricane victim had six dogs and was looking to find homes for her pets. When calling home to Michigan, his wife and children convinced Martin, who admits to not being a dog lover, to take two of the dogs home.

"One is a half hound," Martin says. "The other, I have no idea. Could be half pig."

With dogs in tow, Martin and the Lakers are back in Michigan, where the focus is back on football. The Lakers are a stunning 85-5 in their last 90 games and will take a 28-game winning streak into the season.

The Lakers will have 17 starters back and are ranked #1 in the country in several preseason publications (including this one).

Martin admits to being a perfectionist. He remembers more of the details about his few defeats than he does about the victories. There is always a desire to do better, whether that is in a December playoff game or an April trip to Kiln.

"I don't want to say it built character, because I think we already have some special kids," Martin says. "That was not the goal of the trip. We have high character kids already."

Residents of Kiln would agree. ●

Great Expectations

By Jeff Levers

Some say the Florida Gator fans are spoiled. Sure, they gave the BCS Championship Gators their adulation, but after the basketball team won back-to-back championships, the Florida football faithful don't expect anything less than another BCS trophy. Such is the mountain of expectation these days for the 2007 Florida Gators football team.

Last year, college football experts almost all agreed that Florida was a good team but they weren't a contender yet. They felt that it would take another year for the team to become familiar with Urban Meyer's spread offense, and that 2007 was the year that the Gators would live up to their full potential.

Instead, an offense led by a much-maligned starting quarterback played the toughest schedule in the country, and the 2006 Gators beat then #1 Ohio State 41-14 in the BCS title game.

Since then, Florida football has been in a state of flux. The defense lost three key juniors to the NFL in addition to seven seniors, leaving the team that had been groomed to come into its own in 2007 perilously thin and extremely young across the board.

Tim Tebow takes over at quarterback for Chris Leak and looks to unleash Urban Meyer's complicated spread offense, all the while trying to keep the litany of the offensive weapons available to him happy and making plays.

The man who was instrumental in guiding Florida to the title is also the perfect coach to deal with a rabid fan base that expects nothing less than another national championship in 2007. Throughout Meyer's coaching career, he has gone above and beyond expectations. This season could prove to be his toughest test yet.

THE COACH

In 2001, Urban Meyer took his first head coaching job at Bowling Green State University in Ohio. He promptly engineered the biggest turnaround in the NCAA, improving the Falcons by six wins to an 8-3 record in his first season.

After going 9-3 in his second year at Bowling Green, Meyer moved on to Utah in 2003, where he led the Utes to a 22-2 record over two seasons. Utah went 12-0 in 2004 and became the first team from a non-BCS conference to earn a BCS bowl game berth.

Great Expectations

Following the 2004 season there was much speculation that Meyer would leave Utah to become head coach at Notre Dame. Florida Athletic Director Jeremy Foley knew he had to act fast and shocked most people by signing Meyer to a seven-year, $14 million dollar deal to become the Gators head coach.

Meyer improved the Gators from 2004's 7-5 to a 9-3 record, continuing a trend he has achieved at each school he has coached. More important than the extra wins was the energy and expectation of excellence that he brings to Florida football.

Meyer felt that 9-3 was not acceptable for a program like Florida, and he would hold the team and everyone involved in the football program to a higher standard. The increased accountability on the players and coaches led to a more unified team heading into the 2006 season, and the results of that season speak for themselves.

The team finished the year with a 13-1 record, winning the SEC championship for the first time since 2000. The Gators then went on to the BCS National Championship. Meyer just recently received a new six-year, $19 million dollar contract that makes him the third highest paid college coach behind only Nick Saban and Charlie Weis, respectively.

The bar just keeps moving higher.

The Gators are giving the keys to the offense to sophomore quarterback Tim Tebow, who has already achieved God-like status in Gainesville, with some going so far as to call him...

THE CHOSEN ONE

A nickname given before he made one play at Florida, Tebow was a highly-recruited quarterback out of Nease High School near St. Augustine, Fla. and put up prolific numbers running a spread offense that put him in total command. He made his commitment announcement on national television. All this, before the Gators won the national championship. Imagine the expectations on Tebow now?

He finished his high school career with 12,996 yards of total offense (9,810 passing, 3,186 rushing) and accounted for 157 touchdowns (95 passing, 62 rushing) while leading Nease to the Class 4A state title in 2005.

He is seen as the prototype for the spread offense that Meyer wants to run, which requires a quarterback who can effectively run and throw the ball. Meyer's base offense spreads three receivers and puts the quarterback in the shotgun. Then, he introduces motion in the backfield and turns it into an option attack, adding elements of the traditional run-oriented option offense. With the proper personnel and execution it is virtually unstoppable.

In 2006, Tebow was used more as a short yardage specialist in the running game and an occasional passer. He finished the season second on the team with 469 yards rushing and eight touchdowns while completing 22 of 33 passes for 358 yards with five touchdowns and one interception.

He will be counted on to contribute a lot more to the team in 2007 if the Gators are to be successful. This year opposing defenses will no doubt be looking to shut down his running ability until he proves he can be an effective passer.

Florida starts with three straight home games, so Tebow should be able to use the friendly confines of the Swamp to get into a good rhythm early in the season.

OVERHAUL

A: 458 tackles, 41 tackles for loss, 17 sacks, and 18 interceptions.

Q: What do the Gators have to replace on defense with the loss of nine starters from the 2006 squad that held opponents to 255 yards and less than 14 points per game.

The 2007 NFL Draft saw six of those nine starters get drafted, including first round picks Jarvis Moss to Denver and Reggie Nelson to Jacksonville. Four other defensive players were signed as free agents so a drop off in play on that side of the ball is expected, especially early in the season.

The attrition isn't limited to the defensive side of the ball though, as the Gators lost a total of 25 players to either graduation or the NFL. Meyer's first two recruiting classes have been stellar. The 2006 class brought in 26 players and was ranked the #2 class in the nation by Scout.com. The 2007 class promises to be even better, delivering 27 players and garnering Scout's #1 ranking.

The Gators don't need to look very far to see a team that succeeded after suffering similar losses. Ohio State lost nine starters after last season, including five first-round draft picks, and still made it to the championship game. It is up to the young players to step into starting roles and produce if that is to happen.

In addition to the production that must be replaced on the field is the leadership this group provided. They lost their emotional leader in LB Brandon Siler, who was the heart and soul of the defense. Siler, along with Reggie Nelson and Earl Everett, were vocal leaders that wouldn't hesitate to get in another teammates face if they needed to. While the Gators don't have that in-your-face personality right now, they still have two guys who can show the young players how to deal with tough situations.

This season will be Tebow's time to take the reigns of Gator Nation

Great Expectations

NEW LEADERS EMERGE

At first glance, Cornelius Ingram and Derrick Harvey couldn't be more different from each other.

Ingram is from Hawthorne, Fla., a tiny one stoplight town in central Florida.

Harvey is from Greenbelt, MD, a city of more than 20,000 located about 15 miles northeast of downtown Washington, D.C..

Ingram, after being recruited as a QB, now plays TE/WR, Harvey plays DE.

But they do have a few things in common. They are both redshirt juniors, they both came on strong at the end of last year to jump on everyone's radar and they both have NFL-ready bodies. Ingram measures in at 6'4, 220 pounds and Harvey at 6'4, 260 pounds. And ready or not, they've both been called upon to become the leaders of this Gators team.

Harvey arrived at Florida after being named Maryland Gatorade Player of the Year in 2004. He sat out his first year at Florida, and contributed only 6 tackles and a sack as a redshirt freshman. His sophomore season, he was named the starter opposite Jarvis Moss. His play steadily improved to the point of being a dominant pass rusher by the end of the year. He was named Defensive MVP of the BCS Championship, after recording three sacks and a fumble recovery against Ohio State. He finished the season with a team-leading 11 sacks.

Based on their increased level of play at the end of last season and their commitment to Florida football, Meyer has named Ingram and Harvey as leaders of this very young team. Harvey initially took a little convincing.

"I'm not very vocal, so coach told me to lead by example and everyone would follow me," Harvey says on Under the Lights, a regional television program that gives a behind-the-scenes look at the Gators spring practice.

After splitting time between football and basketball early in his career, Ingram decided to focus solely on football in 2006, but not before he contemplated leaving Florida altogether. Ingram was unhappy with the amount of playing time he was receiving, but Meyer talked Ingram out of leaving, and things have been looking up ever since.

After only 10 catches in the first nine games of last season, Ingram picked the best time to become a factor. Over the last five games he had 20 catches, including six for 71 yards in the SEC Championship game and four for 58 yards in the BCS title game.

Now, one year after their discussion about leaving, Meyer is giving Ingram a huge honor. He recently named the rising junior as the new face of Florida football.

Expect to see more of Derrick Harvey's 81-inch wingspan this season

Ingram adjusted to the TE/WR position to the tune of 30 receptions and 280 yards in '06

Great Expectations

"He's a great person, he's a leader, and he will probably be the next face of Florida football. That's how much respect I personally have for him." Meyer said recently.

In his first two seasons at Florida, Meyer anointed a face of Florida football based on the player's work ethic, character and team-first attitude.

The first face was former Gainesville High standout Vernell Brown. The second was senior wide receiver Jemalle Cornelius. Now it is Ingram's turn at the front, and he has 53 freshmen and sophomores looking to him to lead.

NEXT IN LINE

The 2007 recruiting class for Florida has many intriguing storylines. The class is so big and diverse that they can almost field a full starting lineup on offense and defense; the only thing missing are a few offensive linemen.

There are the seven members from Lakeland High School who all enrolled at Florida early, including twin Offensive Linemen Maurkice and Michael Pouncey and pint-sized bullet RB Chris Rainey.

There is James Wilson, a five-star guard who blocked for Tebow in high school at Nease, choosing UF after originally committing to Southern Cal.

There are quarterbacks Cameron Newton and John Brantley, top ranked passers who are coming to UF despite the fact that it should remain Tebow's team for the next two to three years.

The icing on the cake is Deonte Thompson, a WR from Belle Glade who ran a 4.28 40-yard dash, who chose Florida at the end of signing day.

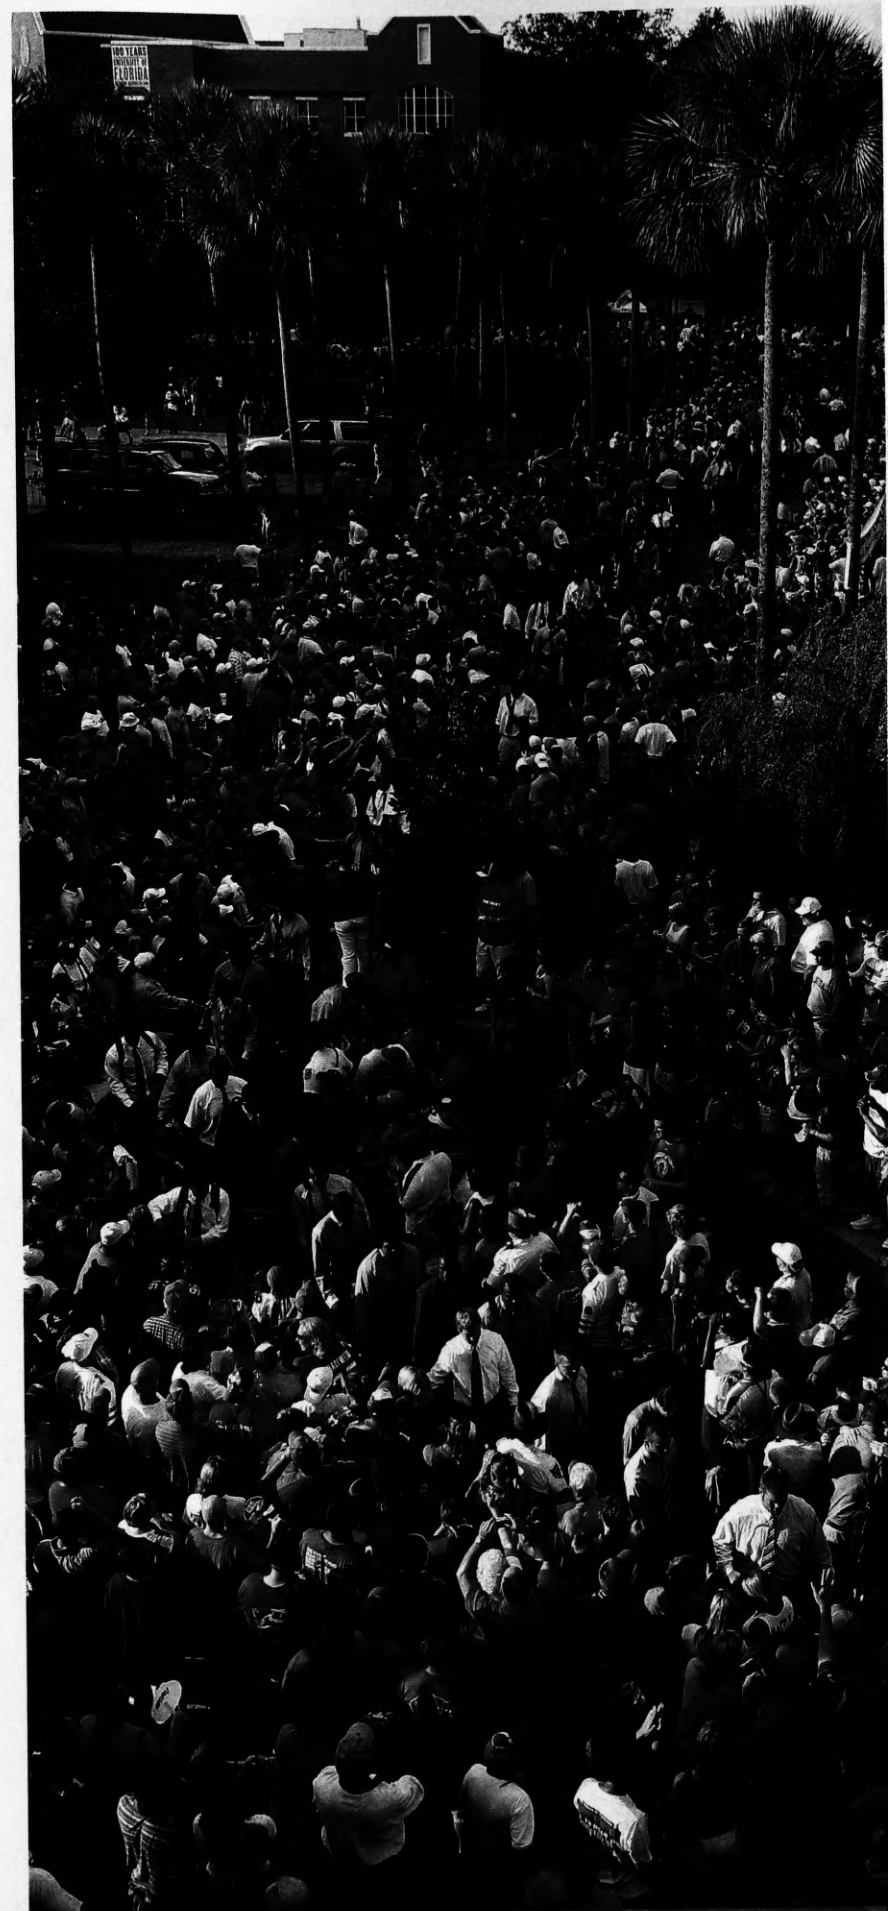

In all, Florida ended up with 12 of the top 100 players in the country, and many of them will be expected to provide an immediate impact this season for Florida. They aren't the only SEC team to bring in a top class though, with Tennessee, LSU, Auburn, and South Carolina all finishing in Scout's top seven.

2007 OUTLOOK

Florida's schedule is pretty favorable, with Tennessee, Auburn, and Florida State all playing at The Swamp this year. Their biggest test will probably be the showdown with LSU in Baton Rouge on October 6th, which could be a preview of the SEC Championship game. They also have a road game against South Carolina, and Spurrier will definitely have his Gamecocks ready after last season's disappointing final seconds loss.

Young teams should be expected to have growing pains, and it's likely that Florida will be looking at a 9-3 record and watching the SEC Championship on TV. Just don't mention that to any Florida fans. After all, if the freshmen and sophomores play up to the level of their immense talent, Florida could be right in the hunt for another BCS Championship. Exactly where Gator Nation expects them to be. ●

WIND ZONE

Every showdown between Miami and Florida State is like an early season championship game. Despite the best efforts of FSU stars RB Sammie Smith and CB Deion Sanders, Miami came out on top in the famous 1987 battle, 26-25, and went on to win the National Championship. FSU finished a close second.

All-Americans

Harlan Hill Trophy

Two Edinboro University football players have been finalists for the Harlan Hill Trophy, presented annually to the top player in NCAA Division II football. Running back Elbert Cole was one of three finalists in 1989, while wide receiver Ernest Priestler was a finalist a year later. Cole placed third in the '89 balloting. He earned All-American honors in 1989, receiving first team accolades from Kodak/American Football Coaches Association, second team recognition from Football Gazette, and third team status from Associated Press.

Cole rushed for 1,507 yards and set Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference records for touchdowns (24) and points (148). He led the Fighting Scots to the PSAC West title, a 8-3 record and a number seven ranking in the final Division II poll.

Priester was runnerup to North Dakota State quarterback Chris Simdorn in 1990 when the Bison claimed the Division II national title. Priestler was the PSAC Western Division Co-Player of the Year in 1990. He was also recognized by Kodak/American Football Coaches Association, Associated Press and the Football Gazette as a first team All-American.

The wide receiver hauled in 47 passes for 1,102 yards and 15 TDs. Edinboro finished 9-3, reaching the Division II quarterfinals.

Three years ago Andre Burke (below) made a run at the Harlan Hill Trophy, as the tailback was a Northeast Region semifinalist. Burke ended up with a school-record 1,713 yards and 19 TDs.

Robson and Wolf Honored as Pete Nevins Scholar-Athletes of the Year

Chris Robson

Jamie Wolf

Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference Commissioner Steve Murray has announced that 1,420 student-athletes from the league will be recognized as "Scholar-Athletes" for the 2006-07 academic year.

Headlining the list of recipients are this year's Pete Nevins Scholar-Athletes of the Year, as selected by the league's sports information directors. Lock Haven University's Chris Robson was named the male Scholar-Athlete of the Year and Clarion University's Jamie Wolf gained the same honors on the women's side. The 1,420 scholar-athletes account for approximately one third of the 5,200 + student-athletes in the PSAC. Commissioner Murray will award each scholar-athlete with a certificate of distinction.

The PSAC Pete Nevins Scholar-Athlete of the Year Awards are presented to the top student-athletes who have achieved at least a 3.25 cumulative grade point average while competing at an outstanding athletic level. Student-athletes must have been recognized as a Fall, Winter or Spring Top Ten Award winner to be eligible.

In its 17th year of existence, the awards were renamed this year to honor East Stroudsburg's long-time sports information director Pete Nevins, who passed away in January after a short battle with cancer. Nevins held his position at ESU for 33 years, and it is estimated that he wrote articles on more than 12,000 ESU events that covered more than 5,000 student-athletes.

Robson graduated with a 3.86 GPA in health and pre-physical therapy. A four-time Top 10 Award winner, Robson earned an NCAA Post-Graduate Scholarship and will pursue a doctorate in physical therapy at the University of Delaware.

The distance specialist earned All-America honors this past season by finishing eighth in the steeplechase at the NCAA Outdoor Championships. He posted the league's fastest effort for 2007 in the event at the PSAC Championships, winning his second consecutive title with a time of 9:03.28, which also established a new school record. He was an All-PSAC performer in cross country with a 16th-place finish in 27:15 at the PSAC Championships, helping Lock Haven earn the team title. He earned a 27th-place finish at the East Regional to help guide the Bald Eagles to another team championship and aided LHU's 11th-place finish at the NCAA Championships. He has been a key member of the Bald Eagle squad that has won four consecutive PSAC Cross Country Championships and three of the last four NCAA East Region Championships.

Wolf graduated with a perfect 4.0 GPA in molecular biology. The 2007 NCAA II Female Diver of the Year, Wolf won both the 1- and 3-meter national championships while setting the NCAA 1-meter diving record with 453.75 points. She is a three-time NCAA II Female Diver of the Year (2007, 2005, 2004) and has won an NCAA record seven national championships in eight tries. She also has been named Clarion's Female Athlete of the Year and a Winter Top 10 selection three times. Wolf has accepted an NCAA Post-Graduate Scholarship and will attend Ohio State University and where she will major in molecular genetics.

Additionally, ESPN The Magazine/CoSIDA named Wolf the 2007 At-Large Academic All-America of the Year for the College Division, which, in addition to swimming and diving, recognizes the sports of bowling, crew, fencing, golf, gymnastics, field hockey, ice hockey, lacrosse, rifle, skiing, tennis, and water polo for NCAA II, III and NAIA.

Longest Plays

The Cactus Bowl

Offensive linemen Greg Bzorek and LaMont Singleton continued the tradition of Edinboro Fighting Scots playing in the Cactus Bowl in January 2006. (NOTE: The 2007 contest was suspended.) For a number of years Division II football teams had an all-star game named the Snow Bowl, which was played in Fargo, North Dakota. In 2000 the contest was moved to Kingsville, Texas and renamed the Cactus Bowl. The contest features the top small college seniors in the country. Edinboro has had at least one representative in every Cactus Bowl (aka Snow Bowl) but one, with a streak of eight straight years. Here's a complete list of the Fighting Scots who have performed in the Cactus Bowl Division II All-Star Game.

All-Time Team ... Part of Sesquicentennial Celebration

As part of Edinboro University's 150th anniversary, the Sesquicentennial, the Edinboro Athletic Department announced its all-time athletic teams during the course of the 2006-07 year. We wish to thank the many individuals who took the time to send in nominations and give us your thoughts on who should make up Edinboro's All-Time Football Team. Your input was invaluable.

Dear Fans:

I hope that our fans will applaud and frequent the 15 supporters listed below from the Edinboro community who have supported our players with evening snacks through the grueling practice sessions in August. Our "August Snacks Program" has been a huge success. I can't tell you how appreciative our players are of these generous donations. This is the seventh consecutive year that the community has reached out and assisted us. Our players have asked me to thank each of the restaurants/eateries below. Please support these Edinboro business! THANK YOU.

This marks the 22st season that I have been fortunate enough to be a member of the Edinboro football staff. During that time it has been very gratifying to see the response of local organizations in assisting Edinboro football. In recent years the service organizations has provided invaluable assistance, including running the 50/50 raffles. We look forward to working with these organizations again this year, and thank them for their support of Boro Football.

Athletic Fund Drive

FROM THE ATHLETIC DIRECTOR

Thank you for your support of the Annual Athletic Fund Drive.

Several years from now we may look back and view 2006-07 as one of the most momentous in many years. The Fighting Scot athletic teams once again enjoyed great success, and in some not-so-expected areas. As Edinboro celebrated its 150th year, it was marked by a great deal of change - change that will carry our athletic teams for years to come.

By the time our student-athletes return from summer break to begin preparations for the 2007-08 season, they'll be able to work out in our newly-renovated weight room. It's exciting to watch the day-to-day changes. When it's all said and done, Fighting Scot student-athletes will have state-of-the-art weight-training and aerobic equipment at their disposal.

That's not all. The McComb Fieldhouse gymnasium floor will have a new look as well, and repairs are also taking place in the swimming pool.

I've saved possibly the best for last. During the winter the Edinboro University Student Government Association backed a plan to renovate Sox Harrison Stadium, and it was supported by the administration. The end result - a new artificial surface at Sox Harrison Stadium, which should be done in time for Edinboro's home opener against West Chester on September 1. In addition, lights will be installed, opening a myriad of opportunities in the future. Finally, the scoreboard will be updated.

This project will be a huge benefit to the athletic program, but it doesn't end there. The rest of the campus community will see the benefits of this project.

Back to the playing field for a minute. Edinboro won PSAC Championships in women's cross country and wrestling, with the wrestling team also winning its ninth EWL Tournament in ten years. Gregor Gillespie became Edinboro's third Division I national champion in front of a live national audience on ESPN. That same day Brooke Heath concluded another outstanding showing at the swimming national championships. The junior is now an 11-time All-American. The year ended with the softball team making its first-ever trip to the NCAA Playoffs.

We're very proud of everything that has been accomplished, not only this past year but in previous years. We look ahead to the challenge of the future, realizing that it will indeed be a challenge. Other Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference schools are experiencing many of the same improvements we are, or have done so in recent years.

The support of the administration and the SGA is greatly appreciated. But we can't stop there. Our Edinboro Family must continue to grow. I can't tell you how valuable your support has been since the start of the Annual Athletic Fund. We hope you'll once again choose to sit down and contribute to the Athletic Fund. If you haven't contributed in the past, please explore the possibility of helping Edinboro not only maintain its athletic tradition, but move forward. Finally, please spread the word around. The greatest way we can prosper is by networking, so please tell a friend or two about the Annual Athletic Fund.

As always, thanks for your support. Please make it a point to come back at some point this year and see all the improvements first hand.

Bruce R Baumgartner

Today's Feature

When we last gathered to watch Edinboro football, the Fighting Scots were celebrating Senior Day -- at Allegheny College. Due to the unplayable condition of Sox Harrison Stadium, the game had to be moved to Allegheny.

The Fighting Scots went on to a big win that day against Shippensburg. Behind the scenes, the wheels were set in motion for a new look at Sox Harrison Stadium. A couple of months later, with the strong support of the Edinboro University Student Government Association, former President Dr. Frank G. Pogue signed off on a plan to install artificial turf (Sportexe), along with the installation of a new scoreboard at Sox Harrison Stadium.

The end result is a beautiful new artificial surface that will not only serve as the home field for the Fighting Scot football and women's soccer teams, but also for various other campus activities, including classes and club activities.

Today we celebrate the completion of this project with a ribbon-cutting ceremony. As you might imagine, there are many, many entities to thank. It is our hope that the list below will cover that process, but it is also entirely possible that we may miss someone. We hope that doesn't occur, but should it, please know that it was an oversight and your hard work in making this pipe-dream become a reality is greatly appreciated.

Our ceremonies will begin at 12:30 p.m., with several individuals taking part. Representing the entire group will be Dr. Jeremy Brown, Edinboro University's new President, and SGA President Joe Malizia. Following the ribbon-cutting and the Fighting Scots entering Sox Harrison Stadium, Dr. Brown and Malizia will then serve as honorary captains for the game and proceed to midfield for the coin toss.

We hope you enjoy this new era of Boro athletics, and if you get a chance, make sure to give those that worked so hard on this project a pat on the back.

Bottom Line

After an injury, it's you against the insurance company. Without professional representation how are you going to get what you are entitled to?

We help people.

We are serious about helping accident victims. Every case matters to us, so we work hard for our clients. Our goal is to get you the maximum settlement or award. Compassion, caring, and the relentless pursuit of justice - these are the hard-won values of The Travis Law Firm.
