Fighting Scots On The Radio, TV

Edinboro University football fans can catch all the Fighting Scot gridiron action on WFSE FM 88.9. The Edinboro student radio station will broadcast all eleven games, providing valuable broadcasting experience for Edinboro students, along with quality broadcasts of Fighting Scot athletics.

In addition, the Edinboro University student television station, ETV, will present the Fighting Scots Game of the Week on ScotsCast. Current plans call for all home football games to be aired, and audio of all away games will also be streamed over EZStream. Access EZStream through the Edinboro athletic web site at www.gofightingscots.com.

Finally, Edinboro football can be heard live on TEAMLINE. Dial 1-800-846-4700 and then enter 1644 as the four-digit code. The Teamline internet broadcast can be found at www.edinboro.edu.

fourth in the PSAC in scoring (29.1 ppg.) and Clarion ranked fifth (28.1 ppg.). A frightening thought for Boro defensive coordinator Wayne Bradford.

That brings us to one last thought. Today we will honor ten players who are playing their final games in an Edinboro uniform. These young men who have been with us the last four and five years have maintained a great tradition of winning. We wish them the very best in their future endeavors, and hope that they can go out in the fashion they have played throughout their careers -- as winners!

► The Coaches

Scott Browning (Ohio State '81) took over as Edinboro's 13th head coach on January 5, 2006. He was certainly no stranger to Fighting Scot football, however, serving as an assistant coach for the previous twenty years. While at Edinboro he has coached the offensive linemen, defensive backs and running backs, along with serving as the offensive coordinator. Browning became the first head coach at Edinboro to debut with a win since Bill McDonald in 1969 when the Fighting Scots opened the 2006 season with a 28-14 win at West Chester. He went on to lead Edinboro to a 6-5 finish, the most wins ever by a first-year coach. Two years ago he led the Fighting Scots to a 7-4 record, and that was followed by a 9-2 finish a year ago, as the Fighting Scots were ranked 20th in the final AFCA Top 25. The nine wins tied the school record for wins in a season. Now in his fourth season, he has a 29-13 ledger. Browning tied former mentor Tom Hollman as the coaches to reach 25 wins the quickest at Edinboro. It took both 37 games. (For more on Scott Browning, see pages 6-7.)

Clarion head coach Jay Foster (Plymouth State '85) is in his fourth year after serving as an assistant coach at Slippery Rock for 18 years, the last 17 as defensive coordinator. Foster's Golden Eagles have enjoyed a remarkable turnaround this season after winning four games his first three seasons, including a 3-8 finish a year ago. He helped lead Slippery Rock to four straight PSAC championships.

► The Edinboro-Clarion Series

Edinboro leads 41-37-2

Thanks to wins in the last six meetings Edinboro has taken the lead in the all-time series. The Fighting Scots have won the last two meetings at Sox Harrison Stadium, with Clarion picking up its last win in the series in 2002, a 24-18 decision at the Boro.

► The Last Meeting

Edinboro 35, Clarion 10

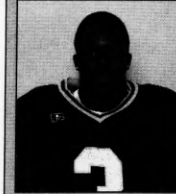

Jeremy Burr jumpstarted a sluggish Edinboro team with three big plays. Burr, a senior wide receiver, caught just one pass for four yards, but on this day his legs made the difference. Holding a slim 7-3 lead late in the first half, Burr, the holder, executed a perfect fake field goal, sprinting around right end for a 16-yard gain to the Clarion four, leading to a Trevor Harris to Gary

► Scouting Clarion

Give a great deal of credit to Jay Foster. The Clarion head coach won just four games his first three years, but he stuck with his plan and suddenly the Golden Eagles are one of the best teams in the PSAC. Clarion has run off four straight wins and has won five of its last six games. In fact, the only loss a 35-31 setback to California(Pa.). Clarion is assured of its first winning season since the 2002 team went 7-4.

The Golden Eagles ride a high-powered attack which has scored 30-or-more points five times and is averaging 32.0 ppg. during the four-game winning streak.

Players to Watch

Alfonso Hoggard, TB -- the junior is enjoying one of the top offensive seasons in the PSAC. The diminutive tailback leads the PSAC in rushing (105.6 ypg.) and scoring (11.2 ppg.), and also ranks first in all-purpose yardage (193.6 ypg.). Hoggard has 845 yards rushing with 13 TDs, and is averaging 27.8 yards with a TD on kickoff returns, good for third in the PSAC. A year ago Hoggard was a second team All-PSAC selection at wide receiver after catching 41 passes.

Jacques Robinson, WR -- the junior leads the PSAC in receptions per game with 6.2 per game, with a total of 56 receptions for 650 yards and 4 TDs. Robinson finished second in the PSAC in receiving a year ago with 70 catches for 849 yards and 8 TDs. He has 149 career receptions, good for fourth all-time at Clarion, and he ranks eighth in career receiving yards (1,730).

Tyler Huether, QB -- a 6'1", 210 lb. senior, Huether has thrown for 1,898 yards with 9 TDs and is also the second-leading rusher with 207 yards and 4 TDs.

Matt Foradora, TE -- the 6'5", 240 lb. senior may be the best tight end in the PSAC West. He has 38 catches for 458 yards and 3 TDs after hauling in 37 balls with three scores last year.

The Clarion Game

Nolen touchdown pass. Burr then took the second half kickoff and returned it 49 yards to the Clarion 46. Ulysee Davis scored on a 33-yard run for a 21-3 lead. Finally, Burr went 37 yards on a reverse, leading to another touchdown and a 28-3 advantage. Harris threw 3 TD passes, while Michael Battles ran for 113 yards and a touchdown and Davis totaled 99 yards and a score on the ground.

► Last Week

Edinboro 32, Mercyhurst 22

The Fighting Scots spotted Mercyhurst a quick 8-0 lead less than ninety seconds into the game, then scored the next 17 points to take control of the game. A balanced offense and a stifling defense avenged last year's loss to the Lakers. David Bostic accounted for the first touchdown on a six-yard run, and Michael Battles replaced an injured Bostic in the second half and scored on runs of four and three yards. Trevor Harris accounted for 301 total yards, including a 15-yard TD pass to Josh Brown, and also scored on a two-point conversion run. Alex Romanias concluded the scoring with a 37-yard field goal. Edinboro finished with 412 yards against a Mercyhurst defense that ranked among the best in the PSAC, while a banged-up Boro D held the Lakers to 281 yards, one-third of that in their final drive.

Clarion 30, Indiana(Pa.) 28

This game was more than just beating IUP. In an ill-fated attempt to impress the NCAA pollsters IUP ran it up on Clarion a year ago to the tune of 66-16. The Golden Eagles got their payback last Saturday as Alfonso Hoggard totaled 292 all-purpose yards and 2 TDs. That included 162 yards and a pair of scores against the top rushing defense in the PSAC. Clarion actually trailed 21-10 in the second quarter before a Hoggard two-yard run pulled the Golden Eagles to 21-17. A 49-yard run by Hoggard set up a one-yard sneak by Tyler Huether to give Clarion the lead for good. Hoggard would add a two-yard TD run.

► Cal Coach Calls it Like He Sees it --

Harris DII Version of Tim Tebow

Alright, admit it. You've wanted to come up with a big-time comparison for Edinboro quarterback Trevor Harris. California(Pa.) coach John Luckhardt finally stepped up and made that comparison prior to the Boro's game at Cal. "He's Division II's Tim Tebow (of Florida) in terms of production and his ability to make things happen." Hard to argue with a coach who's led his team to four straight PSAC titles.

► The Playoff Picture

The latest Super Regional One rankings (listed below) have Edinboro ranked sixth this week. That's good news, since the top six teams advance to the NCAA Division II Playoffs. However, remember that the dreaded phrase "earned access" up and bit the Fighting Scots a year ago, so sixth place can be a very precarious position. There's still a lot of football to be played, and you certainly can't overlook a Clarion team which is the most improved team in the league. With Shippensburg sitting in the second spot, and California(Pa.) fourth, the expected meeting between these two in the PSAC Championship Game could amount to an elimination game. Consider that Edinboro has lost to both, but handed West Liberty, the top-ranked team in the region, its lone loss. Edinboro is also ranked 21st in the latest AFCA Division II poll.

Super Regional One Rankings

|--------------------------|------------------------------------|
| 1. West Liberty (8-1) | 6. EDINBORO (8-1) |
| 2. Shippensburg (7-2) | 7. Charleston(WV) (8-1) |
| 3. Bloomsburg (8-1) | 8. East Stroudsburg (6-3) |
| 4. California(Pa.) (7-2) | 9. Fayetteville State (6-3) |
| 5. Bentley (8-1) | 10. Southern Connecticut St. (5-3) |

► Trevor Now at 34 and Counting

Senior quarterback Trevor Harris threw one touchdown pass against Mercyhurst, giving him at least one touchdown pass in 34 straight games. Harris has moved into second place all-time in the PSAC in career passing yards and total offense, and is also fourth in TD passes.

► Stoner Rock Solid on Both Lines

A banged up defensive line needed a lift, and got just that against Mercyhurst when offensive guard Rob Stoner moved over to the defense for a number of plays in the second half. The defensive line is hardly unfamiliar to Stoner, as he was a standout at General McLane High School and then went to Youngstown State as a noseguard. However, the junior has started 31 straight games at guard since transferring to Edinboro.

► PSAC Honors Fighting Scots

Since Edinboro's last home game, three Fighting Scots have earned PSAC West Player of the Week honors. This past week Branden Williams was chosen the Defensive Player of the Week after recording 3 tackles, intercepting a pass and blocking a punt in the win over Mercyhurst. Two weeks earlier Greg Sondag was named the Defensive Player of the Week for his performance at Indiana(Pa.), and Trevor Harris was named the Offensive Player of the Week for the second time in 2009 following the Gannon game.

Welcome to Edinboro University

Dear Edinboro Friends and Fans of the Fighting Scots:

What an exciting time to be on our campus and a part of Edinboro University of Pennsylvania!

In athletics, we look forward to NCAA competition with members of the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference, especially our regional PSAC-West rivals – Gannon University and Mercyhurst College. Our Fighting Scots athletic teams are all the more eager to compete against our City of Erie neighbours! And in the spring, with a year's experience under our belts, we'll again field the varsity women's lacrosse team.

But there's even more happening at Edinboro University. I invite you to take a look around and you'll see the progress of the past year, and the ongoing new construction projects in many areas of our beautiful campus.

Sox Harrison Stadium's renovations of several years ago – the artificial turf, lighting and new scoreboard – continue to be widely embraced throughout the region, making our stadium one of northwestern Pennsylvania's premier athletic field venues.

Directly across Scotland Road from the stadium, it's not difficult to miss our huge, new Mike S. Zafirovski Sports and Recreation Center, the region's largest free-standing domed facility. Just as soon as the finishing touches are completed, our varsity and intramural athletic teams will share one of the area's finest indoor practice facilities. Imagine training indoors on an NCAA regulation track whilst the wind howls and the snow flies in sub-freezing temperatures outside. It's a first class facility that will enhance athletic activities for all our students.

Across Scot Road to the south, the first phase of our eight-building, $115 million student housing project – The Highlands at Edinboro – is now complete, bringing the finest in student living amenities to northwestern Pennsylvania. Continuing south on Scotland Road, the recent $25 million renovation and expansion of the Frank G. Pogue Student Center has quickly become the shining hub of campus activities.

Heading west on Scot Road, you might have noticed construction activity near the serene, five-acre Mallory Lake. Within the year, our new Human Services Building will be ready for occupancy, housing our acclaimed Nursing, and Speech, Language and Hearing Departments.

Continuing along Normal Street, the Dr. William P. Alexander Music Center, Edinboro's first structure built specifically to meet the Music Department's needs, stands next to the renovated Academy Hall, the original campus building constructed in 1857 and now listed on the National Register of Historic Places. One of the oldest former Normal School buildings in the nation still used for academic purposes, Academy Hall houses our Undergraduate Admissions Office. Feel free to stop by on this or your next visit to campus.

And if all that isn't enough, a long-awaited $30 million construction project will soon be launched on exterior, interior expansion and renovation of the venerable Cooper Hall, which houses Edinboro's many science programmes.

So, you can see why we are so excited! Whether in the classrooms, laboratories, libraries or athletic venues, Edinboro University goes far beyond the norm in creating a complete 21st century higher education experience for our 8,000 students.

Whether athletics or academics or more than 100 organised extracurricular activities, whether undergraduate or graduate programmes, great things are happening here! And they're going to get even better. I encourage you to be part of our winning team. Enjoy your visit, and please return often.

Go Fighting Scots!

Head Coach

Scott Browning

4th Year
Ohio State '81

Scott Browning knows a thing or two about the Edinboro football tradition. With twenty years under his belt as an assistant coach, he was all too familiar with the glory days of Edinboro football. So it didn't take him long to restore some lost traditions when he took over as the 13th head football coach of the Fighting Scots on January 5, 2006.

Most prevalent was the return to the "Boro", the common name the football team was referred to during the 1980's and '90's, some of the most successful periods in Edinboro football history.

One thing Browning didn't mess with was the tradition of winning. In fact, in his first three seasons Browning has tied the record for most wins by a coach with 22 victories. Only Bill McDonald, who guided the 1969-1971 teams to 22 wins, and Tom Hollman, who also totaled 22 wins in 1988-90, can match Browning's start.

His first edition finished with a 6-5 record, the most wins ever under a first-year coach. But it didn't end just on the football field. The Fighting Scots excelled in the classroom, including a cumulative team GPA of over 2.8 for the spring semester.

Browning became the first coach at Edinboro since Sox Harrison to win his first two games as head coach. That happened in 1926, the first year of football at the Boro. Thanks to a 28-14 win at West Chester, he became the first coach since Bill McDonald in 1969 to win his first game as head coach.

That victory, on the road at West Chester between a pair of 2005 NCAA playoff teams, also displayed Browning's propensity as a riverboat gambler. The Fighting Scots went for it on fourth down four times, and converted on three occasions.

Two years ago the Fighting Scots finished with a 7-4 record while facing one of the most difficult schedules in recent memory. Edinboro faced four nationally-ranked teams, upsetting 25th-ranked Bloomsburg thanks to a memorable comeback, 42-41, while losing to eighth-ranked California(Pa.), 17th-ranked West Chester and 24th-ranked IUP. In fact, Edinboro's four losses came to teams which combined for a 40-9.

The Fighting Scots also continued the strong academic trend, with 15 players earning PSAC Scholar-Athlete honors.

This past year Edinboro barely missed making the NCAA Playoffs for the first time since 2004 while tying the school record for wins in a season, finishing at 9-2. The wins included a 24-17 decision over 16th-ranked Indiana(Pa.). The losses came by a combined seven points to 14th-ranked California(Pa.) and Mercyhurst. The Fighting Scots finished 20th in the final AFCA Division II rankings.

Academically, 12 student-athletes earned PSAC Scholar-Athlete recognition and 34 finished with a GPA of 3.0 or higher in the spring semester.

After serving as the offensive line coach and recruiting coordinator in Lou Tepper's first season, Browning took over as the offensive coordinator in 2001.

He had previously served as the offensive coordinator for five seasons under Tom Hollman. In all, Browning had served as Edinboro's offensive line coach the previous 12 years.

Browning joined the Edinboro program in 1986 as the running backs coach under Steve Szabo. After two seasons on the offensive side of the ball, the graduate of The Ohio State University moved to the defensive side, serving as the defensive backfield coach under Hollman. In 1994 he moved back to offense as the offensive line coach. He had remained in charge of the linemen since that time, coaching such All-Americans as Jeremy O'Day, Joe Valvoda and Greg Bzorek. The last two years Browning's offensive line led the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference in fewest sacks allowed.

When Tepper came on board in 2000, Browning was appointed the recruiting coordinator in addition to his duties with the offensive line. A year later he was named the offensive coordinator, and the Fighting Scot offense made great strides over the last five years. Browning emphasized a balanced attack which showcased the combination of a strong ground game and dangerous aerial attack. Over his last three seasons Edinboro averaged 29.9 ppg. in 2003, 33.2 ppg. in '04, and 31.4 ppg. in '05.

All told, Browning has been an assistant coach on all seven of Edinboro's NCAA playoff teams, along with five of the nine PSAC champion squads. He took over a team which had been to the NCAA Division II Playoffs two of the previous three years, and during that period had posted a 26-8 record. The 26 wins were the most in a three-year period in Edinboro history.

"It goes without saying that I am extremely excited to have this opportunity," noted an elated Browning upon his hiring. "I was proud to be a part of the teams in the 1990's that ranked among the best in Division II, and over the last few years we have once again elevated the program to one of the best in the country. The University and the community of Edinboro mean a great deal to me. Over the years we have tried to become an integral part of this community. I am thrilled that I can continue that association while taking over a group of players that represent the ideals I believe in.

"I'm sure you will see some changes in the future, but I can tell you this, the ideals remain in place for this program, and always have in the time I've been here. Without question we want to be successful on the field, and that means challenging for the PSAC West title. But we won't compromise integrity. We will continue to bring in young men who have the ability to be successful both in the classroom and on the football field. It is my sincere belief that when they take the field, they must wear the Edinboro jersey with pride, and when they are in the community, that they have earned the respect that comes with being a Fighting Scot."

Browning has served on the staffs at three NCAA Division I institutions. Prior to joining the Fighting Scot staff, he coached receivers and running backs at Ohio State for two years while serving as a graduate assistant. That group included

Keith Byars. The Buckeyes went to the Rose Bowl in 1984, dropping a 20-17 decision to USC to finish with a 9-3 record. The following year Ohio State went bowling again, this time defeating Brigham Young, 10-7, in the Citrus Bowl, to once again finish at 9-3.

Browning served as a graduate assistant coach at New Mexico State in 1982, and the following year instructed the receivers at Idaho State. Idaho State reached the NCAA Division I-AA Playoffs before suffering a 27-20 defeat to Nevada.

A 1981 graduate of The Ohio State University with a bachelor's degree in Education, Browning began his coaching career as an assistant coach at Worthington High School and Dayton-Fairview High Schools in Ohio from 1979-81. Before transferring to Ohio State he attended Capital University where he played football for one season. Browning later earned a master's degree in Education Administration from New Mexico State in 1983.

Browning, 50 and a native of Loudonville, Ohio, and his wife, Lynn, reside in Edinboro and have two children, Andrew (15), a member of the General McLane High School football team, and Katelyn (11).

His brother Mitch has also enjoyed a successful career as a football coach. He served several noteworthy seasons as the offensive coordinator at the University of Minnesota, and has also been the offensive coordinator at Syracuse University. He is currently on the staff at Tennessee.

Assistant Coaches

Wayne Bradford

Defensive Coordinator/Linebackers
11th Year
Salisbury State '90

Wayne Bradford is in his eleventh year as a member of the Edinboro coaching staff. He enters his fifth season as the Fighting Scot defensive coordinator, and had previously held the same title in 1999 under former head coach Tom Hollman. After overseeing the defensive line for seven seasons, Bradford took over as the linebackers coach in 2006.

Bradford orchestrated the top defense in the country three years ago, as Edinboro paced Division II in scoring defense (9.3 ppg.), total defense (211.2 ypg.), and rushing defense (53.7 ypg.). In addition, Edinboro was third in pass efficiency defense and turnover margin. The Fighting Scots recorded three shutouts, the most since the 1975 team also shut out three opponents. A total of seven opponents were held to seven points or less. He coached four all-conference performers a year ago.

Two years ago his defensive unit recorded two more shutouts while leading the PSAC in rushing defense (70.6 ypg.), good for third in the country.

This past year Edinboro's defense once again ranked among the best in Division II. The Fighting Scots were fifth in scoring defense (13.1 ppg.) and 11th in total defense (265.7 ypg.), ranking second in the PSAC in both categories.

Under Bradford's tutelage, Edinboro has had thirteen first team All-PSAC West defensive linemen. In fact, he has been responsible for three PSAC West Defensive Players of the Year, with Ben Stroup earning the honor in 2006, Chris Amico the 2005 recipient, and Seth Fragale the winner in 2004.

Bradford had previously been at Salisbury State since 1990, and was the Sea Gulls' defensive coordinator from 1994-98.

A graduate of Salisbury State, Bradford began his coaching career at his alma mater in 1990, serving as an assistant coach in charge of the linebackers (1990-92) and defensive linemen (1992-94). In 1994, he was promoted to defensive coordinator. In 1997, Salisbury State ranked 38th in NCAA Division III in total defense, allowing just 268 yards per game. His 1995 defensive unit produced a first team AFCA All-American at linebacker, and helped the Sea Gulls finish 7-2 with a berth in the ECAC Southwest Championship Game.

Bradford graduated from Salisbury State in 1990 with a bachelor's degree in Business Administration. He completed work on his master's degree in Business Administration from Salisbury State in 1992. In addition to working as a member of the football staff, Bradford was a faculty member in the School of Business. Beginning in 1996, he was the Director of the Business Graduate Programs for the Perdue School of Business.

As an undergraduate, Bradford was an offensive lineman. He played on the 1986 Salisbury State team which finished as the NCAA Division III national runnerup.

Bradford and his wife, Gwen, reside in Edinboro with their 11-year-old son, Nicholas, nine-year-old daughter, Julia and four-year-old son Mitchell.

Mike Yurcich

Offensive Coordinator/Quarterbacks
5th Year
California (Pa.) '99

Mike Yurcich enters his fifth season as a member of the Edinboro University coaching staff. Yurcich joined the football staff in April 2005 as the quarterbacks coach. He is in his fourth year as the offensive coordinator after assuming that role in 2006.

Yurcich has overseen the development of the offense into one of the top units in the country. In particular, the Fighting Scots now rank as one of the top passing teams in Division II. Last year led the PSAC in total offense (449.4 ypg.) while averaging over 30 points per game for the second year in a row. The Fighting Scots ranked 11th in Division II in total offense, 23rd in rushing offense (189.9 ypg.), 26th in passing offense (259.5 ypg.) and 34th in scoring offense (32.3 ppg.).

In 2007 Edinboro led the PSAC in passing offense (312.8 ypg.), ranked second in total offense (455.7 ypg.), and was fourth in scoring offense at 35.7 ppg., the highest total since 1994 and the fourth-highest in school history. The Fighting Scots ranked eighth in Division II in passing offense, 18th in total offense, and 25th in scoring offense.

A native of Euclid, Ohio, Yurcich served as a graduate assistant coach at Indiana University in 2003-04. In addition to conducting statistical analysis for the Hoosiers' offense, he assisted with the wide receivers.

Yurcich is no stranger to the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference. After attending Mount Union in 1994-95, he transferred to California (Pa.) and played three seasons for the Vulcans. Yurcich was a two-year captain at California (Pa.), serving as the starting quarterback in 1996 and sharing the starting role in 1998.

Yurcich graduated from California (Pa.) with a bachelor's degree in Industrial Organization Psychology in May 1999, and later earned his master's degree in School Counseling from St. Francis(IN). While at St. Francis(IN), he served as an assistant coach for the Cougars, helping USF to four consecutive After coaching the running backs in 1999 at St. Francis, Yurcich worked with the quarterbacks in 2000 and 2001. He served as the offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach in 2002. He was also the junior varsity head coach from 2000-02.

Yurcich resides in Edinboro. He was married to former Edinboro cross country All-American Julie Nemergut, who was hired a year ago as Edinboro's assistant women's track & field coach, on June 13, 2009.

Keith Braxton

Defensive Line
4th Year
Virginia Military Institute '98

Keith Braxton was named Edinboro's defensive line coach in March of 2006 after serving as a member of the Virginia Military Institute coaching staff for five seasons. He was in charge of the defensive line after previously earning four letters as a defensive tackle at VMI. He also served as the defensive tackles coach at Loras College during the 1997 season.

As Edinboro's defensive line coach he has helped in the development of three All-PSAC performers, with Chris Amico earning the honor twice, A.J. Cousins a 2006 selection, and Mike Enoch named to the second team last year.

As a player, Braxton was a three-year starter at VMI from 1994-96. He posted 195 career tackles, including 11 tackles for losses and 6 sacks. He had one of his top games as a sophomore, finishing with 8 tackles, 6 of those solo, in VMI's 26-23 win over Appalachian State.

In all, he played in 44 career games with 35 starts. He was a tri-captain as a senior.

After serving as an assistant coach at Loras for a year, Braxton left coaching for two years to work as a customer service representative at First Union National Bank in Richmond, VA before returning to his alma mater in 2001. Braxton is a native of Beaverdam, VA. He graduated from VMI in 1998 with a bachelor's degree in History. He is single and resides in Edinboro.

Kim Niedbala

Defensive Backs
4th Year
Clarion '99

Kim Niedbala joined the Edinboro coaching staff in the spring of 2006 as the defensive backs coach after serving as an assistant coach at Clarion for seven seasons from 1999-05.

He has quickly made his mark at Edinboro while instructing the secondary. In his first season a pair of players earned All-PSAC West honors, and in 2007 three of the four members of the secondary were recognized as All-PSAC performers. He molded a young secondary in 2008 into an effective unit which featured PSAC West Freshman of the Year Branden Williams.

At Clarion he was elevated to the defensive coordinator in 2002 after working with the outside linebackers in 1999, then taking over as the secondary coach and special teams coordinator from 2000 until '02.

One of the top players in Clarion history, Niedbala was a three-time All-American at free safety and strong safety from 1994-96. He was a consensus first team All-American in 1996, including Associated Press Little All-America after posting 106 tackles, 100 solo, with 20 passes broken up, 4 tackles for losses and a pair of interceptions.

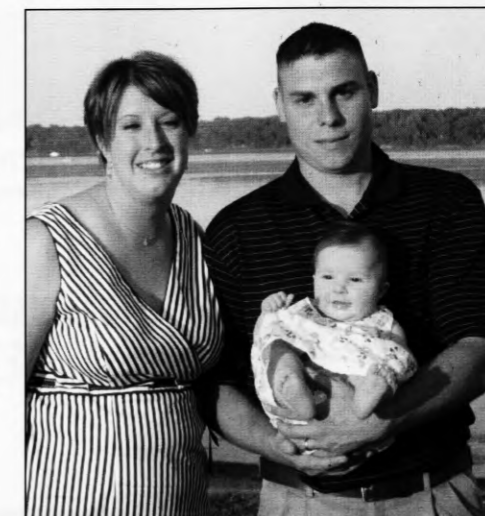

A captain on the '96 team, he helped the Golden Eagles finish with an 11-3 record. Clarion won the East Region title and advanced to the Division II semifinals before suffering a 19-18 loss to eventual national champion Northern Colorado. Clarion was awarded the ECAC Lambert Cup.

Niedbala recorded 117 tackles, 9 passes broken up, and had 5 interceptions in 1995, earning second team Associated Press Little All-America honors and second team Football Gazette All-American accolades. In 1994, he had 98 tackles, 6 tackles for losses, 4 interceptions and 3 sacks.

Niedbala concluded his career with 407 tackles, 34 passes broken up, 12 interceptions, 11 tackles for losses and 8 fumble recoveries. He was selected to play in the Snow Bowl following his senior season. In all, he earned first team All-PSAC West honors his final three years.

A native of Beaver Falls, PA, Niedbala received his bachelor's degree in Geography from Clarion in 1996. He began his coaching career at Glenville State, serving as the secondary coach during the 1997 and '98 campaigns.

Niedbala and his wife, Melissa, reside in Meadville, PA with their daughter Isabel, who was born on February 13, 2008.

Jim Henson

Running Backs
12th Year
Hiram '68

Jim Henson, a highly successful high school coach in Ohio for over twenty years, enters his twelfth season on the Edinboro staff and 42nd involved in coaching. He is also a professor in the Mathematics Department at Edinboro.

After working on the defensive side of the ball as the strong safeties/outside linebackers coach for two years, Henson moved over to the offense and will instruct the running backs for the eighth straight season. He previously worked with the running backs in 1999 and was in charge of the defensive linemen in '98.

Henson joined the Edinboro staff after serving as a mathematics teacher, football coach and athletic director at Grand Valley High School in Ohio for 22 years. He led the Mustangs to a 150-68-4 record, with five Grand River Conference championships, three East Suburban Conference titles, and three state playoff appearances. In the 1990's, Henson's charges posted three undefeated campaigns and a 23-game regular season winning streak. He was named the Conference Coach of the Year eight times and County Coach of the Year three times, culminated by his selection as the Ohio Division V Coach of the Year in 1997 and the Division IV Coach of the Year in '92. In 2007 he was a member of the first class inducted into the Ashtabula County Football Hall of Fame.

Prior to beginning his stellar career at Grand Valley, Henson debuted as an assistant coach at Cardinal Middlefield (OH) High School, where he served for eight years.

Henson graduated from Hiram College in 1968 with a bachelor of arts degree in Mathematics, then completed work on his master of science degree in Education with a major in Mathematics from Youngstown State in 1972. He and his wife, Evelyn, reside in Edinboro. They are the parents of a son, Jim, who is the head football coach at Jefferson(Oh.) High School and a daughter, Jennifer, along with four grandchildren.

Matt Gillette

Offensive Line
1st Year
Eastern Michigan '96

Matt Gillette was hired as an assistant coach in July 2009. This marks Gillette's second stint as an assistant at Edinboro, after previously serving on Tom Hollman's staff as defensive line coach in 1997-98. He will move over to the offensive side of the ball and work with the linemen. After a stellar career at nearby Northwestern High School where he was a three-time All-Erie County League selection and two-time All-State honoree, Gillette received a full scholarship to play at Eastern Michigan University. He would play for the Hurons from 1990-94 and then went on to play a season in the Canadian Football League. He was a two-time All Mid-American Conference selection at offensive tackle, starting 44 games during his career. As a senior he was named a Street & Smith's Preseason All-American and would later be named a captain for the Eagles and the team's MVP.

The son of well-known area high school football coach John Gillette, he gained his first coaching position as an assistant coach at General McLane High School. Hollman hired him as Edinboro's defensive line coach in June 1997. After serving with the Fighting Scots for two seasons, he would leave coaching until returning as the defensive coordinator and assistant offensive line coach at Northwestern High School for two years in 2005 and '06. In 2007 he moved on to Girard High School in the same capacities.

Gillette completed work on his bachelor's degrees in Chemistry and Earth and Space Science in 1996 from Eastern Michigan. He is currently working on his master's degree from Edinboro in Middle and Secondary Education. He resides in Edinboro with his wife Kelly and daughters Meghan (nine years old) and Elizabeth (six years old).

LETTING YOUR MIND RUN FREE

TDI HARKENS BACK TO A DAY WHEN IMAGINATION WAS THE INTERNET AND THE BOWL GAMES OF YORE WERE BIGGER-THAN-LIFE EVENTS

When I was little, I was reading a bowl recap in the newspaper after a regular season was finished, and I decided I wanted to commemorate all the teams that went to bowls with my not-very-skilled pencil and crayon artistry.

I was meticulously drawing helmets of all the teams, striving for accuracy, bothering my father: "Hey dad, what does McNeese State's helmet have on it?" "I don't know," he said. "A picture of Old Man McNeese from down the street?"

I did my best to recreate this helmet concept. But Old Man McNeese was mostly renowned for never showing his face in town.

Back in those pre-web days, you didn't have access to school's websites, to helmet websites, to online newspapers. You got sports news in five minutes at the end of the local telecast, and that was it. NFL helmets, I knew by heart from my lunchbox. College helmets were more of a crapshoot.

Even by high school, when I was doing a bowl game "pick the winners" contest with a classmate of mine who since went on to a career in TV sports broadcasting, I still was in the habit of making a detailed drawing of all helmets. Eastern Michigan was playing San Jose State in the California Raisin Bowl that year. As neither team saw much TV time that season, it was guesswork again for the helmets. When the game came on the air, I was pleased to see I was not very far off in my guesses. And the EMU Hurons' win that year gave me a victory in our friendly contest.

Times and technologies change. We have access to so much more at our fingertips than we ever have. Want to know what Kent State's helmets looked like in 1964, go to the www.nationalchamps.net/Helmet_Project and check it out. McNeese State of 1979-80 had not an image of Old Man McNeese on its helmets, but of a cowboy on a bucking bronco.

I wonder if kids still like to draw helmets as much as I did back in the day.

TDI'S GAMEBALL GOES TO... URBANA BLUE KNIGHTS

BY STEPHANIE PLOTINO

For the last year or so, the Urbana University football team has had a habit of spreading goodwill around its Urbana, Ohio, campus. Led most prominently by senior co-captain Tariq Kalimullah, the Blue Knights — split up into six community service “teams” — regularly donate their time and their strength to several important community initiatives during the offseason.

“My main goal is to get Urbana University football out there,” Kalimullah says. “I want Urbana on the map. I want people to know what we’re about and that we actually take time to help out and that we care about our community. Not just in Urbana — everywhere.”

Earlier this year, in February, one of the teams volunteered at a Sunday dinner gathering at the Zion Baptist Church in Troy, Ohio, where they lent a hand to each portion of the day. First they helped set up the tables and chairs in preparation for the dinner. When it was time to eat, they helped serve the food to the large gathering of church members. And finally, when the evening came to a close, they cleaned everything up.

Later that month, the Blue Knights found another food-based project to undertake, but this one was a little different.

Angel Food Ministries, a non-profit organization that started in Georgia 15 years ago to provide grocery relief to communities in need, has worked closely with the First Christian Church in Urbana for the last year. Volunteers regularly come out to the church to help out, and on Feb. 21, they got quite a boost. The two senior leaders from each of the Blue Knights’ community service teams came out to help unload, sort and organize a huge truckload of food.

“We lined up in an assembly line and then handed out the food to the people who needed it, at [discounted] prices,” Kalimullah says.

The following month, one community service team hung up its collective muscles and took on a bit of a different role. The players visited several local elementary school classrooms and read books to third graders as part of their “Knight Read” program. The Blue Knights’ goal is to visit every elementary school in the county in an effort to help kids learn to love reading.

All of the books the Blue Knights read were donated by a professor at Urbana — Ann Corfman — and were signed by the players and handed out to the kids.

“Any time our student-athletes get an opportunity to be role models to the younger generation, it’s great for both sides,” says Blue Knights head coach David Taynor.

Most recently, in September, Kalimullah brought his community service group out to the YMCA where he has worked since 2007, and they helped with the organization’s annual equipment inspection and cleaning.

“The staff were telling me about the lockdown, where the YMCA so many times a year closes the entire Y down, and they drain the pools, they re-paint the entire place, and they needed help,” Kalimullah says. “Me thinking like I think, I turned it into a community service project for Urbana University football.”

For Kalimullah and his teammates, when their time at Urbana is up, it’s likely they’ll all go their separate ways; but there’s one thing that won’t change: their dedication to giving back to the community.

“My dad put me out there young, and I’ve always been out in the community doing something,” Kalimullah says. “This is something that never leaves you.”

3rd Annual
COTTON BOWL
 Classic

An Ode to a Classic

BY JEFF CUMMINS

The Cotton Bowl conjures up images of Joe Montana leading Notre Dame back against Houston, of countless matchups between Texas and Oklahoma, with one side of the stadium colored burnt orange while the other side wears crimson, with the Ferris wheel of the Texas State Fair visible past one end zone.

Now, the Cotton Bowl game is moving to the new Dallas Cowboys Stadium, a state-of-the-art facility in suburban Arlington, Texas, that has every amenity known to the football world. Certainly, the Cotton Bowl game will gain a lot from the new facility, but rather than knock down the Cotton Bowl, the City of Dallas recently refurbished the old stadium, making the venue an updated classic. The upper tier now completely encircles the field, with capacity expanded to 92,200 and Texas and Oklahoma agreed to extend their stay at the current stadium through 2015. Yes, the Ferris wheel is still visible, but the view from the seats has changed slightly.

But the story of the Cotton Bowl is not a study of concrete and steel. It's the story of countless thrilling games, with Earl Campbell pitted against Joe Montana, brilliant quarterbacks like Y.A. Tittle, Norm Van Brocklin, Bobby Layne, Ken Stabler, Joe Theismann and Roger Staubach, great coaches like Darrell Royal, Chuck Fairbanks, Joe Paterno and Bear Bryant.

The stadium opened in 1932, in the middle of the Great Depression. Over the years it hosted many events and teams in addition to the Cotton Bowl and the Red River Rivalry between Texas and Oklahoma. The Dallas Cowboys called the Cotton Bowl home from 1960-71, and the Dallas Texans of the American Football League played there for the 1960, 1961 and 1962 seasons before leaving for Kansas City. The Dallas Texans of the NFL played there in 1952, and the Mustangs of Southern Methodist University did two stints in the Bowl, from 1932-78, and from 1995-2000. The Dallas Tornado of the North American Soccer League played there in 1967 and 1968, and the Dallas Burn, also known as FC Dallas, played there from 1996-2002, and in 2004 and 2005. The Cotton Bowl continues to host playoff games for the Dallas Independent School District, and has done so since 1974.

the Cotton Bowl was Fair Park Stadium. One person who would know is John Scovell, whose friends joke that he grew up in the Cotton Bowl. Scovell's father, Field Scovell, began his involvement with the game through his friendship with J. Curtis Sanford, an oil man and sports promoter in Dallas. With Sanford funding the game for the first few years, and Field Scovell driving the public relations machine, the Cotton Bowl game grew steadily.

"My dad and his family have been involved with the Cotton Bowl literally as long as I can remember," Scovell said. "My father was chairman of the selection committee for 25-30 years, in the real heyday of the bowl business, and with the affiliation with the Cotton Bowl there were always Texas-OU games and SMU games, so it's safe to say that we were regular patrons of the Cotton Bowl in some capacity or another."

Spend a few minutes with Scovell, and it's easy to take a trip back in time, to a different era, when the globe wasn't so broadly connected, when fans would find out scores during breakfast, while hunkered down over the morning paper.

"I think there are a handful of things that stood out over the years because the venues are so different when you're talking about a New Year's Day bowl game with all the hype of a National Championship between a Texas and a Notre Dame, or a classic Texas-OU game, which I contend, although I'm a Texas Tech Red Raider, is the greatest spectacle in college football," Scovell said. "You have to be present in that state fair, with what's surrounding that stadium, and that orange and red line that divides those two groups. With all of the school spirit, it is a spectacle like I've never seen, and then there were the Cowboys' games. One of my early jobs was working out at the Cotton Bowl during the Cowboys' stay, when they were playing there."

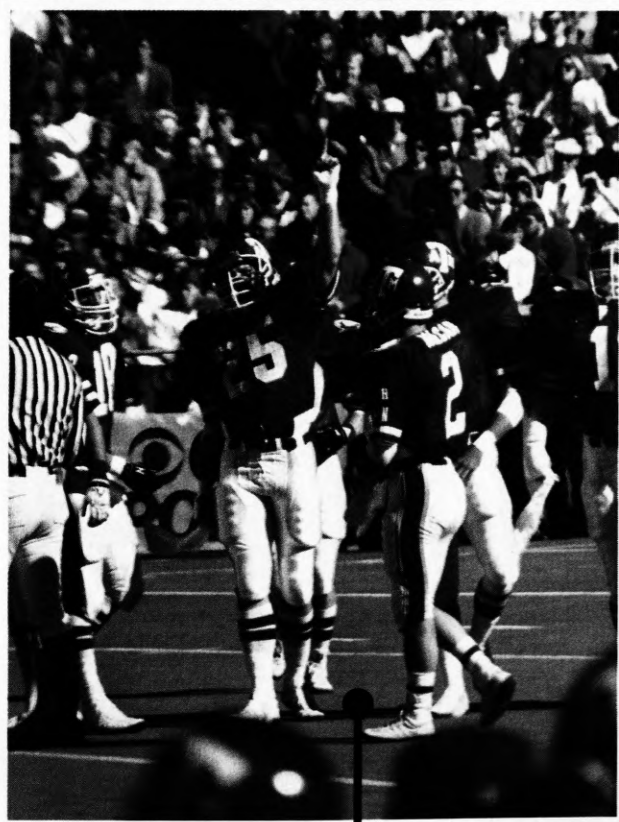

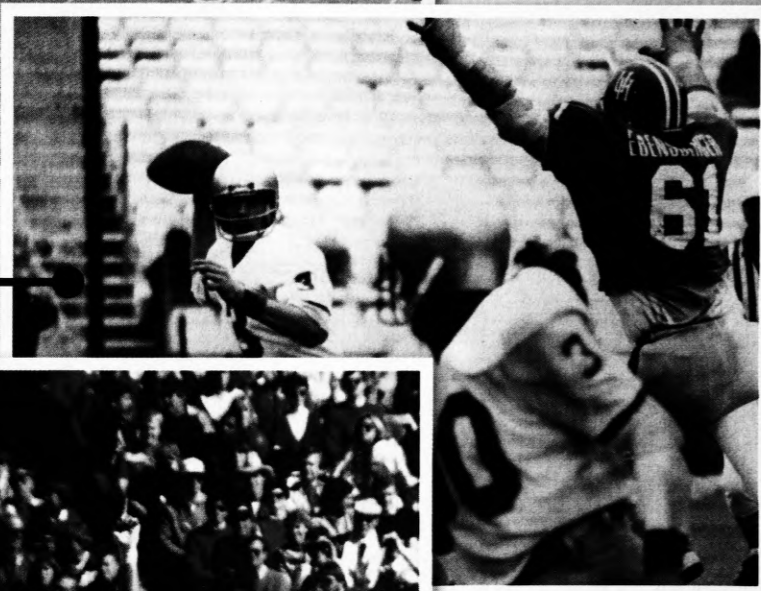

The line in the end zones separating burnt orange-clad Texas fans with crimson-clad Oklahoma fans is one of the most unique settings in all of sport, and Scovell has had a close-up view of the game, frequently referred to as the Red River Rivalry.

"You're out there to attend a football game and there are 250,000 people at the Texas State Fair on that day. That's their largest fair day, in terms of the gate, and obviously, at that time, the size of the stadium was maybe 70,000, so only 70,000 of those 250,000 actually had a ticket to get into the football game," Scovell said. "When you create that kind of surrounding and that kind of setting around a football game, it adds to the excitement of it and it eliminates some of the challenges because people come to the football game at 10 a.m. and they leave at midnight. It's the bonus you get because your ticket gets you into the state fair. It is one of the rare bargains that remain in the sporting world."

The bowl game itself has produced numerous classic moments. Texas and Notre Dame met twice, with each team winning the National Championship when it won the Cotton Bowl. In 1960, Syracuse, led by Ernie Davis, the first black player to win the Heisman Trophy, defeated Texas 23-14 to claim the National Championship.

"I think one you always mention is the Ice Bowl [a scoreless tie between LSU and Arkansas in 1947, not the NFL version) just because we remember having no electricity at our house and having all the problems that went on during that time in Dallas," Scovell said. "The memories for me really run with the coaches and the athletic administrators and all the people we had the pleasure to see, whether that was a Bear Bryant or a Joe Paterno. For those of us on the Cotton Bowl Host Committee had the opportunity to get acquainted with, and make good friends with, absolute icons in college football. To have that kind of people, with those universities in your city for a week, the game is sometimes the pinnacle of that week, but what a pleasure it is to say, 'I know Bear Bryant.'"

As the years passed and the stadium aged, the City of Dallas chose to renovate the stadium. What emerged was a more functional structure that still respected the tradition that had been established over the years.

"We looked extensively at the Cotton Bowl and looked at the renovation and said, 'We're never going to be able to raise this stadium to the standard of what is out there in pro football today, so let's quit trying to be one of those. Let's make this stadium traditional, historic, give it the legacy of the old stadium and make it an attraction for the old, restored stadium that becomes a historic piece,'" Scovell said. "The biggest part of our stadium is who's come through that stadium. Our history is not necessarily that seat or that bench, but the great players, the Heisman Trophy winners and the coaches who have played in that stadium."

The Cotton Bowl game has moved a few miles down the road, while the Cotton Bowl stadium remains right where it always has. The game and stadium share a common past, and a vital presence in the future of college football.

DIVISION II

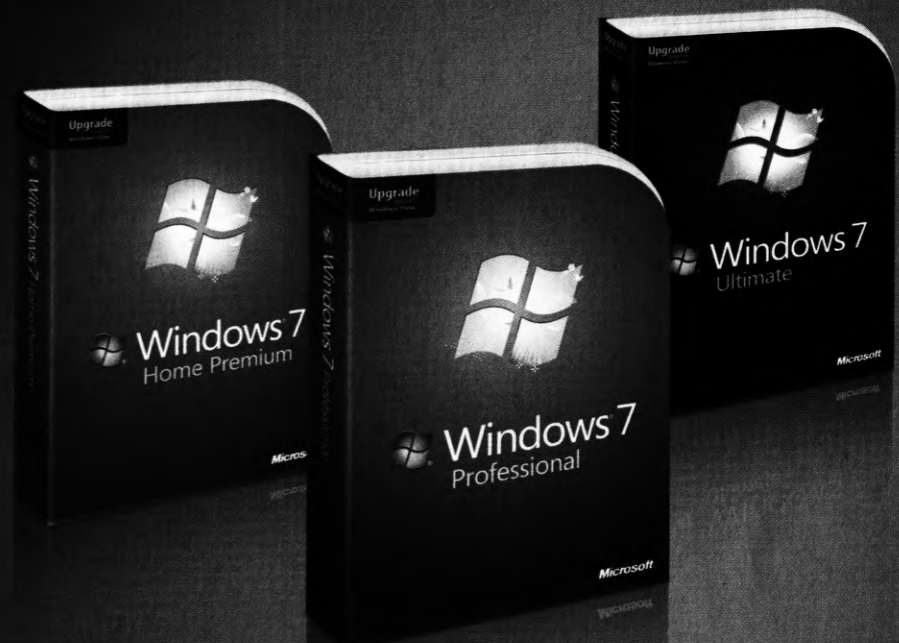

Consider yourself warned. Since its inception in 1973, the Division II championship game has been responsible for a great deal of hoarse voices, accelerated heart rates, and gameday gluttony. Considering the grandeur of the moment, it's no wonder. Year after year, like tax day and Santa boarding his sleigh, thousands of fans at the Shoals and on their couches are treated to a dandy of a game.

Its history is great, a recent slew of nailbiters only adding to it. We'd tell you all about it, chapter and verse, if you had the time and we had the space. Instead, here is a brief look at what you might have missed and what you might expect for the 2009 edition.

Braly Municipal Stadium in Florence, Ala., has hosted the D-II championship since 1986 and will do so again this December. However, the NCAA was to accept bids from other sites for the 2010 and 2011 seasons. The resolution? Two more years in Florence. Before settling in northern Alabama, the game had been played in Sacramento, Calif. (1973-1975), Wichita Falls, Texas (1976-1977), Longview, Texas (1978), Albuquerque, N.M. (1979-1980) and McAllen, Texas (1981-1985).

THEY'RE GRAND

Grand Valley trails only North Dakota State in all-time titles, sitting just one behind the Bison's five. However, all four Laker championships have come since 2002, a period in which Grand Valley has posted a record of 89-6. This year, pre-season polls gave the Lakers the nod to bring home number six. Jimmy Berezik, who was suspended from the Lakers' national semifinal loss to Minnesota-Duluth, returned to the backfield with a purpose and first team All-American Danny Richard is back wreaking havoc on the defensive line.

IF YOU'RE NEUTRAL

Unless you're from the MIAA or simply won't empathize, it's hard not to pull for Northwest Missouri State. In search of obtaining its first Division II title since going back-to-back in 1999 and 2000, the Bearcats have clawed their way to the championship each of the last four years. Unfortunately, they've lost all four times. In 2005, Raphael Robinson was stopped at the Grand Valley State 4 and time ran out in a 21-17 Bearcat loss. GVSU won with a fourth-quarter TD in '06 by a 17-14 count. In 2007, Valdosta State found the end zone with 30 seconds left to win 25-20, and last year, the Bearcats drew within a touchdown of Minnesota-Duluth with two fourth-quarter scores but they couldn't recover the onside kick in a 21-14 defeat. That's four losses by a combined 19 points.

WHILE WE'RE AT IT

The last eight title games have been decided by seven or fewer points. If you're not in Florence, tune into the tube and stick the remote between the cushions.

GETTING HIS PHIL

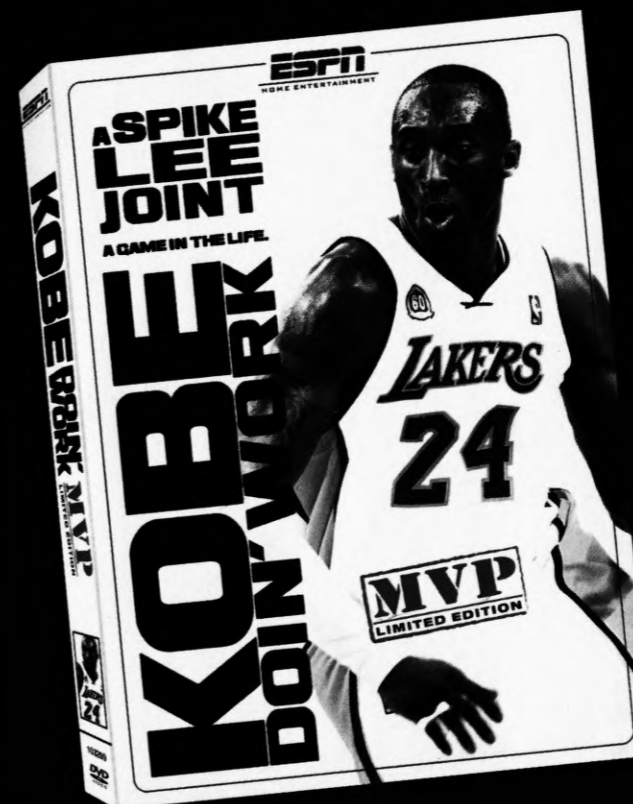

Before he went on to play 11 seasons with the Buffalo Bills, including for three Super Bowl teams, North Dakota State's Phil Hansen was one of Division II's legendary defenders. He anchored the unit for the 14-0 squads who went on to win the 1988 and 1990 championships. Under coach Rocky Hager (now of Northeastern), the Bison won the '88 title by beating Portland State 35-21 and then drubbed Indiana (PA) 51-11. Hansen, a two-

THE AIR UP THERE

Northern Colorado defied the odds in back-to-back seasons, winning the 1996 championship with three defeats and the '97 crown with two. That's one fewer loss than the last 11 champs combined since then. The '96 team started 5-3 and ran off seven straight, including four in the postseason. The first three came by a combined five points — 24-21 at Pittsburg State, 27-26 over Northwest Missouri and then 19-18 at Clarion. In the championship game, Billy Holmes carried the ball 33 times for 136 yards as the Bears beat Carson-Newman, 23-14. The next year, the two-loss squad defeated New Haven 51-0, the largest margin of victory ever in the title game.

WHO'S GOT NEXT?

The rankings feature the usual suspects when it comes to winning it all. Here are a few who haven't but can.

Abilene Christian: The great state of Texas hasn't brought home a title since Bobby Watkins and Southwest Texas State (now Texas State) went back-to-back in 1981 and 1982. ACU boasts a pair of massive tackles — Trevis Turner (6-7, 335) and Tony Washington (6-7, 305) — to pave the way for a squad that forges ahead without QB Billy Malone and RB Bernard Scott.

Chadron State: QB Garrett Treffer takes over an offense that returned nine starters, including All-America candidate Isaac Stockton at WR and a polished offensive line. Their defense, 10th best in the country last year, received an off-season facelift. They've been knocking on the door for some time; it could be the year the Eagles bust the door down.

Bloomsburg: The east coast hasn't claimed a championship since Delaware beat Youngstown State in the 1979 title game. The Huskies have a four-year starter at quarterback (Dan Latorre), an electrifying playmaker behind him (RB Derrick Price) and playmakers on defense as well. They return 13 starters altogether. PSAC rival California (PA) stands in their way first.

A SPREE OF THREE

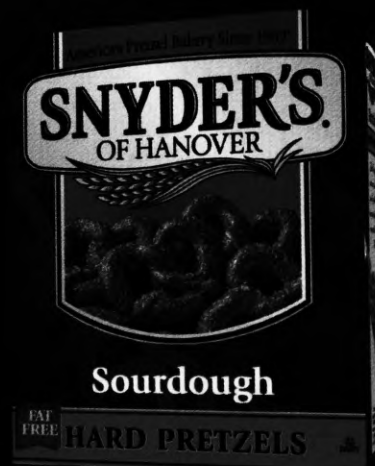

Division II has had its share of dominant squads — Grand Valley won four times in five years from 2002-2006; North Dakota State captured five titles from 1983-1990 — but no team has won three in a row except for the 1993-1995 North Alabama Lions. They went 41-1 over that stretch and beat Indiana (PA), Texas A&M-Kingsville and Pittsburg State in the championship games, all held on the Lions' home field. In 1995, linebacker Ronald McKinnon, a 10-year member of the NFL's Phoenix/Arizona Cardinals, became the only defensive player in history to win the Harlon Hill Trophy — Division II's version of the Heisman Trophy.

The Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowl has settled the Division III champion since 1973. Its history has included laughs and nailbiters, barnburners and defensive battles. There's no telling what awaits in December when two of these teams descend on Salem, Va., for the 2009 edition. If you make the trip, you at least need to know the basics. We give you that and more as we take a look at the Stagg Bowl from a historical perspective.

IT'S HIS GAME

Just who is Amos Alonzo Stagg? As one author put it, "He was football's Ben Franklin, Alexander Graham Bell, and Thomas Edison rolled into one." Stagg developed the game from what was essentially rugby to the wide-open style, creating givens from today's game like the huddle, the lateral pass, men in motion and helmets. Among his many stops, Stagg coached at the University of Chicago from 1892-1932 and won seven Big Ten championships.

WE WERE FIRST

Wittenberg beat Juniata 41-0 in the first Stagg Bowl in 1973; it capped a dominant year for the Tigers in which they outscored their opponents 394-100. Quarterback Lloyd Ball, all of 5-11, 170 pounds, rushed for the game's first four scores, Wittenberg also won the 1975 title, was ranked No. 1 at the end of the 1962 and '64 seasons and topped William Jewell 27-21 in the 1969 West Regional. The Tigers have the most Division III victories in history and are fourth all-time in winning percentage.

THEY GOT NEXT

In Mary Hardin-Baylor's 11 seasons, it wasted little time to join the company of the sport's elite. The Crusaders were runners-up to Brett Elliott and Linfield in 2004, losing 28-21. Two years later, they reached the national quarterfinals, and the last two years have had their runs halted in the semis. Head Coach Pete Fredenburg has put the Crusaders in contention year after year, having won the last four American Southwest Conference titles with a 31-1 record.

WHERE HAVE YOU BEEN?

Since 1973, the Division III championship has been played in four different locations — Phenix City, Ala. (1973-82, 1985-89), Kings Island, Ohio (1983-84), Bradenton, Fla. (1990-92) and Salem, Va., where it has resided since 1993.

The annual game between Southwestern Athletic Conference members Grambling State University and Southern University is not just about what happens on the field. It is about history. It is about tradition. It is about fans, alumni and families putting on their school colors, making bold claims and hoping for the best. It is about competition — a fight for national bragging rights and for the Waterford Crystal Trophy.

The first ever Bayou Classic was played in New Orleans' Tulane Stadium in 1974.

There were 76,753 fans in attendance, and Grambling defeated Southern, 21-0. Although Grambling State's football program has sent more players to the NFL and has a much higher level of acclaim nationally, Southern University leads the series 18-17, and claims the longest winning streak of eight games from 1993-2000. Southern also leads the all-time series with Grambling, 29-27.

The game has been held at the Louisiana Superdome on the final Saturday in November since 1978. State Farm Insurance has been its primary sponsor since 1996. Following the aftermath and devastation of Hurricane Katrina, organizers moved the event from the Superdome to Reliant Stadium in Houston, Texas, where many of New Orleans' evacuees were living, in 2005. It was the first time that the Bayou Classic was held outside of Louisiana. In 2006, the Bayou Classic returned to the Superdome in New Orleans.

look ahead to," Robinson said. "We even had less to look back on."

At Grambling in the 1940s, a psychology of failure hung over the football program, so much so that all Robinson could think about was putting together a winning season — and beating Southern, of course.

"They were the big school and the most powerful in the Southwestern Athletic Conference," Robinson said of the school coached by the legendary Arnett William "Ace" Mumford, one of the early giants of black football. "It was unheard of for us to beat them. When they came to play you, you were supposed to be whipped."

Before the heat was turned up on the series, Southern hardly looked upon Grambling as an equal football rival — or an equal in anything.

Southern University was noted by some as the Harvard of black colleges. Grambling, founded in 1901 in the wilderness of Northern Louisiana, was a quasi-public institution for many years. It was not until the 1940s that Grambling attained the status of a four-year college.

college football teams. It is televised by NBC, and both schools typically forgo NCAA Subdivision playoff eligibility to participate in the Classic.

Grambling and Southern are situated about 220 miles apart and have been facing off against each other in the State Farm Bayou Classic since 1974. That was the year someone — organizers are not entirely sure who it was — suggested that they move the game (which had alternated between each campus stadium) to the larger venue of Tulane Stadium.

Not certain how the fans and residents of New Orleans would react, school leaders were stunned when a sellout crowd of more than 76,000 showed up to watch the two teams — and the bands — take the field. The game was later moved to the Superdome, and now draws close to 200,000 fans to New Orleans each November — pumping an estimated $85 million into the local economy.

"I was scared to death," Grambling legend Doug Williams said about the first time he played in the rivalry. "When I walked on the field and saw 76,000 people in the stands — nobody knew the scope of the event. They didn't have any idea."

When you hear what Williams says about the rivalry you realize its intensity. "Southern's a little haughty," Williams says. "They are down there in the capital city. We're just a country team."

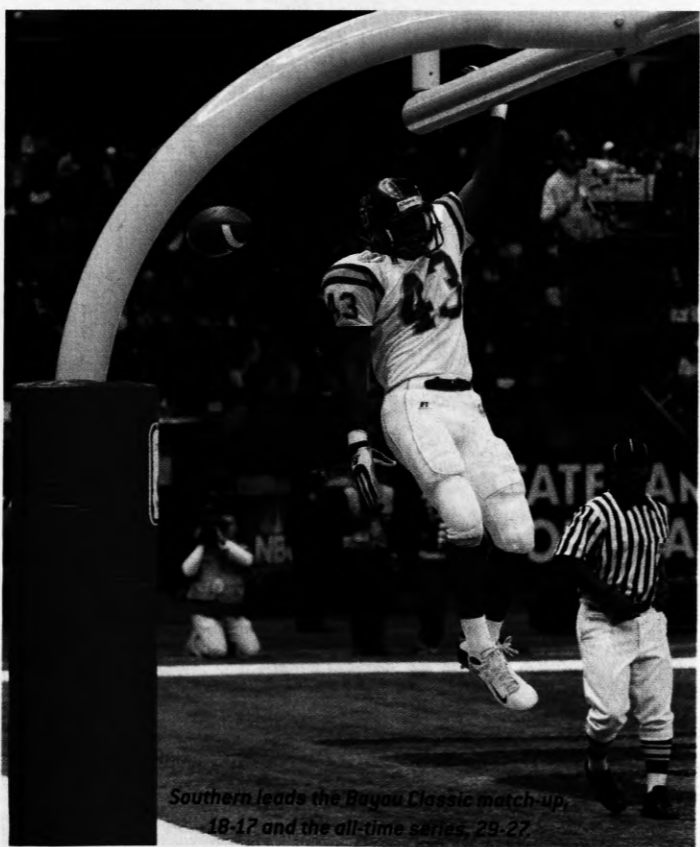

The Southern-Grambling game is not an African-American version of storied college football rivalries. It is not a version of Florida-Florida State. It is a storied college rivalry. "The game is really about Northern Louisiana versus Southern Louisiana," Southern head coach Pete Richardson has said. "It is about Southern families and Grambling families. It is about playing for pride. You can say it is an ordinary game, but it is not," Richardson continued. "When you play in the Bayou Classic, you can almost scratch the records. You are talking about a very emotional game."

"The Super Bowl is a great game," said Williams, "but it's really a business thing. The Classic is a family affair. You can see your brothers, your cousins, your friends at the Bayou Classic. Everybody's having fun, and everybody's a football fan."

When the late Eddie Robinson first arrived on the Grambling campus in the 1940s, he had less ambitious goals than to be in a game like the Bayou Classic. He just wanted to turn around the football program. "We didn't have much to

For many years, the Grambling-Southern game took on the status of a class war. It was the supposedly more-sophisticated, better educated students of Southern versus the country kids from rural Grambling.

"Southern used to treat Grambling like the little brother," Robinson said. "There were times when Southern wasn't interested in playing us. They'd play Wiley, Prairie View, stop over and play us a practice game or two before they'd play their big games. They'd beat us, of course."

Southern leads the Bayou Classic match-up, 18-17 and the all-time series, 29-27.

The Grambling-Southern Bayou Classic is one of the most emotional rivalries in all of college football.

In 1972 a game was cancelled at Southern because of student unrest and moved, at Robinson's urging, to Shreveport. The much larger stadium attracted a crowd of 40,000 and was fast becoming the number one attraction in black college football.

"Starting in Shreveport," Robinson said, "the rivalry took on a different look all together."

Another year, another time: It was Tulane's Sugar Bowl. Playing before 80,000, Grambling beat Southern 21-0. In 1974 the game was moved to the Superdome, and the Bayou Classic was born.

And it is not just about the game, which attracts up to 70,000 fans each year.

Each Friday night, the marching bands from both schools — the "Human Jukebox" of Southern and the "Marching Tigers" of Grambling State — crank it up for the annual "Battle of the Bands" in the Superdome before 30,000 screaming fans. During the half-time show the bands duel in the ultimate showcase. Historically in black college football, the band represents a significant legacy and an expression of a cultural heritage with deep roots in music.

Also on Friday night, fraternities and sororities from both universities put on a step show, competing for cash prizes. And on game day, the all-day fan festival attracts thousands to the Superdome.

In addition to those entertainment elements, The Bayou Classic holds a job fair. It is a way for students at both schools, organizers say, to get a head start on that internship or job of their dreams, particularly in a hyper-competitive job market such as today's. And neither school misses an opportunity to put their best faces forward on the national stage to generate interest in their school and attract potential students.

"The Classic gives our younger people — the high school students and elementary school students — a look at college life," says Dr. Warner, a Gramblinite from New Orleans whose family is mostly Southern alumni.

"It gives them a connection to higher education."

ULTIMATE FOOTBALL FANCAVE

CLAY AND ELLEN CARMACK OF MARIETTA, GA., know how to cheer on their favorite team in style. The couple who met while attending the University of Georgia in 1988 now lead busy lives a few hours away from their alma mater, but pay tribute to the Bulldogs every time they walk into the red-and-black-themed FanCave in their basement.

The Carmack's collection of Georgia memorabilia includes framed front pages from the Atlanta Journal-Constitution sports section after Sugar Bowl wins, autographed helmets and footballs, and action shots of their favorite players. Some pieces were signed by Georgia football legends in person, while others were gifts or purchased at auctions and charity fundraisers. Clay's favorite piece? The signed picture of Herschel Walker (1982 Heisman Trophy-winning running back) matted on top of his three Sports Illustrated covers.

The tribute to Georgia football is a relatively new addition to the Carmack house, and it's one that they plan to add to over the years. "I'm sure [our collection] will continue to grow because what we already have is only three years worth, so I can't imagine what it'll be three years from now," Ellen says.

The family occasionally entertains fellow Georgia fans for games, but Ellen says their primary focus is family time. "We have pictures of our kids with David Greene (quarterback, '05) and David Pollack (linebacker, '05), so we have integrated family pictures with the players and family memories at bowl games," Ellen says. "It's not just paraphernalia, it's part of our family."

FOUGHT TO A STANDSTILL

BY JEFF CUMMINS

With just a few minutes remaining in the 1968 edition of "The Game" between Harvard and Yale, the result appeared all but assured. Yale was leading 29-13, and the outcome seemed fairly certain. But like many things in the 1960s, the conclusion defied all logic.

Yale and Harvard had practically written the history of college football for many years, achieving arguably as much success on the gridiron as they did in the academic world. But the two rivals achieved most of their national football acclaim in the first half of the 20th century. By 1968, most eyes in the football world were focused on the likes of Ohio State. That changed on Nov. 23, 1968. With both teams sporting perfect records as they began the game, the scene was set for one of the great games of all time. Ironically, during the first half, it looked as if the game was going to be a blowout. But as Yale was driving for a clinching score, Harvard forced a fumble, and momentum swung mightily in the favor of the Crimson. Led by a backup quarterback, Harvard scored 16 points in the final 42 seconds of the 1968 Harvard-Yale game to tie the score, prompting The Daily Crimson to print the headline, "Harvard Beats Yale, 29-29," in what almost certainly became the most famous and fabled game in the long series between the legendary archrivals.

Several players went on to achieve great success after the contest. Just two years later, Yale's Calvin Hill helped lead the Dallas Cowboys to their first Super Bowl championship, while Harvard offensive lineman Tommy Lee Jones went on to achieve fame as an actor who appeared in movies such as

"The Fugitive," "JFK" and "No Country for Old Men."

The '68 edition of "The Game" had the makings of a classic before the two teams even took the field. Both teams had identical 8-0 records. Yale's quarterback, Brian Dowling, had not lost a game since the sixth grade. Ironically, Harvard's hero quarterback, Frank Champi, was a backup, hardly the sort of player who inspired confidence when he ran into the huddle.

The fun started when a pair of Yale defenders hit Champi, forcing a fumble that was picked up by offensive tackle Fritz Reed, who ran for a critical first down. Champi made the most of the opportunity, connecting with Bruce Freeman for a touchdown to cut the Crimson's deficit to 10. Champi's conversion pass to Pete Varney was incomplete, but a pass interference penalty gave Harvard another shot, and Harvard fullback Gus Crim bulled across the goal line to make the score 29-21. Still, Harvard was down eight points with an onsidest kick coming, no surprise in that situation. Yale's Brad Lee was poised to pounce on the ball, but collided with a teammate, and the ball fell loose, enabling Harvard's Bill Kelly to fall on it at the Yale 49. Champi drove the Crimson to the Yale 6-yard line, but Jim Gallagher sacked Champi at the Yale 8, forcing Harvard to call timeout with three seconds left. All Yale had to do was force an incomplection, or tackle the ball carrier short of the end zone.

But by that time, Yale was facing an avalanche of Harvard momentum. Champi had things going his way, and threw toward the back left corner of the end zone as he was hit with no time left on the clock. The ball floated in the air, and Vic Gatto caught it. Still down two points with no time remaining, Harvard had to make the two-point conversion, and when Champi completed a slant pass to Varney, Harvard had the most improbable of come-from-behind victories, one that would never be forgotten.

Somehow, in all the confusion, Varney kept his composure and concentrated solely on his job at the moment.

Somehow, in all the confusion, Varney kept his composure and concentrated solely on his job at the moment.

"I just wanted to focus in on the task at hand," said Varney, whose reaction was remarkably low key, but maybe that's how some accomplishments, which seem almost bigger than life, come to fruition. "I was happy for the entire team and grateful that all the hard work everyone put in had paid off in such a great game."

Adding to the intrigue of the game was the social and political climate of the times, which served as an interesting backdrop for the game.

"The political ramifications, I think, got stronger in the early '70s. There was the Vietnam War and the march on Washington," then-Yale head coach Carmen Cozza said. "It was very difficult for players, because anything that conveyed contact or combat was a no-no then. It was really tough on campuses and more coaches probably lost their jobs at that time than in any given era, and it had nothing to do with wins and losses, it was handling the people."

Many historians have considered the "tie" an upset, largely because Yale was considered to have the better team that season, a point that Cozza echoed.

"I think people who saw both football teams would say Yale had the better football team," Cozza said. "In that game we had at least six turnovers, and I don't know if we had six turnovers the entire year. It was a sloppy game for us, even though we totally outgained them and outplayed them. But anything that could go wrong to a team in the last 2:40 really happened. The turnovers happened, there were questionable calls by the officials, there were inadvertent whistles, and incidentally, it was the loudest I've ever heard a stadium, especially near the end. You could not hear anything. There were fans backed right up against our bench. I remember yelling as loud as I could on the phone because near the end you couldn't see what yard line I was on, and I think two or three alums answered me."

With almost all questions about the game having long since been answered, one question remains. Do the participants really feel it was a tie, or does it truly feel like Harvard "won" the tie?

"I think if the game had continued we would have won," Varney said. "The momentum had made such a huge swing."

"We felt like it was a loss," Cozza said. "Of course, they felt like it was a win. When you look at the scoreboard, it's 29-29."

It's been more than four decades since that game was played, and life has moved on for most of those involved with the 1968 game. Harvard coach John Yovicsin passed away in 1989. Calvin Hill's son, Grant, went on to win two NCAA basketball championships with the Duke Blue Devils; playing in a game many consider the greatest college basketball game of all time in the process. Yet, when the topic comes to football between Harvard and Yale, this game is inevitably mentioned, begging the question, what was the significance of this game in the history of college football, and in the history of the series between Harvard and Yale?

"That's not for me to judge," Varney said. "Both teams were undefeated. I don't think it has happened at any other time."

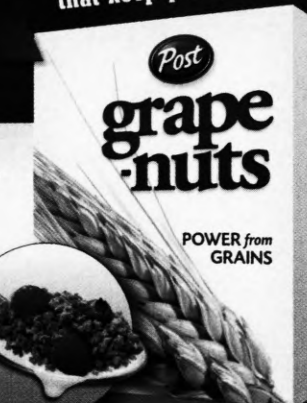

"I think, certainly in the eyes of Harvard people, that may be the greatest game ever played," Cozza said. "I think they feel that way. We don't feel that way. As far as recognition, notoriety, and discussion, no game since I've been here, has been talked about more than that game, not even close. We had some other great games with them. Some of them we won, some we lost, but nothing close to this."

TERRY BOWDEN COMES BACK

BY MICHAEL BRADLEY

ALL PHOTOS COURTESY OF NORTH ALABAMA ATHLETICS

It had been nearly 10 years since Terry Bowden had last worn the whistle, stood on the sideline and led a team. For most of that decade, a life in the media had been just fine. He was on TV. Radio. He wrote. The man with the .730 winning percentage at Auburn didn't need the life any longer, and he was just fine with it. Until 2007, that is. That's when the passion returned. That's when he knew he couldn't live without coaching football.

So, he made the pilgrimage to visit the man who had established the standard for comebacks after a long hiatus. He went to suburban Philadelphia and spoke to Dick Vermeil.

Vermeil had created the template for returning to coaching, waiting 15 years after leaving the Philadelphia Eagles in 1982 to step back onto the sidelines with the Rams. Vermeil told Bowden he had been a smarter coach after his time off. He understood the game more, both from a practical and a psychological standpoint. That's when Bowden knew he was making the right decision. It was time to get back into the game.

"I asked him, 'How hard is it?'" Bowden says. "He said, 'You'll be better. The valleys won't be so low, and the mountaintops won't be so high. You'll be more mature and more relaxed.'"

Convinced that he was making the right decision, Bowden let it be known he was interested. He started to frequent his father, Bobby's, practices at Florida State. He applied for and went hard after the vacant West Virginia job following the '08 season. The man who said that the only way to be a successful coach was to need the life more than anything else needed it again.

When a note was passed to Bowden while he was broadcasting last year's Division II championship game in Florence, AL, wondering whether he would be interested in discussing the suddenly vacant North Alabama job (former coach Mark Hudspeth left to join Dan Mullen's Mississippi State staff after posting double-figure wins the past four years), Bowden replied, "Call me."

"I fell into it," he says.

It's a leap of faith for both sides. Bowden posted a 46-16-1 record during five-plus years at Auburn but would be returning to the game at the D-II level, a long way from jam-packed stadiums and television cameras. Instead of opening in front of 90,000 plus, Bowden began the '09 season in front of a modest crowd of 5,201 in Magnolia, AR, leading the Lions to a 41-9 win over Southern Arkansas. It was a nod to his days at Salem College or Samford, where he turned floundering programs into big winners.

North Alabama, meanwhile, was bringing in a man who had gone 10 years without coaching. Though the Bowden name still carries weight, Bobby is the only one still coaching on the I-A level and there is no guarantee this second act will be successful. Despite Vermeil's assurances Bowden will be better, there is risk involved in bringing in someone who has taken such a long hiatus from the game. Bowden did spend countless hours breaking down film and meeting with coaches to prepare for his broadcast work, but there's a big difference between preparing for TV and a real opponent.

"When we started the process, we had three things we wanted, and Terry fit all three of them," UNA athletic director Mark Linder says. "The first thing is character. The second thing is the ability to recruit. The third thing is a history of success."

Bowden has all of that. He has been involved in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes for decades, and helped squire Auburn through its post-probation period. He helped turn around the talent level on The Plains quickly and already has proved himself a master of enticing transfers at North Alabama by bringing in 24 former Division I players for this season. Finally, Bowden's 111-53-2 record is a pretty good indication of prior success, particularly since he helped turn an 0-9-1 Salem team into a squad that won 19 of its last 25 with him there, went 9-1 in his first season at Samford, which was three more victories than the program had accumulated in its previous three years and became the first Division I coach to go undefeated (11-0) in his inaugural season at Auburn. As you might expect, Bowden's hiring created excitement in all corners of the UNA community.

"Anybody who's involved in sports knows about the Bowden name," says Michael Johnson, a senior pre-season all-America linebacker. "I didn't know what he did at Auburn until I researched him. With a name like Bowden, I knew he was capable."

"If his last name was Smith, I would have thought, 'Ah, don't come in here and mess up my senior year.'"

It's unlikely Bowden will mess up anything, but he does find himself in a unique situation. His previous coaching stops began as reclamation projects. Even Auburn had won only five games the two seasons before he arrived. By contrast, the Lions went 12-2 last season, advanced to the semifinals of the D-II playoffs and finished third in the final rankings. There is no need for a rebuilding job in Florence. It's championship or bust.

"The expectations and excitement are so high here," Bowden says. "You could say we have to rebuild [because the Lions lost 21 seniors from '08], but that is not an option."

Bowden is hardly overwhelmed by the optimism. A big reason for that is his own contentment with his position. The ugly divorce from Auburn, caused far more by the program's powerful outside forces than anything that happened on the field, left him angry and bitter. Gradually, he overcame the ire and decided it was time to get back doing what he loved.

"I turned 50 [in 2006], and I looked in the mirror and saw how mortal I was," Bowden says. "I realized I wasn't going to live forever, and if I ever was going to coach again, I had better go right then. I began to get caught up in it and get excited about it. The fire came back."

Bowden says he has no desire to move on and up, even though many think that's his plan. "I would be very happy coaching here for the rest of my life," he says. He has added his brother, Jeff, to the offensive staff, and the two enjoy fishing in the lakes and streams near campus. He isn't that far from Birmingham, where he coached at Samford and spent part of his youth while his father coached there. And he enjoys the challenge of building a winner at a place where a championship is considered a reasonable goal.

"It really is a good spot," Bowden says.

And he wants to make it better.

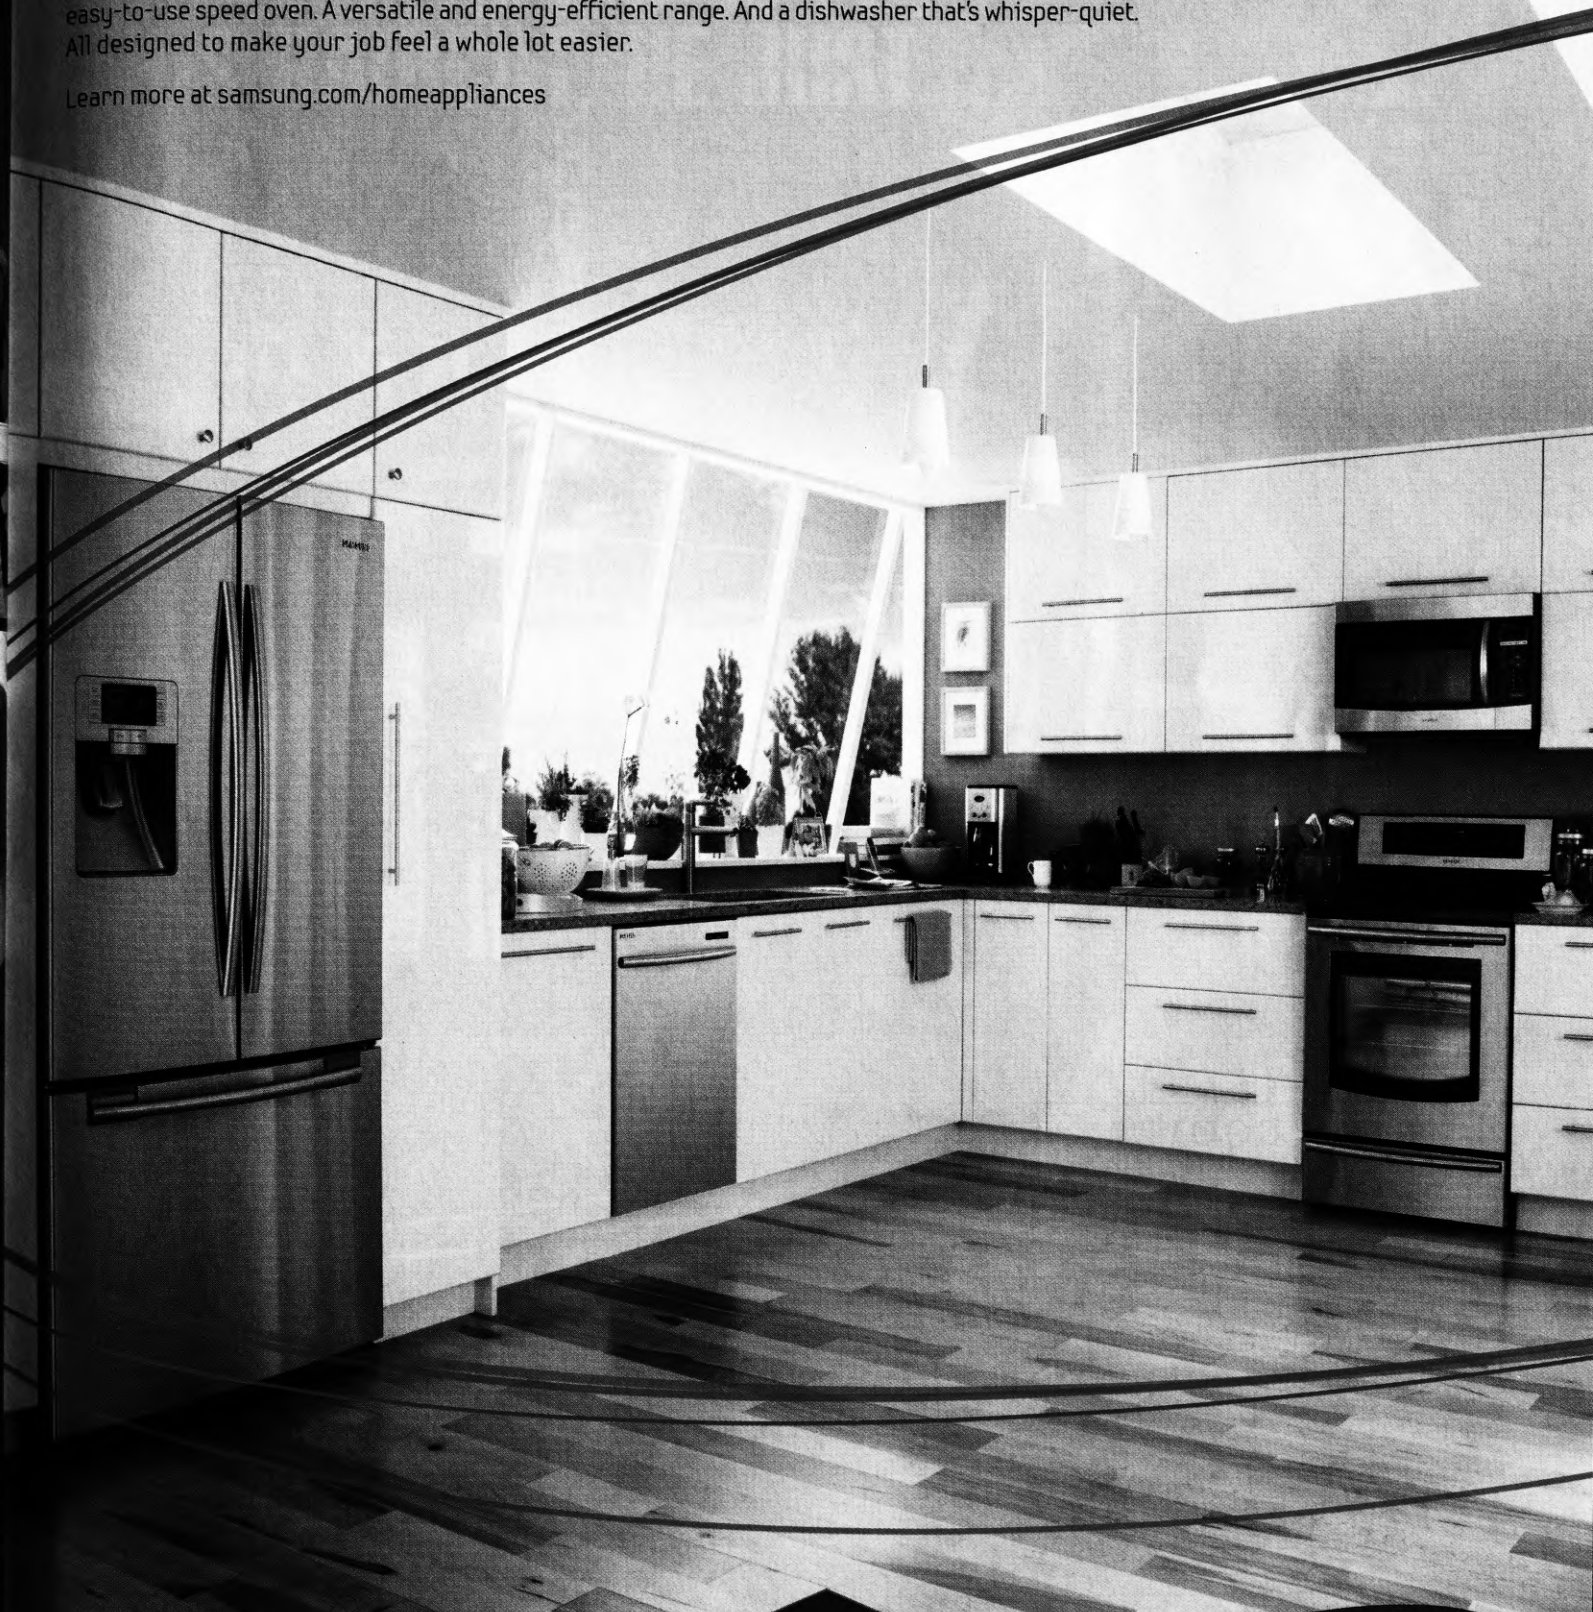

A meticulous game-planner, Terry Bowden is always looking for an edge in the scouting report.

The trophy has two clogs, one painted orange with a white R, the other red with a white U on it, (representing the two schools) which are mounted on a wooden pedestal.

Union's Dutchmen have dominated the series, winning 75 percent of the time (78-24-4) and have taken home the shoes with the same proficiency (44-15), including a stretch of 11 straight years (1960-70), then a run of 14 wins in 16 years, from 1981-96. But RPI's Engineers have won six of the last 10 meetings and their current three-game winning streak matches their only other series winning streak, from 1957 through '59.

So deep is the animosity toward each other, that the two schools can't even agree on the series score. RPI claims an 11-4 victory in 1886 and a 5-4 win in 1888, while Union insists that they won, 4-0, in '86 and that no game was played in 1888.

RPI won last year in Troy, 25-12, on their way to an ECAC Championship.

{ Myron Claxton's Shoes }

The swiping of a pair of football shoes turned into a unique rivalry-game trophy for Southern California schools Occidental College and Whittier College.

Two days prior to the 1939 game, members of Occidental's team stole the shoes of Whittier running back Myron Claxton, forcing the All-American to play in work boots.

But in a perfect example of poetic justice, Claxton, work boots and all, led the Poets to a 36-0 win on their way to a Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (SCIAC) title. The running back, who would be picked by the New York Giants in the 1940 NFL Draft, even took home his shoes, finding them on the Occidental sideline after the game. Seven years later, The Franklin Society, of which Claxton was a member, had the shoes bronzed and voilá, a trophy was born.

Whittier holds a one-game edge in the rivalry, 32-31, including a remarkable 67-61 upset in 2007, but last season, Occidental, ranked No. 15 in D-III, regained possession of the shoes, winning, 48-14. It was the Tigers' seventh win in eight years. Their lone loss was the '07 game.

{ The Cortaca Jug }

One man's trash is another man's treasure.

In this case, a random jug in a roadside yard sale, became the biggest prize in one of the most storied rivalry games in college football — the Cortaca Jug, awarded to the winner of Ithaca College-State University of New York (SUNY) Cortland.

The origin of the jug as a prize goes back to 1959, when Cortland captain Tom Decker stopped at a yard sale in Homer, N.Y. and bought a jug for $2. Decker and good friend Dick Carmean, Ithaca's captain, the each painted part of it in their respective school's colors (blue and gold for Ithaca, red and white for SUNY-Cortland) and combined the names of their schools for the trophy's name.

The original jug is retired, having run out of room for the winners' names in the mid-'80s, but the prestige surrounding the trophy is as big as ever. Sports Illustrated called Ithaca-Cortland "the biggest little game in the nation."

Ithaca's Bombers lead the overall series (38-26-3), and has won 33 of 50 games played for the jug, including 17 of 19 meetings between 1973 and 1991.

They also have won the last two years, ending a run of four wins in five years (2002, '03, '05, '06) by the Red Dragons, who won the four games by a total of 15 points, including back-to-back overtime thrillers in '05 and '06. In last year's 50th renewal, Ithaca beat home-standing Cortland, 35-13. Adding insult to injury, the win ended the Cortland's quest for their first unbeaten season.

{ The Bronze Turkey Trophy }

Separated by a mere 16 miles, Illinois-based schools Monmouth College and Knox College, meet annually with the Bronze Turkey Trophy at stake.

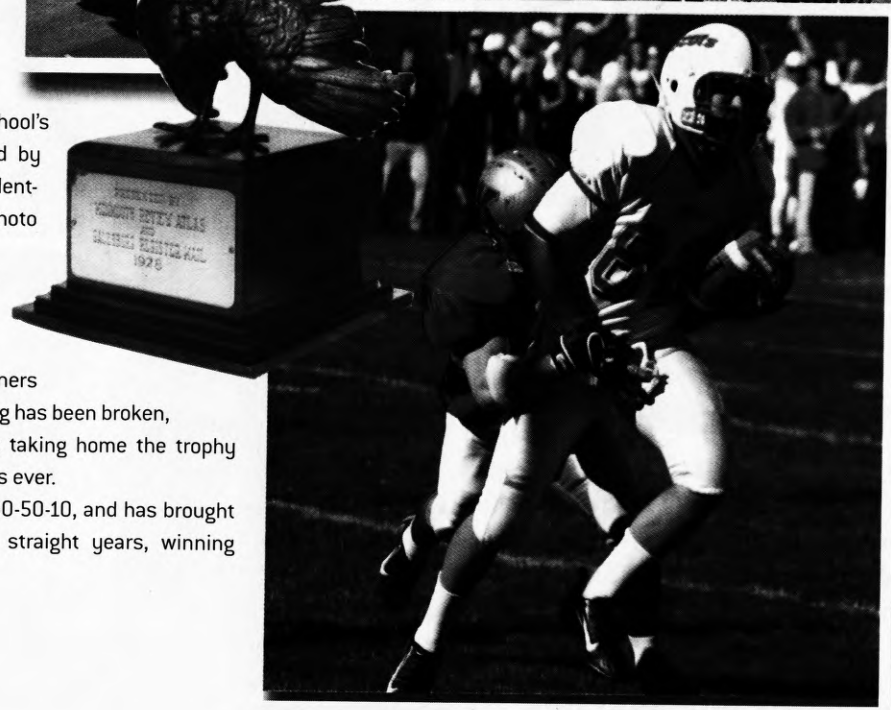

The game is the sixth-oldest in college football, dating back to 1888. The trophy, called one of the five we originates in 1928, when former Knox Prairie Fire player Bill Collins convinced a pair of newspapers to donate $40 each for the creation of a trophy for the annual Thanksgiving Day game. The original trophy, consisting of an ebony base upon which a large bronze turkey is mounted, was the creation of Steinfeldt Jewelers in Galesburg, Ill., and was purchased from a Chicago wholesaler.

Throughout its history, getting the trophy to the game has often been harder than winning it. During the early '40s, it went missing for five years, before an anonymous tip to Monmouth officials led to the trophy's discovery, buried in the basement of the school's gymnasium. Another time it was kidnapped by a Knox student posing as a Monmouth student-newspaper reporter setting up an outdoor photo shoot of the trophy.

A 1984 heist led to the disappearance of the trophy for a decade.

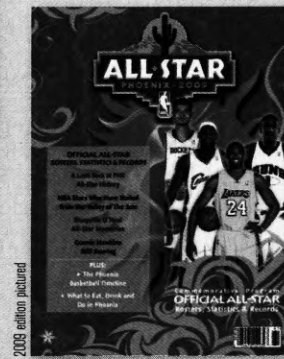

All this espionage has taken its toll on the trophy, as the original base plate, with the winners and the scores, has been lost, the turkey's wing has been broken, and the bird leans more than it stands. But taking home the trophy instills as much pride in the schools' players as ever.

The Fighting Scots lead the overall series, 60-50-10, and has brought home the Bronze Turkey a series-high 10 straight years, winning convincingly last year, 56-10.

The CRAZY Bruin Transformation Game

BY MATT ROUGE

My name is Terry Gainer, and I'm the guy in the Crazy Bruin suit. I don't think our state actually has any bears out there in the woods, but that's our mascot, and I'm proud to be him. Or portray him. In any case, I wanted to tell you the story of the strange things that happened to me this past season.

Football was a big sport at our high school, and I was a trumpet player in the band. When I got an academic scholarship to State for geology, I still wanted to be part of the action. I joined the band, and I loved going to the games and getting away from my studies a bit, but I just didn't have enough time to handle both my homework load and music practice. And I had never been a great trumpet player, anyhow.

So one day I went in to tell the bandleader that I couldn't hack it. By coincidence, he was in there talking to the cheerleading coach about the mascot who had broken his leg the previous week (not during a game) and was out for the season.

I have been known to think on my feet at times. It struck me that serving as the mascot instead of blowing a horn would be a much better way for me to participate in the world of State football. In a burst of inspiration, I said, "Oh, hi, Mr. Roberts, Coach Brown. I didn't mean to listen in on your conversation, but you're actually talking about what I wanted to talk to you about."

"Oh yes?" said Carl Roberts, our bandleader.

"Yes," I said. "I'm really sorry about what happened to Roger but I was kind of thinking that I might make a good replacement."

"Hmm," said Fran Brown, the tough-as-nails cheerleading coach, scanning me with her eyes without much enthusiasm.

"Can you cheer?"

"Well," I said, "I know what the mascot does, and I feel I'd be great at that."

"Hmm," said Coach Brown, continuing her scan.

Contrary to the whole science geek stereotype, I am a pretty tall and big guy. I had never thought about being a cheerleader—we hadn't had male cheerleaders at our high school. Being the mascot would be just as good as being a cheerleader. Better, in fact, because I would be the star.

It was a good thing that I was liking my impulsive idea more and more, since the two decision makers decided to give me the job.

"I don't see why not," said Mr. Roberts.

"You can lift a girl?" said Coach Brown.

"No problem," I said.

"Okay," said Coach Brown. "Come to practice tonight, and we'll get you started."

The suit didn't suit me—no pun intended. Even in the cool November air, it felt stuffy and uncomfortable. I had called Roger up, asking if there was any way to get around this discomfort, but he had told me it was a grin, dance around, and bear it situation.

So, at my first game, I danced around. I waved to the crowd. I was more or less in time with the cheerleaders on their—our—cheers. But, just like the half-time score of 0-0, something was missing.

I had kept my new role a secret from my friends until now, wanting to surprise them. Stealing a spare moment before half-time, I found Ted and Sandy as they headed back to the locker room. These were my two best friends from high school who had gotten football scholarships to State.

"Hey guys!" I said, giving them a peek at my face from beneath the heavy bear mask.

"What!" said Ted.

"I can't believe it!" said Sandy. "When did you start doing this?"

"Less than a week ago," I said. "How am I doing?"

"I don't know," said Ted.

"What do you mean you don't know?" I said.

"I mean I didn't notice the mascot—you—out there at all," said Ted.

"Should you have noticed?" I said.

"I don't know. I've never noticed before," said Ted.

"Me either," said Sandy, "but, then again, the other guy wasn't very good."

"Maybe I'm not very good either," I said.

"Don't worry about it," said Sandy, patting me on the shoulder. "You can't do a worse job than the other guy, since he was the worst of all time."

"Yeah," said Ted, "he didn't work the crowd. That's the important thing. Don't worry about us. We'll notice you if the crowd notices you. You help to pump them up—then they pump us up."

"Got it," I said.

"Glad to see one of our besties in the suit, though," said Sandy, giving me a friendly punch on the arm this time. "Now go back out there and be our Crazy Bruin."

"You bet!" I said.

I did my best at half-time, but I was not great. Then it happened, right at the moment the bell tower rang five o'clock. The strangest experience of my life.

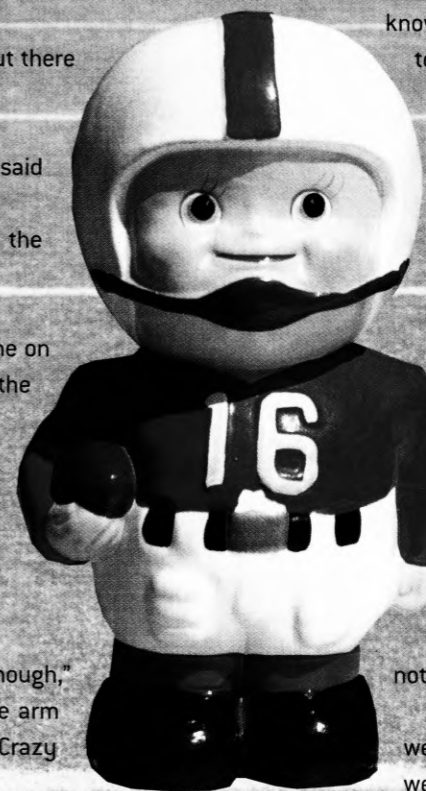

As I heard the final dong, I stepped toward the sideline—and nearly fell off a stage. I was in a fairly large and impressive place, and it looked vaguely familiar, but I couldn't quite place it. It was packed with people, all very well dressed.

Despite the fact that there was no reason for me to be in this place, I felt perfectly calm—as though I was supposed to be there and everything was okay. I was still in my suit, but for some reason it felt normal and right for me to have it on, so I didn't even tip my mask to look around.

As my eyes adjusted to my new surroundings, I noticed that the light bulbs looked strange: the filaments in them were clearly visible, making them look like bulbs from a long time ago. It struck me, however, that perhaps the theater had chosen such bulbs for an old-fashioned look.

Then I peered a little more closely at the crowd and saw that everyone's clothes looked old-fashioned too. In fact, they looked like people from a hundred years or more ago. More importantly, they were looking at me with a keen sense of expectation.

I realized I was not alone. There was a beautiful woman standing in front of me, smiling, and there were two small people in bear suits next to me, obviously children. These three people felt like my family—they were my family. Even though I had no rational way of knowing it, I nevertheless understood my task at hand: to perform a skit of Goldilocks and the Three Bears.

It was the strangest feeling: I was myself and some other person at the same time. I could feel him monitoring and influencing what I did—we did—and I could feel that he felt the same way. Even though we were both contributing to the end result, we seemed to be in perfect harmony together, without any contradictions at all.

Whoever he was, he was a crazy guy, perhaps the most extroverted person I have ever encountered. He was a brilliant performer in the skit—we all know the story, I'm sure it was old even back then, but he, I, and his/my family really worked it! Not only did he/I have many funny ad libs and asides, but he seemed to bring out the best in the rest of the performers, so that, despite his dominant personality he did not dominate the skit.

Then the really crazy part happened. After we were done, the crowd gave us the biggest cheer, so we all came back out for another bow. At this point my extroverted friend became extremely extroverted and he/I started doing a dance. I realized, then, that he had read my mind and he/I were doing just the kind of dance I needed to do at the stadium to work the crowd.

I took huge leaps to the left, then to the right. I hopped in funky style all over the stage, waving my arms and doing jazz hands. I clapped my hands together, getting the crowd clapping with me, and further intensified my routine. Then I did cartwheels, back flips—a whole tumbling run—and landed on my feet to the wild cheers of the crowd and my family. I had truly become the Crazy Bruin!

One interesting fact is that feeling didn't leave me after my "extroverted friend" departed. Whatever he had given me stayed with me and, for that matter, is still with me. I continued to work the crowd, getting to do the wave and cheer like crazy for the home team. At opportune moments, I did a cartwheel or a back flip or a complete tumbling run, and the people would shout, "Crazy Bruin, Crazy Bruin, Crazy Bruin!"

Yet, keeping in mind what I had learned during the skit, I didn't showboat it too much, and I was most proud of the coordination I was able to achieve with the cheerleaders. The whole was greater than the sum of the parts, as they say.

"Wow, that was amazing!" said Ted after the game.

"Yeah, you totally brought it!" said Sandy. "But where did you bring it from?"

"I just suddenly felt inspired," I said, providing the best explanation I could at the time. "Nice job with that last-minute field goal. You didn't exactly smash them, but a 3-0 win is still a win, right?"

"I don't think we could have done it without you," said Ted.

"C'mon!" I said.

"I'm serious!" said Ted. "That crazy crowd really helped us hold on. And you're what made them crazy!"

"You think?" I said.

"He's right," said Sandy. "Great work!"

I'm sure it will take a long time to figure out what happened, but I plan to approach it in a scientific manner. I'm changing my major to physics.

*From the journal of D.W. Washburn
November 10, 1895*

I was so shaken—and so exhilarated—by last night's events that I have broken with my normal practice of writing at night and am instead writing in the morning.

Completely absorbed in thinking of possible causes for what I experienced, I have not slept at all. I dare not discuss this matter with friends, family, or colleagues until I have a better understanding of what happened. I hope that writing down the facts and my impressions will help bring me clarity.

Yesterday was the yearly Autumn Pageant that we hold at the theater of the university where I teach physics. Eschewing burlesque or any type of vulgarity, the prominent families of the city and professors of the university put on wholesome skits and musical numbers for everyone to enjoy. I was proud to have been invited to participate but extremely nervous as well, as I am completely unfamiliar with the ways of the stage.

My wife had prepared exquisite costumes from old furs and other such materials, and so my two children and I truly looked the part of one of the Three Bears. My wife, I must add, made the loveliest Goldilocks imaginable.

Since we were to perform the first skit, we donned our costumes and took the stage at precisely 5:00 p.m. I immediately felt a complete transformation in my manner—one that cannot possibly be attributed to the difference one feels in wearing a costume at a masquerade, as I had worn it many times before without such an effect.

Rather, I felt what can only be described as an entity, or presence. This presence did not feel threatening in any way. Oddly, it seemed to understand my purpose on the stage and assisted me in completing it. I felt no nervous stimulation whatsoever, instead playing my role with complete confidence and abandon.

Thus far, all of these events could perhaps be explained by an overactive imagination, but what happened next cannot.

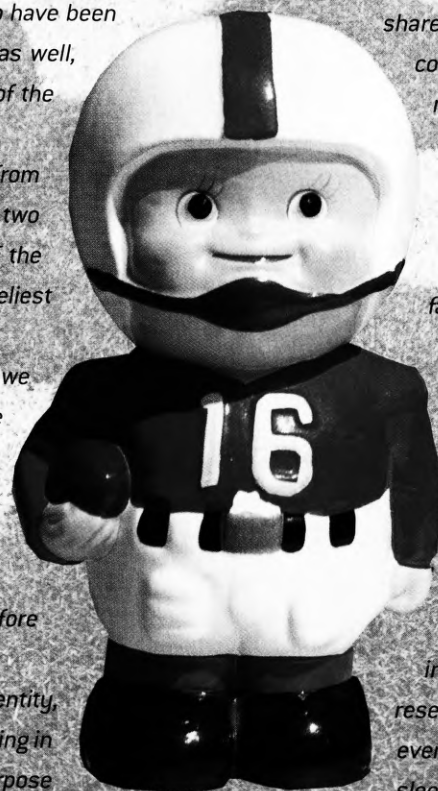

At the end of my skit, as we took a second bow, I suddenly found myself in a vast, crowded arena far bigger than the Flavian Amphitheatre of Roman fame, though not quite so large as the Circus Maximus. What immediately struck me as odd was that, although it was night, the arena was brightly lit with lights clearly electrical in nature but of a brightness impossible to describe. Judging by the markings on the field, the sport was likely similar to the football currently gaining in popularity at our university and elsewhere; yet, as the game was not then in progress, it was impossible to tell for certain.

A number of scantily clad girls were dancing on the field with large bundles of multicolored cloth in their hands, and I felt compelled to join them in their dance, which, despite the impropriety of their garb, did not seem prurient or lascivious in nature.

At the point, the entity took complete control of me, perhaps to demonstrate to me in the most affecting way the nature and purpose of his dance. His manner, although still friendly in an exuberant way, was completely wild and untamed: he moved with complete untrammelled madness, shaking, contorting, and throwing our shared body about in a way of which I am otherwise completely incapable. Very strangely, however, I felt not merely an observer in this dance, but rather a complete participant, joining with him in a type of joy and celebration that I had never before known. The crowd cheered us thunderously.

All of a sudden, I found myself back on the familiar stage, enjoying applause that was not quite so voluminous yet equally enthusiastic. Later, my wife told me that I had performed on that stage the very dance I experienced in the great arena.

I am certain that I will ponder this event for many months before achieving an adequate explanation of it, but, almost certainly because of this strange experience, I feel a new kind of inspiration with which to approach my scientific research. For now, however, I am glad to have put everything down in writing, and perhaps now I can sleep.

Sox Harrison Stadium

Sox Harrison Stadium serves as the home of the Fighting Scots. Dedicated in 1965, the stadium honors the memory of B. Regis "Sox" Harrison, the head football and basketball coach at Edinboro University for 34 years. Sox Harrison was the key figure in the building of Edinboro's athletic program, unselfishly devoting 34 years of service to the University as an athletic director, coach and physical education instructor. Appropriately, he was the first member inducted into the Edinboro Athletic Hall of Fame in 1982.

Harrison coached the Fighting Scot football team from its inception in 1926 to 1938, the returned to guide the gridders in 1941 and '42. In addition, he coached the men's basketball team for 23 seasons, from 1928-53, winning 175 games.

The stadium received a facelift last summer, giving it a spanking new look. Most noticeable is the installation of an artificial surface, Sportex, to replace the natural grass. And it is now illuminated, with lights being installed for the first time. Finally, a new scorebaord was installed.

Sox Harrison Stadium seats 6,000 people in its two grandstands, along with plenty of standing room. In addition to press boxes on both sides of the stadium, the facility has locker rooms, a training room and complete amenities for fans.

The stadium has undergone several renovations, including a new sound system and improved handicapped access areas in 1999. In 1997, a new grandstand was constructed on the visitor's side of the field, adding 2,500 permanent seats, along with a press box, locker rooms and a training room.

In addition to the football field, the facility contains complete track facilities.

Dear Fans:

I hope that our fans will applaud and frequent the 14 supporters listed below from the Edinboro community who have supported our players with evening snacks through the grueling practice sessions in August. Our "August Snacks Program" has been a huge success. I can't tell you how appreciative our players are of these generous donations. This is the ninth consecutive year that the community has reached out and assisted us. Our players have asked me to thank each of the restaurants/eateries below. Please support these Edinboro business! THANK YOU.

Kyle Goldcamp and Jen Blasko Named PSAC Pete Nevins Scholar-Athletes of the Year

The Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference (PSAC) is pleased to announce its 2008-09 Scholar-Athletes, which are highlighted by the PSAC Pete Nevins Scholar-Athletes of the Year. A total of 1,859 PSAC student-athletes have been named Scholar-Athletes while Gannon's Kyle Goldcamp and Slippery Rock's Jen Blasko have been named the PSAC Pete Nevins Scholar-Athletes of the Year. The 1,859 scholar-athletes represents a new league record, helped in large part by the addition of two schools in Gannon and Mercyhurst, as nearly one-third of all PSAC student-athletes were named scholar-athletes.

The PSAC Pete Nevins Scholar-Athletes of the Year are presented to the top student-athletes who have achieved at least a 3.25 cumulative grade point average while competing at an outstanding athletic level. To be eligible for the Scholar-Athletes of the Year, a student-athlete must have been recognized as a fall, winter or spring PSAC Top 10 award winner. In its 18th year of existence, the award were renamed in 2007 to honor East Stroudsburg's long-time sports information director, Pete Nevins, who passed away earlier that year. Nevins held his position at ESU for 33 years and it is estimated that he wrote articles on more than 12,000 ESU events that covered more than 5,000 student-athletes. The awards were given to one male and one female candidate at the end of each academic year. The PSAC's Scholar-Athletes are all student-athletes that have compiled a cumulative grade point average of 3.25 and above.

In Gannon's first year as a member of the PSAC last year, the Golden Knights went 30-4 overall and 12-2 in the PSAC West en route to the PSAC West and PSAC Tournament titles as well as the NCAA Atlantic Regional title and a trip to the NCAA Elite Eight. Goldcamp was a big part of that run as he led Gannon with 18.9 points and 9.3 rebounds per game while shooting over 59 percent from the floor. He did all of that despite missing 11 games in the middle part of the season with an illness. He was a PSAC Winter Top 10 selection and graduated with a 3.87 gpa while majoring in pre-med.

Blasko becomes the second straight Slippery Rock student-athlete to garner the female Scholar-Athlete of the Year award, following track athlete Jennifer Hansen in 2007-08. Blasko finished with a 4.00 grade point average while majoring in physical therapy and is beginning graduate school at Slippery Rock's physical therapy doctoral program. The Fall Top 10 selection helped lead The Rock to an NCAA tournament berth in all four of her years on the team, one of just three players in school history to accomplish that feat. She ranked ninth in the league in kills per game and also led the team in kills, digs and service aces.

Both Goldcamp and Blasko were both ESPN The Magazine Academic All-Americans®, with Blasko being named to the first team and Goldcamp to the second team for their respective sports. They were two of the 17 student-athletes from the PSAC that were named Academic All-Americans® during the 2008-09 academic year.

All-Americans

Harlan Hill Trophy

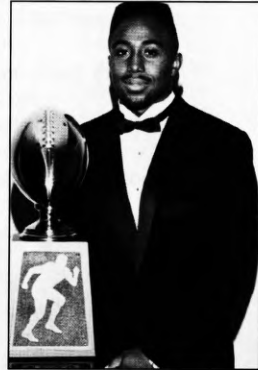

Trevor Harris became the third Edinboro University football player to finish as a finalist for the Harlan Hill Trophy, presented annually to the top player in NCAA Division II football. Harris was a finalist in 2008 after being a Northeast Region finalist in 2007.

Running back Elbert Cole was one of three finalists in 1989, while wide receiver Ernest Priester was a finalist a year later. Cole placed third in the '89 balloting. He earned All-American honors in 1989, receiving first team accolades from Kodak/American Football Coaches Association, second team recognition from Football Gazette, and third team status from Associated Press. Cole rushed for 1,507 yards and set PSAC records for touchdowns (24) and points (148). He led the Fighting Scots to the PSAC West title and a number seven ranking in the final Division II poll.

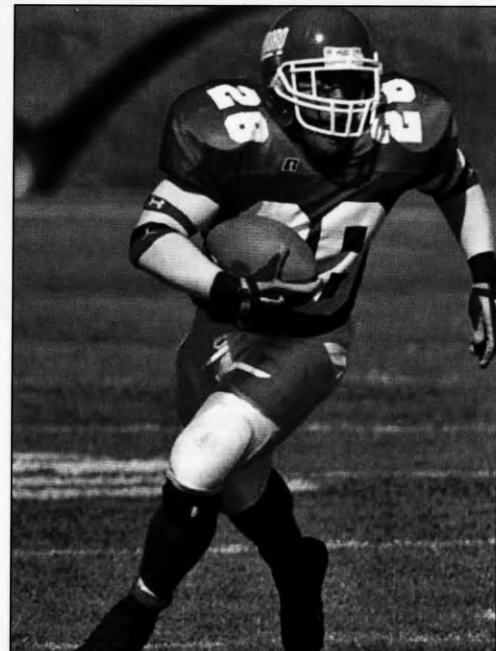

Priester was runnerup to North Dakota State quarterback Chris Simdorn in 1990 when the Bison claimed the Division II national title. Priester was the PSAC Western Division Co-Player of the Year in 1990. He was also recognized by Kodak/American Football Coaches Association, Associated Press and the Football Gazette as a first team All-American.

The wide receiver hauled in 47 passes for 1,102 yards and 15 TDs. Edinboro finished 9-3, reaching the Division II quarterfinals.

Andre Burke (below) made a run at the Harlan Hill Trophy in 2004, as the tailback was a Northeast Region semi-finalist. Burke ended up with a school-record 1,713 yards and 19 TDs.

Elbert Cole, a 1989 finalist, with the Harlan Hill Trophy.

The Cactus Bowl

Denayne Dixon continued the tradition of Edinboro Fighting Scots playing in the Cactus Bowl in January 2008. (NOTE: The 2007 contest was suspended.) The tight end hauled in a pair of passes for 31 yards as the East All-Stars suffered a 28-27 loss to the West All-Stars. For a number of years Division II football teams had an all-star game named the Snow Bowl, which was played in Fargo, North Dakota. In 2000 the contest was moved to Kingsville, Texas and renamed the Cactus Bowl. The contest features the top small college seniors in the country. Edinboro has had at least one representative in every Cactus Bowl (aka Snow Bowl) but one, with a streak of nine straight years. Here's a complete list of the Fighting Scots who have performed in the Cactus Bowl Division II All-Star Game.

1994	Jason Perkins, LB Mike Kegarise, OL Gary Lhotsky, P
1995	Lateef Walters, WR Larry Jackson, RB Pat Schuster, DE
1996	Gilbert Grantlin, WR Jeff Traversy, DL Corey Keyes, TE Gerald Thompson, RB

This marks the 24th season that I have been fortunate enough to be a member of the Edinboro football staff. During that time it has been very gratifying to see the response of local organizations in assisting Edinboro football. In recent years the service organizations has provided invaluable assistance, including running the 50/50 raffles. We look forward to working with these organizations again this year, and thank them for their support of Boro Football.

I know that the past year has not been easy for anyone. Yet as I look back I'm encouraged at the support we received a year ago for the annual athletic fund drive.

This tells me two things. First, you can appreciate the value of a quality education and realize that part of the answer to surviving these down times is through the support of higher education. Second, you understand just what we have accomplished and what we strive to accomplish when it comes to our athletic programs.

I think the emphasis on success is greater than ever, yet we continue to enjoy outstanding achievements in most of our athletic venues. I'd like to take credit for this, but the real credit goes to the coaches and athletes who have bought into the belief that Great Things Happen Here!

Here's just some of the reasons why Edinboro athletics has enjoyed such a storied tradition, and I believe, will continue to do so.

SUPERIOR COACHING STAFF
I've always felt that Edinboro has assembled a coaching staff that rivals not only the best in the PSAC, but in all of Division II. I did a little research into our rosters this year, and I found one continuing theme - youth. Many of our teams showcased youthful rosters, yet still found success. For instance, the volleyball team was 26-9 and made its third appearance in the NCAA Tournament in four years under head coach Missy Soboleski, without a senior on the team! Not surprisingly, she was named the AVCA Atlantic Region Coach of the Year. Dan Gierlak surpassed the 300-win plateau as the softball coach, leading the Fighting Scots to a school-record 26 wins. Just four seniors doffed the roster. Tim Flynn was named both the EWL and PSAC Coach of the Year while leading Edinboro to sixth place at the NCAA Division I Wrestling National Championships. Such storied programs as Penn State, Lehigh, Oklahoma State and Michigan could be found trailing the Fighting Scots. Football coach Scott Browning tied the school record for wins with nine, with his team's two losses coming by a combined seven points. The list goes on and on, but you get my drift - Edinboro's coaching staff is second to none.

UPGRADED FACILITIES
Edinboro's athletic facilities have made a quantum leap the last few years. Sox Harrison Stadium was renovated two years ago, complete with a new artificial playing surface, lights, and a new scoreboard, along with improvements to locker rooms in the facility. Journeying over to McComb Fieldhouse, the weight room was redone complete with state-of-the-art exercise equipment. The gymnasium floor has an attractive, bright new paint job. The softball team debuted on its new field this spring, and it is clearly one of the finest in western Pennsylvania. Finally, we anxiously await the opening of the Mike S. Zafirovski Sports and Recreation Dome, set to open this summer. The $5 million facility will have a huge impact on all of our athletic offerings.

STRONG ACADEMICS A MUST
I would be remiss if I didn't touch on the academic success enjoyed by our student-athletes. Our annual Scholar-Athletes Banquet in February was attended by 143 Fighting Scots who maintain a cumulative GPA of 3.00 or better. That's over forty percent of our student-athlete population! Ashley Jones became the first-ever women's soccer player to earn ESPN The Magazine Academic All-American honors. Trevor Harris and Jones were named to the PSAC Fall Top 10, and Jarrod King was a PSAC Winter Top 10 honoree.

ON THE HORIZON
We're very proud of everything that has been accomplished, not only this past year but in previous years. We look forward to what lies ahead in the future, realizing that it will indeed be a challenge. Other Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference schools are experiencing many of the same improvements we are, or have done so in recent years.

The support of the administration and the Student Government Association is greatly appreciated. But we can't stop there. Our Edinboro Family must continue to grow. I can't tell you how valuable your support has been since the start of the Annual Athletic Fund. We hope you'll once again choose to contribute to the Athletic Fund. If you haven't contributed in the past, please explore the possibility of helping Edinboro not only maintain its athletic tradition, but move forward.

Finally, please tell a friend. The greatest way we can prosper is by networking, so let a friend or two know about the Annual Athletic Fund. As always, thanks for your support. If you haven't had an opportunity to do so recently, come and visit us and get a first hand look at what is happening. You'll walk away agreeing that Great Things Happen Here!

Goodbye Seniors

by Bob Shreve, Sports Information Director

Each year we dedicate the final home game program to the seniors. Through the years the numbers have grown so that space limits us in just what we can do. In addition, this is the time to view these young men as individuals with bright futures, and not as football players. Therefore we don't focus on athletic achievement, but rather as comrades who have built great friendships over the years.

In many respects this is a sad time, because players we have come to know and love must move on. Suffice it to say we wish them the very best and hope they enjoy a prosperous lifetime.

Finally, for the ten young men departing today, remember

YOU WILL ALWAYS BE FIGHTING SCOTS!

JEREMY APPELL (DE, Webster, NY/Webster Schroeder)

When will you graduate: December 2009

Your major: Criminal Justice

What are your immediate plans: Find a job back home or somewhere warm

What is your career goal: Be self-sustaining

What is your most memorable moment at Edinboro: Beating all my friends in MarioKart for Nintendo 64, and letting Trevor win sometimes so he didn't cry.

CHAD BROOKS (DT, Hamlin, NY/Albion)

When will you graduate: Spring 2010

Your major: Financial Services

What are your immediate plans: Find an internship and lose weight since without football I can't eat like I used to.

What is your career goal: Be a self-employed financial advisor

What is your most memorable moment at Edinboro: Running 30 yards for a touchdown after recovering a fumble against Mercyhurst and running 65 yards after picking up a fumble against Cheyney, getting run down by their wide receiver and fumbling back to Cheyney. Still had to play the series after fumble when I needed an oxygen mask.

HOUSTON BROWN (CB, Westerville, OH/Westerville Central)

When will you graduate: Summer 2010

Your major: Communications

What are your immediate plans: Be happy again

What is your career goal: Continue to make my parents proud

What is your most memorable moment at Edinboro: Seeing my mom standing in the back of the end zone after every game waiting for a hug and telling me great job and she's proud of me, and my dad coaching me from the stands like always.

ILIO DiPAOLO (WR, Orchard Park, NY/St. Francis)

When will you graduate: May 2010

Your major: Sport Administration

What are your immediate plans: Stay young for as long as I can

What is your career goal: Become the mayor of Buffalo

What is your most memorable moment at Edinboro: Beating my old school, Lock Haven.

MIKE FAZIO (C, Pittsburgh, PA Perry Traditional Acad.)

When will you graduate: December 2009

Your major: Individualized Studies

What are your immediate plans: Training with Trevor Harris to be on Ultimate Cage Fighter

What is your career goal: Set up a stone circle of death match between Mike Yurcich and Wayne Bradford

What is your most memorable moment at Edinboro: Beating Bloomsburg on their home field my sophomore year and manhandling IUP on their home field my senior year (on their homecoming)

BRAD GOSSETT (TE, Perry, OH/Perry)

When will you graduate: Fall 2010

Your major: Financial Services

What are your future plans: Become a financial advisor

What is your most memorable moment at Edinboro: Playing in my first game as a freshman.

TREVOR HARRIS (QB, Waldo, OH/Marion Pleasant)

When will you graduate: December 2009

Your major: Mathematics

What are your immediate plans: Training with Mike Fazio to be an Ultimate Cage Fighter

What is your career goal: Drink a gallon of milk in one hour and hold it down without getting sick

What is your most memorable moment at Edinboro: Wailing on Jeremy Appell, Ilio DiPaolo, Ryan Levinger, Nick Kakavand and Cody Harris in Mario Kart nightly. Great confidence booster!

JUNIOR JABBIE (RB, Parlin, NJ/The Hun School)

When will you graduate: Already graduated, in graduate school

Your major: Business

What are your immediate plans: Travel the world

What is your career goals: Be successful in everything that I do

What is your most memorable moment at Edinboro: When I played in my first game here and scored my first touchdown.

DONNIE MARSTELLER (DT, Carlton, PA/Cochrannton)

When will you graduate: Spring 2010

Your major: Criminal Justice

What are your future plans: Become a law enforcement officer on either the federal or state level

What is your most memorable moment at Edinboro: The first day of camp my freshman year. My mom cried when she was leaving because she thought I was going to get killed.

JOE WANSON (QB, DuBois, PA/DuBois Area)

When will you graduate: Already graduated, in graduate school

Your major: Have a Secondary Education Social Studies degree. In graduate school for Educational Leadership.

What are your immediate plans: Taking coach Yurcich's job

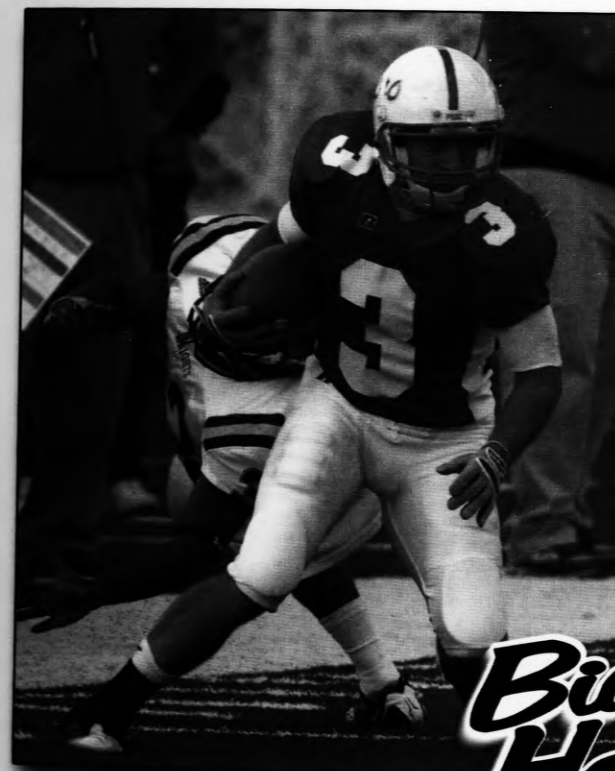

What is your career goals: Be a successful teacher/coach; marry a hot wife, and have a boat load of kids

What is your most memorable moment at Edinboro: Being "that guy" at parties, and spending great times with all my friends and teammates in Edinboro.
