Final Exam Worth 100% ?

THERESA LOZETSKI
and
MARY MOHL

A handful of votes!, Yes—that's all it took for Representative Assembly to pass last year's alcohol policy.

Rep. assembly is a governance body made up of several constituencies of students, faculty, and administrators, the latter two carrying the majority of the voting power.

Controversial issues seemingly travel "incognito" from Rep. assembly to the student body where they become the law! Unfortunately, BU's population shows little interest until these proposed policies become standing ones.

This Wed. at 3:00 p.m., Multi-purpose Room A, Rep. Assembly will take action on one such controversial issue. Issue at hand: Academic Examination Policy. The current policy states that a final exam shall be worth no less than 20 percent and no more than 40 percent of the course grade.

The proposed policy is as follows: In order to change the requirement specifying that final examinations shall be worth no less than 20 percent nor more than 40 percent of the course grade, there must be agreement for the change by the faculty member (s) in charge of the class, the majority of the members of their academic department, and the appropriate College Dean.

If passed, this policy would allow professors to weight a final anywhere from 0-100 percent of the total course grade.

According to Joanne Growney, vice president of academic affairs. "I don't know of any sensible professor that would have a grade weighing 100 percent, but I believe that a professor should have that right to determine the distribution of grading in a course."

As a student, you should be very concerned about the consequences of getting an "unsensible" professor.

Granted, some classes warrant having only one test to represent knowledge and ability of the course (speech, art). But in the past, students in these classes were usually allowed the privilege of giving feedback on the testing system used. This has proved to be mutually beneficial to professors and students.

As it stands now, the proposed policy allows no room for student input. Should student input be a revision of this proposal?

The policy goes on to state: Except for abnormal circumstances, the approval and notification to students should be made by the end of the first week of classes.

Who and what constitutes an ABNORMAL CIRCUMSTANCE? What happens when notification of a change in testing policy is given after that "first week of classes," the period in which students are so kindly allowed to drop-add?

The intent of this article was not to criticize the committee that proposed this policy or Rep. Assembly. Rather, we feel obligated to keep this policy from traveling "incognito."

While non-members of Rep. Assembly do not have voting power, they do have input. This issue will either be passed, rejected, tabled or sent back to committee for revision on Wed., 3:00 p.m. in Multi-purpose Room A.

Be there!

The unusually cold weather last week brought with it many unusual sights, such as car accidents, people falling and the ice on this tree.

Forensics Team Wins in Montreal

DAWN GREENE
Staff Writer

Bloomsburg's Forensics team competed in the College Forensics Association's winter tournament on Jan. 27 and 28 in Montreal. BU has been defending champions of this tournament for the last four years and competes against schools such as Rutgers, Wilkes, Columbia, and the University of Pennsylvania.

Next month will be a busy one with a tournament at Monmouth College on Feb. 4 and 5 in West Long Branch, N.J. On Feb. 11 and 12 they have a novice tournament at West Chester College and another tournament at Ithica, on Feb. 18 and 19. On February 25 BU will be one of the few schools outside of Maryland to compete in the Maryland St. Forensics Championship held at Charles County Community College in La Plata.

On February 22, the Forensics team will be hosting the Woman's Christian Temperance Union Oratorical Contest.

Editorial

OK folks, it's time to get off your butt and learn something this semester. It may even affect your remaining years at Bloom. No, correction, it will affect your remaining years. Especially if you are a freshman, sophomore or junior.

Rep. Assembly does exit, and here's what it has done and what it can do:

Of course we're all aware of the present alcohol policy. After all, it does take a bit of searching and a few phone calls to find a good party these days. Do you know that this policy was decided on by Rep. Assembly? This in only one of the more well known policies.

Now we're not saying Rep. Assembly can be good. It can work. It should work. It's made up of students and faculty, and they're supposed to sit down and make decisions that are best for all of us.

So, enter the problem, or problems.

First of all, and most importantly, there are eight student seats open on Rep. Assembly. What that means, is that the student population is not fully represented at Rep. Assembly. Now that may not seem like a big deal, but consider the alternatives.

At the moment, Wednesday to be exact, Rep. Assembly will be taking on an "action" issue (that's one that is either voted on, sent back to a committee, or tabled). The issue is exams. The faculty want the freedom to make decisions about tests that they give. With the proposal they have made, the bottom line say that a teacher can choose to give a class one test a semester - a final. That's your grade. You pass it or you fail it. It all comes down to one test. Do you want your whole semester grade based on one test?

Also to be discussed on Wednesday is a "discussion" item dealing with a proposed plus and minus system of grading. The issue has been floating around this campus for about four years now and has been seriously been discussed for two. Supposedly, they will be deciding on this issue within a few weeks. Don't you think students should have a say in what happens concerning something as important as our grades?

Another item of interest that has been discussed is the possibility of the faculty separating from the students. One of the main reasons is that for some unknown reason, Rep. Assembly isn't functioning to par.

One student, who is on Rep. Assembly, says she had been a member for one semester, and has only been to three meetings - that's all there has been. Not only are new members not introduced to the activities of the Assembly, but their responsibilities are never explained to them. It is up to them to either find out on their own, or attend enough meetings to figure everything out. With so few meetings, it could be a problem.

Another downfall of the Assembly is that "gentlemen sometimes forget to act like gentlemen" when they are trying to get something done or something said. The session often ends in a shouting match between two opposing sides.

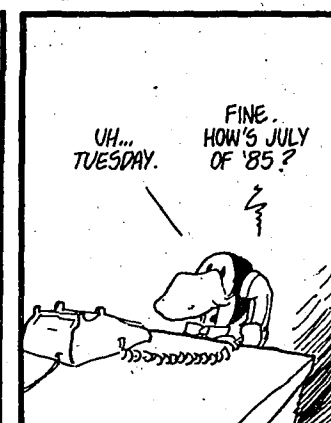

Some faculty feel that since they are not too actively involved in Community Government Association (CGA) they should let the students have their CGA and let faculty have their own group. They forget one small difference. CGA is students, elected by students, making decisions for students. If the faculty were to go their separate way, they would be making decisions for students - with no student input or feedback.

What Rep. Assembly needs is participation - without it, it can not function. Presently, the group has about a 50. attendance rate at every meeting. Maybe that's why there are so many problems.

But let's not give up without being represented, or not having a vote. The spaces that are open include 2 from Elwell, 2 from Luzerne, 1 from Montour, 2 from North, and 1 commuter. If you live in any of these places, think about representing your fellow students. No, do more than think do it! Even if you don't live in one of these places, show up anyway, have something to say!

Joanne Marrone, CGA Vice-President and a representative on Rep. Assembly, has more info on how to become a member. You must have at least a 2.0 and not be on academic probation. Contact her at the CGA office today!!

Dear Editor,

College is supposed to be a collection of the best times of your life. However, this year those moments have been few and far between.

One reason for this is the declining qualities of nightlife off campus. Before this academic year, you didn't have to be paranoid about throwing a party. No fights erupted if someone who was not acquainted with the party's hosts was denied entry. This year these hosts have to have, in their possession, a lead pipe to discourage crashers. Is this supposed to be a good time? I think not. Not letting people in parties, or not giving them parties to go to and release their anxieties and tensions through positive social interaction, could in itself cause unacceptable social behavior.

Time was when parties were abundant. We associated this with college, a good time, and learning responsible social drinking habits. Most people are not driving after a college party. Let's not forget that many campus sell beer and allow the consumption of alcohol. If the crime rate would raise drastically because of this I'm sure it would not continue to exist. Why go back to the conservative days? Is Big Brother telling us we shouldn't learn how to drink until we graduate and have to drive somewhere in order to do it?

This topic of partying brings us to the Bloomsburg bars. Hess' has joined Lemon's in introducing dancing to their environment. A good idea. That novelty has worn off after hearing "Born to be Alive", "Shout", "New York, New York", and "Cum on Feel the Noize" every Wednesday and Thursday in Hess'.

I became so tired of hearing the same songs every week, that I begged the DJ to play a dance tune near the top of the charts. He said, "Hey, I worked here for three months, I know what people like." Why don't they just save their money and make a tape to play over and over again.

Lemons' was different. I found new people and DJs who are up to date with the latest dance tunes. Unfortunately Lemons' suffered fire damage. I guess I'll have to bide my time at Musique for the Intelligensia.

Tired of worn-out soundtracks, disco, and archaic DJ's

Announcement

There will be a meeting for all people interested in reporting for the Voice, 6:00 p.m., Mon Jan. 30. The meeting will be held in the Voice office. Anyone interested in journalism or reporting is welcome to attend. No experience is necessary but enthusiasm and a sense of responsibility are a must.

Competition

Games and competitions will highlight the Winter Fest Weekend, to be held Feb. 3-5.

The weekend, sponsored by the Program Board, will begin Friday at 3:30 p.m. with an Outrageous Obstacle Course in Centennial Gym. Anyone can enter teams consisting of three girls and three guys. The event, co-sponsored by ARS, is on a first come, first serve basis.

At 7 p.m. the Battle of the Air Bands will be held in Kehr Union. A meeting for all interested bands will be held Feb. 1 at 7 p.m. in the Program Board Office. A $4 registration fee is required.

Also on Friday there will be a Video Dance in Kehr Union at 8:30 p.m. On Saturday a Mini-Fair of booths and games will be held from 2-8 p.m. in Kehr Union. Any organization can enter a booth.

Also on Saturday, the movie Arthur will be shown at 7 and 9:30 p.m. in Carver Hall.

Sunday will wrap the weekend up with Bingo at noon, the movie Arthur at 5 p.m. (KUB), and some Sunday night entertainment.

Prizes of $75, $50, and $25 will be awarded to the winners of the Obstacle Course, Air Bands, and most creative fair booths. Space for the events is allocated on a first come, first serve basis so sign up now at the Information Desk.

Give Blood

The Bloomsburg Chapter of the American Red Cross invites all Bloomsburg University students, faculty, staff, and their families to participate in this year's blood drive. The bloodmobile will be on campus Tuesday, January 31, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Kehr Union.

If you have not donated within the past ten weeks, weigh at least 110 lbs., in good health, and are between the ages of 17 and 65, then you are eligible to save a life! Your priceless donation will be used to serve the nearly 1.5 million residents in the 19 county Northeastern Pennsylvania Red Cross Region.

This campus has, in the past, proved to be generous with their "gift of life;" continue this noble tradition. Please help us reach our goal of 300 pints.

Nelson's Sound System Okayed

RICH SCHEIPE
Staff Reporter

Last Monday at the Student Senate's first meeting of the semester, $6642.50 was appropriated for the purchase of a sound system for Nelson Field House.

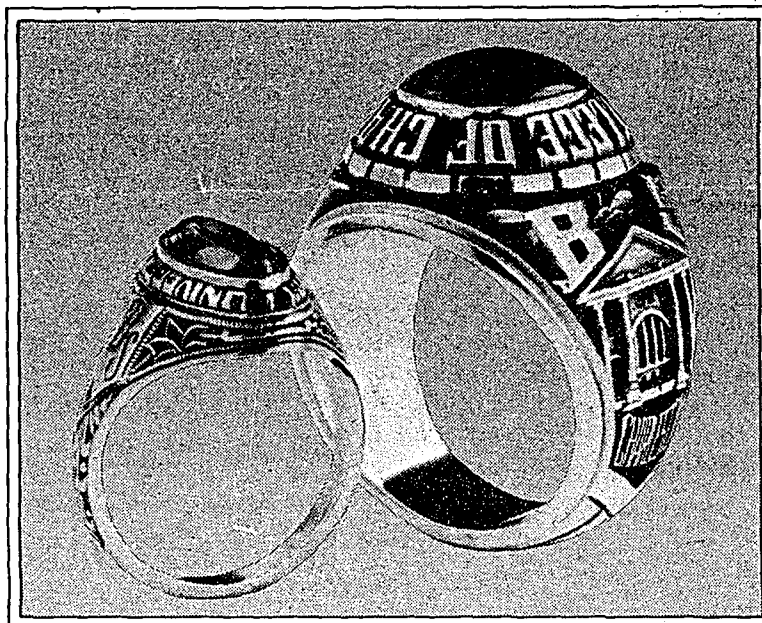

The purchase made in conjunction with the basketball and wrestling teams is a sign of "CGA's continuing support of extracurricular activities on campus," said CGA President Chris Hardinger.

In other business, CGA decided to support the building of a Huskie statue to be placed on Carver lawn, but that this backing will not exceed $15,000.

Hardinger also pointed out the vacancy of two senate seats and said that anyone interested in the positions should attend the next meeting.

Spy Goes Publ-Speaks at BU

BECKY HOAK
Voice Contributor

Ex-spy and controversial author Peter James is often referred to as an "American James Bond." Espionage, corruption, conspiracies, and cover-ups, all the elements that make a Bond film so exciting, James has experienced himself. However, his story is for real.

James is a 1962 physics graduate of Case-Western Reserve University and author of two books: Soviet Conquests From Space and Air Force Mafia. He is now working on a third.

Although he travels approximately 100,000 miles annually and is home two months a year (not consecutively) the 43 year old lecturer calls Jamestown, N.Y. home.

For 10 years he was a rocket engineer for Pratt & Whitney and the company's foreign technology expert in its West Palm Beach facility. He became heavily involved with both the CIA and Air Force Intelligence as he traveled extensively in Europe and South America attending scientific conferences.

James gave an account of how he became involved: "the Chief of Security at Pratt & Whitney and an agent for the CIA gave me a convincing pitch on why I should cooperate. They wanted me to find out what these characters (the Soviets) were working on, political, technical, and personal data. So I jumped in with both feet." He began traveling, meeting frequently with foreign scientists and espionage agents, drinking vodka with the Soviets and turning in reports to the CIA.

"My generation has left you guys with a nightmare but you can do something about it as long as everyone gets down from the bleachers and gets out there on the playing field."

But what made James give this all up? He discovered corruption within Air Force intelligence. Once his intention to expose corruption within the military was discovered, he was chased around Europe and threats were made on his life. When he made it back to the United States Embassy he was safe but jobless. Pratt & Whitney Aircraft had fired him.

Information from his book Soviet Conquests From Space (1974) and The Air Force Mafia (1975), led to House and Senate inquiries and attracted the attention of the national news media. The front page of The Washington Post first broke with his story nationally.

"Peter James has cooperated with Senator Sam Ervin's Watergate Committee, the Rockefeller Commission, Senator Frank Church's Intelligence Committee, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and numerous senators and congressmen in an attempt to expose and make public the questionable activities of our government. James, decided to develop a lecture series because he wants the American people to know what's going on. He also stated, "I turned the table on our government to keep the government honest. Competent people don't have to break the law."

"International Espionage" was the topic of Peter James lecture on Wednesday night, January 25. It was a fast moving rendition of the "espionage jungle" by combining the highlights of all five programs.

He discussed timely issues of the day and forecasted future world events. He also used slides to help the audience better understand the world in which he worked so they could come to terms with his story and ideas.

He discussed many ideas on how to end the nuclear arms race and protect ourselves as well. He feels that his ideas are widely accepted by both the left and right wings and can be marketed but aren't because Americans haven't pushed it.

James spent almost four hours in the Kehr Union lecturing, showing slides, and answering students questions. As the clock approached twelve these students weren't slowing down. One student in the audience finally suggested they all go down to Hess's Tavern and continue their conversation over a couple of beers. So, off they all went.

James lectures mainly on the college circuit because as he often repeated, "My generation has left you guys with a nightmare, but you can do something about it as long as everyone gets down from the bleachers and gets out there on the playing field."

Controversial Author to Address Students

The author of a book and movie that the "New York Times" called "racist and senseless," and the "Chicago Daily News" called "one of the most important films of 1973," will be at Bloomsburg University, Feb. 1-2. His visit is sponsored by the Program in Journalism and the Human Relations Committee.

Sam Greenlee, author of "The Spook Who Sat By The Door," will discuss the book and movie, 8:30 p.m., Wednesday, Feb. 1, in the Presidents Lounge of Kehr Union. The 105-minute feature film, released by United Artists, will be shown at 6:30 p.m., prior to the discussion.

Greenlee, who spent eight years as a foreign service officer with the US Information Agency will also be a guest at Millville High School and in Dr. Walter Brasch's journalism classes on Thursday.

The book sold more than a half-million copies, and was condemned as "racist" and praised as "brilliant." The film was directed by Ivan Dixon, with Greenlee as co-purchaser and co-writer (with Melvin Clay).

When the book was first published in England, it received the 1969 Book of the Year awards of the "Times of London" and "London Telegraph." Greenlee notes that the book was rejected by 28 American publishers before a small publishing house in England took the chance.

Greenlee says that many major American newspapers failed to review the book. In print, Judith Crist, as well as many other reviewer/critics, called it "irresponsibile." But, says Greenlee, "Irresponsible! What does that mean to me? Am I supposed to be responsible for the White establishment? And if I do something that displeases a White critic, does that make me irresponsible? Can you imagine anyone calling Norman Mailer or Philip Roth irresponsible, even if they disapprove of what those cats are saying?"

Gene Shalit called the book "wrong-headed and hate-filled," while the "L.A. Times," long after the book's premiere in America, called it "frightening."

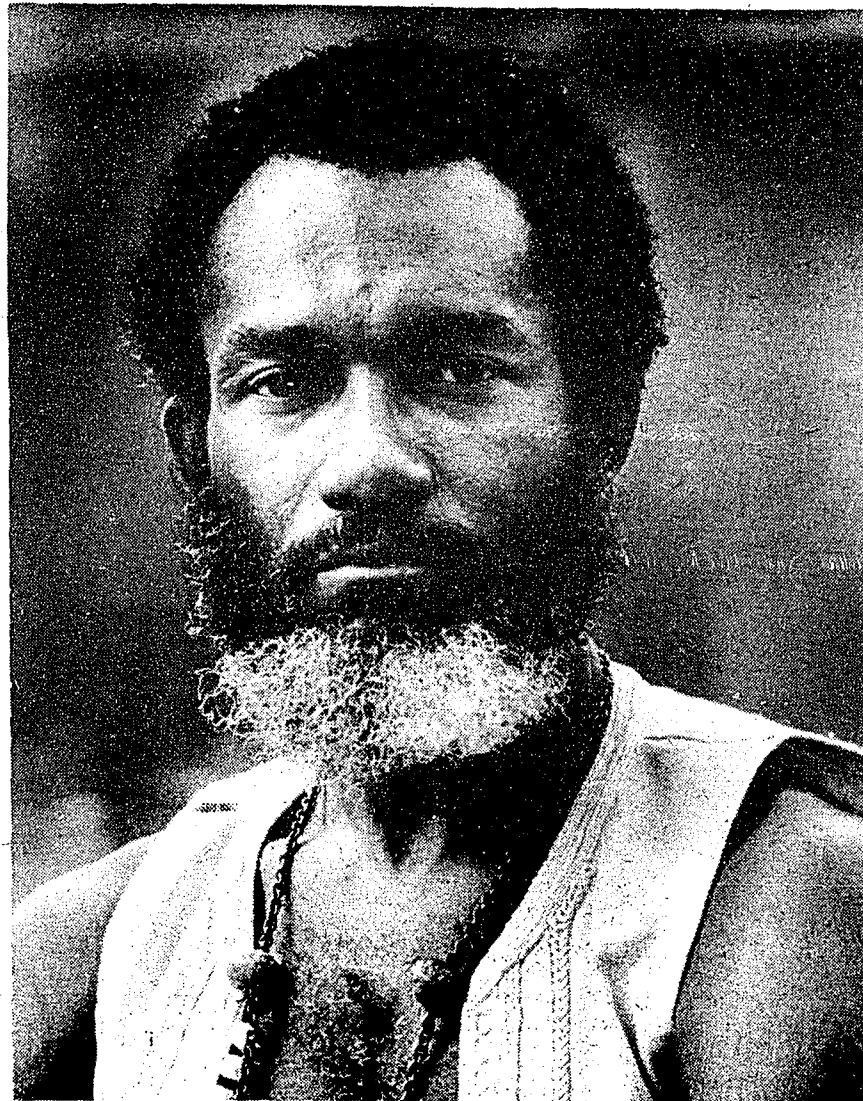

Greenlee's story is about the attempts of a cynical and ambitious U.S. senator who tries to capture the "Negro Vote" by accusing the CIA of discriminatory hiring practices. The result is that the CIA recruits and trains in elite corps of Blacks, but only one, Dan Freeman, survives the training. After five years, he leaves the CIA and returns to Chicago to organize a terrorist army known as the Black Freedom Fighters. Their army creates civil rights insurrections in major American cities.

Greenlee says that "traditionally, you get a protagonist who tries to triumph over all, and by the end of the book, he has either been destroyed by the system, or he has learned belatedly that, his efforts notwithstanding, he can't overcome racism. I decided to go one step beyond that. I would deal with a man who had already reached that decision and deal with what alternative he might take. That makes a new departure in Black fiction, and I think some people find it offensive."

The book is both a satire on the civil rights problems in the U.S., as well as a serious attempt to focus upon the issue of Black militancy. The author says that, "I consider the book to be a study of the revolutionary character in general, and the farcial nature of racial integration in the U.S. in particular. It is the story of one ghetto black man's reaction to the bourgeoisie."

Greenlee graduated from the University of Wisconsin, with a degree in political science, and did graduate work in international relations at the University of Chicago. Among his duty assignments with the USIA were posts in Iraq, East Pakistan, Indonesia, and Greece. In 1958, he received the USIA Meritorious Service Award. He resigned from the USIA in 1965 to devote fulltime to his writing, and in the next three years wrote three novels, a three-act play, and five short stories. During the next few years, several of his poetry books have met with critical acclaim.

Sam Greenlee, a black American writer will speak to BU students about his book and film entitled, "The Spook Who Sat By The Door."

smooth almost coasting play, has awakened BU's inside game. Flanagan's speed has also made the Huskies pressure defense more effective, which has resulted in an increase of easy baskets.

The second point centers around the emergence of freshman Jerome Brisbon at point guard. A former Philadelphia Public League first teamer, Brisbon was Chronister's final choice to fill the shoes of now assistant coach Terry Conrad. The first two, Todd McLaughlin, was has since quit the team over lack of playing time, and Greg Johnston never seemed to take control of the position.

Brisbon, on the otherhand, has been a defensive terror and effective offensive catalyst. Given free reign to attack the ball, the 5-10 guard has recorded four steals in each of the Huskies last two games. Offensively, his long jumpers have provided BU with a much needed complement to Francisco.

Currently in third place with a 4-2 log, the team is still very much in the middle of a conference race that no one has taken over. With upcoming games with first place Cheyney, and second place Mansfield a continuation of improvement will be a must if BU hopes to make yet another appearance in the playoffs.

The Huskies kept the margin close in the first half with tough defense, only giving up the outside shot. They were within three at the half, 28-25.

Bloomsburg decided to come out pressuring East Stroudsburg in the second half, but East Stroudsburg broke the pressure and steadily widened the gap for the rest of the game. Jean Millen, the NCAA Division 11's top rebounder, led Bloomsburg with 15 points and 18 rebounds. Junior, Sarah Hackforth, made 5 goals from the field and converted 2 of 3 free throws for 12 points.

Bloomsburg is now 2-5 in the Pennsylvania Conference and 6-8 overall. East Stroudsburg is 5-2 in the Pa. Conference and 9-5 overall. they travel to Wilkes Barre, Wednesday, to do battle with King's College.

BARRY FRANCISCO jams home an alley-oop pass from Pat Flanagan in the first half of Wednesday's win over East Stroudsburg. The BU captain finished with 27 points before fouling out.

Simply put, Barry Francisco was super. In addition to providing leadership, the 6-3 senior poured in 27 points, as Bloomsburg University won its second straight game, beating East Stroudsburg 60-53, Wednesday night, in Nelson Fieldhouse.

"Barry carried us the first 30 minutes, and we were smart enough to be patient and get the ball to him in the second half," added Husky mentor, Charlie Chronister, on the performance of his captain.

However, when Francisco fouled out with 2:38 to play, in stepped freshman guard, Jerome Brisbon led the Huskies with some key baskets and two key free throws down the wire to help the Huskies register their 44th conference win (4-2) and 7th overall (7-9).

"Jerome scored several key points in the second half for being a freshman (playing) with a lot of responsibility," commented Coach Chronister.

Along with the offensive punch added by Francisco and Brisbon (43 points), the Huskies did an excellent job controlling the Warriors' leading scorer and catalyst, Earle Greer. Greer was a one man wrecking crew in the Huskies early season 73-67 OT victory over ESU, in which he scored 32 points. "When we weren't scoring points, we were controlling Greer. Overall, we did a good job on him," stated Chronister.

The Huskies built up an early 10 point lead, but once again could not deliver the knockout punch to the Warriors, as they saw their lead diminish to 4 points, 26-22 at half-time.

The Warriors then came out hot and took the lead for the only time in the game at 32-31 before the Huskies went on a roll of 12 points.

Not to be overshadowed by Barry Francisco and Jerome Brisbon, were the fine performers of the remaining 3 starters Pat Flanagan, Wes Wright, and Shane Planutis.

East Stroudsburg was led by Earle Greer with 20 points. Team-mate Eric Smith added 12 points for the Warriors. Kelvin Healy also chipped in 10.

BU returns to action this evening at Lock Haven. Their next conference battle is against division rival Cheyney, 8:00 p.m., at Nelson Fieldhouse. The Huskies are currently one game behind 1st place Cheyney.

NOTES: Francisco once again treated the crowd to two spectacular alley-oop plays. The second off a fastbreak pass from Brisbon

Huskies' Schizophrenia May Be Disappearing

Will the real Bloomsburg University basketball team please stand up?

Is it contestant number one, the team that returned seven of its top eight players from the 1983 Eastern Regional champs, including All-American candidate Barry Francisco and ECAC Co-Rookie of the Year Glenn Noack. A team that was ranked 18th in one preseason poll and was the favorite to win the conference.

Or is it contestant number two. A Dr. Jekyll-Mr. Hyde - type team that, in its first meeting, lost on a buzzer beater to sixth ranked Phila. Textile, then got blown away by 25 in the next meeting. A team that is 5-1 at home but an inept 1-8 on the road. One that plays good enough to be competitive, not well enough to win, as evidence by their four one point losses.

So far the choice has been team number two, but due to two different occurrences BU's schizophrenia may be disappearing. The Huskies last two outings were very encouraging and close to what the team was expected to look like.

Ironically, the first happening was the last thing Coach Charlie Chronister would hope for: an injury to the talented Noack. The absence of their starting forward has somehow pushed the Huskies over the hump between winning and losing.

Two players have benefitted from Noack's injury. Captain Barry Francisco who was already BU's top scorer with 16.1 game, has simply been dominating in recent contests, averaging 25 points a game. Not only has he been the Huskies offense, the 6-3 leaper is asserting the leadership that was absent early in the year.

As Noack's replacement, Pat Flanagan was moved to a starting role. His physical, aggressive style, which stands in mark contrast to Noack's

The Bloomsburg Women's basketball team came off a strong win Saturday against Susquehanna, to a tough conference loss by an overpowering team from East Stroudsburg 67-44 last Monday evening.

The Lady Huskies shot only 26.5 percent from the floor in the first half, making nine of 34 shots. The second half was even worse, shooting 23.1 percent, scoring nine of 39.

The Husky defense had to content with a very hot Rose Mohl, 18 points, who shot most of her points from the 20 to 25 foot range. Once the Huskies contained Mohl, they failed to control Sue Richards, 21 points, on the inside. Janice Yourorski also shot from the inside
