FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

PROGRESS EDITION 2001

Greetings from Edinboro University of Pennsylvania, one of the 14 universities in the Pennsylvania State System of Higher Education.

There's great change on the horizon at Edinboro University, but that's nothing new. Founded as a private training school for teachers, the Edinboro Academy became Northwestern State Normal School, Edinboro State Teachers College, and Edinboro State College prior to achieving its current status as Edinboro University of Pennsylvania and membership in the 14-university State System of Higher Education in 1983. Today, the institution that began in 1857 in one building with three teachers and 100 students now enrolls 7,200 students in 100 degree programs taught by more than 300 of the finest faculty in Pennsylvania.

Edinboro University entered the year 2000 and closed it by opening two new facilities. In January, the opening of a new high-tech classroom building – the Arts and Sciences Center – celebrated the first construction of a new building on the campus since 1976. The year closed with the grand opening of Edinboro's new Meadville Access Center in Meadville's Downtown Mall, giving neighboring Crawford County communities a full-service, one-stop site to access the University's array of programs, resources and services.

The fall 2000 semester began with the largest enrollment increase in ten years, bringing the enrollment of both undergraduate and graduate students from 7,079 students the year before to 7,212, an increase of nearly two percent. As a result of President Frank G. Pogue's plan to recapture the out-of-state student market lost earlier to hefty tuition hikes, out-of-state enrollment in 2000 increased by more than 26 percent.

- more -

A new tradition was established as the University celebrated its first-ever Founder's Day in conjunction with the fall 2000 University-wide Convocation as the kick-off event for the Campaign to Renovate Academy Hall, the school's first building and one of the oldest Normal School buildings in the United States still standing.

Another tradition inaugurated during the first year of the new millennium was the Frank G. Pogue Honors Scholarship Luncheon, an annual event that will enhance the University's ability to provide greater financial support for Edinboro's best and brightest students through scholarships.

The year 2000 also marked the 25th anniversary of Edinboro's Office for Students with Disabilities. For more than a quarter-century, the University has sustained a commitment to educating and serving students with disabilities that is unmatched in Pennsylvania, and, in fact, was ranked by U.S. News and World Report, Mobility magazine and WE magazine as one of the top 10 universities in the country for its programs and services for these special campus citizens.

As Edinboro University joined the nation and the world to share the arrival of the new century and millennium, a "Century of Civility" theme and initiative was established to encourage each member of the Edinboro Family to consider his or her role in promoting – and living – civil ideals and actions in every aspect of life. In addition, President Frank Pogue enjoyed the singular honor of serving as chairperson of the Erie County "Together 2000" Millennium Commission. The "Century of Civility" theme has been expanded for the second year of the 21st century to "Enabling Access to Academic Excellence in a Civil Community," a theme that underscores the mission and values of Edinboro University, northwestern Pennsylvania's only fully public institution of higher education.

As we continue to attend to our mission in a world where the only constant is change, the Edinboro University Family again thanks its many friends for their ongoing support and the promise of continued support as together we shape the future.

Edinboro University of Pennsylvania was honored with the presence of two honorary degree recipients at its winter 2000 commencement. With Edinboro University President Dr. Frank G. Pogue (center) are Dr. John Hope Franklin (left) and Sir George A. O. Alleyne, M.D. Franklin is the James B. Duke professor emeritus of history at the Duke University School of Law and the nation's foremost historian on the American South. President Bill Clinton awarded him the Presidential Medal of Freedom in 1995 and appointed him to chair the advisory board for "One America: The President's Initiative on Race." An internationally acclaimed physician and scholar, Alleyne is director of the Pan American Sanitary Bureau, Pan American Health Organization, Regional Office of the World Health Organization for the Americas. The recipient of numerous international awards, he was knighted in 1990 by Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II for his services to medicine. Both Franklin and Alleyne received the honorary degree Doctor of Public Service.

EDINBORO TO HOST MARTIN LUTHER KING, JR. AWARDS LUNCHEON

Edinboro University of Pennsylvania will again celebrate the memory and living legacy of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., at the Fifth Annual President's Martin Luther King, Jr. Awards Luncheon on Thursday, February 1, at noon in the Van Houten Dining Hall. The luncheon begins the University's month-long series of events observing Black History Month.

Edinboro University President Dr. Frank G. Pogue will present the awards to three prominent citizens of the region: Ms. Esther L. Bush, Mr. Gary N. Horton, and Rev. Herlies Murphy. The award presentations are the highlight of the luncheon program that each year honors the memory of Dr. King and his lifetime accomplishments.

ESTHER L. BUSH is the president and CEO of the Urban League of Pittsburgh. She has been a force for positive change in the greater Pittsburgh community and is recognized nationally as a strong and vocal advocate for economic and social equality issues. Her Urban League career began in 1980 with the National Urban League's Labor Education and Advancement Program. She later served as the director of the New York Urban League's Staten Island and Manhattan branches before coming home to Pittsburgh in 1994. She has served on Gov. Ridge's Law Enforcement and Community Relations Task Force and Commission on Academic Standards, the Allegheny County Commission for Workforce Excellence, the Youth Crime Prevention Council, and currently serves on the boards of the University of Pittsburgh Medical Center, the Carnegie Library and the Pittsburgh Cultural Trust.

GARY N. HORTON is executive director of the newly-formed Urban Erie Community Development Corporation, a service delivery agency for federal, state, local and private assistance to distressed, low income neighborhoods. He was Erie Mayor Joyce Savocchio's special assistant for ten years and has held positions with GECAC as director of Housing and Economic Development, the Governor's Office of Budget and Administration as an administrative officer, and as a cooperative education intern with the U.S. Department of Health Education and Welfare in Washington. His many civic and community associations include the Quality of Life Learning Center where he is board chairman, the Erie NAACP, Leadership Erie, CALL, Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity, Minority Political Caucus, Gannon University Small Business Development Center, Greater Erie Minority Trade Commission, St. James AME Church, and as organizer of "Salute to Black Businesses." For the past decade, he has hosted an annual memorial to Dr. King in the Erie City Hall lobby and invited school children from across the city to participate in the ceremony.

REV. HERLIES MURPHY entered the ministry in 1976 and was ordained at the Starlight Baptist Church in Cleveland. That same year he was made pastor of his first church, the Community Missionary Baptist Church in Erie. He is the former president of IMAGE (Interdenominational Ministerial Alliance of Greater Erie), now the African American Concerned Clergy of Erie, and formerly the chairman of the East Side Ministry of Erie. He serves on the board of the Holiday Committee of Erie's Martin Luther King Center, and is president of the Trustee Board of the Ohio Baptist State Convention. He is the founder, organizer and president of "Walking in Black History," the program he created in 1991 to educate children and adults about the civil rights movement through visits to the cities of Birmingham, Montgomery, Selma and Tuskegee in Alabama, and Atlanta, the birthplace and final resting site of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. He has also been instrumental in organizing clergy from more than 25 Erie churches to start a legal defense fund to help African Americans.

Pogue created the President's Martin Luther King, Jr. Awards during the first year of his presidency at Edinboro University to acknowledge and recognize individuals in the region who exemplify the spirit, teachings and ideals of Dr. King. The annual awards luncheon, now in its fifth year, is held to bring people together to celebrate cooperation, optimism, and selfless service to all citizens of the community, he said.

“Our goal is to make each year’s event another fitting tribute to this extraordinary man as we remember and honor his uncommon commitment to the right of all people to a life without discrimination, bigotry and violence,” said Pogue.

Other activities at Thursday’s luncheon will include: recognition of the winners of the University’s Martin Luther King, Jr. Essay Contest, the 2000 Erie Peace and Justice Center Essay Contest, and the Young Columbus Contest; a performance by the United Voices of Edinboro Choir; and dramatic readings from Dr. King’s remarks when accepting the 1964 Nobel Peace Prize.

The three award recipients were recommended by the President’s Martin Luther King, Jr. Awards Board from nominations submitted by the Edinboro University Family. The board is a committee of faculty, staff, administrators and students chaired by Georj Lewis, director of the University’s Multicultural Programs Office.

Past recipients have included: attorney Larry Meredith and Fred L. Williams (1997); Reuben Butler, Celestine Bell Davis and Dr. Vincent Jenco (1998); Dr. Gertrude A. Barber, Bishop William R. Clark and R. Benjamin Wiley (1999); and Rev. Jesse L. McFarland, Acquanetta Osborne and Melvin Witherspoon (2000).

The family of the late Amy Marie Hock Emmons, an Edinboro University of Pennsylvania alumna, stands by the pin oak tree planted and recently dedicated in her memory near Compton Hall and the Gov. George Leader Speech and Hearing Center. Family members, from left, mother-in-law Jackie Yost, husband Jim Emmons, father David Hock, and mother Delores Hock came to the Edinboro campus from Lightstreet, Pa., for the dedication ceremony. A 1998 Bloomsburg University alumna and May 2000 graduate of Edinboro's master's program in speech-language pathology, Amy returned to eastern Pennsylvania after graduation where she and Jim Emmons were married and where she was employed by White Rehabilitation at the Millville Health Care Center and the Orangeville Nursing and Rehabilitation Center. She was killed in a tragic vehicle accident last October. The plaque for the tree displayed at the memorial gathering reads simply, "In Memory of Amy Hock Emmons, Class of 2000, Speech-Language Pathology."

EDINBORO CHAMBER PLAYERS TO PRESENT
“BROADWAY AND CASUAL CLASSICS”

The Edinboro University Chamber Players will present “Broadway and Casual Classics” on Monday, Jan. 22, at 7:30 p.m. at the Hirt Auditorium of the Blasco Memorial Library.

“This exciting program showcases Broadway songs as well as classical pieces written in a jazz style – it’s sure to be a crowd pleaser,” said concert organizer Kristine Denton of Edinboro University of Pennsylvania’s music department. Voice professors Anne Wintle and Bridget Foley Steele will be joined by Jason Steele, Edinboro University graduate and member of the Pittsburgh Opera Chorus, in selections from popular Broadway shows.

Professor David Sublette, assisted by Edinboro percussion major Thomas Lipscomb, will be featured in the “Clarinet Concerto” written by jazz legend Artie Shaw. Professor and flutist LeAnne Wistrom will perform the “Sonata Latino” by jazz composer Mike Mower. Pianist Denton will accompany all performers.

“Broadway and Casual Classics” is presented as part of the Edinboro University and Blasco Memorial Library Concert Series and is free and open to the public. Sponsors include PNC Bank, Erie County Public Library, Erie Endowment for the Arts, Froess Pianos and Keyboards, Yamaha Pianos, Romolo Chocolates, Friends of the Library, and Edinboro University of Pennsylvania.

Seating is available on a first-come, first-served basis. For further information, contact Edinboro University’s music department at 814-732-2555 or Carol Gettinger of the Erie County Public Library at 814-451-7086.

TED KENNEDY, JR., TO APPEAR IN ERIE AND EDINBORO

America's leading disability rights advocate, Ted Kennedy, Jr., will appear in Erie and Edinboro on Wednesday, Jan. 24, for two events sponsored by Edinboro University of Pennsylvania. Kennedy will be the featured speaker for the second annual Frank G. Pogue Honors Scholarship Luncheon, which will be held at the Shrine Club beginning at 11:45 a.m. on that day. Kennedy is expected to present "Facing the Challenge," a compelling look at what he calls the "myth of disability." He will also speak at 8 p.m. Edinboro University's Memorial Auditorium.

Since losing one of his legs to bone cancer at the age of 12, Kennedy has devoted much of his professional and personal energy to working as an advocate for the civil rights of people with disabilities.

For the past several years, Kennedy has lectured widely throughout the world about his experiences with cancer and his views about how to approach life with a disabling condition. He also frequently lectures on such topics as the civil rights movement from a disability perspective, health care reform, and other related topics.

A graduate of Wesleyan University, Kennedy also holds a master's degree from Yale University's School of Forestry and Environmental Studies. Much of his interest is now focused on studying the environmental factors which lead to disease and disability.

Kennedy has served as a teaching fellow on disability policy at Harvard University's John F. Kennedy School of Government. On the national level, he served for four years on the executive committee of the President's Committee on Employment of People with Disabilities.

He received his J.D. in 1997 from the University of Connecticut School of Law. He now practices in the areas of health law and disability law at the New Haven, Connecticut, law firm of Wiggin & Dana. His recent appointment to the board of the state of Connecticut's office of protection and advocacy for persons with disabilities ensures his active participation in disability and health-related issues.

Kennedy is married to Katherine G. Kennedy, M.D., an assistant clinical professor of psychiatry at the Yale University School of Medicine. Together, they are the parents of Kiley Elizabeth Kennedy and Edward M. Kennedy III.

For tickets for the scholarship luncheon, call Edinboro University's Development and Marketing Department at (814) 732-2558. Tickets for the Kennedy lecture at Edinboro University are available from the University's Cultural Affairs Office at (814) 732-2518.

EDINBORO'S GERALD JACKSON RECEIVES NATIONAL HONOR

Dr. Gerald Jackson, director of the Act 101 Program at Edinboro University of Pennsylvania, has been recognized for his outstanding work on behalf of first-year students at Edinboro by the National Resource Center for the First-Year Experience and Students in Transition at the University of South Carolina. From 185 nominations, Jackson was one of the nine semifinalists in the Center's annual campaign to recognize first-year student advocates.

In acknowledging Jackson's selection, the Center cited that his nomination attested to the respect and admiration he has gained on his campus for the creative ways in which he works to enhance the academic and social success of first-year students. His name will be listed on the honor roll of advocate nominees in the awards ceremony program for the 20th Annual National Conference on the First-Year Experience, which is being held in Houston in February.

Jackson was nominated for the recognition by Dr. Richard Arnold, associate to the president for equity and special programs at Edinboro University.

Edinboro University of Pennsylvania has announced that Kelly C. Kirdahy, of Edinboro, is the recipient of the Clarence C. and Cora Crawford Scholarship.

The Clarence C. and Cora Crawford Scholarship is valued at $1500 annually. It is made available through contributions made to Edinboro University by Mr. D. Neal Manross in memory of Dr. and Mrs. Crawford. Dr. and Mrs. Crawford originally came to Edinboro State Normal School in the Fall of 1918. He was the Vice-Principal and an instructor of math. He became the first President of Edinboro State Teachers College in September, 1929. He resigned as President in 1934 due to failing health, but continued to teach. He retired in 1940 and they continued to live in Edinboro. Dr. Crawford was accepted by faculty and students as a scholar and efficient administrator. He was highly respected in the community and appreciated as friend. He helped many students financially so they could attend school. Years later, Alumni contributed to a fund to provide the Crawfords with a pension---most of their retirement fund had been used helping others. Dr. Crawford died in 1942 and Mrs. Crawford died less than a year later.

Kelly is the daughter of Thomas and Sonia Kirdahy. She is a graduate of General McLane High School and a Nursing major at Edinboro.
