FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

EDINBORO UNIVERSITY HOSTS THE BALMORAL
SCHOOL OF PIPING AND DRUMMING

Edinboro University of Pennsylvania will host the 17th annual Balmoral School of Piping and Drumming from July 9 – July 22. Like the legendary Brigadoon emerging from the mists, the Balmoral School will bring a part of Scotland to the region when some of the world's top pipers and drummers converge on the Edinboro University campus to teach and perform during the two week session.

The central focus of the Balmoral School is to provide high-quality piping instruction for beginning, intermediate, and advanced students. More than 30 students from the United States and Canada will have the opportunity to receive highly-focused instruction from master pipers. This year's school will feature the musical and instructional talents of Pipe-Major Ian McLellan, BEM, of Clydebank, Scotland; Scot Walker of Emmaus, Pa.; and George Balderose of Pittsburgh.

Pipe-Major McLellan has led the Strathclyde Police Pipe Band to 12 world championships, seven consecutively. Walker was rated the number one overall solo piping competitor for seven out of eight years by the Eastern U.S. Pipe Band Association. Balderose is an award-winning smallpipe player who has performed with the Pittsburgh Symphony and the N.Y. Metropolitan Museum of Art. Balderose is also the director of the Balmoral Schools. He founded the program in 1978 and brought it to Edinboro in 1979 where it has been held every summer since then.

The annual highlight of the school is the free public concert sponsored by Edinboro University and The Balmoral School of Piping. This year's Scottish Bagpipe Concert will feature performances by McLellan, Walker, and Balderose. The concert will be held at Edinboro University's Memorial Auditorium on Thursday, July 13, at 8 p.m. For more information about the concert, contact the university's public relations department at (814) 732-2745. Anyone wishing further information about the Balmoral School, a non-profit, tax exempt school, please contact George Balderose at (412) 323-2707.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

EDINBORO UNIVERSITY TO HOST THE BALMORAL
SCHOOL OF PIPING AND DRUMMING

Edinboro University of Pennsylvania will host the 16th annual Balmoral School of Piping and Drumming from July 10-July 23. The central focus of the Balmoral School is to provide high-quality piping instruction for beginning, intermediate, and advanced students. The students will have the opportunity to receive highly-focused instruction from master pipers. This year's school will feature the musical and instructional talents of pipe major Ian Morrison, and bagpipe musicians Jimmy Anderson, Mike Cusack, and John McDougall.

Pipe major Ian Morrison, of the Isle of Lewis, Outer Hebrides, once served as a boy piper in the Lovat Scouts before joining the Queen's Own Highlanders in 1963. Morrison studied under Donald MacLeod while completing the Pipe-Major's course at Edinburgh Castle in 1968. He won the Gold Medal at the Northern Meeting in Inverness in 1969. From 1975 until 1980 Morrison served as Pipe Major of the 1st BN Queens Own Highlanders. In the 80's he served as Pipe Major of the Scottish Division School of Music at Aberdeen where he was responsible for training all young pipers before they joined their regiments. Morrison has won most of the major Scottish Piping Championships. As well as being a talented composer, Morrison currently teaches more than 70 students on the Isle of Lewis.

Jimmy Anderson, Master of the Scottish Smallpipes, hails from Larbert, Scotland. He began his training as a Highland piper with Bob Hardie and served with the Muirhead Pipe Band for 12 years, winning the world championship with them three times. As a professional pipe instructor, he taught the Oman Public Pipe Band for three years in the mid '80's. He also worked for many years with local schools. Anderson started playing the Small and Lowland pipes almost 20 years ago. For nine years he performed with the Scottish folk group Clutha. He is currently a full-time Small and Lowland pipe maker and instructor.

Mike Cusack teaches the pipes at St. Thomas Episcopal School in Houston, Texas, where he is also currently band director. Under his directorship the band won the 1985 Juvenile World Pipe Band Championship. Cusack's individual record includes winning the St. Andrews Society of Philadelphia Gold Medal for Open Piobaireachd three times. He is also the first American to win major solo piping championships in Scotland including the Dunvegan Medal at Skye in 1983, the Gold Medal at Oban in 1984 and 1989, and the Gold Medal at Inverness in 1987. At the Glenfiddich Invitational in 1987, Cusack also won the March, Strathspey, and Reel Competition.

John McDougall, from Kincaig, Scotland, has been the winner of the Inverness and Oban Gold Medals and Gold Clasps. He has received the Braemar Gold Medal three times, the Silver Chanter twice, the Dunvegan Medal, and the Oban five times. McDougall served as a piper with the Queens Own Cameron Highlanders and then joined the Edinburgh Police Pipe Band as well as the Invergordon Distillery Pipe Band. He regularly broadcasts as a soloist on the BBC piping programs. McDougall currently is the piping instructor for ten schools in the Badenoch area of Inverness-shire.

The director of the Balmoral Schools is George Balderose of Pittsburgh. Balderose founded the program in 1978 and brought it to Edinboro in 1979 where it has been held every summer since then. The school attracts piping students from the United States and Canada for up to two weeks of intensive training.

The annual highlight of the school is the free public concert sponsored by Edinboro University and The Balmoral School of Piping. This year's concert will feature solo performances by the instructors of the school, four of the world's most renowned Bagpipe musicians. The concert will be held on Thursday, July 21, at 8 p.m. in the University Center on the Edinboro campus.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

DONNA NICHOLAS RECEIVES FELLOWSHIP TO STUDY JAPANESE WOMEN CERAMISTS

The Asian Cultural Council has awarded a $10,000 fellowship to Edinboro resident Donna Nicholas to allow her to complete her research this fall on women ceramists in Japan. A ceramics professor at Edinboro University of Pennsylvania, Nicholas visited Japan last year for five weeks as the first part of her research project. In announcing the award, the Asian Cultural Council said the grant recognizes her outstanding work to date.

This award, coupled with a State System of Higher Education faculty development grant she received earlier this year, will allow Nicholas to spend two months in Japan, meeting and observing women ceramic artists in the far reaches of the Japanese islands. She said the grants are deeply appreciated, especially in light of the dollar's reduced purchasing power in Japan. During last year's trip, her visit was limited to the metropolitan areas of Tokyo and Kyoto. She also plans to spend a week in Malaysia, lecturing at the ITM School of Art and Design.

Nicholas became a ceramist through her interest in Japanese culture which she experienced during a five-year stay there. She had gone to Japan following graduation from college to teach English at Doshisha Women's College in Kyoto.

Dear Professor Nicholas:

I am pleased to confirm that at their meeting of June 5, 1995, the trustees of the Asian Cultural Council approved a partial two-month fellowship in the amount of $10,000.00 to enable you to undertake research in fall 1995 on women ceramists in Japan.

This grant is being made in recognition of your outstanding work to date and is intended to provide you with training or experience which will be of value in fulfilling your professional responsibilities. Your grant budget is itemized in Attachment A, and the grant reporting requirements are described in Attachment B.

As soon as you have informed us of your travel schedule, we can arrange to issue an air ticket to you and then transmit the balance of your grant funds shortly before your departure. If you prefer to make your own travel arrangements, however, we can transmit the full grant award directly to you.

Please sign and return the enclosed copy of this letter to indicate your acceptance of the terms of the award.

This brings congratulations and best wishes.

Sincerely,

Ralph Samuelson
Director

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

NEW ALUMNI HOUSE DEDICATED AT EDINBORO UNIVERSITY

Thirteen months after breaking ground, Edinboro University of Pennsylvania's new Alumni House was officially dedicated at ribbon-cutting ceremonies during the University's recent Alumni Weekend.

"We have needed a modern and spacious facility for our many alumni programs and activities for a number of years," said Edinboro University President Foster F. Diebold, "and we're very excited about the new building and the opportunities it and the site offer."

Diebold said that the new Alumni House, which is located next door to the more than 100-year-old President's Residence on Meadville Street in the Borough of Edinboro, is also along the traditional, decades-old route of the annual Homecoming parade.

"The new home of the Alumni Affairs Office and the Alumni Association also sits directly across the street from the hub of the campus formed by Memorial Auditorium, Doucette Hall and its Bruce Gallery, the Center for Performing Arts, and the administration offices in Reeder Hall . . . all buildings with which many Edinboro alumni identify," Diebold said. "In fact, the building we now call the Center for Performing Arts was originally a gymnasium for students at the State Normal School, although probably three or four generations of Edinboro alumni later knew it as the 'Old College Union.'"

Ceremonial ground breaking for the $350,000 building, which was made possible by a gift of the land by Edinboro University Services, Inc., took place on May 23, 1994. The three-story structure now holds office and work space for the Alumni Office, a conference room for the Alumni Association, a kitchenette, and a spacious multi-purpose area for meetings, receptions and other activities. The top floor, yet to be finished, will eventually house the University's Institutional Advancement Office. General contractor for the site was Ron Meeder Construction of Fairview.

For the last several decades, offices of Alumni Affairs and the Alumni Association were housed in Academy Hall, the first classroom building of the former Edinboro Academy. Academy Hall, built in 1857 with $3,000 in contributions from Edinboro citizens, is the oldest normal school building still standing in Pennsylvania, and it may also be the oldest remaining normal school building in the U.S. The term "normal school" was in popular use during the mid- and late-1800s to denote institutions whose primary mission was teacher training.

The new Alumni House is a fitting home for an organization that has been an active part of the school since 1919 when its first alumni register was published. Today the Alumni Association provides scholarships for Edinboro students, purchases instructional equipment for the University, and supports the University community in a variety of other ways. The Association holds the annual spring Reunion and summer Legacy weekends, conducts the Distinguished Alumni and Art Achievement awards programs, hosts regional gatherings for Edinboro alumni across Pennsylvania and the nation, provides special programming for Homecoming weekend, and sponsors the "Senior Send-off" celebration after each Commencement ceremony.

Diebold had high praise for the leadership of the Alumni Association and their building committee for the part they played in Edinboro University's history, calling it "a part that will leave a mark for generations of alumni to come.

"Rarely during the 16 years of my presidency have I had the fortune to see a completely new structure erected from the ground up, let alone a much-needed building that will serve as both a headquarters and home to tens of thousands of Edinboro alumni across the nation and the world," Diebold said. "The role of our alumni is one of the most important at Edinboro University, and the new Alumni House will enhance the visibility of the Alumni Association to the public and help draw alumni back to the campus."

Three members of the Alumni Association Board of Directors served on the Alumni House building committee: Andrea Stevenson-Conner, incoming Association vice president and committee chair; Daniel Higham, incoming Association secretary; and board member Steven Kohler. Stevenson-Conner recently joined the sales staff of Jet Broadcasting's Froggy 94

radio in Erie. Higham is vice president, co-owner and plant manager at U.S. Bronze Foundry and Machine, Inc., in Meadville. Kohler is executive director of the Meadville Area Industrial Commission and Redevelopment Authority.

NEW ALUMNI HOUSE DEDICATED AT EDINBORO UNIVERSITY

Thirteen months after breaking ground, Edinboro University of Pennsylvania's new Alumni House was officially dedicated at ribbon-cutting ceremonies during the University's recent Alumni Weekend.

"We have needed a modern and spacious facility for our many alumni programs and activities for a number of years," said Edinboro University President Foster F. Diebold, "and we're very excited about the new building and the opportunities it and the site offer."

Diebold said that the new Alumni House, which is located next door to the more than 100-year-old President's Residence on Meadville Street in the Borough of Edinboro, is also along the traditional, decades-old route of the annual Homecoming parade.

"The new home of the Alumni Affairs Office and the Alumni Association also sits directly across the street from the hub of the campus formed by Memorial Auditorium, Doucette Hall and its Bruce Gallery, the Center for Performing Arts, and the administration offices in Reeder Hall . . . all buildings with which many Edinboro alumni identify," Diebold said. "In fact, the building we now call the Center for Performing Arts was originally a gymnasium for students at the State Normal School, although probably three or four generations of Edinboro alumni later knew it as the 'Old College Union.'"

Ceremonial ground breaking for the $350,000 building, which was made possible by a gift of the land by Edinboro University Services, Inc., took place on May 23, 1994. The three-story structure now holds office and work space for the Alumni Office, a conference room for the Alumni Association, a kitchenette, and a spacious multi-purpose area for meetings, receptions and other activities. The top floor, yet to be finished, will eventually house the University's Institutional Advancement Office. General contractor for the site was Ron Meeder Construction of Fairview.

For the last several decades, offices of Alumni Affairs and the Alumni Association were housed in Academy Hall, the first classroom building of the former Edinboro Academy. Academy Hall, built in 1857 with $3,000 in contributions from Edinboro citizens, is the oldest normal school building still standing in Pennsylvania, and it may also be the oldest remaining normal school building in the U.S. The term "normal school" was in popular use during the mid- and late-1800s to denote institutions whose primary mission was teacher training.

The new Alumni House is a fitting home for an organization that has been an active part of the school since 1919 when its first alumni register was published. Today the Alumni Association provides scholarships for Edinboro students, purchases instructional equipment for the University, and supports the University community in a variety of other ways. The Association holds the annual spring Reunion and summer Legacy weekends, conducts the Distinguished Alumni and Art Achievement awards programs, hosts regional gatherings for Edinboro alumni across Pennsylvania and the nation, provides special programming for Homecoming weekend, and sponsors the "Senior Send-off" celebration after each Commencement ceremony.

Diebold had high praise for the leadership of the Alumni Association and their building committee for the part they played in Edinboro University's history, calling it "a part that will leave a mark for generations of alumni to come.

"Rarely during the 16 years of my presidency have I had the fortune to see a completely new structure erected from the ground up, let alone a much-needed building that will serve as both a headquarters and home to tens of thousands of Edinboro alumni across the nation and the world," Diebold said. "The role of our alumni is one of the most important at Edinboro University, and the new Alumni House will enhance the visibility of the Alumni Association to the public and help draw alumni back to the campus."

Three members of the Alumni Association Board of Directors served on the Alumni House building committee: Andrea Stevenson-Conner, incoming Association vice president and committee chair; Daniel Higham, incoming Association secretary; and board member Steven Kohler. Stevenson-Conner recently joined the sales staff of Jet Broadcasting's Froggy 94

radio in Erie. Higham is vice president, co-owner and plant manager at U.S. Bronze Foundry and Machine, Inc., in Meadville. Kohler is executive director of the Meadville Area Industrial Commission and Redevelopment Authority.

EDINBORO UNIVERSITY TO HOST
WESTINGHOUSE SCIENCE AND MATH PROGRAM

Up to 20 students from Pittsburgh high schools will spend the week of June 26-30 on the Edinboro University campus learning firsthand about careers in science and mathematics.

Edinboro University for the second year will host a week-long summer science experience for 11th graders enrolled in the innovative Westinghouse Science and Math (SAM) Program at George Westinghouse High School in Pittsburgh. SAM – a unique, four-part partnership program among Westinghouse High School, the Westinghouse Electric Corporation, Carnegie Mellon University and Edinboro University of Pennsylvania – encourages minority youth to pursue professions in science-related fields. SAM also provides an opportunity for the participating institutions to address instructional needs for minority youth in the fields of science and technology.

The Westinghouse Electric Corporation provides grant-funded program incentives ranging from scholarship assistance to year-round learning and developmental opportunities for both students and faculty. Edinboro and Carnegie Mellon provide a series of summer science enrichment experiences to give laboratory-centered instruction and monitored research opportunities that emphasize scientific process skills.

The five days at Edinboro will focus on practical experiences in physics and engineering and will include laboratory sessions in the Miller School computer lab, a "Physics Olympics," and other experiments and activities. An awards luncheon at noon on Friday, June 30, in Van Houten Dining Hall will cap the week of events.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

EDINBORO UNIVERSITY HONORS DISTINGUISHED ALUMNI

Six Edinboro University of Pennsylvania alumni were recently named distinguished alumni at a special luncheon ceremony that highlighted the University's 1995 Alumni Reunion Weekend.

The six honored were: Richard Bly, president of the Holgate Toy Co.; Elizabeth "Libby" Kraftician, president and co-founder of Touchstone Research Laboratory, Ltd.; Dr. Sharon Moore, professor of sociology and social work at Seton Hill College; Dr. Gilbert Stefanides, principal of the Hidden Oaks Middle School, Palm City, Fla.; Dr. Frank Musiek, director of audiology at the Dartmouth-Hitchcock Medical School; and Dr. Donald Nuss, director of the Center for Agricultural Biotechnology, University of Maryland Biotechnology Institute.

The awards were presented in the categories of business and industry, social science, education, and the natural sciences.

Richard Bly, honored in the business and industry category, is a 1977 Edinboro graduate. After a brief career in regional planning and economic development, he restarted the Holgate Toy Co. in Kane, Pa. The original Holgate Toy Co. was established in 1929 and its toys were among the most recognizable toy lines in the U.S. for nearly four decades before the company went out of production in the 1960s. Bly learned that he could use the Holgate name and original designs and by 1989, Holgate was again in production with its line of preschool, educational, hardwood toys and children's furniture. The most familiar Holgate product is the bright red and yellow Neighborhood Trolley from television's Mr. Rogers' Neighborhood. Bly's company, which now employs more than 30 people, also has a division that manufactures hardwood components for the furniture industry, industrial users and department stores.

Elizabeth "Libby" Kraftician, the second 1995 business and industry honoree, graduated from Edinboro in 1970, and is president and co-founder of Touchstone Research Laboratory, Ltd., located in Triadelphia, W. Va. In 1980, Kraftician, armed with a $101 rescued-from-scrap, refrigerator-sized microscope, decided to start her own applied research laboratory in the unheated basement of a former Carmelite monastery in Wheeling, W. Va. She and a fellow graduate student at Ohio State, Brian Joseph (now her husband), were determined to transform their $101 investment into a new strategy to inject technology into the nation's manufacturing base to boost global competitiveness, quality and new product development. Today Touchstone Research Laboratory employs 40 engineers and scientists, has $10 million in scientific equipment, and is considered one of the leading applied research labs in the U.S., as well as one of the most successful and innovative small companies. In 1992 and 1993, Touchstone was ranked by Inc. magazine as one of the fastest growing private companies in the country. In 1994 it received the "National Blue Chip Enterprise Award," the top business honor given by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, as well as the Chamber's Malcolm Baldrige Award for small business.

Dr. Sharon Moore, an assistant professor of sociology and social work at Seton Hill College in Greensburg, Pa., where she is also a mentor and adviser to the college's Association of Black Collegiates, is the 1995 distinguished alumni award honoree in social science. A 1981 Edinboro graduate, Moore chairs a Christian Youth Outreach group in Clairton, Pa., whose mission is to provide educational, social, cultural, recreational and religious outlets and opportunities for "at risk" youth. For several years she also directed the christian education program in her local church assembly and still directs vacation Bible school. The programs are open to all Clairton youth. The author of several publications on substance abuse treatment for Black male adolescents and the role of the African-American church in community empowerment, Moore's United Christian Youth Outreach group in Clairton was awarded a 1994 Community Recognition/Neighborhood Appreciation Award by the U.S. House of Representatives.

Dr. Gilbert Stefanides is the 1995 distinguished alumni in the field of education. A 1967 Edinboro graduate, Stefanides is currently the principal of Hidden Oaks Middle School in Palm City, Fla. In his previous position as principal of the Conway Middle School, Conway, S.C., Stefanides developed and implemented a computer-assisted "Writing Across the Curriculum" (WAC) program which gained statewide and national recognition for the school, its students and staff, and the surrounding community. His WAC initiative, as well as others that created an innovative curriculum and alternative assessment methods in science and math, put Conway Middle School in an elite group of schools nationwide as a 1993 winner in the U.S. Dept. of Education's Blue Ribbon School recognition program. The school also achieved similar honors from the state of South Carolina and the state's Principals' Association as "Palmetto's Finest" for total school program accomplishment.

Dr. Frank Musiek, class of 1968, was one of two recipients of a distinguished alumni award in the field of natural sciences. Musiek is the director of audiology at Dartmouth College's Dartmouth-Hitchcock Medical School and a professor of otolaryngology, audiology and neurology at the school. He is one of the nation's foremost researchers and clinicians in the area of brain function related to hearing, and his research on the auditory brainstem response led to establishing a highly sensitive technique for detecting acoustic tumors and other neuroauditory disorders. Among his current projects is work in a relatively new area called otoacoustic emissions testing, which examines the subaudible sounds emitted by the inner ear in persons with normal or near normal hearing.

Dr. Donald Nuss, class of 1969, the second distinguished alumni award recipient in the natural sciences, recently accepted the position of director and professor, Center for Agricultural Biotechnology, University of Maryland Biotechnology Institute. In his previous position as head of the molecular virology laboratory at the Roche Institute in Nutley, N.J., Nuss and his team of researchers devised a way to synthesize viruses which attack the fungi that have destroyed the American chestnut tree, a major source of lumber, chemicals and food. His research has been reported as a discovery of monumental proportions, as the disappearance of the chestnut has had a major impact on the forest ecosystems of North America. Nuss estimated that once the testing and field trials have begun and the synthetic viruses are introduced, the destructive fungi should be under control within five years. If the chestnut trials are successful, Nuss says, treatments for fungul diseases on the North American elm and for cash crops such as corn, wheat and potatoes could be available by the turn of the century.

The awards were presented in a special luncheon ceremony by outgoing Alumni Association president David Sheneman '64, and John (Jack) E. Martin, Edinboro University's associate vice president for institutional advancement. Hostess of ceremonies for the event was Janet Bowker '84, the University's director of alumni affairs.

Edinboro University has honored 58 distinguished alumni since the program began in 1976.

ELIZABETH "LIBBY" KRAFTICIAN, the second 1995 business and industry honoree, graduated from Edinboro in 1970, and is president and co-founder of Touchstone Research Laboratory, Ltd., located in Triadelphia, W.Va. In 1980, Kraftician, armed with a $101 rescued-from-scrap, refrigerator-sized microscope, decided to start her own applied research laboratory in the unheated basement of a former Carmelite monastery in Wheeling, W.Va. She and a fellow graduate student at Ohio State, Brian Joseph (now her husband), were determined to transform their $101 investment into a new strategy to inject technology into the nation's manufacturing base to boost global competitiveness, quality and new product development. Today Touchstone Research Laboratory employs 40 engineers and scientists, has $10 million in scientific equipment, and is considered one of the leading applied research labs in the U.S., as well as one of the most successful and innovative small companies. In 1992 and 1993, Touchstone was ranked by Inc. magazine as one of the fastest growing private companies in the country. ~~and~~ ^I In 1994, ^{it} received the "National Blue Chip Enterprise Award," the top business honor given by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, as well as the Chamber's Malcolm Baldrige Award for small business.

DR. SHARON MOORE, an assistant professor of sociology and social work at Seton Hill College in Greensburg, Pa., where she is also a mentor and adviser to the college's Association of Black Collegiates, is the 1995 distinguished alumni award honoree in social science. A 1981 Edinboro graduate, Moore chairs a Christian Youth Outreach group in Clairton, Pa., whose mission is to provide educational, social, cultural, recreational and religious outlets and opportunities for "at risk" youth. For several years she also directed the Christian education program in her local church assembly and still directs vacation Bible school. The programs are open to all Clairton youth. The author of several publications on substance abuse treatment for Black male adolescents and the role of the African-American church in community empowerment, Moore's United Christian Youth Outreach group in Clairton was awarded a 1994 Community Recognition/Neighborhood Appreciation Award by the U.S. House of Representatives.

DR. GILBERT STEFANIDES is the 1995 distinguished alumni in the field of education. A 1967 Edinboro graduate, Stefanides is currently the principal of Hidden Oaks Middle School in Palm City, Fla. In his previous position as principal of the Conway Middle School, Conway, S.C., Stefanides developed and implemented a computer-assisted "Writing Across the Curriculum" (WAC) program which gained statewide and national recognition for the school, its students and staff, and the surrounding community. His WAC initiative, as well as others that created an innovative curriculum and alternative assessment methods in science and math, put Conway Middle School in an elite group of schools nationwide as a 1993 winner in the U.S. Dept. of Education's Blue Ribbon School recognition program. The school also achieved similar honors from the State of South Carolina and ^{THE STATE'S} ~~its statewide~~ Principals' Association as "Palmetto's Finest" for total school program accomplishment.

DR. FRANK MUSIEK, class of 1968, was one of two recipients of a distinguished alumni award in the field of natural sciences. Musiek is the director of audiology at Dartmouth College's Dartmouth-Hitchcock Medical School and a professor of otolaryngology, audiology and neurology at the school. He is one of the nation's foremost researchers and clinicians in the area of brain function related to hearing, and his research on the auditory brainstem response led to establishing a highly sensitive technique for detecting acoustic tumors and other neuroauditory disorders. Among his current projects is work in a relatively new area called otoacoustic emissions testing, which examines the subaudible sounds emitted by the inner ear in persons with normal or near normal hearing.

DR. DONALD NUSS, class of 1969, the second distinguished alumni award recipient in the natural sciences, recently accepted the position of director and professor, Center for Agricultural Biotechnology, University of Maryland Biotechnology Institute. In his previous position as head of the molecular virology laboratory at the Roche Institute in Nutley, N.J. Nuss and his team of researchers devised a way to synthesize viruses which attack the fungi that have destroyed the American chestnut tree, a major source of lumber, chemicals and food. His research has been reported as a discovery of monumental proportions, as the disappearance of the chestnut has had a major impact on the forest ecosystems of North America. Nuss estimated that once the testing and field trials have begun and the synthetic viruses are introduced, the destructive fungi should be under control within five years. If the chestnut trials are successful, Nuss says, treatments for fungul diseases on the North American elm and for cash crops such as corn, wheat and potatoes could be available by the turn of the century.

The awards were presented in a special luncheon ceremony by outgoing Alumni Association president David Sheneman '64, and John (Jack) E. Martin, Edinboro University's associate vice president for institutional advancement. Hostess of ceremonies for the event was Janet Bowker '84, the University's director of alumni affairs.

Edinboro University has honored 58 distinguished alumni since the program began in 1976.

Six Edinboro University of Pennsylvania alumni were recently named distinguished alumni at a special luncheon ceremony that highlighted the school's 1995 Alumni Reunion Weekend. This six honored were Richard Bly, president of the Holgate Toy Co.; Elizabeth Kraftician, president and co-founder of the Touchstone Research Laboratory, Ltd.; Dr. Sharon Moore, professor of sociology and social work at Seton Hill College; Dr. Gilbert Stefanides, principal of the Hidden Oaks Middle School in Palm City, Fla.; Dr. Frank Musiek, director of audiology at the Dartmouth-Hitchcock Medical School; and Dr. Donald Nuss, director of the Center for Agricultural Biotechnology at the University of Maryland Biotechnology Institute.

The awards were presented in the categories of business and industry, social science, education and the natural sciences.

Bly, honored in the business and industry category, is a 1977 EUP graduate. After a brief career in regional planning and economic development, he restarted the Holigate Toy Co. in rural Kane, Pa. The original Holgate Toy Co. was established in 1929.

It's toys were among the most recognizable toy lines in the United States for nearly four decades, before the company went out of production in the 1960's. Bly learned that he could use the Holgate name and original designs. By 1989, Holgate was again in production with its line of preschool, educational, hardwood toys and children's furniture.

The most familiar Holgate product is the bright red and yellow Neighborhood Trolley from television's Mr. Rogers' Neighborhood.

Bly's company, which now employs more than 30 people, also has a division that manufactures hardwood components for the furniture industry, industrial users and department stores.

Kraftician, the second business and industry honoree this year, graduated from Edinboro in 1970. She is president and co-founder of the Touchstone Research Laboratory, Ltd., located in Triadelphia, W.V.

In 1980, Kraftician, armed with a $101 rescued-from-scrap, refrigerator-sized microscope, decided to start her own applied research laboratory in the unheated basement of a former Carmelite monastery in Wheeling, W.V. Touchstone was ranked by Inc. magazine as one of the fastest growing private companies in the country for 1992 and 1993.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

EDINBORO APPOINTS DIRECTOR OF AUXILIARY OPERATIONS

Paul Kightlinger has been appointed director of auxiliary operations at Edinboro University of Pennsylvania. He will be responsible for enhancing the services and productivity of all auxiliary services.

Prior to his appointment, Kightlinger was general manager of University Services, Inc. (USI). He has many years of retail management experience, including managing stores for Office Max, Inc. He earned a bachelor's degree in business administration from Edinboro in 1983.

As part of his assignment with the University, Kightlinger will also serve as chief operations officer for USI where he will continue to oversee operations of the University Bookstore.

"Colleges and universities historically have not been run as businesses," said Kightlinger. "But the time has come when the institution is a business and has to be run like one. I'm here to see how the process currently works and make recommendations with everyone's input. It's important to have people with business backgrounds communicate openly with the professors, directors and department chairs in the academic world."

One of the important projects Kightlinger will be working on is the creation of a debit card systems for students, which will be part of the student's identification card, to be used for dining services, bookstore purchases, vending machines, and other transactions.

Paul and his wife, Linda, reside in Harborcreek with their son, Brian. They are expecting their second child in August.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

EDINBORO UNIVERSITY STUDENTS ATTAIN ACADEMIC HONORS

One thousand four hundred thirty five students were named to the Dean's List at Edinboro University for the 1995 spring semester. The students represented 16 states which included Colorado, Connecticut, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Missouri, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Texas, Virginia, Washington, and Pennsylvania.

In order to attain this highly regarded academic honor, students must maintain a quality point average of 3.4 for the semester, complete a minimum of 12 semester hours of credit, and receive no grade lower than C in any course.

Recognized locally are the following students:

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

EDINBORO PRE-COLLEGE PROGRAM FOCUSES ON RURAL STUDENTS

Edinboro University of Pennsylvania will offer a one-day program on Saturday, July 15, for rural high school students who may have an interest in going to college. The REAP On-Track program is designed to motivate and prepare rural students for university-level study and academic success. The event is free to upcoming sophomores, juniors and seniors and their parents.

On-Track is part of the Rural Education Access Program (REAP) which is funded by the state and supported by the State System of Higher Education. On-Track was started in 1992 because northwestern Pennsylvania has the lowest rate of high school students going on to college. Since its inception, more than 100 students have participated in the program. All seniors who participated in the program graduated from high school, and 95 percent went on for postsecondary education.

The program will include career testing, student and parent panel discussions, campus tours, team building and test discussion and interpretation.

To register, contact Dr. Salene Cowher, (814) 732-2421.

Enclosed is a draft of the news release announcing the upcoming On Track program. Please feel free to make or suggest any additions, corrections or changes you wish.

Thank you.

Brian,

This looks good! I would only request the one change in the text and that rural newspapers in Crawford, Mercer, and Warren Counties also be contacted. Thanks!

Dear Guidance Counselors:

I hope you are enjoying the spring weather. Since the school year will be ending soon, we are sending along information about our summer program for upcoming sophomores, juniors and seniors.

The Rural Education Access Program - On Track program is a grant-funded project designed to attract rural students to the possibilities and advantages of higher education. Because Northwestern Pennsylvania has the lowest rate of high school students going on to college, the REAP - On Track was developed in 1992. Since the inception of On-Track at Edinboro University of Pennsylvania, over 100 different students have participated in the program. Follow-up with participants has indicated that all who were seniors graduated from high school, with 95% opting for postsecondary education.

Although funds are pending for future On-Track efforts, a summer, day-long program for students and their parents will be held on Saturday, July 15, 1995, from 9:00 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. The agenda for July 15 will include the following:

|---------------|---|
| 9:00 - 9:30 | Registration and breakfast - Butterfield Hall 137 |
| 9:30 - 11:30 | Career testing Parent panel - discussion Campus tours |
| 11:30 - 12:00 | Activity |
| 12:00 - 12:30 | Lunch |
| 12:30 - 1:30 | Student panel discussion |
| 1:30 - 2:30 | Team-building |
| 2:30 - 3:30 | Test discussion and interpretation |

The program is FREE for upcoming sophomores, juniors, seniors AND parents!

We would appreciate whatever assistance you can give us in notifying the students about this event and in helping to recruit for the program. Guidance counselors have been provided information, a poster, and a sign-up sheet for students. Superintendents were also contacted. If you know of any students who could benefit from our program, please contact us, or the guidance counselor. I will be calling your school soon. If you have any questions, contact me; my secretary, Mrs. Theresa Villella; or my work study student, Ms. Amy Francisco at (814) 732-2421. Reservations are requested by July 1, 1995.

Sincerely,

Dr. Salene Cowher,
On-Track Supervisor

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

OFFICERS, DIRECTORS ELECTED TO EDINBORO ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

Several Erie residents, a Meadville native and a number of Pittsburghers were elected to posts in the Edinboro University Alumni Association during Edinboro's recent Alumni Reunion Weekend.

The new slate of officers was installed by outgoing Alumni Association president David Sheneman, a native of Bradford, Pa., and 1964 Edinboro graduate. Sheneman, currently the director of personnel and assistant to the superintendent at the Bradford Area School District, has been the Association's president since 1991 and a board member since 1987.

Elected to a two-year term as Alumni Association president was Pittsburgher David Irlbacher, a 1973 Edinboro graduate. Irlbacher is the principal at the Mazolf Elementary School in Pittsburgh's Shaler Area School District. He holds a master's degree in school administration, as well as principal's certification, from Duquesne University and is currently enrolled in the University of Pittsburgh's Principals Academy of Western Pennsylvania. An Association director since 1987, he previously served as board secretary and vice president. Active in community affairs, Irlbacher volunteers much of his time to scouting programs and to coaching youth baseball and softball teams.

Erieite Andrea Stevenson-Conner, a 1987 Edinboro graduate, was elected to a one-year term as Alumni Association vice president. Recently joining the sales staff of Jet Broadcasting's Froggy 94 radio, she was previously a sales and product manager and community banking branch assistant with First National Bank. She is a member of the Junior League of Erie, serving as Ways and Means chairperson and was most recently chair of the Kidfest fundraiser to benefit Junior League projects and the ExpERIENCE Children's Museum. Active on the alumni board for six years, she previously served as board secretary and chaired the Building Committee for the new Alumni House project.

Pittsburgh business executive Frank Jakovac, a 1973 Edinboro graduate, was re-elected as Alumni Association treasurer, returning for a fourth term. Jakovac is president and founder of Gateway Group, Inc., a Pittsburgh-based financial services corporation specializing in commercial leasing, networking and capital funding. Gateway Group has been featured in Inc. magazine's list of the 500 fastest growing companies in the U.S., and Jakovac was highlighted in the same publication three years in a row as an Entrepreneur of the Year. Active in a variety of cultural and charitable organizations in the greater Pittsburgh area, including the Three Rivers Arts Festival, he serves on the boards of the Dan Marino Leukemia Golf Open and the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Multiple Sclerosis Society. He was named a Distinguished Alumni of Edinboro University in 1991 and has been an active alumni board member since 1990.

Daniel Higham, also a past Distinguished Alumni Award honoree, was elected to a one-year term as Alumni Association secretary. A 1970 Edinboro graduate, the Meadville native is the vice president, co-owner and plant manager of U. S. Bronze Foundry and Machine, Inc., in Meadville, having bought the company in the late-1980s when the former ABC Rail Corporation was about to close its Meadville operation. U. S. Bronze Foundry and Machine has since emerged as the most diversified bronze foundry in North America. Higham has been an active Alumni Association board director since 1992 and recently served on the Alumni House Building Committee.

Also elected to continuing three-year board terms were: James Alexander '73, systems development manager, Sequoia Pacific Voting Equipment, Inc., Jamestown, N.Y.; Alan Culbertson '71, a Charlottesville, Va., attorney and president of A. N. Culbertson and Company, Inc., a financial planning and portfolio management firm; Emily Lucarotti Evans '69, a speech therapist with the Erie City School District; and Herman Tomer '71, president of Gateway Management Services and Gateway Archives, Inc., Pittsburgh.

Elected to a one-year term as the board's newest member was Elizabeth "Betsy" Ripton '85, associate registrar of the University of Rochester. As a student at Edinboro University, she was active in the Student Government Association, serving as its president in her senior year. Ripton also holds a master's degree in industrial relations and personnel management from the London (England) School of Economics and Political Science.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

EDINBORO UNIVERSITY TO HOST
CAMPUS PROGRAM FOR MINORITY STUDENTS

Some 30 students from Erie's Central, East and Strong Vincent high schools will spend a week this summer finding out what life is like on a college campus, thanks to a new program sponsored by Edinboro University of Pennsylvania and the Erie Insurance Group.

Edinboro University will host the first annual Metropolitan Erie Intervention Plan (MEIP) Summer Experience during the week of June 19-23.

MEIP is a long-term, triad intervention program for minority youth designed to improve direct instruction of K-12 students in selected Erie schools through cooperative learning and attention to individual learning styles. It will also provide supplementary academic assistance for students in grades 5-8 and pre-collegiate experiences for minority youth.

MEIP's goals focus on developing academic values, skills and potential, strengthening parental and community involvement, and providing role models who will assist the students in the transition to adulthood.

The five days the students spend on the Edinboro campus will include seminars on study and time management skills, tours of the University's television and radio studios, sessions on financial aid and career development, a talent show, and various recreational activities. An awards luncheon at 11:30 a.m., Friday, June 23, at the Edinboro Inn will cap the week's events.

Dr. Richard Arnold, Edinboro's assistant dean of education, is the University's project manager. Funding from the Erie Insurance Group established the program, with additional support and in-kind services provided by the Erie School District, the State System of Higher Education, and Edinboro University.

Arnold said that the long-term intervention focus offered by MEIP capitalizes on Edinboro University's extensive experience working with schools and community agencies in the Erie area.

"We think it will stimulate the higher education ambitions of young men and women with potential for academic success and community leadership to achieve higher goals than they might otherwise have set or reached," said Arnold. "We may do a great deal of good for Erie youngsters who might otherwise never get a chance."

For more information, call Dr. Arnold at 814-732-2725.

EDINBORO GRAD CREATES EDINBORO EARLY SCHOOL IN MARYLAND

There are at least two ways to graduate from Edinboro. The most common way is to successfully complete four years of college at Edinboro University of Pennsylvania. The other way is to be a preschool child enrolled at the Edinboro Early School in Severna Park, Maryland.

Despite being separated by several hundred miles, both schools have something in common – Suellen Gerbracht. She founded Edinboro Early School in 1989 and named it after her alma mater, Edinboro University of Pennsylvania.

Suellen Gerbracht Notes

Erie native, Strong Vincent H.S., Graduated from Edinboro after 3 years, because she went to summer school. El ed. degree. Lived upstairs from the chief of police. First teaching job was at Cuyahoga Heights, Ohio where she taught K for one year and 1st for 4 years. She went to grad school at CWR.

She taught K in Prince George's County 3 years.

Had family. Left teaching for a while. Moved to England for 3 years.

Returned to U.S. and taught school in Maryland part time. IN 1982, she and her husband began thinking of a retirement business. They bought property in 1989 to get started. The first year they had on teacher and one aide.

The Edinboro school is now in its 6th year. It has four classes for ages 3-4-5, and it has an accredited Kindergarten program. It offers child care September to June, and it has a summer program lasting 9-10 weeks.

They now have approximately 60 children and 10 staff members. She still is teaching and plans to retire in June '96.

The subdivision the school is in is known as the Edinboro estate development, consisting of four houses and one school. Some students are there just for the school portion, which is just in the morning, half stay for the afternoon program. Usually no more than 48 students at any one time with class size kept small at 11-15.

They live in Annarundle, which is 12 miles west of Annapolis and 25 miles from D.C.

The school has the potential to grow to five classes. But there is no more room beyond that for expansion.

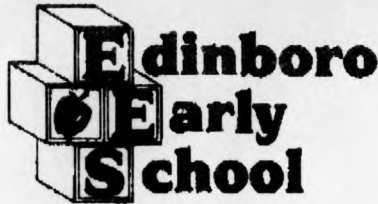

She got the idea for the school in part from parents who had trouble finding day care. The local church sponsored programs were usually full.

Her husband has been a major advisor. It is very difficult to get through the red tape. He works at the DoJ department of Defense.

One daughter, Paula Ellwood, works for Bell-Atlantic. The other daughter, Janis Black, is a Pitt grad and is now enrolled in the Lake Erie College of Osteopathic Medicine.

Decided not to FAX text, as a "FAXed FAX" with little "scribbles" does not reproduce well.

Dear Linda,

I was so surprised to be taking a call to send a brochure to Edinboro, Pa.! True a long time ago that I graduated from EU. In my day Edinboro was not a university yet.

My Nursery/Kindergarten School is what I call my "retirement project" - a fun place to work after my retirement from public school.

We are finishing our 4th year of operation, this June. I have never written to Edinboro to tell of our existence as I preferred to wait until we were a solvent, going concern. At some point I will write an article, perhaps with pictures and send it on to the Alumni Office.

It'd love to have you visit, if you come down to see your sister this summer. We have a summer program (a small one) running until the 20th of August.

Sincerely,
Suzanne DeBrecht

Last week we talked about a new child care facility in Severna Park — WeeCare Children's Center. Another new facility, the Edinboro Early School, will open its doors in September.

Located at 380 Jumpers Hole Road, the school is owned and operated by Sue Gerbracht, a former teacher in Prince George's County.

Sue and her husband, Jon, an electrical engineer, have lived in Maryland since 1966 and bought the property for the school in 1982.

Named in honor of Edinboro State College in Pennsylvania, where Mrs. Gerbracht earned her degree, the school will be open to 3- and 4-year-olds for nursery school starting the day after Labor Day.

An open house is planned for 2 to 5 p.m. Aug. 19-20.

The school is Maryland accredited and will operate on the county schedule. The teaching staff holds degrees in education.

The Gerbrachts have two daughters — Paula, a junior at Virginia Tech, and Janis, who will be a senior this fall at Severna Park

High School.

Until September, you can call the school from 9 a.m. to noon Mondays or 3 to 5 p.m. Wednesdays for information. The number is 544-2476.

New preschool formed to meet demand

By CHRISTY WISE
Severna Park Staff Writer

A new preschool in Severna Park is accepting registration for half and full day sessions this fall, said school founder Suelen Gerbracht.

The former Prince George's County schoolteacher is opening the Edinboro Early School in a new building on Jumpers Hole Road because of the need for early education programs in Severna Park, she said.

"I was hearing from so many mothers in the area that they're trying to register their children for school and that the places are all ways filled," she said.

"We felt that there was a need for a quality program and we felt that we could meet that need," she said.

The school will offer classes to 3- and 4-year-olds five days a week, she said.

More than 24 children will be accepted, she said, because some will be attending half-day sessions.

A complete educational program will be available, she said, including socialization skills, motor development, language development and beginning reading, number and science concepts, she said.

"We hope to have many and varied activities that include music, art and dramatics."

The Millersville resident said she chose the site because she wanted to be in the heart of Severna Park.

This summer, she is overseeing completion of the school's construction and putting together a staff.

The school, a state accredited facility, will open the day after Labor Day.

Ms. Gerbracht has opened an office in the new school building, near Earleigh Heights Road. Her hours are Mondays from 9 a.m. to noon and Wednesdays from 3 to 5 p.m. She can be reached at the school at 544-2476.

Philosophy

Children learn best in an accepting, loving atmosphere, alive with opportunities to explore, experiment and discover. Our goal is to help children, through such experiences, to develop into confident, competent human beings, imbued with a love of life and a real appetite for all that life has to offer.

We want to invite children to use all their senses, to think creatively and to become involved. Only in this way can they achieve their maximum potential and develop a sense of worth and fulfillment.

We believe in a small group environment, allowing for maximum participation and affording frequent opportunities to experience "hands on" situations.

Learning is a continuous process beginning at birth. By the time the child arrives at pre-school, his personality traits are well on the way to being developed. His background of experiences and knowledge is significant and constantly increasing. He is a person with a self concept, and that self concept will greatly affect his learning. Increasing that self concept is one of our goals.

In the role of organizer and planner, the teacher will guide students through rich and varied activities including socialization experiences, motor development, language development, reading readiness, math concepts, social studies, science, music, art and dramatics—an integrated program providing creative outlets for each child to develop his learning skills as well as to stimulate his natural curiosity.

The environment, the materials, the people, and the program all contribute toward meeting the needs of the child and helping him to become a happy, contributing, responsible member in an organized society.

Physical Description

Edinboro Early School is located in the heart of Severna Park in close proximity to Benfield Elementary School and the Severna Park Middle School. It is situated on the corner of Jumpers Hole Road and Edin Garth in the Edinboro Estate Development.

The new brick building has two large, well-lighted classrooms on the first floor, as well as a carpeted library and a small sick room for the children. The offices and kitchen are for the support of the staff. Our facility is air conditioned for comfort and equipped with fire sprinklers and burglar alarms for safety and security.

The 3600 sq. foot fenced, outdoor playground is situated behind the school building. This area is comprised of a sand area, an area of climbing equipment and a hard surface for additional activities.

Academic Program

The primary goal toward which all our activities are oriented is to develop the physical, social, emotional and intellectual growth of each child. Our degreed teachers implement a Maryland State accredited program providing quality instruction in a warm and caring, small group environment.

At the earlier developmental level our concentration is on socialization skills, language development, listening skills and following directions. Large and small motor activities are also emphasized. Literature is a most important component of our program with many stories, poems, finger plays and nursery rhymes. Children with rich vocabularies and extensive language experiences will be most successful readers at the appropriate time.

As the children develop and progress we add more pre-readiness activities in both reading and math areas as well as in science and social studies.

Through our many and varied activities including music, art and dramatics, we plan for balance between directed and non-directed activities. We offer an unhurried loving, caring environment where children can work, play, learn, explore, create and grow.

Registration/Admission

Candidates for admission to Edinboro Early School must be toilet trained, and must be 3 or 4 years of age by December 31 of the school year. Initial acceptance will be based on a brief interview with the prospective student to determine his/her ability to listen and to follow directions.

Our sessions run 5 days each week and coincide with the Anne Arundel County School schedule, beginning in September and ending in June.

- A.M. Session 8:30-11:30
- P.M. Session 12:30-3:30
- Full Day Session 8:30-3:30
- Optional Early Drop Off 7:30
- Optional Late Pick-Up 4:30

FOR ADMISSION THE FOLLOWING COMPLETED FORMS MUST BE PRESENTED:

- Registration Form, with Fee and Deposit (at time of application)
- Medical Form (due by 1 August)

PARENT CONFERENCES:

There will be two conferences held per year. The Pupil Progress Report will be reviewed at these times.

OFFICE PHONE 544-2476

For information or inquiries, please call the school. If your call is not answered personally, please leave a message on the answering machine.

Edinboro Early School does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, creed or national origin.

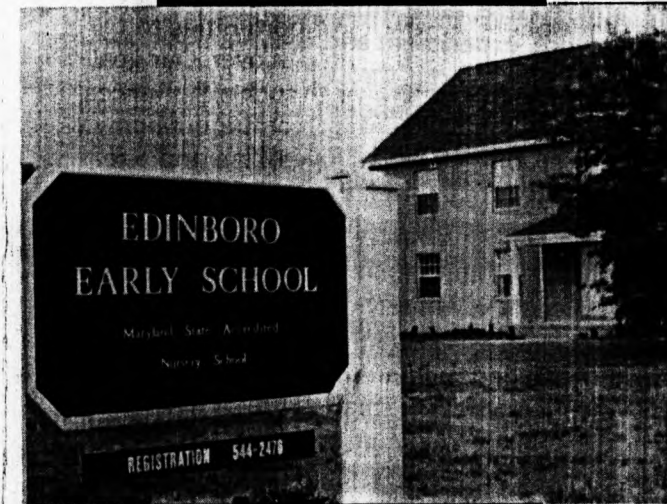

Tuition/Refunds

Tuition is $2600 per school year per half day session (five days per week). Full day tuition is offered at a 50% discount for the p.m. session or $3900 per year. The tuition may be paid in 10 equal payments of $260 or $390. This includes educational materials and snacks.

Tuition payments are due each month in advance on, or before the first day of the month, starting with the first payment due on 1 August, one month before school begins in September. A Note for the full amount of Tuition is executed at the time of initial acceptance and returned when the final Tuition payment is made on 1 May. This Note ensures the student's place in the class, and ensures the school that all places will be filled in each class. Tuition is not refundable and is a commitment for the complete academic year, except when final acceptance does not occur after the initial two week trial period. In this special case, a prorated portion of Tuition will be refunded. A late fee of $10 is charged if payment is not made by the 5th of each month.

A non-refundable registration fee of $50 is required with each application. A total deposit of $150 (including registration fee) must be submitted with the application form, $100 of this deposit will be applied towards the last tuition payment.

Discounts are available for pre-payment, before 1 August, of Tuition for the whole academic year (10%), more than one student per Family ($100), and registration in both half day sessions (50%).

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

DISNEY ANIMATOR BILL WALDMAN TO ANIMATE CHARACTER IN *HUNCHBACK OF NOTRE DAME

Walt Disney animator Bill Waldman, who recently completed animation of the character of John Smith in Disney's Pocahontas, scheduled for release June 23, will animate the character of Esmeralda in Disney's next feature, Hunchback of Notre Dame.

A 1986 graduate of Edinboro University of Pennsylvania, Waldman was an animator on Carrotblanca, a new Warner Bros. cartoon which will be released this summer, and also on A Troll in Central Park, which has been released on home video.

He joined the Disney Studio in October of last year and returned to Edinboro in December for a reception in his honor. Waldman is currently working in Disney's new feature animation building in Burbank where the Disney studio has more than 800 people creating its animated films.

A native of Williamsport, Pa., Waldman majored in animation in the art department at Edinboro. Shortly after graduating, he worked as an animator and storyboard consultant for Kensington Falls Productions in Pittsburgh. There he received a Pennsylvania Council on the Arts media arts fellowship to refine his student film, Fish Hooked.

He then worked as an assistant animator for the Bajus-Jones studio in Minneapolis before becoming an animator at the Don Bluth Studio. It was there he did key animation for Thumbelina and A Troll in Central Park. At Warner Bros. he served as animator for such characters as Tweety Bird, Bugs Bunny and Pepe le Pew. He animated the new Warner Bros. logo that appears on all of its family entertainment films, music, and video releases.

Following production of Hunchback of Notre Dame, Disney will be producing a number of animated features including Fantasia Continued, Fa Mulan and Hercules.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

EDINBORO UNIVERSITY OFFERS ANTIQUES CERTIFICATION PROGRAM

Edinboro University of Pennsylvania will again offer its program, "The World of Antiques and Collectibles," August 6-11, at the Edinboro Inn. This five-day extended seminar emphasizes object identification and valuation and allows participants to immerse themselves in an intensive, object-oriented program to prepare for professional endeavors.

The program is part of the university's three-part antiques brokerage and liquidation certification series designed to provide professional appraisers, aspiring dealers, collectors, auctioneers and estate/tag sale conductors with an intensive learning experience and professional certification. Conducting the series will be Edinboro professor August Fetcko.

The first program, "How to Appraise and Conduct Estate and Residential Contents Sales," will be offered July 21-22 in Raleigh, North Carolina. This two-day seminar will focus on appraising and conducting estate and residential house sales. Proper appraisal format, legalities, the proper and professional way to conduct sales and other aspects of valuation and liquidation will be discussed.

The second program, "Overview of the World of Antiques and Collectibles," will be held July 29 in Buffalo. This introductory seminar covers the history of collecting, basic identification, valuation and ethical practices. No previous experience or knowledge is required for the seminar, and individuals not seeking certification may also attend.

Participants seeking certification must complete all three programs, write a paper on a collecting or professional interest, and take a written test. The test will be given August 11, following the third program.

Edinboro U. Offers Additional Classes in its Antiques Certification Program

Edinboro, PA: Due to popular demand, Edinboro University of Pennsylvania is pleased to present additional programs in its antiques brokerage and liquidation certification program designed to provide professional appraisers, aspiring dealers, collectors, auctioneers and estate/tag sale conductors with an intensive learning experience and professional certification. The program requires participants to enroll and complete in the following programs to receive the professional certificate and designation:

- On July 29, in Buffalo, "Overview of the World of Antiques and Collectibles" will be offered. This introductory seminar covers the history of collecting, basic identification, valuation and liquidation, and ethical practices. No previous experience or knowledge is required for the seminar and individuals not seeking the professional designation are also eligible to attend.
- On July 21 & 22, in Raleigh, NC, "How to Appraise and Conduct Estate and Residential Contents Sales" will be offered. This two-day seminar is devoted to appraising and conducting estate and residential house sales. Proper appraisal format, legalities, the proper and professional way to conduct sales and other aspects of valuation and liquidation will be discussed.
- The third program in the series, "The World of Antiques and Collectibles" will be held the week of August 6-11 in Edinboro, PA. This five-day extended seminar emphasizes object identification and valuation and allows participants to immerse themselves into an intensive, object-oriented program in order to prepare them for professional endeavors.

An additional requirement for the certificate will be a written test and the completion of a paper on a collecting or professional interest. The test will be given August 11 in Edinboro, PA, at the end of the five-day program.

Edinboro U. Offers Antique & Collectible Glass Seminar in Pittsburgh

Edinboro, PA: The identification and valuation of antique and collectible glass is probably one of the most difficult tasks confronting the novice or experienced appraiser, dealer, collector, estate sale conductor or auctioneer. Aware of the need to provide an intensive learning experience devoted to appraising and identifying antique and collectible glass, Edinboro University has scheduled a full-day seminar to be held on July 8 at the Dargate Gallery in Pittsburgh.

The seminar, led by two nationally-recognized experts on antique and collectible glass, covers this important collecting area from A to Z and features hundreds of examples from the instructors' personal collections as well as slides of outstanding examples of the glass makers' art. This is a rare opportunity to see and handle many examples of antique and collectible glassware in a learning setting.

Early registration is advised to secure a place in this program. For more information and to register for the seminar, write or call the Institute for Research and Community Services, Department of Continuing Education, Edinboro University of PA, Edinboro, PA 16444; phone (800) 526-0121 or (814) 732-2671.

EDINBORO UNIVERSITY OFFERS ANTIQUE AND COLLECTIBLE GLASS SEMINAR IN PITTSBURGH

Edinboro University of Pennsylvania will present a seminar on appraising and identifying antique and collectible glass on Saturday, July 8, at the Dargate Gallery in Pittsburgh. This intensive learning experience is designed for the novice or experienced appraiser, dealer, collector, estate sale conductor or auctioneer.

The seminar will be led by two nationally-recognized experts on antiques and collectible glass, August Fetcko and Jerry Davis. It will feature hundreds of examples from their personal collections as well as slides of outstanding examples of the glass makers' art. This is a rare opportunity to see and handle many examples of antique and collectible glassware in a learning setting.

Early registration is advised to secure a place in this program. For more information and to register for the seminar, write or call the Institute for Research and Community Services, Continuing Education, Edinboro University of Pennsylvania, Edinboro, PA 16444; 800-526-0121 or 814-732-2671.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

EDINBORO HOSTS EARLY CHILDHOOD EDUCATION CONFERENCE

Edinboro University of Pennsylvania recently hosted its eleventh annual Early Childhood Education Conference, which had the theme of Foundations for Lifelong Learning. The two-day conference presented more than 25 workshops ranging from fostering decision-making skills to using computers to developing self-control strategies to helping children with special needs.

Some 260 educators from western Pennsylvania heard keynote speaker Dr. Paula Jorde Bloom discuss "Dedication Does Not Have to Mean *De*adication." She is professor of early childhood education at National-Louis University in Illinois.

Bloom's address focused on how to develop personal strategies to manage stress as a professional. She advised the audience to know how to compartmentalize one's life to separate the personal from the professional. "Learn how to say no," Bloom said. "Don't allow others to change you or try to change others – define your own expectations."

The conference awarded stipends to Edinboro University students to attend the conference. They were Rebecca Arth of Pittsburgh, Luellen Jones of Perry, Ohio, Laurie Kantz and Amy Simcheck of Cambridge Springs, Toni King of Summerville, and Bessie Scott of Meadville. Dana Drish of Sewickley received the Early Childhood Education Prize of $250 for being named outstanding elementary education/early childhood education student.

Ruthanne Atkinson, who co-directed the conference with Dr. Kathleen Dailey, said it is the largest early childhood education conference hosted by a university in this part of the state. This year's conference focused on the skills and behaviors learned in the early years that will carry them through their lives. "It acknowledges the importance of early childhood education and the crucial role teachers of young children have in supporting and preparing them to become lifelong learners," she said.

The annual conference is sponsored by Edinboro's elementary education department in conjunction with the Center for Excellence in Teaching and the Institute for Research and Community Services.

KEYNOTE SPEAKER: DR. PAULA JORDE BLOOM

I am honored to introduce Dr. Paula Jorde Bloom. Her impressive list of credentials in professional development activities and with professional associations indicates that she is a woman of endless energy and unlimited talent. With an undergraduate degree from Southern Connecticut State University, Dr. Bloom headed west to Stanford University where she earned a Master's degree in Elementary Education and a Ph. D in Educational Psychology. Currently, Dr. Bloom is professor of Early Childhood Education at National-Louis University in Illinois. She serves as the Director of the Master's in Education Field-Based program in Early childhood leadership and advocacy. director of the early Childhood professional development project. She has been affiliated with NAEYC as National Commissioner of the NAEYC Academy of Early Childhood Programs, member of the Advisory Board of the NAEYC Teacher Education Panel, and reviewer of the journal, Young Children . She has authored several books and curriculum guides in addition to an incredibly extensive number of journal articles on early childhood education. Her writings reflect a commitment to quality in childcare and concern for the well-being of early childhood professionals. Throughout the nation Dr. Bloom is in demand as an early childhood program consultant. And you are no doubt wondering if she ever does regional and national conference presentations? Well, she has averaged about one per month for the past several years! Finally, at a time when the almighty dollar talks, Dr. Bloom has garnered over $1 million in grants and contracts for the advancement of early childhood programs and professional training. The word AWESOME takes on new meaning, doesn't it?

You probably wouldn't be surprised to know that Paula is an avid outdoors person who enjoys running marathons and skiing! Young Children and Educational Horizons are both journals that have benefitted from her skills as an amateur photographer. If this isn't enough to impress you, consider this: Dr. Bloom is a working mother! Her well-chosen title of our Keynote address is "Dedication Does Not Have to Mean Deedication."

Please join me in extending a warm welcome to Paula Jorde Bloom.

The Elementary Education Department of Edinboro University of Pennsylvania, in conjunction with the Center for Excellence in Teaching and the Institute for Research and Community Services, is pleased to present

"Dedication Does Not Have to Mean Deadication"

Despite low wages and demanding workloads, many early childhood workers find their jobs stimulating, challenging, and personally rewarding. They have developed a repertoire of skills and personal strategies that allows them to grow, even thrive, in their roles. Drawing on the successful experiences of individuals in our profession, Dr. Bloom will provide some insights on how caregivers can rekindle the flame and avoid stress and job burnout.

Workshop Descriptions

Shared Decision-Making: The Director as a Participatory Manager

This session will focus on strategies the center director can implement to promote shared decision-making. A framework for understanding the importance of participatory management in child care will be discussed.

Marilyn Sheerer

Tuesday, Session I

Porky Pig is Funny, Stuttering is Not!

Stuttering is a complex and multifaceted disorder requiring intensive and early intervention. Teachers, parents, and administrators contribute significantly to the prevention/treatment of children who are disfluent or stutter. This workshop will introduce the participants to the nature and causes of stuttering, prevention strategies for educators and parents, and service delivery models.

Richard Forcucci

Tuesday, Session I

Promoting a Healthy Environment to Facilitate the Learning Process

Keeping a healthy classroom for young children is often a challenge. This workshop will focus on strategies to help maintain a healthy environment. Specific types of communicable diseases, how they are spread, and control measures will be discussed.

Janice Giltinan

Tuesday, Session I

Aesthetic Experiences for Young Children

Can an early introduction to aesthetic experiences enhance the overall development of the young child? Participants will learn strategies for using art post cards and reproductions in the classroom to challenge children to develop their aesthetic sense, become familiar with major artwork and strengthen their cognitive, perceptual and affective development.

Ernie Dettore, Linda Best & Jacqueline Power

Tuesday, Session I

Building Resiliency in Young Children

Resilient children are better able to cope and handle the stresses of life. This workshop will explore biological and environmental factors of resiliency and will provide participants with practical strategies for helping toddlers and preschool children realize their full potential in learning.

Janice Belgredan & Christine Gibson

Tuesday, Session I

Building Blocks for the Future

As inclusion becomes more commonplace, it is important that community preschool programs work collaboratively with early intervention providers. This workshop will demonstrate how early intervention services for young children with disabilities are incorporated into a regular preschool program.

Deborah Sturm & Cynthia Snyder

Tuesday, Session I

Caregiver Communication

Participants will learn how to communicate more effectively with young children. Attention will be given to how teachers can nurture young children in independent decision-making and self-guided behavior. This will be an active participation workshop.

Susan Ashley

Tuesday, Session I

Fostering Decision-Making Skills in Young Children with Diverse Abilities

Learn how to promote decision-making skills in all children within an inclusive classroom. Children with various learning styles and developmental levels need opportunities to participate in problem-solving and critical thinking activities. This workshop will examine the theory and practice of promoting effective decision-making skills in all young children.

Karen Johnson

Tuesday, Session II

Super Hero Fantasy Play in the Classroom

Super hero play is a common event in the lives of young children, and there is little doubt they find the role exhilarating. Teachers and some parents are not so enthusiastic. This workshop will discuss the nature and benefits of super hero fantasy play. Strategies will be provided for making super hero play a constructive experience for children.

Ernie Dettore & Jennifer Cyphers

Tuesday, Session II

Emergent Curriculum: The Transformation of Themes

This workshop will introduce participants to an emergent curriculum approach. Using the Reggio Emilia schools as an example, the project approach will be explored as a developmentally appropriate expansion of the thematic curriculum. Active strategies will provide a framework for participants to apply theory to practice.

Candy Jaruszewicz & Karen Bauer

Tuesday, Session II

Self-Expression through Movement: Unlocking the Creativity Within

A variety of expressive movement activities designed for children from preschool through the primary grades will be shared in this presentation. Many classical music examples will be interpreted through visualization, imagination, and dramatic expression. Ideas for enhancing the curriculum with music and movement will be provided.

Rosemary Omniewski

Tuesday, Session II

Wednesday, Session III

The Power of Play

Play can be used for building a foundation for lifelong learning. During this workshop special emphasis will be given to how children learn through play, the importance of selecting appropriate toys, and the role of violence in the play process.

Anna McCartney

Tuesday, Session II

Wednesday, Session II

Computers and Young Children

Use of the computer to develop strategies that promote lifelong learning will be discussed followed by a brief introduction to Apple and Macintosh computers. Participants will have the opportunity to try several programs appropriate for use in early childhood classrooms.

Linda Ziegler

Tuesday, Session II

Wednesday, Sessions I or III

Connecting Preschoolers/Elementary Students With the Natural World

This workshop will enable participants to guide young children toward respecting, appreciating and understanding the natural world through a series of activities in all curricular areas.

Maria Durci & Tuesday, Session II, Focus: Preschool/K
Kay Lamendola Wednesday, Session III, Focus: Grades K-3

"The Most Awesome Thing I've Ever Done In School!"

Growing and Learning Through the Use of Thematic Units in a Multi-age Classroom.

Enhance the curriculum with thematic units! During this session the presenters will share practical ideas for adapting the thematic approach to any primary grade classroom. Sample units and related activities and projects will be presented.

Marian Beckman & Scott Alter Wednesday, Session I

Hearing -- A Foundation for Language and Learning

While the impact on language, learning, and other outcomes has been well documented for children with permanent hearing loss, few professionals encounter such children. In contrast, hearing loss secondary to ear infections is extremely common in infants, toddlers, and young children. Current views on management of this condition will be reviewed including its impact on language and learning.

Roy Shinn Wednesday, Session I

Reading and Writing Assessment Strategies in a First Grade Classroom

Get on the "cutting edge" for assessment strategies! This presenter will use a videotape, sample language arts portfolios and group discussion to demonstrate how to link instruction with assessment.

Maureen Walcavich Wednesday, Session I

Time Out is OUT: Developmentally Appropriate Alternatives for Helping Children Learn Self-Control

Participants will increase their knowledge about children's growth and development and about the impact of certain disciplinary techniques. Time out is an overrated and oversold "panacea" for controlling children. Developmentally appropriate alternatives designed to help children learn self-control and improve their self-esteem will be highlighted.

John Hranitz Wednesday, Session I

Children's Literature and Audio/Visual Technology

This workshop will focus on the use of audio and/or video technology to heighten children's appreciation of literature. Learn how audio-video versions of literature can expand word knowledge, develop imagery abilities, and strengthen the child's understanding of stories.

Nan Briggs Wednesday, Session I or II

Children's Literature for a Diverse Student Population

The session will focus on literature available about and for children with special needs. Special emphasis will be given to cultural, social, and linguistic diversity. Distinctions between traditional views and more realistic perspectives will be discussed.

Eileen Aiken Wednesday, Session II

The Joy of Learning Science

As we move into the 21st century, one important trait that children must have is the ability to learn new things as new discoveries are made. This presentation will address why young children must learn science, fears and attitudes about science, and the joy of learning science. Be ready to participate in a series of hands-on activities!

Theresa Thewes Wednesday, Sessions I or II

How to Nurture the Early Reader

This workshop will assist the participant in her/his understanding of the characteristics and needs of the early reader. Ways to develop a print-rich environment and ideas to assist the emergent reader and writer will be shared.

Terry Myers Wednesday, Session II

Can Reggio Emilia Wash in a U.S. Kindergarten?

The presenters, two kindergarten teachers, applied the Reggio Emilia approach to early childhood in their classrooms. This process included evaluating their philosophy of young children, restructuring their environment and revising the curriculum. Come and learn how this approach from Italy "fits" into a U.S. classroom.

Sallie Boyle & Sally Roman Wednesday, Session II

Starting Early: Science, Health and Technology for Young Children

Participants will have an opportunity to experience activities from the early childhood portion of the Developmental Approaches in Science, Health and Technology (DASH) program. Methods of encouraging young children to observe, investigate and analyze their environment will be addressed along with information about the integration of subjects in the classroom.

Judith Hallinen Wednesday, Sessions II or III

Solving the Classroom Management Mystery

Have you ever felt like a detective looking for clues to solve the mysteries behind successful classroom management? Teachers often feel confident in the area of knowing what to teach but feel a bit uneasy about how to deliver instruction and at the same time maintain a classroom atmosphere that is relatively free from disruptions. This workshop will present an array of strategies which can be used to facilitate a smoothly run classroom thus ensuring the ultimate level of instructional delivery.

Marian Vollmer Wednesday, Sessions II or III

Getting the Most Out of Children's Books

Let children's books work for you! The presenters will demonstrate how children's literature can be used to teach basic skills, assess student development and produce students who are hooked on books. Completed samples of the classroom tested projects/activities for each literature selection will be shared.

Thea Leslie & Mary Jo Melvin Wednesday, Session III

KEYNOTE ADDRESS

Personal Strategies

Thrivers and Survivors

1. Sensitizer to stress

Notice physical and psychological indicators
Notice behaviors one has Reduce the sources of stress (environmental, interpersonal and job-related sources)
Know how to reach a balance
Learn to say "No"
2. Know how to "compartmentalize" their lives - have come to terms with the professional/personal "tug of war"
3. Don't allow others to change you or try to change others; define your own expectations
4. Have a game plan.
5. Know how to advocate for yourself and your profession.

Organizing/Structuring the Profession

1. Make sure there is a "good fit" between the person and the position; make an investment.
2. Strategies and models must be tied to a flexible career ladder.
3. Cultivate collegiality - team teaching, sharing ideas, mentoring, etc.
4. Improve working conditions - nurture adults as much as we nurture children.
5. "Open-up" decision-making process; involve staff in choices and discussions; share in the process.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

LANDSCAPE EXHIBITION AT EDINBORO'S BRUCE GALLERY

A retrospective exhibition of landscape paintings by artist James McMurray will be the subject of "The Space Around Me," at Edinboro University of Pennsylvania's Bruce Gallery, June 17-July 8, 1995. McMurray is a professor of art at Edinboro.

There will be some 35 paintings in the exhibition, dating back as early as 1974. The show will feature McMurray's recent paintings of Ireland based on seven weeks of travel there in 1993 and 1994. Included in the show is an 18 foot polyptych, "Lough Guitain, Killarney," which is made up of several individual paintings. McMurray said it had been a long-standing wish to visit Ireland. As an artist, he was fascinated by the endless miles of stone walls found in rural Ireland.

Other works will be from sites in Maine, Canada, and several national parks, as well as many paintings from the Edinboro area.

The exhibition will open Saturday, June 17, with a reception at 2 p.m. Gallery hours are 2-5 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday.

A retrospective exhibition of landscape paintings by artist James McMurray will be the subject of "The Space Around Me," at Edinboro University of Pennsylvania's Bruce Gallery, June 17-July 8, 1995. McMurray is a professor of art at Edinboro.

There will be some 35 paintings in the exhibition, dating back as early as 1974. The show will feature McMurray's recent paintings of Ireland based on seven weeks of travel there in 1993 and 1994. Included in the show is an 18 foot polyptych, "Lough Guitain, Killarney," which is made up of several individual paintings. McMurray said it had been a long-standing wish to visit Ireland. As an artist, he was fascinated by the endless miles of stone walls found in rural Ireland.

Other works will be from sites in Maine, Canada, and several national parks, as well as many paintings from the Edinboro area.

The exhibition will open Saturday, June 17, with a reception at 2 p.m. Gallery hours are 2-5 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday.
