Registration awaits students after spring break

TERRI QUARESIMO
Staff Writer

The registration dates for the 1985 Summer Sessions and Fall Semester 1985 have been announced by the Office of the Registrar. According to Kenneth Schnure, Registrar, students whose records are being held because they owe back tuition will not be allowed to register.

Schedule booklets for the six Summer Sessions will be available after Spring recess and may be picked up at the Registrar's Office. Times for scheduling will be in the booklet. In the past, students scheduled for these sessions in the Waller building, but this year scheduling will be done at the Registrar's Office. A maximum of fourteen credits may be scheduled during the summer.

Students are requested to register in person that first day of each session, and will also pay fees for the session at this time. Registration will be held in the Kehr Union.

Schedule booklets for Fall Semester will also be distributed after Spring recess. Advisement begins Monday, March 18. Course registration for students with forty-eight and more earned credits begins March 27 and ends April 3. Registration for students with forty-seven and fewer earned credits begins April 15 and ends April 22. Six computer terminals will be available to speed the process of registering.

In person registration for the Fall will be Tuesday, September 3. Resident students will register in their halls, and off-campus and commuting students will register in Centennial Gym. Registration at Centennial will be done according to credits earned, not alphabetically. This is being done so that seniors will be able to make schedule changes first. On the evening of September 3, all students not registered will have their schedules dropped.

Rep. meeting resolves little

LORI GALLAGHER

The Representative Assembly meeting Wednesday ended without resolving any of the major points on the evening's agenda.

The meeting, which was held in the University Forum of the McCormick Building, began at 3:00 p.m. and ended at about 5:10 p.m., after completing slightly over half the agenda.

David Minderhout, chairperson of the Representative Assembly, made the opening remarks concerning the V.A.-approved social welfare program approved in December.

The assembly voted unanimously for the welfare program, but permission by signature is still needed from Harrisburg in addition to approval from the Commonwealth and the State System of Higher Education.

Most of the meeting was spent stalled at the fourth item on the agenda. This was the discussion for the need for integrated planning at Bloomsburg University. There were many different ideas which were brought up by people.

The purpose of the discussion, according to Minderhout, was mainly to determine a direction to take, not to come up with a solution to the planning problem.

A motion was passed to have a RA study group consider a recent incident as a case study in finding a solution or system for integrated planning for the university. It will be asked to report back to the assembly by the end of the semester.

The case the RA will study involves 17 computer terminals provided for student records and current schedules.

The main argument involved with these terminals is the fact many professors weren't taught how to use a computer. The idea of having computer workshops was brought up to make the faculty aware of the computer process. According to a participating assembly member, the problems should be dealt with individually, not through the RA.

Dr. Yori, head of the Accounting department, questioned why the computers were suddenly provided. He wondered whether the computers were really provided for academic use or were they merely reducing the flow of paper work? Either way, Dr. Yori made his enthusiasm over the installment quite clear.

After concluding the entire planning commission must work together for systematic planning, many solutions to the problem were suggested.

One idea was to form a committee to analyze the problem to get it into the proper channel for studying. Also, communication, among the different levels of administration was cited as a drastic downfall.

Picnic area anticipated

LORI GALLAGHER
Voice Contributor

A proposal for the Campus Government Association to contribute $10 thousand for financing a picnic area to be built near Montour Hall was approved at this week's CGA meeting.

The proposed picnic area will be built northeast of Montour Hall, where the new footbridge is being constructed. It will also be in the area of the memorial pagoda.

The area will include twenty picnic tables and eight lights for night use. Four catch basins will also be built to drain the area. Curbing will be put around the edges. The entire facility is expected to cover about an acre of land.

The project will begin within a week or two, weather permitting, and will be completed sometime around May 1. Before completion, a road must be built connecting the footbridge to the main road. Much depends upon the weather between now and May 1.

The entire project is expected to cost $22 thousand. It will be financed by the CGA, the administration, and the Campus Beautification Committee.

Don McCulloch of the Campus Beautification Committee said, "It will be formed into a financial package."

McCulloch also said: "We are very appreciative of CGA support. We want this to be a student area and we want them to make use of it." He said the entire idea of the project is to fix the area to look nice. In the past it has been used for parking.

He mentioned the fact that the area is a main exit to certain parts of the campus and that it is heavily used by parents and students coming to and from the dormitories.

McCulloch confessed, "It is a real eye-sore right now." He reluctantly referred to it as a "dump area."

McCulloch said the committee has been seeking the funds for the project for two years. At that time the vice president passed the proposal and said the project could begin as soon as funding was made available. At that time, no footbridge was planned.

"Although the Alumni Association has been very supportive, it had wanted to spend the money elsewhere," said McCulloch, "The money wasn't available."

Stating that the memorial pagoda built in 1916 near Montour Hall was never really utilized in the past, McCulloch said; "Electrical outlets will be built on the pagoda. This area can be a very attractive and effective area for students."

EDITORIAL

Since the last articles appeared in The Voice on the subject of student housing, many other opinions and facts have surfaced. A story in the Monday, Feb. 25 issue stated that the Landowners Association, at their meeting, expressed concern over the new dormitory being proposed for upper campus. They claim that the additional housing is not needed due to a high vacancy rate of student housing down town.

In addition to that concern, the association also uncovered some problems they believed would be encountered in the site of the proposed building.

These concerns included: high heating costs due to a wind plateau, not enough water pressure to fight a fire, and there would be the extra cost of busing students to the commons area and classes.

Mr. John Walker, vice-president of institutional advancement, has clarified these concerns. The site for the new building was chosen because it is on a south facing hillside and can utilize passive solar energy. The building will not be next to Redman stadium where the wind is always blowing. Another reason for the choice of the site, is the pre-existing availability of the utilities.

The installation of a new water tower on upper campus will alleviate any problems with water pressure and has also helped to increase pressure on lower campus as well.

There have also been expressed concerns about the additional cost of busing students to the Commons area and classes. First of all, the building will be in the form of efficiency apartments so they will have kitchens and many students will probably choose to make their own meals. Also, buses already run to Nelson on the hour for gym classes and sports practice.

The added costs of janitorial services, upkeep and personnel for the new building will not be an extra cost for the University, but rather, the residence hall will be self-sufficient like all of the other residence halls. The room and board costs for the buildings as a whole, must cover expenses for the buildings.

Another widely held rumor circulating is the fear of an additional strain to taxpayers to build the building. The building is not being funded by a legislative appropriation, but rather by a bond issued by the State System of Higher Education, if the plan is passed. The student's rents would pay off the bond in a specified period of time.

Many people are under the impression that the idea for the new residence hall is relatively new, springing from the concern of overcrowded situations in the dormitories recently. The residence hall has been in the capitol budget every year since 1971 except one, said Walker. The only year it did not appear in the budget was a year when no residence halls were allowed to appear in the capitol budget.

Townpeople, for years have felt the need for additional university housing. The town already feels that the university pushes too large of a burden of students into the town to live. When you put 18-22 year olds in a residential neighborhood, there are bound to be problems.

The intent of the university is not to put the town landlords out of business, but it may improve the worst housing by making it difficult for these places to be rented.

The University is undertaking the construction of the new building if passed, to plan for the growth of the university community and provide safe housing for students.

Letters to the editor

"Rear Window" suspense

Dear Editor,

On Sunday Feb. 24, I was prepared to sit down and watch Alfred Hitchcock's "Rear Window" that was being presented at 2 p.m. in Carver Hall. (Well, 2 p.m. was the time printed on the Activities Calendar.)

I went to Carver and noticed only a small group of people — 10 to be exact. We waited for the movie to start, but the person in charge told us they could not show the film unless there were 15 people present. I never heard of this rule before! When I questioned them about it, no answer or support was provided.

Since 2 p.m. was the only time I could see the film, I was annoyed when they started packing everything away. I asked to see the supervisor and was sent to the Union. He told me the movie would not be shown. Can they do this? I paid my Community Activities Fee.

After I complained some more, I was finally told to go to Haas. "The movie will be shown there," they told me. Twenty minutes later at Haas and no movie shown, I got even angrier.

While on my journey back to the Union to complain, I ran into the people who were going to show the film. They sent me and a few frustrated others back down to Carver. After more delays, the movie finally began — 10 minutes to 3!

I just do not understand how these people can decide so quickly to show the movie or not to show the movie. One of the workers said they get paid whether the film is shown or not, so why the run around? It only caused a lot of aggravation for us.

Maybe next time I'll wait until the movie comes on HBO. That's a lot more dependable and I won't have to run around campus to find it.

Witness to desecration

Dear Editor,

Last Tuesday at 4:40 p.m. I witnessed a desecration of our national banner. I live in Schuylkill Hall and watched out my window as two people, one a security officer, took down the American Flag behind Schuylkill. More than once during this process the flag touched the ground. I was always taught that this was a violation of our flag and what it stands for. The flag should have been burned and replaced.

It is not my place to criticize the actions of university employees, but this cannot go unnoticed. In the future, I suggest that whomever is responsible for taking down the American Flag to show a bit more concern and pride.

A patriotic student

Student concern

To the Editor:

I am responding to the letter written by "A satisfied student" in the Feb. 22 edition. I want to know who made you President? To say that families who make over $32,500 per year have no right to receive financial aid is asinine. Your next comment about deciding between an education and a new car is even more stupid and blindly stereotypical.

I will admit that the idea of your father paying two childrens' way through college without financial aid is admirable, but what about teaching responsibility? My parents make over $32,500, but they are paying only $500 per year because I am getting a student loan which I will have the responsibility of paying off. It is hard enough getting a job in the summer, but it is practically impossible to make the $3500 it takes to pay for a year of school here. Why deny people like me the option of having Guaranteed Student Loans because my parents earn a comfortable salary — are you against having a fair chance at education for everyone?

Signed,
David Leister

Squealer lampoons life at BU et al.

DAWN GREENE
Asst. Feature Editor

Squealer, a college version of National Lampoon, hit the BU campus last semester and is causing quite a sensation. This new student publication breaks the barriers of straight news and travels into the twilight zone of creativity. "The articles in Squealer are intended to make people think," says Joe Allison, executive editor of Squealer. "We present ideas that not all people agree with."

Squealer was first printed last October as a dorm publication for Luzerne Hall by Allison and former BU student Fred Marques. "Since I'm an R.A. in Luzerne I wanted to do something for the dorm and I didn't want just a dorm letter," says Allison. "I wanted to have a publication that people outside of Luzerne would be interested in too." Marques transferred to Texas A & M this spring and is now a contributing editor, sending Allison material. He intends to start his own Squealer publication in Texas.

Allison plans to publish Squealer two times a semester. The second Squealer was published as a Christmas issue and a third publication was distributed on Valentine's Day. Allison will accept any material from students and faculty but says he will not print it if it's not in good taste. "More people are becoming interested," says Allison. "I received a lot of student contributions for the second and third issues."

Squealer contains no straight news. Its layout consists of 40 percent comic relief, 20 percent campus humor and 40 percent controversial material, i.e., the guest editorial in the February issue about a fetus' view of abortion; "Some responses to Squealer are positive and some are negative," says Allison. "I'm pleased that it is causing a reaction."

The magazine is sponsored by Luzerne Hall Council with costs at $40 per issue. If accepted as a university publication, Squealer will receive CGA funding. "Our popularity is growing," says Allison. "We printed copies of our third issue for Luzerne Hall and distributed 50 copies throughout campus. Demand has increased so much that there is one at the info desk, available with I.D."

C.J. Huhn

The next issue will be published in April and will have regular features including guest editorials, Dr. Dan (cousin of Dear Abby), Musical Celebrity Cartoon Corner, personals and Squealer of the Month (February's Squealer of the Month was Fred Rogers of Mr. Roger's Neighborhood.)

Contributions for April's issue and responses to February's issue can be sent to Squealer Magazine, Box 2052, Luzerne Hall.

BU professor trained students — and lions

R.W. FROMM
Voice Contributor

"When school's last work is suspended, and the doors are closed on the mob, When the driest classes are ended, and he feels he has finished his job, He will turn — and faith, he will need it — to relax for an eon or two With his lions, lynxes, and leopards, for they're easier taught than you."

This doggerel was written about one of Bloomsburg State Teachers College's best known professors when he was still teaching in the 1930's. George J. Keller, professor of art at Bloomsburg for almost thirty years (1922 until 1951), eventually gained national fame as a wildcat trainer in various circuses (including Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey, and the Shrine) at Disneyland, and on TV's "Big Top."

In the 1930s, however, Keller was in the early stages of training big cats and other wild animals, and his only show was a local summertime exhibit of them in the Bloomsburg area. It all began a few years before when an old college friend, undoubtedly remembering Keller's fondness for animals while at Columbia University, shipped a mountain lion from the Rockies to him with the message: "HERE, KELLER, TRAIN THIS." Keller did. He later added other big cats.

His big break came in the early forties when, adding a lion, a panther and cougars, he was persuaded to join other summer acts on Atlantic City's Million-Dollar Pier. His act was a big success, especially after he got in the middle of a fight among his animals and wound up with sixty stitches and five dead cats. The following year, at a county fair in upstate New York, he received additional publicity when a lion, into whose mouth Keller had placed his head, did not release him after the usual tap on the lip at ten counts. Only after some frantic moments and Keller's lapse into unconsciousness did the lion open his mouth and release the limp trainer.

A fellow art professor described Keller's job of teaching art instruction to education majors at Bloomsburg as "trying to show the uninterested how to show the more uninterested how to do something very few are interested in." Apparently thinking that teaching Bloomsburg students was more difficult than training big cats, Keller in 1951 gave up teaching entirely and began his animal act career full-time in circuses, at Disneyland, and on TV.

Keller's act was considered unusual because he did not work with a gun or chair, only a whip. And he used a great variety of cats — lions, tigers, cougars, cheetahs, leopards, panthers, and jaguars. Getting so many species of cats to cooperate in the ring was a remarkable feat because they are natural enemies, and occasionally one cat would kill another. Keller remarked "they're more eager to kill each other than they are to kill me, and that is my chief protection."

Keller's death in 1960 was as dramatic as his act. With his wife in the audience he collapsed and died in the ring after one of his lions, upon direction, had leaped onto its pedestal. Among other Keller materials, the University Archives holds Keller's whip and a "Keller's Lions" jacket used in connection with his act.

"Stuck pigs" vs. gratuity

JOHN J. SMALANSKAS

Voice Contributor

The relationship between Bloomsburg residents and university students is sometimes marred by problems, but a group is seeking solutions to them.

Although the group has no decision-making power, the Town Gown Committee discusses problems such as parking, late-night noise, parties, littering, vandalism and student-landlord relations.

A letter was sent to students from Vice President for Student Life, Jerrold A. Griffis, Feb. 1, but there was no response. "We wanted to make students more aware and get their attention, but they haven't given any feedback," said student member, Sue Burke.

In this letter, Griffis referred to the parking problem near classroom buildings. The streets become crowded and an inconvenience to local residents.

Students are urged to use the hospital parking lot, which will be more accessible when the overpass is completed in early spring.

Town residents also complain about litter and noise. In the Feb. 20 Press Enterprise, a letter to the editor, by Loomis Laubach stated: "The young college men hoot at one another like characters from a graded-B movie, while the young ladies screech and squeal like stuck pigs." He wrote, "We (local residents) wake up on Sunday morning to find beer cans, paper cups and candy wrappers covering our lawns like new fallen snow." Laubach infers students don't need the town, so they have a bad attitude toward it.

Another letter contributor, Joan Rickmers McFadden, has a different opinion. Her sister died in a fire and the family was swamped with expenses. The University started a memorial fund on behalf of her sister who had been a University student and helped the McFaddens' future.

At last Tuesday's meeting, the Town Gown Committee concluded — town problems can be put into two groups: alcohol and housing. In reference to alcohol incidents, Director of University Relations, Jessie McCoy, thinks there is not a lot of resentment, but "the few problems are crystallized."

Town Gown Committee meetings are held in town council chambers and are open to the public.

Meeting

It was also suggested the particular body appointed shouldn't be expected to solve the problem, but to find a way toward a workable solution.

Another idea was to consider first which method best fits the situation. Different structures, with different people involved, require different methods of solution. Make sure the problem is brought to the appropriate level of administration. Do not get people involved needlessly.

The most simple solution proposed was to find out what has already been done wrong before seeking other alternatives.

Because most of the meeting was spent around ideas, nothing concrete was accomplished. At the end of the meeting, Minderhout said he felt as if "nothing had been done."

Scholarship opportunities

Deadlines are quickly approaching for summer and fall financial aid, according to The Scholarship Bank.

Students with financial needs should begin now to investigate some of the more than 25,000 private aid sources, according to Steve Danz, Director. These funds are available to students with interests in a number of fields, and many do not depend on demonstrated financial need, as do state and federal funds. For example, students with an interest in business, law and accounting can receive a stipend from the Exceptional Student Fellowship Fund, and apply to the parent corporation for full time work following graduation.

The Scholarship Bank is the largest private scholarship bank in the country for undergraduate and for graduate grants and loans. The computer can help you find sources designed just for you, based on your major, occupational goal, geographic desires, type of aid requested (scholarships, loans, summer work), and special skills and hobbies. According to the director, the computer guarantees each student at least fifty sources of aid. It has been estimated that each package of aid represents approximately $20,000 in potential money for college. Private aid comes from America's largest foundations, corporations, unions, and private donors and totals approximately 500 million dollars, or one fourth of all available aid. Thus, it is an extremely valuable addition to the private and state moneys available. As an example of the depth of the search, the bank reports one student found thirty six sources for the most unusual major of "deep sea diver". Students wishing to use the search should send a stamped, self addressed envelope to The Scholarship Bank, 10100 Santa Monica No. 2600, LA CA 90067.

BU ice hockey team wins

The Bloomsburg University ice hockey team ended its regular season with a victory over Scranton University by a score of 9-4.

After two periods, the Huskies were leading by a score of 5-4, and in the third period while the defense, led by Dennis Slavin and Scott Chapman, were shutting down the Royals' attack, the offense scored four goals.

The team scoring was led by sophomore Mark Wilhelm who scored two goals. Bill Breslin, Jim Morgan, John Ford, George Pekurny, Dave Kwolski, Bobby Druckenmiller and Bobby Swake all scored one goal.

The team ended their regular season with a record of 10-5-1, placing them second in the league.

The Huskies will begin the playoff season today against Scranton University. This will be a best of three series.

During the past, games have shown hostility from both sides, which should lead to an exciting playoff series.

The winner of this series will advance to the championship series of the Northeastern Ice Hockey League.

the relay entries.

Freshman diver Margaret Norris scored 405.59 points on the one-meter board to become the sole representative for BU in the diving category.

"We had a great conference meet and if we can keep the momentum going we have a good chance to do quite well at this national meet. Our relays have traditionally done well and this year our individual qualifiers are stronger than ever before going into this meet," said coach Gardner.

Swimmers set sights on Orlando

SARAH E. HACKFORTH
Sports Editor

A few members of the BU women's swim team are off to sunny Florida for Spring Break. The all-expense paid trip was not free though for these nine individuals.

A hard road of qualifying stretched ahead of each of coach Mary Gardner's swimmers this year. Training began seven months ago with the theme of achieving a national qualifying time running through each of their minds.

Orlando, Florida is the site of this year's national Division II swimming and diving championships. The four day event is slated to begin March 13.

Gwen Cressman was the first to achieve a qualifying time this season. She accomplished the feat during the Huskies first meet at the U.S. Naval Academy. She swam under the qualifying time in the 100 yard backstroke. She subsequently qualified for 3 more individual events (200 back, 200 I.M., 100 free) and 4 relay events.

Team mate Kelly Knaus was the only other Husky to qualify in more than one individual event. The junior will represent the Huskies in the 400 I.M., 200 butterfly and compete against Cressman in the 200 I.M.

Freshman Beth Roeder qualified in the 200 butterfly with a time of 2:11.14. Senior Dana Grubb swam the 100 freestyle in 54.12 to also qualify in the individual events.

Five of Gardner's relay teams qualified for the national event. The 200 medley qualified with a time of 1:52.77 with the team composed of Cressman, Crystal Wilt, Roeder, Grubb. The 200 free and 400 free qualified with times of 1:40.91 and 3:40.29 respectively. Members of the two relays are: Grubb, Knaus, Kim Mader, Paulette Fahringer, and Cressman.

Mader, Grubb, Knaus and Cressman combined to swim the 800 free relay in 7:53.37 to round out

Tennis team hopes for no-fault season

For the first time in five years, the Bloomsburg University men's tennis team will be in the role of the pursuer instead of the pursued. Coach Burt Reese's Huskies, who won the Pennsylvania Conference title from 1979 to 1983, will be out to take back the trophy won by West Chester a year ago.

In 1984, BU, boasting one of its youngest squads in several seasons, posted a 17-10 record to match the 13th consecutive winning campaign. But, in the 12-team race for PC honors, the Huskies came up short in their quest for a sixth straight crown.

In addition, last season Bloomsburg was not represented at the NCAA Division II Championships for the first time since 1978.

"We should present a strong challenge for the conference championship," stated Reese, now in his 17th season at the school with an overall mark of 227-93.

"The experience we gained a year ago with an extremely young team against a tough schedule will make us a much improved team."

The lone senior on the squad Rob Lario, will serve as captain and played in the number five singles position in the fall as the Huskies posted a 5-0 slate and participated in three tournaments. Lario notched a 10-4 mark to up his career total to 70-51.

Junior Mike Penny, performed one spot above Lario in the fall and appears set at the number four position again this spring. He had a fall record of 8-4 and stands at 35-26 for his career at BU.

Four sophomores will make up the remainder of the lineup with Mike Casari, at No. 1, Tim Mitchell, filling the second singles slot, Scott Gibbs, at No. 3 and Steve Augustine, rounding out the lineup in the number six spot.

Mitchell has seen action at both of the top singles positions and went 8-4 in the fall to set his career mark at 25-23 while Casari played full time following his transfer from Penn State and a bout with a knee injury and recorded an 8-4 mark to go to 13-5 overall at Bloomsburg.

Gibbs is battling tendinitis during the preseason but is expected to be ready for the spring opener at Washington and Lee on March 12 and went 9-4 in the fall session and is 27-17 overall.

Augustine will move into the top six on a permanent basis for the first time and appears "ready to make a strong contribution."

Reese commented, "This group has the talent to win a conference title, but they're going to have to mature into a solid team quickly. Our schedule is designed to give them every opportunity to be ready when tournament time comes around."

Directly behind the starting group is freshman Dean Doria, a rapidly improving player who could pose a threat to the players above him in the near future. Also with the 1985 unit are another pair of first-year performers, Steve Looker, and Dave Lesko.

The doubles lineup has two teams which returned from last year's PC tournament with championships.

At the No. 1 position will be the duo of Gibbs and Lario, who also with Mitchell and Augustine at No. 3, took top conference honors in 1984. Filling the middle slot will be Casari and Penny, a pair that will be together for the first time.

Bloomsburg will face a 24-match schedule that includes nine NCAA Division I opponents as the Huskies aim for the PC Championships at Shippensburg University on May 3-4.

The Huskies were in action this weekend at Lock Haven in the EWL tournament. See Wednesday's issue of the Voice for results. Ken Wajda
