

BU administrators, CGA and tavern owners discuss this year's homecoming

MIKE FEELEY
Staff Writer

In what was called an informal open discussion, members of the university administration, Community Government Association, and owners of taverns met with Bloomsburg Police Chief Larry Smith and Mayor Daniel J. Bauman. The meeting was called to try to avoid the problems of last years homecoming.

According to Bauman although the problem was blown out of proportion by the press, this meeting was held to make the bar owners aware of any problems that might occur.

"What really happened last year," explained Bauman, "was that one person outside a bar harassed a woman. She then went to the police and complained."

He added that this was the only major problem.

"None of the problems we have with trouble makers at the bar don't happen inside," said Wayne Beyer owner of the Paddock. "It is when they go outside, owners can't really do anything."

According to Smith the police patrols will be beefed up this year, to try and stop any problems that might occur outside.

Back pain course to be offered at BU

One of the most unusual mini-courses being offered this fall at BU is a seven week non-credit course for people who suffer from chronic back pain.

Beginning Oct. 7, class will be conducted Monday evenings, 7 to 8:30 p.m., room 3229, McCormick Center. Class discussions will emphasize the causes, prevention, and management of back pain as well as various options for relief. Community specialists will address the class on the topics of Orthopedic surgery, Physical Therapy, Stress Management, Neurosurgery, Acupuncture, Chiropractic, and Reflexology. Audio-visual presentations will also be featured. The course fee is $40.00.

For more information contact BU's School of Extended Programs, second floor, Waller Administration Building or phone 389-4420, weekdays 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Bauman added that if a problem does occur at one bar, the police switch board will notify all the other taverns and tell them of the trouble.

Bauman said that during last years homecoming the owners handled the situation of the large crowds real well. "The owners temporarily closed down the bars when the trouble began which helped control something that could have occurred."

In a suggestion, Ned Lemon owner of Lemon's Tavern explained that last year he sold no six packs during the evening. "This kept the people from drinking outside."

He felt that if other owners do this, problems may not occur.

Lemon also praised the job that the police did last year in handling the crowds at all the establishments.

When the owners were asked what the students could do to help stop any problem, Beyer said "It wasn't the students who were the problem, it was the alumni, there were just so many of them."

John Trathen, director of student activities at the university, said that most likely the homecoming this year will be bigger than last year. "This happens when your football team is winning a lot."

He added that even though it may be bigger, that doesn't mean anything can happen. "Last year was the first time we have had any trouble at homecoming time."

Throughout the meeting the owners brought up problems that could occur and problems that have occurred in the past, and they asked Smith what they could do about it.

A major concern with the owners was what do they do with a trouble maker inside the bar. According to Smith the police cannot throw a person out of a bar if he is not disruptive when the police arrive. He said, however, that the owners should ask the person to leave in front of the officer. If he refuses then the police can arrest him for defiant trespassing.

Both Smith and Bauman were pleased with the discussion but were disappointed that Bill Hess of Hess' Tavern did not show up.

Smith said that he hopes that the preventive measures taken this year will help stop any problems on homecoming day before they occur.

BU marching band grows bigger and better

TARA YOST
Staff Writer

This year the Bloomsburg University Maroon and Gold Marching Band has doubled its membership and is truly a "university marching band."

Under the direction of Mr. Terry Oxley, the band started practice on August 29 with three days of pre-season band camp. During this time both the band and the colorguard worked for hours learning the pre-game drill, basic marching and music concepts and colorguard fundamentals. It was also a time for the upperclassmen and freshmen to work together and become acquainted with each other.

The band consists of approximately 50 playing members and 45 colorguard members.

This year's colorguard squad captains are: Michelle Snyder and Lisa Finkles-tein, silk captains; Alan Peoples and Tara Yost, rifle captains; Beth Pitts, twirling captain; Dawn Jones, kickline captain; Lori Kirk and Becky Solsman, features twirlers.

The band is led onto the field by senior drum major Cindy Hepler and performs pre-game and half-time shows. They also play as a pep band and cheering section from the stands.

There are three different shows the band must learn and perfect. The pre-game show begins with the song "She Works Hard For The Money", continues with concert number "Strut," and ends with "We Are The World."

The half-time show planned for Parent's Weekend is a jazz medley consisting of opener, "Fascinating Rhythm", concert number, "Big Noise From Winnetka" and closes with "Someone To Watch Over Me".

The Homecoming half-time show revolves around the theme of Broadway with numbers "Overture from Cats", "Lullaby of Broadway", and "You'll Never Walk Alone".

Taking to the road this year, the Maroon and Gold Band will travel to two away games, Lock Haven and Kutztown, and will march at all the home games.

Members of the band and colorguard work four nights a week for one hour to iron out difficulties in the drill, music and colorguard routines.

"I'm extremely happy with the progress we've made through the year," said Oxley, "but we can always use more players."

Alumni Association finds new home

The Alumni Association finally has what they have long desired—a presence on campus. Four months after the purchase of the former Dillon residence on Lightstreet Road, they have moved in and are ready for business. The house, which is the second house past the maintenance building, had been utilized since August 13.

The closed-in porch of the house is being used as a reception area. The dining room and living rooms are the focal points of the house. They will be used for meetings, receptions and small dinner parties. The kitchen is also being maintained.

The second and third floors are being used as offices and work rooms. With the exception of some wiring changes for phone lines and computer terminals, very few alterations were made to the house.

Funds for the purchase of the $110,000 home came from a variety of sources. The Husky Contingency Fund allocated $25,000 towards the purchase. Over $30,000 was donated by various classes. One individual gift of $5,000, one of $1,000, and one of $500 were donated. In addition, gifts of furniture were received and will be worked into the decor of the house.

EDITORIAL

The threat of a strike by the faculty of the fourteen state-owned universities of the State System of Higher Education is looming larger and larger in front of many perplexed and increasingly concerned students.

To say that there is little to worry about at this time would be a blatant lie. There is more to worry about than a work stoppage by the faculty.

An even greater worry is the future of the State System of Higher Education if such a major turmoil can erupt within its first few years of existence.

The public battling between the SSHE and APSCUF is putting a sour taste in many mouths, but the Chancellor seems to be ignoring the evidence presented by APSCUF on the need for competitive faculty salaries.

He has assured the students that he is committed to keeping the cost of higher education down, but what is lost-cost education without getting a quality education that will provide a firm base for the future?

The Chancellor has suggested in his letter to APSCUF President Terry Madonna that they return to the bargaining table where the SSHE team will "continue, as it has from the outset, to work actively to reach a resolution that is in the best interests of this educational system as a whole."

How can the SSHE bargaining team be working actively if the Chief negotiator of the SSHE, Edward Kelly, Jr. will not sit at the negotiating table, but has already employed his right to the use of a mediator, who runs from the APSCUF team to the SSHE team with proposals?

The Chancellor, in his letter does not hesitate to throw a few stones at APSCUF and especially President Madonna. But like they always say, people who live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones.

The strike may become a reality on October 21, but between now and then, the Chancellor has the opportunity to see the point of view of the faculty who are fighting for what they believe in, what they have trained for for years, the ability to be a part of the quality education of the young people that will be tomorrow.

Binding arbitration rejected by SSHE

The following is the letter from the State System of Higher Education Chancellor James McCormick to Dr. Terry G. Madonna, state APSCUF president, explaining the SSHE Board of Governor's decision to reject binding arbitration. The letter was hand-delivered by the Chancellor on Wednesday.

Dr. G. Terry Madonna
President, APSCUF and
Dr. James W. White
Chief Negotiator
319 North Front Street
Harrisburg, PA 17108

Dear Dr. Madonna and Dr. White:

This letter comes following thoughtful consideration of, and in direct response to, the letter you hand-delivered to me on September 10, 1985, at a meeting which you had requested that day.

I regret to say that at the outset that what initially appeared to be a good faith meeting, and a good faith suggestion that the parties consider submitting our outstanding economic issues to final and binding interest arbitration, must subsequently be understood not as good faith efforts, but as pretext for public relations efforts. You gave me assurances at the meeting that I need not respond to your letter immediately, and communicated a sense that your offer would be kept confidential until we had the opportunity to consider it carefully and to respond. Your press conference the following day would seem to belie those assurances.

Further, I am obligated to take exception to the assertion in your letter of September 10 that "the current contract negotiations between APSCUF and the SSHE have become ominously stalled." I must remind you that it was APSCUF which called off the negotiations on Friday, August 30, 1985, preferring to attend to other matters rather than continue to negotiate, even though it had been made absolutely clear that the System negotiating team would remain at the bargaining table for as long as necessary.

We formally reject your offer to submit the outstanding economic matters to binding arbitration. We believe that the judgement of the General Assembly and the Governor and their statutory mandate to us to follow Act 195 must be carried forward. The reference in your letter that binding arbitration is provided by state law for police and firefighters should be recognized for what it is—a process available to those union members because they have no right to strike. The General Assembly and the Governor have chosen not to mandate such a process for us. As Chancellor, I must question the wisdom, and perhaps even the legality, of our Board of Governors delegating to an arbitrator the unfettered right to mandate terms or conditions of employment which might not be afforded by the System or be consistent with policy directives articulated by the Board. We pledge, therefore, to comply with all aspects of Act 195 and will work diligently pursuant to that Act to try to reach an accord. We suggest that the Fact Finding process set forth in Act 195 be considered at the appropriate time should no earlier resolution be forthcoming.

I am pleased to learn that APSCUF does not desire a strike and that you have been "committed to doing everything possible to avert one." However, permit me to suggest that you channel those efforts into action at the bargaining table. As they have from the outset, the SSHE bargaining team will continue to work actively to reach a resolution that is in the best interests of this educational System as a whole.

Finally, you and your members should understand, clearly and unmistakably, that while the Board and System officers do not want a strike, with all its attendant inconveniences to students and others, we are prepared to take a strike before we will grant economic or other terms and conditions which are not consistent with the best interests of the State System of Higher Education of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

I kindly suggest that you return to the bargaining table with an understanding of the realities facing us all.

Sincerely,

James H. McCormick

Recycling to begin in Bloomsburg

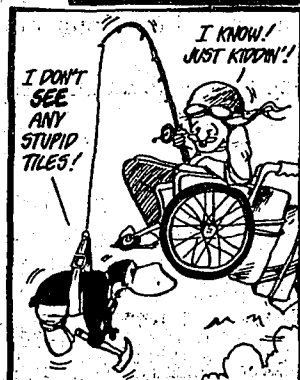

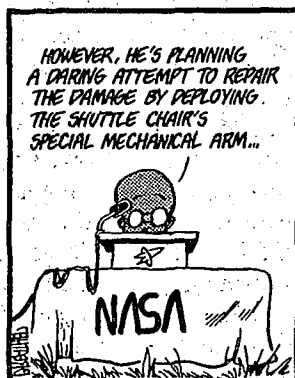

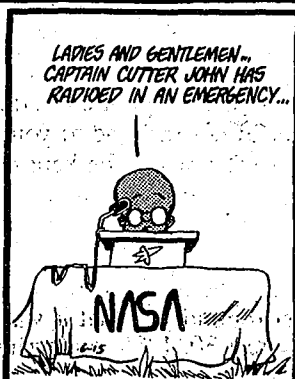

The September collection of recyclables in Bloomsburg gets under way tomorrow at 8 a.m., providing a timely cleanup opportunity for Bloomsburg residents, before Fair Week.

The town's recycling ordinance calls upon residents of Bloomsburg to recycle newspapers and glass containers. Volunteer Recycling Incorporated (VRI) also accepts flattened corrugated cardboard, aluminum, bimetal, and steel cans. Magazines, junk mail and mixed paper are not recyclable at this time because there is no market for them. Residents must place these items in with their regular trash for collection by the trash haulers. VRI will once again collect these materials as soon as there is a market for them.

Volunteers are always needed to assist with the curbside pickup. Anyone wishing to volunteer with tomorrow's collection may contact Don Kingston at the Recycling Center, at 784-4532.

Odd Thoughts:Thirsting for language

DUANE LONG
Voice Columnist

"Nim the metter and sned the oxflesh."

Come again?

That's what "Take the knife and cut the meat" would have sounded like back before William the Conqueror beat the tar out of King Harold of England at the battle of Hastings (1066 A.D.).

Why am I quoting things in the Saxon language?

Because I hope to explain why our modern day English language is such an ungodly jumble of Latin-Greek-German-French-Swahili?

Just kidding...

Put yourself in this situation: You've had a hard day at BU, and you stop in at Hess's Tavern. Your buddy Clyde walks in right afterwards and sits down beside you. You tell Eric the bartender:

"Two beers."

In the following countries, this translates to:

France-----"Deux bieres."
Spain/Mexico---"Dos cervezas."
Italy-----"Due birra."
Germany-----"Zwei bieren."
Yugoslavia-----"Dva pivo."
Turkey-----"Iki bira."
Japan-----"Ni biiru."
Swaziland-----"Mbili pombe."

What does any of this have to do with Saxon, the history of the English language, of the battle of Hastings?

Absolutely nothing.

But at least you know how to say "two beers" in eight languages.

Spanish dancers Pascual Olivera and Angela del Moral mesmerized the audience during their performance Wednesday, Mitrani Hall. A different costume was worn for each vibrant dance performed. The couple was given two encores before intermission and a standing ovation at the end of the performance.

YOUR EDUCATION DOESN'T STOP HERE

Your education doesn't stop with a baccalaureate degree. It begins there. Once you enter the world of work, you will gain valuable experience and really discover what it's all about to use what you learned in college.

Take the Air Force for example. As a commissioned officer you'll be handed executive responsibility on your very first assignment. You'll manage people and complex systems. You'll be expected to perform well, and you'll be paid well, too. It's worth working for.

You can get there through the Air Force ROTC program. In fact, we have a scholarship plan that will net you $100 a month tax free and pay for all tuition, books and lab and incidental fees. And that will free you to concentrate on your studies so you can get well prepared for where you're headed.

Check it out. Find out how you can get into a "graduate" program like the Air Force. It's a great way to serve your country, and possibly find your formal education extended at Air Force expense as well.

Frisbee

Kryspin added that she plans to discuss the possibility of starting an organized intramural frisbee football league with Carl Hinkle and Joan Auten, the heads of the intramural sports department. Kryspin noted that since the cold weather will soon be here, the league, if started, will not begin until spring.

Guy Smith, one of the players, said he thinks that a regular frisbee football league would be good to have. "They have a frisbee football league at Kutztown and it is really popular."

He added, "I had a great time, plus I got to meet a lot of people."

Frisbee football is played like football, only a frisbee is used. A play is over whenever the frisbee is dropped, intercepted or thrown over the goal line for a touchdown.

Unlike regular football, no contact is involved.

Freshman Lynne Mohinsky said, "I never played frisbee football before, it was really a good time. Our team lost but it did not matter to us if we won or lost, we just came out to have fun."

Sanders' to compete in 8K race

Bloomsburg University Athletic Director Roger Sanders will be competing in the third annual Foot Locker Partners Race in Washington, DC on September 29.

Sanders will pair with brother Robert in the 8K (4.97 mile) run. Running not only improves his health, but it gives him an excuse to get together with his brother, Sanders said.

The Partners race is unique in that contestants pair together and compete against other teams according to the combined age of the participants.

Three divisions have been established for the event. Male-female, male-male and female-female. Special categories have been added in which family members may pair with each other, including husband-wife and brother-sister.

The race will begin at 8:30 a.m. in West Potomac Park, Washington, DC. An estimated 2000 entrants are expected.

Huskies win 32nd straight

Bloomsburg University's field hockey team extended its current winning streak to 32 games Wednesday with a 4-0 victory over Slippery Rock.

The Huskies scored all four goals in the first half as Slippery Rock never threatened. The Rockets managed just five shots on goal.

Beth Eyer, the Huskies' goalie, was the defensive star, turning away every Rocket attempt.

Eyer, a junior transfer from Bucknell, registered her second shutout in as many games as a Husky.

Kate Denny paced the BU offense with two goals and one assist. The junior opened the scoring with a goal at 7:41 off a Carla Shearer pass.

Diane Shields scored her second goal of the season at 16:48, unassisted, to give BU a 2-0 advantage.

Mindy Crouse and Denny teamed up eight minutes later with Crouse firing a shot past Rocket goalie Jo Leight.

Denny rounded out the scoring with an unassisted goal to take over the team lead with three.

Shields and Donna Graupp are right behind with two goals each.

The Huskies are averaging 27 shots on goal per game while limiting their opponents to just three.

BU will host Indiana in a home game tomorrow at 1:00 p.m.

Carla Shearer takes a shot while Donna Graupp (1) prepares to get a possible rebound shot.

BU downs Bison 7-2 drops Mansfield 9-0

MIKE FEELEY
Managing Editor

The Bloomsburg University women's tennis team won two matches on the road within the last week to raise its record to 2-0.

The Huskies defeated Bucknell this past Tuesday 7-2 after downing Mansfield 9-0 last week.

BU's number one player, Meg Heard defeated Bucknell's Sarah Palmer in straight sets, 6-4, 7-5.

Senior captain Kathy Masch took the number two match by a 6-4, 6-1 score over Mindy Moyer.

Other winners for the Huskies were Megan Clarke, Cortlee Gerhart, and Karen Gubicza.

Clarke won the closest match of the day, prevailing 3-6, 6-4, 7-5. Gerhart took the number four singles match with a 6-2, 6-1 victory.

Gubicza took the other singles victory with a 6-2, 6-3 decision. Number six player Chris Tegge dropped her match to Cynthia Bentley 1-6, 4-6.

In doubles action, BU took the number one and three slots with Bucknell getting its other win at number two.

Heard and Masch teamed to capture the number one doubles by a 3-6, 6-3, 7-5 count.

Gubicza/Tegge won at number three while Gerhart/Clarke fell at number two in straight sets, 4-6, 5-7.

In the Huskies' victory over Mansfield, every BU player got two victories, one each in doubles and singles.

No Husky player surrendered more than two games in one set and only one doubles team allowed more than two in a set.

At this point in the season, Coach Herbert is pleased with the overall performances of the team and hopes the girls will continue to play their best tennis.

The team will play again tomorrow when it hosts Kutztown in a 2:00 p.m. match.

Frisbee football enjoyed by all

SUSAN BACKER
Staff Writer

Despite the 80 degree weather and hordes of gnats, the Program Board's first Frisbee Football Tournament, held Wednesday on the lawn between Centennial Gym and Sutliff Hall, was a big success.

Six co-ed teams, each with six players, participated in the tournament. Each game lasted 20 minutes with the losing team being eliminated from play.

In the first game, the Gumbies beat the Unofficial Students 9-4. The Frisbee Flyers narrowly defeated the UFO's (Ultimate Frisbee Offenders) 8-7 in the second game while the G-5's took the third contest 8-3 over the Generics.

The G-5's, the walk-on team, then won the by-pass draw and watched as the Frisbee Flyers downed the Gumbies 9-6 in the semifinals.

The final game was a close contest but the G-5's prevailed 5-4.

Pizzas and drinks, donated by Domino's Pizza, were awarded to the top two teams.

"It turned out really well," said Alice Kryspin, the Program Board's recreation chairperson. "All I wanted was for people to have fun. The players liked the game so much that they would like to have a game every week."
