Non-Traditional Student Week set for next week

JEAN BIHL
Staff Writer

Two years ago, Barbara Boyer felt the need for a non-traditional student support group. Although she had graduated before the Student Organization of Adult Resources (S.O.A.R.) became an official organization, it was her initial effort that started S.O.A.R. on the right track.

S.O.A.R. is a support group for non-traditional students at Bloomsburg University. Its purpose is to help those students with families and/or full-time jobs meet the needs and special problems, such as time management, they may encounter.

The organization is one of the leading of its kind in the state. "The administration at this college is more progressive than most and extremely helpful and receptive to our organization concerning things we want to accomplish," said S.O.A.R. President Steve Ross.

S.O.A.R. attempts to reach the approximate 1,000 non-traditional students on campus by way of a newsletter. Special workshops are also offered to all students. A peer advisement group is available from 4:30 to 7 p.m. in the S.O.A.R. office.

A networking program has been devised by S.O.A.R. to help students with scheduling and choosing instructors. Students can obtain the numbers of other students in the same major who can advise them on classes and instructors they have taken in the past.

In order to raise the awareness of the campus and community, S.O.A.R. is holding their annual Non-Traditional Student Week, Nov. 4-8. President Harry Ausprich signed a proclamation last Friday designating the week for the week of the event.

The week begins with a "Kick Off Party," Nov. 4, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Union. An information table will be set up in the Union, Nov. 5, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. The events will end with the opportunity for non-traditional students to meet and talk with the President and Vice-presidents during a reception at Buckalew Place, Nov. 7.

If you would like more information on S.O.A.R., call 389-4044. "We can help you out with just about any problem, anytime," said Ross.

Pennsylvania State Police looking for recruits

KATHLEEN DOUGHERTY
Staff Writer

The Pennsylvania State Police is currently recruiting Bloomsburg University students interested in a career in law enforcement. They are looking for active, intelligent and conscientious people.

Through an extensive application process and training program, those people not possessing the necessary intelligence, emotional stability or physical stamina the job demands will be eliminated.

In order to fill out a preliminary application for State Police Cadet, some general requirements must be filled. Applicants must be a resident of Pennsylvania prior to applying, 20 years old on or before the date of the application, and possess a valid Pennsylvania driver's license at the time of the appointment.

Applicants are also advised of the physical requirements, such as vision, weight, and hearing standards that must be met.

If applicants meet the general and physical requirements, they must then take a written intelligence test. Those who successfully pass the examination and are selected for further processing will report to the State Police Academy, Hershey.

Eating disorders to be discussed

Eating disorders are becoming more prevalent in the college population than ever before. The Center for Counseling and Human Development will present an evening discussion entitled "Who's in control: You or the food?" on Tuesday, Oct. 29, from 6 to 9 p.m. in Kuster Auditorium, Hartline Science Center. The discussion will focus on how to recognize and prevent eating disorders.

Featured speakers will be Ms. Carolyn Dalton, a registered dietician who has earned her master's in nutritional science, and Dr. Paul Kettlewell, an

Lay missionaries discuss Nicaraguan problems

Maryknoll Lay Missionaries Susan Grace and Jim Sweeney along with Sister Mary Elizabeth ASC visited Bloomsburg University last Thursday, to share, through slides and discussion, their experiences in Nicaragua.

Grace has been to Nicaragua twice with "Witness for Peace," a non-violent religious organization that is trying to change United States policy in Nicaragua by continuously sending groups to the war zones in Nicaragua.

Sweeney, a graduate of Villanova, has spent three years in Venezuela as a lay missionary. He has been working for the "Pledge for Resistance," a pledge 60,000 American citizens have taken promising to resist legally and with civil disobedience should the United States invade Central America.

He has also travelled throughout Central America.

The three speakers discussed the fact that history has affected them today. The Nicaraguans have had a history of occupation by the United States Marines from 1912 to 1925 and then again from 1926 to 1933.

The United States put in Anastasio Somoza who ruled with the force of the United States trained National Guard for the next 45 years.

The brutal depression during the Somoza dynasty led the people to reunite and overthrow Somoza in 1977. They then gave amnesty to many of the National Guard who fled to the Honduras and Costa Rica.

These people formed the Contras who are now coming back into the country aided by the United States government to attack the civilian population.

Grace and Sweeney claimed over 7,000 people have been killed by the Contras and that is a higher percentage than the number of Americans killed in the Vietnam War.

The lay missionaries are in Nicaragua to try to help change our (United States) policy and look for ways to work for peace. The United States has a vital role to play in what is going to happen in Central America.

Grace believes we hurt ourselves and what we have founded our country on when we condone policies like we have now.

There will be another segment on Monday, Oct. 28 at 7 p.m. in multipurpose room B, Kehr Union Building. The program will include a slide presentation, discussion and a question and answer period.

Three cheers for Agnes of God

A thousand cheers for the Bloomsburg Player's production of Agnes of God.

To perform, direct, organize, and produce such an intense, thought-provoking piece of drama, and make it something that students talked about after viewing was work, but work well worth it when one considers that this piece of drama had such a positive effect on all those who attended.

For all those who did not have the opportunity to experience this masterpiece of emotion and well-developed tension with just the right amount of "human" humor to lessen the tension, it is the story of a young nun, who is being tried for murdering an infant she conceived and gave birth to in the convent without anyone's knowledge, and supposedly without help of the opposite sex.

Although the drama does revolve around Agnes' treatment by a psychologist to determine her mental state, it goes much farther than that.

The story, played in full by only three characters, Agnes, the Mother Superior, and the psychologist, covers the feelings and emotions of these characters in depth.

It delves into the doubts and fears of all three of these women. Doubts and fears about their religious beliefs, beliefs about destiny and fate versus the control of a divine being, and fears that lurk in the mind- the products of abuse and guilt.

Although it revolves around the Catholic church, many of the doubts expressed are applicable to any person of any faith or non-faith pondering the ways of the world.

It seems that the characters are looking for answers to questions, questions they cannot always find the answers to. But isn't that the way life is? Aren't we always asking questions about science, nature, history, astronomy, medicine, and on and on? Many of which we will never find answers to?

One of the lines I remember most, that struck me as momentous was a line uttered by the Mother Superior. "Who knows what the mind is capable of..." referring to the fact that we utilize only a small portion of the human brain's capabilities.

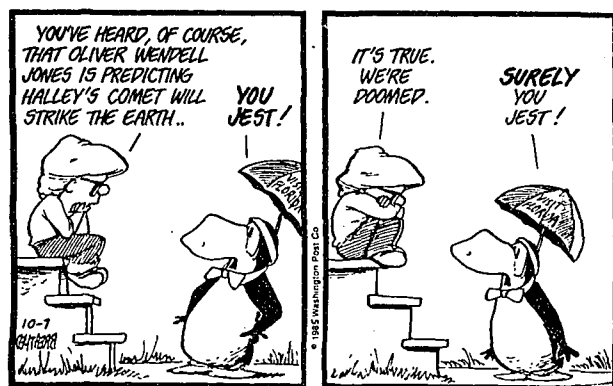

I am not debating anything religious here, only saying that it is something that makes many people think, and this play allowed for many people to open their minds to something a little "higher" than the trivialness of day to day living.

I wonder what kind of "culture shock" would have hit this campus if everyone of us on this campus had seen this play and pondered its and life's questions together?

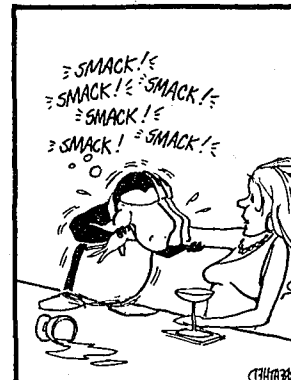

To wonder what kind of mass solutions we may have offered or points of view we might have shared.

To all of you who did not witness the play, you may be finding this message strange, but I guarantee, to have seen it, your emotions and mind too, would have gotten the better of you.

Again I applaud the players for bringing such a vehicle for thought to Bloomsburg.

The Voice reserves the right to edit all submissions.

Changes for May Graduation?

Dear Editor,

It has come to the students' attention that President Ausprich intends on changing the commencement ceremony for this May. Instead of the entire class of 1986 graduating together, he plans on separating the university into its three colleges, Business, Arts and Sciences, and Professional Studies, and each college will graduate at a different time and place on May 10, 1986.

I strongly disagree with this idea. I have gone to school at Bloomsburg for four years and the friends I have made are all of different majors. I would like to share my graduation ceremony with all my friends, not just the ones within my academic area.

Commencement is for the students and I feel the students should have some input in this decision. WE are the ones being recognized on May 10, not the administration.

I hope President Ausprich will take the students' opinion into consideration before these plans are finalized.

Signed

The Far Side is a hit

Dear Mr. Feeley,

I just read where The Far Side will become a part of the Voice and I am extremely pleased.

I was considering suggesting the idea a couple of weeks ago, and mentioned it to a few friends.

I'm not sure where you got the idea, but I think it's great.

The Far Side has such an off-the-wall sense of humor, it definitely should be a part of any newspaper printed, at least college papers.

Keep up the good work!

A Happy Reader,
Dave Garton

To: The team at the Voice

Excellent choice in getting "The Far Side" added to an improving newspaper. It's the kind of humor confused, distorted minds of college students need. Keep up the good work and the new ideas. I represent a large group of confused and distorted individuals.

Yours Truly,
The Far Side Fanatic

A matter of noise not equipment

This is in response to John Garcia's excuses for the noise problem on the third floor of the union.

Mr. Manager, the fact that you don't have soundproof rooms does not make me sympathize with you in regard to "flunking out and not responsible for it."

Your lack of equipment may just be the result of a number of complaints since the beginning of the semester, the most recent one finally being spoken out through the Voice. I'm not surprised that you don't have funds for better equipment.

WBSC's quality is far from professional. The filthy language and sex-related comments made over the air some nights are so below a normal human's standards that the only answer is to turn the radio off. It's too bad that can't be done in the union.

Also, the statistics you mention are meaningless to most students. It doesn't matter if the noise of the station can be compared to residual SPL from the union heater/cooler or the residual levels in the Gold Room.

Why make such comparisons and pleas for new equipment? It doesn't matter if your equipment stinks, just turn the volume down!

Not Flunking Out

'Proper class etiquette' for the instructor as well as the student

All the students are in the classroom, their notebooks and pencils are ready but class does not begin. Something is missing--the instructor.

I am sure this is something every student has experienced. Everyone has rushed to be on time for a class only to wait for the instructor to show up. How can a student be expected to be punctual when the instructor cannot be so himself?

Of course, there are circumstances that arise occasionally to make someone late, but it should not be a habitual problem. I am not against having a few minutes less of lecture time. I do mind, though, when a test cannot be completed in the available classtime because an instructor arrives late. It seems the instructor who stresses "proper class etiquette" to his students is the one to be late more often than not.

When an instructor is ten or more minutes late, we lose valuable classtime. If that is not bad enough, what about the day of a test when he arrives late and penalizes the student who cannot complete the test in the remaining time.

I think once all instructors start showing "proper class etiquette" to their students, then they can expect the same in return.

Time to study and no place to go

Places to study may be difficult to find these days, but time to study is more important.

I can't remember the number of times I've hoped to catch up on some research or studying only to find the library closed on Friday and Saturday nights.

If the library was open on either night, people wouldn't complain so much about places and time to study.

There is no question the dorms and the union are very noisy on the weekends - some people still need that time to study and, specifically, the use of the library.

The choice may be to fry or not to fry but at least you have a choice

I don't believe Tracey Mann appreciates the fact she has three meals a day.

After reading Ms. Mann's opinion, I became very annoyed. She complains about fried food and slightly brown lettuce. As an off-campus student on a minimal budget, I can't sympathize with her at all.

There are times when the money runs low and all I eat for dinner is soup. I don't have the chance to choose between over-fried food or "cooked to death" vegetables.

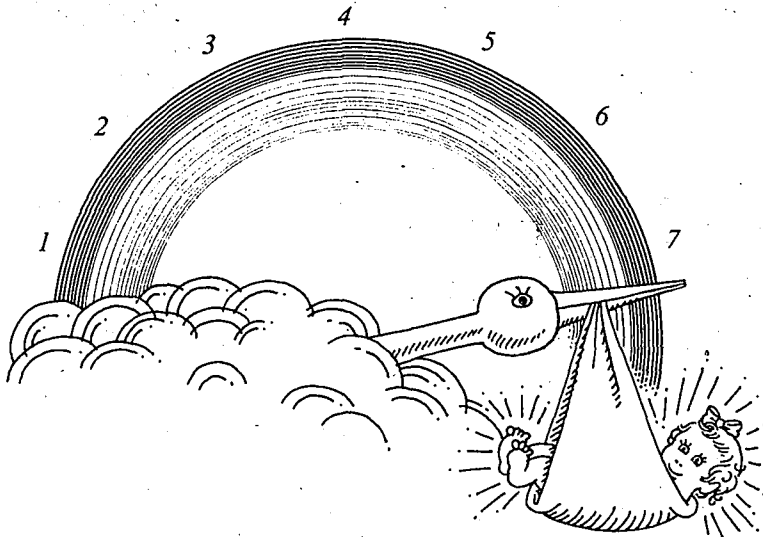

You are probably wondering why I moved off-campus then. When I transferred here I was not given a choice. There was no room for me in a dorm.

I understand you pay for the food you eat in the Commons, but I also know you don't pay enough to be fed the gourmet food you seem to crave.

I don't want to make it seem like I beg in the neighborhood for food, but I do scrounge at times for a good meal.

So remember, it may not be shrimp but it is a good meal, probably better than most off-campus meals.

Maximum penalties for use of fake I.D.'s

TERRI QUARESIMO
Staff Writer

The next time you consider buying a bottle of liquor, or getting into a bar using your "altered" driver's license—think twice.

Knowingly and falsely misrepresenting yourself to be twenty-one in order to obtain alcohol is a misdemeanor of the third degree.

Penalties include a fine up to $300 or a maximum prison sentence of one year. Tough penalties like these have made people think twice about the risks involved.

Cases involving the use of false or altered identification cards to obtain alcohol have actually decreased within the past few years. Sergeant John A. Riegel of the Bloomsburg Police Department said, "If we've had six in the past year we've been lucky. Of course, that doesn't mean there aren't a lot of people using false I.D.'s. It just means that they aren't getting caught."

Sergeant Riegel believes the first place false I.D.'s have to be stopped is at the photo license centers. It's too easy to say you lost your license, lie about your age, and receive a fake one. "The state had to take action to secure better I.D.'s," said Riegel.

In the meantime, Sergeant Riegel says the police are remaining as cooperative as they have ever been with tavern owners to stop the use of false I.D.'s.

Eric Hess, speaking for Hess' Tavern, says they have had to call the police very few times in the past. He believes Hess' reputation as a "heavy carder" discourages many people from using false I.D.'s. He says they are very careful about letting people in because they have to protect themselves. Someone is at the door all the time checking I.D.'s.

State liquor stores appear more harsh in their penalties. According to Jim Reed, assistant manager of the liquor store on Main St., "If we can tell the I.D. has been changed or altered, we hold onto it and call the police." He says a rash of these incidents occurred about two years ago. Since then, people have realized what a hard stand they have taken.

When asked if the Liquor Control Board was getting stricter in prosecuting violators, Reed merely stated, "They're around all the time, especially in college towns."

At the moment, a Pennsylvania driver's license is considered the only type of valid identification for obtaining alcohol. A special I.D. from the state for non-drivers is also available. LCB cards have been done away with.

With all the talk of alcohol awareness, and the new laws concerning alcohol, the crackdown on false I.D.'s promises to become stricter.

PA State Police recruits needed

At this time, applicants are subject to a physical examination, a physical agility test, where various exercises must be performed in an allotted amount of time, and an oral interview.

In addition to the intellectual and physical qualifications, the State Police require applicants to be of good moral character. In order to determine this, a thorough background investigation of the applicant is conducted.

After successfully completing all of the above, applicants are eligible for appointment as a State Police Cadet. If selected, they will report to the Academy for an intensive 20-week academic and physical training program.

During the 20 weeks, cadets are trained in police education and skills. They learn how to use various weapons, including shotguns, machine guns. They also undergo a physical conditioning program which includes weight training, fighting techniques, a running program and water safety. In addition, they are instructed in pursuit driving techniques.

Cadets receive approximately $544 biweekly during this training period. Meals and lodging at the Academy are provided at no cost.

Upon completion of the training program, a cadet is promoted to Trooper and assigned to a State Police facility in Pennsylvania. Starting salary of a Trooper is approximately $17,700 annually with five annual increments exceeding $25,400 annually.

If you think you have the physical and intellectual stamina to endure the rigorous but rewarding training program, consider a challenging career with the State Police.

A representative of the State Police is on campus throughout the semester to talk with interested students. For dates and times when a representative will be on campus, contact the Career Development Center in Room 12, Ben Franklin.

Ausprich family makes BU their home

SHONA FRASER
Staff Writer

On a first visit to the President's house, one may feel apprehensive. Questions keep running through one's mind - what should I say, how should I act - but those feelings are quickly put to rest when the smiling Lorraine Ausprich is there to greet you.

Being the university president's wife isn't an easy task, especially for someone who has only been at it for three months. "I think I have done (settling in) what takes most people a year to do," said Ausprich. "I found the move to Bloomsburg to be a comfortable one. I find the environment pleasing, which added to the excitement," she said.

Mrs. Ausprich was not the only family member to be involved in this move. President and Mrs. Ausprich have two young daughters, Sarah and Emily, who were also a factor to the move. "It didn't come as a shock to them. They knew the move to Bloomsburg was coming, so they put a smile on their faces and did it," said Ausprich. "We are proud of them, they are adventurous and they are willing to strike out."

Ausprich also explained that Sarah and Emily had all of their schooling in Kent, Ohio and it was probably harder for them to leave all of their friends behind.

Lorraine Ausprich had to make many moves in her lifetime as well. She is a native of Buffalo, N.Y., where she married Dr. Ausprich. Soon after their marriage began, she found herself in Ames, Iowa, where she instituted, into the local school system, the first program for students with gifted/talented potential.

Before she knew it, she was on her way to Lansing, Michigan, where she relocated her classroom.

Other moves were made by the Ausprich's, but the one that seems to have pleased them the most in their move to Bloomsburg.

The family was hoping this move would come soon for President Ausprich. "I was willing to give up my professional interests for a while so my husband could pursue his goal," said Ausprich.

Now that Dr. Ausprich has become president, Mrs. Ausprich hopes she will be able to complete her goal, which is to receive her master's degree in special education. Ausprich explained, "I was going to register for the fall semester, but I stood back and looked at what I was doing. I knew moving in and getting everything in order was my first priority for now. I plan to register in the spring."

But don't think Ausprich is not busy now. She has been getting involved with the university and the community. "When an organization asks me to speak to them, I always ask myself first what I can contribute to them," she said.

So far, Ausprich has not encountered any problems with any organizations. In fact, she is judging the Halloween window painting contest that can be seen downtown.

Eventually, Ausprich would like to teach again. "The only problem I can foresee is if Sarah and Emily mind if I teach their classes."

Ausprich said she and her family have no regrets about moving to Bloomsburg. She is excited about the university and believes they will enjoy being here.

Hyptnotic trance in Carver

ROSEMARY SCHROEDER
Features Editor

"My name is Sal and I'm quite a gal!" shouted an indignant Dave Kistler while under the hypnosis of the Astonishing Neal in Carver Auditorium, Sat. night. Neal, a psychic entertainer and hyptnotist held the audience captive for almost four hours while putting approximately 15 persons in a total hyptnotic trance.

In the first half of Neal's performance he amused the audience with his Extra Sensory Perception (ESP) by reading the minds of several volunteers. Some of his tricks included using his mind power to link three rings together and bend steel nails in the hands of four BU students. In addition to these feats, he managed to catch some audience members off-guard. Only after they reached in their pockets did they realize their keys were twisted and bent by Neal's powerful mind.

The first half concluded as the blindfolded Neal correctly told the audience specific facts they had previously written down on paper.

After a short intermission Neal asked for volunteers to undergo hyptnosis. Upon this request, approximately 35 eager volunteers trampled each other to the stage hoping to get a seat. The sound of Neal's voice became the mesmerizing factor for the subjects on stage. Soon the number on stage dwindled to those that responded totally to the hyptnosis. Neal gave commands snapping his fingers and even dropping his tie. He commanded his subjects to create animals from a circle on their hands. He then asked them to make the animals grow to 10 times their size. The subjects imagined such animals as tigers, snakes, a dog, an elephant, a zebra, gerbil and a cat.

The students on stage were also seen portraying many objects and personalities. These included a toaster, a washing machine, the Incredible Hulk, Curly of the Three Stooges, E.T., Richard Simmons, and the 'King of Rock and Roll', who sang "Born in the USA" to a roaring audience.

Neal's performance didn't end here. He brought the audience to their feet as they moved to Carver steps for one last demonstration. Here his hyptnotic subjects saw a UFO and a martian land on Carver lawn and take off instantaneously.

Professor Smiley spent six weeks in India in a professional seminar under the Fulbright House of the U.S. Educational Foundation in New Delhi. Three weeks were spent in academic-communal interaction and three weeks on a comprehensive tour of India which included meetings with Rajiv Gandhi and Mother Theresa.

Smiley had previously spent three weeks in London concentrating on the South Asian collections in the British Museum. He attended a seminar entitled "Role of Contemporary Technology in the Socio-Economic transformation of India." He will utilize these experiences (continued on page 7)

Theatre Goes High-Tech

DUANE LONG
Voice Contributor

With the virtual explosion of computer technology in the workplace, over the past decade, one might hardly be surprised to learn that the "infernal machine" can not only serve as a word/data processor, but can assist in a variety of tasks in the Fine Arts area.

Having recently acquired a 512K Apple Macintosh computer, this reporter has begun exploring some not-so-odd fine arts applications of computer technology, as an Alumni Research Project.

The Mac is particularly suited for situations which require graphics and print capabilities above and beyond the customary forms and word-processing requirements of the standard office or business. Such is the case in the Fine Arts, where print/graphics needs are especially critical.

The hypothetical sample shown is a rather mundane example of what can be achieved. Bloomsburg Players has used the Mac for typesetting the audience programs for HMS PINAFORE, LOOK HOMEWARD ANGEL, and AGNES OF GOD, yet the computer's true potential contribution to the Fine Arts is in the area of Computer Assisted Design (CAD). Theatre students will soon have the opportunity to create scene and lighting designs in eighth, quarter, or half-inch scale without ever having to touch a pencil! Furthermore, single-stroke key characters will produce common symbols and terms to greatly reduce the time required for producing these designs.

Cont. Professor

in an up-coming campus colloquium and in a proposed new course "The Islamic and Hindu Worlds."

Professor Smiley attended two professional workshops at the International Film and Television meeting in Rockford, Maine, relating to his film studies responsibilities. The first involved sound recording and the second, cinematography and lighting.

Smiley also received a certificate from the American Film Institute for an intensive week-long seminar in Hollywood, Calif. He attended a documentation workshop and studied the latest library-retrieval and film-preservation technologies. He also visited the Academy of Motion Picture Arts, Sciences Margaret Herrick Library, UCLA Film Library and Disney Studio. He was a special guest at the world premiere of Silverado at Mann's Chinese Theatre and the first showing of the Screen Actors Guild/AFI Henry Fonda Oral Project, interviewed by Charleton Heston.

In all of this fresh, promising technology--this explosion of Wangs and IBMs, of Ataris and Amingas--the Mac will continue to be a valuable and exciting tool in enhancing the quality of Fine Arts productions.

Even more exciting is the fact that Bloomsburg University could play a major role in creating and testing software and hardware specifically designed for Fine Arts applications. With the support of groups such as the Alumni Association, this role could achieve national recognition.

The Alumni Association, through the Alumni Research Grant program, may provide financial assistance to the Fine Arts Computer Project during this and the Spring '86 semester.

As is always the case in rapidly expanding technology, the promise held by the future customarily outshines the promise of what is available now. Apple has already released new software which has rendered older versions obsolete; a color Imagewriter II printer is now on the market, and a color monitor Macintosh is waiting in the wings.

WBUQ-FM dedicated to station advisor

KARIN SUTTMANN

When someone devotes almost 15 years to achieving a goal, it deserves to be recognized. Not just 15 years of planning, negotiating, explaining the cause at meeting after endless meeting, and exploring the benefits students would achieve in the end. Professor William Acierno has traveled this path, and the end result is the University's FM radio station - WBUQ.

The executive staff of WBUQ chose to make this past homecoming a special one for Acierno. On October 19th, the FM station was dedicated to him.

The ceremony was a small one that consisted of both WBSC and WBUQ staff and about 230 radio alumni. Acierno has been advisor of the radio program since the start, and is fully enjoying the outcome of his ventures. He can be heard on WBUQ every Wednesday evening from 10 to 11 p.m. when his talk show "Night Talk" is aired.

A plaque will be hung in the WBUQ studios to honor Acierno and his dedication to the students participating in the operations of radio stations WBSC, 640 AM and WBUQ, 91.1 FM.

Odd Thoughts:

Famous halloween lines

DUANE LONG
Voice Contributor

The Halloween Season will soon be upon us, so here are a few "odd thoughts" you might want to consider.

First of all, you'll probably find the streets swarming with monsters, clowns, skeletons, E.T.s, and the like.

What should you say to someone wearing a Halloween costume? I suppose it would depend on the outfit, but here are some possibilities:

To a Vampire: "Get a load of those teeth--Who's your orthodontist, Bela Lugosi?"

To a werewolf: "Get a haircut."

To E.T.: (placing hand on mask) "Ouch..."

To anyone in costume: "Cousin Bobby, when did you get out of the sanitarium?"

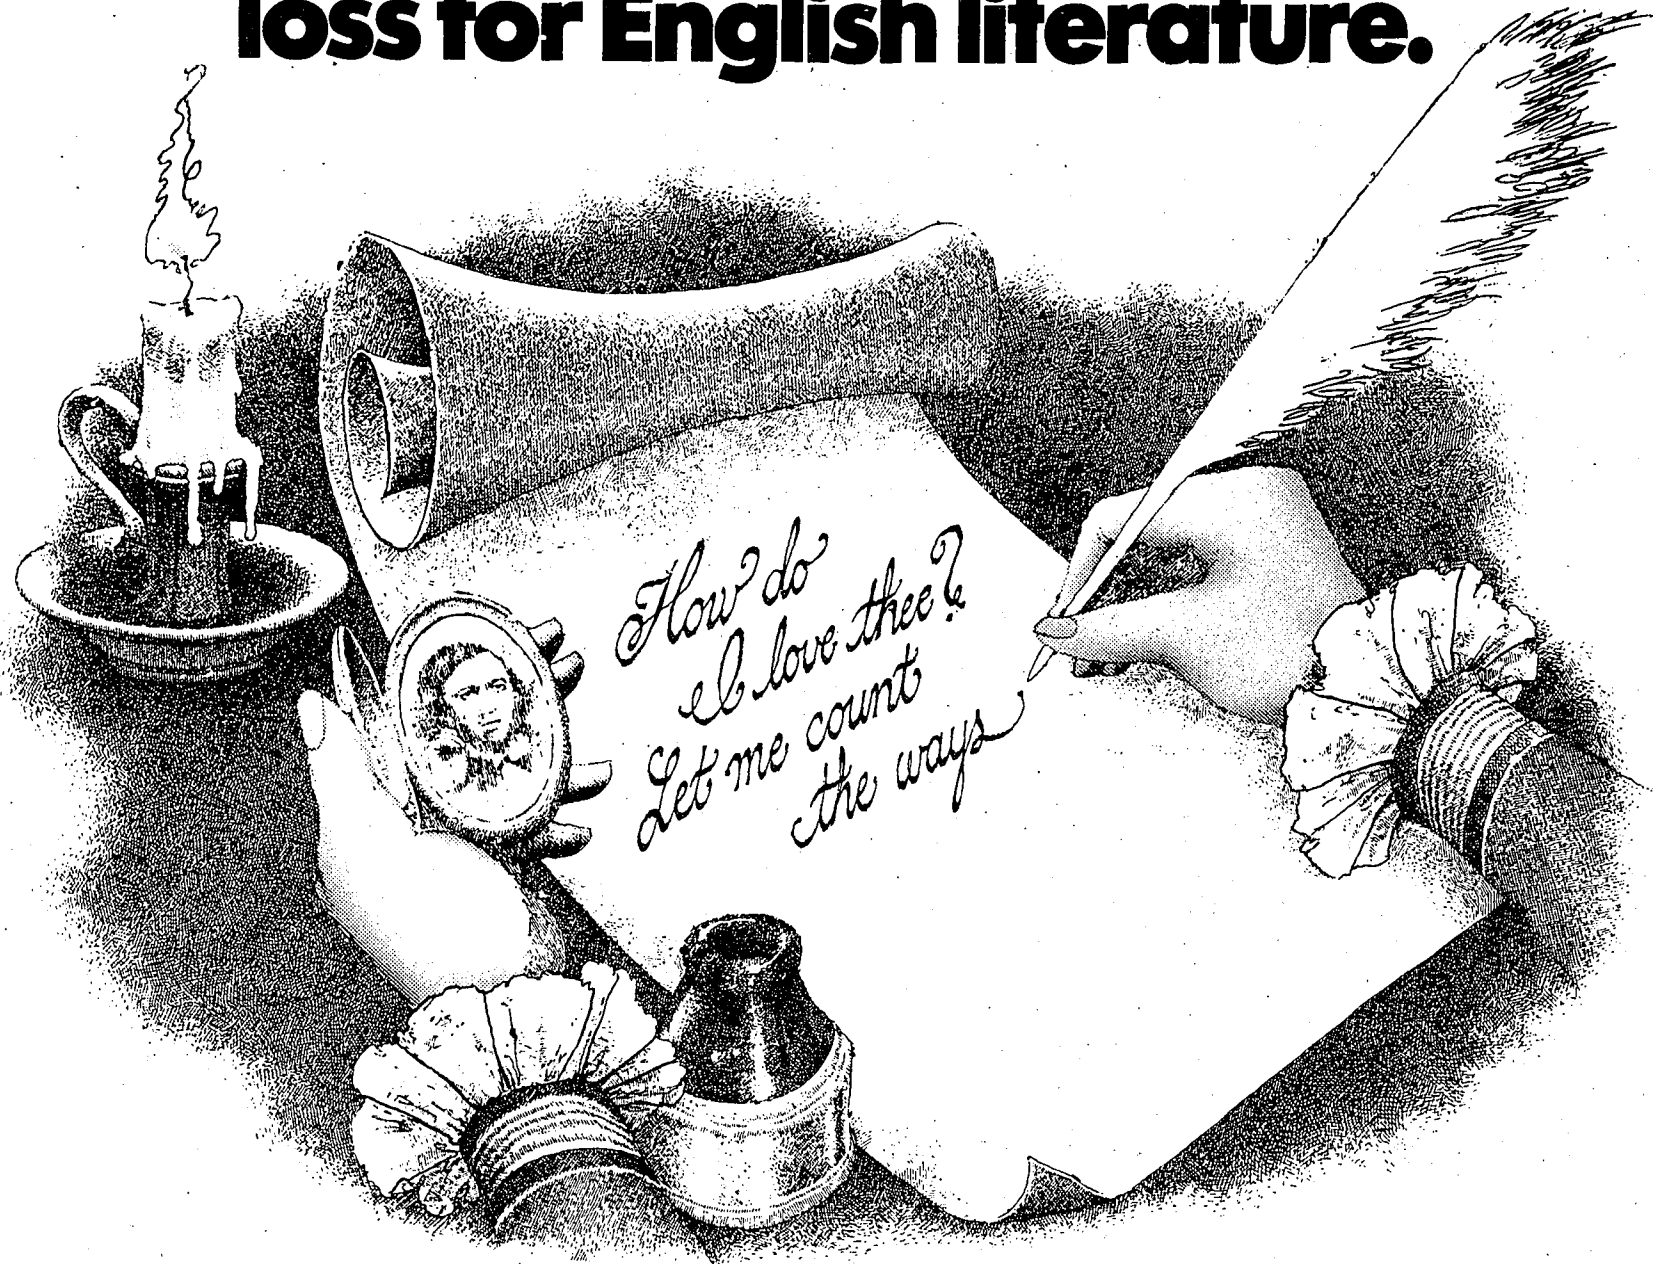

Of course, if you're in costume, the foot's on the other shoe. Tune in next week for some helpful hints. Happy Halloween!

For Your Health

Starting with this issue the Voice will be presenting a column from the Student Health Center.

We would like to answer your questions and concerns regarding health issues. No names need be signed.

We will attempt to answer all your questions on such issues as nutrition, exercise, weight control, sexually transmitted diseases, and alcohol and drug problems.

Today we will answer questions our secretary, Julie Gottlieb, believes are the questions most frequently asked by students.

The most common phone question is: "Where is the Health Center located?"

It is located on the third floor of the McCormick Building. Take the stairs to the third floor and it is the door right before the double doors at the end of the hall.

"How do I see a doctor?"

All students must be screened by our Health Center nurses and then evaluated as to their need for a physician's assessment.

"Does the Health Center issue doctor's excuses?"

No excuses are given by our nurses. If one of the university doctors or Bloomsburg Hospital emergency room doctors recommend a student miss classes, a note will be sent to his/her professors.

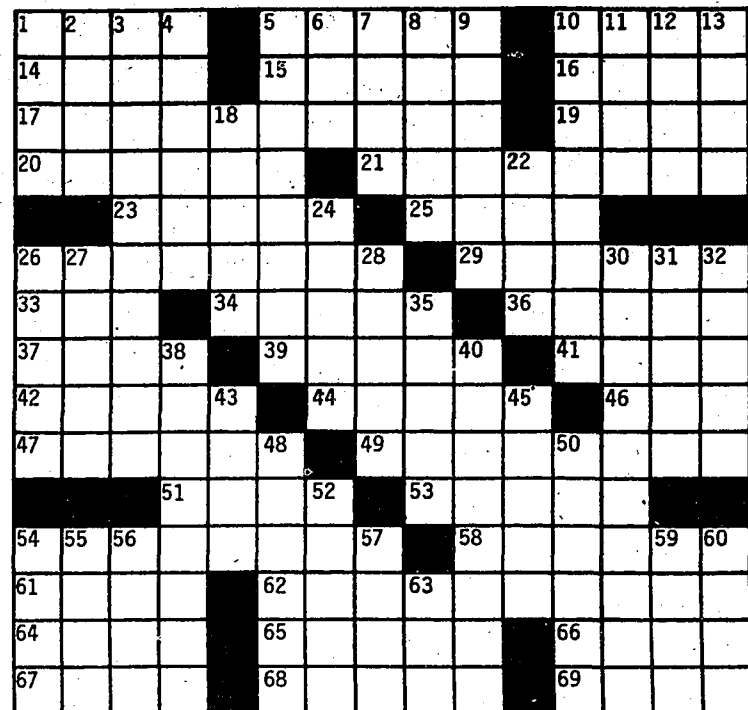

"Will my health problem be kept in confidence?"

Your health record is a confidence between you and the Health Center nurses and doctors. Nothing in your health record is shared without your permission.

Now let us hear from you.

Send your questions to "For Your Health," c/o the Voice, Kehr Union Building.

BU downs Cal

dy Bullock later in the fourth quarter helped Bloomsburg maintain its lead.

Until Hill's long return, the Huskies struggled. They failed to convert a first and goal situation from the six early in the third quarter as the offense had problems getting untracked.

Landis took responsibility for his team not taking advantage of one scoring opportunity. "I made the decision to go for it (the touchdown) and I felt we could get the ball in," Landis commented. "Obviously, it wasn't the right decision but I've got to live with that."

With first down at the six, the Huskies used three plays to move to the one. Landis elected to go for the touchdown rather than kick a field goal.

On fourth down, Martin was stacked up for no gain as California's defense stiffened.

"I just thought we could pound it out," Landis added. "The thing that hurt us was the fumbled snap on third down. I guess at that point I was a little bit stubborn and said 'gosh darn it, we're going to get it in'."

Meanwhile, California had only one scoring opportunity in the second half. Greg Schuessler's 35-yard field goal attempt sailed wide to the left. Schuessler had been good from the same distance in the first quarter.

Bloomsburg was also the recipient of a good game by its kicker, Chris Mingrone, who was starting for the first time. Mingrone booted a 29-yard field goal to open the scoring and then converted after both Husky touchdowns.

After Schuessler tied the score with 2:57 left in the first period. California drove 76 yards in 13 plays with quarterback Brendan Folmar hitting tailback Aubrey Matthews on a four yard touchdown pass. Schuessler's extra point gave Cal a 10-3 advantage.

Bloomsburg came storming right back, going 70 yards in 16 plays. Calvin Robinson's one-yard plunge with 28 seconds remaining in the first half capped the march.

Two plays earlier, Ken Liebel caught a 14-yard pass from quarterback Mike Glovas to move the ball to the Cal two.

Libel's feet were in the endzone when he caught the ball but the ball hadn't broken the plane of the goalline and he was ruled down on the two.

Leonard Bluit's one yard dive gave the Huskies a first-and-goal from the one and Robinson scored on the next play.

Martin led all rushers with 99 yards on 23 carries, while Matthews had 70 yards for the Vulcans.

Bloomsburg will try for its eighth straight victory next Saturday at Kutztown University, which dropped a 7-3 decision to Millersville Saturday.

West Chester and Bloomsburg are atop the Pennsylvania Conference Eastern Division, each with 4-0 records. The Huskies final game of the season will be with the Rams in Redman Stadium on November 16.

John Rockmore runs with the ball after a catch earlier this season. BU dropped California (PA) 17-10 Saturday to up its record to 7-0 on the season.

Marauders sweep BU in final dual meet

KAREN REISS
Staff Writer

The women's cross country team finished out their dual meet season Saturday with a loss to Millersville by a score of 21-40.

Nancy Tangyuk of Millersville won the meet in a time of 18:55. Second place went to co-captain Janine Franco of BU in 20:12.

Millersville took the next two spots with Tanya Pina (20:15) and Laura Endriss (20:19).

Fifth overall went to Brenda Bisset of Bloomsburg with a 20:22 clocking. Marauders Pamela Minnick (20:32) and Mary Donlin (20:33) took sixth and seventh respectively.

Other scorers for the Huskies were co-captain Ellen Deam (20:47), Cheryl Hallman (21:19) and Betty Zarr (21:22).

"The team wasn't ready to run mentally or physically," said coach Ron Puhl.

"We have some injuries and some illnesses. It seems in a family situation such as ours, when one runner goes down, it spreads to the others," said Puhl.

Bisset, who won last week's meet agreed with Puhl. "Nobody was ready to run a race today. It was a big meet for us and we should have been psyched."

Next weekend the Huskies will return to Millersville for the Pennsylvania Conference Championships.

"Hopefully our girls will be healthy and ready to run. I know this team has the potential to do a super job," Puhl stated.

According to Puhl, the team needs more depth.

"We have confidence in all of our girls and want them all back next season," he commented. "but we'd also like to increase the size of the team so when we have a situation where one of our top runners is injured, there will be not just one, but a few girls to make it up."

Any women interested in adding to next year's squad should contact Coach Puhl on coach Tom Martucci at their offices in Nelson Fieldhouse.

The men's team also suffered a loss at Millersville over the weekend as it finished out its dual meet schedule. The Huskies fell to the Marauders by a 15-47 count.

Millersville captured the first five places with Greg Beagle, Craig Lauthert, Tim Schuler, Doug MacNeal and Larry Leavey finishing one through five respectively. All five finished in a pack and were clocked at 26:15.

BU co-captain Chris Ludy was close to the pack and finished sixth in 26:26. Millersville's Joe Scholz took seventh in 26:45.

Completing the top five finishes for the Huskies were Craig Koch (27:19), Mike Greene (28:34), Tom Kanger (28:41) and Jim Ruggeri (31:58).

"The men ran a good race but weren't able to break up that front pack of MU guys," coach Puhl stated.

According to Puhl, the numbers problem also affects the men's team.

This summer, on paper, we had a decent amount of guys. Most of them never showed up for practices. Some who did show up, quit on us," added Puhl.

"We have some aches and pains on the team and there is nobody there to give these guys a break," Puhl stated.

"Every meet we are relying on six guys to give us 100 percent. They work extremely hard but no one can be expected to run top performances every race."

The men's team will also compete at Millersville next Saturday for the Pennsylvania Conference championships.

Anyone interested in joining the men's team should contact coach Puhl or coach Martucci.

FYI: Intramurals

Women's intramural bowling and basketball rosters are due on Wednesday, October 30.

The men's intramural Gobler contest roster deadline also due on Wednesday, October 30, at 3 p.m.

At 7 p.m. Wednesday, the men's intramural straight pool tournament entries are due

Anyone interested in participating in any of the above activities should contact intramural coordinators Joan Auten (4379) or Carl Hinkle (4367) or any of the student coordinators.

All returning or recruited athletes who plan to participate in a winter or spring sport must report to Nelson Field House, Main Arena, on Nov. 6 at 7p.m. for a special meeting to fill out NCAA Questionnaires and Eligibility Forms. Failure to attend this meeting could result in your being unable to participate during the 1985-86 season.

Huskies lose to Lycoming despite dominating play

Staff Writer

Dominating a soccer game doesn't always guarantee a win. BU's soccer team learned this discouraging lesson Thursday when they hosted Lycoming College.

Although the majority of the game was spent in the Huskies' offensive half of the field, they failed to score and lost by a 3-0 count.

"That was the most we've dominated a team in the two years I've been coaching here," said head coach Steve Goodwin.

The Huskies out shot Lycoming 20-9. Most of the game was spent with BU controlling the ball in front of the Lycoming goal. "We had more than our share of opportunities. We could have had 30 shots. We had tons of chances," said Goodwin.

The team looked hesitant to shoot when they got the ball in close, but the shots they got off were good ones, but not on the mark.

"We had a bunch of shots that hit the post or just missed by a hair," commented Goodwin.

Huskies lose in semi-final round; 45-game winning streak ends

The Bloomsburg University field hockey team had its 45 game winning streak, which began in the eighth game of the 1983 season, broken as Shippensburg downed the Huskies 4-3 in the semi-final round of the Pennsylvania Conference Championships.

The Huskies seemed in control of the game as they held a 3-1 second half lead.

But two quick goals by the Shippensburg attack evened the score and sent the game into overtime.

The two overtime periods went scoreless which brought the game down to a stroke-off.

A stroke-off is held after the overtime periods and has offensive players shooting at the opposition's goalie.

Shippensburg won the stroke-off and went on to the championship game against Millersville.

Millersville won the game by a score of 2-1.

"It's unfortunate that we can't win the PSAC's," said BU head coach Jan Hutichinson. "I think that we needed a loss, though," she added.

"A lot of the kids haven't lost for two or three years.

She added that a loss was needed to bring the fire back to the players.

The first Lycoming goal came at the 8:05 mark in the first half when Courtney Walters scored an unassisted goal.

Two minutes later, Walters was credited with and assist on a Paul Sharkey goal giving Lycoming a 2-0 half-time lead.

"Their first two goals came on breaks, like a break away in basketball," said Goodwin, "when we put on pressure, our backs got sucked in and they (Lycoming) would get a long kick and come out on a break," he added.

Paul Sharkey scored the third Lycoming goal at the 14:12 mark of the second half, with the assist going to John Cheevers.

Sharkey's goal came after a knocked-down shot by BU goalie Dave Pinkerton. Sharkey got the rebound and hit it into the net.

The loss drops the Huskies to 2-11 for the season, while Lycoming improved their record to 7-5-1.

The defeat gave Bloomsburg their fourth straight loss.

Last week the team dropped two by losing to York College 1-0 and Cheyney University 3-1. Sean Pickford scored the lone goal in the Cheyney game with an assist from Jamie Leighow.

"It's too bad it didn't happen during the season, but it is certainly better than having it happen in the first round of nationals," Hutichinson concluded.

In the other semi-final game, Millersville defeated Kutztown by a score of 2-1.

Marauders capture PC tournament with 2-1 win

Deb Molinaro scored what proved to be the winning goal as Millersville University defeated Shippensburg 2-1 for the Pennsylvania Conference Field Hockey Championships.

The tournament, hosted by Bloomsburg, was held Friday and Saturday at Redman Stadium.

Molinaro's unassisted goal came at the 29:25 mark in the second half when she was able to get the ball past Shippensburg's goalie Gayle Berrier.

Berrier, on the day, had ten saves while her counterpart Doreen Frascino turned back only two.

In the championship contest, both teams exhibited tough defenses as neither squad was able to score.

The trend was reversed in the second half however, as Millersville's Kelly Shea scored off an assist by Lynn Fry at the 7:12 mark.

The Marauders then took a 2-0 lead on Molinaro's score. Shippensburg could only score one goal in the remainder of the game.

SU's lone goal came at the 31 minute mark when Molly Jones scored an unassisted goal.

"I'm excited that we won although it hasn't really hit me yet," said Millersville head coach Carol Miller.

"I am a perfectionist and I would have liked to see us win by controlling the game but I think it was a sloppy game on our part," Miller added.

She added that she is looking ahead to the National Tournament and she hopes that the team will keep improving.

The win gives the Marauders a 14-2 record heading into the national tourney while Shippensburg will enter with a 9-6 record.

BU wins consolation; defeats KU, 4-0; Turcich has 4 goal performance

Behind the power of a four goal performance by Sandee Turcich, host Bloomsburg University defeated Kutztown 4-0 in the consolation game of the Pennsylvania Conference Field Hockey Championships.

The opening 22 minutes of the game progressed slowly as the teams moved the ball up and down the field. At the 22:50 mark in the first half, however, Turcich began a three-goal-in-nine-minute performance.

The first came unassisted as Turcich put the ball past Bear goalie Vera Pizzarelli.

with another unassisted goal and put the score at 2-0 in favor of the Huskies.

Turchich then scored again, this time off an assist by Karen Hertzler. This goal came at the 31:35 mark in the first half.

In the second half, Turcich ended the scoring at the 3:10 mark with another unassisted shot.

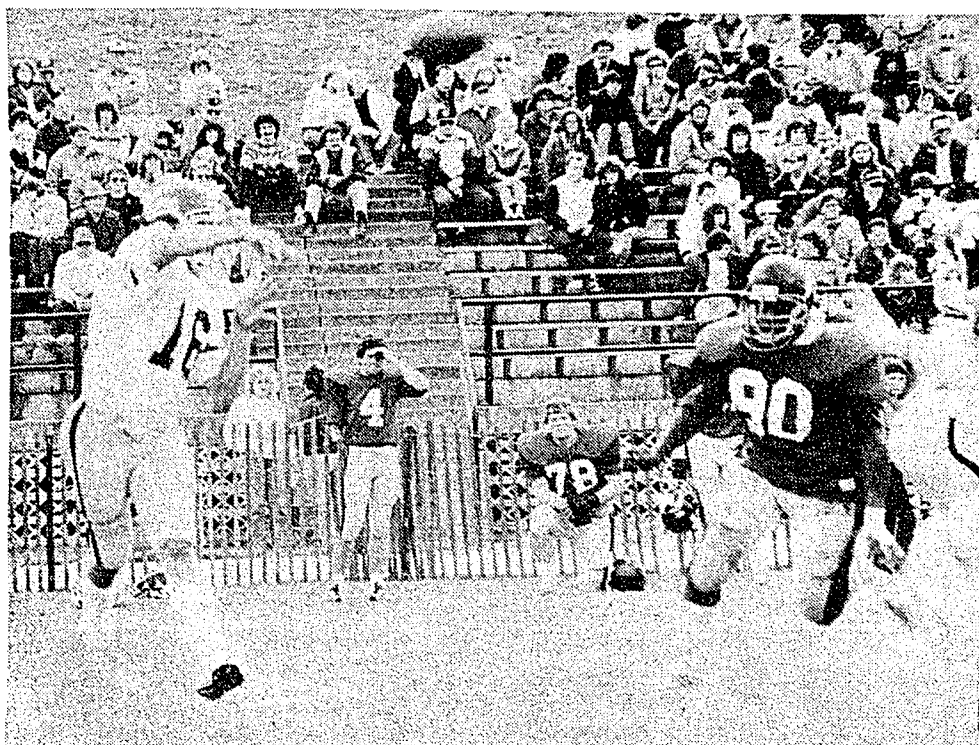

"I thought yesterday we played a good first half, but we were flat in the second half and during the overtime periods," said BU head coach Jan Hutichinson.

"Our kids showed a lot of character and I think they played well today," she added.

With the win, the Huskies will enter the National Tournament with a 16-1 record.

"We have a two week break until the first round of nationals," said Hutichinson, "we'll keep in shape and work on some finer points we need to work on before nationals," she added.

A fourteen yard pass from Mike Glovas to Ken Liebel set up what looked to be contact in the end zone, but the ball hadn't broken the plane of the goal line and the touchdown was no good.

75-yard punt return helps BU down Cal 17-10

Seventh straight victory

It was a special win Saturday for Bloomsburg University's football team.

With its offense unable to generate much momentum, the ninth-ranked Huskies turned to the special teams to post a 17-10 victory over California University.

It is the seventh straight win for coach George Landis' squad. Bloomsburg's last loss came to the Vulcans in last year's Pennsylvania Conference "State Game." California's record now stands at 3-4.

Freshman Derrick Hill's 75-yard punt return to the Vulcan two yard line and a one yard facemask penalty set up Tom Martin's winning touchdown run with 10:41 remaining in the game.

Hill fielded CU punter Jeff Stork's 49 yard kick on the BU 23 and raced towards the right sideline.

He beat a Vulcan defender to the corner and turned up the sideline as Butch Kahlau's block sprung him free.

California then appeared to have Hill pinned on the boundry but he reversed his direction and headed clear across the field toward the left corner of the endzone.

Once again, another teammate made a nice block on the Cal 20 yard line before several Vulcan coverage men finally knocked Hill out on the two.
