A FOREWORD . . .

Hundreds of flush, fat faces, bundled in wool, scream—Go! Go! Go!
A score of clean, white masks hang on chairs
and wait,
The curtain falls,
And wrinkled mouths silently moan—
"Lousy show."

"Nothing is done. Everything in the world remains to be done . . ."

A mass of glistening hair and gaudy cloth tightens around a shell of Chen Yu and powder.
A hollow voice cries "Boo!"
and a thousand giggling lips echo through the hall of busts and books.

" . . . the greatest picture is not yet painted . . . "

A pile of vacuum cleaner dust lies in a corner and says nothing.
"It's of no use to me!"
A smirk atop folded arms sinks into the bog crying . . . "I know it all!"

" . . . the greatest play isn't written . . . "

Eyes strain;
Lamps burn;
Pencils wear away.
An elated silhouette flutters across the Plain singing,
"A, B; A, B, and C,"
to the tune of "Cayuga's Waters."

" . . . the greatest poem is unsung."

Four football seasons pass . . .
A face looks proudly at a stack of books;
A long black line winds through a patch of white hair and runs out into the "cold world."

What is life?
Where is it taking them?

"They are not told it, however;
they are told to learn what is known."

DEDICATION

We dedicate this annual to several persons recently among us and now gone. Their retirement after many years at the college poses a question. Have they served and what is service? If continuous association with the College for a few decades constitutes service, if time means service, then they have served well.

NORA A. KIEFER

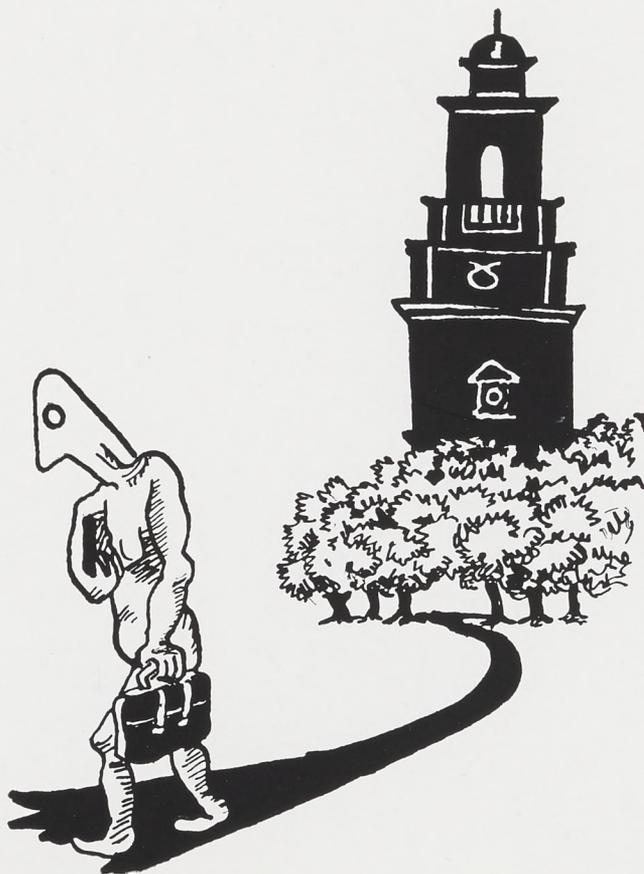

LESLIE C. KREBS

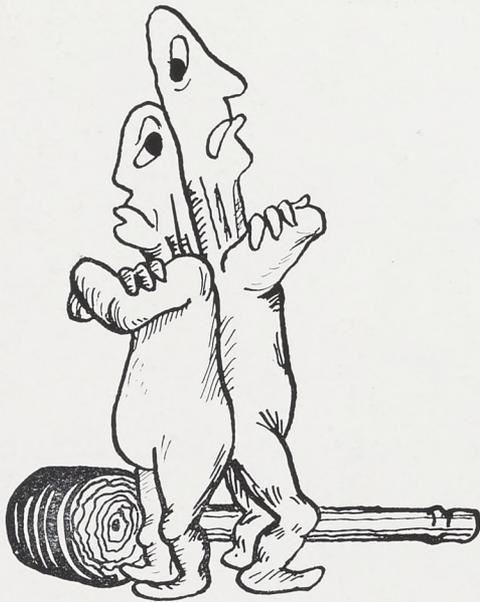

JOHN W. LACKHOVE

S. S. SHEARER

But we believe that service is two dimensional. In addition to time, service implies an intensity of devotion. If this is more difficult to measure, it is also more difficult to ignore. Beyond the mere accumulation of months and years, intensity of service produces tangible evidences of work and modified thought.

Considering the full meaning of service, we salute these persons.

A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

PRESIDENT'S RESIDENCE

TO THE CLASS OF 1952:

You now have the honor of being classified as college graduates since you have met the required standards established by the State Teachers College at Shippensburg. You have reached this graduation goal through your attainment of valuable knowledge, establishment of vital ideals, and development of desirable habits and skills, all of which are considered necessary in your chosen profession. Therefore, it affords me much pleasure to congratulate you upon this achievement.

The manner in which you have met your classroom obligations and conducted your campus activities during the past four years gives me ample reason to have full confidence in your ability to succeed. The enthusiasm you have exemplified in your college preparation indicates that you are not seeking pseudo security, a life of selfishness, or just an easy way of existence, but it is apparent that you are proposing to attack the social problems of today through the professional zeal of truly great teachers. This conclusion is proven by the fact that you have been striving earnestly to develop habits of action which are dynamic not static; positive not negative; sincere not hypocritical; productive not parasitical; and above all, courageous not fearful.

The teaching profession needs you; first to serve here in Pennsylvania, the Commonwealth which helped so generously to provide you a college education; and second, to perpetuate and improve this great Republic of ours which through the wisdom of its forefathers has made possible your education along with other cherished liberties and freedoms. You will want to help the world by helping to keep America strong physically, socially, and spiritually. This can be done through your influence as a teacher in developing strong and logical thinking in our youth as a sound foundation for their moral, economic and political action. Remember, through your hands as a teacher will pass the leaders of tomorrow. You can either teach these young citizens to successfully meet the problems they face in the family, the church, and the state, or you can permit their minds to flit hither and yon toward no definite achievement and thus to chaos and failure.

We know you will carry on the good name of this College, and through your influence improve its reputation since you recognize the importance of enthusiasm for work, joy in play and recreation, value of true friendship, refinement in living, and the need for meeting social obligations. Your parents, your friends, and members of our staff, are proud of you. You have my very best wishes for success.

President

HIRAM GILL

Completing his first year in the capacity of College Business Manager, Hiram Gill has been a complete success. Combining level-headed business acumen with an engaging personality, he continually advises and consoles many of the campus' important activities in their monetary entanglements.

BUSINESS MANAGER

REGISTRAR

Returning to the campus after a few years absence, Mrs. Miller is again among her files and forms.

SARAH MILLER

VINTON RAMBO

The precarious job of coaching football should apparently tax the most vigorous man, but not so Vinton Rambo. He also tackles the leviathan labor of deaning the hordes of Old Main. Between counseling and room planning he manages to find time to supervise everything from light bulb installations to an amateur detective agency.

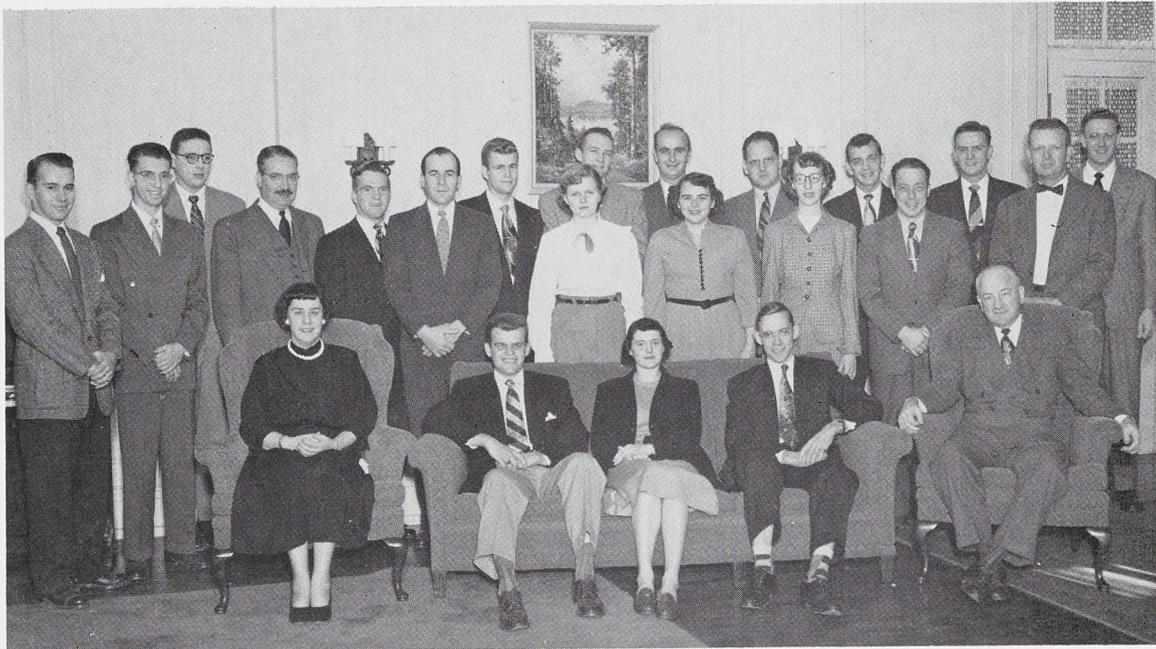

DEAN OF MEN

VIRGINIA LONG

DEAN OF WOMEN

Regulations being what they are, the position of Dean of Women requires no end of concentration, conciliation and impervious detachment. Since a whole building full of women would cause even the boldest to run in terror, Miss Long's successful initial year remains her accomplishment.

SEATED: Miss Long, R. Kopec, Vice-President; P. Hyatt, Treasurer; J. Feather, Secretary; Dr. Kiner.
 STANDING: J. Myers, K. Swartley, K. Richwine, Mr. Gill, H. Runkle, R. Knohr, A. Harper,

 J. Holbert, Mr. Rambo, B. Maclay.

PRESIDENT'S COUNCIL

The President's Council is the supreme governing body on campus. It spends the money of the student activity fund, determines the school budget, and determines the school policy on extra-curricular activities. This group's main activity, however, is its function as a voice for every student on campus.

All vital issues are hashed over by Dr. Kriner, who acts as chairman of the group, and the heads of every important activity on campus. As a result of these discussions healthy attitudes toward the school and its activities are developed. And everyone is happy.

The Boarding Men's Association keeps the noise down in the men's dormitory. This is done by posting regulations and establishing occasional police patrols throughout the halls of the upper floors of Old Main. This effort improves morale and establishes better living and study conditions.

Frequent meetings are held. In these meetings, Mr. Rambo, Dean of Men, brings up topics of current interest and value. These meetings are for the all-important function of passing the word.

Every once in awhile someone misbehaves. The errant male is brought before the council, a board of his fellows, and receives a fair trial. The group passes judgment on the offender, meting out punishment to the best of its abilities. Offenses of a more serious nature are brought before the President of the college, who serves as an ex-officio adviser to the council.

The association also sees to it that rooms are clean, light bulbs are passed out, floors are swept, and that no non-conforming night owls stay up all night playing jazz music on blaring radios. It also breaks up an occasional "poker" game.

Working as co-ordinator and general planner for the College academic program, Dean Wright always manages to pull students and faculty alike through each semester in Spartan-like fashion. From high-policy decisions to minor schedule-squabbles he says yes with the proper exuberance and no with sufficient sympathy. Midnight oil is old hat with the Dean, but constant work has never been a deterrent to his classic sense of humor.

THE STORY OF A BUILDING . . .

We all realize that buildings can't make a college. But we also realize that adequate speech, drama, and music facilities are a necessity, and we now have them. The story of the Memorial Auditorium began in the dreams of many. The omnipresent hand of Dr. Kriner was not the least of the boosters. Construction was begun in the fall of 1950.

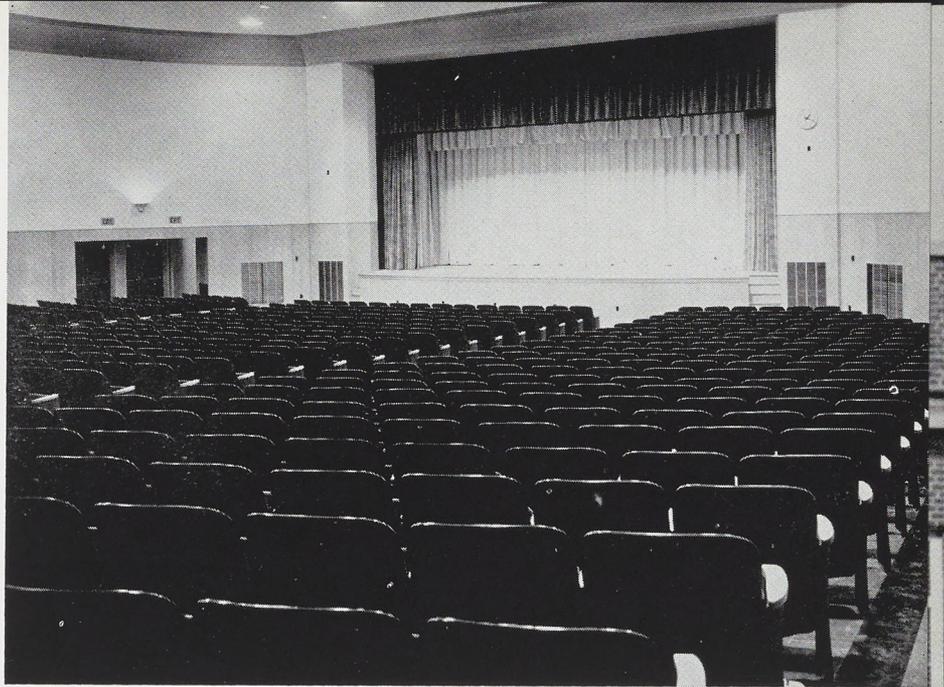

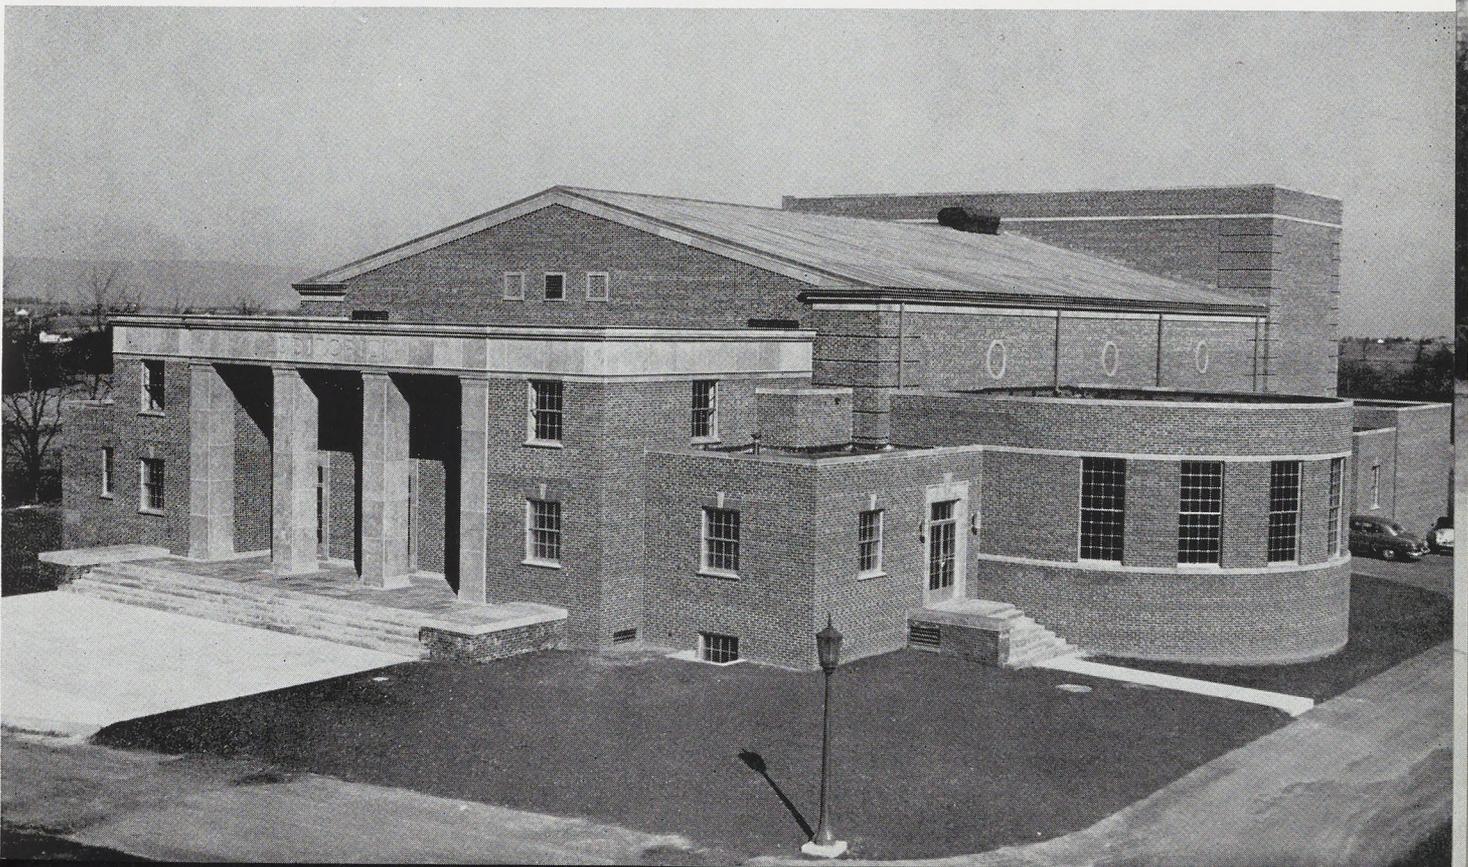

Through the winter and spring of '51 the old soccer field was transformed into a mass of cement, steel, and stone. Jutting steel girders hinted at the final form. Walls of brick began to rise. Scaffolding and men webbed the shell of the Auditorium. To accentuate the work and sweat expended on each brick, an accident struck down several workmen. But the structure continued its journey toward completion.

MEMORIAL AUDITORIUM

After the walls and roof came the less romantic interior work. Thousands of feet of wire, gallons of paint, tons of plaster and cement were fed to the empty structure. The building was completed sufficiently for its dedication on October 27th, 1951. It is now just another dwelling on the campus which, although valued by all, must take its place among older and more noble structures.

This assorted group of bookworms has reached the top of the scholastic heap. Everyone on this picture is known for his industry and perception. That is what is needed to get into the club in the first place. It is the immediate desire for everyone who cracks the books around here to be inducted into Kappa Delta Pi, our educational Valhalla.

The society hashes out educational, philosophical, spiritual, and worldly problems at almost every regularly scheduled meeting, with Dr. Wright and Mr. Bellows serving as savants-in-chief.

This is a fraternal organization of scholars—men who have managed to be somewhat above their fellows when the grade sheets come out.

The men in this organization have frequent wit battles and taxing sessions of portentous thought wrestling. The fraternity is not quite up to the Saturday Afternoon Club or the Royal Society, but its members manage to have a stimulating time with their adequate reserves of brain power.

Mr. Dibert serves as adviser, participant, moderator, and referee. He has a swell time doing it.

Roy Allison, J. Bruce Davis, III, Robert Goodling, Roy Heistand, Roy Howell, Lloyd Klinger, Conrad Richter and Robert Shuman are completely out of the above picture because they joined the club after the picture was made.

Well, first of all, Pi Omega Pi isn't this fraternity's real name. Its real name is: Beta Lambda Chapter of Pi Omega Pi National Honorary Fraternity in Business Education. We imagine that is rather self-explanatory. The fraternity encourages, advocates, heartens and promotes scholarship in the field of business and promotes high ethical standards in professional life. It seems that this club has a job cut out for its members.

In addition to the activities mentioned above, the fraternity has an occasional party and an impressive induction banquet at the beginning of each year.

Dr. Skene is the club's sponsor.

ΠΩΠ

This step-load of young manhood is not the Princeton Glee Club. It is a healthy representation of the Phi Sigma Chi—an organization built on faith and good works and the old college try.

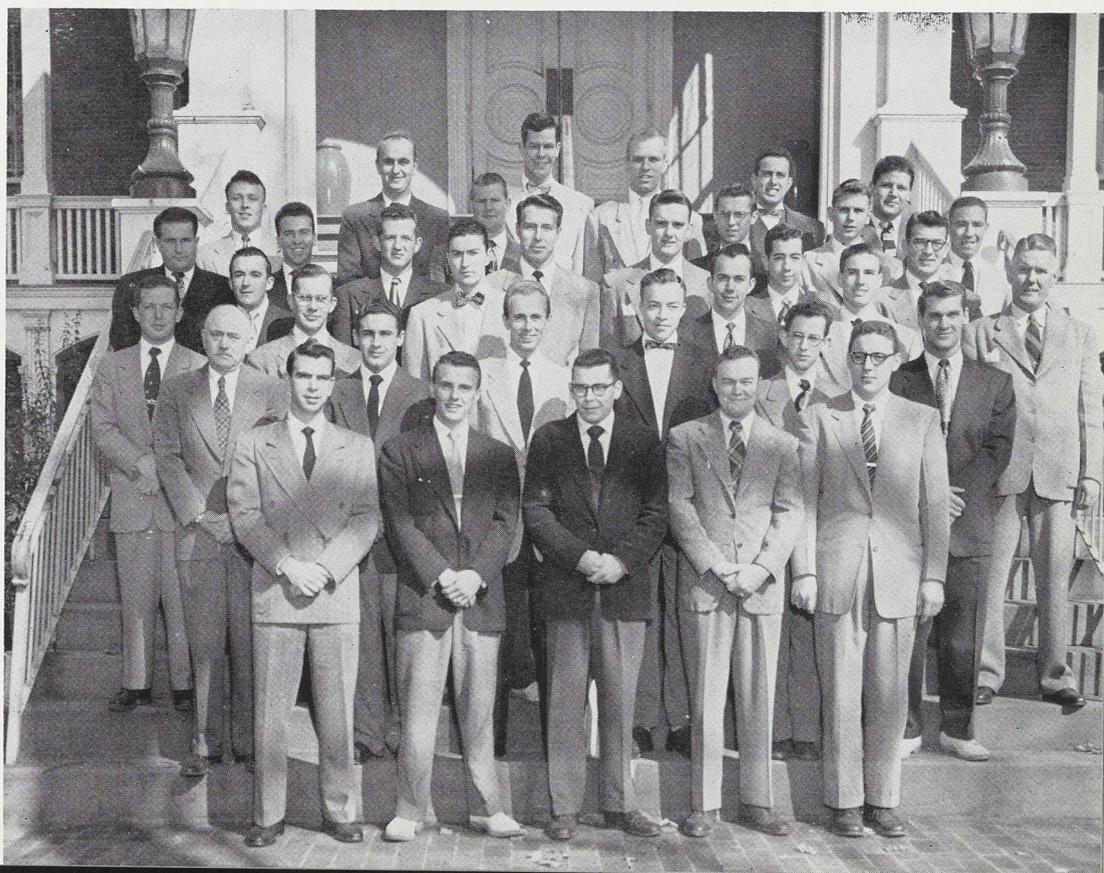

The fraternity's main reason for existence is service. The fraternity was conceived with that noble idea and is happily growing with it. Its members are chosen on the basis of their service, or their potential service, to the school.

When the men are not busy serving, they have steak fries and picnic-basket outings at least twice a year. The thirty-six men who comprise the club get just as much of a kick out of hopping into the various tasks that the college gives them as they do on purely festive occasions. The fraternity is quite a force for goodwill among the student body.

Mr. Allan and Mr. Weaver are its genial and cooperative advisers.

THE CAMPUS REFLECTOR

The Campus Reflector is the local scandal sheet, sports review, fashion arbiter, newspaper, music digest, and vehicle for the opinions of pseudo-sages. It performs the heroic function of attempting to keep everyone happy by publishing data, stories, articles, and poems which are, presumably, of some interest to every faction on campus.

This task is no small one, and the staff, realizing the herculean proportions of its endeavor, holds bi-weekly meetings, with a few emergency ones thrown in throughout the semester. These meetings are often fervent ones, tinged with the desperation of immediacy and punctuated by desperate outbursts from fledgling journalists. But strangely enough, the magazine frequently comes out in one piece.

This general pattern of success is largely due to the efforts of the editor and his genial associates who hold sometimes majestic and sometimes precarious seats on the editorial board. There are few arguments and few instances of backbiting in this miniature province of the press. The CR is really a very jolly group.

J. ETTER

This book, which we presume you are now holding in your hand, is the result of the concentrated effort of the senior class and the few people whom they singled out to put it together. It is merely a record of the things that happened here last year and some of the most important things that happened here during the last four years. But maybe we should not use that word merely. There is much more to the production of a yearbook than meets the eye: a great number of hours running around to find a snapshot, the middle name of a janitor, or even the name of the president of the English Club. Our candles have been burning at both ends for several weeks now, so we had better cross out that merely.

All this running around and typing and writing and checking and checking and rechecking hasn't been fun, not real fun. Not the fun one gets from playing shuffleboard or shooting rabbits or watching a movie, because instead of doing these things we were working. And that isn't very much real fun. There were very many times when we wished that we could throw all the pages that contained the plans for this book into the air and walk out of the room and forget all about the 1952 Cumberland. Perhaps some of the pages in this book will reflect that attitude. But we truly did the best that we could do.

There will probably be some errors in these pages. Errors of omission and oversight and even sometimes of carelessness, but we didn't plan those errors, and right now we are not in the mood to apologize for them. We're not going to apologize for anything in here as a matter of fact, because we believe that apologies in yearbooks are at best sadly inappropriate and ineffectual.

So we really do hope you will read this book and keep it and read it again. Because it is about you and what you did at Shippensburg. And that is something that no person can ever change.

The Masquers, an enterprising group of young thespians, produce, direct, costume, and present a one-act play at each one of their bi-monthly meetings. They present two major productions a year, one in the fall, and one in the spring. The young thespians are very happy and they jump into every undertaking with a smile and a minimum of grunts.

Much of the credit for their ubiquitous successes must go to Miss Mary York, their smiling directress. They get along so well because she knows how to direct their efforts. She has supervised an ample crop of hits since we have been here: Pride and Prejudice, I Remember Mama, Our Town, Goodbye My Fancy, Arsenic and Old Lace and Harvey were done while we were around.

It would seem that anything we could say about the Masquers would be an understatement. Their names seems to be synonomous with quality. Let's let it go at that.

The English Club and Miss McCreary

ENGLISH CLUB

The English Club is a zealous assemblage of literati which meets twice a month in Miss McCreary's living room. It is a league of upperclassmen who profess more than a passing interest in the printed page.

The club's activities are stimulated by spasmodic lectures by interested members. This happens at almost every meeting. Usually there are visible signs of interest during the lectures, with heated activity frequently ensuing. These outbursts are usually healthful signs of creative activity.

The club is the nearest thing to Little Bohemia on our campus. Normal, everyday people, with normal everyday modes of behavior are sometimes stimulated by the discussions to the extent that, quite unaware of their fervor, they are spurred on to uttering fifteen and twenty minute flashes of repartee. (The longest spontaneous eruption that occurred this year lasted twenty minutes.)

Miss McCreary sits in as an official faculty representative while all this is going on.

DANCE CLUB

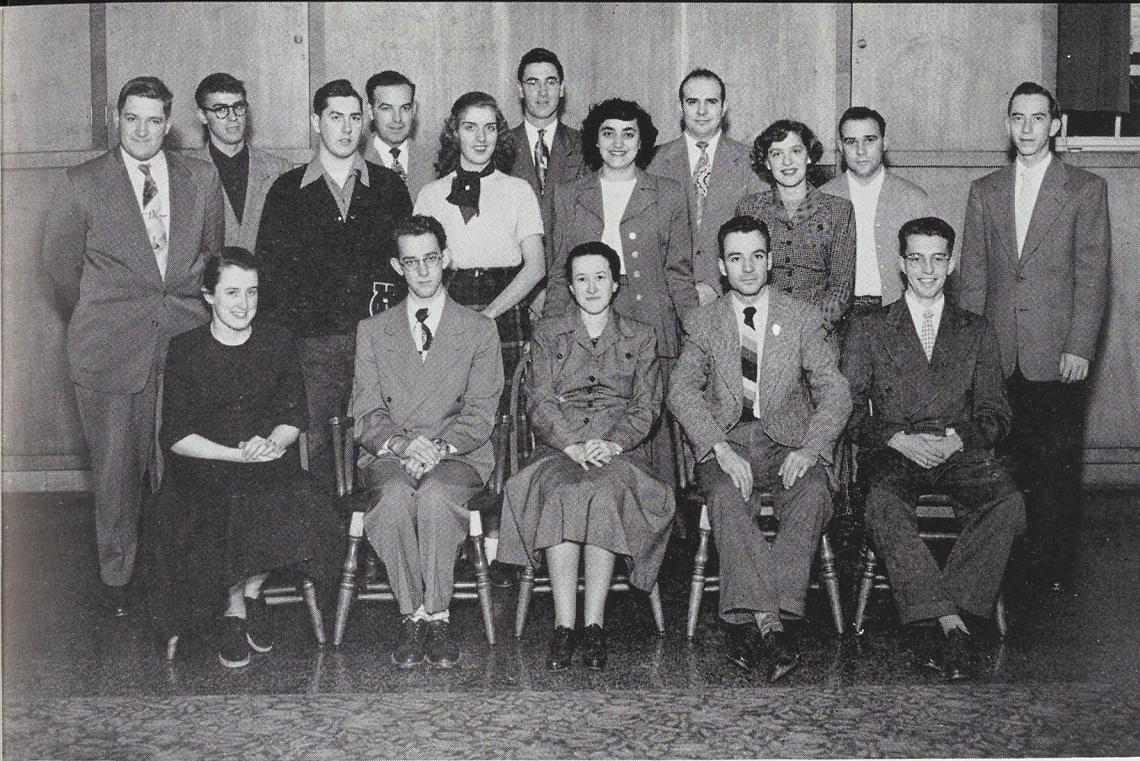

The Dance Club, a noble group of aesthetic women, quite logically spends its time studying the dance. Folk dancing, tap dancing, social dancing, and even square dancing fall into the terpsichorean category.

The girls (strangely enough there's not a man in the group) appear quite frequently at college assemblies, special programs, and other large get-togethers, where they perform with obvious enthusiasm and apparent finesse.

Selma Sevel, the club's directress, and Joan Garson, the assistant directress, hang around during meetings and give occasional pointers. They say, "We find it lots of fun tripping the light fantastic."

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB

This group meets and talks about international affairs every Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock. The club is an active one and is forever sending groups of delegates to the far corners of the state and even such far away places as Canada. One of its big, big moments comes when it sends off a carload of delegates to the model general assembly of the United Nations each spring. The club also sends delegates to a state organization of International Relations Clubs.

The club operates under the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. It is one of the hard working clubs on campus.

GOVERNMENT CLUB

*SEATED: R. Goodling, President; Dr. Hogg, K. Swartley, C. Carlson, Parliamentarian.
STANDING: S. Romano, E. Bellas, K. Adams, D. Duncan, W. Rummel.*

This group consists of persons who are interested in the machinations of government. They hold weekly meetings where they shoot the bull about the political scene in general and specific cases in particular. And then, as the year goes on, they begin preparing for the big show in Harrisburg.

Their shining hour comes when they journey to the capitol city for a three-day Intercollegiate Conference late in April. There they participate in the work of a model government body, such as a legislature or a national party convention.

Dr. Hogg supervises all these activities.

THE ROUND TABLE CLUB

This club handles things in the library. Its members move silently among the stacks, efficiently sorting and shelving books, magazines, and printed paraphernalia. Members of the club frequently man the desk, checking books out and checking books in with hushed voices and with great economy of motion.

And then sometimes they put up displays. They put up displays of book covers, book reviews, and pictures and articles of literary interest. They also concern themselves with keeping the library neat and clean. The members of the Library Club walk deliberately through the library with dusting rags in their hands, wiping dusty books whenever they see them.

The members of the club hold frequent meetings, where they discuss book reviews, current issues of library policy, and cultural activities. Sometimes the club has a party, and then the members sit around and drink Coca-Cola and listen to music and talk about books and other cultural topics.

The club's advisers are Miss Winton and Miss McCurdy.

ART CLUB

The members of the Art club meet once a week and fool around with soap carving, leather tooling, painting with oils and water colors, drawing with chalk or crayons, and have a good creative time. Miss Kauffman, the club's adviser, is there to direct the club's efforts and to give needed advice.

The club's projects during the past few years have given the college many welcome and decorative additions. The work that the club has done, its decoration of walls, colorful signs, and improvement of Stewart Hall is reason enough for its existence.

MATHEMATICS CLUB

A. Bushey, Parliamentarian; G. Bitner, W. Hunsberger, Vice President; E. Rotz, President; Davis, R. Allison, H. Row, N. Eckard, Mr. Grove.

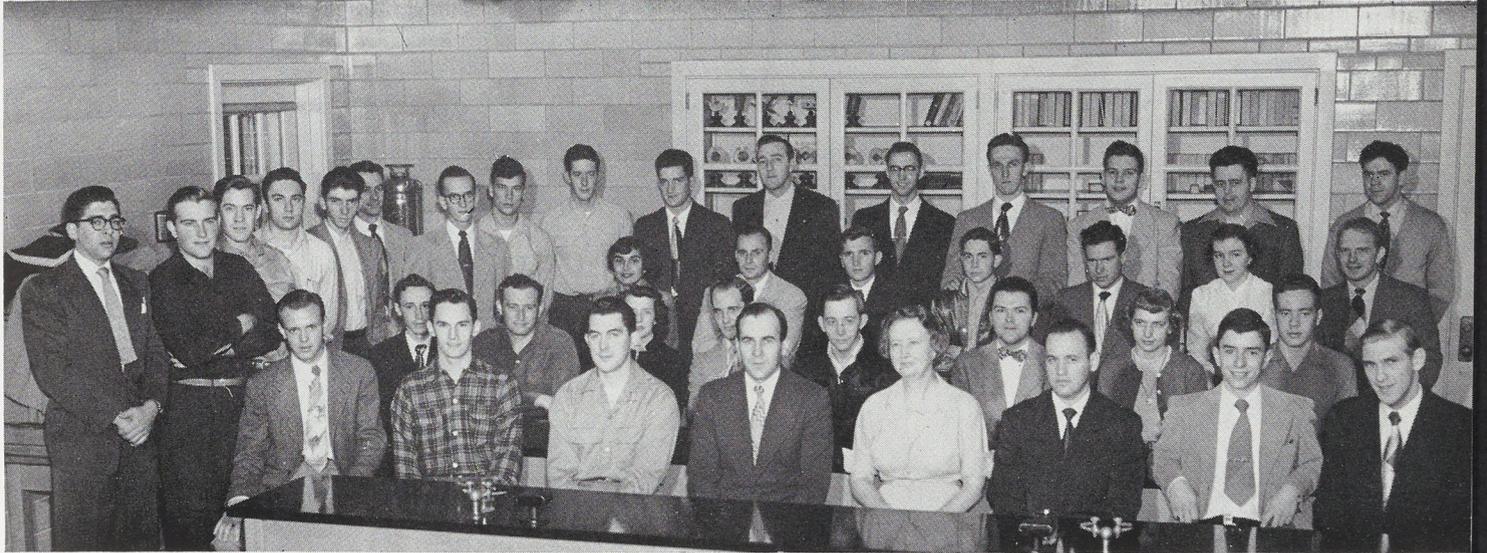

This assemblage of young men is interested in mathematics, the history of numbers, the number of degrees in a circle, penumbras, obelisks and other seemingly obscure subjects. The young men have regular meetings where they discuss interesting and practical aspects of the sometimes prosaic subject of mathematics.

The organization sometimes waxes nostalgic when it recalls some of its scintillating panel discussions on the origin of ordinate numerals and other stimulating subjects (or something like that).

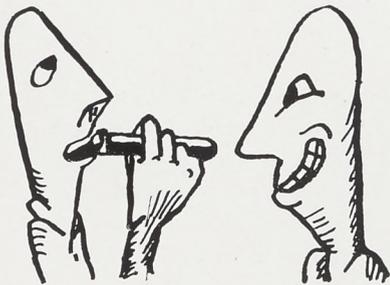

Mr. Grove is the club's adviser.

SCIENCE CLUB

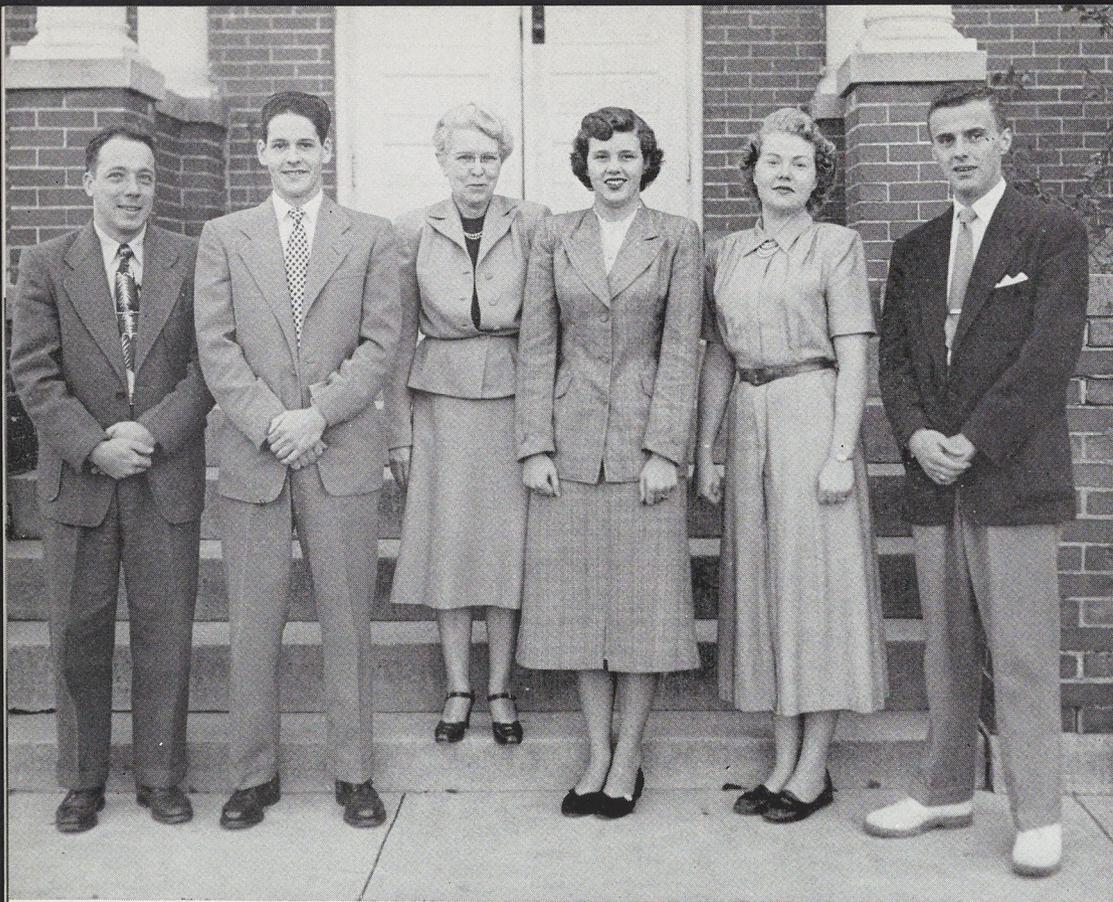

This bunch of knowing and aggressive "Joes" is loaded with enthusiasm. Their history during the past four years has been one of undiminishing turbulence. It has been one of water battles, word battles, and even fist fights that were always impending but never realized. And that's probably because there have always been so many live wires in the club.

The Science Club probably has more professional meetings and business meetings than any other organizations on campus. The frequency of their meetings and their attendance records are some indication of the religious fervor and interest that the members have in the club.

The group has long been noted for the quality of the frequent professional talks given at their meetings. It has been rather evident that every effort has been made through these programs to promote an interest and understanding of the field of science among the students of this college.

Al MacFarlane, Vice President; R. Lightner, President; Dr. Skene, M. Malone, Secretary; M. C. Reed, Historian; C. Barger, Treasurer.

BUSINESS EDUCATION CLUB

The Business Education Club extends open arms to all members of the Business department. They have frequent meetings, where they sit around and talk all the chit-chat of the business world. They talk about trips to business centers in central Pennsylvania that they make when they have the time and the money. Seniors and juniors talk about the trips they will make to large retail establishments, offices and high schools.

Every once in awhile the club has a party or a picnic. They frequently observe movies, listen to professional speakers, and have formal discussions on problems common to the world of business.

Dr. Skene gives able assistance to this club as its adviser.

C. McDonnell, Secretary; Mrs. Harley, H. Gross, Vice President; W. Maclay, President; J. Grove, Treasurer.

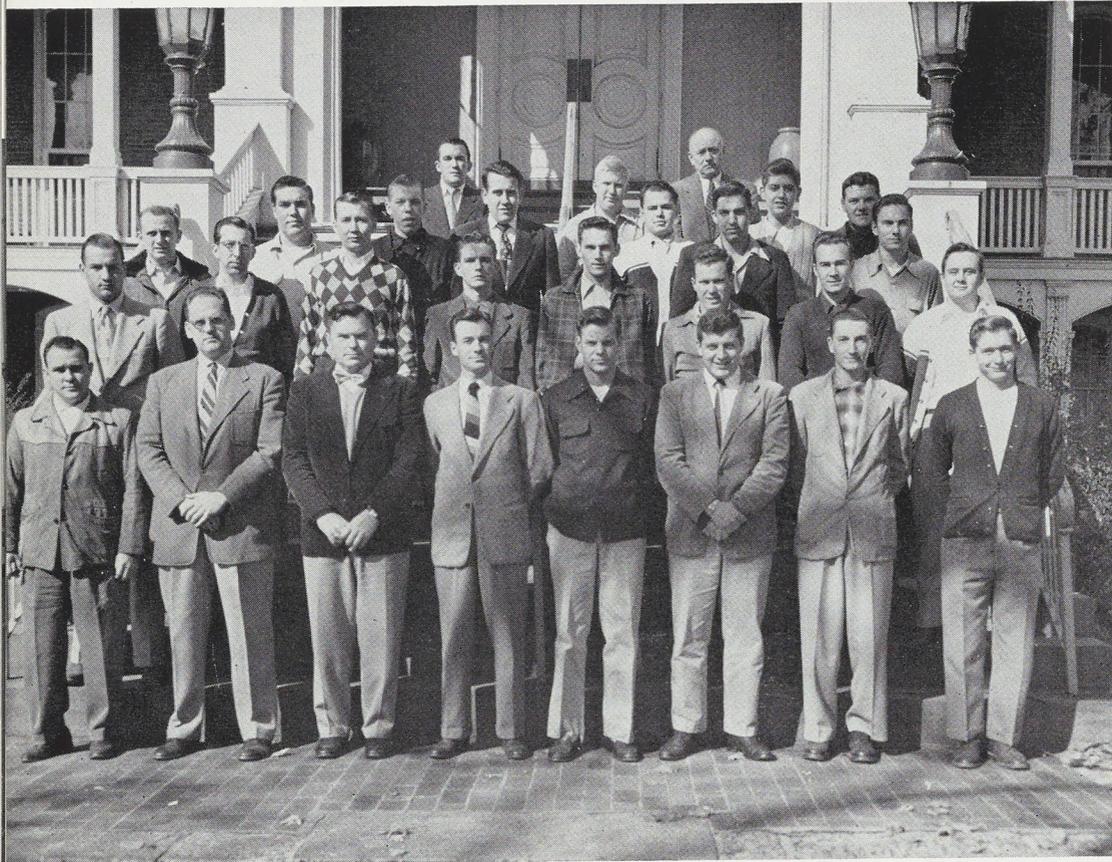

ELEMENTARY EDUCATION CLUB

The Elementary Education Club spends its time running from Shippenburg to Harrisburg to Chambersburg to York and nearby points. These trips are in the interest of classroom observation. The club members usually return from these trips loaded down with notes and determination.

Before and after each trip, the club members convene and chew the fat about what they saw and what they expect to see. A great amount of their leisure time is spent perusing professional pamphlets and formulating philosophies of functional education.

Mrs. Harley is the club's adviser.

CONSERVATION CLUB

The Conservation Club spends most of its time making things livable for the little animals. Birds, rabbits, and fish are in the back of its mind we believe, but the club also devotes some time to the conservation of soils and plants.

The members hold frequent meetings. They usually sit around in Indian circles and drink coffee and oil their guns and rods as they spin tales of the great outdoors. During hunting and fishing season, they take to the wilds.

Mr. Allan advises this group.

FUTURE TEACHERS OF AMERICA

This club, commonly known as the F. T. A., is the club to stop all clubs. At this writing it boasts of one hundred and ten members, the majority of whom maintain an active interest in its multifarious functions.

The group is noted for its colossal functions: variety shows, movies, speeches, informal dances, committee reports, surveys, and parties for practically every conceivable legal holiday in the year. All these functions come off without a hitch, for the club is a melting pot of talents and abilities.

Dr. Atkinson sees that everyone has a good time.

MIXED CHORUS

There are one hundred and twenty students in the Mixed Chorus, and all of them are interested in singing. These students rushed over to Rowland Hall at least twice each week during the first semester. They were over there singing songs in preparation for the beautiful and enduring concert which they presented during the Christmas rush.

During the past semester, the chorus met in Rowland Hall to practice for its spring concert, which it gave with the pleasant assistance of the band and orchestra.

Miss Virginia Long has been directing the chorus for the past two years. Since she has assumed the responsibility for directing the group, it has greatly increased in prominence. It is rather obvious that a great amount of the chorus's successes are a direct result of her leadership.

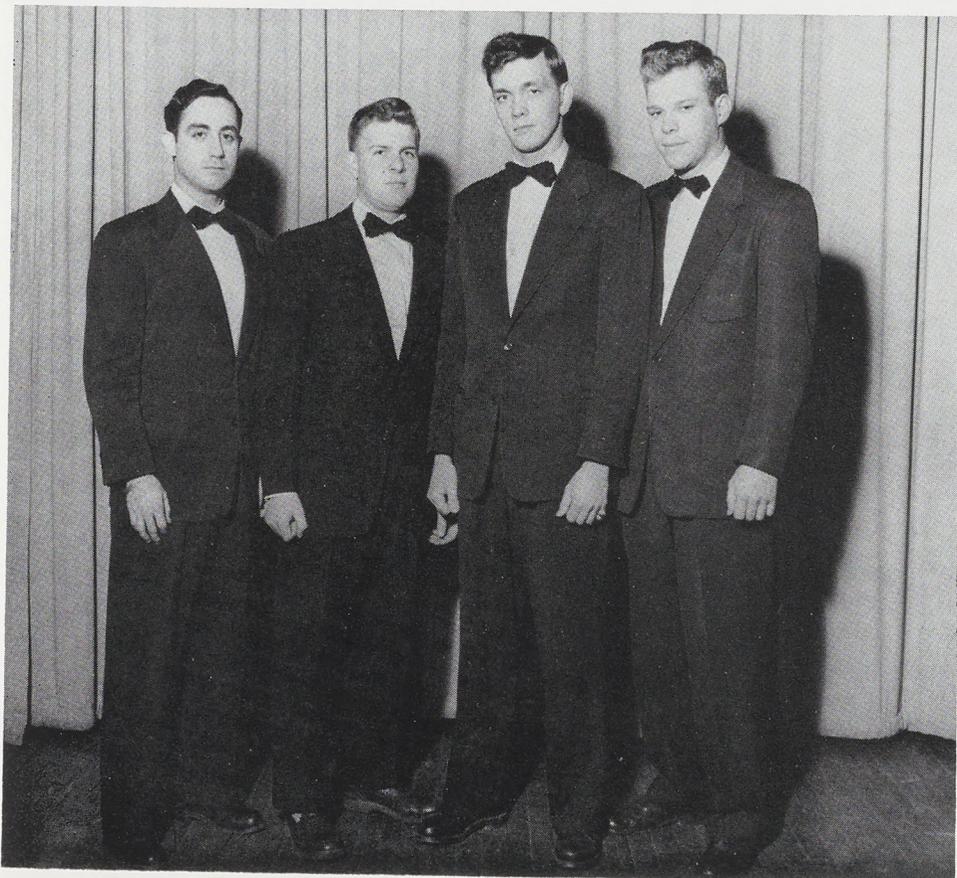

WOMEN'S TRIO

The Women's Trio is a logical and pleasing outgrowth of the Mixed Chorus. The women appear with the larger group as an added attraction and frequently stage single shows.

COLLEGIATE FOUR

The Collegiate Four is another group that has its roots in the parent organization. These four talented youngsters sing a few numbers at each and every concert. They have also appeared as a quartet in high schools throughout this area, they have been on radio programs and have even made several records.

Band in an

Band Formation

Mr. Weaver and his band and orchestra are two of the most ubiquitous organizations on campus. They will play at the drop of a hat anywhere and anytime. Through the year, they appear at tens of college productions, always on time, and always good.

The band sees its roughest duty during football season, when it appears at every home football game, marching and counter marching, playing in the stands, assisting the cheerleaders, doing everything but selling hot dogs. During the second semester, they appear as a concert group.

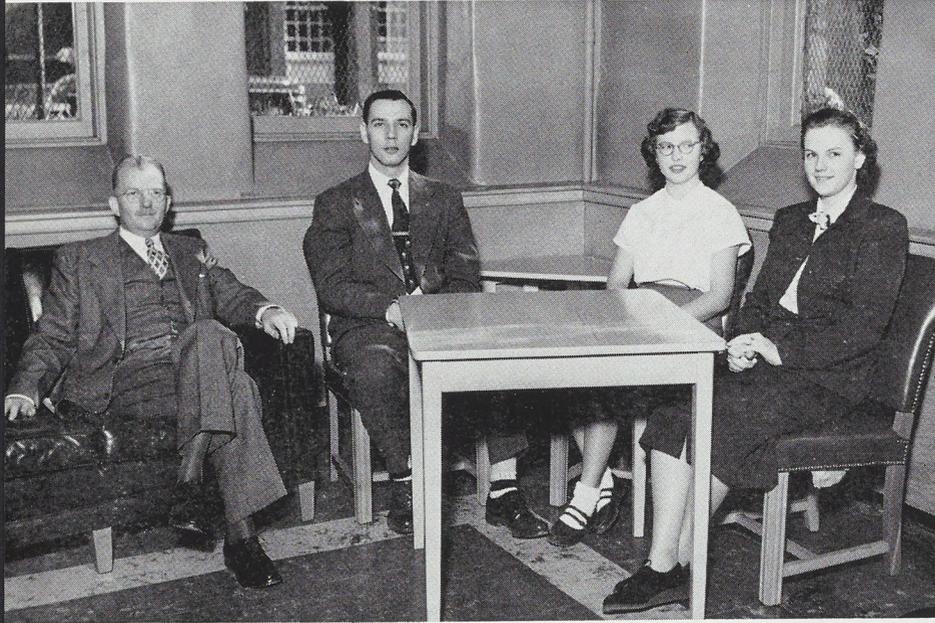

The orchestra turns up at assembly programs and special events, ready and willing to appear on the shortest of notices. Some of their most enjoyable jobs are the spring play, baccalaureate and commencement.

The club had a guest speaker each week. During the first semester they held a candlelight service for the Campus Interfaith Association.

Mr. Reisinger sponsors the club.

This club meets under the direction of Rev. Samuel. It has frequent discussions and services. Throughout the year, the club sponsors parties, hot dog roasts and other outings.

WAITER'S ASSOCIATION

The waiters, under the direction of Mrs. McClellan do an efficient job of handing out food down in the dining room. They move fast, break a minimum of dishes, and are remarkably quiet.

STUDENT CO-OP ASSOCIATION

Harry Runkle, President; Mr. Gill, Margaret Malone, Secretary

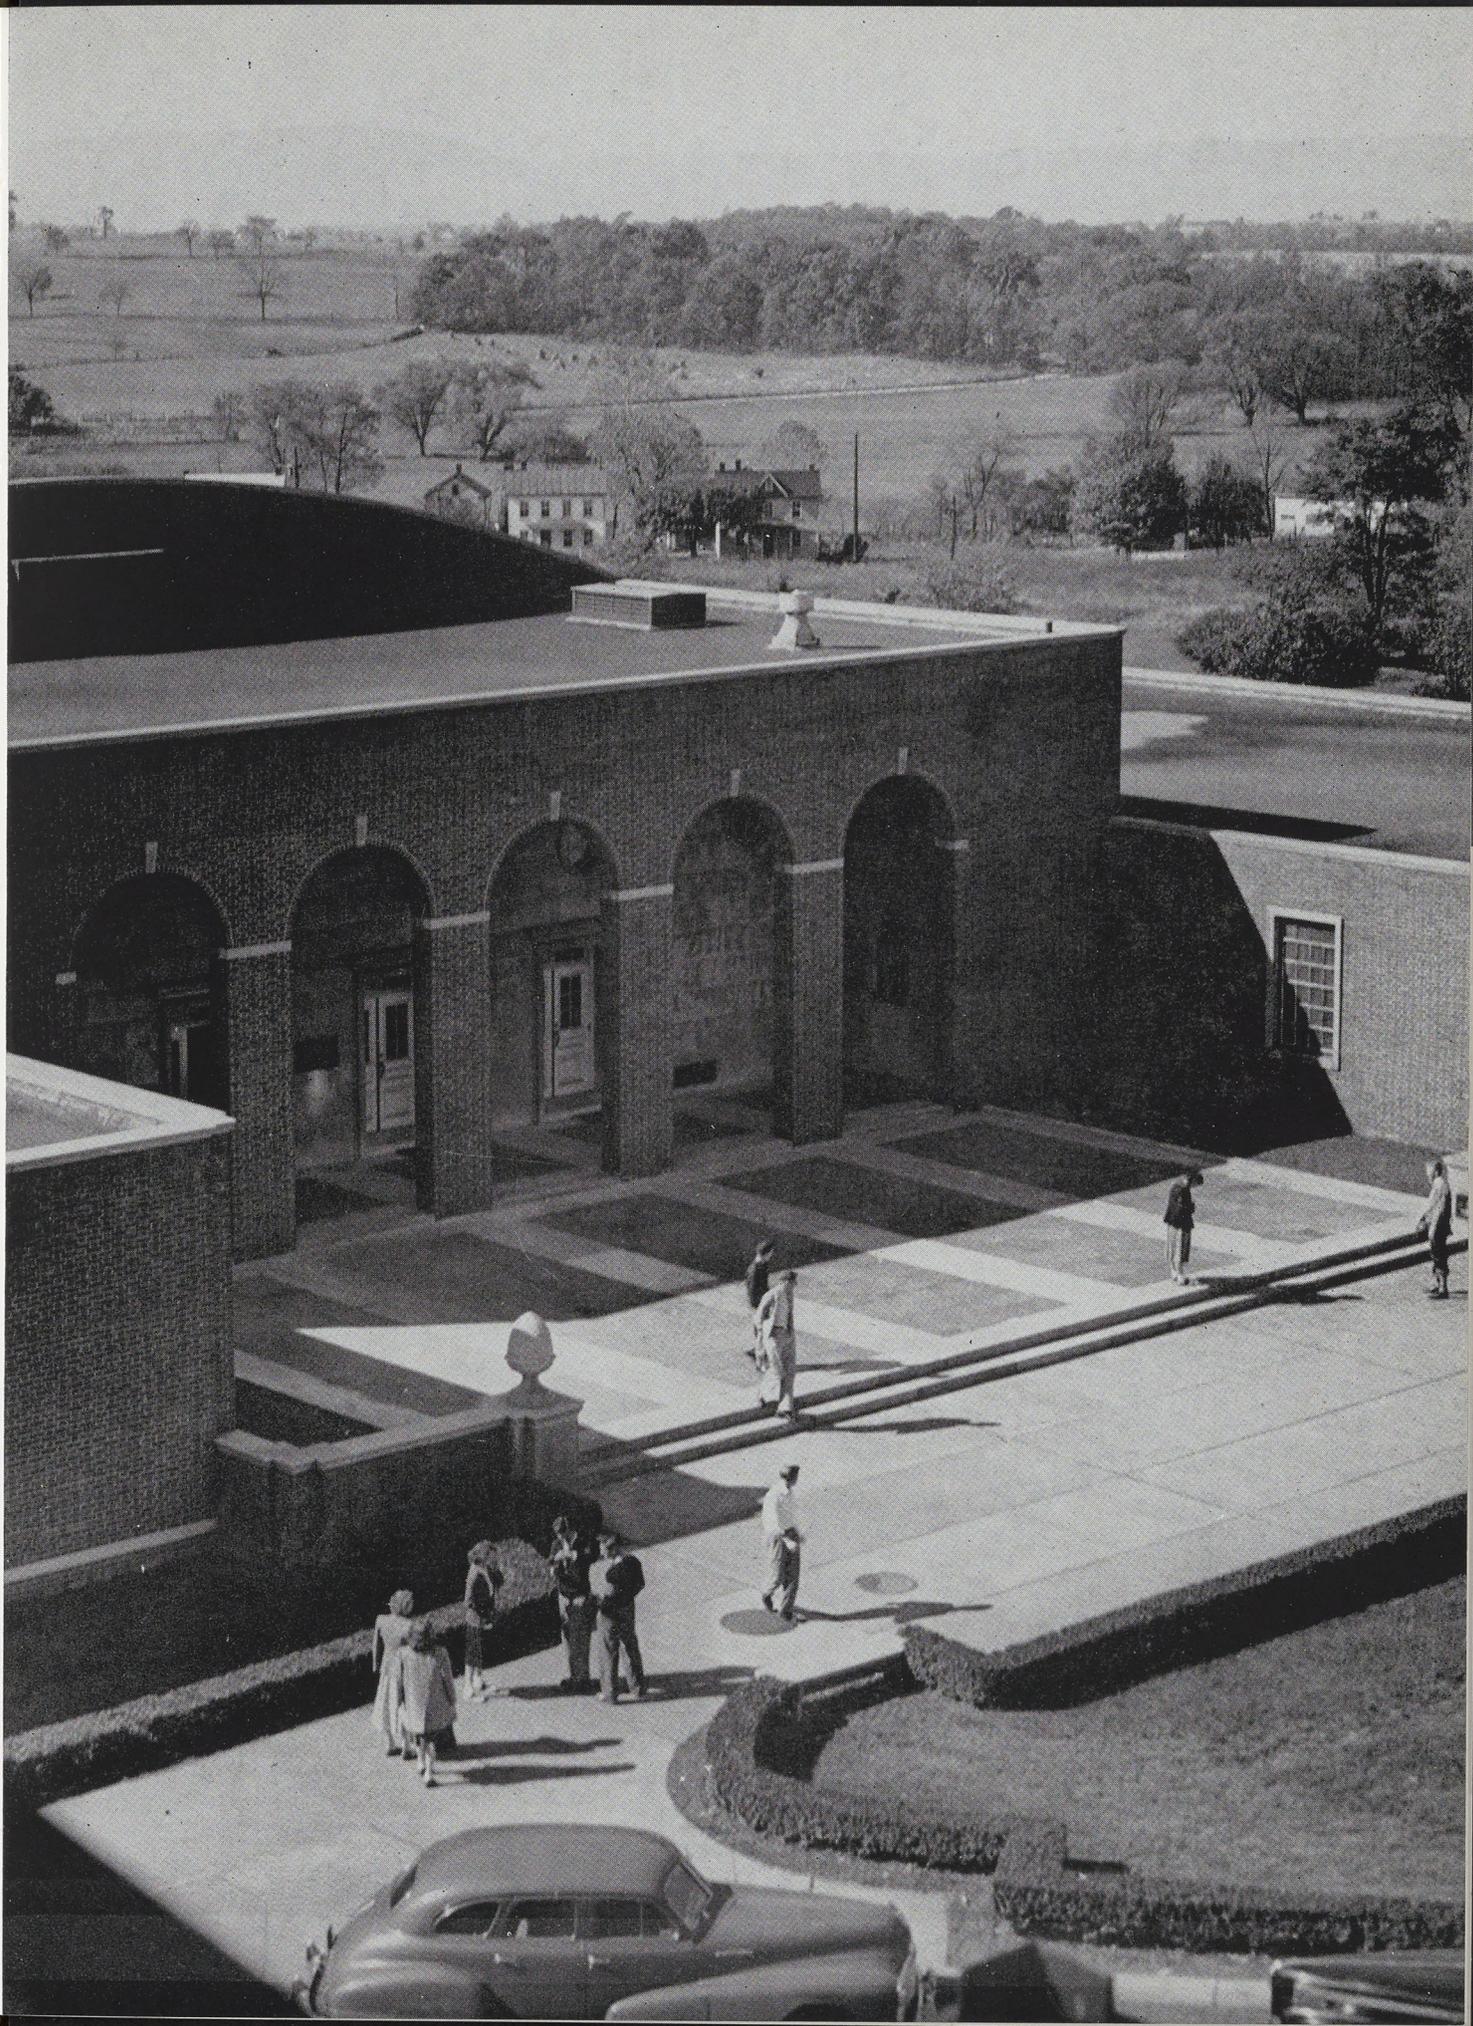

The Student Cooperative Association includes the entire membership of the student body. The Association annually elects a President and a Secretary. The Association employs clerical service in the business office, the retail store and the cafeteria.

ATHLETIC COUNCIL

The Athletic Council, presided over by Dr. Kriner, has a two-fold purpose. The first purpose is concerned with the regulation of the athletic budget, while the second objective has to do with organization and administration of sports schedules.

Meetings are called throughout the school year as situations warrant, and the Council has been highly successful in meeting the problems that arise and seeing them through to successful conclusions.

This group's broad contact with other institutions makes them ambassadors of good will and builders of friendly relations between Shippensburg and other schools.

In this organization are formulated many plans and proposals concerning sports, but submission to and approval of the Council is necessary before these proposals and plans become general policy.

Belonging to this association designates that the member possesses not only athletic prowess, but foresight, ability to discuss constructively sports problems, and a keen sense of fairness and sportsmanship.

The "men-behind-the-points" can never be over-applauded for their dynamic endeavors that are such an integral part of sports. "Grab my shoelaces," "rub my ribs," "soothe this shattered body" are all part of the hodge-podge of clamor they must absorb and tolerate.

FOOTBALL

1951 SUMMARY

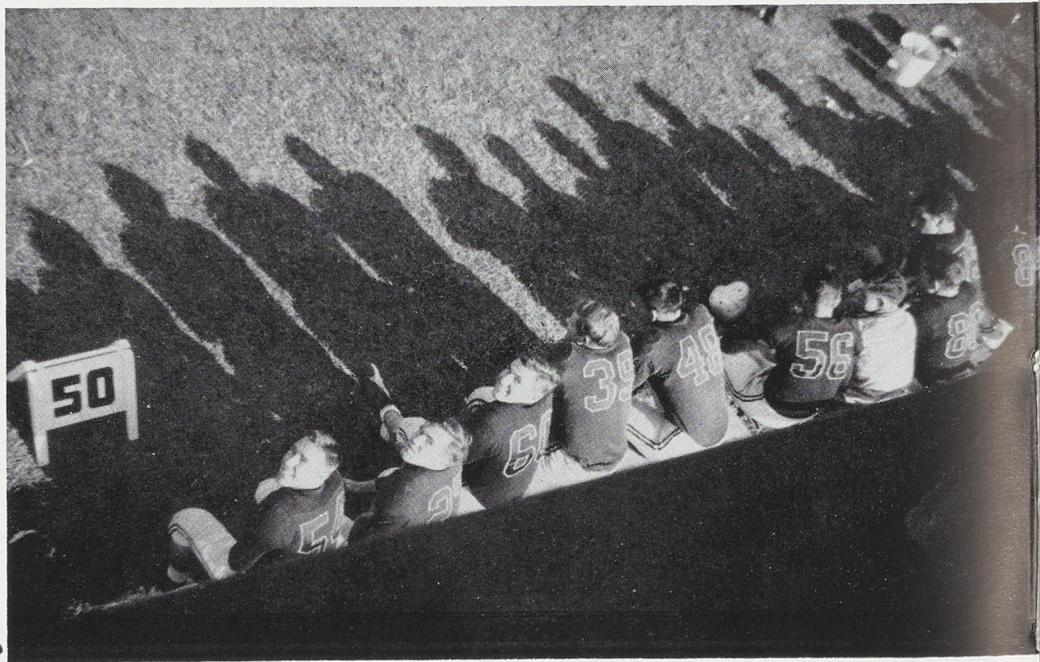

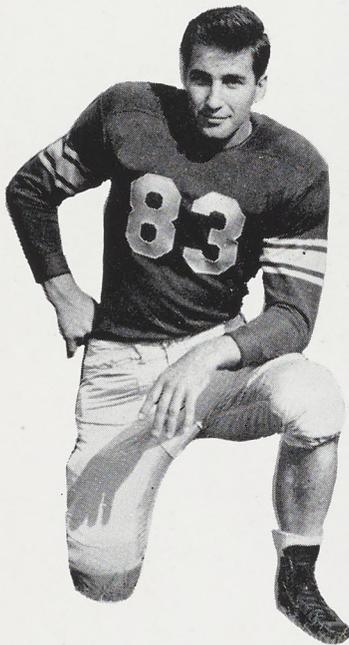

Coach Vinton Rambo's 1951 Red Raider squad scored impressive victories over five of its eight competitors this season. Even the three losses are notable, for the team members fought hard and showed the spectators that they possessed the skill, training, spirit, and sportsmanship that go together to make a winning combination.

The potent single-wing offensive of the Red and Blue, which uses the Princeton-type buck-lateral play series, proved many times to be the thorn in the opponents' side. In the initial game this smooth-functioning offensive completely overwhelmed its conference foe, Cheyney, by scoring in every period. This inaugural contest proved to the coaches and men alike that their long weeks of diligent work, studded with hours of drill and calisthenics, were not wasted.

FOOTBALL

A strong passing attack was a highlight of many games. The trained arms of Walt Galbraith, Dick Kopec, and Ed Gerlock hurled the ball on numerous occasions for a score or a long gain to the waiting arms of capable receivers such as Mills, Ulrich, Dapp, and Russ. In every game, minus the contest with the Golden Avalanche of Kutztown, passing proved to be a great asset to the team. Fumbles at critical periods bottled up the Raider's offensive well enough to effect the backfield timing which is so important to passing.

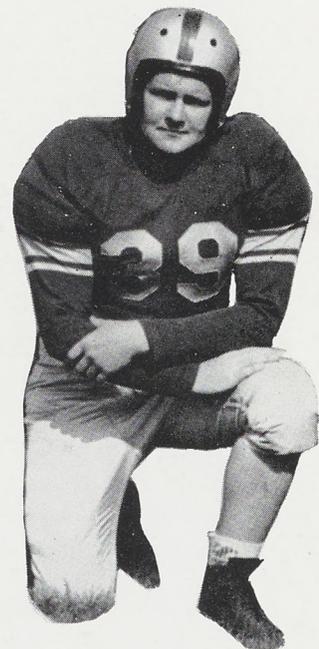

W. Galbraith

Although football is considered a serious game that must be planned, trained for, and studied, it also has its humorous side. The contest with East Stroudsburg was one of these light moments. John Russ, end and senior member of the squad from Harrisburg, charged the opposing line so vigorously that he became the fifth man in the East Stroudsburg backfield. The Warrior's quarterback turned, handed the ball to Russ, and John sprinted the remainder of the field for the score. An incident such as this certainly has its demoralizing effect on a team and the final score indicated that. Aside from the ball-stealing act, a powerful running and passing attack combined to bring a convincing defeat to East Stroudsburg.

W. Minnick

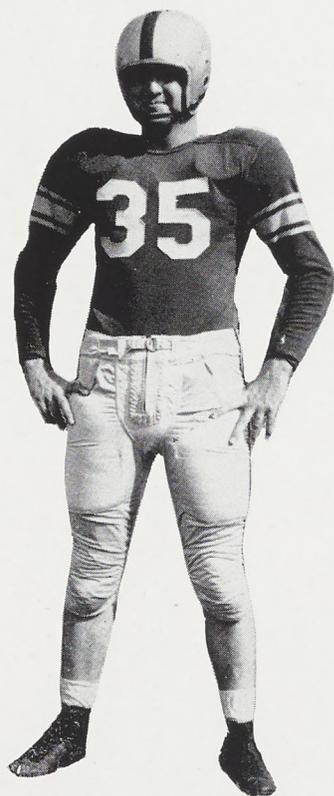

Another asset to the Shippensburg team was the consistent kicking of Walter Galbraith and John Russ. Galbraith was rated eleventh among the punters of the nation's small colleges and second in Pennsylvania to Coulson of Lafayette. Walt's average was 38.5 yards. During the Shepherd game on October 6th, John Russ kicked his sixteenth consecutive conversion. John's tally for the entire season was nineteen extra points and one field goal. Many difficult situations were overcome by the even tenor with which these men were able to control the ball.

R. Shoemaker

FOOTBALL

At the onset of the 1951 football calendar a metal scaffolding was erected on Heiges Field. This structure was used during the entire season for taking motion pictures of the games. These films gave both the coaching staff and the team members a decided advantage in pointing out otherwise unintelligible flaws in the offense and defense. The films were taken by Jack Myers and used by the coaches when they held "skull practice" sessions in the evenings.

Oct. 27—California	13	20
Nov. 3—Millersville	21	7
Nov. 10—Indiana	9	0
	<hr/> 184	<hr/> 94

The above total is a new scoring record for Shippensburg.

Long shifty runs throughout the football year were thoroughly enjoyed by the fans. Veteran wingback Charles Mills and frosh back Spencer Keys added thrills to many games with their yard-age-gaining sprints. It was during the Homecoming game with California State Teachers that Mills, in the opening minutes and behind precision blocking, had the crowd on its feet with an elusive eighty-three yard run. Again in the Bloomsburg game Charlie, with the adroitness of a well-polished player, raced ninety-one yards for a touchdown. In this overbalanced contest with Bloomsburg the Red and Blue of Shippensburg was removed from title contention in the fourteen-team state wide loop.

An example of Shippensburg's aggressive spirit can be found in the Millersville game. Robert Adams, the largest member of the present squad, crashed the opponents' line and blocked a punt. On two successive plays Edward Gerlock, fourth year line crusher, punched his way to the goal line for a score. Plays like these gave Gerlock a position on the All-State Teachers College Team. Defensive play like that cited above earned for the team as a whole the 19th position in defensive play among 440 small colleges in the country. This rating was given by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau.

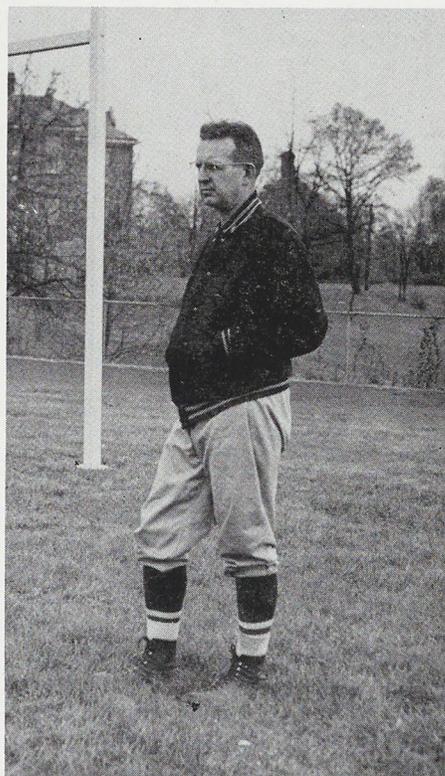

FOOTBALL

Ken Dapp was chosen as the outstanding end in the State Teachers College loop and was given a berth on that team. His brilliant offensive and defensive play was definitely creditable. Ken was a great asset to his team, and for that reason he was elected by squad members, along with Weldon Lane, to be a co-captain. A game which best exemplifies Dapp's ability is the final game of the season when Heiges Field was invaded by the Indian aggregation from Indiana State Teachers College. Ken was the defensive standout as he intercepted five passes and batted down four more which could well have been scores. In that contest, dotted with intricate ground reverses by the Red Raiders, Indiana was handed its second defeat of the year. Bill Minnick led to both scores in this game with long runs after receiving short passes. Bill was the leading pass receiver for the Raiders in 1951. This closing victory meant much to the Shippensburg squad since Indiana had beaten both Kutztown and California who had won over the Red Raiders earlier in the year.

The 1952 Shippensburg football team will have to do without the dependable services of eleven men who this year will be graduated. This situation, of course, occurs each year and the problem is always met and overcome. Competent freshmen join the squad and veterans move up a rung on the football ladder to take the vacated positions. Despite this, linemen such as Ken Dapp, Weldon Lane, Bill Minnick, John Russ, Robert Shoemaker, and Harold Vandermark, together with backs like Walter Galbraith, Edward Gerlock, Richard Kopec, Harry Runkle, and George Walker will be sorely missed by coaches and teammates alike when the initial whistle blows to begin a new season on the Shippensburg gridiron.

CHEERLEADERS

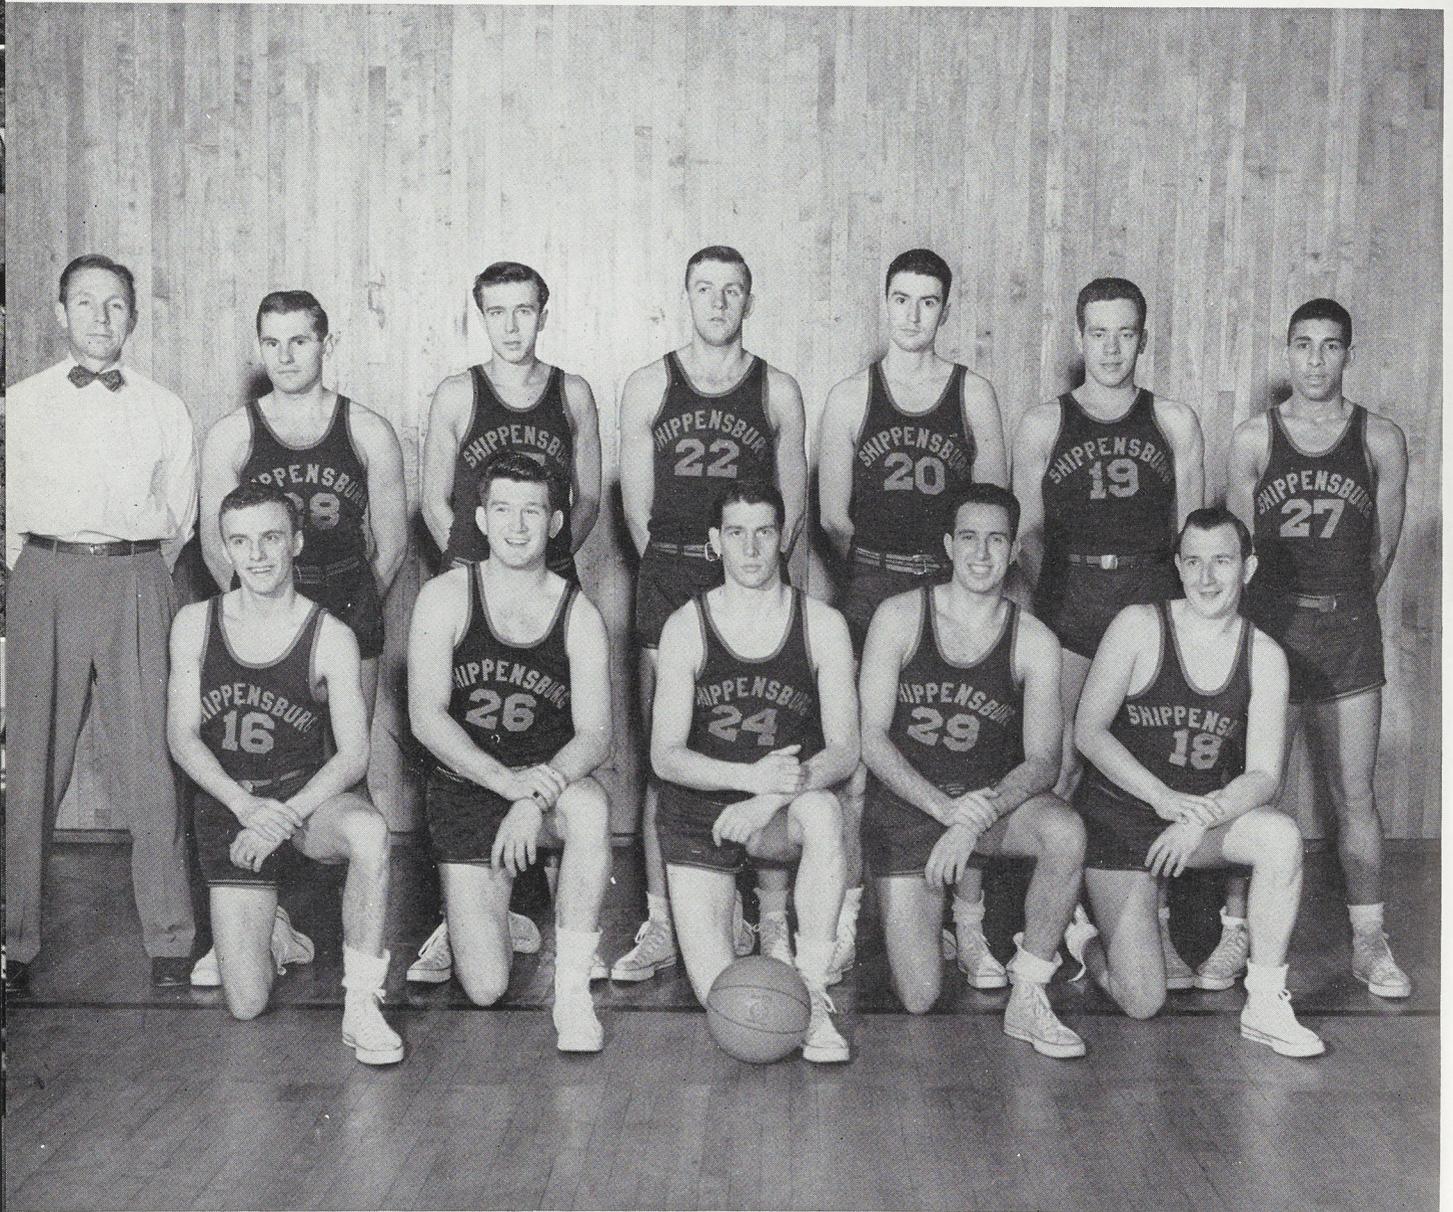

An essential part of any athletic event is spirit. The difficult task of creating and exhibiting this overt display of exuberance rests with our cheerleaders. Tirelessly they labor throughout each event—jumping, yelling, tumbling, leading spectators in cheers, and doing stunts that should arouse and stimulate any player. Aside from their laudable work on the field and in the gymnasium, these energizers of spirit formulate new cheers and are the backbone of all pep rallies.

This year athletic morale attained a new high, and to the cheerleaders should go a great majority of the credit.

SECTION TWO: BASKETBALL

Coach Tom Crist is having difficulty rounding out a winning combination for the 1951-1952 season. Charles Mills and Tom McClelland, captain of the squad and high scorer thus far, are the only holdovers from last year's quintet. New-comers to the squad, namely R. Stadulis, R. Robertson, R. Keefer, K. McGill, and O. Mills, are giving invaluable aid alone with holdovers from last year who have been seeing much action this season.

BASKETBALL

Resuming his studies and athletic participation after a term in the Marine Corps is Robert Nicholson. Nicholson was a great asset to the 1949-1950 team and is expected to lend a hand again this season.

The box scores to date are not impressive, but by scrambling combinations Coach Crist is hoping to turn in a more successful final half of the schedule. The season's schedule consists of twenty-one games.

Captain T. McClelland

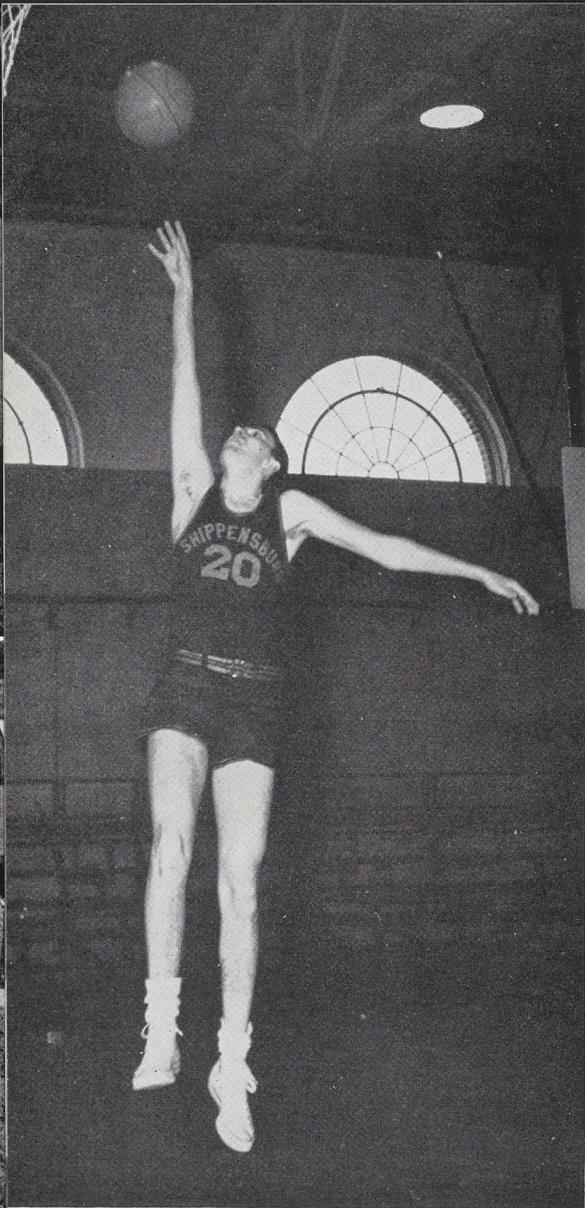

C. Barger

BASKETBALL

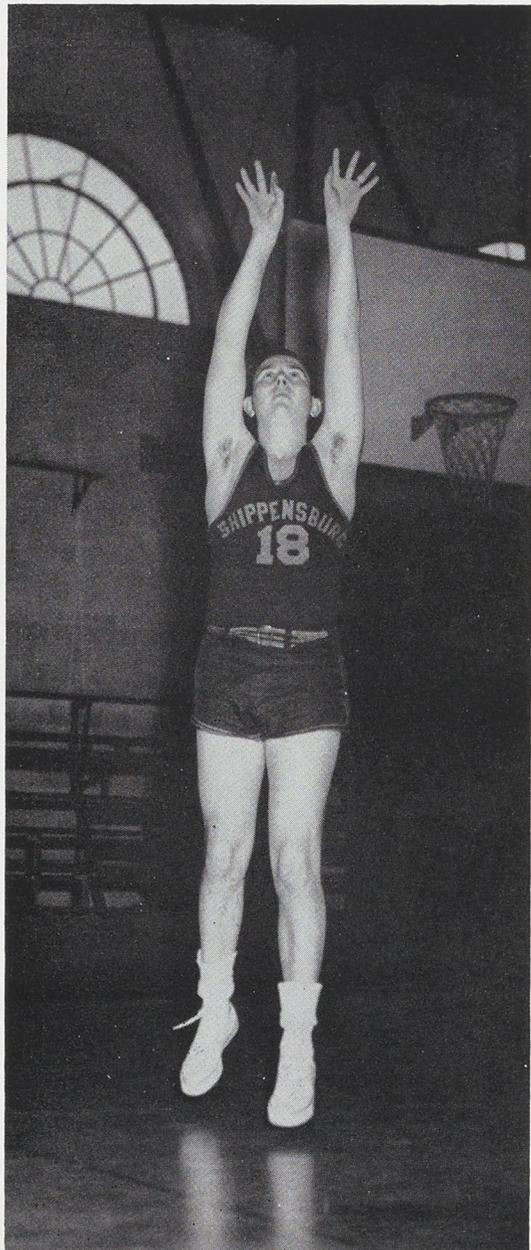

The squad's offensive is an intricate five-man weave, interspersed with many foul and out-of-bounds plays. The defense employed is a man-to-man setup. This style of playing requires the player to be continually on the move; consequently, he must also be in top physical condition. Coach Crist realizes the amount of stamina his team must possess, and he drills night after night on these fundamentals.

J. Hepner

J. McCloskey

The second half of the basketball calendar will witness repeat performances with Wilson Teachers, Indiana, Bloomsburg, Shepherd, Kutztown, Lock Haven and Mansfield. Two of these teams have been outscored once, and the spirited squad is determined to make these victories even greater when they meet them again. They are going to do their utmost to turn a seemingly poor season into one of outstanding performances bristling with thrills, excitement, and diligent play.

JUNIOR VARSITY BASKETBALL

The Shippensburg Junior Varsity Basketball team is ably coached by Walter Galbraith. Walter is a senior student, but his knowledge of the game and skill in directing this knowledge has earned him the position of coach.

Primarily, freshmen and sophomores comprise the J. V. squad, and they play a twelve-game schedule. The Junior Varsity is, like the Varsity, finding the schedule tough, and also like the Varsity, they are able to boast approximately the same degree of success.

Two teams have fallen prey thus far to the fledglings of Coach Galbraith. A presumably strong Hagerstown Junior College five were completely outclassed when the Shippensburg quintet tallied 64 to the opponents 33 points. Shippensburg High School Faculty was the second victim. Two games have already been played between the High School Faculty and the Junior Varsity with the series now tied at one game each. Millersville has provided keen competition in two meetings with the Shippensburg team. The initial game, played at Millersville, was strongly contested, but the home team warded off threat after threat and emerged victoriously. The second game, played on Shippensburg's home court, required the visiting quintet to work an over-time period before stumbling to the showers with a close victory under their sweaty belts.

Improvement in the team is prevalent each night, and Coach Galbraith anticipates a skilled and experience-wise group to be sent up to the Varsity next season.

VARSITY CLUB

S. S. T. C.'s Varsity Club, headed by Eugene Campalong, definitely let its weight be felt on the campus this year. From selling athletic tickets to sponsoring dances, the club has been exceptionally active.

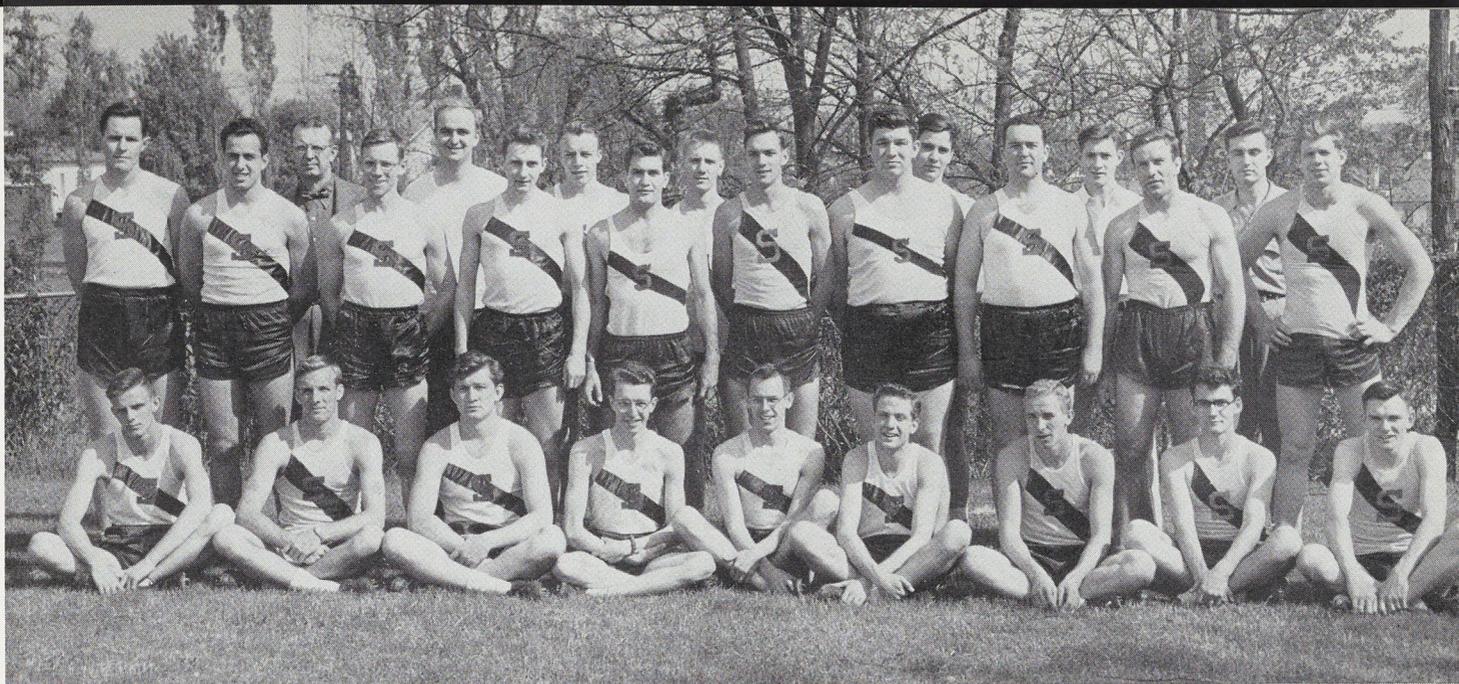

Since this group is self-supporting, funds are raised through program sales, concession stand proceeds, and any residue left from sponsoring social activities.

A new innovation to the customary pin for juniors and trophies for seniors is the Varsity Club jacket. Beginning this year the organization plans to award a standard jacket to all members.

Entrance into the club may be gained by earning a letter in at least one varsity sport and surviving the rigors of a superfluous Spartan code. A fall banquet and a spring picnic are major events on the V. C. calendar.

TRACK

Shippensburg's track and field team opened its 1951 season amid conditions more conducive to playing football than running track. Despite the cold weather the team coached by Vinton Rambo was able to amass nearly twice as many points as the opponent, Juniata. This initial meet was important for several reasons. It gave an indication of the ability of newcomers to the squad and displayed the progress of veterans.

In the second meet, a triangular one with Cheyney and West Chester, the Red and Blue finished tie for second with Cheyney. Captain David Duerr of Shippensburg, was an outstanding participant as he won the mile and the half mile, and ran a fast third leg in the mile relay. Also outstanding was Ed Stoken, javelin thrower from Aliquippa, and Ken Dapp, pole-vaulter from Harrisburg. Both men consistently turned in winning performances throughout the season.

The mile relay team sent to the Penn Relays at Philadelphia met strong opposition from the other entries. W. Spraglin, P. Utts, D. Duerr, and M. Callen who comprised the Shippensburg relay team, finished sixth among the State Teachers Colleges. Coach Rambo's other entry was Ed Stoken, who also found competition keen in the javelin throw.

As the season progressed, so did the squad and the competition. The Red Raiders downed Lock Haven and Bloomsburg in succession beating Lock Haven by a score of $69 \frac{1}{3}$ to $56 \frac{2}{3}$. The State Meet concluded with Shippensburg finishing fourth behind West Chester, East Stroudsburg, and Cheyney. Although the team was hampered from time to time by injuries, they were able to distribute their strength and always field a creditable team.

BASEBALL

The S. S. T. C. baseball team got underway for the 1951 season with a very promising future. There was a loss of only two key men, Warren Hassinger and Dick Fralick. Ample replacements for these two men were available and the loss was negligible. As the season opened John Russ was at first base, Ralph Pescuma was at second base, Charles Mills was at third base, and Robert Lightner held the shortstop position. The outfield revolved about Dick Kopec, Carl Jacoby, and Harry Runkle. The catching staff had John Fore, Bill Cockley, and Bob Fisher to hold that position down. Heading the pitching staff was Chuck Wilson, with a backing of able moundsmen.

In the second game of the season, actually the first to be played because the initial contest with Indiana was called off on account of rain, Chuck Wilson toed the rubber for the Raiders against a strong Millersville team. After nine innings of close ball, Millersville emerged on top by a 3-1 score.

Bloomsburg came to town for the next one and Sam Henry got the starting role. Ten innings and three pitchers later, Bloomsburg packed their bags with a 10-8 victory. It was a slug fest all the way.

The Red and Blue broke into the winning column with a revengeful 6-3 win over Millersville. George Cherry, the Don Newcombe of the Raiders' mound staff, did the honors. George came in on relief during the next game to get his second win in as many starts as Shippensburg downed Indiana, 10-7 for a 2-2 record.

After "the disaster at the Mount" in which the Raiders, through two costly errors, lost a close game by 8-7, the S. S. T. C. nine dropped two more games in as many days on the road—Shepherd 8-7 and Lock Haven 9-5.

On May 22 the victory starved Red Raiders gained a win on the strong right arm of Chuck Wilson. Chuck will go down in the baseball history of this college as pitching a no hit, no run, ball game. Mount St. Mary's was defeated by a score of 6-0, It was a long time between drinks.

In the final game of the season S. S. T. C. lost to Shepherd of West Virginia 8-7. Shepherd had to come from behind in the seventh as Henry tired and gave up three hits, and two more in the eighth. In this game Kopec hit a home run.

So the lid was put on another baseball season with a not-too-bright record of six losses and three wins, but you know the old saying, "Just wait 'til next year."

AQUATIC CLUB

Spring will witness a beautiful and intricate water ballet sponsored by Shippensburg's own sons and daughters of Neptune. This, however, is not the only project undertaken by this versatile group.

Every Monday evening the Aquatic Club meets in the Alumni Gymnasium Pool where members are given instruction in lifesaving. Various breaks, approaches, and carries are thoroughly taught. When the candidate is graduated from this rigorous program, he is either drowned or fully competent in swimming the Hellespont with a lifeboat full of Turkish tobacco strapped to his back.

Since this crew is vitally interested in improving strokes, learning safety rules, and appreciating leisure swimming, coxswain Emma Scott devotes a part of each meeting to these aims.

SECTION THREE: WOMEN'S SPORTS

The long list of varsity activities these dynamic women engage in is paralleled by an equally diversified schedule of intra-mural athletics which includes playing tennis, swimming, cheer-leading, hiking, and a host of other events.

The ultimate goal of any woman participating in any of these activities is entrance into Tau Kappa, the athletic sorority. Tau Kappa sets its point requirements high, and the W. A. A. member attaining membership in the sorority must be exceptionally active in sports.

Yearly meetings held by the Association are studded with socials, banquets, and picnics.

ARCHERY

Almost any afternoon or evening in spring the Archery Club members can be seen on the athletic field, hurling their feathered shafts toward straw targets in an ancient, but not forgotten, sport. These women faithfully follow the old maxim of "practice makes perfect" as they strive to better their previous scores in anticipation of future meets.

Last spring an archery tournament was held at West Chester State Teachers College and Edwinna McGehee tied for individual high women's score while the Shippensburg team as a whole took second place. Following this initial meet, several telegraphic meets were held on Heiges Field with other schools.

The group is already making extensive plans for organizing and attending tournaments this spring, and despite their losses through graduation a successful season is looked forward to.

The S. S. T. C. women who comprise the Raiderette basketball squad can hold their heads high. Four years have passed leaving few blemishes on their near-perfect record. Few teams, regardless of what facet of sports they may engage in, can boast of such a succession of successes.

This enviable record will certainly be given a rigid test again this year when the Raiderettes vie for court honors with such potential threats as Penn Hall, Lebanon Valley, and Gettysburg. Through diligent work and under the exceptional tutelage of Miss Esther Henderson, these girls are determined to make this another winning season.

The loss of valuable members through graduation will definitely be felt by the team, but many promising freshmen have turned out for practice and the competition to returning experienced players will be great.

KNEELING: M. Yeakel, J. Charlton, J. Ricketts, J. Kennedy, E. Hocker, J. Walker, D. Raffensberger, N. Kaufman, M. Gruver, L. Walker, J. Gettle, M. Runkle, E. Scott, B. Stouffer, J. Oyler, I. Sgrignoli, M. Rudy, I. Eby, N. Stoner, B. Radel.
STANDING: C. Swayer, S. Hall, B. Hess, P. Boettcher, B. Wynkoop, S. Schubauer, N. Hess.

Although handicapped by the graduation of stalwarts such as G. Klingman, S. Yetter, M. Stroup, E. Eisenhour, D. Oyler, S. Fordney, and B. Yeland, Coach Miss Henderson, through diligent effort, drill, and constant urging, was able to again field a squad worthy of wearing the Red and Blue of Shippensburg. It is a difficult task to mold a creditable team in a single season, regardless of the material available, but Miss Henderson was able to form a well-balanced team from this semi-green group.

Shippensburg hockey team is a member of the National Hockey Association and also a member of the Central Pennsylvania Field Hockey Association. Membership in the C. P. F. H. A. enables the team to participate in hockey tournaments held each fall. To the regret of players and spectators alike, this year's tournament has been cancelled.

If success in athletics is to be measured by the number of games won, the 1951 hockey team would be classed as unsuccessful. However, if success is scaled by cooperation among players, experience and skill gained, the general attitude of sportsmanship, and the untiring efforts of a team, then this season has been one of the most successful for Shippensburg.

INTRAMURALS

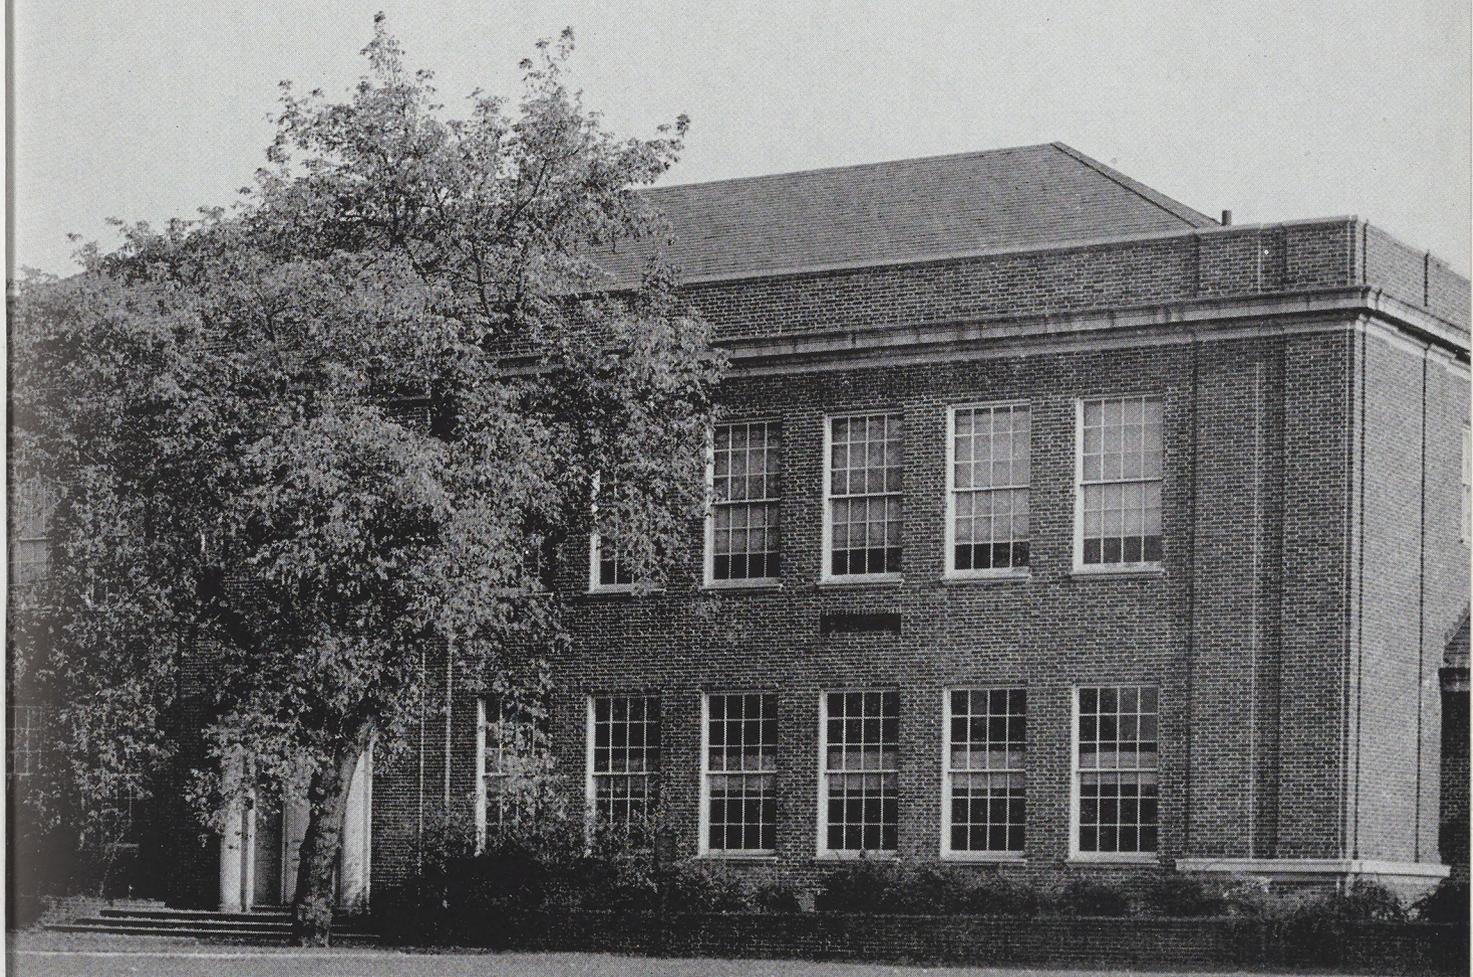

An extensive intramural program is as essential to a college athletic program as varsity sports for many reasons. Intramurals give a greater variety of opportunities for participation, promote sportsmanship, and foster advantages for increasing school spirit.

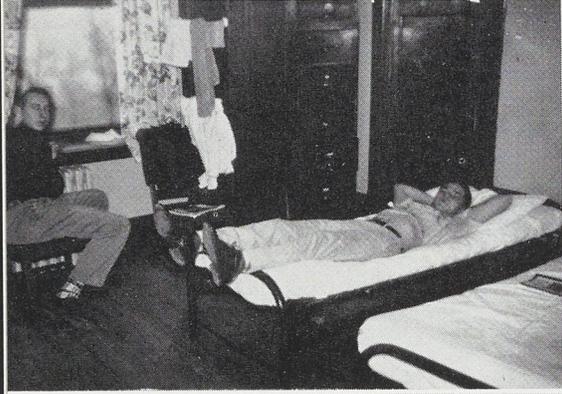

Included in Shippensburg's expansive catalogue of intramurals are activities ranging from hiking to basketball, and ping-pong to football. Any student interested in physical activity can undoubtedly find at least one of this vast number of programs to interest him.

CLASSES

FRESHMAN CLASS

Our long road ahead has just begun. The speeches to be made, the work to be done, our diplomas, the caps and gowns to be received—for this we are now striving. It is just the beginning; the beginning of what we will remember.

We began that day in September, 1951, when we entered Shippensburg State Teachers College for the first time. We were a bit shaky, somewhat scared, but oh, so very proud! It was wonderful to be a college freshman.

Do you remember that first assembly? Dr. Kriner addressed us as the class of 1955, and we felt for the first time that we were a vital part of the college.

Then came the Reception Dance, where the upperclassmen and the faculty recognized us as a beginning class.

And those first few weeks, will we ever forget them? The business of becoming acquainted with the buildings and our new classmates and roommates, the initiations, the tests, the week of Shippensburg training—all were a part of our introduction to life at SSTC.

It didn't take us long to get right with the swing of things at Shippensburg. After the first few weeks or so, how excited we were about the impending elections of our class officers! When voting time finally rolled around, we elected Albert Harper, President; Daniel Putt, Vice-President; Virginia Schell, Secretary; Norma King, Treasurer; James Hutchison, Parliamentarian, and Mary Ann Mitch, Historian. We were introduced to our class advisers, Miss Winton and Dr. Atkinson.

There were so many affairs that fall—all of them were loads of fun. We went to our first semi-formal dance held by the Varsity Club and the W. A. A. Remember how Bob Foster gave such a wonderful performance in "Harvey"? Miss York directed that super play and the whole college was justly proud of the members of Masquers participating in it. We mustn't forget to mention the formal Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners. They were new to most of us. Then too, there was our first party as a class in December. Remember what a success it was?

Before we left for our Christmas vacation, we observed the wonderful job the Choral group did on their Christmas Concert.

Upon returning from our vacation, we were faced with the thoughts of mid-year exams. We really kept the midnight oil burning. Then came semesters—and our grades.

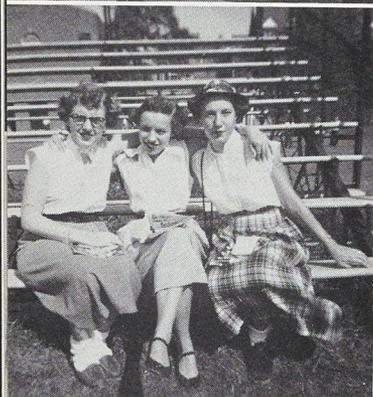

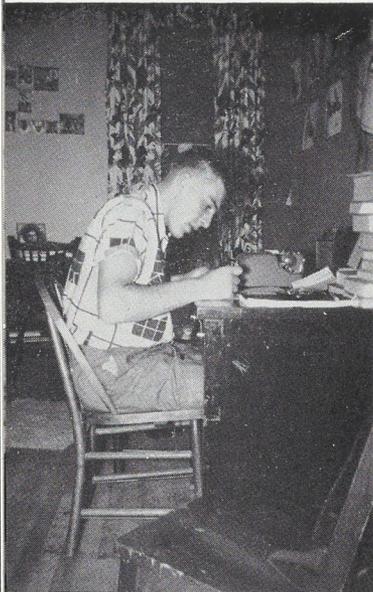

And then, almost before we knew it, spring was on its way and with it came the play "Life With Mother," another hit presented by Masquers. Following this came our Freshman Dance, our first important social affair. At last we had come into our own as a class, and we noted the fact that everyone was having a good time.

The month of April brought thoughts of Easter vacation and the Junior-Senior Prom to our minds. When one was over, the next followed quickly. How thrilled we were to be invited to the Prom—our first college Prom.

And then came the last few weeks of May: exams, graduation, and tedious packing. We went off to our summer vacations, limp, tired, and happy.

SECOND ROW: J. Hutchinson, A. Harper, Miss Winton, A. Atkinson, D. Putt.
FIRST ROW: N. King, M. Mitch, V. Schell.

Our class—the Sophomores. “We are to be called Sirs and Madams,” we told the freshmen last semester. “Square your dink, freshmen, but quick . . . and let’s hear the Alma Mater.” It was our job to initiate the freshmen, and it was their duty to do what we said. We sounded mean, but everyone had fun, and next year we’ll have our chance to sit back and just watch.

When we came here as freshmen, we were told that our class deans would be Miss Klaus and Mr. Glessner. They were to help us with our class activities and any problems that we might have, and believe us we had plenty. At our first organized class meeting, we elected Lee Bashore, president. Our first real class party was a Get-Acquainted Party held in Stewart Hall and we all had fun.

SOPHOMORE CLASS

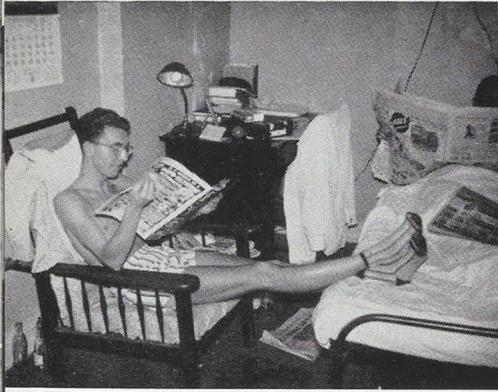

Our President joined the armed services before the second semester of our freshman year, but our Vice President, Dolores Filipovitz, capably took over the position of leading our class. A party held in February was well-attended and enjoyed.

Our class enrollment as a freshmen class was about two hundred, but now as sophomores we have dropped to a class of about one hundred and sixty-five. We now have some new officers and some of the former ones. As President we now have Jerry Haugh; as Vice-President, Ronald Finkenbinder; Secretary, Janet Martin; Assistant Secretary, Barbara Hess; Treasurer, Nancy Hess; Assistant Treasurer, Milly Sutton; Parliamentarian, Bob Adams, and Historian, Donna Raffensperger.

After a successful sophomore party held the first semester, we had a semi-formal dance in March. This dance helped us raise some money for the Junior Prom.

FIRST ROW: B. Hess, D. Raffensberger, J. Martin, J. Haugh.
SECOND ROW: M. Sutton, B. Hess, R. Adams.
THIRD ROW: Miss Klaus, Mr. Glessner.

Well, we came here in 1949, went through the usual routine of initiation, stumbled around a bit, and elected Bert Henry President on October 20. Things are a little fuzzy right now, but we can remember three things we did that year.

We came out en masse for the annual W. A. A. dance. Ken Stuck, one of our own, sat in the middle of the dance floor with a phony scepter in his hand. He was supposed to be King Rex. We all got a big bang out of that one.

And then there was a Sadie Hawkins Day party held for us so that we could get acquainted with the upper classmen. We came to that one in dungarees and dirty shirts and did our best to carry out the theme. And then there was the time we really went wild and held this Club 53 affair. We had that in the beginning of February, we believe. We had that one over in the gym and after it was over we thought it was pretty much of a success.

We elected John Holbert President when we came back as sophomores and then we had a Sophomore Hoedown in Stewart Hall. One hundred and fifty people showed up. We had our sophomore hop in January with Red McCarthy's orchestra. The theme was "Winter Fantasy," or something like that.

JUNIOR CLASS

And then, of course, we came back again and John Holbert was still President. We zipped right into our first party, Junior Jamboree. Twenty-two members of our class knocked themselves out in a variety show, "Something for the Birds."

We've chosen our band and theme for the Junior Prom and we've chosen our yearbook co-editors. That's about all we have to tell you people right now.

R. Grove, Historian; C. Swoyer, Secretary; M. Runkle, Assistant Secretary; J. Wallace, Parliamentarian; L. Stull, Treasurer; L. Coons, Vice President, J. Holbert, President.

SENIORS

HOW WE GOT THIS WAY . . .

It all started in the autumn of 1948, when we came to college as did hundreds of students before us—full of mis-information and misapprehension. Some of us were worldly wise, because we kicked around for a few years in the armed services, but when we lined up behind a bunch of wet-eared adolescents, their feelings of uneasy trepidation and gnawing desires to get the darn thing over with were ours. For three or four hours we were sorry we had ever opened a college catalogue.

But then after a few weeks of classes we found that most of our courses were not as difficult as we thought they were going to be. And we began to view some of our teachers as breathing individuals who occasionally made mistakes. The football games were entertaining and so were the dances. We came timidly to these affairs, always arriving right on time, always saying the right thing and always smiling. We left flamboyance at home.

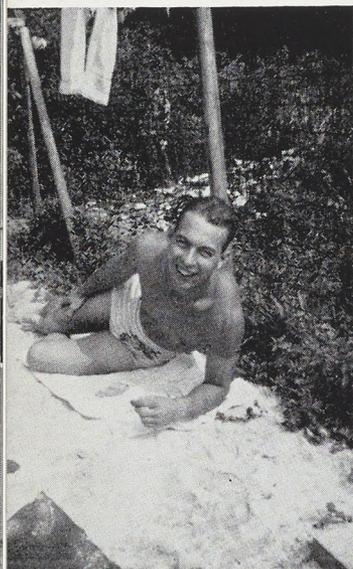

We looked at the football players in our class with relief and gratitude. Their successes on the football field were making things a lot easier for us. Some of us began to pal around with upperclassmen and haltingly call them by their nicknames. We nodded our heads at the faculty as they walked by us in the hall. We weren't quite certain what to say when they greeted us.

And then, after Christmas, time became double time. It was Easter, it was summertime, it was another year. But this time we were in the know. We flaunted our seniority on unsuspecting freshmen and we beat the daylights out of them as the daylights had been beaten out of us by a horde of barbaric sophomores. We were sophomores, we were here to stay, and we were very happy about our secure situation.

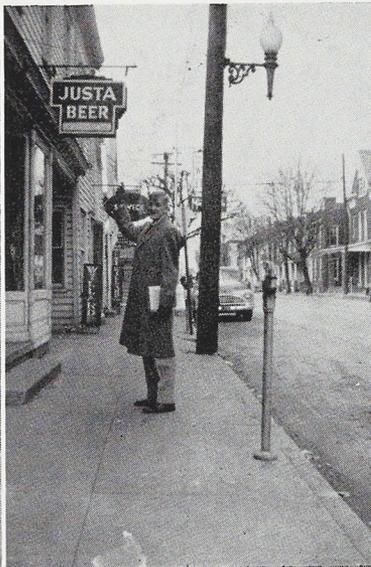

We were epitome of studied casualness; some of us were even battle-weary. We took all the short cuts. We began to stay out late, we completely forgot about some of our eight o'clock classes, and we slid into complacency with no trouble at all. We no longer had delusions of Joe College. We knew better.

And then it was Christmas again. And then it was Easter, summer time, another semester, another semester, and now it's the last semester. And now we are leaving. We're following true to form: we're sophisticated, we want to pack up and leave, change the scenery, travel around and do all the things the other seniors said they were going to do when they were preparing to leave Shippensburg State Teachers College in the heart of Cumberland Valley just above the town.

There are many things we really would like to do right now. But most of us wouldn't want to leave Shippensburg. We like this place. And twenty years from now most of us will be ardently proud, annoying alumni, racing to the campus at the slightest provocation.

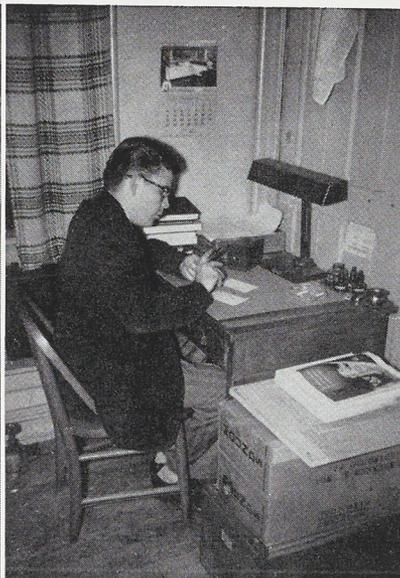

And we will remember the last few weeks of May, 1952 as the saddest, proudest, and most trying days of our lives.

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS

FIRST ROW: H. Runkle, President; S. Youtz, Secretary; R. Lightner, Vice President.
 SECOND ROW: R. Van Zandt, Treasurer; R. Foster, Historian; J. Burger, Parliamentarian.
 THIRD ROW: Miss Noble, and Mr. Reisinger, Advisers.

Senior Class
 Administration

This sententious group of step singers in repose carries the ball for the senior class. They have carried out their assigned tasks with a reasonable amount of efficiency. Most seniors are quite satisfied with them.

Harry Runkle is the President. He is a businessman by choice and by nature. He is efficient and uncompromising, with a bulldog grip and an estimable record. This is his second term of office.

Bob Lightner was the man behind the scenes. Another businessman, he pulled more strings than most people realize. Shirley Youtz was an able recorder. She attended every class meeting. Bob Van Zandt had some headaches as Treasurer, but at this writing we are remarkably solvent.

John Burger, the Parliamentarian, was always on hand to bring order out of chaos. He did not have much to do. Robert Foster was a glib and all-seeing Historian. He did not attend every meeting.

Miss Noble and Mr. Reisinger are in the back row. They have stabilized our machine for four years now, and at the same time they have managed to keep their heads when some of their charges were on the brink of losing theirs. They have kept the faith.

We have appreciated their presence.
