Cumberland '77

Shippensburg State College

GILBERT HALL

This year marks the sixtieth edition of the Cumberland, first requested by the senior class of 1917. Since that first edition, the yearbook has recorded through pictures the people, places, and events which have been part of this campus. To celebrate our anniversary, the 1977 Cumberland has prepared this brief history of Shippensburg State College.

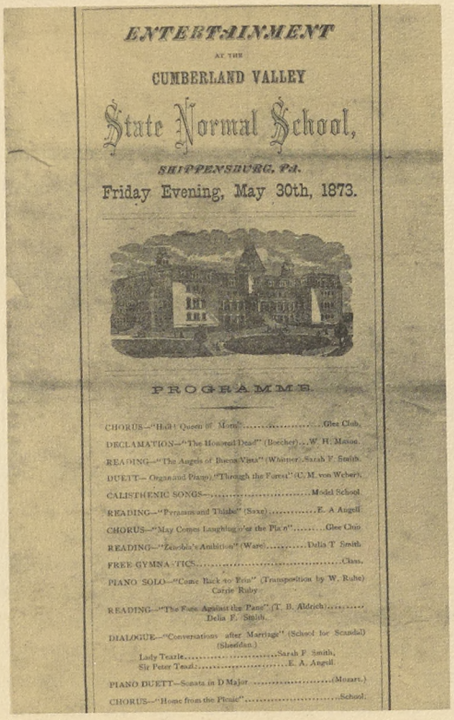

The beginnings of Shippensburg State College date back to the mid-nineteenth century when there was much discussion about establishing teacher training institutions in central Pennsylvania. After several false starts, plans for a normal school in Cumberland County were renewed. In 1857, a committee of directors chose Newville as the location for the new school, which operated successfully until the advent of the Civil War closed it.

Also during this time, events in Harrisburg were leading to the passage of a bill in May, 1857, which divided the state into thirteen districts. According to the Normal School Act, each district was to be the site of a privately owned, state approved institution for the training of teachers.

Following the Civil War, some preliminary attempts were made to locate the normal school for the Seventh District in Newville, but the scene soon turned to Shippensburg. There, in 1857, State Superintendent Wickersham expressed his hope that the school would be located near the place his regiment had camped during the war, and further stated that, "of all the places in this valley, Shippensburg, in many respects is the most desirable."

To finance the Shippensburg project, stock was sold at $25.00 per share. By February 19 the Shippengsburg News was able to report that, "The State Normal School project is progressing finely, indeed so well that its success is now considered beyond all danger."

In the months that followed, the charter of the Cumberland Valley State Normal School was approved, and the first board of trustees was elected. After consideration of seven possible sites, it was decided to build the school on the hill overlooking the town. On September 24, 1870, Samuel Sloan was employed as architect for the building, but was replaced the following spring by the firm of Haigh and Gregg.

On May 31, 1870, the town celebrated the laying of the cornerstone. The Shippensburg News described the occasion this way: "Not since the time that Jubal Early, with his thirty thousand followers, passed through this place, eight years ago, carrying death before him and leaving destruction in his wake, has Shippensburg presented such an animated appearance as on Wednesday last. The occasion of it was the laying of the cornerstone of the Cumberland Valley State Normal School. Invited guests from all parts of the State were here in large numbers."

The ceremony was performed by the Grand Lodge of Free Masonry, with Grand Master Robert S. Lamberton doing the honors. The cornerstone, a block of Pennsylvania marble, contained within it a copy of the charter, papers of the borough, county and state, the Holy Bible, coins of 1871, the School Laws of Pennsylvania, program and papers of the day's exercises, copies of the addresses given, names of trustees and stockholders, and a copy of the Masonic register of the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania for 1871. This cornerstone, bearing the simple inscription, "May 31, 1871," is still in place on the southeast corner of Old Main.

Then the search for a principal and faculty began. Final choice for the first principal was George P. Beard, orginally from New Hampshire. Formerly the principal of a Normal school in Missouri, Beard helped in the selection of the first faculty.

State Superintendent Wickersham returned to Shippensburg early in 1873 to officially approve the institution for the state. On April 15, 1873, the building was dedicated, the inaugural ceremonies marking, "an important epoch in the history of the Cumberland Valley." Also on this day, 217 students entered the Cumberland Valley State Normal School as its first class.

In just a few years, the Franklin Repository was able to report,

"The Normal School thus far has been a success. Its catalogue shows a total of 314 students in the Normal and Model Departments. The course of instruction is comprehensive and well adapted to secure the objects of the school. That of the Model School from the Primary up to the Grammar classes, is fully up to the latest improved standards of elementary teaching. The instructors, so far as we can learn, rank high in the profession. The Principal is known as a true gentlemen, a good disciplinarian, and an enthusiastic teacher. With all these elements of success, we trust that this institution will accomplish fully as much as can be expected of one of its kind."

In spite of such early hopes, the first years were marked by financial difficulties and by student's protests of a poor supply of food. Principal Beard, faced with an investigation of expenditures, resigned. His successor, Reverend Isaac N. Hays, renewed community interest in the school and appealed to the citizens for financial support and increased enrollment.

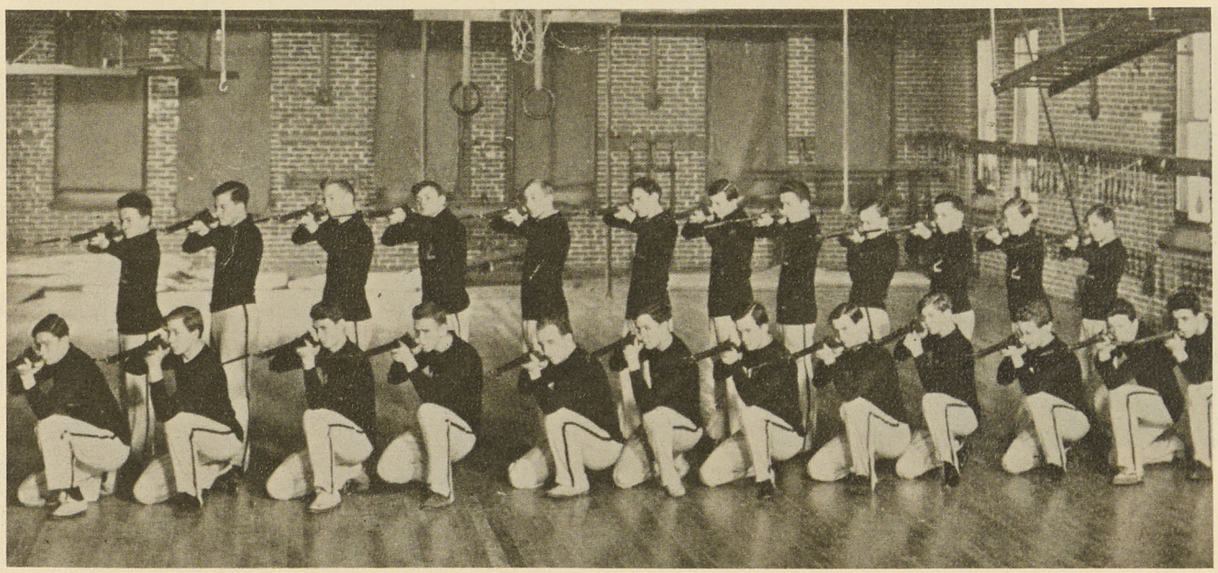

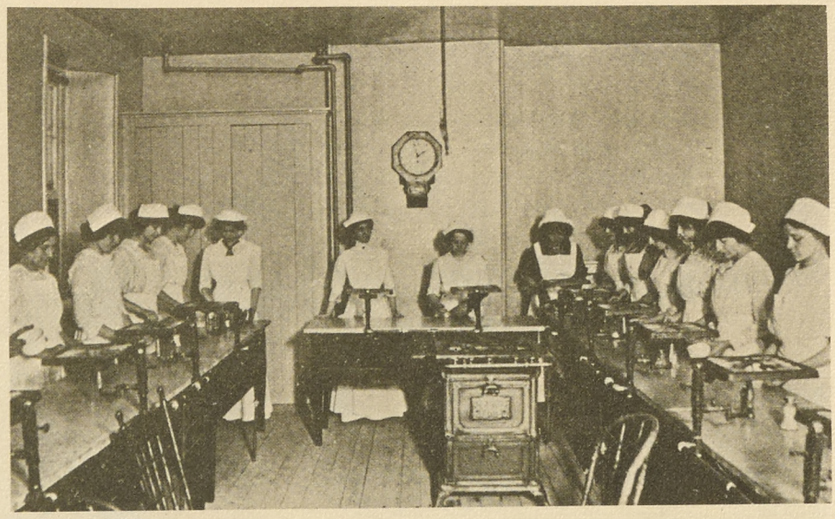

Promotional bulletins issued by the school often included the following: "The school is located ... in ... one of the most beautiful and fertile valleys of the State, justly celebrated for its healthy, invigorating atmosphere and freedom from malaria." Other attracting features of the school included its proximity to the Cumberland Valley Railroad and the "Normal Station" where passenger trains stopped when heavy baggage was carried. For those who chose to attend for the full term, board and tuition amounted to $5.00 per week.

During the following years more financial problems affected the school. Enrollment dropped to a low of ninety-nine at the opening of school in 1789, while faculty salaries were reduced to help meet financial demands. Once again, State Superintendent Wickersham spoke encouragingly about the future of the school and urged the town to continue its support.

In July 1882, S. B. Heiges of York was elected as principal and set about to tackle the problems of the school. He served faithfully in this capacity for four years until he refused re-election in 1886, at which time a faculty member, John F. McCreary, succeeded him.

The college's financial problems contined unabaited, and for some time the continuance of the school was questionable. Probably the most difficult situation occurred in 1887, when a sheriff's sale was necessary to meet expenditures. Fortunately however, many of the articles were purchased anonymously and left for the benefit of the school.

Under the later principalship of George Mifflin Dallas Eckels, enrollment increased as did the teaching force. Eckels also appealed to the alumni for their support, thereby creating a pride in the Normal School as alma mater. Principal Eckels died February 14, 1907.

The year 1907 also saw plans being made in Harrisburg for the state ownership of the normal schools. A school code adopted in 1911 included the provisions for the purchase of the normal schools.

However, before these plans were realized, Principal Samuel S. Martin, who had succeeded Eckels, resigned. Filling the vacancy was Dr. Ezra Lehman, who saw state ownership as protection in the face of social and financial change.

Finally, the sale of the Cumberland Valley State Normal School to the State Council of Education was effected in 1917.

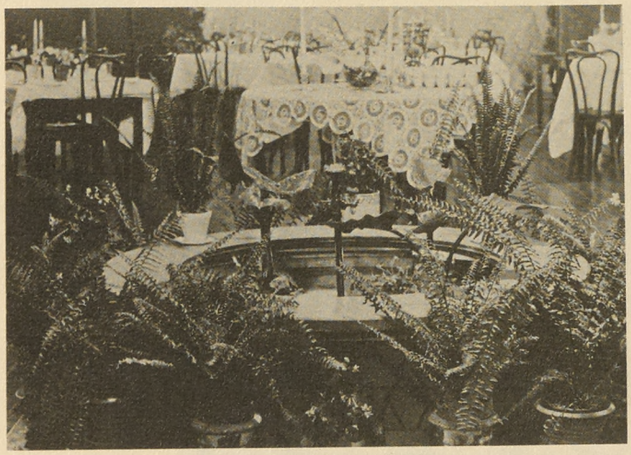

A subsequent event in the history of the school was the United States entry into World War I. Several acres of the campus were set aside as a garden in preparation for the canning and drying of various fruits and vegetables. Plans were also laid for a training camp at the school, though the war ended before these plans materialized.

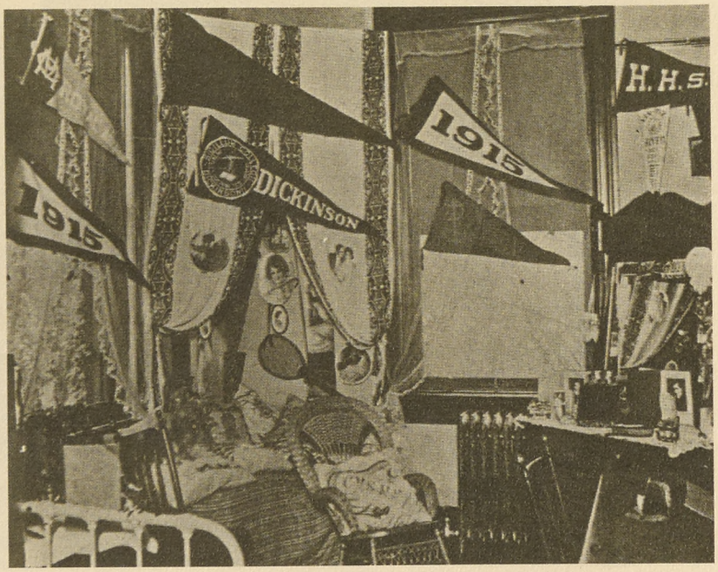

Thereafter, the school enrollment increased to record numbers necessitating students to board off campus, a situation previously forbidden. In 1922, the enrollment reached 850, making Cumberland Valley the second largest of the state normal schools.

Further changes occurred in 1926, when the college became the first normal school to obtain a charter as a state teachers college. However, the official name, Shippensburg State Teachers College, was not used until the end of the 1927 summer session.

Upon the death of Dr. Lehman, in 1931, Dr. Jesse S. Heiges was appointed acting president until Dr. Albert Lindsay Rowland accepted the presidency. The Depression forced Dr. Rowland to curtail activities of the college. By 1934, enrollment had dropped to 373 students, though the college managed to survive.

In 1938, Shippensburg sought and received membership in the Middle States Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges, becoming the fourth teachers college to be approved by the association.

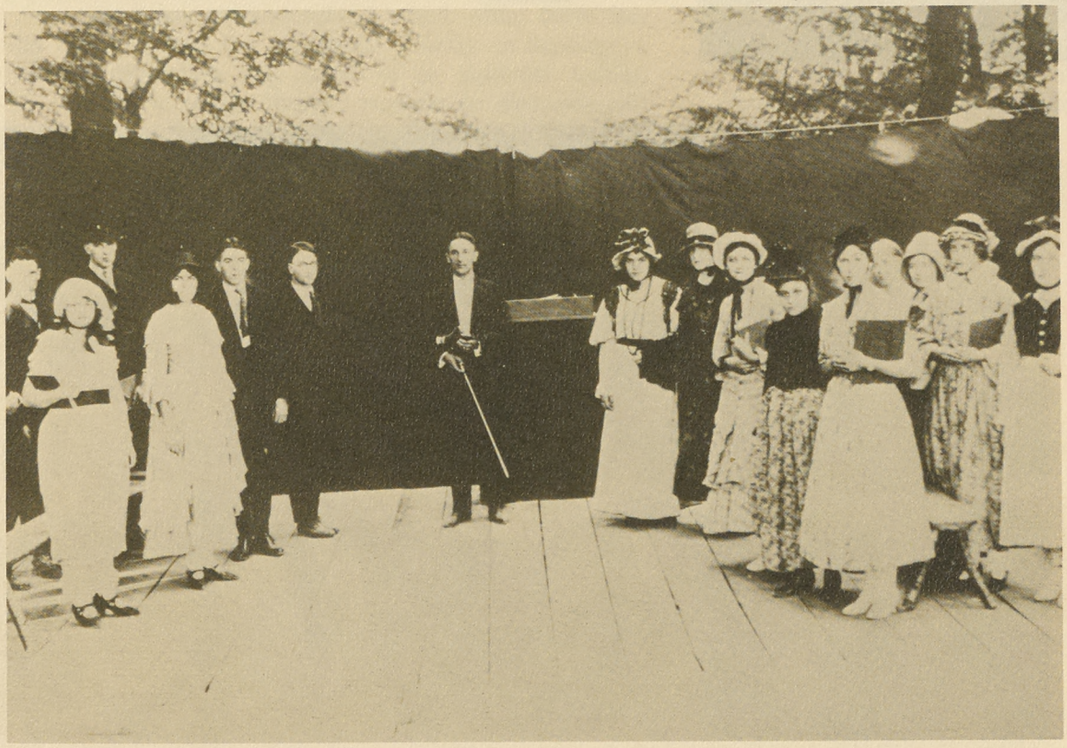

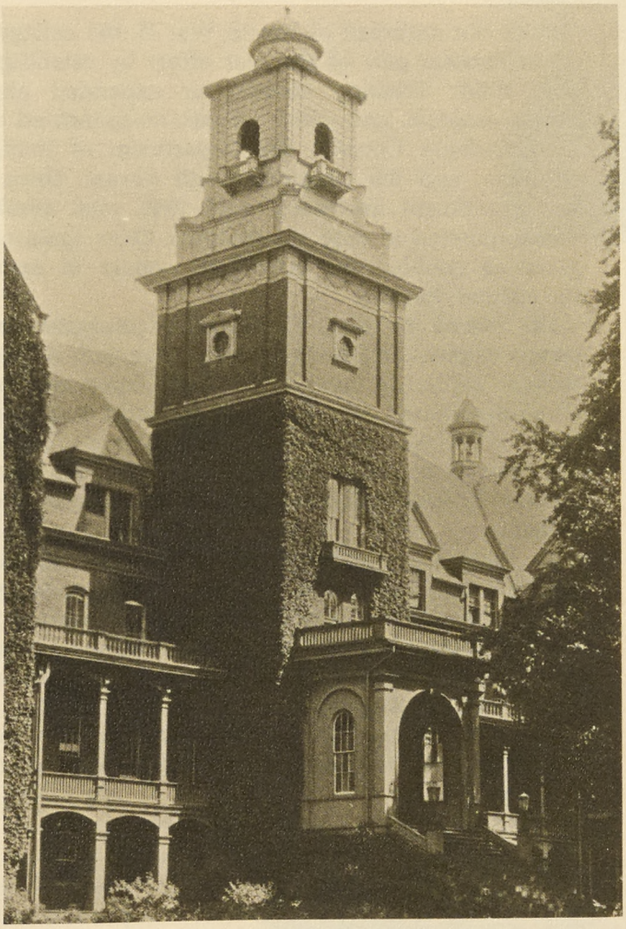

With the outbreak of World War II, the college once again became part of the war effort by establishing a Civil Pilot Training course, an expanded physical fitness program, and youth forums, co-sponsored by the State Defense Council, the Department of Public Instruction, and the National Youth Forum. During the war enrollment decreased, until 1943, total enrollment was numbered at only 165 students. Once again careful planning enabled the school to remain in operation throughout the war.

On March 5, 1945, Dr. Rowland resigned, having served as president during many of the dark days of the college. Replacing him was Dr. Levi Gilbert, an alumnus of Shippensburg, who was subsequently succeeded by Dr. Harry L. Kriner in 1948. Under Kriner's leadership, the college continued to recover from the war and expand until in 1955 enrollment reached a record of 912 students.

Dr. Ralph E. Heiges was next named president in 1956. Of the many changes which occured during his tenure, perhaps the most noticable was the vast increase in the physical expansion of the college. Additionally, enrollment increased to the point where all senior students had to live off campus.

In 1969, the Board of Trustees elected our current President, Dr. Gilmore B. Seavers, to succeed Dr. Heighes.

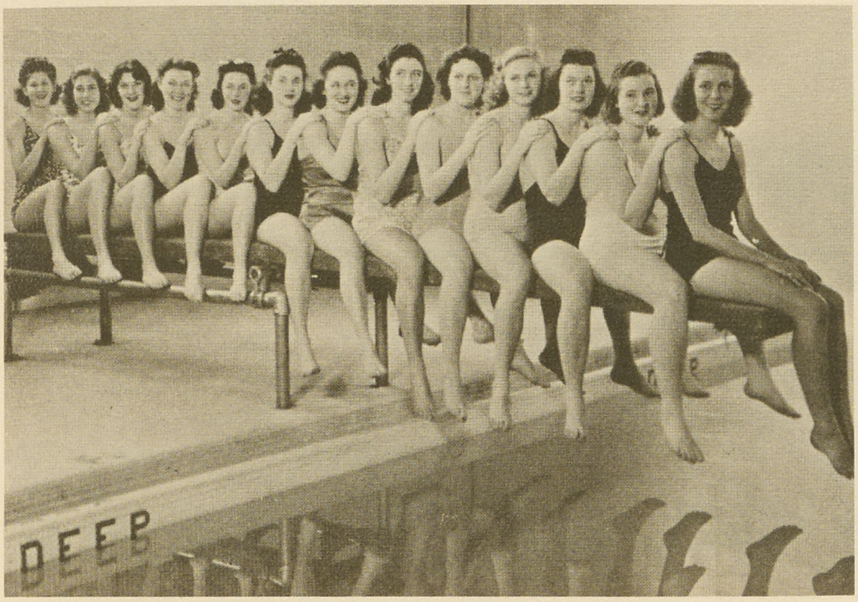

The student history of Shippensburg State College has been as varied and colorful as the college itself. The early years of the school witnessed few admission requirements, and was co-educational from its opening.

The first students at the Cumberland Valley State Normal School were carefully guided by the school as can be seen by some of the rules printed in the Catalogue for 1898-1899:

1. Students must be regular and prompt in their attendance upon classes unless detained by sickness or absence from the school.
2. Students will rise at 6:00 a.m. and retire at 10:00 p.m.
3. Day students will be required to bring a note from parent of guardian, giving the reason for the pupil's absence.
4. Day students will not call at the rooms of boarders, nor stop in their rooms over night, unless by permission of the Principal. Boarding students will be held responsible to the Principal for the observance of this rule.
5. Boarding students will not be permitted to visit in town on Sunday, nor remain in town over night, except with near relatives.
6. Lady students will not permitted to leave campus unless by permission of the Principal or a member of the faculty.
7. Ladies and gentlemen will not be permitted to hold prolonged conversations with one another, either in the building or upon the grounds, unless in connection with school duties, and then only by permission of the Principal or a member of the faculty.

The few extra-curricular activities which existed were mostly those of a literary nature. On April 23, 1873, the faculty and students organized the first society at the school, the Wickersham Society. However, the name was later changed to the Normal Literary Society. The Lafayette Society, which consisted of all males, was also organized, but was found to have no constitution or by-laws. After an attempted merger with the Normal Society, several broke off to form the Philomathean Literary Society, or "Philo" as it came to be known. This group allowed ladies to become a part of the organization.

Both societies were active parts of student life and often vied with one another for the memberships of uncommitted students. So intense did this rivalry become, that fights often occurred, which often drew faculty members into the arguments. Finally, in September 1932, an ultimatum was issued to the students, calling for a return to purely literary pursuits or disbandment, an ultimatum which resulted in disbandment after some fifty eight years of existence.

Student government was discouraged by the faculty and administration of the ground that self-government by each individual should prevail. But, in 1918, student government was initiated by the boarding women when they created a council, complete with constitution and by-laws. As the success of this move became apparent, the boarding men created a similar council, thus firmly establishing the right of student government.

The 1930's saw the establishment of a President's Council and a Student Cooperative Association as further evidence of the growing spirit of student government. During the 1960's, President Heiges saw the need for a more democratic student government, and in 1962, the Constitution and By-Laws of the Student Association were approved and ratified by the Board of Trustees. With the Senate as its executive body, the Student Association has continued until today as the governing body of the college community.

Prior to the 1917, the only significant student organization aside from sporadic glee clubs and bands was the Press Club, a group whose purpose it was to inform the families back home of college activities.

The first permanent organization of a publication was in 1917, with the publication of the college yearbook. First titled the Cumberland, the yearbook has been published every year since then, always under the same title.

The first campus newspaper, the Campus Reflector, had its debut on February 9, 1923, the first weekly newspaper published by a state normal school in Pennsylvania. The publication won several awards as a newspaper, and in 1948 became a literary publication in magazine form which won first place honors by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association for five consecutive years. The magazine is currently published on a yearly basis.

In 1957, a newspaper was again published by the students. Issued on a weekly basis, the Slate has continued as the college newspaper.

Extra-curricular life was also evidence in clubs, honorary fraternities, and social fraternities and sororities. With such a wide variety of activities available, it is presently possible for every one on campus to pursue individual interests.

Looking back on the history of Shippensburg State College — its development, its academic program, and its opportunities for personal student development — one cannot help but be impressed with its many accomplishments. From the Cumberland Valley State Normal School, housed in one building, to the present complex of buildings constituting SSC, the institution has come a long way. On fact remains however, that of its purpose. For over one hundred years the colleg has been serving the goals of higher education, with continued hope for meeting future needs here at SSC.

The Cumberland staff wishes to express our gratitude to the many people who made this special anniversary issue possible. First, we wish to thank Dr. John E. Hubley, Vice-President for Student Personnel, for his excellent history, Hilltop Heritage, from which much of this information was taken. Also, Ms. Judith Diehl of the library faculty, who opened the college archives and helped us locate much of the orginial material and photographs used throughout the book.

We also appreciate the work of Mr. Michael Yoh of Academic Services for reprinting many of the photographs appearing here and on the divider pages. Our appreciation also goes to Ms. Julie Benton, our staff photographer, who photographed many of the scenes we wished to include in this section. Special thanks go to Dr. Harry Bentz, Chairperson of the Art Department, for the artwork and lettering appearing on the cover and the divider pages, as well as in this section, all of which helped tie our theme together.

Thanks also to Mr. O. Richard Forsythe of the English Department as our advisor. And, to our publisher's representative, Mr. Michael Gilroy, special thanks for all his advice and patience during the preparation of this anniversary edition.

Administration & Faculty

SHIPPENSBURG STATE COLLEGE

SHIPPENSBURG, PENNSYLVANIA 17257

THE PRESIDENT

CONGRATULATIONS to the Class of 1977!

This issue of the CUMBERLAND will record the dynamic growth and change that has taken place at Shippensburg State College during your years as an undergraduate student.

In the course of its 106 year history, Shippensburg has responded to the changing needs and demands of the citizens of our Commonwealth. As a result there has been unprecedented expansion of enrollments, facilities, programs, and services.

Today Shippensburg offers an impressive range of undergraduate and graduate programs to over 6000 students in the arts and sciences, business administration, and teacher education. Providing excellent instruction in all areas is a strong, diverse faculty recruited nationwide. We are developing also an expanding program of community service. This commitment to community service increased significantly over the past several years through the growth of the continuing education program, through services provided by newly-established centers, through the college's role as a cultural and educational center for the citizens of our Commonwealth, and through the personal commitment and services of faculty and students.

Perhaps the most visible signs of growth and change have been in our physical facilities. The extensive building program of the 1960's and early 1970's, during which time 14 new buildings were constructed, is over, however. The recent occupancy of the Seavers Apartments and the Etter Health Center mark the end of major new construction for the immediate future. Instead of constructing new facilities, existing buildings, such as Old Main, will be extensively renovated.

Shippensburg will continue to grow and change, though not as dramatically as in the past. It will strive for academic excellence and quality education as it continues to mature into a college providing the best in public higher education for the youth and adults of our Commonwealth.

I am proud that you chose Shippensburg as your College. We look forward to sharing in the pride of your successes as an alumnus.

Sincerely,

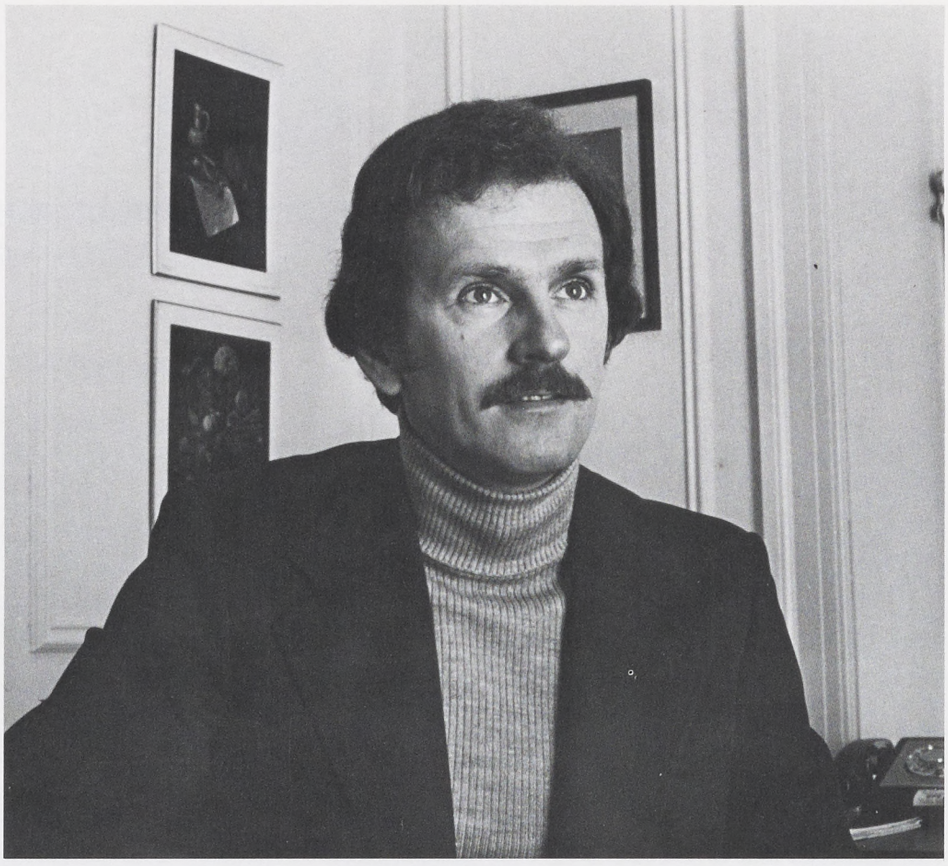

G. B. Seavers

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

February 8, 1977

To the Shippensburg State College Band

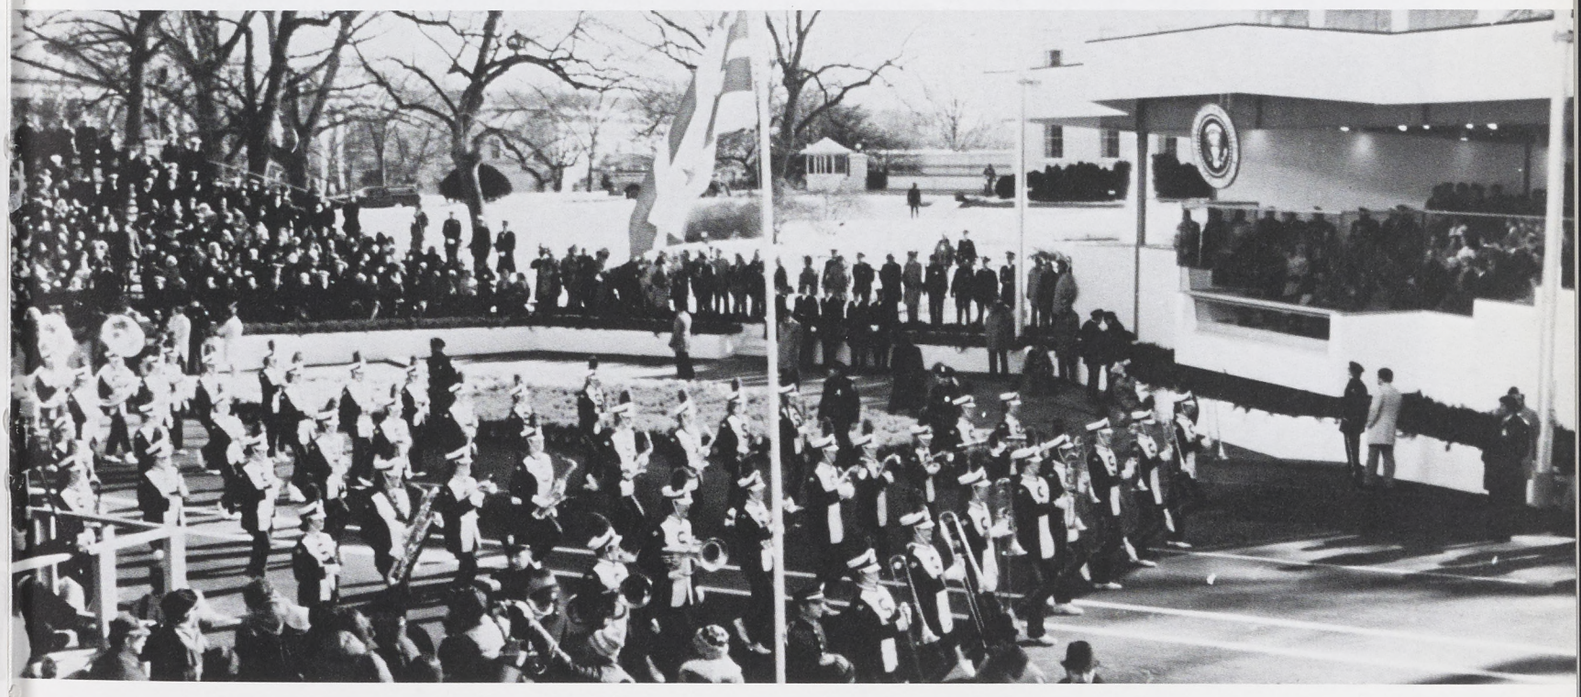

I deeply appreciate your excellent participation in the 1977 inaugural parade. Your appearance helped make one of the finest parades ever, shared by hundreds of thousands in person and millions more by television.

You have helped to set an example of what we Americans can accomplish by sharing our talents and energies with each other. Many thanks.

Sincerely,

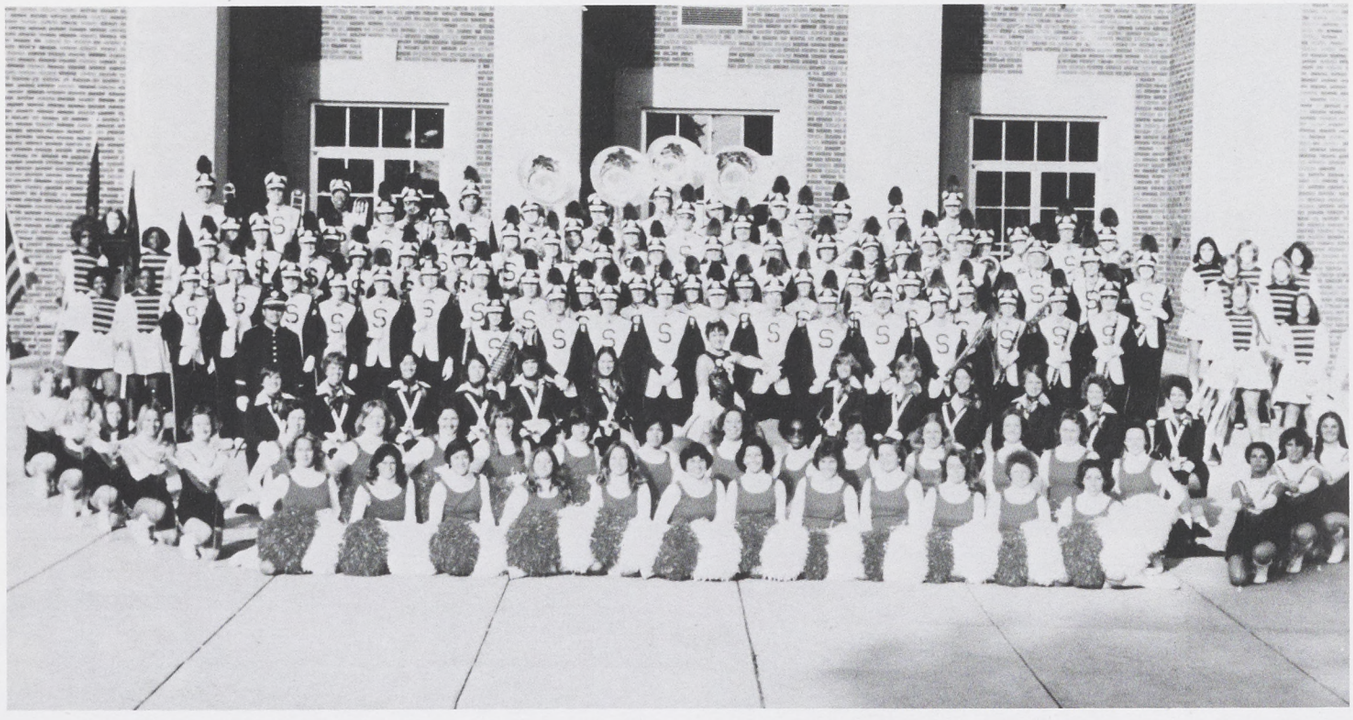

Jimmy Carter
