Record enrollment at Today's Ship

A yearbook represents a collection of memories from the student's life at college.

The Cumberland selected the theme of "Today's Shippensburg" to express the changes in the town and campus and how these changes affected the student.

Shippensburg reported the highest enrollment of freshmen in years. Some freshmen found themselves meeting two roommates in their room instead of one.

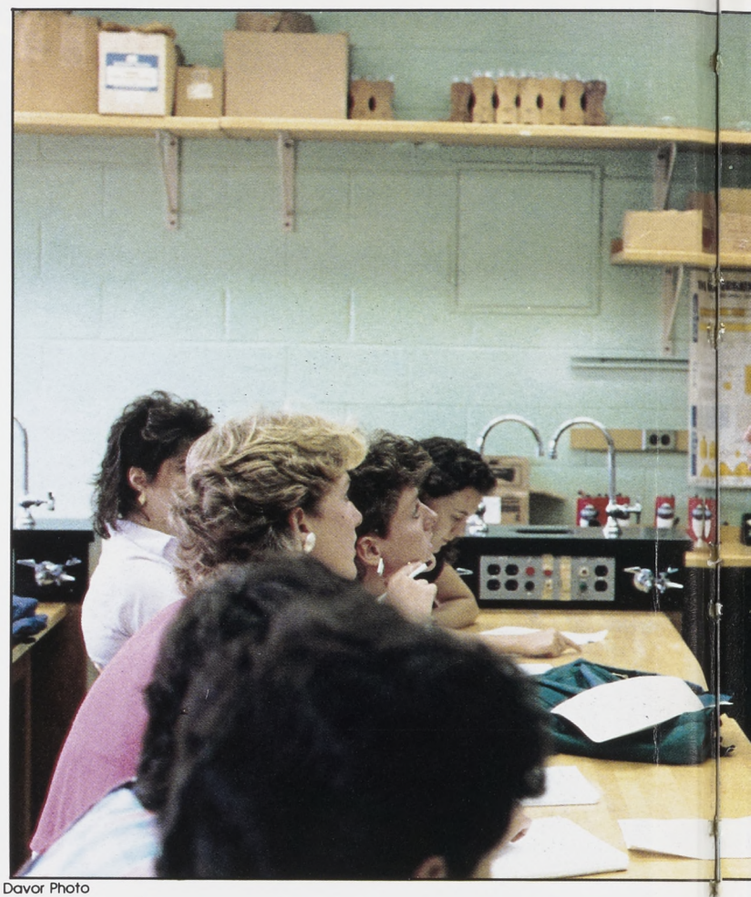

"Today's Shippensburg" reflects the policies that began this year, the fear of the faculty strike that never happened and the new beginning for the student.

That was "Today's Shippensburg."

Today's Shippensburg — The old and the new

Today's Shippensburg underwent some changes this past year. It began with the rededication of Old Main.

The administrative offices of the college moved back into the newly opened Old Main and the new chapel held its first wedding in November.

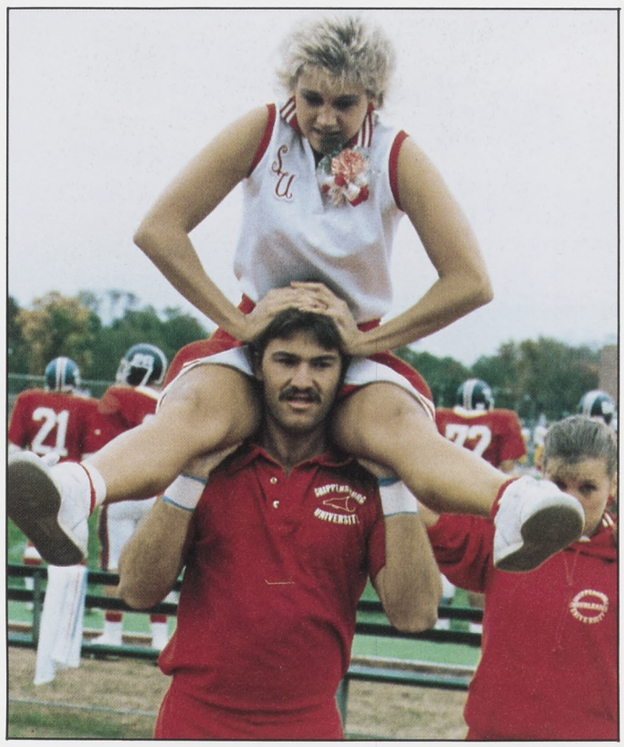

Old Main was not the only building to have changes. Many other buildings received special attention. Shippen and Shearer got facelifts as Horton is next in line. The west residence halls received more energy efficient windows. Visible at the football games was the new bright red all weather track.

Kriner and Reisner Dining Halls were under new management this year and students were given the option to eat in either or use their meal card to eat in the CUB or Century Room.

The Slate added a new look to the school paper with a newly purchased computer that helps accuracy and efficiency of printing.

Revitalization of Shippensburg

"Working together to Rebuild a Dream" is Shippensburg's goal under Main Street manager, Lynn Little. The community had now entered into its third year of a Commonwealth-sponsored program aimed to aid the revitalization and historical preservation of the downtown areas of Pennsylvania's small towns.

Through a combination of state grants, block grants, matching requirement funds, a local loan pool, and an Enterprise Zone Grant, close to half a million dollars have been earmarked toward the improvement of the town's economic development. All of this has taken on such forms as new facades for business owners and major street, sidewalk and curb reconstruction.

Bruce Hockersmith, Borough Council president, sums up the town's great strides toward advancement as "Shippensburg is no longer crawling or walking. We are beginning to run."

An aspect that was detailed by Lloyd A. Trinklein, director of grants and federal relations on campus, was given in an oral presentation to Phi Beta Lambda, in which a donated building, like the former Valley Banking Company Building, was divided into smaller sections to be rented out at a low cost to individual retailers. It is hoped that thses businesses will create an incubator system, becoming successful and stay in the Shippensburg area.

Other recent developments included a "Crier" board to post campus and area events and the publication of the Uptowner newsletter, a monthly newsletter featuring a series of events and activities for both the campus and the community.

Today's Shippensburg is much more than just the removing of the old railroad tracks that cut through town. It is attracting new businesses and relocating old ones to more accessible locations. Today's Shippensburg is creating jobs.

Time spent

On our own

The life of the college student has changed in the past few years. The changes of today reflect some of the trends from the past and probably a few from the future.

A student's life at college was hectic the first few days in each semester but the student found ways to relax and allowed the tension seep from their body.

The time spent at college held many special memories for the student. He would remember arriving on campus as a freshmen, renting an apartment as a senior and meeting new friends either in classes or at social events throughout his college years. This was the student's life at college.

After summer vacation came

The first days back

As freshmen and returning students the first few days back were hectic and busy. Freshmen students had to learn to adjust to a new environment and new people. The upperclass students had to move all their possessions into their rooms or apartments before going to find the friends they had made in the previous years.

One of first activities for students was to get their I.D. validated and to pick up their meal cards.

The Orientation team had special activities for the new students on campus. Included in those activities were contact group meetings, scavenger hunt and special entertainment during the evening.

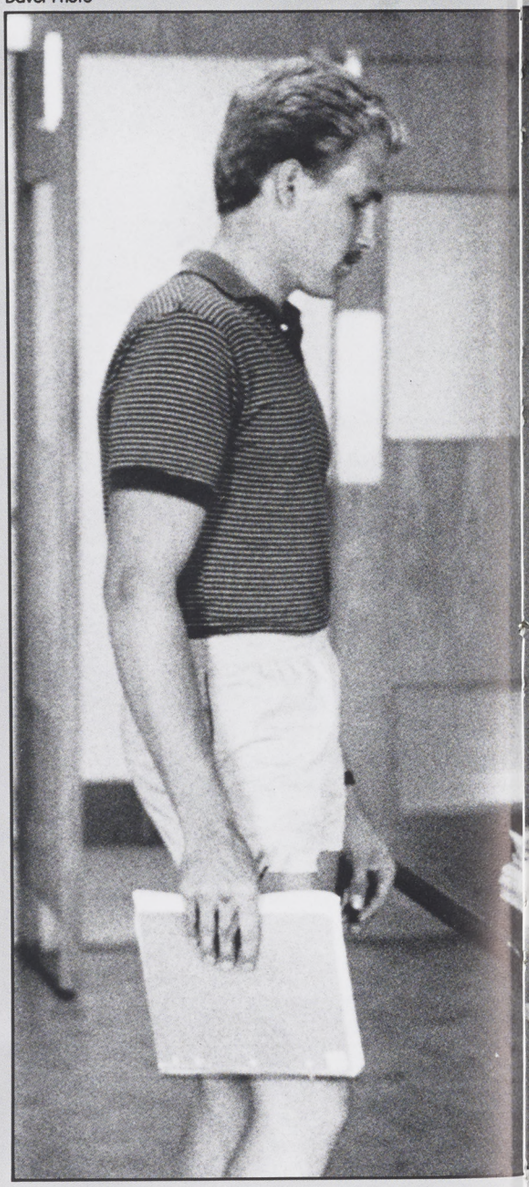

The first "University Activities Fair" was held behind the CUB. The fair featured represntatives from clubs and organizations on campus that students could get involved in . To compliment the fair, a summer style picnic was available for all students.

The emotion and feelings of students the first days were of excitement and anxiety. The thought of meeting new people caused excitement but the thought of getting lost or being absent from a class list caused some students anxiety.

With the beginning of the new semester came the long lines in front of the bookstore. Students had to wait for long periods of time to get in the store only to juggle books waiting in the check-out line.

After the first few days, students became adjusted and fell back into the college life routine.

Moving into a new 'home' for

Another semester

After the tiring chore of packing up the car, students make it to their destination, college. For some this was their first moving-in day, for others it was just another part of the process of coming back to school.

As returning students started to unpack their cars, they thought back to their first year when the orientation team members helped to carry luggage, stereos and televisions. Moving to the third floor didn't seem so bad then.

Once all their possessions were put in the room and mom and dad had left, it was time for roommates to rearrange the room just how they wanted it. One weary student claimed, "Can we just wait til tomorrow?"

Some rooms were put off for a week while students went to locate friends and caught up on the events of the past summer.

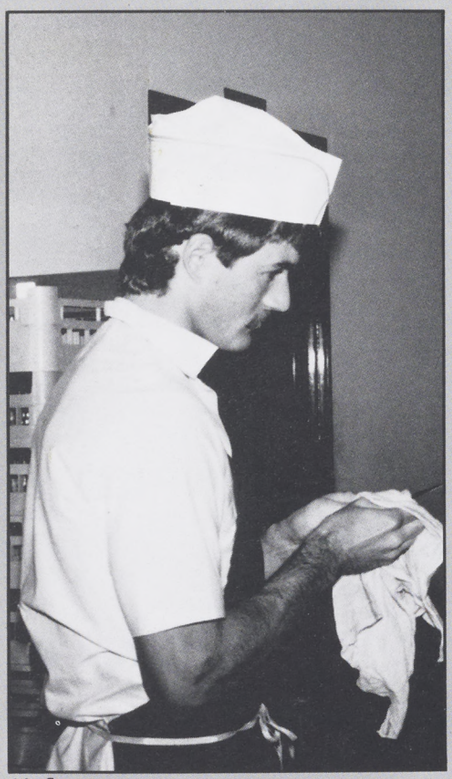

No matter how long it took students to move into their rooms or apartments, they still had months in which they would accumulate ten times as much as they originally brought.

Working to cover

College expenses

Waitressing tables, operating a cash register, and delivering pizzas may not be glamorous jobs, but for many students part-time jobs such as these were the only way. These jobs helped to earn that extra spending money needed to pay some minor expenses or even to finance their entire college education.

There were many on-campus jobs available to students; however, the financial aid office determined job placement and the number of hours that could be worked. These were judged by the student's financial need. As a result, some students worked as little as four hours a week, whereas students with off-campus jobs worked almost 40 hours a week.

Students worked on campus as student secretaries, dining hall workers, library aides or resident and desk assistants.

There was a larger variety of jobs available to students seeking work off-campus. At one time or another, students have all depended on the services of the employees of the local eating establishments.

Other business of which the students are both patrons and employees are the local drugstores and grocery stores, health clubs and the stores located in the Shippensburg Shopping Center and the Chambersburg Mall.

Regardless of whether the student worked in an office or a restaurant, walked from campus or drove 20 minutes, the objective was still the same - to earn money!

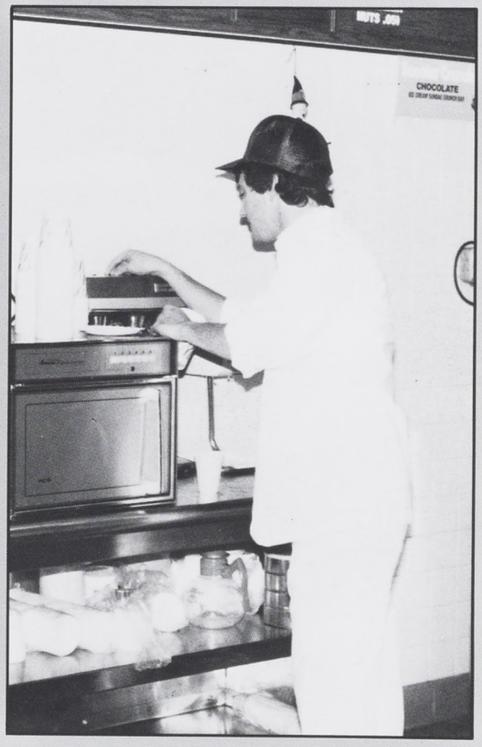

Although sometimes a part-time job cut into a student's life and study time, most working students felt the time invested was worth it. They learned valuable lessons in getting along with others, how to better budget their time and make a lot of friends on the job while gaining experience.

Homecoming week

The Red Raiders proudly displayed their homecoming spirit in 1985! "Ship for Sure" was in everyone's hearts as they participated in a week filled with excitement.

The week began with a candid camera slideshow presentation. The presentation focused on the events and the lively faces in the crowds. That same evening the Gam-Bel-Fling Casino Night was sponsored by Pi Lambda Phi.

John Fry

The homecoming queen elections were held and the entertainment reached as far as the pool in Heiges Field House. Swimmers in the pool had the priviledge of experiencing a dive-in movie. The movie, appropriate enough, was "Jaws."

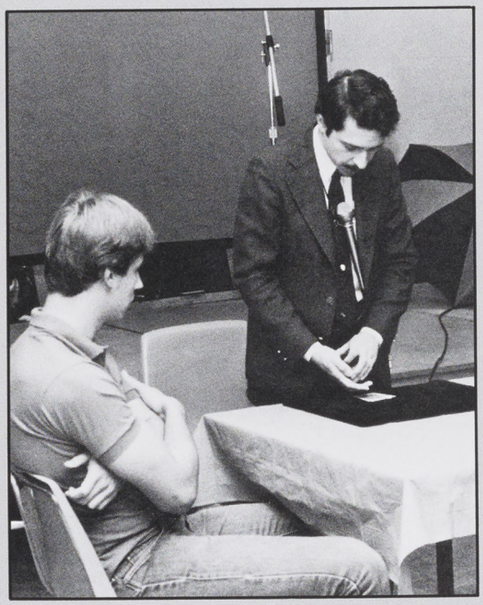

Shananigans was not to be outdone. They featured a red and blue night for students to show their spirit. Also featured was a cheer competition.

T.G.I.F. finally arrived, but many would admit that the week had flown by. The judging of the hall decorating began. Wright, Kieffer and Harley were honored to be chosen top three.

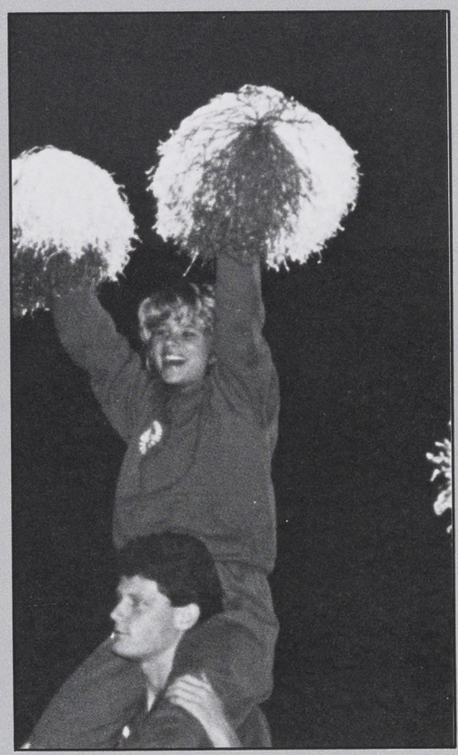

The annual pep rally and bon fire was held after dark. The freshmen class provided a cider pour to inspire the cheer competition where Wright Hall took first place. The evening ended with a beautiful fireworks fantasy.

The week was over but homecoming day had yet to arrive. The results of the football game and homecoming queen were still to come. One thing was for sure, the week had been done in style.

Excitement all day long

Homecoming 1985 started early Saturday with the 6th Annual ROTC 10,000 Meter classic.

Next on the agenda was the Homecoming Parade featuring floats, vehicles and walking units. The parade was one of the largest which represented the spirit of the students. The winners of the float competition was the Lambda Chi Alpha and Theta Kappa combined float of a ship sailing to shore.

In the hall decorating competition, Wright hall took the honors with Harley and Kieffer right behind.

As spectators prepared for the football game against the Millersville Marauders, the residents of College Park opened their doors and taps to the alumni.

The attendence at the game was the largest it had been in the past few years. Featured in the halftime activities was the crowning of the 1985 Homecoming Queen. Kathy Miner was crowned queen by Deborah Allen Faye, the 1984 Homecoming Queen. All that support couldn't help the disappointment of losing the game 30-8 to the Millersville Marauders.

The day was eventful for both students and alumni with the night time activities only a few minutes away!

Living in the dorms

"Freedom at last," is a common thought expressed by many students - no more parents, housework or curfews, only fun and friends at college.

As students finally got through the dreaded task of moving into their new home, which is only a little cubicle in a dorm, they started to realize the truth of the opening statement.

Students met with their roommate or mates, who they soon discovered would be a friend they learned to depend on for almost anything. Remember the, "Hey, can you do me a BIG favor? Will you put my clothes in the washer for me? Gotta go, I'm late to class."

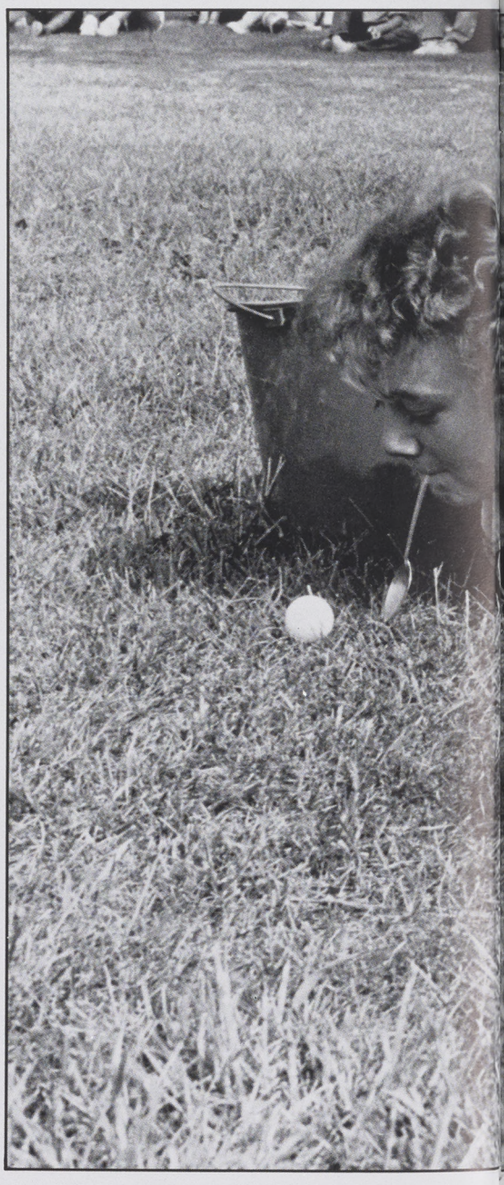

Roommates learned to share and live peacefully in their room. Of course they made the room more livable by covering the walls with rock, beer or fun posters and pictures. With curtains and a few finishing touches, they had their own paradise.

Once they were well acquainted, they ventured down the hall where they met more friendly people. These neighbors also proved to be long time friends. After many long nights of pillow fights, popcorn and rap sessions, students often felt that they had known these rowdy people all their life.

With the support of their new found friends, students made it through the quiet hours, mid-terms, term papers and finals in one piece. Some students commented, "Just to have someone pull an all-nighter with you, helped keep your sanity."

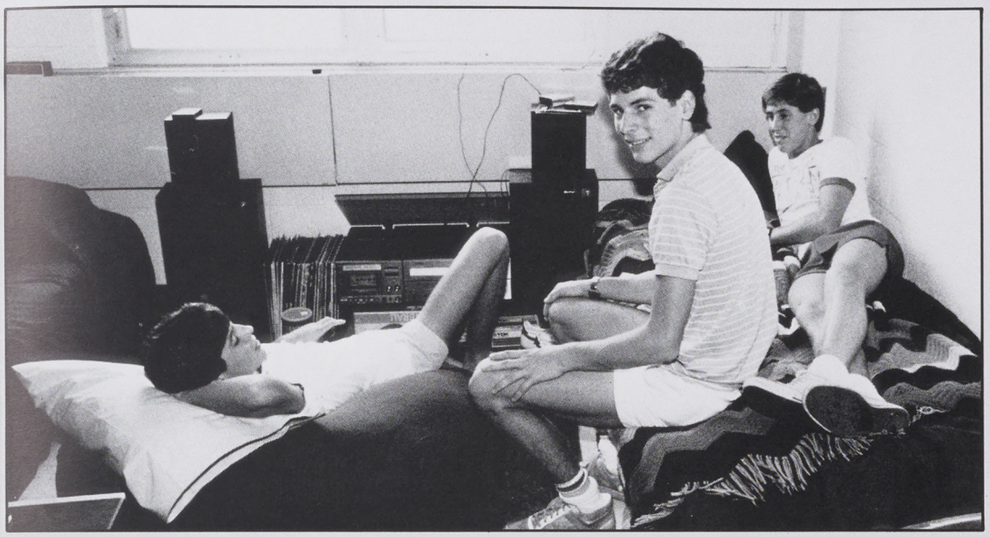

Living in the dorms had its advantages. Students only had to walk across or even down the hall to borrow a typewriter or book, sometimes even clothes. Everything a student needed was close by, especially the vending machines. Dorm life is an experience students don't ever forget.

Living off campus brings

Added responsibility

There are many places for those students who wish to move off campus to experience life on their own. The amount of space, distance to campus and cost are all involved in the complex selection process.

Students experienced excitement and anticipation in making the new transition. No longer were the residence assistants, quiet hours, evening announcements and community bathrooms going to be a factor in their college lifestyles.

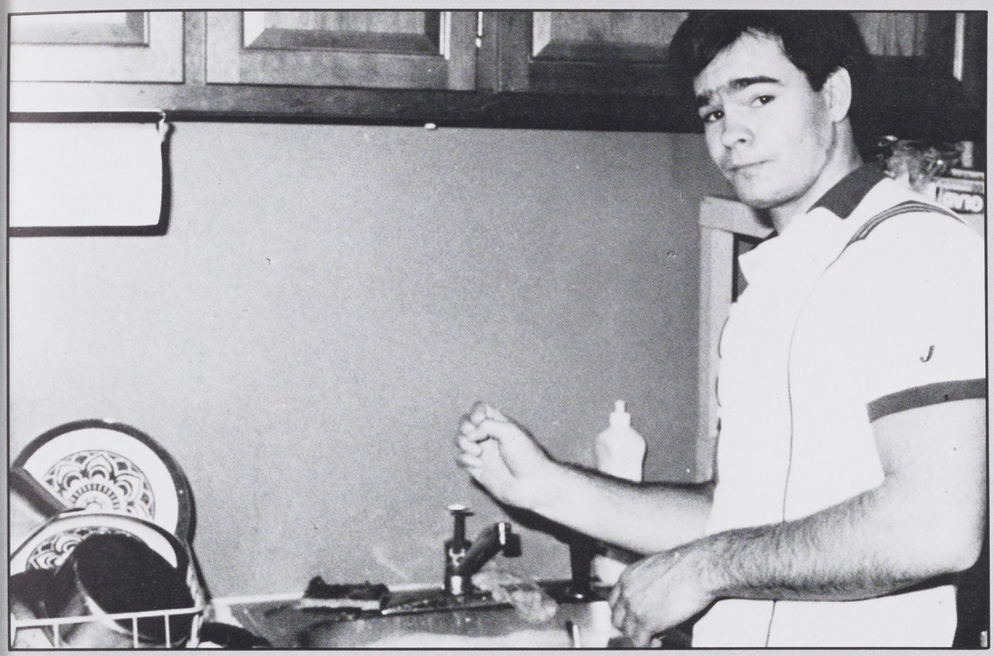

However, they encountered having to pay monthly bills, cooperating with their neighbors and having more household responsibilities. Besides these new duties came more freedom than they had in the dorm.

Although grades may have changed and money funds were depleated, most students considered their time off campus as a positive growing experience and more compatible than the dorms.

A variety of dances includes

'The pub in the CUB'

Good old fashioned dances were few and far between here. This past year the dance season began early with the Halloween dance at Kriner Hall. Sponsored by the Residence Hall Association, they encouraged the students to come in costume.

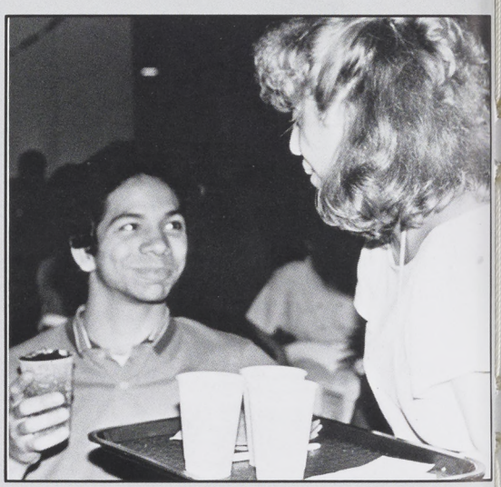

Students also looked forward to the Junior-Senior Formal tradionally held in the spring. The formal was held at the Harrisburg Marriot with live entertainment provided. It was a time to kick off your heels and relax. Everyone enjoyed a night away from the pressures of school.

For those students who wanted to dance more often, Shananigans was the "pub" to hit. Shananigans, the "pub in the CUB" offered a relaxing and enjoyable atmosphere. Music was provided year-round by D.J.'s and local bands. After dancing the night away, students could order their favorite mocktail from the bar via waiter/waitressing service. Shananigans also offered such variety as comedians Still and Max and Scott Jones during the fall semester.

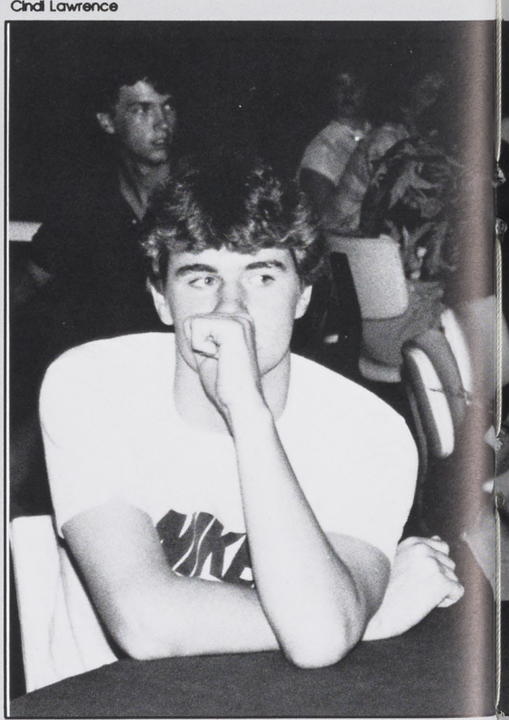

Shananigans was formed by several graduate counselors to provide an alternative to drinking. Mocktails are served as part of the responsible drinking campaign that Shananigans promotes. To let the students become involved, the grads turned it over to a student committee.

Shananigans rocked the CUB lounges every Wednesday night and first Saturday of each month. Shananigans has provided students with a great place to socialize and meet new people.

Today's fashions are both

Old and new

The fashions and fads were once again as unique and different as those in year's past, but today, students have a style all their own. The styles reflected anything from jeans to shoes to hair styles.

The typical student who was fad and fashion conscious looked something similar to the following discription. The female student would be wearing a paisley printed blouse with it buttoned all the way to the top and the collar up. The blouse would be either tucked in or left hanging loose over a pair of printed cropped jeans. The print on the jeans would be flowers or multi-colored designs. The jeans fall just slightly above the ankles and the matching designer socks fit snugly into the pair of leather flats. The female student's hair resembled the "Madonna" cut or something similar with clips and scarves.

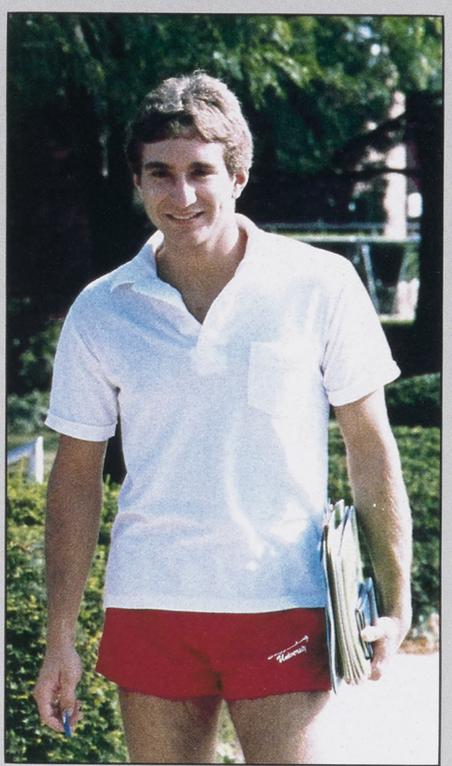

The male student fashions haven't changes as much. The student wore the long tweed coat that was knee length. The oxford shirts and sweaters were still visible on campus.

The was also the "Do your own thing" wardrobe. This type of fashion consisted of new and old styles together to create "Today's" look. The students wore the casual faded jeans, old Nikes, sweat socks and a sweat shirt. The jean jacket was a very important part of their attire. New for this year was dressing up the sweat pants with a sweater. The sweat pants are also tucked into the socks when worn for leisure.

A few of the other short-lived fads were the black stir-ups worn with the long, knee length blouses, two-toned clothing and the new wave fashions.

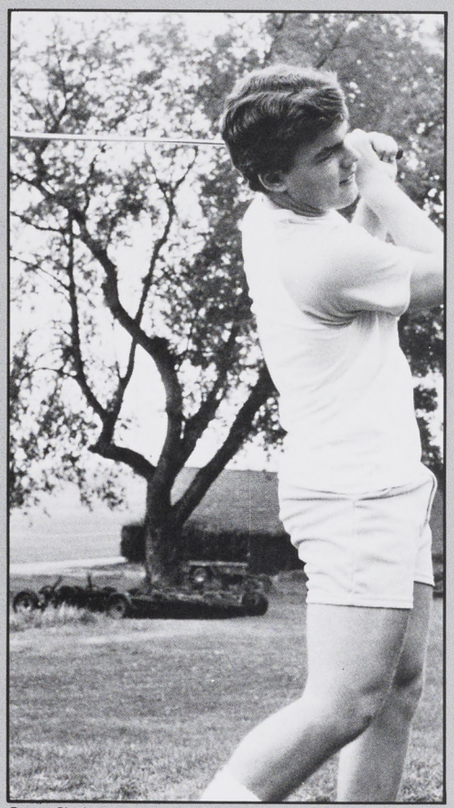

Some of the fads may not be the styles of the future, but they were visible in "Today's Shippensburg."

Excellent facilities allow students to

Keep in shape

"Let's get physical"— a popular trend that was in full force by students this year.

The trend toward physical fitness did not only involve the students but the faculty and administrators too. All were visible jogging or participating in aerobic classes in their spare time.

There were many ways available on campus for students to work on their physique. Both Heiges and Henderson Gyms offered swimming pools and weight rooms for the students use.

The physical education department offers several classes for those interested in fitness for credit. Some of the classes offered included jogging, aerobics, tennis and others.

Aerobics was still a popular fitness program. Students worked out in their rooms, lounges and recreation rooms of their dorms.

Students who were serious about getting into shape joined the fitness clubs of the area. The clubs offered trained personnel to work with students one on one.

This was a time for students to take a good look at themselves and decide if they liked what they saw or if changes were in order.

Capacity crowd dances at

The Hooters Concert

SOLD OUT. Those two words have not been said about many of the recent concerts sponsered by the APB Concert Committee. This year was different. The Concert Committe selected the Philadelphia based group the Hooters to headline the fall concert.

Ticket sales began on a Monday and by the next day the concert was sold out. 4,000 tickets were sold and a number of complimentary tickets were given out bringing the total crowd to well over 4,000 screaming fans.

The night of the concert fans began to line up at 6:00 for the 8:00 start of the concert. When the doors opened at 8:00, fans ran then pushed and squeezed through people to get a good standing place for the show.

The Outfield, a band from London, was the opening act. They played songs from their album "Play Deep" including the hit single "Say It Isn't So."

When the Hooters took the stage just past 9:00 the fans went wild. The Hooters opened with "Day by Day," the next song to be released as a single. Besides from playing songs from their album "Nervous Night," the Hooters played renditions of "Lucy in the Sky with Diamonds" and "So You Wanna be a Rock 'n' Roll Star."

Dry ice provided a mist as Eric Brazilian sang "All You Zombies" their first national hit single. The Hooters ended the set with the most popular of their three hits "And We Danced."

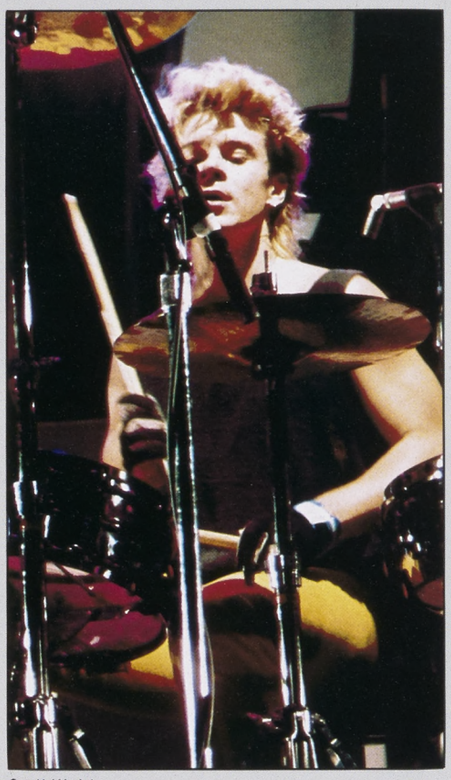

The Hooters left briefly but then returned and played songs from "Amore" a self released album for the first encore. The final song they sang was "God Bless America." However the crowd chanted and encouraged the Hooters to return again. Everyone except Brazilian returned and sang the song they wrote for Cyndi Lauper "Time After Time." The final encore was ended with the classic "So You Wanna be a Rock 'n' Roll Star."

The Hooters felt good about their performance. "The crowd was into it," said Andy King. "We felt them giving to us so we gave right back to them."

Run by the SA, the CUB is the # Center of activities

The Cumberland Union Building, or better known as the "CUB" is the heart of the campus. Not only does it offer entertainment like movies and Shananigans but it is also the hub of student activity for many campus organizations.

Students spend their time in meetings on the main floor or hanging out in the game room and Raider Room, but do they know what happens on the third floor? The third floor finds the chaotic centers of the APB, Student Senate, Slate, Cumberland and WSYC-FM.

During most of the day, the Slate office is dark but on Monday nights and Tuesday mornings the office is throbbing with activity in order to meet their deadlines.

The campus station WSYC and the Cumberland yearbook are also places where dedicated students spent their afternoons and nights be it playing music or preparing for an upcoming deadline.

The third floor of the CUB is a place not many students ventured up to but it is the heart of many important activities.

Keeping an apartment clean

Requires organization

September signifies the beginning of the fall semester but for some it was the start of a new way of living. These were the students who lived off campus and had the task of learning to become domesticated a head of them.

Becoming domesticated came quickly to some and in no time they were involved in an organized household.

Students divided the chores between roommates into a set pattern of who does the dishes and on what day.

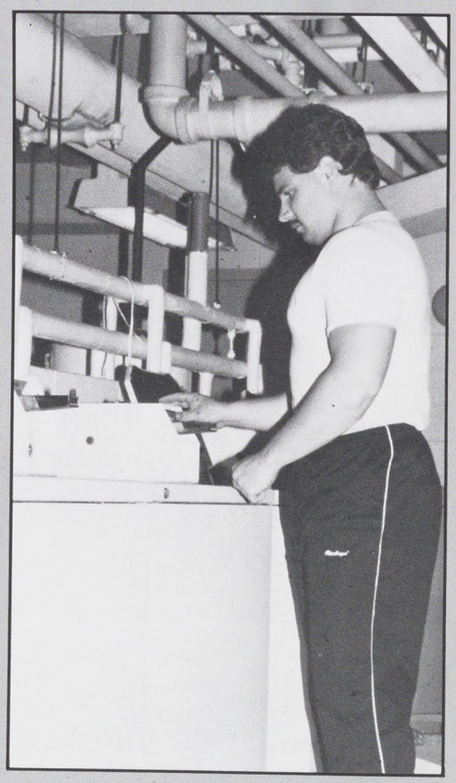

Preparing a budget became easier as the months passed by. Today's students had the luxury of low cost appliances for help in the kitchen.

Students found that if they didn't keep the apartment clean between themselves, no one else would either.

Male and female students alike were seen doing dishes, vacuming, dusting and scrubbing. If only their parents could have seen them.

Cosby, Springsteen and White Nights

Entertain students

Along with all of the fads, there were three that were very important. Music, TV and films were the main entertainment and were almost essential to every college student.

This year the music field had been primarily dominated by three groups. During the fall, Dire Straits released, "Money For Nothing" and Bruce Springsteen's "Born in the USA" were both frequently heard around campus. Later in the year, Phil Collins and Marilyn Martin released, "Separate Lives" from the movie "White Nights," which were both hits.

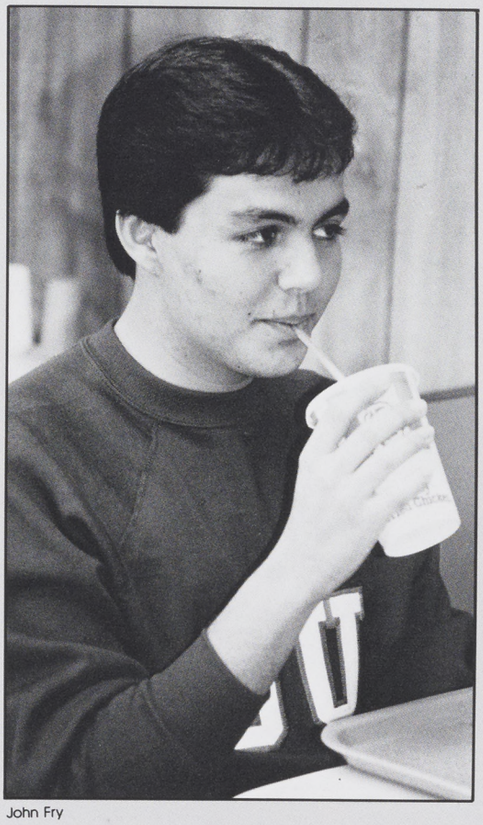

The major pasttime was the television. During the day the TV rooms in every dorm were full for "The Guiding Light" and its rival, "General Hospital." Thursday evenings were very popular with "The Cosby Show," "Family Ties," and "Cheers" as the main attractions. "Miami Vice" was also a popular show on Friday nights. It wouldn't have been a Friday without Don Johnson.

The film industry produced some major hits throughout the year. "Out of Africa" starring Robert Redford and Meryl Streep was avidly discussed after the Christmas holiday. Other popular movies were, "The Color Purple," "Spies Like Us," and no year could be complete without a Sylvester Stallone movie. "Rocky IV" was a hit and definitely a crowd pleaser.

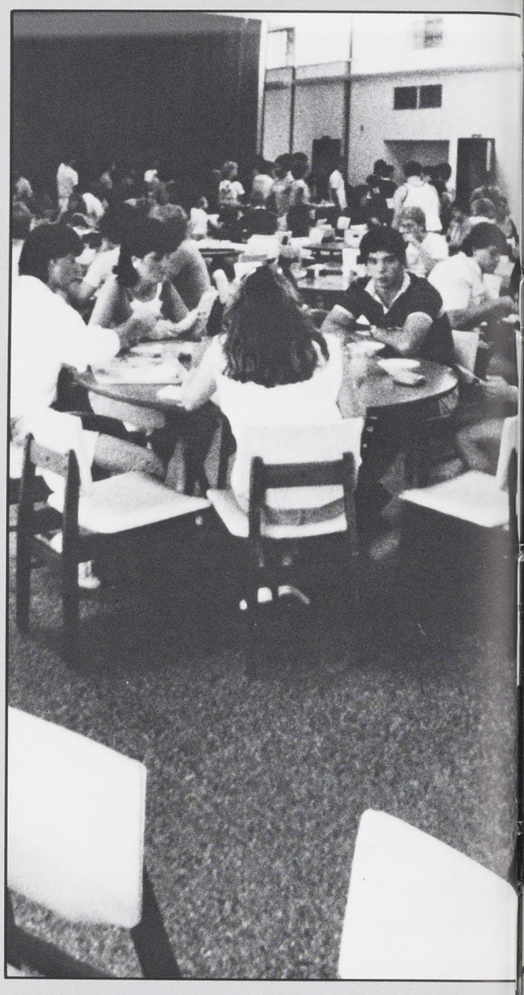

Music, TV and films will always be essential to break the daily routines of classes, but next year other shows will be hits.

New food service gives students

Choices when dining

Shippensburg may be a small town, but there were plenty of restaurants to choose from. They ranged from a nice sit-down atmosphere to a fast-food or a take-out place.

There were those days when Kriner and Reisner just didn't fulfill the true meaning of "food." By eight or nine o'clock the stomach demanded nurishment. The popular take-out and delivery places were Brother's Pizza, Pizza-n-Stuff, The Coffee Shop and Pizza House.

If the pizza scene just didn't appeal to the tastebuds there were always McDonalds, Hardees or Kentucky Fried Chicken. This was pure junk food and was essential sometimes and they are all within walking distance from campus.

For a quieter atmosphere, Shippensburg offered Burkhart's, The Rustic Inn or The Grill and Galley. These three were great when the parents came or if students wanted to treat someone to a celebration. The food was good, the prices were reasonable and the service was fast.

There is a broad variety of restaurants in Shippensburg. Just about one to fit every mood.

With the installation of the new food service on campus, students were able to have a choice on where to dine on campus.

The changes allowed students with meal plans to eat in either Kriner or Reisner or even in the CUB and Old Main Century Room. To eat in the snack shops, students were given a cash equivalancy towards lunch and dinner.

Along with the choice of where to eat, students were given more choices of food in the dining halls. There were improved salad bars, longer service hours and more variety in the menu.

Although not Mom's home cooking, most students were pleased with the changes and the freedom to eat anywhere.

Studying, parties, home —

Relaxing on weekends

It there is one thing students will remember about this past year—the weekends. With weekends came great fun and it was a switch from those monotonous and boring classes. Whether it was hopping from party to party, going home, catching a movie, studying or just relaxing in front of the tube, it was the weekend!!

To students, studying before Sunday was a no-no. There were a zillion of other things to do. Most students went out with friends and lived it up. Other students were seen loading up their cars on Friday afternoons and heading for home to see that special someone or for a good meal. For the studious student, the weekend was a good time to catch up on their reading.

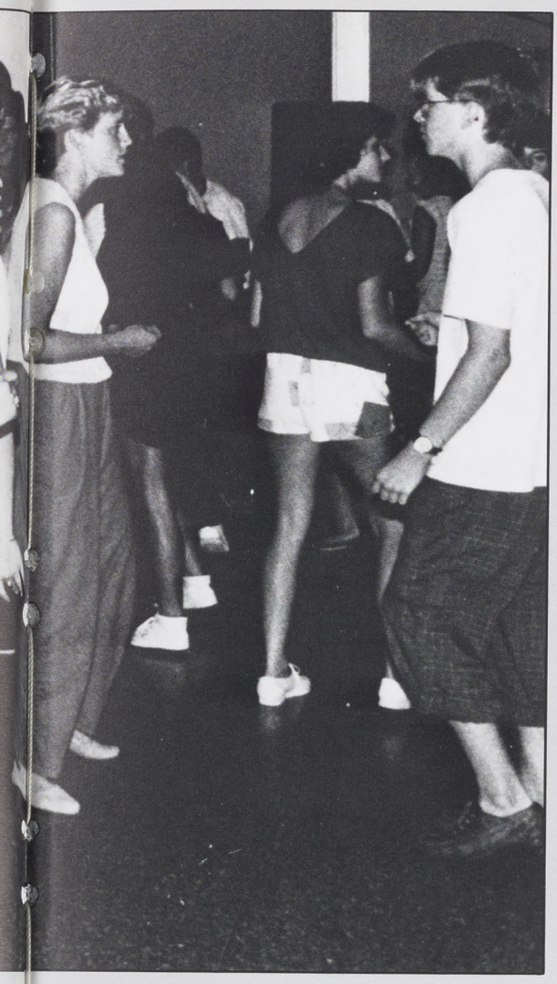

Parties were everywhere on the weekends! It didn't matter where students went, be it a frat party, College Park or Chateau, fun was had by all. A party was a great place to let off steam and meet new people.

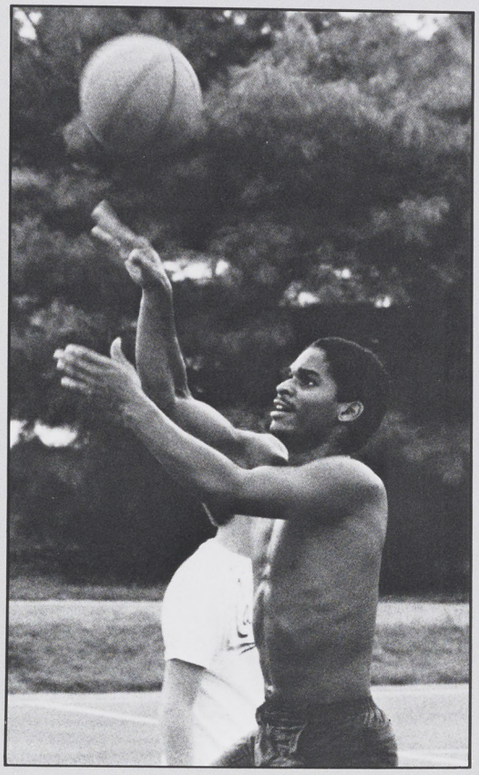

A popular spot in nice weather was the mountains. This serene hideaway offered a quiet environment and pleasant scenery. Students would get together and spend the weekend camping and taking in the great outdoors.

Traveling was another way students spent their weekends. Some traveled to other schools or, if the weather was right, Hershey Park was only 60 minutes away.

Regardless how students spent their weekends, it was a pleasant and relaxing time. Weekends were made for friends, sports and parties. As students settled down to studying on Sunday nights they looked forward to the upcoming Friday afternoon.

Preparing for

Open mike nights

Once a month the CUB Committee of the APB sponsered an open mike night in the Raider Room, and weeks before students began dusting off the intruments, sheet music, and clearing their throats for the event.

Open mike night gave students the opportunity to perform original songs, comedy or play and sing other works in front of an audience.

Roommates of the performers had to listen to songs over and over and over again until the act felt comfortable with the material. Sometimes the roommates knew the lyrics just as well as the performers.

Roommates also had to play mediator with the surrounding rooms. The phone would ring, sometimes it would seem continuous, and the neighbors would ask to keep it quiet. Eventually they started to threaten by saying "Next time I'll call the grad." Luckily that never happened.

Once the act was completely polished, the performers would venture over to the CUB and do the material. For the most part the open mike nights had large crowds to complement the acts.

Almost as soon as the acts were over students could be heard saying "What are we going to do next month", and the ritual began again.

Students rock-a-like to # Raise money

Students imitating a host of popular rock stars filled the auditorium in the first annual Rock-A-Like Concert to aid research of multiple sclerosis.

The highly successful concert, sponsored by the Swatch company and organized by Students Against Multiple Sclerosis (SAMS) featured 19 acts which drew a capacity crowd and raised approximately $2000, said Scott Guiley, chairperson of the event.

Huey Lewis and the News, led by freshman John Morsberger as Huey Lewis, won first place with a pounding rendition of "Working for a Living."

Morsberger said he and the News, including Tim Verge, Chuck Mercer, Heath Shirey, Tim Perry and Bob Costello, all from Lackhove, were a bit tense due to technical difficulties, but had a great time.

Second place went to the Blues Brothers featuring seniors Rob Engle and Dave Szlachetka who danced their way through "Soul Man."

Senior Barb Murphy won third place as Pat Benatar rocking through "Promises in the Dark."

Other rock bands portrayed in the concert were the Go-Gos, Heart, Miami Sound Machine, the Splashers, Barbra Streisand, Bruce Springsteen, Vanity 6, Stevie Nicks, Tina Turner and Morris Day.

The finale was a rendition of "We Are the World," performed by all the groups who competed.

Guiley said the concert was more successful than anyone had expected and described it as "controlled pandemonium."

Looking for that

Special person

Like other colleges, students avoided the library as much as possible. Yet every night students were found nonchalantly flipping through the card catalogue so they could view their scope without attracting to much attention.

Scoping—the favorite pasttime of students. Who would forget scoping that great-looking girl in the laundry room while accidentally mixing white and dark clothes.

Campus was the home to many different places for students to scope their latest sweethearts. The CUB was the perfect spot to catch a glimpse of that someone and was a better place to "pick up" a new one. SHANANIGANS provided an excellent opportunity to be close to a scope while unobtrusively watching their every move.

Scoping may have been the closest some got to romance on campus, while others found themselves seriously involved with someone. A lavelier or pinning amongst the Greeks was often found.

Dates among students ranged from a movie in the CUB to a Kappa Sig party or dinner at Burkhart's depending on the student's budget at the time.

Where couples went on their dates was not as important as the time they spent together. Many students were amazed at how fast a relationship developed in college. Living in close proximity to one another literally gave couples the opportunity to spend "every moment together." Some saw this as a hinderance while others swore it caused their relationship to blossom.

While love beautifully blossomed or sadly wilted, romance on campus was exciting, frustrating, joyful, tearful, stormy and lots of fun. For many students, their sweethearts represented their most beloved memories of college. A few lucky ones took those memories and made them last an entire lifetime...

The changing weather affects

Campus activities

The months of May, June and July are filled with hot sunny days and beautiful nights. The bright colors of orange, red and yellow were seen all over the area.

As the fall semester of 1985 began, students decorated the campus with bright and stunning Jam shirts and shorts.

Unfortunately, the warmth of the season disappeared. It hadn't lasted near as long as many would have liked. The colored outfits were reluctantly packed away and the rainy season began.

The standard umbrella became the upmost accessory for students and professors alike. The rain began to take its toll on students. Tempers began to flare as everyone felt trapped in their rooms or apartments. Where had the sun gone? Just when students thought there was no hope, the sun's rays crept through the gray clouds. Young and old took advantage of the fall day by playing frisbee on High Street and football all over campus.

November brought the windy, cold weather. When the temperature dropped a hot butter spiced rum kept students warm, or a case of Old Milwaukee pounders did the trick.

Eventually, the trees became bare. Students tried to hold on to summer but as the first snow fell they only had their memories.

Snow signified the first of many snowball fights and snowmen. Students looked forward for the ski season to open.

As the weather changed from season to season all was exposed and underwent change. The changes appeared in clothes and personalities alike. Our hopes and dreams floated on the winds of the weather. A ray of sunshine and the warmth of spring gave us the strength to carry on to await new memories of the seasons to come.

Holiday celebrations

Everyone loves to celebrate and students were no exception. They began with parties to celebrate their return to college which lead into the Homecoming week celebration where there were many ways to celebrate.

Homecoming had hardly settled down when the ghosts and goblins of Halloween emerged. Rooms were decorated and lots of costumes were created for Halloween parties. McCune Hall put on their annual Haunted House. In town big brothers and sisters, fraternities and sororities walked with their small counterparts in the Halloween Parade.

Thanksgiving was a well deserved mid semester break that was spent at home with families and friends.

Christmas was celebrated quickly before finals and break. Residence halls and off campus apartments sported colored lights, trees and holiday decorations. Roommates exchanged gifts and some lucky people even got a kiss under the mistletoe.

Next, students celebrated Martin Luther King, Jr's birthday and Valentine's Day. Valentine's Day was a day to give and receive cards and flowers from that special someone.

Easter holiday was combined with Spring Break. Students found themselves heading south for the week, be it Florida or the Bahamas. Other students took the break as a time to catch up before the end of the semester.

All holidays are special occasions for people to celebrate and for students it was also a time to take a much needed break from the academic grind.

Marching in the morning

The military science program on campus was much more than a course and training program. The R.O.T.C. cadets built friendships with one another that will last beyond their college and military career.

Freshmen and sophomores were encouraged to participate and get involved in the "hands-on" training without any further commitment to the service. Returning students were welcomed back to school with a welcome back bowling party at the field house.

Extra-curricular activities of R.O.T.C. included skiing, white water rafting and an opportunity for everyone to dress up for the annual Military Ball.

For those students considering a career in the Army, field leadership exercies were held at Fort Indiantown Gap and provided additional training and an opportunity to experience the Army first hand.

The officers of R.O.T.C. have a commitment not only to the Army but to the students as well. As the year progressed, the officers became not only instructors, but confidants and friends who provided students with more than a military experience.

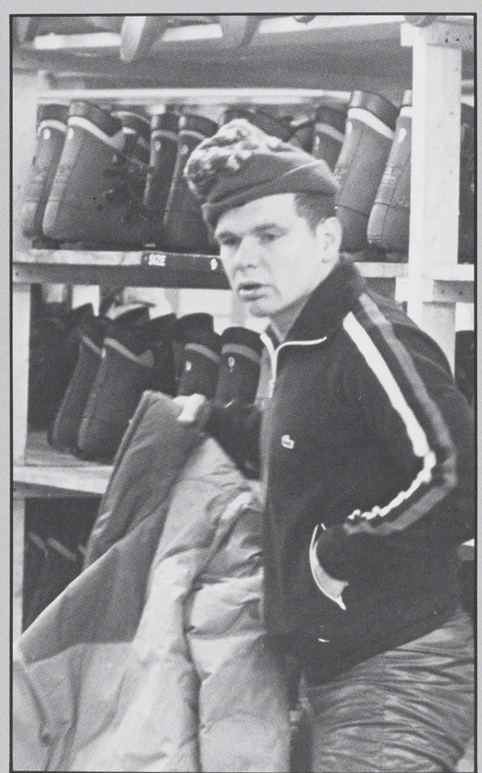

R.O.T.C. was and is a challenge for the future—instilling high standards and values essential for higher leadership roles, providing discipline and promoting dedication to the service of our country.

Anywhere but school

For a spring break

At last! The time had finally come. The textbooks were shoved aside and replaced with magazines, notebooks were left to collect dust in leiu of a large radio and large wooly sweaters were packed away to make room for bikinis, bathing suits and sunglasses. Laundry was quickly done in order to pack a clean beach blanket, and any spare change leftover was quickly used to buy a bottle of suntan lotion. And most importantly, the "big gulp" cup from the 7-11 used to store odds and ends was emptied and packed in case a craving for some alcoholic refreshments hits.

After double-checking and making sure you have not forgotten any beach necessities and rechecking to be sure you have not accidentally packed anything like textbooks or notebooks, you hop into the car with "Fort Lauderdale or Bust" painted on the back and drive away into spring break.

For many students, spring break means a week-long beach party in Fort Lauderdale with thousands of other college students. Fort Lauderdale was the most popular spring break vacation spot among college students.

For other students, more exotic vacation areas like Bermuda, the Bahamas, Hawaii and the Virgin Islands were different places to spend spring break.

Some students traveled to other states to visit relatives or friends at other schools, while still others spent a relaxing week at home.

But whether students spent spring break tanning in Florida or the Carribean, or sleeping the entire vacation at home, the break meant an entire week without the worries and pressures of classes, papers or studying.

However, spring break also meant something much more. Spring break gave students the chance to meet new people, become exposed to different cultures and experience a variety of things. Spring break gave students the chance to grow.

Around the U.S.

A tragedy was no stranger to the United States during the past year. The most tragic accident was the explosion of the space shuttle Challenger on January 28, 1986. 76 seconds into its flight the shuttle broke apart killing the seven crew members which included high school teacher Christa McAuliffe. A presidential commission investigated the disaster and found errors in parts and shuttle procedures.

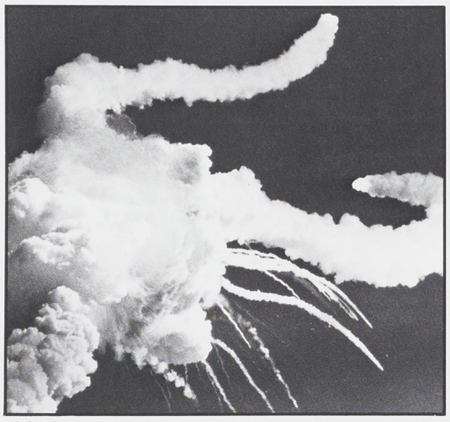

Closer to home was the MOVE fire in Philadelphia. On May 13, 1985 the police dropped a bomb on the headquarters of the radical group in an effort to force them to leave the building. Instead, a fire erupted and distoyed over an entire city block. The city of Philadelphia rebuilt all the destroyed homes at a cost of over $100,000 per home.

In Dallas 137 people were killed as a Delta Airplane encountered a severe wind shear and plunged to the ground. The crash placed more pressure on airports to install expensive wind shear detectors.

On the happier side, the U.S. celebrated the 100th anniversary of the Statue of Liberty with a week long extravangza including the largest fireworks display ever. $80 million dollars was raised through Live-Aid concerts which were held on London, England and Philadelphia. The money was used to feed the hungry in Africa. To feed the hungry in the U.S., 6 millon people joined hands in "Hands Across America."

News around

The world

The school year was a period marked with many world-wide disaster that hit home with the nation's usually uninformed college campuses.

The worst single aviation disaster in history took the lives of 524 people as a Japanese jetliner crashed into Mt. Osutaka, Japan in August. Airliners and the stations were also a target for terrorists. A Lebanonese group hijacked TWA flight 847 in July. Another group fighting for independence on the island nation of Sri Lanka planted a time-bomb which ripped a passenger jet in half killing al least 20 people in May. Airports in Rome and in Vienna were the sites of bloody massacres in the spring from the hit squad raids.

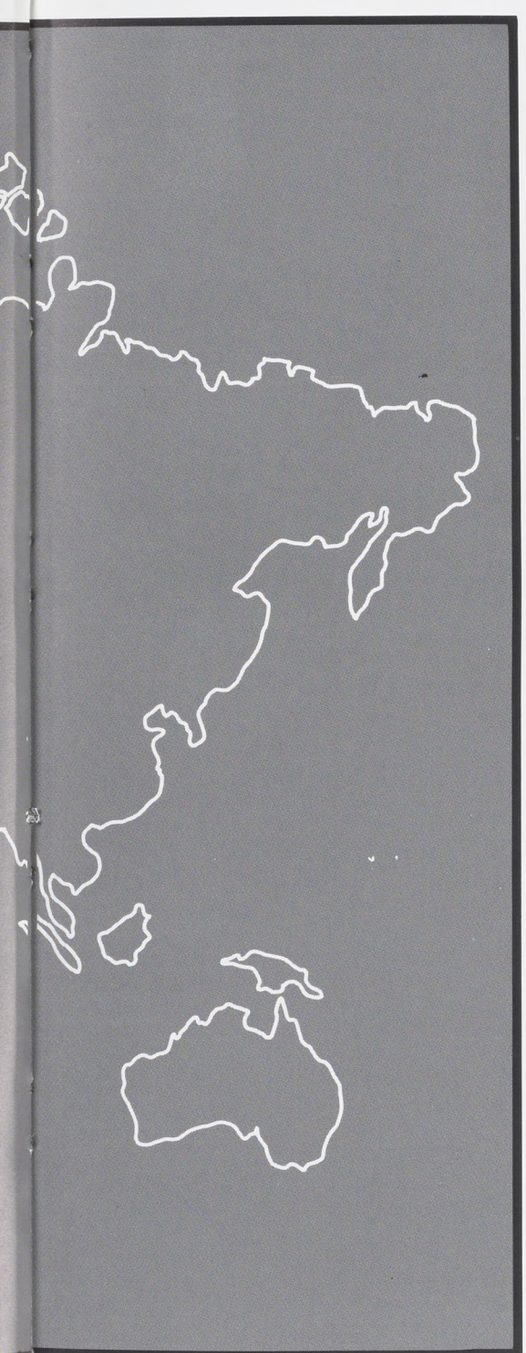

A cruise ship, the Achille Lauro, became the unlikely mark of a hijacking. The Napoli-based liner was taken to Egypt where the captives were to be flown to Libya, but the flight was intercepted and forced to land in Italy.

Terrorist actions such as these spurred the Reagan administration to provoke a military incident with Libya. Soon after American maneuvers in which U. S. planes sank an advancing Libyan topedo boat, a retiatory airstrike was held to destroy terrorist training camps operating in the nation.

Natural forces were also demonstrating their destuctive power as two earthquakes, 7.8 and 7.3 on the richeer scale, leveled much of Mexico City. The quakes struck the city in September and killed over 2,000 people.

Energy also attained world-wide focus as gas prices dramatically dropped, and the Soviet Union experienced a meltdown with one of its nuclear reactors. The facility located in Chernobyl near Kiev spread enough radiation in eastern Europe to stop the selling of fresh produce and dairy products.

Athletics play a major role in the lives of some of the students on campus. Students could participate in intercollegiate sports or intramural sports.

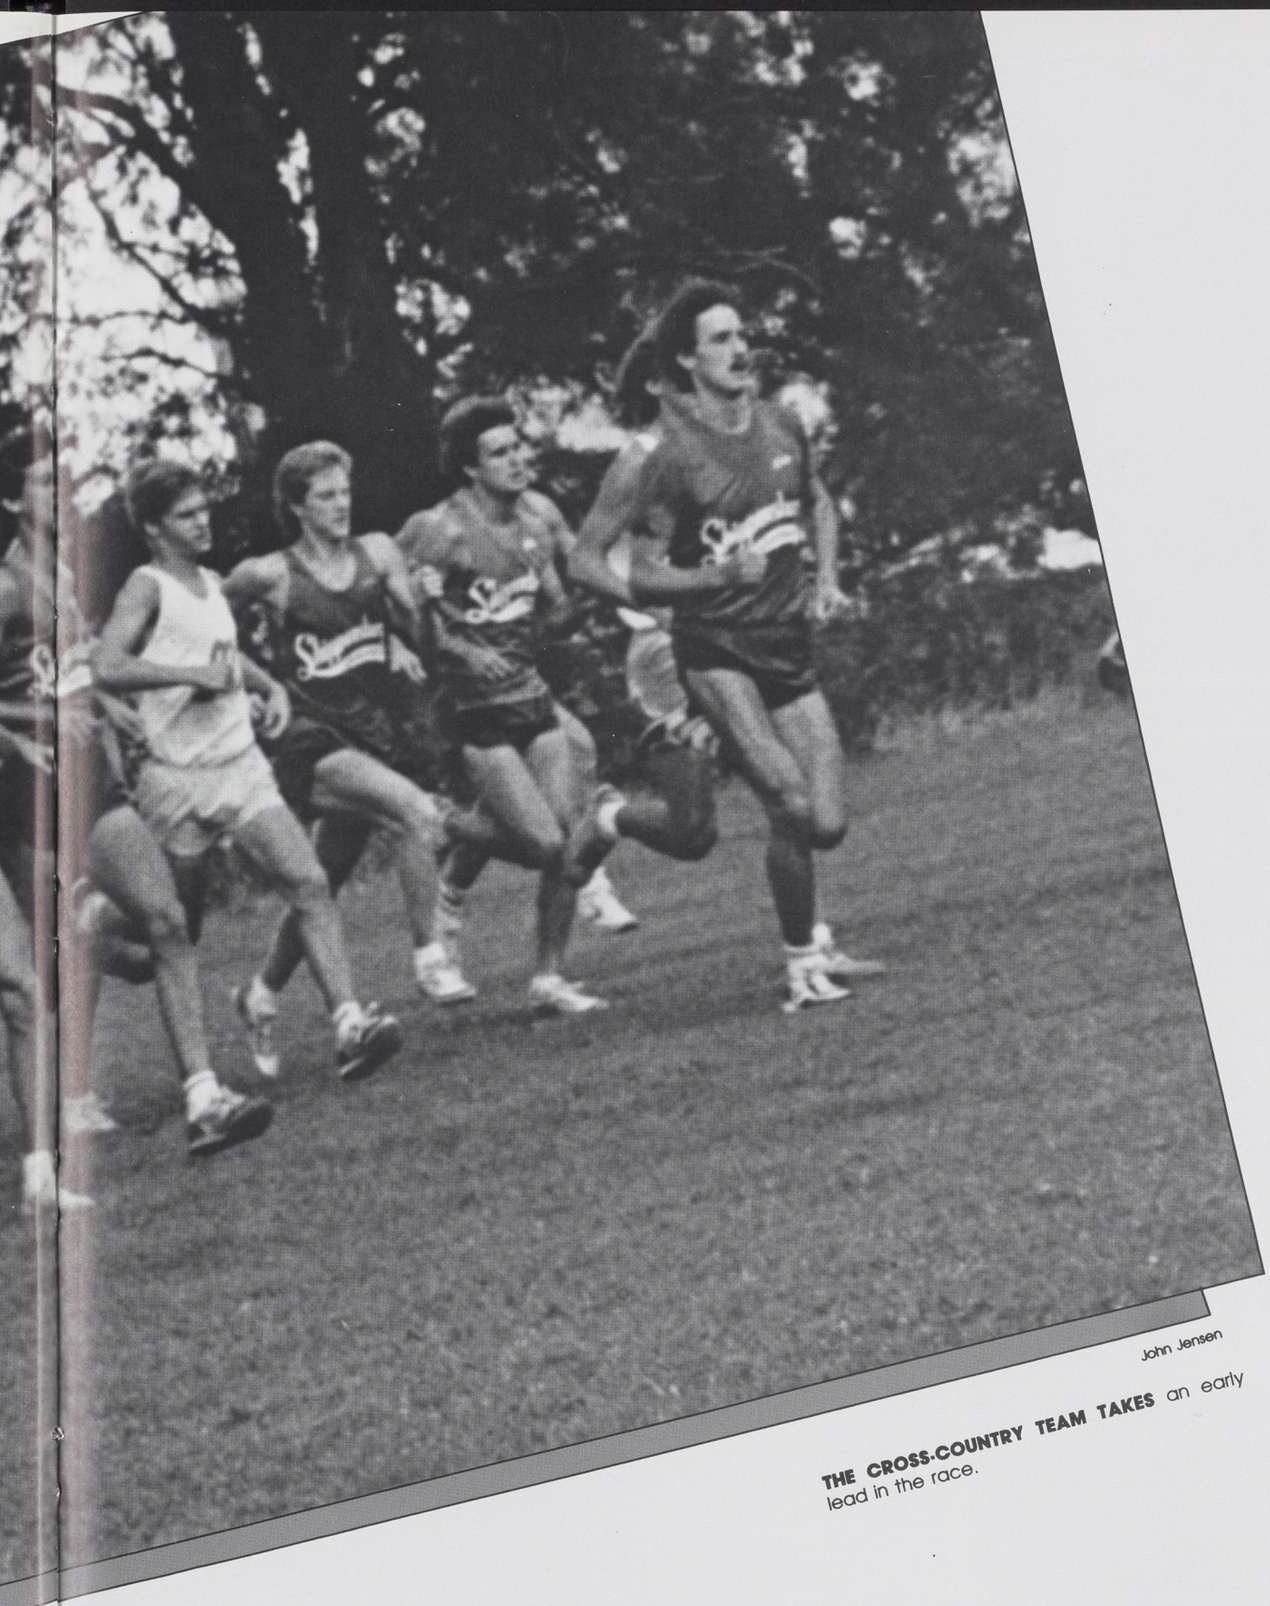

Sports were an outlet for all the bottled energy that they stored. It gave them a chance to compete against rival universities or in the intramural program they competed against classmates.

Those students who did not actively participate in a sport were the strong supporters of the teams. These students cheered the football team on to victory on those fall weekends, basketball in the winter, and softball and baseball in the spring.

For whatever reason, students did become involved in sports—one way or another—to enhance their lives at college.

Under new head coach Deb Tweed, the field hockey team finished their season with a 9 win - 6 loss record. They also had a second place finish behind Millersville after defeating number one ranked and defending champions, Bloomsburg, in the Pennsylvania Conference Tournament.

The team had a number of returning players and possessed an exciting and aggressive offense with a very tough defense.

Arlene Tevyaw, the team's most potent offensive player broke a school record for assists in a single season with 12 assists this season.

Karen Kuykendall led the team in scoring with 11 goals, while Molly Jones was close behind with 10 goals.

The team was ranked number 10 in the nation with their only losses being to other nationally ranked teams.

Shippensburg made its first appearance in the NCAA Division III Tournament this year. They received a bid to the tournament by defeating Bloomsburg in the Conference Tournament. They met Elizabethtown in the first round, however, they were defeated by them.

The team looks forward to another good season next year with returning players that gained experience through this season.

Through tough season

Injuries plagued the Red Raider football team this year, leaving them with a 5-5 overall record. While showing a great deal of potential, the team overcame their problems with injuries to boast one of the best defenses in the Pennsylvania Conference Western Division.

Two big wins against Lock Haven and Slippery Rock highlighted the season. Early in the season, the team defeated Lock Haven, 20-6. Tailback Frank Van Buren was named ECAC Division II Co-offensive player of the week for his performance. In late October, the team defeated Slippery Rock by a score of 34-23.

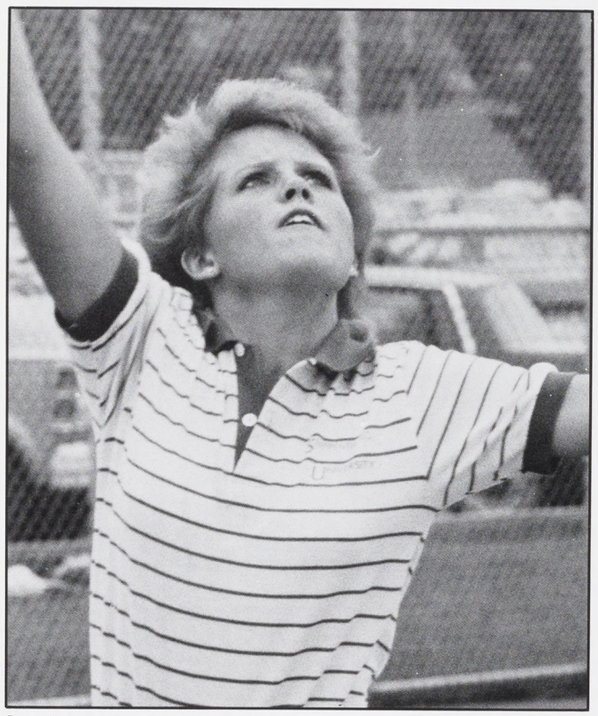

Senior Dan Carey kicked off the season as quarterback for the Raiders. Injured in the opening game against Bloomsburg, Carey bounced back to complete 58 passes in 103 attempts for 641 yards and six touchdowns. For the season, Carey threw only one interception and set a new school record by throwing 95 passes without an interception. Senior Bill Roth intercepted the second half of the season and completed 70 of 152 passes for 969 yards and four touchdowns. He also rushed for 97 yards, which included a 29 yard touchdown run against Edinboro.

Eleven seniors wrapped up their college football careers in the season's final game against Shepherd. With the majority of players being sophomores and juniors, the team is looking forward to a successful and bright future next season.

Young team led to

Team spirit

Tennis, like any other sport, can be very difficult to master if it is approached from the wrong direction. The player can become confused by a maze of theories and mysteries of coordination. However, the women's tennis team despite relative inexperience on the squad, approached the sport in the right direction.

Sally McGrath, the Raiderette head coach, was very optimistic early in the season and she had every right to be. Kori Morrissey , Jennifer Clark and Sheila Woods headed the list of returning starters.

Morrissey compiled a 3-7 overall singles record and a 3-5 record in the conference. This season Clark had a 4-6 overall record and a 4-4 record against conference opponents.

Jen Neatour became the freshmen tennis sensation ending the regular season with a 7-1 record in the Pennsylvania Conference and a 9-1 overall.

What makes the women's tennis team champions no matter what the score was that they urged one another on to be part of the team.

Ties record

The soccer team had a great season this year. Between a nine game undefeated streak and two players making the All-Region and All-Conference teams it was easy to keep the enthusiasm up.

At one point during the season the team had a likely chance of being the Eastern Division representatives in the conference championship game but second place East Stroudsburg defeated that hope. At this point, Shippensburg was ranked 19th in the nation.

The team was led by sophomore Tor Hotham. He scored nine goals and had five assists this season. Hotham was also honored with being named to the NCAA Division II All-American team. He was also named to the NSCAA All-Region first team and the All-Pennsylvania Conference first team.

Teammate Mark Burnham joined Hotham on the All-Region and All-Conference teams. He scored three goals and made two assists this season.

The team had a proud season and tied the school record for victories and finished second in the Pennsylvania Conference Eastern Division.

Top 20 ranking

The 1985 season was a year of accomplishments for the university's women's cross country team. Consistent performances by the team members throughout the season led the Raiderettes to a final record of 54-19 and a national ranking of 17th in the final NCAA Division II poll.

The 1985 season also marked the first time that the university sent a woman to compete in the national championships. Kathy Stec, the top university finisher in all the team's races, grabbed 27th place at nationals held at East Stroudsburg. Stec qualified for the race after the Raiderettes took fifth place honors at regionals and Stec finished fourth individually.

Other starters who contributed to the team's successful season were Katie Becker, Monica Desch, Deb Fuller, Andi Gray, Trish Irwin, Sandy Jenkins, Jenny Jeronis, and Misti Underwood.

Tough run at

Short Memorial

The men's cross country team finished with a 30-21 record for the season.

John Schulties was the team's most consistent runner. He was most often the first Red Raider to cross the finish line in races. At the Indiana Invitational, Schulteis took 14th place in a field of more than 100 runners. The team finished in fifth place trailing Temple for fourth place.

The team encountered their toughest competition at the Paul Short Memorial Run where 15 of their 21 losses occurred. Shippensburg finished 16th in a field of 24 team.

One of their best performances was at the Millersville Invitational where the team finished second out of 11 teams. Of Shippensburg's first five finishers, three were freshmen. Harry Smith was the team's top finisher.

Of the 28 team members, only three were seniors. Two of these seniors, Mike Eggleston and Scott Becker were both bothered by injuries. However, Eggleston came back to finish second in a dual meet win over James Madison. He was also the top runner for Shippensburg at the Pennsylvania Conference Championships, where the team finished in sixth place.

Harry Smith, Tom Marshall, and Kevin Bair gave Shippensburg one of its strongest freshmen classes and hopes for a better season next year.

In conference

The 1985 volleyball team consisted of starting players—Barb Balogh, Sherrie Good, Bobbie Mitzel, Reggie Ness, Georgia Schmidt, Kim Bedford, Chris Harrold and Brenda Miner. The team played well this season by implementing a new playing strategy.

The season opener was a tournament at the U.S. Naval Academy. They earned fifth place and went on to college competition with Elizabethtown College, Morgan State and Loyola College. More tournaments and games followed until the Raiderettes arrived at the Pennsylvania Conference Eastern Division Tournament.

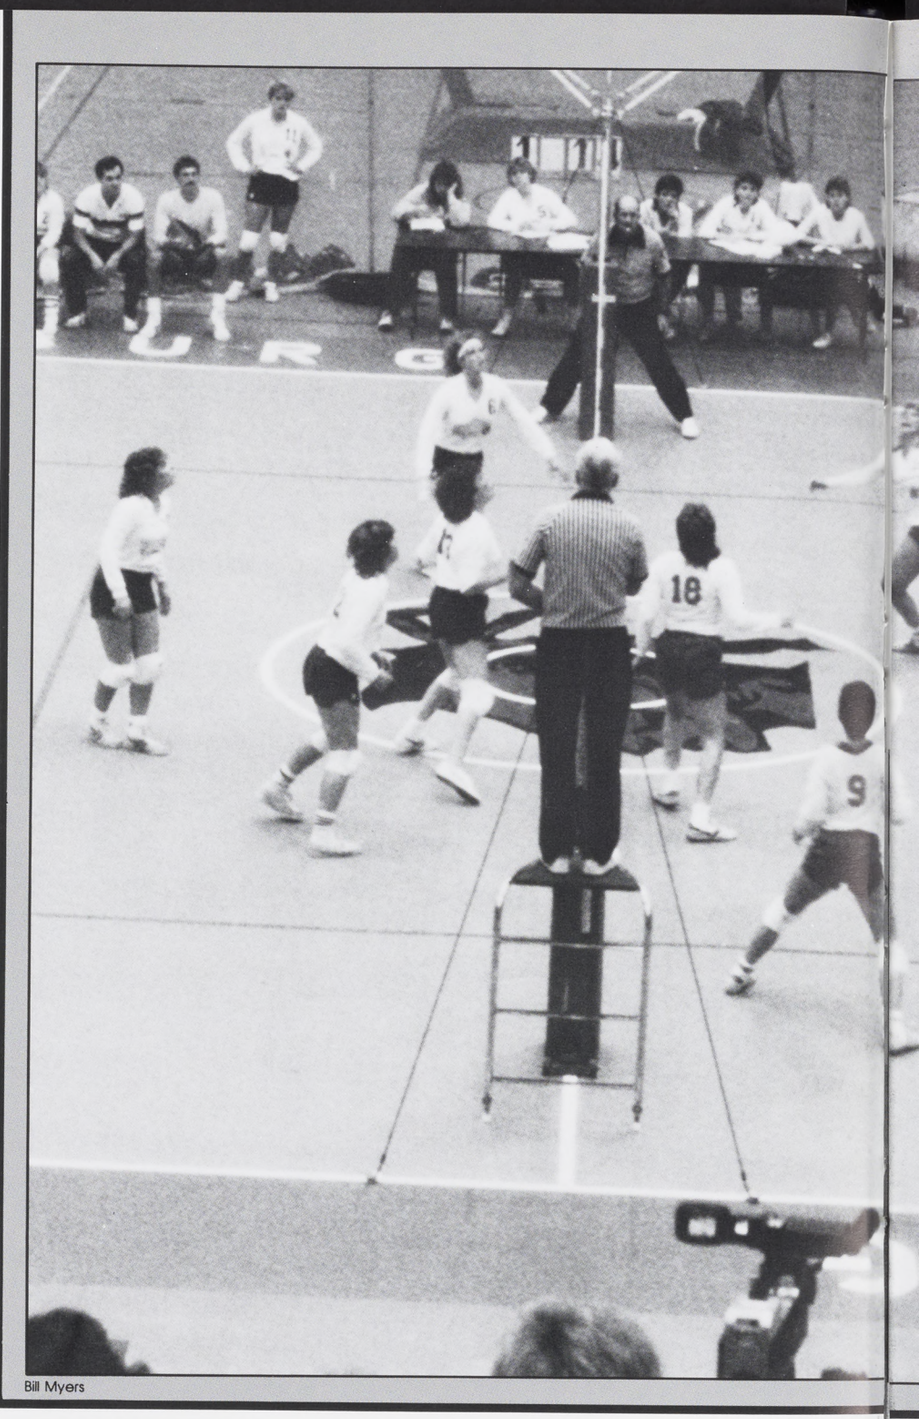

Shippensburg hosted this event and competed against five other teams. East Stroudsburg won the championship with Shippensburg taking second.

The team also saw competition in the 10th Annual Edinboro University Invitational. They competed against teams from Pennsylvania, Ohio and a team from Canada. Shippensburg finished third overall.

Coach Bob Frazier commented, "We peaked at the end of the season to finish second in the conference." Kim Bedford and Georgia Schmidt emerged as the season's MVP's, while Barb Balogh was named to the College Division Academic All-District Two on the second team.

Shippensburg's volleyball team had a good season with all the players showing tremendous determination as well as having fun.

Cheerleaders

Motivate

Motivation and spirit was the core to the Red Raider Varisty Cheerleading squad.

They proved to motivate audiences who came to support the athletic teams.

During the football season, they raised the spirit and enthusiasm of the crowd to cheer on the team. The added attraction of throwing mini footballs at the audience did not hurt.

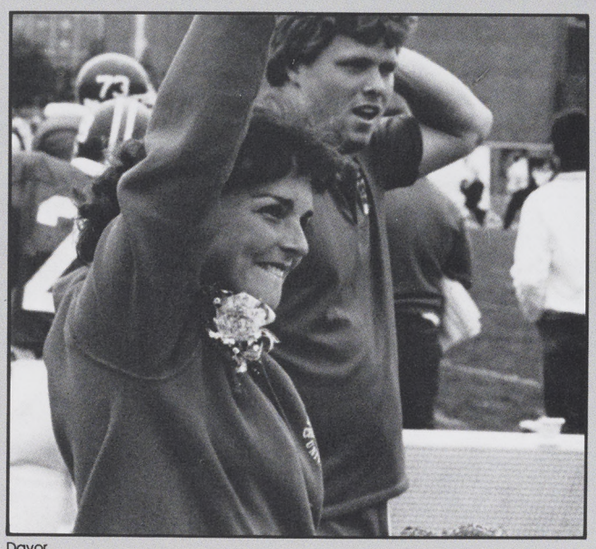

In the cold of winter they brought sunshine and thoughts of summer to a men' basketball game. They held a beach night in which cheerleaders and spectators were dressed in shorts and T-shirts, and the cheerleaders even had beach balls and chairs.

Champions in two tournaments

The men's basketball team had an average season this year. They finished with 13 wins and 13 losses. The three most outstanding players were the tri-captains. Seniors Rick Jackson, Dale Lay and Mike "Chief" Palm all had several good seasons with the Red Raiders.

Jackson, a 5' 10" point guard was the leading scorer on the team. Last year he averaged 13.1 points per game and 143 assists in 25 games.

Lay, a four-year starter, had 653 points, 436 rebounds and 248 assists at the beginning of this year. He said about his two team mates, "We're almost opposite in a lot of ways which makes us more compatible."

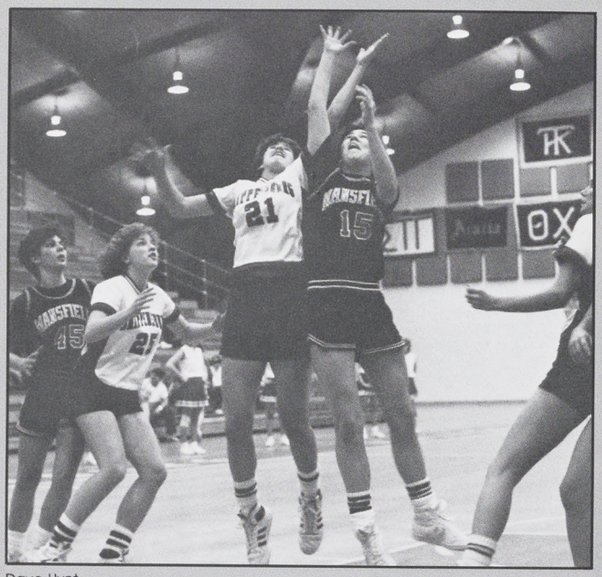

Palm averaged 9.7 points and 4.6 rebounds per game. His shooting percentage was a mark of 60.1 percent and he hit 107 of 178 shots from the floor. Palm also led the Raiders in foul shooting with an 82.4 percent. He was voted by teammates and coaches as the most improved player from his sophomore to his senior year.

Although the Raiders did not have an outstanding season, its tri-captains made up for it. They did a great job of supporting their team and helping the other players.

Fifth in tournament for

Raiderettes

The Raiderette basketball team did not have a very good season this year. Their final record was 6-12. However, coach Ann Plummer was enthusiastic about the team. Even though they were young and inexperienced, she felt that they have a bright future ahead of them.

There were only two senior starters this season and the rest were underclassmen. One senior, Bobbie Mitzel, also happened to be the team's leading scorer. In the Pennsylvania Conference of individual statistics, she was fifth in scoring with a 19.12 average.

Although Mitzel will be graduating, the team will have plenty of talent left for the next season. Also in the top thirty of the Pennsylvania Conference were freshman Cindy King and junior Ruth McGraw with 12.9 and 12.2 respectively.

This was a team of women that will grow in age and experience with each passing season.

Regional championship

The wrestling team ended their season with a 3-10 record under the supervision of head coach Jeb Billet.

The team was led by outstanding performances from junior Bob McCurdy. McCurdy ended his season with an overall record of 31-5. He travelled to the NCAA Division II Eastern Regional Championships where he captured the 177 pound weight class title for the second consecutive year. During the season he boosted his career record to 77-20 with a total of 21 pins.

Four other team members travelled with McCurdy to the championships. Jim Dolan at 118 pounds captured third place in his weight class. Dolan's overall season record was 21-9.

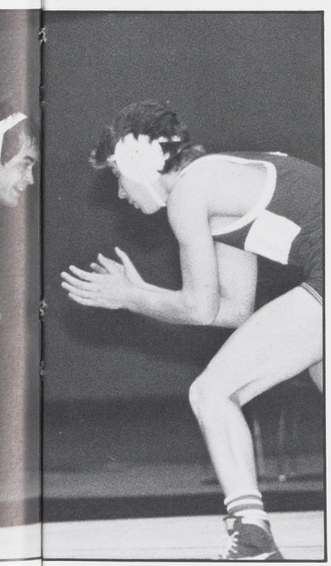

Co-captain Sheldon Smith came in seventh place in the 141 pound weight class. His season record was 17-11-1.

The team's 167 pound co-captain Brian Brake finished sixth in his weight class. He finished the season with a 20-7 record.

Freshman, heavyweight Tim Bowersox lost by a decision. He completed the season with a 23-13 record.

The five-man team took an overall fifth place at the championships.

Raiderettes capture

Sixth at states

The women's swimming and diving team finished the season with a 4-5 overall meet record and took sixth place at the PA Conference Championship.

The team won't be losing any members and will be ready to work together again.

The swimmers were co-captained by Barb Linder and Beth Sandler. Sandler qualified for national competition in diving.

Thirteen swimmers qualified for states at Clarion University. The Raiderettes were coached by Wayne Richards who is an All-American swimmer.

Several swimmers won All-State titles and many finished in the top ten of their events at the state competition.

Outstanding performers at the state competition were Sandler, Pam Hiestand and Shawn Ulrich. Both the 200 and 400 medley relay teams were in the top five. The team hopes to move up in the standings in the future.

Raiders swimming in

Championships.

For the ninth straight year, the men's swimming team took second place in the Pennsylvania state swimming championships. The team also placed 11th at the NCAA Division II National Swimming Championships in Orlando, Florida for the second consecutive year. Seven swimmers earned All-American honors at the championships.

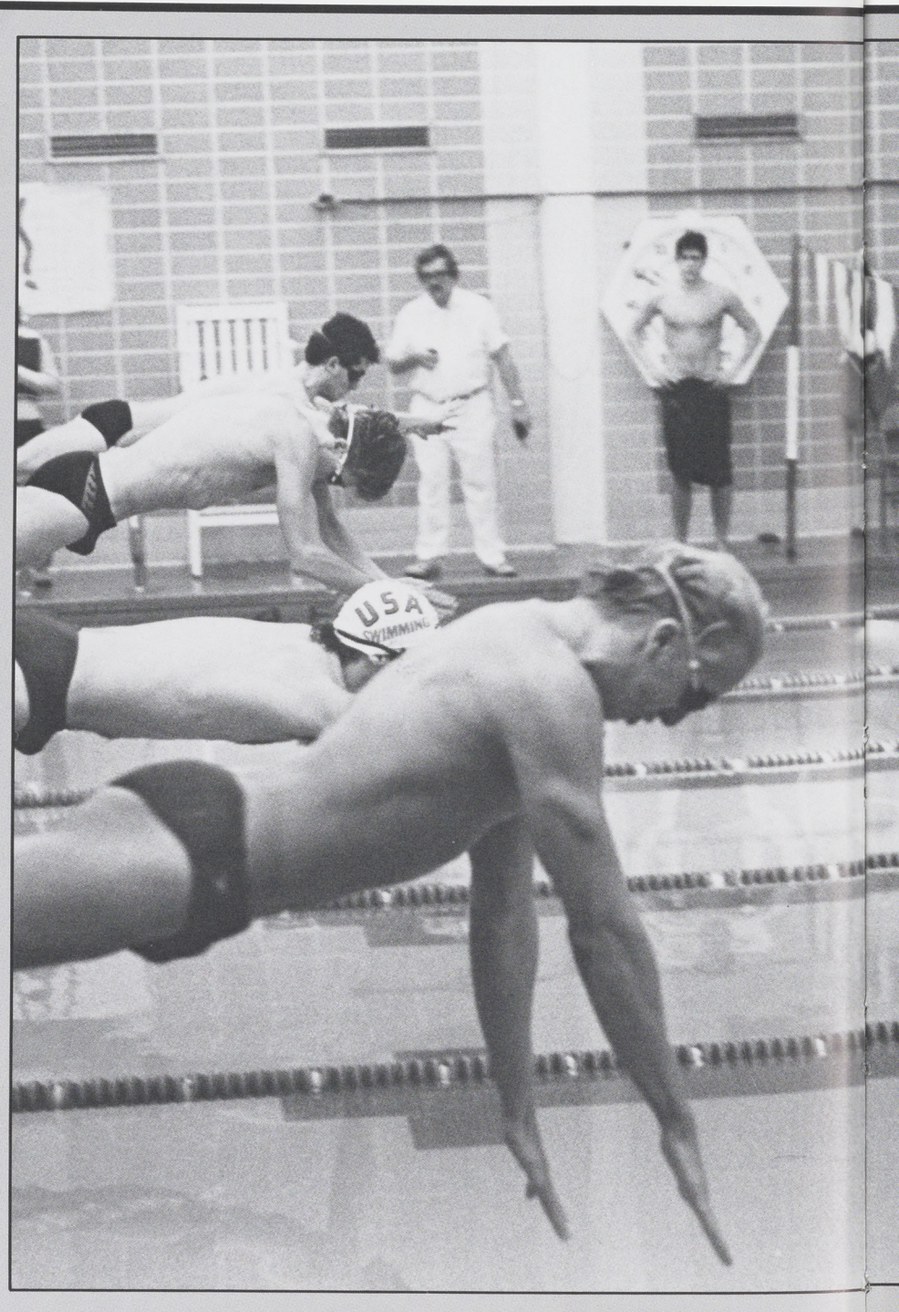

Junior Ed LaNoue set a national record in the 50 yard freestyle, which qualified him for the NCAA Division I Nationals in Indianapolis, Indiana. LaNoue was also ranked as the nation's number one swimmer in both the 50 and 100 yard freestyle in mid-season. He also set school records in both events.

Also gaining All-American honors with a top ten finish in the 800 freestyle relay was the team of Jack Cahillane, Mark Brockway, Paul DuBois and Greg Shriver. The All-American 400 freestyle relay consisted of LaNoue, Brockway, Greg Plummer and Shriver.

Brockway earned the All-American status for placing seventh in the 200 butterfly. Brockway is the team's top swimmer in the 200 and 400 individual medley and the 100 and 200 butterfly.

Senior tri-captains Plummer, Greg Chew and Kevin Benton led the team to a 13-7 overall record. The team is looking forward to a bright future with outstanding sophomores Chris and Mark Brockway, Steve Cherok and freshmen Gerald Feaser and DuBois.

Team takes title three

Years in a row

The men's track team had a top winning season. Their record was a clean 6 wins with no losses.

The team won the Pennsylvania Conference Championship for the third year in a row. One of the team's top two leaders was Matt McVetta who won the title in the high jump and set a meet record. The other was John Schulteis who finished second at the conference meet in the 3,000 meter steeplechase.

McVetta and Schulteis both went on to the NCAA Division II national championships in Los Angeles.

To second

The softball team finished with the season with a second place in the Pennsylvania Conference Tournament and a 22-7 overall record.

The team had a strong season with over five shutouts. The team's hardest competition and the cause of four losses was Bloomsburg University.

There were some strong hitters as was shown in the 22-1 win over Elizabethtown College.

The team will try to improve on this winning season to strive for the championship next season.

Good season

The Red Raider baseball team led by Coach Fairchild experienced a strong season of 35 wins and only 14 losses.

Four players were selected to play in the NCAA Division II All-North Central Region Team. Selected for the first team were Wayne Gordon for first base and Doug Furness in the outfield. Todd Long was selected as third baseman for the second team and Ron Ney was selected as a pitcher for the third team.

Gordon led the team this year in runs scored with 58 and RBI's with 61 to set a new school record.

Furness also set a school record for stolen bases with 33 to his credit.

The team is looking for another strong season next year.

Time in the Classroom

A student's life in college was not all parties and meeting new people. It also involved books, classes and studying.

Academics were why the student was here—to better their education and learn about new and exciting things that were happening in the marketplace.

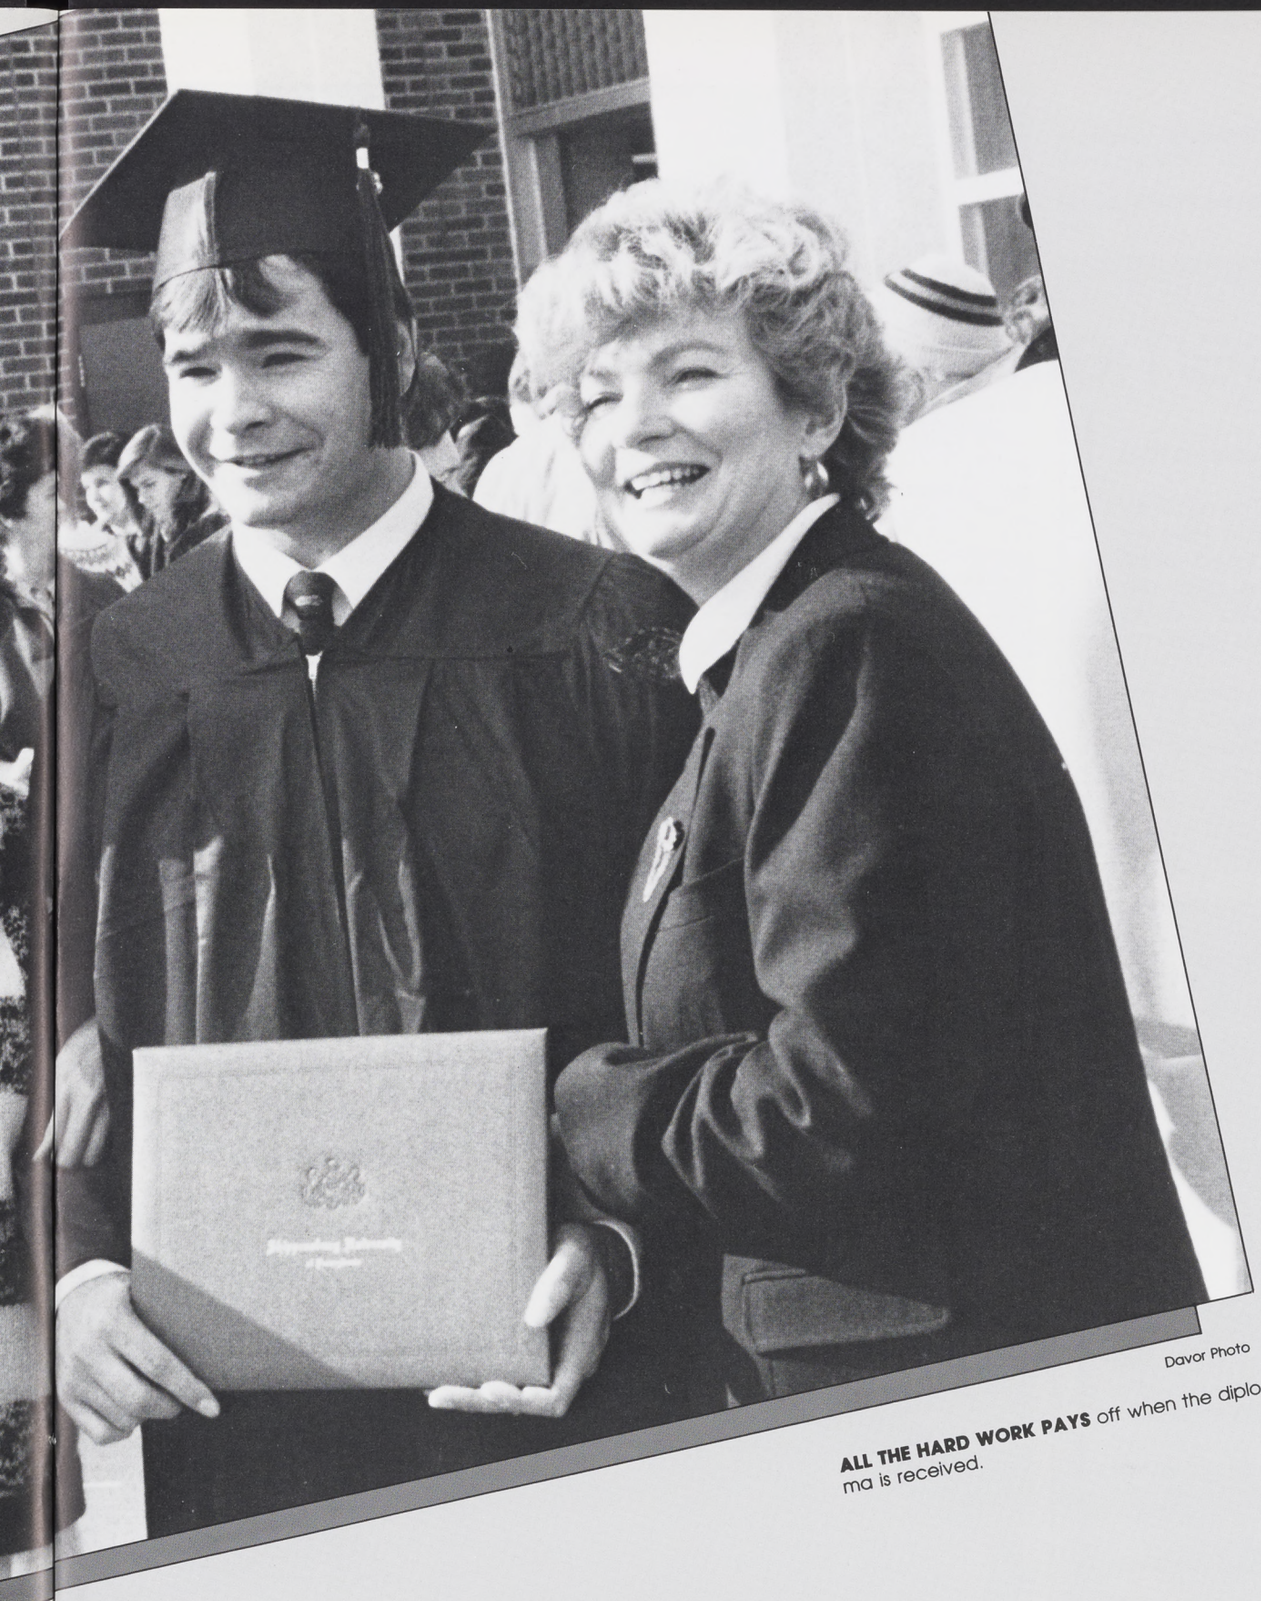

The university provided the student with a variety of places and activities to enhance the student's academic life.

A student's academic life included scheduling once a semester, learning to wait at the computer center, finding quiet places to study and finals. Combining academics with a student's social life was not difficult to most. Academics was one of the most important activities for a student.

Next semester's classes

"The following is a list of courses that are closed as of 4 p.m...."

Oh no. It can't be true. The required class the student needed to take for the next semester just closed. Well, you could either take the alternate and miss "General Hospital" every Monday, Wednesday and Friday or get an add slip.

Each semester, students undertake the hopeless task of sanely trying to schedule classes. After attacking the mountain of papers strangely called the "scheduling packet," the disoriented student then groped his way to his advisor to discuss what classes need to be taken.

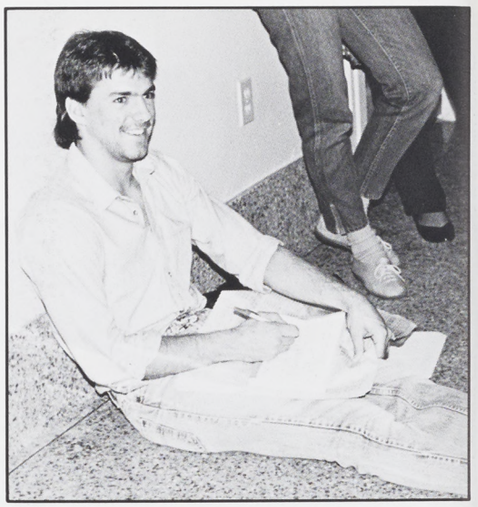

The students create a workable schedule of what classes were offered and by which profs and have a few alternate classes just in case.

After several hundred phone calls to "Miss Hotline" the student handed in the fifth revision of their schedule to their advisor who then disapprovingly looked it over, signed it and expressed his condolences to the student.

Having wisdom of previous scheduling encounters, the student arrived at Old Main early to beat the crowd. At Old Main the student discovered that 25 other wise students had the same brilliant idea.

As the line moves toward the computer room, students listened for last minute class closings as they were announced in the hall. Once inside the computer room the student then handed in their completed schedule and listens for the "Okay" from the operator.

Old Main finally opened its doors after three years and millions of dollars in renovations.

Old Main was first used to house students when the college first was founded. Today, Old Main houses most of the administrative offices and a snack bar.

In September most of the administrative offices had moved to Old Main from Horton Hall. The move provided confusion for new staff and students trying to find the office they were seeking. By October all the offices and staff were in and settled as the dust of moving began to settle.

In October there was a rededication of Old Main for the staff, students, alumni and the public to partake in.

November marked the first wedding in the chapel of Old Main. The chapel was the place for many performances and conferences throughout the year.

Old Main now stands with no scaffolding, only beautiful grandure, inviting everyone in to view its facelift changes.

Coping with course requirements and

Curriculum changes

In keeping the quality of education, the curriculm committee updated the general education program required for graduation.

First, specific requirements which total 15 hours were designed for the student to have basic skills and competencies.

These 15 hours include English Composition, Basic Oral Communication, World History I,II and math competency would be tested through examination or by taking Language and Numbers of Rational Thinking or any of several more advanced courses.

Second, six "categories of knowledge" have been established which total 30 hours of work ranging from 3 to 9 hours in each category. The categories are Language and Numbers for Rational Thinking; Literary, Artistic and Cultural Traditions; Laboratory Science; Political, Economic and Geographic Sciences; and Social and Behavioral Sciences.

Third, the general eduacation electives which total 15 hours can be selected from any course in the catalog providing the student met the class prerequisities.

President Ceddia feels that this program will serve the students well in the future.

Throughout the year the Roy Diebert Planetarium opened its doors to interested persons to come in and view the stars and/or the moon.

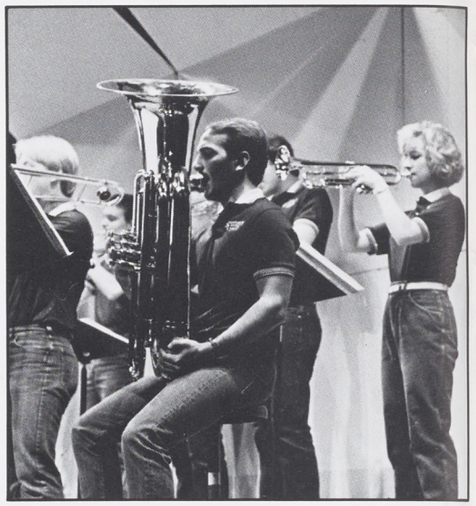

With the return of Halley's Comet, students didn't want to miss out on the spectacular sight. For over 15 weeks, the planetarium featured special shows about Halley's Comet to inform people about the comet and the best place to watch its return. These shows were entitled, "A Comet Called Halley" and "Comet Halley—Once in a Lifetime." Crowds for these shows were tremendous and at times people had to be turned away because of lack of seats. Additional seats were added but not enough to accomodate the large numbers of people.

The planetarium also offered a Christmas show and a show entitled, "A Trip Through The Winter Skies." The audience at the shows were a mixture of students, adults and young children, all interested in seeing the stars and their formations.

Faculty noon music programs, one of the many musical programs at Shippensburg, was a series of informal concerts given over the noon hour by area musicians and members of the university staff and faculty.

Primarily, the musical events presented were intended to serve as a cultural enrichment opportunity. Secondly, the program gave students in Introduction to Music opportunities to fulfill the requirement of attending three musical performances. The program receives no funding, and university members can accompany the musician as needed.

This year's participants shared a wide variety of musical talents. The program began in October when the Dancetellers, a small professional dance company, were in residence at the university. Randall Sheets, a pianist, followed the Dancetellers.

Joel Behres, an adjunct flutist, performed a flute recital with Joan Applegate accompanying.

In February, Kevin Ayesh, a pianist, presented a piano recital in the chapel.

The Noon Music program concluded in March with Susan Belser presenting a voice recital with Joan Applegate serving as an accompanist on the piano. The programs have attracted an average of 80 spectators all eager to hear this form of music alternative.

Students in the foreign language classes had opportunities to listen to tapes in the lab as part of their course requirements.

For the students not enrolled in a foreign language class but had an interest in the subject, there were a variety of listening opportunities. An assortment of tapes were available such as interviews, dramas and recordings of classical, folk and pop music.

Some of the other labs that were available to students were the science and piano labs.

The science labs were used by students in the biology and chemistry classes as part of their course requirements.

The piano lab was set up for the students of the music classes to practice. The lab was located on the second floor of Memorial Auditorium and was a nice, quiet place for students to practice.

The labs on campus gave the students a chance to come in on their own time to complete the course requirements.

Long nights at Franklin's

Computer center

Facing a computer can be scary business for some students who have never used one before and even to those who have.

Most students could not get away from the computers due to assignments from professors. One professor wanted the term paper typed with Wordstar and another wanted projects done on Visicalc.

Students with computer classes must deal with terms such as; syntax error, bits and bytes, pascal and online. They formed a love-hate relationship with the computer room.

It is obvious to any person when a student has a program due. The computer center was backed up and the wait was nerve racking. Roommates were lost until all hours while they were hurrying to complete their program before the deadline and the paper runs out.

With more computers on campus the line in the library's microcomputer lab had been shortened. No matter how many computers there are available the computer room in Franklin Science Center it will always remain lively.

Reading, writing, and finding

Places to study

Studying was pasttime that every college student seemed to put off but eventually became a necessity.

Some students studied in complete silence in a corner. Some studied with radios blasting or walkmans by their sides. No matter how they studied, one important factor to studying was finding a good place to do it.

Students studies in their rooms either at their desk or on their bed. If that didn't suit their taste, they would head out to the lobby where they probably found other people trying to study as well. If the lobby was not deemed suitable the rec room was their next try.

Some students just had to leave the dorm and head to the library. The library was noisy at times but was still a good place to study once the student was done reading the cubicle they had decided to sit at.

Other spots where students studied included empty rooms in Dauphin and Franklin and various places in the CUB.

Most students left the studying to the night before and pulled "all-nighters." The student tried to study everything during a few hours before the big test or final exam.

Once the student has spent his or her time studying they then took a much needed study break.

After studying it's time

To take the test

An important element that decides how students study for an examination was the type of test they would be taking. Different methods were used for essays, multiple choice, and true and false. After the studying was done, perhaps all in one night, students head to class to take the test.

As the teacher hands out the test, different thoughts went through student's minds such as how many pages, can I get it finish, and were the the batteries in the calculator going to last.

When students began their tests, some of the anxiety began to disappear after a few questions were answered successfully. If, for example, a student could not answer the first five or so questions on a test, he may have begun to panic. The student also may have received an essay topic that he had no idea about but does the best "B.S." job to answer it.

Another factor was how professors approached a test. Some professors like to make multiple choice tests that have an "a", "b", and "c" as individual answers but then added "d. none of the above", "e. all of the above", and even "f. only a and b". These type of questions drove students crazy when a test included a lot of those type of questions.

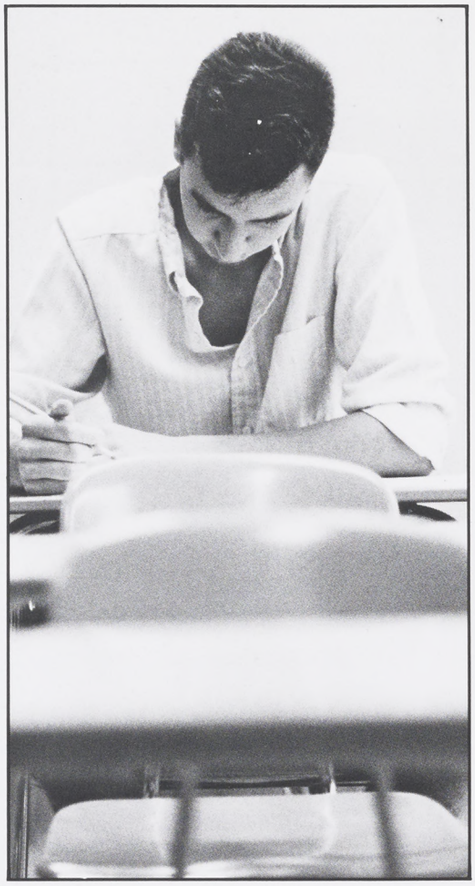

As the time ran out during the class period, students hurried to fill in an Op-scan sheet, or scribble a few more words on to the end of an essay.

Final exams

THE FINAL DOES NOT seem to that bad after this students studied.

CRAMMING FOR THE LAST EXAM, these student take advantage of the quiet study hours in the dorms.

Scott Fear

Final exams. Those two words at the end of the semester are what students hate to hear and dread to think about.

This was the time that students must take five tests within five days. Some students even had two exams on one day with one day free.

In the dorms there were nightly announcements of 24 hour quiet hours. Sometime during the evening the RA's let the students loose for a period of time.

Finals signified the end of a long semester and the beginning a few sleepless and all night study sessions to prepare for the exams.

When the time of the exam arrived, students must remember everything they have just spent the past few hours cramming.

After the final was completed there was a sigh of "One down, three to go," and it's back to the books for another all night cram session with about three or four food and coffee breaks to keep the student going.

The class of 1986

The first section of the Class of 1986 received their degrees on a sunny but cool December 21, 1985. 352 undergraduates received degrees of which 298 were considered part of the 1986 class.

With President Anthony Ceddia presiding, the students first listened to the Rev. Carl Gabrielson, the campus pastor, as he gave the invocation. Following the invocation, the commencement address was given Dr. Frederick F. Chien.

Chien was the appointed U.S. office representative of the Coordination Council for North American Affairs for the Republic of China. Since his appointment, he has been active in calling on prominent American leaders to improve relations between the U.S. and China. His speech dealt with the status of relations between the two countries.

Following the presentation of masters degrees, the soon to be graduates listened to President Ceddia confer the degrees. Student received their degrees from their respective dean: Art and Sciences, Business, Education and Human Services. After receiving the degree, students sang for one last time as a class, the Alma Mater. Rev. Gabrielson closed the ceremony with the benediction.

Undergraduate college careers ended for 682 students on May 10, 1986 as they received their respective degrees. With President Tony Ceddia presiding over the ceremonies, the graduates listened to the first lady of Pennsylvania, Ginny Thornburgh, give the commencement address.

Ginny Thornburgh is known for her involvement with the President's Committee on Mental Retardation, AFS International, and International Year of the Child.

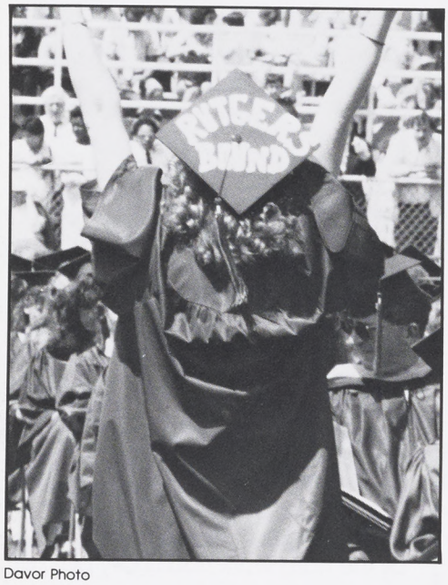

After Thornburgh, Kimberly Kessler, President of the class, made a few remarks. After Kessler, the moment all the students had been waiting for —their degrees. Dr. H. Erik Sharr presented the students for the bachalor degrees and then President Ceddia conferred the degrees.

Students received their degrees from their respective Dean: Charles Clevenger, Education and Human Services; Benjamin Nispel, Arts and Sciences; and Joseph Hunt, Business.

After receiving the degrees students began to celebrate because all the hard work had finally paid off.

Activities for all Interests

Once the initial moving in and getting settled were over, students soon started to develop special interests and activities.

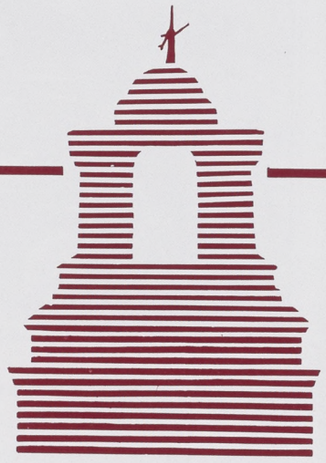

College offered students many clubs and organizations for them to become involved in. There were academic clubs, honor clubs, activity clubs and musical clubs.

Included in these organizations were the student publications, a radio station and the Activities Program Board. Some clubs such as PASS, T.O.U.C.H., Public Relations Club and the Med-Tech Club reached out and worked with the community.

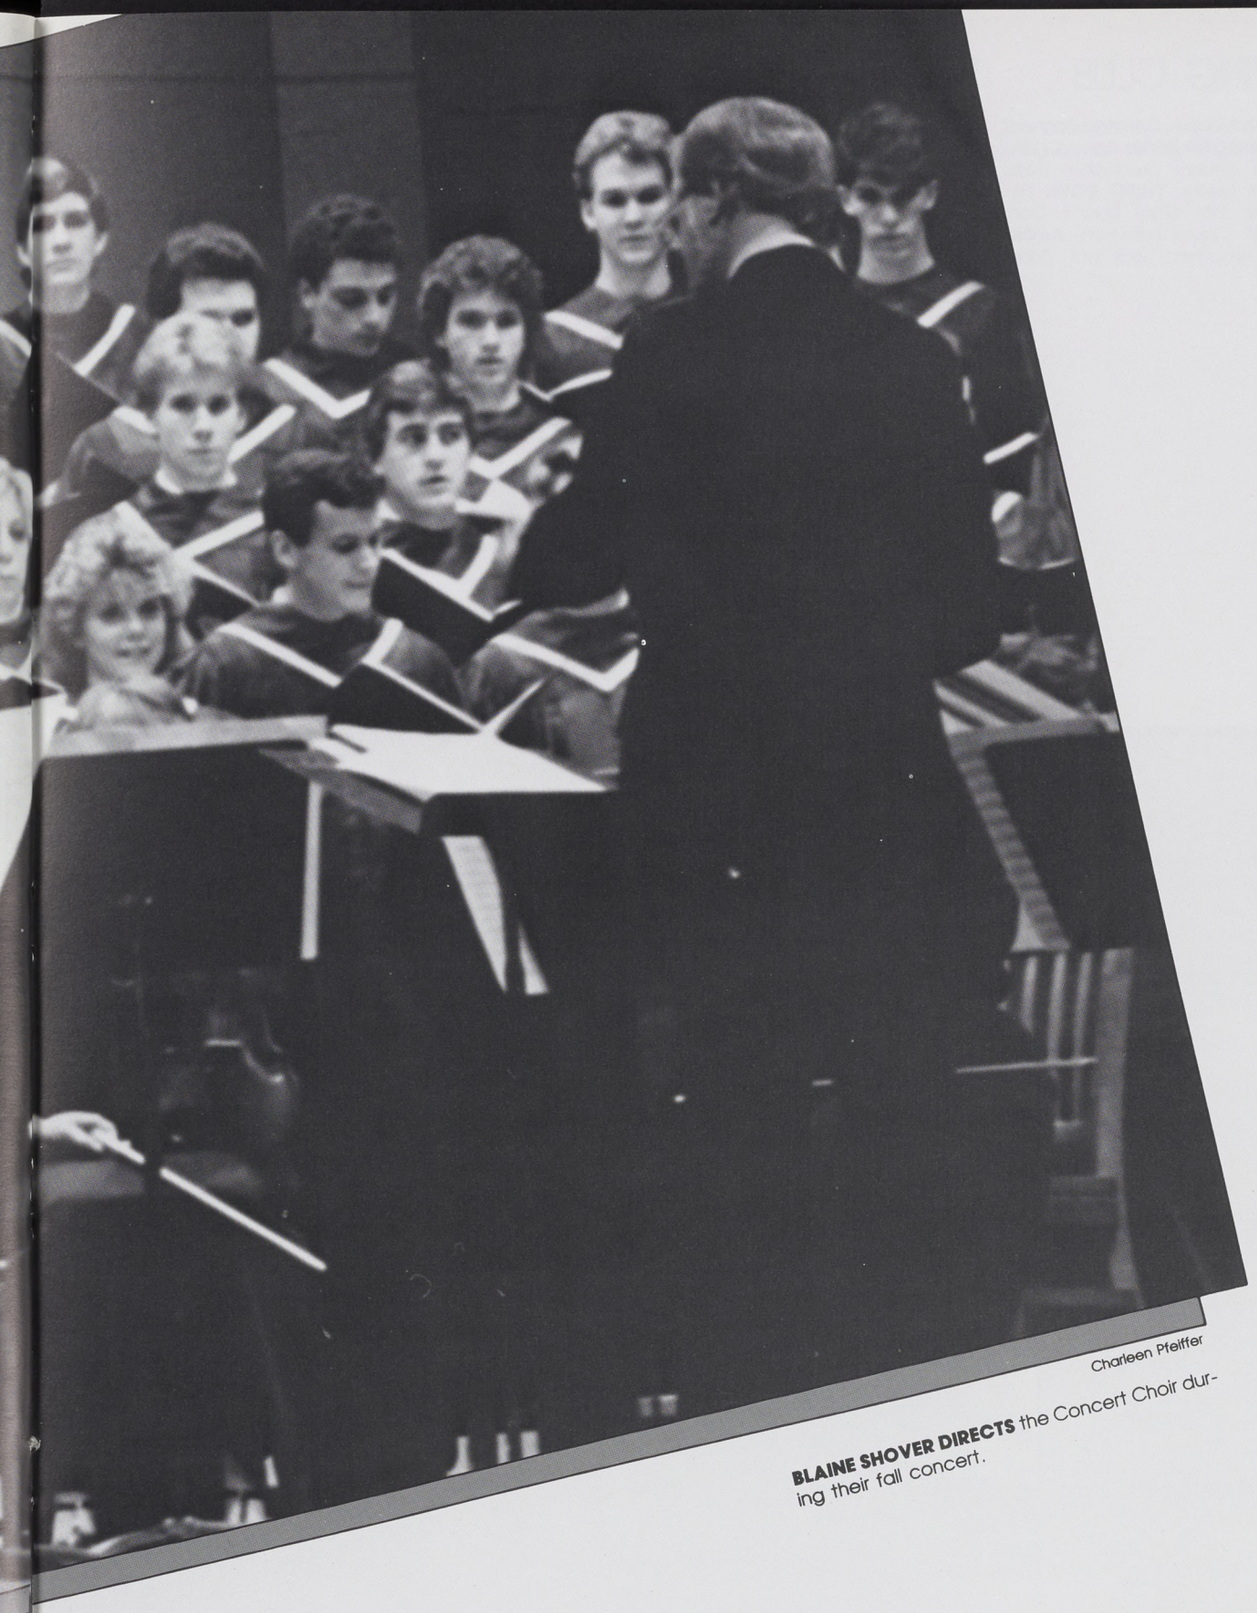

Every student had individual needs and interests and there were clubs and organizations to meet most of these needs.

The marching band

What would a football game be without hot dogs, hot chocolate and the Red Raider Marching Band?

The marching band performed with their usual excellance this year as they had in previous years.

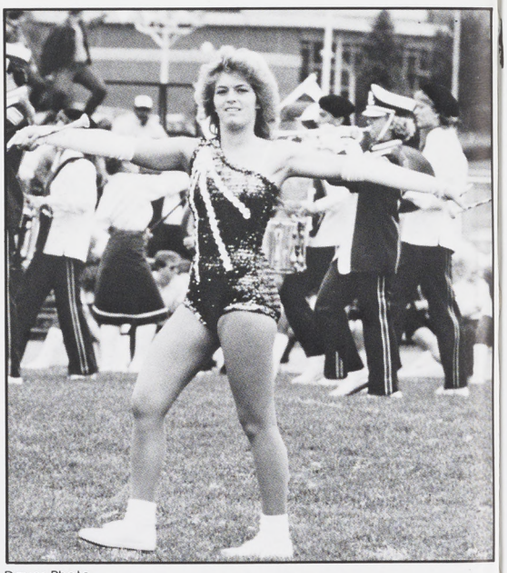

Homecoming was where they displayed their pride in their school. They performed during the homecoming parade through the streets onto the campus to the applause of the spectators. During the halftime show the band performed various numbers while the majorettes and bandfront acted out a story featuring Matt Alosi.

The band is composed of many dedicated musicians and bandfront members who devote two weeks in August for band camp.

After a year of work the books were

Distributed to students

The final work on the 1985 CUMBERLAND was not completed until the middle of October. The work was distributing over 3700 yearbooks to undergraduates, patrons, and graduated seniors. Approximately 900 yearbooks were sent to December 1984, May and August 1985 graduates, 60 to patrons, and then balance was distributed to undergraduate students on campus.

The books arrived on campus bright and early Homecoming Friday at 8:00. A few friends were rounded up to unload the 5 ½ tons of books into the CUB. The following Wednesday the University Store van was loaded to capacity, and the CUMBERLAND staff set up tables in front of the library to distribute free copies. Before the books were even unloaded off the truck, students had begun to line up to receive their copy.

By lunch time, the word had spread that the yearbooks had arrived, and the lines became very long. Although not all the books were given out on Wednesday, all were gone by four on Thursday. This created a problem because students still wanted books, and there were none to distribute. To remedy the problem for the 1986 yearbook, the CUMBERLAND ordered 200 more copies.

Students who were eligible to receive a free copy had to be an undergraduate and at least a second semester freshman.

A yearbook is

More than pictures

The compilation of a year's memories was not an easy job. First a theme for the yearbook needed to be selected. The staff selected "TODAY'S SHIPPENSBURG" as an appropriate theme. Next, type styles had to be selected, and layout styles developed for each section. The ladder diagram was finalized and included 256 pages. With a budget of over $42,000, the staff had many options to incorporate such as tool lines, spot color, and four color.

After all the preliminary work was finished the stories were assigned as were pictures. This year the photography staff was a joint effort between the SLATE and CUMBERLAND. All of SLATE's negatives were given to the yearbook as possible choices for inclusion. The yearbook also decided to have all printing of pictures done at Davor Photo because of their more sophisticated printing equipment. This was an attempt to improve the quality of picture.

Besides copy and photo assignment, seniors and faculty portraits had to be scheduled along with group pictures.

As the year drew to a close, editors could be seen running around campus getting an unreturned story, a last minute picture, and that missing name for a group picture.

All of Ship's
A stage

To the Shippensburg University Masquers and Music Theater organizations, all of SHIP's a stage.

This year, the Masquers delighted audiences with their performance of Shakespeare's tragedy "MacBeth" in October. John Milligan, a professional actor, played the title role. The cast of "MacBeth" learned a great deal from Milligan and discovered what it was like to work with a professional actor.

The stage was set once again in late January as the Masquers performed the comedy "You Know I Can't Hear You When the Water's Running," a series of four one-act plays by Robert Anderson. The comedy, directed by theater arts majors Georgia Prevail and Constance Campbell, represented the first student-directed production on campus in 11 years.

Prevail, who directed the second play "Footsteps of Doves" and fourth play "I'm Herbert," described the plays as a wonderful learning experience.

Campbell directed the first play, "Shock of Recognition," which she had previously directed for a class. She also directed the third play, "I'll be Home for Christmas," and enjoyed working with the people involved.

Roles switched in April as the Music Theater presented the musical drama "Amadeus." Performing in the drama was Danceteller, a national touring modern dance company based in Philadelphia.

Directing the groups during the year were Dr. Thomas Colley, who directed "MacBeth" and Dr. William Kingsley. Kingsley directed "Amadeus."

New computer for Slate

The SLATE shot into the computer age as the 1985-86 academic year proved to be innovative for the campus newspaper.

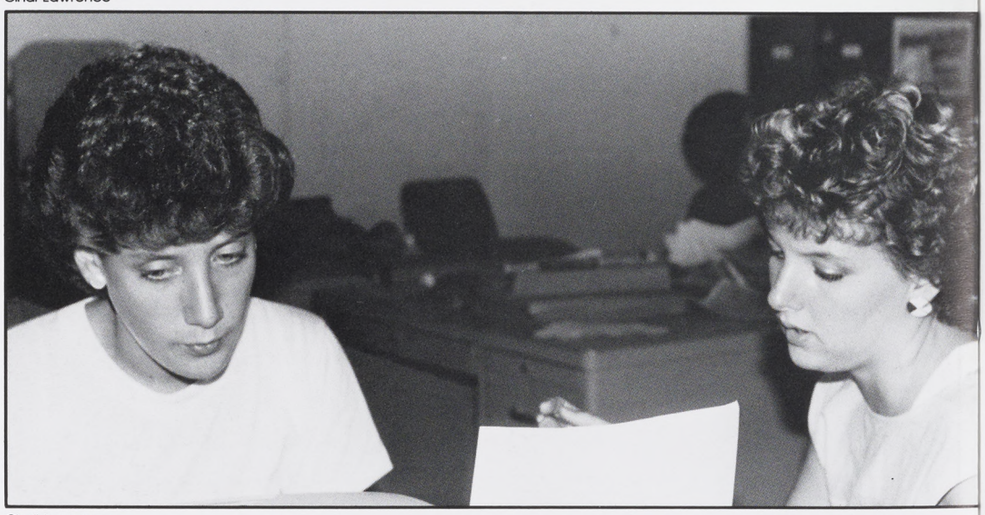

Through its self-help fund, an account set aside from profits made from advertising, the paper was able to replace several pieces of faulty and outdated equipment. The purchase included an Apple MacIntosh 512K computer, Lazerwriter and two Apple IIc's with a printer. With this much needed retooling, including a new photo enlarger, staff members found it easier to produce an up-to-date issue each week.

It was also a transition period as many new faces took on leadership positions. This in turn led to many new columns and ideas which improved the quality of the newspaper.

Tom Stellhorn was editor-in-chief in the fall, and W. F. Monaghan and Chris Heft were co-editors in the spring. Serving as the SLATE's professional advisor was Lynne Hunt.

"I was really impressed by the capable people composing both the business and editorial staffs," said Monaghan. "SLATE is a remarkable example of what a small group of people can do with a little cooperation."

Although WSYC-FM had undergone some major changes in format, their philosophy remained the same: to provide people with the type of music they can't get anywhere else.

After all, what other radio station can students listen to and find a wide selection of music. WSYC-FM had reggae, blues, big band, classical, country, jass, soul, oldies, and the latest new music.

Helping others and

Having fun

During the middle of each semester, some students were found carrying notebooks, purses, paddles, bricks and wearing signs on their backs. This was a part of being greek.

Greek life starts when students rush fraternities and sororities to meet the brothers and sisters and hoped for a bid. Once the students had their bids they began pledging. Pledging helped them learn about their organization and their brothers and sisters.

Greek life provided students with life long friendships. Fraternities and sororities also raised money to help various charities. Greek life culminated each year with Greek Week in which fraternities and sororities competed against each other in various activities.

Today's Greek life

Greek life at Shippensburg can be summed up in one word—special. Many people feel pledging a fraturnity or sorority would be a bother and would be worhless but not to the members of these organizations. In order to understand how special greek life would be, one must experience it. Students know all about the parties, the mixers, exchanges, date parties, and formals, but what about the care these organizations show for each other, the campus and the community? This is the most important part of greek life and is often overlooked. For example: Theta Kappa sponsered the annual balloon derby to benefit the Ronald McDonald House, Delta Rho and Alpha Sigma teamed up in the Turkey Bowl football game for the same cause. Also, Delta Rho and Sigma Delta sold daffodils for the American Cancer Society while Alpha Sigma sponsered a toy drive so needy children in the area can wake up to presents on Christmas morning. Alpha Omicron Pi helds a volleyball marathon for the Arthritis Foundation, and Alpha Kappa Alpha sponsered the feed a friend program. This is only some of the activities greeks participated in this year.

Being greek offered students special friendships, fond memories and they learned to work with other individuals.

The ISC, IFC and Pan Hellenic are the governing bodies of the greek organizations. These organizations strive to unite fraternities and sororities on campus and off campus. They also sponser Greek Week, the annual fun and games between the various sororities and fraternities. ISC, IFC and Pan Hellenic act as a sounding board for the greek organization and consist of the president and a representative from each of the groups.

Alpha Sigma

Alpha Sigma was involved in many service and social activities on campus. A few service activities included: the annual Christmas toy drive, the Turkey Bowl, fundraisers, waittressing at Shananigan's, and having a booth at the annual Children's Fair.

Alpha Sigma not only particpated in these service projects but was also involved a great deal with the social life. Alpha Sigma strove to improve the greek relations between all fraternities and sororities by participating in Greek Week, exchanges, mixers, and social events.

Lambda Chi Alpha

Lambda Chi Alpha, the brotherhood of honest friendship, was going great this year.

Parties also played a part in Lambda Chi's social life. The spring formal took 200 students, alumni and dates to the Poconos for an enjoyable weekend.

Lambda Chi served the community, also. They hosted a bloodmobile, sponsered a pie eating contest for MS, and constructed trash cans for the downtown area.

Passing faces on campus

Students, faculty and administration were part of the flow of faces one sees on campus.

The faces of the university worked together to keep the campus and community operating smoothly.

There were many different interactions between these people. The students talked with administrators about their concerns with policies, housing and financial aid. Students also turned to the faculty for advice and guidance about career and class choices.

Passing classes allowed students to say hello to a friendly face, talk with friends and to meet new people. The faces of faculty, administration and students played an important role at college.

Friendly people brought

Ceddia to SU

"The people were so friendly at Shippensburg," said President Tony Ceddia. "When my wife and I were looking at Shippensburg, the students and faculty were saying hello as we viewed the campus." This was one of the deciding factors that made President Ceddia choose to be president here.

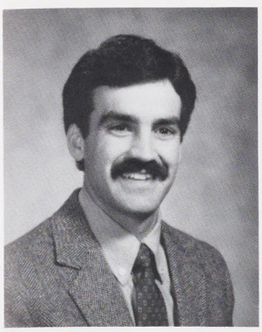

President Ceddia, his wife Valarie, son and daughter have been at Shippensburg for over five years and have no regrets about coming here. Ceddia came from North Adams State in Massachusetts in 1981 to assume the presidency upon the retirement of Gilmore Seavers.

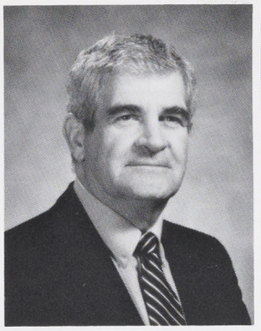

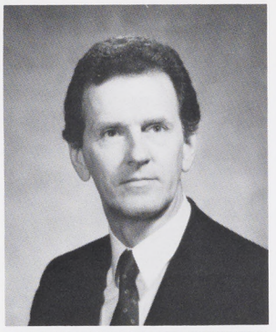

Ceddia tries to keep his office open so students can come and speak with him. He also plans regular walk-in sessions in residence halls and the CUB so students can express their concerns and ideas in a more relaxed atmosphere.

Outside of the office Ceddia can be seen jogging on campus with other faculty. He also enjoys listening to classical music and reading in his free time.

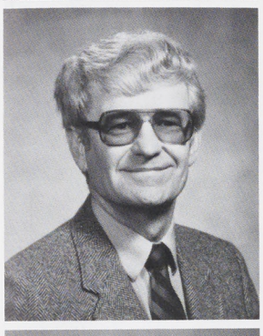

When asked what he would like to have done at Shippensburg, given unlimited financial resources, he answered that the campus needs a performing arts/convocation center. He indicated that the present facilities are outdated and too small for major productions. There would also be seating for 6,000 people in the building. The price tag for all this—at least $13 million. Ceddia quickly added that this is not on the near future at Shippensburg.

Quality of education

Threatened

The threatened strike by professors was more than just a battle for higher wages.

According to Terry Madonna, State president of APSCUF, the salary increase offered to the SSHE faculties was substantually lower than the national average. Madonna continued by saying that SSHE faculties will not be able to compete for quality faculty members. This will ultimately cause a decrease in the quality of education being offered by the SSHE in Pennsylvania.

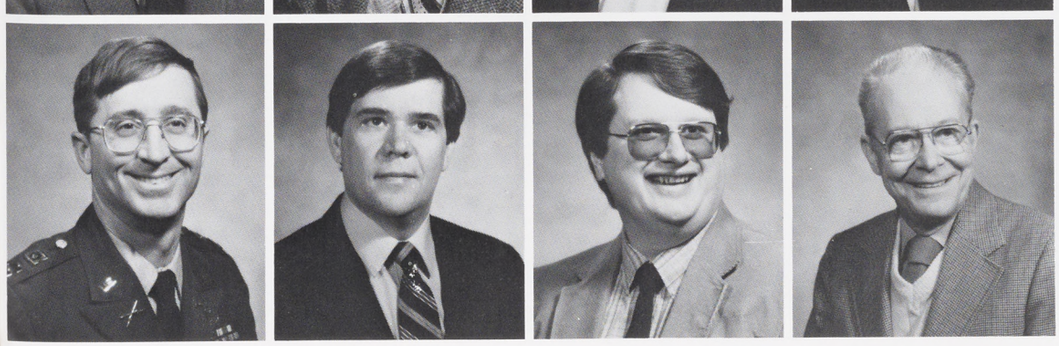

The SSHE at first offered the faculty only a three percent raise over the next three years. Mark Givler said, "A strike was possible at this point." The rank and file of the union took a stike authorization vote on September 18 and 19. The results were overwhelmingly in favor of a strike—3,232 to 187.

With the power of calling a stike now in the unions favor, the SSHE began to offer the professors slightly larger increases. The union and SSHE agree on the salary issue and the possible strike was avoided.

Show brings out

The best

Okay, raise the curtain! Now, dim the lights...dimmer...a little more dimmer. Well, perhaps completely dark would be better since it is the Academic All-Star Review.

On the night of February 28, people from near and far crowded into Memorial Auditorium to see for themselves that the faculty and staff members could do more than just their jobs. They were excellent stage hams! Proceeds from the benefit, put together by Sherry Walker and Hudlin Hunt, went to help establish a minority graduate students scholarship and was sponsored by the Black Heritage Committee.

The evening held many suprises for both the audience and the performers, such as the wandering roller-skater, played by Gary Willhide, who constantly tormented poor Al Mason, the master of ceremonies.

Beyond the comedic successes were several singing and dancing routines performed as if on a professional stage. Among the many performers were Sherry and her husband Ty Walker, who mixed a variety of popular tunes into a story line and came up with a delightfully humorous skit.

The main attraction of the evening was a jazz and bluegrass band going by the handle of "Keystone." The five-man band performed two sets, doing tunes ranging from "The Orange Blossom Special" to "Dueling Banjos" in the first set and combining with the entire company to wrap up with a slam-bang finale. There was literally dancing in the aisles during this show since the dance group came down and pulled people from their seats at the end.

The show was an outstanding success story, despite the zany antics of the group. It became obvious after the second and third curtain-calls that the audience was not ready for it to be over!

Writing tickets

Did you ever wonder what the university police do besides issue those nasty parking tickets? If so you will be surprised at all their duties.

Their main responsibility is the protection and safety of all students on compus. This includes patroling the campus and checking buildings. With the officers circulating around campus there is less chance of a crime being committed. If any property is stolen from students or the university itself, it is their job to try to recover it.

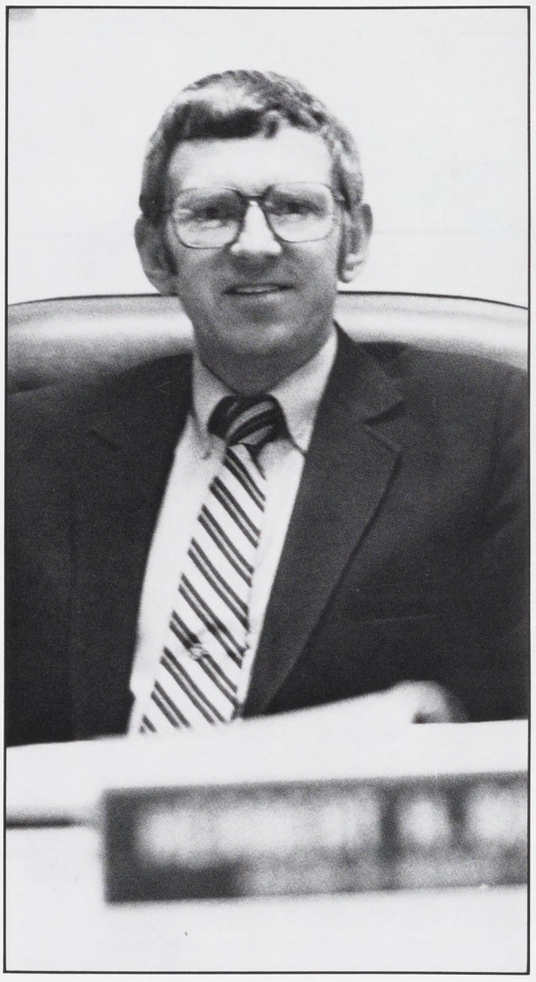

It is also the responsibility of the police to issue and validate student IDs. Remember, a check can not be cashed at the university store without a valid ID.

Not all of the work of the police is technical. They do alot of more personal services on campus.

Whenever a student accidently locks their keys in the car the police will open the door. They will jump start cars in the winter when the battery goes dead. They will also give students a lift from the storage parking lot to a dorm.

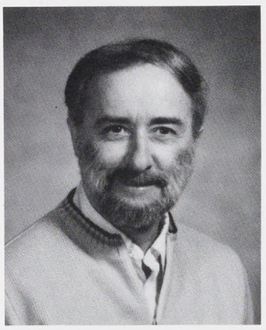

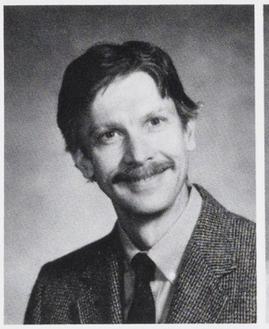

All of these tasks are done for the convenience and safety of students. The police feel that the extra services will add enjoyment to a students stay at college.

Remembering four # Years at SU

From the time that students decided to attend Shippensburg, they wondered what it would be like to be a senior. They thought that it would probably feel the same way when they graduated from high school. When the curiosity became satisfied and the students finally became seniors they realized that it was different from high school. Seniors were facing new horizons; however, they were the horizons of their own making.

Being a senior was, without a doubt, fun. Seniors danced at the Lodge, and sat around and laughed at Maxie's. For relaxation there was always the Release Valve at Burkhart's or they went to the mountains or away on the weekends. Seniors had mastered the classwork after so many years. They were old hands at writing papers and passing tests. Besides, they were soon to be graduating and nothing else seemed to matter.

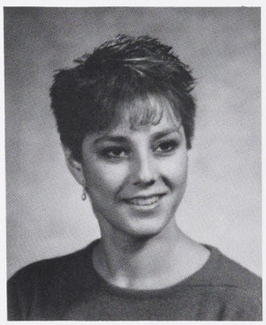

Being a senior was also sad. For years they had lived in a small community of people their own age. They made close friends. They laughed. They cried and they grew up. Seniors realized that after graduation many of the people they greeted daily or chatted with in the library would diappear from their lives. As seniors were faced with good-byes, the celebrations became bittersweet.

The memories of Shippensburg will always be there: an afternoon of sports, a muddy goat path, pledging, the formals, walking from the dining hall on a warm spring night with an ice cream cone, partying with friends, typing papers, joining clubs, and growing up. Finally the soon to be graduates proceeded to Seth Grove Stadium with their caps and gowns on and received the degree they began striving for four years earlier.

Students voice their concerns on the # Possible faculty strike

Just as students were beginning to settle into their classes, the possibility of a faculty strike emerged at the beginning of the academic year.

Faced with the possibility of having the university close until the strike was settled, many students voiced their concern to the administration. Confusion and anger quickly erupted, and students found themselves asking questions like, "Will we be sent home?", "How is this going to affect my classes?", and "Will I have to make up missed classes?" One student said, "If the strike would have lasted a long time, it would have upset me to take everyting home and fall a semester behind."

Seniors were especially concerned about the possible strike. Many feared the strike would directly affect graduation, and were upset that lost class time could never be made up.

The stike, however, would have given most students a chance to catch up on their school work. One studnt stated, "I definitely would have studied and gotted caught up with my work."

But school work was not the top priority for some students. One student said she would have stayed with a friend in town and hoped the faculty wouldn't strike for long, while others said they would have spent time with their fiancees or sweethearats. One student even stated. "I would have partied all night!"

Students breathed a heavy sigh of relief though, when October 21st arrived without a picket line in sight. The faculty were given their raise, and the school year finally returned to normal. Well, almost normal—of course, there were a handful of students who were disappointed when the strike was resolved. Stated on student, "I wish they had gone on strike, just for a few days!"

Danceteller provided

An unique experience

Through a grant to the university from the Pennsylvania Council of the Arts, the students, faculty and staff enjoyed a unique three week cultural residence by the national touring campany Danceteller.

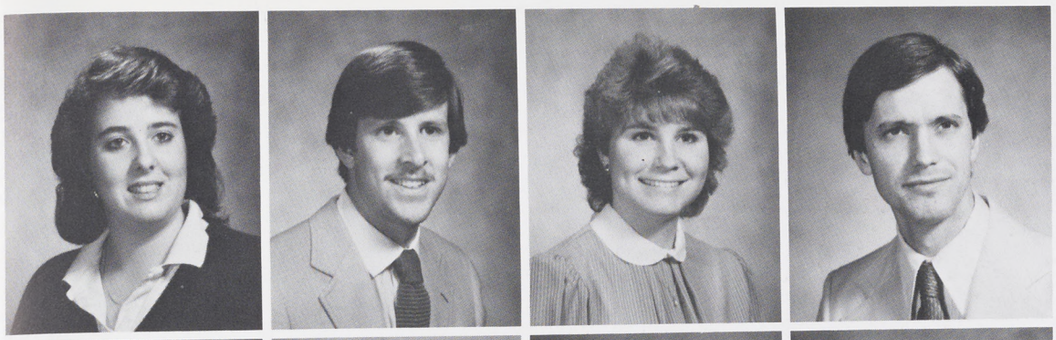

During their stay, Danceteller, performed during the Noon Music series and a major concert for the public. Danceteller also returned in the spring to perform during the masquer's production of Amadaus.

Danceteller, during their stay, held open rehearsals, workouts, and classes in dance technique, choreography and improvisation.

The performances included "Quiet City", "City Dance", and "Ocean" which the first two were choreographed by dancer Trina Collins.

The Danceteller series was a unique and interesting experience for all who participates in it.

College career

If patience is a virtue, then it is one lesson well taught at the university level.

It does not take the incoming student long to discover that lines are very important to the campus community. From the start, one is caught in the line for a student I.D. card and then it is off to another line for the meal card.

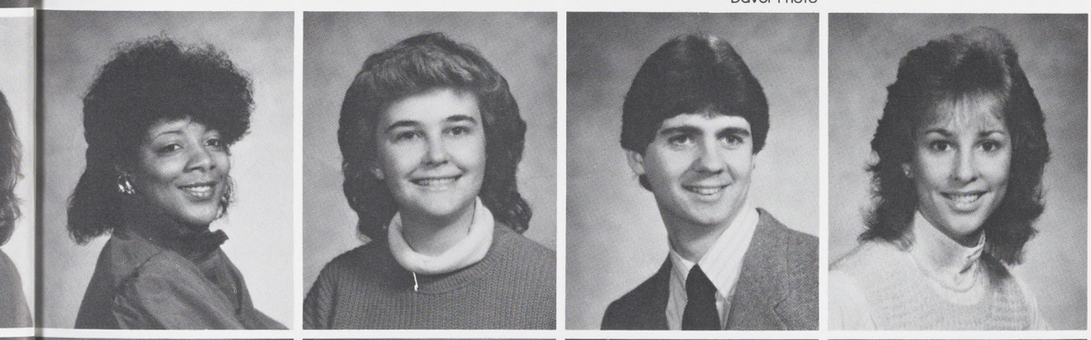

People living on campus are surrounded by lines. They wake to stand in line for the shower. When they go to eat, whether it is breakfast, lunch, or dinner, there is a line.

Soon the general psychology becomes how to beat the line. Going early only finds one standing around with a bunch of people who went earlier. Another popular method is to move off campus, but still there are other lines to contend with such as the lines for buying new books and scheduling.

Some students have learned line waiting well. These are the people who bring along a book or a cluster of friends. Others never seem to get the point. These are the people who look like they are shuffling through a police line-up.

And just when the final semester seniors feel they have escaped the drudgery of the lines, they are faced with the final line that all students hope to be in—the one leading to pick up their degrees at graduation.

Audience participation with

Campus comedian

What would you do if your mother told you to go play in traffic? Well, featured comedian Dave Rudolph made a song about it. He opened his act with a song telling all about his funny childhood.

The four-time nominated Campus comedian of the Year, blew in from the windy city of Chicago to entertain SU students.

"I never have a set show," said Rudolph describing his successful act. He imitated such stars as Bob Dillon and Michael Jackson, He also personalized the show be including the audience. He ran off the stage more than once to seat people standing in the doorway, or to single out someone in the crowd. The audience also helped him sing some songs.

He sang a few "sick" songs like "Dead Puppies Are No Fun," but he made up for it by letting the audience sing "Lord I'm in Trouble Again," commenting that it was an appropriate song.

On a more serious note, Rudolph explained to the audience that he worked with autistic children. He then sang a song that he wrote for an autistic girl. He finished the night by returning for an encore.

FORMER ASTRONAUT SCOTT CARPENTER EXPLAINS the United State's future in space.

Carpenter talks

About space travel

Mercury astronaut Scott Carpenter told Shippensburg University faculty and students in Reisner Hall that mankind has a future in space.

Although the recent Challenger explosion will force a delay in the Amercian space program, Carpenter said that NASA will continue to launch satellites and more space shuttles until the end of the century, He also said an orbiting space lab is scheduled for flight in 1992.

"The shuttle disaster was a failure of priorities and procedures, not the concept of man in space. We should press on with greater vigor," he said.

Carpenter is a aquanaut for the underwater laboratory Sealab, and was also one the original Mercury astronauts. He made the second orbital flight around the Earth and is the only man ever to penetrate both inner and outer space.

Carpenter also stated that mankind will someday live on both the moon and Mars.

Although cost and technology are the main concerns of NASA right now, Carpenter was confident that humans will make their home on another planet.

"We will colonize the moon and Mars," he said.

Carpenter was also confident that the Challenger explosion will not delay America's space program by more than a year.

He said the shuttle disaster was a result of schedule pressures and complacency. He would like to see future crews take a more active part in preparing for their flights.

"Something detrimental has grown in NASA's halls since the early days. The tragedy should never have happened," he said.

Carpenter concluded by noting two obligations of astronauts. The first is the family of man, and health and welfare of all human beings. The second obligation is allegiance to the planet as a whole.

"If we are to survive, we have to protect nature."

Gillespie's foot

Tapping Show

Shippensburg University had the honor of hosting the world renown jazz artist, Dizzy Gillespie in the spring. Memorial Auditorium was crowded with avid fans and new-comers.

Gillespie and his band put on an excellent show that lasted for two and a half hours. They performed a variety of music and thrilled everyone with their talent.

Gillespie's stage personality was absolutely fantastic. If he was not playing an instrument he was dancing or joking with the audience. His wit and humor kept everyone interested and entertained.

The band returned for two encores after the show and was awarded with a standing ovation from the audience. The members of the band mingled with the crowd after the show and many were lucky enough to receive an autograph.

Getting and spending

Money

THE CASHSTREAM MACHINE IN THE CUB is ready to give out money.

Dave Hunt

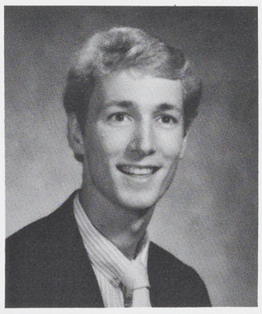

Spending money as a college student was usually an all or nothing deal. Either you have it (which most didn't) or students get it from one of many sources. One of the most popular was Mom and Dad. A collect call or letter home with a subtle hint slipped in can work wonders. A less popular, but none the less useful method, was a job. A job may only pay $3.35/hr, but its spending money. Checkbooks have also been well used, but more so this year since the CUB installed a CashStream machine. No Longer do students have to go home to get a check cashed; now they just feed in a card, punch some numbers, and out pours the cash. This was very handy, although it was easy to forget to update your checkbook afterwards.

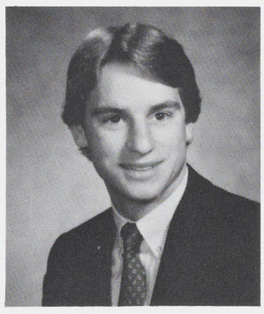

Well, now that the student has money, what does one do with it? First, they pay for things that are necessary, but unexciting like tuition, the phone bill, books, and laundry. What then? Just about anything from clothes, movies, records, food, and beer, to stereos, cars, and Maxie's. It ususally only take 24-48 hours to become a poor college student again, but most students survive on a few dollars untill Mom, the boss, or the bank says it's alright to spend again.

Audience sings with

Thorogood

George Thorogood and the Delaware Destroyers brought their blues and rock show to Heiges to the delight of a large enthusiastic crowd.

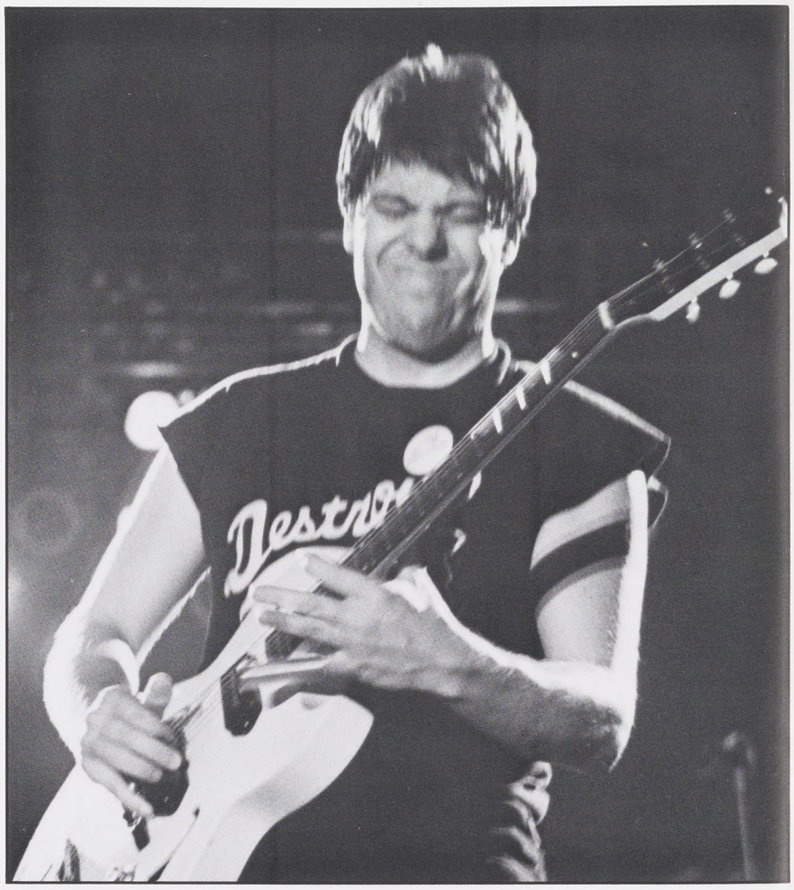

George and the band were relentless from the moment they took the stage. Rarely pausing long between songs, they energenicly performed a mix of new and old songs.

Happy concert-goers had memorized the lyrics and were all too eager to help with the audience participation sections. Hits like "Move It On Over", "Bad To The Bone", "Gear Jammer", and "I Drink Alone", were particular favorites. In fact, occasionally when Thorogood paused between phrases, the crowd completely took over.

Throughtout the show Thorogood wore a pin proclaiming "I Love Shippensburg." He also referred to Shippensburg several times in his songs, adding local flavor to the show. Near the close of the show he proclaimed, "This is our first time here, but we hope it's the start of a long relationship!" Judging by the fan response, it could be just that.

Acknowledgements and thanks

The compilation of a yearbook needs the help of many individuals. The editorial board would like to thank the following persons who were not on the staff but made the task of preparing the yearbook a little bit easier:

—Craig Rodabaugh, Josten's representative, for spending time with the staff in the preparation of layouts, the cover design, and the development of the theme.
—Jean Warren, CUB information desk clerk, for her help during senior pictures and group sign up periods.
—Abe Orlick, and his staff at Davor Photo, for meeting out every print order and developing order with superb quality.
—Jack Roddick for photographing the athletic teams.
—University Bookstore for the use of their van when distributing yearbooks.
—Tim Hogan, Andrew Shumway, and Rob Diehl for helping to unload 5-½ tons of yearbooks when they arrived one early morning.
—Student Association who covered the majority of costs of the CUMBERLAND.
—Gary Willhide and Audun Olsen, the advisors, for moral support, and answering questions that arose during the year.

Alma Mater

In the dear Old Cumberland Valley
'Neath the glowing sky
Proudly stands our Alma Mater
On a hilltop high.

'Mid the waving golden cornfields
Just beyond the town
Stand the ivy-covered buildings
As the sun goes down.

When we leave our Alma Mater
We will praise her name
Ever live to raise the standards
Of her glorious fame.

CHORUS

Swell the chorus ever louder
We'll be true to you
Hail to thee our Alma Mater
Dear old Red and Blue.
